Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

In the Medical Record (New York) of December 18, 1909, Dr. John F. Russell says: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation. * Among inorganic substances lime salts appear to be of special physiological importance. * but if the salts are not in organic combination, it is difficult to suppose that the cells can appropriate them for food."

Years of widespread use confirm our belief that the success of Eckman's Alterative in tuberculosis is due largely to its content of lime, in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily appropriated by the cells.

Doubtless this has had much to do with the results in many cases which appear to have yielded to it. As it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

REVIVALIST TELLS OF RELIEF FROM PAIN.

St. John the Divine, in his vividly drawn picture of Heaven, as his closing and most convincing argument of its glories, states: "And there shall be no more pain." Rev. 21:22. In making this assertion St. John felt that no more glorious prospect could be placed before the human mind.

Pain saps our strength in the battle of life. It is the strongest helper of disease.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills bring wonderful relief from all pain. For the past 20 years these pills have been increasing in popularity, until now they are the most generally used remedy in use.

The Rev. R. M. Bentley, of Shelbyville, Ind., the popular revivalist, has the following to say about these pills:

"I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to say something in regard to Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. I consider them a God-send. For myself I fail to find words to express my gratitude for the relief that they bring. Hundreds of times when it seemed the pain was too great to allow me to go on the platform I have found in them a sweet relief. I have used them for over 10 years and always tell others about the benefit that can be derived from them."

If you suffer from any pain, purchase a box and if you are not perfectly satisfied return the empty box to your druggist and he will be glad to give you your money back.

Editorial

In vain we call all notions fudge,
And bend our conscience to our dealing;
The Ten Commandments will not budge,
And stealing will continue stealing.
— Lowell.

Billy Sunday says: "There are three ways to spread the news—telegraph, telephone, tell a woman."

There is in reality but one world problem—that of human welfare; but that problem has enough aspects to keep Governments, Churches, and every other worthy agency known on earth constantly busy working at its solution. And when it is successfully solved the Millennium will be at hand.

Some men have a habit of quoting in a slipshod and inaccurate manner. This is unpardonable. One who has given to the world an utterance that people desire to repeat is entitled to be treated fairly by borrowers. This should be regarded as one of the inviolable rights of authors, whether living or dead.

What are you doing to make your church more spiritual and fruitful? There is an obligation upon every member to aid in doing this. A good way to begin to discharge this duty is to get closer to Christ yourself; then you will be in a condition to be of real service to others. If every one in the Church would become an active, earnest worker to save and spiritually strengthen souls, the world would soon be won for the Master.

Methodism is far from being what it ought to be, but it is yet the mightiest moral force in the American Nation. If you doubt this, open your eyes and you will see its banners waving in the forefront of every great reform movement that is under way on our soil. No other denomination in the United States has a better press, or better schools, or is more efficiently organized, or is more aggressively militant. The forces of evil know this to be true.

It is easy to sneer at consistency and pronounce it to be "the bane of little minds," but when a man reverses his position there ought to be a good reason for it. Otherwise, it is a weakness for one to be variable and uncertain in what one stands for. It indicates that such a person is at least shallow in his convictions—a superficial thinker. And often the shifter is swayed by motives that would scarcely bear investigation. For our part, we admire a man who looks a thing through before he takes a stand, and who after he has taken it may be depended upon with reasonable certainty to keep it. The "open mind" is much extolled, and it is well enough in its way; but the mind that never settles anything and lets it stay settled is much to be pitied.

A NEEDED LESSON.

There are some people who accomplish very little because, instead of using their present powers and opportunities, they sigh for larger gifts and a wider field in which to exercise them. Because they have not five talents, or ten talents, they neglect to use their one talent. Because they cannot shine in a conspicuous sphere, they are blind to the near-by open doors which invite them. Such a spirit is most unfortunate. In the first place, it is by using the powers that one already possesses that they are so developed and strengthened that one is capacitated for larger service. It is only by making the most of present opportunities that one may hope to go forward to wider ones. Nobler conquests await only him who shows himself the master of the situation where he is. Moreover, no work done to help humanity for Christ's sake is small or unimportant. The world may take no notice of such work in the out-of-way places, but the Master's eye is upon all such toilers. He ever sees them, is pleased by their efforts, and will not fail to reward them.

It is a significant fact that our Lord when he was upon earth counted no opportunity to help a needy soul too insignificant to be faithfully utilized. Some of his most luminous and inspiring utterances were spoken to single individuals, and no suffering outcast upon the highway appealed to him in vain. This lesson of capitalizing to the fullest extent the resources and possibilities already within our reach is one that we urgently need to learn.

"Not more of light I ask, O God,
But eyes to see what is;
Not sweeter songs, but ears to hear
The present melodies;
Not more of strength, but how to use
The power that I possess;
Not more of love, but skill to turn
A frown to a caress;
Not more of joy, but how to feel
Its kindly presence near
To give to others all I have
Of courage and of cheer.
No other gifts, dear God, I ask,
But only sense to see
How best those precious gifts to use
Thou hast bestowed on me."

AN ADMIRABLE ANSWER.

Dr. Lyman Abbott, the brilliant editor-in-chief of The Outlook, frequently answers the inquiries of correspondents in that unsurpassed periodical, under the caption, "Letters to Unknown Friends." Many of these replies are strikingly interesting and informing, and knowing this, we never fail to read these messages from Dr. Abbott's scholarly pen when they appear. The following query and response, which were contained in The Outlook of Sept. 8, are so suggestive that we reproduce them for the benefit of our readers:

"'Do you believe in predestination? If a soldier dies on the battlefield, was his death in accordance with divine providence? Was it ordained from the beginning of his life that he should end thus?

"I see no reason to believe that God has fixed all the incidents and events of any man's life in detail. On the contrary, I believe that He has left to his children a large realm in which they are free to determine, by their own choice, their course of conduct and the consequent events."

We do not by any means always agree with Dr Abbott's theological views, but in this instance we are fully in accord with his opinion. A clearer and more admirable statement concerning this old question, which even yet is often raised, we have nowhere seen.

WHISKY SHUT OUT.

It is stated that in the forthcoming Revised Edition of the "United States Pharmacopoeia" whisky will be entirely eliminated from the list of drugs that have a medicinal value. This authoritative publication is issued under the direction of representatives of the principal medical and pharmaceutical colleges of the country, the American Medical Association and various organizations of druggists, and the Marine Hospital and the surgeon-generals of the United States Army and Navy, and its utterances concerning matters of this kind carry with them very great weight—constituting, indeed, what might be termed the pharmacal law of the land. So, the effect of this pronouncement may reasonably be expected to prove far-reaching and wholesome.

There was a time when whisky was generally regarded as a well-nigh indispensable medicine, and was freely prescribed by physicians, and the prohibition issue was complicated by the question of how to get rid of it as a beverage and yet keep it within the reach of physicians and druggists when needed in combating disease. We have been gradually learning better than this, however, and the most competent medical practitioners have long since almost completely dispensed with alcohol as a therapeutic agent, having discovered that there are other things which accomplish better the ends which it had been supposed to serve. There are still a few doctors who cling to the old view; but, as a rule, they are not those who stand highest in their profession, and their number is rapidly decreasing.

This decision that whisky is without value as a medicine ought to strengthen greatly the prohibition movement. If a plea cannot be made in its behalf in this respect, in view of the vast amount of harm that it does, what justification can there be for its continued manufacture?

There are some who are given to lamenting that we now have "no great preachers." Let these pessimists read the field notes in our Conference organs and they will see that we have no other kind.

The Alabama Christian Advocate quotes an exchange as saying: "The giraffe, which makes no sound whatever, is the only animal in nature so constructed." Evidently these gentlemen had no reference to the ecclesiastical giraffe, for often he is a good "blower of his own horn."

MY ROSE-COVERED COTTAGE.

By Alice Gorton Wynn.

I said, in hours of toil and strain,
Some day will be changed my lot;
In the calm and peace of a quiet lane,
I will rest in a rose-covered cot.

Though spirits flag and strength is spent,
I find, as each year closes,
The tasks stretch on, new labors sent—
No time for my cot of roses.

When the last charge comes from the Father's hand,
I'll see angel's wings o'er-hovered;
In the Home of the Soul, the Promised Land,
I shall find my cot rose-covered.

THE SIMPLE FACTS FOR HONEST PEOPLE.

By Bishop J. C. Kilgo.

The questions between Vanderbilt University and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, have been settled, and our Church has gone bravely at the task of re-establishing its educational work on a larger, a sounder, and a safer basis. During the time the issue was a matter in the courts I did not give public expression to my views, but under instructions from the General Conference, along with the other Bishops, I did my duty as best I could in an honest effort to defend the rights of our Church. Now that the main issue of legal definitions and rights has been decided, I may be permitted to speak of the case from the view-point of the average man who has neither time nor taste for long legal documents, terms, testimony, and discussions. It is very natural that the average man, looking at things in the total, should somehow feel that the opinions of the highest courts are correct, although they may not be clear, and this attitude of mind may be allowed in this case, so far as the courts are concerned. But there are simple facts which are perfectly clear and upon which the verdict of the unsophisticated public will be reached.

It has never been disputed, will never be disputed, and can by no kind of regard for truth be disputed, that a body of Methodist men met in Memphis in 1870 for the express purpose of discussing the advisability of founding a Methodist University in the South. They did decide to found such an institution, to call it the Central University of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. They secured a charter in the State of Tennessee for it, decided to locate it in Nashville, Tenn., and set about to collect funds for it. Mr. Vanderbilt gave to this university a large sum of money, in appreciation of which the Trustees changed the name of the university. All people who know anything about the facts admit all these things. There never has been, and never can be, any doubt that these Methodist folks intended to found a Methodist university, thought they had founded a Methodist university, and for forty years they and all informed people in America thought that Vanderbilt belonged to the Methodist Church. If these Methodist people had not thought this, and had not deliberately designed it, there never would have been a Vanderbilt University, so far as the Methodist people are concerned.

The Conferences that had this enterprise under their ownership and control appointed, according to the charter, agents to manage it for them. For many years all went well so far as the ownership and control of the University were concerned. Finally, some one or more of the agents having charge of this property for the principals found what seemed to be a legal flaw in the titles, or the charter. It was a question of legal terms and legal construction of terms—never for one moment a question as to whether the Methodist people believed they had founded and did own Vanderbilt. Under these circumstances two courses were open before the agents, or trustees, either of which it was possible for them to take. First, they might have reported to the owners whose property they had been appointed to protect and manage that they had found a seeming flaw, and that they deemed it wise for these owners to take such steps as were necessary to perfect their titles. This was the only course of honorable action, as honorable action is understood among average men, which could possibly have been taken, and this course of action every principle of honorable dealings demanded should be taken. About this there can not be the shadow of a doubt. There is no circle of business in which this is not recognized as obligatory upon all agents.

The second course which it was possible to take was to decide to keep silent and wait for such an opportunity as might arise when all these questions might be brought up, and the agents secure for themselves and their own appointed successors a property which they and all informed people knew they held as the representatives of a principal. The time seemed to come, and this course was taken, with the result that the court interpreted the words of the charter in keeping with the opinion of the agents, and turned over to these agents the property which the Methodist people and all other intelligent folks thought belonged to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The flaw which the agents discovered was, according to the court's interpretations of the technical terms, as grave as the course of the agents supposed. So in law this university passed out of the hands of its builders and owners only because there had been doubtful expressions put into the titles, and advantage was taken of this error. These facts can never be disputed. The Trustees of Vanderbilt University never did advise the Methodist Church of this flaw which they discovered and suggest the removal of it, but upon it, and upon it alone, they contended in the courts that the Methodist people in the light of this faulty charter did not own the university, and under the decision of the court they now own a property which is universally admitted was created by and believed to be owned by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

And there are other facts which support the conclusion that these agents did intend to get through this legal flaw the property they held as agents into their own possession and under their own control. As it is now understood, the court gave these agents full possession and management of the university, but none of them have made a proposition to exercise this property right and bear back to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with all titles legally sound, the property which they know the Methodists truly and fully believed to be their property. The Trustees have the right to do this, but they do not do it, and this fact justifies the average man in a belief that they originally intended to get it from the Methodist Church. Nor will this opinion be changed in the slightest by the vain boast that they wish to make a bigger Vanderbilt than the Church could make. People will not believe that. No moral purpose can ever condone an immoral act. Germany has tried such an argument on the world in defense of the Belgian outrages. There is nothing more repugnant to the sense of truth and honor of the average man than a pretense of piety in an effort to cover the scandal of iniquity.

The average man does not get his ethical ideas from the court-house. Many things that are declared by a court to be right the average man knows to be wrong, and his repugnance at such wrongs often breaks out in rebellious protests, doing even very unlawful acts in resentment of outrages against truth and justice. There are very few persons who have not some knowledge of a court giving the property of an unsuspecting widow to an unscrupulous agent, or deciding against a real owner in favor of a smart trickster. Some men have grown rich by chiseling through the law some honest person out of possessions on no basis except a word in a title. Such men are hated in their communities, and silently held to be most undesirable citizens. The conscience of the average man does not admit that a man has a right to all he can get through the law. And so it is, that in this court of the average man's conscience has been written the real verdict against Vanderbilt University. It is a verdict dictated not by shrewd arguments, legal definitions, slight shades of verbal meaning, and long references to authorities recorded in court records, but one that comes out of a sense of honor, righteousness and fidelity which has not been warped by greed and malice. The people will always know Vanderbilt University as the University which the Methodists founded and owned and which their own trustees, composed of Methodist preachers and Methodist laymen, got from the Church and are keeping from the Church through a flaw in the charter which the founders never suspected in it. With the people it will be another instance in the already long list of the law giving to agents what belongs to other persons, and there the case will rest for all time. Under these circumstances the average man will give little attention to Vanderbilt's plea for confidence, patronage, and favor. Least of all will Vanderbilt's claims to a superior type of Christian character and religious teaching meet with any sort of patient tolerance in the thoughts of the average man, so long as such teaching is paid for with money given to the Church, not one cent of which has been returned to the rightful owners. The court's verdict may be found in the Reports of Tennessee, but the real verdict to which this institution must be responsible is written in the outraged sense of truth, honor, right, and fidelity in the mind and conscience of the average man. All arguments must now be addressed to this court.

THE BIBLE AND THE "TONGUE PEOPLE."

By Rev. J. C. Rousseaux.

II.

The Devil has two dupes: "Christian Science" for the philosophic, and "faith healers" for the ignorant.

Cannot Perform Miracles.

In this connection, I remember the failure of the "Apostolics" to cure two little blind children, a boy and a girl, and also a faithful Christian girl who was left a cripple from typhoid fever. I know of another case where the parents of a little sick boy whom I visited, after the good doctor had pulled the child through a severe crisis, sent word to him not to come back as they had turned the case over to the "Tongue People." The child is up, looking mighty bad, but he is well; and still the doctor lost his case. If that child had died, who would have been to blame? The doctor, of course, poor man.

These people claim to have the power to cast out devils, in addition to their other inflated claims. The near-relative of a woman here told her kinswoman that she had cast two devils out of her child not two years old. It is commonly reported that a child living in this vicinity who has been a subject of epileptic fits, was supposed to have been healed under the anointing of a certain "Come-outer," claiming to belong to the Church of God. But the anointing was not a success, so the parents turned the child over to the "Tongue People." After due consideration their revelation was that the child had a devil, and that there was but one way now to get it out, and that was to beat it out. Rebuking and praying the devil out had evidently failed—at least in that case.

Prominent people in Sabine Parish would know these people were I to call their names. Courtesy forbids my doing so. Time fails me to multiply the cases that might be mentioned.

Prominent people of Vernon Parish will remember that a certain woman went out to the meetings of the "Tongue People," got tremendously excited trying to get the "Tongue," fell down and died in the altar, or near it. These people said she was in a trance. They took her home and stayed up with her all night. They announced in the morning that she would "come back" at 3 o'clock that day. The people went home, some of them, and at 3 o'clock some of them went back to see what had really happened, or would happen. Then these gifted "Prophets of the Mysterious" came forth and told those present, among whom was a Methodist preacher, the pastor there, that the woman was "having such a good time with Jesus that she would not be back till that night at 8 o'clock." Eight o'clock came; still the woman had not moved. By this time it would have been customary to bury the body. But these people kept the body out of the grave for three days, when, as I understand it, some men of the place went and buried her, over the protest of the "Apostolics" that they would have to answer in the Judgment Day for burying a human being alive, and that therefore they were murderers.

Who were the real murderers? Did they really think they were right? They in the end saw that they were deluded. Had they the prophetic insight that they claim, they would have not needed the odor that came from a decaying and putrefying corpse to convince them that their subject was long ago beyond their control—that she was dead.

This one case alone, which really occurred in or near Hornbeck, La., which came up before the Grand Jury, ought to convince sane folk that the "Tongue People" are fanatics of the wildest sort.

The Pentecostal Sign.

That people spoke through a miracle of tongues or languages on the Day of Pentecost there can not be the shadow of a doubt. The disciples, men and women, to the number of one hundred and twenty, had been waiting in the upper room of a house, probably where they had eaten the last supper, which perhaps was owned by a disciple; after nine days, according to the reckoning of Purves, from the Lord's ascension, the promised Holy Ghost came upon them. There was a sound "as of a rushing, mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. A distinct tongue, as of fire sat, presumably, upon the head of each disciple, and they all began to speak with other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance. Luke, the physician, writer of the Acts, informs us that at least fifteen different nations were represented by their own people in the city of Jerusalem. God chose the time of Pentecost for this miracle when the Jews from over the world, so to speak, would be there to see and hear. Jews and Proselytes, that is, former Gentiles, were there at this great, joyful feast of the harvest.

Now, when they were baptized with the Holy Ghost they began "to speak with other tongues as the Spirit gave them utterance." The multitude of the people, all the different nationalities spoken of in the second chapter of Acts, went to the place where they heard the sounds. The Apostles then came forth addressing the people. There was great amazement among them, because all these different peoples heard the disciples preaching and praising God and telling of his wonderful works. They were struck with wonder, not because they did not understand what the Disciples were saying, but the very opposite, because that every man did understand them. "How hear we"—all these people here mentioned—"how hear we" these Galileans, the Disciples and Apostles—"all of them speaking in our very tongues wherein we were born?" Here plainly then is the phenomenon that occurred. There was no miracle in the understanding of the hearers, but in the tongues of the speakers. Here a company of Arabians are being addressed by men or women filled with the Holy Ghost and speaking in the language of Arabia and are understood by these men of the desert. Here in another place, perhaps in a porch of the temple, another crowd of Roman sojourners are being addressed by men in their tongue. And in all there were at least fifteen different languages or dialects spoken by these men and women, disciples and apostles. The wonder was that all the people addressed understood the things that were spoken, although there was to a certain extent a confusion of sounds, very much as in a live Sunday school, where all the teachers are earnestly teaching the truth.

Acts Tenth.

Now, in the tenth chapter of Acts we see this miracle repeated in the case of the conversion of representatives of the Gentile world in the home of the devout Cornelius. No mention is made in the second chapter of the Acts that the converts talked in any other language. It is simply said that they gladly believed and were baptized, to the number of about three thousand. Therefore, the tenth chapter of acts is the first place where mention is made of the converts speaking in tongues. The miracle of Pentecost was reproduced in a different way, but God had a great confirming purpose in it, as I shall hasten to show. On the day of Pentecost the Disciples and Apostles spoke in languages hitherto unknown to them. On this occasion, when Cornelius and his kinsmen and friends whom he had gathered to hear the Word received the Holy Ghost—for he fell on all them that heard the Word—they, these representatives of the Gentile world, were given the Pentecostal sign of the tongue; and we are expressly told for that purpose. It was to convince the Jewish converts that Christianity was not only for them, but for the Gentiles also. The fact is that God had to work hard on Peter, and perform even additional signs, in a vision of the great sheet let down from heaven, containing all manner of four-footed beasts, God saying to Peter: "Arise, Peter; kill and eat;" and Peter saying: "I have never eaten anything that was common or unclean." God had to do all this; he had to put Peter to sleep and perform the surgical operation of extracting the prejudice from him as to these Gentiles. So hostile were the Gentiles and Jews generally that these signs of the Holy Ghost were needed to convince the people of both these classes. The miracle here was as it was on Pentecost. The Jews heard and understood these Gentile converts, for God had given them the Pentecostal, apostolic gift. They all understood.

COLLEGE KILLING—A KILLER HEARD FROM.

By H. Walter Featherstun, D.D.

My Brother, Robert Selby, who is understood to stand for the policy of college killing set forth by the General Board of Education, has broken the silence with an article in the Advocate of Sept. 2. He tries to defend himself thus:

"I am the person to whom Dr. H. W. Featherstun refers in his last article on 'Killing Colleges' ('College Killing' was the title I used), when he said that a man did not agree with him, notwithstanding this man had not read his article. It was not necessary for me to read the article in question after I had discovered from the first paragraph or two what his contention was. Not only that, but I have heard him talk, and I have read from his pen in other days; and not only that: his policy is to give any school, regardless of the character of work done, the dignity of being called a college. This was demonstrated in his success in getting the Trustees of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose to apply for a change of the charter, whereby the name of the institution might be changed to Montrose College. And this, without any application to the Conference to which the school belongs."

Now, my Brother Bob does not mean to misstate facts—he is not bad; he is just ignorant. He does not know, and does not know that he does not know. The only truth in the above is that he is the man I alluded to in my last article. It was necessary for him to read my articles, for ignorance of them has led him into egregious blundering and rank injustice. He has utterly misstated my contention. He has heard me talk and has read from my pen not one utterance that would justify him in saying: "His policy is to give any school, regardless of the character of the work done, the dignity of being called a college." This statement is utterly false. My brother Bob's ignorance has led him far afield. If he had only read even my last article in which I alluded to him he would have found a positive contradiction of this statement. In it I say: "Let us see to it that all of our colleges meet fully the educational requirements set by the commission of ten practical educators provided for in Par. 4 of the Discipline." This has ever been my policy. No man, not even blundering Bob, in our Conference has fought harder and suffered more to keep our colleges up to full college curricula than have I. Although I feel that my blundering brother's gross slander against me was ignorantly and unwittingly made, yet it is so slanderous and so painfully unjust that I must demand that he either prove it or retract it.

Rev. T. J. O'Neil, President of the School at Montrose at the time, is ready to certify that the effort to change that institution's name was not my effort, and that I, as President of the Board, consented to it on condition that a college course be put in. Furthermore, the change of name was sought in 1913, before there was any law requiring such matters to be acted on by the Annual Conference. Oh, Bob, how ignorant you are!

He further says: "It will not be long until this (Whitworth College) will be a college of 'A' grade." Does anybody in our Conference except our blundering Bob believe this? I think not.

He still further says: "It is the purpose of Port Gibson Female College to classify within the time that remains by the authority of the Educational Commission. Those who are interested in this worthy institution of many years' faithful work for the Church that has given its moral and financial support will see to it that it will be placed where it can measure up to its possibilities."

I am Secretary of the Board of Trustees of Port Gibson Female College and do hereby certify that it is not the purpose of this College "to classify" according to the requirements, i.e., the other than educational requirements, set forth by the General Board of Education. We shall go on conferring degrees (D.V.) in 1916, 1917, and on and on, paying no attention to the requirements concerning value of apparatus, volumes in library and an endowment. Port Gibson Female College carries now a full college course in every detail and challenges any college to show better work done than she is doing. She has raised her standard, placing her curricula alongside of Millsaps and Whitworth, and is striving to do just as good work in every way. Her English course, a bit behind, has been put up to the requirement by the putting in of Old English.

My Brother Bob assumes all along that I oppose "classification of our schools." I think I wrote years ago the first articles appearing in this Advocate on the classification of our schools—the word then was correlation. I stand to-day where I stood then; but I do not favor the impracticable, unlawful and unjust method which our blundering Bob stands for.

He pleads: 'Let the agitation of the subject of 'Killing Colleges' be dispensed with." He quotes the words "killing colleges." I do not know who he quotes from—I did not use that phrase.

Well, Bob, when you and the General Board quit the college killing policy, which is not according to the law but opposed by the law, we will quit agitating the matter, and not till then. You have not tried to prove that the policy I condemn is lawful. You cannot prove it. You have not attempted to disprove one single contention of mine in the matter. You cannot disprove one of them. You have made charges against me, not one of which you can prove. You do not try to prove them. You have only shown your reckless ignorance of what I have written and of the law of the Church. Bob, if I were Secretary of Education of the Mississippi Conference as you are, I certainly would know enough not to traduce and misrepresent one of my best friends as you have done. You must either prove your charge concerning my policy or you must retract it.

"Let the agitation be dispensed with?" No, thank you! We of the small colleges who are making college education possible to the poor boys and girls of Mississippi Methodism do not propose to lie still and blindly suffer our colleges killed. "Dispense with the agitation!" Why? Only error suffers from agitation—truth never does. If you have truth on your side show it and do not plead for silence. Your very plea is a confession of the weakness of your contention.

The City of Dallas is anxious to have the next National Democratic Convention, which will convene in 1916, to meet there. If her efforts toward bringing this to pass are successful, it will be the first time that this convention was ever held in a Southern city. All the other cities of the South ought to unite in an effort to help Dallas to secure this important assemblage of the leaders of the Democratic party.

The number of Poles in the world at the present time is estimated at 23,000,000. They occupy the seventh place among the nations speaking a European tongue, outnumbering the combined populations of Bulgaria estimated at 5,400,000, of Serbia at 9,200,000, of Greece at 5,000,000, and of Turkey in Europe at 1,600,000. THE TRUE POSITION OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Editor Christian Advocate: In your issue of August 19 in an article entitled "Bombastic Baptist Bigotry," your contrihutor, Rev. P. O. Lowrey, misrepresents the Catholic Church when he says it denies that Protestants are married and (the Church) maiutains that Protestants are living in adultery. I have seen this statement of Catholic belief, but never in so high a place as The Advocate. The conclusion was doubtless based on this paragraph of the "Ne Temere" decree:

"3. Only those marriages are valid which are contracted before the parish priest or the Ordinary of the place, or a priest delegated by either of these, and at least two witnesses, according to the rules laid down in the following articles and saving the exceptions mentioned under 7 and 8."

This, standing alone, would seem to justify the conclusion he states. But the next section defining "who are bound" by the law is as follows:

"11. 1. The above laws are binding on all persons baptized in the Catholic Church, and on those who have been converted to it from heresy or schism (even when either the latter or the former have fallen away afterwards from the Church) whenever they contract sponsalia or marriage with one another.

"11. II. The same laws are binding, also, on the same Catholics as above, if they contract sponsalia or marriage with non-Catholics, baptized or unbaptized, even after a dispensation has been obtained from the impediment mixtae religionls or dispartatis cultus; unless the Holy See decree otherwise for some particular place or region."

A fair interpretation of these two sections excludes all except Catholics. The last paragraph defines that the Catholic party to a marriage is not exempt from the rule. It says nothing as to the other party.

But to prevent any possible misunderstanding, the very next paragraph defines "who are not bound":

"11. III. Non-Catholics, whether baptized or unbaptized, who contract marriage among themselves are nowhere bound to observe the Catholic form of sponsalia or marriage."

Would it he asking too much to hope that inasmuch as the mistake was disseminated by The Advocate, you will publish this statement of the Catholic rule to correct this misrepresentation?

Yours sincerely,

Shreveport, La. P. W. CARNEY.

SOME DAYS AT JUNALUSKA.

Dear Dr. Meek: We have appreciated the messages of many friends who have written to us, enquired after us, and prayed for us. We thank one and all, and now with grateful hearts report that Mrs. Wyatt is improving—is decidedly better—after a fearful nervous break-down. Our physicians and specialists of Memphis advised us to go to the mountains. On the twenty-seventh of July we left for North Carolina. There we found an ideal place two miles, equidistant, from Waynesville and Junaluska, a lovely spot, in an elegant country home, with several others searching for physical and mental improvement. In the excellent programmes at Junaluska we also gladly partook of spiritual food.

Junaluska is surely the coming resort, in the best sense of the word, for any people, and particularly Methodists, for soul uplift, intellectual strengthening, and pure, genuine pleasure—all of which invigorates and inspires the whole man with a hope that 'maketh not ashamed.' There one may get a vision that enables him to see more clearly the need of living closer to Christ, and a desire to work harder for the blessed Master's cause. The half cannot be told concerning the scenery, the exhilarating atmosphere, the delightful, helpful association, and the talks and sermons that force one to see plainly the inviting field right before him "white unto harvest." The men of God who have so wisely planned and earnestly wrought for this earthly New Jerusalem deserve much credit, and liberal, hearty co-operation to increase its facilities, that more lives may he better fitted for wider usefulness, that we may be quickened and more awakened to the importance for better preparedness to labor in the vineyard of the Lord. What a privilege is offered of coming together on the mountaln top, where we may freely use the ordained means, under such favorable and inspiring circumstances, by which we hear the voice of the beloved Son, and go down to our charges refreshed and stronger for the glorious work at hand!

All honor and praise to Bishop Atkins for conceiving and planning such an enterprise for our great Church! He, with others, has been wise in selecting the best place in the Southland for summer conference schools. They deserve much credit, and earnest co-operation and a generous support by the whole Church and all the friends of Methodism.

There should be a building erected on that beautiful spot sufficient to accommodate one hundred preachers and Sunday school workers where they might get lodging and board at two and a half, three, or four dollars per week. Many would pay the transportation so as to spend two, three, or four weeks, or longer, at this helpful place—helpful for the whole being—if while staying there the expenses could be considerably reduced. Frequently congregations would assist their pastors and promising young men and women for general Church work to go where they could so readily become more efficient.

With every good wish for the Advocate and its Editor, I am cordially yours, J. M. WYATT.

Ackerman, Miss., Sept. 2, 1915.

CHANGE OF MANAGEMENT.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Mississippi Orphans' Home on Sept. 11, Rev. J. B. Randolph, of Kosciusko, was elected Manager, to succeed Rev. W. M. Williams, who had previously tendered his resignation, to take effect as soon as his successor could be elected. We feel sure that the friends of the Home and the public in general will join the Board in its expression of regret that Brother Williams has decided to take this step. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"In accepting the resignation of Rev. W. M. Williams as manager of the Mississippi Orphans' Home, we take occasion to put upon record our high appreciation of his Christlan character and the conspicuous ability with which he has managed the complicated and important affairs of the Home. We believe the thanks of this Board are due and they are hereby tendered to Brother and Sister Williams, his good wife, and the assurance of our high regard and best wishes are here by given them, with the pledge of our fervent prayers for God's blessings upon them in their lives."

The election of Brother Randolph was made unanimous, and we ask our people to rally to the Home under its new management as they have done in the past. V. C. CURTIS,

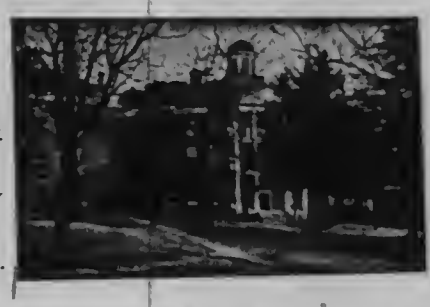
LOUISIANA CONFERENCE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., President

Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference See'y

Rev. C. A. Battle, Treas., Baton Rouge, La.



(This Department is conducted by Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education, and Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Publicity Commissioner.)

A GOOD BEGINNING AT MANSFIELD.

A press dispatch to The Times-Picayune, sent on the 10th inst., reads as follows: "The sixty-second session of Mansfield College opened on Wednesday. There were 40 young women in the boarding department on the first day, this attendance exceeding that of any former year. The local attendance is good and President Bobbitt is very much encouraged."

A PROMISING OUTLOOK.

The following notice of the opening of Centenary College, which appeared in the Shreveport Times of Sunday, Sept. 12, indicates a promising outlook for the College during the coming session:

"Centenary College, Shreveport's leading educational institution, and one of the most noted seats of learning in this section of the Southwest, will open its eighth annual session in Shreveport Wednesday, September 15. The opening next Wednesday will also mark the seventy-seventh year of the institution since its organization in 1839. The opening exercises will take place in the College auditorium at 10 o'clock a. m. Dr. O. A. Wright will deliver the opening address to the student body.

"The 1915 term marks the beginning of the third year of Dr. Robert H. Wynn's administration as president of Centenary, and under his guidance the school has gone forward in the work of higher education with thoroughness and tone. Dr. Wynn is a broad-minded educator, intensely devoted to the interests of Centenary. His policy has been marked by carrying out his purposes with simple directness but firmness. Under his excellent administration the College has improved and enlarged.

"The Faculty.

"The faculty for the coming session will be led by Prof J. G. Sawyer of Virginia, who will occupy the Chair of Philosophy. Prof. Sawyer took his Bachelor's Degree at Randolph-Macon and his Master's and Divinity Degrees at Vanderbilt University. He is the son of a minister in the Virginia Conference.

"Prof. H. C. Henderson, last year a professor in Millsaps College, will this year fill the Chair of English and History at Centenary. Prof. Henderson took his Bachelor's Degree at Millsaps and his Master's Degree at Vanderbilt. He is the son of Rev. W. F. Henderson of Louisiana.

"Prof. Buford D. Battle, last year Professor of French and German, has been assigned to the Department of Mathematics. Prof. Battle is the athletic adviser to the faculty and a warm advocate of clean athletics.

"Prof. A. L. Sims, a graduate of Centenary two years ago, is a valuable addition to the teaching force of the high school department of Centenary.

"Mrs. T. F. Willbanks, who, as Miss Ruth Kessinger, graduated from Centenary several years ago and last year taught the seventh grade pupils, will resume her work during the coming term. Mrs. Willbanks is the wife of the famous star athletic of Centenary, who will this year be a member of the senior class.

"Prof. W. W. Moore, Jr., a graduate of Millsaps College, has been added to the corps of instructors.

"Centenary is a co-educational institution, denominational but not sectarian. The surroundings are most attractive and the health conditions are ideal. The College site, on an eminence consisting of forty acres of land in Gladstone, is most beautiful and offers everything in the way of natural advantages for the future development of the College.

"The present scholastic year promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the local institution. Centenary has in her history added as many illustrious names to the glory of Louisiana as any seat of learning within her borders."

DO WE BELIEVE IN IT?

Do the Methodist preachers and people of Louisiana believe that the Church has any call to furnish college education for our young people? As a Church, through our Mission Board, we are professing our faith by maintaining colleges and academies in foreign lands as a part of our missionary program. We have always professed to believe in this policy for the home Church. It would be well for every reader of these lines to face squarely and answer honestly this question as to our responsibility for furnishing Christian education: Do we believe in it? If we do, there is no escape from the positive and immediate duty of furnishing the means by which our educational work may be put upon a basis of the highest efficiency. There is no denying that we have been playing at this task, when after carrying on our college work at Centenary for about eight years, we have practically no endowment, inadequate buildings, and are under the necessity of constantly finding means for current maintenance. There are men among us who, if we believe in this work, ought to put up new buildings, and endow chairs or scholarships. If we believe in this work every Methodist in the State ought to do something to prove that belief. John Ruskin said that he who prays "Thy Kingdom Come," and prays it sincerely, must do something besides pray. So, if we believe in Christian education, it is time for us to show our fath by our works.

The task of raising $15,000 in Louisiana, when one-sixth of it is offered by one man, is not a large task IF WE BELIEVE IN IT. We believe in caring for our orphans, and last year we raised, mostly in small amounts, $12,000 to show our faith. Do we believe in the larger and costlier task of providing Christian training for our sons and daughters? The answer will be given in our response to Dr. Wynn's efforts to raise the balance of the $15,000 for Centenary. It will also be given in the percentage that our educational collections bear to our assessments. It will be given in the kind of co-operation given to Dr. Wynn and President Bobbitt in their efforts to build up great schools for our boys and girls.

MISSISSIPPI ORPHANAGE "WORK DAY."

"Our Home," the Mississippi Orphanage paper, has announced that Saturday, October 16, 1915, will be "Work Day" for that institution in the two Mississippi Conferences. Men, women and children are urged to set aside their earnings for that day for the benefit of the orphans. The money thus saved may be handed in at the churches on Sunday, October 17. "Our Home" says: "Last year our receipts for "Work Day" footed up $3893.93. This was less than for several years, but the reason is well known. Very little cotton had been sold and nearly every one was financially pressed. This condition continued for months; so the Orphanage has been embarrassed for the want of funds this year. Yet the children have not suffered and we now have 224 in the Home. However, our needs are urgent and we ought to raise $5000 on October 16. We can do it if all the presiding elders, pastors, and superintendents of Sunday schools will join in seeing that "Work Day" is generally observed. One person's earnings may not be much, but suppose that ALL of the 1200 churches in the two Mississippi Conferences were to observe (just try to render the program and give the people a chance) "Work Day," even if the amounts raised by many congregations were small, we would get more than the $5000. Your people want to help. Show them how, and give them an opportunity to demonstrate what you have taught them."

A WORD FOR CENTENARY COLLEGE.

To my many friends and all loyal Methodists throughout the State, as well as all friends of Christian Education:

I have just returned from Centenary College, where I spent a most pleasant afternoon with its President and some of its professors. I met the new Dean and was pleased with him from first sight. I believe he will prove to be the right man for the place. Prof. L. A. Sims is well known to many throughout the State and is well prepared for his work. Prof. Henderson, a son of our beloved W. F. Henderson of the Louisiana Conference, is a very valuable member of the faculty. Prof. Moore is a son of our honored preacher and educator of the Mississippi Conference, while Prof. Battle has two brothers in the itinerancy and is himself an earnest Church worker as well as a fine teacher. In the preparatory school there is a competent lady teacher; and last, but not least, is the President, Dr. Wynn, whom I have always regarded as one of the most polished and perfect Christian gentlemen I have ever known.

But what I want more especially to say is, that after I had seen the building, which is undergoing a general repairing and cleaning, and had looked over the grounds and property as a whole, I came away with a new enthusiasm and a mighty desire to see Louisiana Methodism rally to the support of Dr. Wynn, who will make Centenary College a great factor in forwarding our beloved Church in this State. Brethren of the ministry, let us begin to pray and work for Centenary as we have never done. We ought to do it, and if the preachers of the Conference will sound only a cheerful note for Centenary, she will go on to that success that will make us all proud of her as our College.

Let me also urge Methodists who are going to send their sons to college to send them to Centenary. And let me appeal to the men who have means to consider the good their money will do in a Christian college and give it therefore to Centenary's endowment. When Dr. Wynn writes you, or comes to you, open your heart and purse and make a substantial donation.

In conclusion, I want to say I have determined to give to the institution as I am able, and with every opportunity to speak a good word for Centenary.

Sincerely,
R. W. TICKER.

The State of Indiana will honor her much beloved son, James Whitcomb Riley, the poet, on October 7, when he will celebrate his 62d birthday.

THE OPENING OF PORT GIBSON FEMALE COLLEGE.

This fine old college opened her 1915-16 year of work on September 8. Up to this hour eighty pupils have been enrolled. This is but sixteen short of the total enrollment of last year. Others are due in the next few days. The prospects are good for a total enrollment for the year of much over a hundred. Of the eighty already enrolled 54 (exclusive of the President's children), are boarders in the college.

A study of the register reveals the following interesting facts: Forty-seven are members of the Methodist Church; six are studying for the ministry, and one for the mission field—ten are children of preachers. These interesting items indicate the splendid work being done for the Church hy this college.

I have never seen a finer student body than we have here. The teachers are well-equipped and experienced. More anon.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE: A RETROSPECT.

By Prof. G. L. Harrell.

As the time for the opening of the twenty-fourth session approaches, the writer can scarcely keep his thoughts from wandering hack to the days when the third session opened, when he, along with 205 other searchers after learning, presented himself on September 26, 1894, to the President of the College for classification. At that time no such organization as the "Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States" existed and there were no "Affiliated High Schools." In fact there were very few High Schools to he affiliated. The student soon showed by oral or written examination his fitness for certain classes and he was placed therein accordingly.

Now, all such things have changed. The student comes with his credits summed up in terms of Carnegie units to the total of twelve or fourteen and is admitted on that showing. This all reveals wonderful improvement in organization and a marked advancement in preparation. It, at least, represents uniformity in college entrance requirements and the good-will of sister institutions. The real key to the situation is found, however, in the individual student, whether he offered for entrance in the last decade of the nineteenth century or offers in this year of 1915. So much for the method of getting in. In those days there were not many buildings on the grounds. The Main Building, the President's home, Asbury Hall, Williams Hall, and the cottages constituted all the college buildings. The campus had just heen converted from a cultivated field and there were not many trees to be found. Often the student would extend his arm as he passed along the path and hend over an elm as he walked. Now those same elms are beautiful shade trees. In addition to the buildings mentioned above we now find the Gymnasium, Webster Science Hall, Founder's Hall, a professor's home, the James Observatory, Carnegie-Millsaps Library, and the homes of two of the fraternities.

The equipment in those early days was rather limited. The Library and the Science Department occupied a room each in the Main Building. To-day the Science Department occupies all of Webster Sciencc Hall and the Library is overcrowding its quarters in the new Carnegie-Millsaps Library. The Observatory possesses one of the best telescopes in this section of the country.

At the beginning of the third session the faculty consisted of five members in the college department and two in the preparatory department. At the present time there are eight in the college faculty; three in the preparatory department, and three in the Law School, together with seven instructors from the student body.

Then the Preparatory School was under the same roof with the other departments. To-day it is in its own building and is under a distinct administration.

A great many changes have been made in the faculty during these twenty-one years. There is not a single member of the present faculty whose term of service began with the first session of the College and only one who was here at the beginning of the third session. That one is no other than Professor R. S. Ricketts, whose almost half-century of teaching in Mississippi has been a blessing to many hoys and girls and men and women of this and adjoining States.

At the very beginning of the College provision was made for the training of the young men in parliamentary practice and debate. The students organized two literary societies and named them for two of Mississippi's most distinguished citizens—Galloway and Lamar. From the beginning, hearty and wholesome rivalry has existed between these two organizations, and from their halls have gone some of the very best of the younger orators in Mississippi. These societies are still exerting an influence for good among the students.

When the Preparatory School was set apart as a distinct institution they organized a literary ociety and named it for another great Mississippi orator—Prentiss.

The authorities were not unmindful of the fact that there was needed Christian endeavor among the students, as well as mental training; therefore, they saw to the organization of the Young Men's Christian Association, which is and has always been a potent factor in the student life at the College. Some students get the idea that this Association is solely for those preparing for the ministry. Such is not the case. Layman and preacher, in turn, bave presided over its affairs. It is the one organization at the College where all alike can take part and it deserves to be patronized to the fullest extent.

An establishment is judged not so much by its machinery as by its output. It is true, however, that good machincry is necessary for the accomplishment of efficient work. Let us look at the finished products of Millsaps College and at the many hundreds who have spent some time in attendance upon its courses, but who have not gone so far as graduation. From the class of 1895, the first to be graduated, to the class of 1915 we find men and women filling important positions in nearly all departments of human activity. From California to Maine and from Wyoming to Florida, and in some instances abroad, we are likely to find some old Millsaps man engaged in buisness or professional life. In our own commonwealth, Church and State are feeling more and more the influence of the Millsaps man and his ideals. These are the nien who have brought the honors of the Mississippi Intercollegiate Oratorical Association to the College; who organized and published the first periodicals of the institution; who are now reflecting credit upon their Alma Mater in their several lines of activity.

Millsaps College has never had a large enrollment. This fact, in itself, is of great significance when we think of the personal contact between pupil and teacher. As a matter of information, we give here the number of students registered each year: 1892-93, 149; 1893-94, 161; 1894-95, 206; 1895-96, 166; 1896-97, 205; 1897-98, 174; 1898-99, 146; 1899-1900, 162; 1900-01, 163; 1901-02, 142; 1902-03, 265; 1903-04, 250; 1904-05, 272; 1905-06, 229; 1906-07, 284; 1907-08, 287; 1908-09, 281; 1909-10, 221; 1910-11, 265;1911-12, 290; 1912-13, 271; 1913-14, 245; 1914-15, 246.

There have been enrolled during these years 5080 students. A few short of 600 have received degrees from the institution. The college has not yet conferred an honorary degree.

THE LOUISIANA METHODIST ORPHANAGE.

The Board of Trustees of the Methodist Orphanage at Ruston in their mid-year meeting inspected the property of the institution, including the farm, farm buildings, orchard, garden, live-stock, canning plant, dormitories, and the domestic affairs of the Home. All these things were found to be in good condition. Thirty-eight hoys and sixty-seven girls constitute the large and happy family. The Board was entertained at a harhecue by the institution. R. T. McClendon superintended the preparation of this sumptuous dinner. All arrangements had been made to serve the dinner in the woods some distance from the Home, but the rain interrupted this proceeding and dinner was served in the playroom of the Home. The children were given their places at the table and then the members of the Board were assigned to places, and all enjoyed a real barbecue dinner. Now just think of a great big family of more than one bundred children, and not one cross word, not one cry, not one mishap. How many families with one or two children could get through a dinner like that?

The Home has a capacity for 100 children, but by crowding a little there are now 105 children in the Home. The Superintendent reported that he has had to refuse more than three hundred cases since January 1 of this year. The children involved were worth as much as the children now in the Home. Almost every mail brings a plea for a place for some little homeless child. There is urgent need for more room.

There are 83 children in the Home of school age, who will enter school this fall. The children made splendid records last session in both the City School and the Industrial.

The Home is itself something of an industrial school. The hoys learn farming, and all that properly belongs to farm life, including gardening, dairying, carpentry, and canning. The girls learn all that belongs to home-making.

The new canning plant, huilt hy the Superintendent and the boys, was finished in time to take care of the fruit and vegetables of this season.

No serious sickness or accident of any kind has visited the Home this year.

The church and friends of the institution gave liberally at Easter for the support of the Home, but with the close of September the treasury will be empty. "Work Day" comes Saturday, October 9, and the collections will be taken on Sunday, the 10th. Let the Church come forward with liberal offerings for the support of the Home this winter. Make a great occasion of "Work Day." The debt has been reduced to $2000 and should be wiped out by January 1, 1916. Four or five men ought to take care of that debt, and others ought to hegin a fund for enlarging the Home.

NOTHING TO DO.

By Rebecca Dennery Moore.

I know a little girl
About as big as you,
Who sighs ten times a day,
"I don't know what to do."

She has new toys and games,
A baby brother, too;
And yet she still complains,
"I don't know what to do."

The baby likes to romp,
And mother's busy, too;
Now can't you think of something
That this small girl could do?

FOUR RULES.

He was a new boy in school, and, according to custom, though nobody seemed to know when or why such a custom started—the others were teasing him and trying to make him uncomfortable. They did not succeed very well, for Don did not appear to notice their efforts. When the school hours ended, however, and the boys scattered for the homeward walk, there was a fine chance.

"Here, you little soft-boy!" cried Archie, catching up with the new-comer at the end of the brick wall, "what are you scurrying off so fast for? For two-pence I'd throw your book so far away that you'd never find it, and roll you down that hill."

"I wouldn't pay two-pence for throwing my book where I couldn't find it," laughed Don, "and I don't mind you rolling me down hill if you want to. It looks so smooth and green I'd rather like to roll down it. Come on, boys! Let's see who can roll down the fastest."

And before they quite knew how it came about, Don and Archie, with the boys who had stopped to see what would happen, were having the merriest sort of game. Of course, Don didn't stay a new boy very many days. He was so good-natured that it wasn't easy to tease him, and so full of fun that everybody liked him, but Archie—who really liked him best of all because they went home the same way and were together so much—always noticed how Don managed to laugh himself out of quarrels and had a suspicion that his friend was something of a coward.

"I don't believe you'd fight a rabbit," he said tauntingly.

"Of course not. 'Twouldn't be a fair fight," laughed Don.

Archie himself was so fond of teasing that he often forgot to think anything about what was fair or kind. That was why he was tormenting a little German girl one day, when he met her in the road with a kitten in her arms.

"Here, I want that cat! Give it to me," he demanded. "Hand it over, little girl!"

"No, it is mine. I home take it," urged the small Bertha, her blue eyes frightened and filling with tears.

"Ho, this isn't a German cat!" declared Archie. "Here, let me have it!"

He was dragging it out of her arms while she struggled and tried to hold fast, when suddenly he received a push so violent and unexpected that it knocked him over. Somebody promptly sat down upon him, while Don, still good-natured, said:

"Run along with your kitten. This chap doesn't want it, and he's so tired that he's going to lie still and rest a little."

"Oh, get off! What did you do that for?" growled Archie, wiggling to throw off his burden.

"You can have three guesses—if you need 'em," answered Don. "If that had been your little sister, Esther, and you had seen any boy bullying her, what would you have done?"

"Punched him," admitted Archie, honestly.

"Well, you'd better punch yourself then," said Don, rolling off and giving him a chance to get up.

Archie sat up, brushed the dust from his clothes, and looked with new curiosity and respect at the other boy.

"I say, Don, I don't believe you are afraid after all," he said. "What makes you always act as if—as if—"

Don's eyes grew bright.

"It's my grandfather," he exclaimed. "He's the bravest man I know, and he told me. He was a soldier and an officer, and he says there are four rules for courage: 'A laugh' is a better weapon than cross words or fists. Don't think it's brave to quarrel and fight. Never strike unless you have to. Don't stand by and see some one smaller and weaker than yourself bullied.'"

"Humph!" answered Archie—if that could be called an answer—and he walked away thoughtfully.—Messenger for the Children.

PETER'S GOAT.

"Peter," said John Coleman to his younger brother at breakfast, "I had a great tumble over that goat of yours last night. He was right in the middle of the front walk. I want father to get rid of him."

"Poor Peter!" said his mother. "Really, I wish you would consent to sell him. I think, perhaps, the butcher would buy him."

Peter's laugh vanished as he shook his head. "Buster is the only pet I have. I don't see why you all pick on him," and he fled in tears from the table.

"We, wouldn't," John called after him, "but Buster doesn't earn his salt. I know some boys who do lots of work with their goats. Owen Ripley took all his father's vegetables to market with his last summer."

"I have lots of rides with Buster," sniffed Peter.

"That doesn't count; that isn't work," returned his brother.

Peter threw back his head and left the room without looking at John. When he returned, two hours later, the house was silent. He remembered his mother was to spend the day with a friend, and he was to lunch down town with his father. He went out in the yard to play, and noticed a pile of ashes that his mother wanted taken away.

She had said that very morning, "Those ashes must be removed before my lawn party on Tuesday."

Peter sat down on the porch and thought for a few minutes; then he started for Buster. "Come, Buster," he said, "We'll take those ashes away; then John can't say you're no good." Buster was soon harnessed to the little wagon; then Peter found a shovel and went manfully to work. At half-past eleven he telephoned his father that he would not be down to lunch.

"Sick?" asked his father, anxiously.

"No. I'm busy. I'll find something to eat here," and Peter hung up the receiver before his father could ask any more questions. He ate some lunch, then read a while to give Buster a long rest. All the afternoon he worked hard, and by 4 o'clock the ashes were all gone. He was tired and dirty, but happy.

"I'll clean up and they won't guess," he said to himself. He secretly hoped his mother would notice the ashes were gone, but she didn't.

At supper Mr. Coleman said: "Peter, what were you so busy about to-day? It is the first time I ever knew you to miss a chance to eat down town."

"You'll have to find out for yourselves," was Peter's smiling answer.

"Let's find out, then," said John, as they rose from the table.

They found nothing in the house, but when they went into the yard, Mrs. Coleman noticed the ashes were gone. "Did you take away those ashes, Peter?" she asked.

"Me and Buster," was the ungrammatical reply, with a triumphant look at his brother.

"If I had known that, I would have paid you with hot biscuits and black-berry jam for supper," said his mother.

"John shall not talk about Buster any more, Peter; I'll see to that," his father said.

"Well, I never!" ejaculated John. "I guess I'll have to buy the new harness Buster needs. I believe in encouraging a good work."

"Buster," said Peter, when they were alone, "we'll do some more work next Saturday. People don't respect lazy goats and lazy boys, I'm told."

METHODIST MISSION WORK

Dr. W. W. Pinson, General Secretary of the Board of Missions of the M. E. Church, South, gives out some interesting statistics of missionary work. The number of members reported on the mission fields four years ago was 27,210; last year it was 30,555. This is an increase of 21 per cent. The increase was greatest in China, where it reached 83 per cent. The Sunday school increase has been greater still, amounting to more than 28 per cent. In China the Sunday school scholars exceed the Church membership by nearly 2000, in Japan by more than 3000, and in Korea by nearly 700.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

BISHOP KILGO'S DISCUSSION.

We trust that none of our readers will overlook the strong contribution concerning Vanderbilt University from Bishop Kilgo's pen which appears in this issue of the Advocate. It deals with some aspects of that unfortunate and unparalleled controversy in a plain and straightforward manner which, we think, is quite convincing. The Vanderbilt trustees need not indulge the hope that the public will fail to consider their course in its relation to their moral obligations to the Church. Not long since a gifted young minister who is a Vanderbilt alumnus, in writing us, severely condemned these gentlemen for ejecting the Church from the institution in their care, closing his utterance with the statement: "I do not believe that there was a single defect in the charter that they could not have gone into court and have remedied if they had tried."

So far as we have heard, the Vanderbilt trustees have put forward only two pleas in extenuation of their course. One is that the decision of the Supreme Court of Tennessee has amply justified their conduct. This contention finds an ample refutation in Bishop Kilgo's discussion.

The other plea is that the Church brought on the controversy by assaulting the charter in undertaking to elect the trustees, and that they were in honor bound to defend that sacred instrument. This is not true. The Vanderbilt contest did not start over the question as to who had the right to elect the trustees. It began when the Vanderbilt Board, in 1905, repudiated that provision of the charter which plainly gave the College of Bishops supervisory powers in the institution—powers which Chancellor Kirkland himself had declared were almost, if not quite, identical with those of the trustees—and followed this action by a movement to secure a new charter which did not so much as even mention the name of the Church—a charter which a very able lawyer who is familiar with the Vanderbilt case in all its ramifications stated to us, a few months ago, would have completely stripped the Church of any legal anchorage in the institution. So far as the Church was concerned, the issue as to who had the right to elect trustees was not raised until the Vanderbilt Commission composed of five able and impartial lawyers, appointed by the General Conference of 1906 to determine the powers of the Church and the trustees in the University, had told her that she had that right; and even then she did not seek to exercise it until the meeting of the General Conference in 1910—nearly four years later—Bishop Hendrix, the Chairman of the Vanderbilt Board of Trust at that time, having also publicly declared that that body had accepted the findings of the Commission and intended in good faith to be bound by them (this right of the Church to elect the trustees was one of the chief findings of the Commission). So it will be seen that the Church did not undertake to elect a single trustee until all atempts to reach a satisfactory adjustment of matters with the Board of Trust had failed, until the supervisory powers of the Bishops, her only other hold upon the institution, had been swept away, and until she saw that she had either to let the trustees in reality completely control the University—her place in it being one of mere sufferance; or else that she had to battle for what she conceived to be her rights all along the line.

These are the cold, stubborn facts in the case. They may be disagreeable facts to the Vanderbilt trustees, but they cannot be hidden out of sight. This pitiable defense that they had to protect the charter from the efforts of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to violate and destroy it will not avail them. And some of the men who have ventured to make this affirmation call themselves Methodists and are continuing to try to hang on to all the positions that they can command in the Methodist Church. How they can do this, we do not see. If we held what seems to be their view as to the Church's intelligence or sense of honor, as illustrated in the Vanderbilt contest (one or the other must have been lacking), we rather think that we should quickly be found hunting another ecclesiastical home. We should be ashamed to belong to such a denomination as this charge, if true, would show Southern Methodism to be.

THE INDEPENDENT'S COALITION CABINET.

As is well known, England and France, in their efforts to meet most effectively the perplexing problems incident to the great European war, have for the present wiped out party lines and formed coalition cabinets in which are embraced men of variant political views. This plan is said to be working remarkably well, and the New York Independent conceived the idea of conducting a referendum among its readers with a view to having them select such a cabinet for President Wilson. Letters were sent out requesting that the men regarded as best fitted for the various positions be named, and the replies received showed the following results:

Secretary of State—Elihu Root.
Secretary of the Treasury—W. G. McAdoo.
Secretary of War—G. W. Goethals.
Secretary of the Navy—Theodore Roosevelt.
Secretary of the Interior—F. K. Lane.
Secretary of Agriculture—D. F. Houston.
Secretary of Commerce—W. C. Redfield.
Secretary of Labor—John Mitchell.
Attorney General—Louis D. Brandeis.
Postmaster General—A. S. Burleson.

As a matter of interest, we quote The Independent's comment upon the outcome of this correspondence primary:

"Naturally, in this free-for-all referendum the votes are scattering. Each office has a long list of names and the same man is often nominated for several chairs. In such cases we have transferred all the votes to the position where he had the clearest lead. For instance, Mr. Roosevelt received more votes than any other candidate, but as they were divided mostly between War and Navy we have put him in the Navy Department, where he once served as Assistant Secretary, and that leaves the War to Colonel Goethals, who is also named for the non-existent but much needed Department of Irrigation and Public Works. Mr. Root is evidently wanted for Secretary of State, as he has almost as many votes as all the others combined. Mr. Taft is only one vote behind Mr. Root in the total, but they are distributed among so many departments that he gets none of them. Evidently the Wilson cabinet is, on the whole, considered competent, for five of them retain their seats and most of the others stand high."

CEASING TO BE OVERLOOKED.

A writer in the New Orleans Times-Picayune says:

"The British Medical Journal declares that Americans show faint appreciation of their medical discoveries. In our Halls of Fame in cities politicians head the roll, with authors next and fiction writers at the head of them. This fact is emphasized, the New York Sun thinks, by the reflection that the name of Morton, the American discoverer of anesthesia, is probably not so well known as the names of a thousand mediocrities."

We are rather disposed to think that the complaint here voiced has to some extent been justified. The men most honored in our country in the past have been soldiers, statesmen, and literary men—men with showy gifts, who lived and wrought chiefly in the lime-light. The quiet workers in inconspicuous scientific fields, though often they have rendered a more lasting service to their fellow-men than those in other spheres who have been exalted and canonized, have been largely overlooked. But we now seem to be doing somewhat better in this respect. Edison, Burbank, Goethals, and Gorgas are to-day scarcely second to any of our citizens in the Nation's esteem and are publicly honored wherever they go. The State of Nebraska recently passed by W. J. Bryan and named as her "first citizen" a man of this type. Morton undoubtedly deserves well at the hands of his countrymen, and, though belated, his noble discovery may yet receive the recognition which it so justly merits. There are brighter days ahead for all unselfish toilers who contribute to the betterment of mankind. As the world becomes increasingly Christian, true service to humanity, the standard set up by Christ when he was on earth, will become more and more the measure of greatness among men.

A MISTAKEN INFERENCE.

The New York Christian Advocate says: "When 'The Sun' newspaper recently transferred its publishing and editorial plant from the little brick building at Frankfort and Nassau Streets which it had occupied for forty years, a witty editor headlined the event, 'The Sun DO Move.' That the world moves also is suggested by the title page of the April number of 'Louisiana Sunday School Success,' the organ of the Louisiana Sunday School Association, which prints the words of a rally song to be sung to the tune of the 'Battle Hymn of the Republic' or 'John Brown's Body.'"

It is undoubtedly true that the world moves; but unfortunately it does not always move in the right direction. Certainly it would not be doing so if the use of the tune referred to indicated in any sense a tendency upon the part of the Southern people to revise their estimate of John Brown, as is intimated by our distinguished contemporary. But there is little, if any, disposition in the South to make a hero of that lawless adventurer. The tune in question has been used in Dixie in connection with other songs nearly ever since the Civil War.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

There are 224 children in the Methodist Orphanage at Jackson, Miss.

A Methodist Sunday school, which will meet in a schoolhouse, was organized at Laine, Miss., last Sunday.

Dr. I. W. Cooper, of Brookhaven, Miss., spent Wednesday of last week in New Orleans. He stated that the indications pointed to a fine opening at Whitworth College.

Work on the Emory University buildings has been begun. The first four structures to be erected will be a building for the Law School, one for the Theological School, and two dormitories.

Rev. J. E. Gray, of Logtown, Miss., was in New Orleans last week and paid the Advocate office an appreciated call. He spoke optimistically of his work, and stated that he expected all the collections to be in full this fall.

Rev. R. M. Brown, our energetic pastor of the Algiers Church, this city, gave us a few days since a club of 16 trial subscriptions to the Advocate. We scarcely need to say that we are grateful for this good service to the Conference organ.

The New Orleans Methodist Preachers' Meeting was held in the Louisiana Avenue Methodist Church last Monday morning. This gave the brethren an opportunity to see the commodious and attractive new parsonage which that congregation has about completed, under the leadership of its energetic pastor, Rev. A. J. Gearheard.

Rev. J. F. Foster, of Amite City, La., was the principal speaker at a conference of Sunday school workers held in the Methodist Church at Greensburg, La., on Saturday, September 11.

We learn from the St. Helena Echo (Greensburg, La.) that Rev. R. V. Fulton will begin a meeting at Pitkin's Chapel, one of the appointments of his charge, on September 18. He will be assisted by Rev. J. E. Craig.

Rev. R. W. Tucker, pastor of the Noel Memorial Church at Shreveport, La., is rounding out a successful year's work in that important charge. Brother Tucker is a man of faith and power, and his ministry has been an unusually fruitful one.

Georgetown, Miss., has recently been blessed with a great meeting, in which the pastor, Rev. J. V. Bennett, was assisted by Rev. D. E. Kelly. There were 35 accessions to the Churches—25 to the Methodist Church, and 10 to the Baptist Church.

Rev. J. I. Hoffpauir, of Indian Bayou, La., requests us to state that the Licensing Committee of the Lafayette District will meet in New Iberia on September 30, 1915, at 11 a.m.—not at 1 a.m. The announcement of the latter hour last week was, of course, an error.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgement has not elsewhere been made, for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: "Rev. J. J. Baird, Brooksville, Miss., 3; Rev. W. N. Dodds, Verona, Miss., 2; Rev. L. F. Alford, Saucier, Miss., 3 (trial).

The Magnolia (Miss.) Gazette of September 12 says: "Rev. T. W. Adams, presiding elder of the Vicksburg District, was here Thursday. Mr. Adams formerly served the Brookhaven District in the same capacity, and has for many years been one of the most prominent preachers in the Mississippi Conference."

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, of Sherman, Miss., says: "My charge is in a good condition. Everybody is cheerful, and the outlook is promising for a full report to the Annual Conference." Brother Bowlin has been diligently cultivating his field throughout the year and it is not surprising that success is crowning his labors.

Dr. S. H. Werlein delivered a strong and feeling sermon at the First Methodist Church of New Orleans last Sunday at 11 o'clock a.m. on "The Unchanging Certainties of the Christian Religion." His subject at the evening hour was "Elijah under the Juniper Tree." He was greeted by good congregations at both services.

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Starkville, Miss., writes: "We will begin a revival meeting here on the second Sunday in October; Rev. J. O. Hanes, of Birmingham, Ala., will be with us. I believe that our church is growing spiritually. We are having an attendance of from 50 to 70 at our prayer meetings, and the general interest is gratifying."

Rev. J. H. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Corinth (Miss.) District, says: "The indications are that the work in this district will close out as well, if not better, than it did last year." Brother Mitchell is winding up a quadrennium in his present field, and he has every reason to be pleased with the record that has been made under his leadership.

Rev. W. S. Lagrone, our pastor at Clarksdale, Miss., sent us last week 2 renewal and 10 trial subscriptions to the Advocate, for which we heartily thank him. All the interests of the Church are certain to be taken good care of where Brother Lagrone has charge. He is a strong preacher, and as a tactful and effective worker he has few equals.

Dr. J. W. Beeson, President of Meridian College, at Meridian, Miss., writes that his school has had an excellent opening. He reports that a large number of students from many States have been enrolled, and that there are also in attendance several students from foreign countries. Two revival meetings will be conducted at the College during the session: one in the fall, and the other in the spring.

The Southern Reporter (Sardis, Miss.) of September 3 says: "Rev. C. N. Terry is down from Memphis visiting the family of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Carlton." Brother Terry is a superannuated member of the North Mississippi Conference, who wrought worthily in the days agone, and who is highly esteemed by all who know him. He has resided in Memphis for a number of years.

The Staff Correspondent of The Times-Picayune in Washington, D. C., recently stated in a communication to that journal that the Mississippi State Board of Health and its Secretary, Dr. E. H. Galloway, stand very high in the estimation of Surgeon-General Blue because of the efficient manner in which the statistics of diseases in that State are gathered and reported. Dr. Galloway, who is a leading physician at Jackson, is a son of the lamented Bishop Charles B. Galloway.

In forwarding his fourth round of appointments, Rev. Wm. Schuhle, presiding elder of the Monroe District, says: "The preachers have been busy in revival meetings through the summer, and from now on they will be occupied in getting things ready for the approaching session of the Annual Conference." Brother Schuhle is in his fourth year on the Monroe District, which, in the face of many difficulties, has made gratifying advancement during the period of his efficient administration.

Rev. Paul H. Grice, of Brooklyn, Miss., sends us a club of six months' subscribers from his charge, and appends the following noto concerning his work: "Everything seems to be moving on well. We have 5 Sunday schools, 4 prayer meetings, and 2 woman's missionary societies, all of which are in fairly good working order. We have received 28 persons into the Church, 9 of them by vows and baptism, and have made material improvements in the charge which cost about $350."

We clip the following from The Mobile Register: "The Seashore Campground School began its 1915-16 session this morning (Sept. 8) with an enrollment of sixty scholars from various parts of the South. A program marked the opening day, which was followed by classification of the students. As the session progresses a large attendance is expected, and under the charge of an able corps of teachers this institution will rank with others of the South in the grade of work taught by them."

In a personal letter to the Editor, Mrs. Vic T. Hoyle, of Tupelo, President of the Woman's Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference, says: "Any success that I may have attained as President of our Conference Missionary Society is largely due to the wise counsel and guidance of my pastor, who never fails me." This is a high compliment to Rev. J. C. Park, who is the minister referred to, and who for a number of years has stood in the foremost rank of North Mississippi pastors. Fortunate, indeed, is any charge to have his services.

Brother John W. Sistrunk, of Mitchell, La., writes that the work in the Pelican charge is going forward in an encouraging manner, under the faithful leadership of the pastor, Rev. F. R. Power. He states that a gracious revival has lately been held at Mitchell, in which there were 34 conversions and additions to the Church—31 on profession of faith and 3 by letter; and two infants were baptized. The official board met during the meeting and made provision to pay the pastor in full, or in excess; and plans are under way to expend about $500 in repairing the parsonage at Pelican.

We are indebted to the Methodist News Bureau (Nashville) for the following item of interest: "Rev. W. D. Wendel, of Como, Miss., who is a grandson of Bishop Robert Paine, has presented to Emory University a book of autograph sermon notes by his illustrious grandfather. This is another valuable addition to the Emory collection of autograph letters and manuscripts by Methodist celebrities. In the collection are letters and papers by nearly all the famous leaders of Methodism, from John Wesley down to present-day leaders. The collection is probably the most valuable of its kind in America."

Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Randolph, of Kosciusko, Miss., are again at home after a delightful trip to the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco. They were accompanied by a congenial party gathered from Kosciusko, Como, and other points, who added much to the pleasure of their visit to the Far West, which covered a period of 26 days. Referring to his work at Kosciusko, Brother Randolph says: "Things are going well with us here. These are fine people. I have received 52 persons into the Church up to date. The Sunday school and all other departments of the work are in a good condition."

From Konawa, Oklahoma, under date of Sept. 7, Rev. W. D. Baas, of Corinth, Miss., writes as follows: "I am nearing the close of a revival meeting with Rev. W. L. Broome at this place, which is a station appointment in the East Oklahoma Conference. The Church has been greatly revived and there will be a number of accessions as a result of the services. Brother Broome is one of the most promising young men in his Conference. I shall go from here to my home at Corinth for a season of rest. It may be that during the month of October I could assist one or two pastors in Mississippi who may need help in meetings."

We take from The Times-Picayune the following dispatch from Aberdeen, Miss., bearing date of September 12: "Rev. I. D. Borders, pastor of the First Methodist Church here, announced this morning his transfer to the Southwest Missouri Conference and stated that he would be stationed in Kansas City, Mo. Rev. J. M. Bradley, of Kansas City, will fill the vacancy here until the meeting of the North Mississippi Conference." It is not definitely so stated, but we infer from this dispatch that Brother Bradley has been transferred to North Mississippi, which was formerly his home, and where he wrought effectively in the itinerancy for a number of years before going to Missouri.

The Methodist News Bureau (Nashville) sends us the following further information concerning the death of Dr. Alexander: "The message last week, bringing news of the death of Dr. Gross Alexander, editor of the Methodist Review, gave no particulars other than that he died suddenly of apoplexy, September 6. A later message from Rev. R. P. Howell, presiding elder of the Los Angeles District, says that Dr. Alexander was at the home of his daughter, in Long Beach, Cal. On Monday afternoon, September 6, he went to his room to rest a while. When his daughter went later to call him she found that he had died, his features showing that he had passed away peacefully and without a struggle. A post-mortem examination showed some valvular heart trouble. Brief funeral services were held Saturday in Trinity Church, Los Angeles, and the body was later carried to Louisville, Ky., for interment. Funeral services were held September 15 in Broadway Church, Louisville."

Bishop James Atkins has transferred Dr. G. E. Cameron from the Louisiana to the Kentucky Conference and stationed him at the First M. E. Church, South, at Lexington, Ky.; and Rev. O. J. Chandler, who had been serving the Church to which Dr. Cameron has been assigned, has been brought to Louisiana and stationed at Alexandria. We regret to see Dr. and Mrs. Cameron leave the State. They wrought nobly in Shreveport, which was the Doctor's first appointment in the Louisiana Conference, and it was under his inspirational leadership that the movement to construct the present magnificent new house of worship of the First Methodist congregation of that city was started and carried practically to completion. His work in Alexandria has also been of a high order, greatly strengthening our Church there. Mrs. Cameron is a remarkably gifted woman and has few equals as a Sunday school worker. We heartily commend these choice and capable itinerants to the Methodists of Kentucky. We are not acquainted with Mr. Chandler, but we understand that he comes to Louisiana highly recommended and leaving behind a good record.

NOTHING LOST.

By K. A. G.

Nothing is ever lost; somewhere
God keeps each act of faith, each prayer,
Each hope, for fruitage full and fair.

Nothing is ever lost; our fears,
Forgotten dreams of eager years,
Sorrow, or pain, or blinding tears;

Each in some service he has set
Will work its holy mission yet;
God holds them all—though we forget.

The City of New York has ordered that all hotel and restaurant employes who assist in preparing and serving food must secure certificates showing that they are free from infectious diseases. Over 100,000 will be affected by this law and seventeen physicians, assisted by a corps of nurses, are examining 275 patients a day. The work is being done under the direction of the Bureau of Industrial Hygiene. Something ought to be done for those who will be thrown out of employment by this very necessary measure. Other cities would do well to follow the example which the metropolis of the Nation has set in this matter.

TO OUR PREACHERS.

The management of this Advocate has decided to let our preachers and agents offer six months trial subscriptions at 50 cents during August, September and October. This offer will be withdrawn on the 10th of November, 1915. Subscriptions must be sent in in clubs and money orders used in making remittances so as to save expense.

In soliciting new subscribers, please explain to them that the six months' subscriptions are taken with the understanding that, after their expiration, the regular rate of $1.50 will be charged for annual subscriptions unless they are ordered canceled.

We are making this offer for a three-fold purpose:

First—To build up our subscription list before the annual meeting of the Publishing Committee.

Second—To get funds to help tide us over the summer and fall months.

Third—To induce our Methodist people to take the Conference Organ and read it.

Mrs. LEOLA WESLEY was born on Oct. 19, 1888, and died on Aug. 27, 1915, in a sanitarium at Jackson, Miss. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Ragsdale, of Barlow, Miss., and was the first of a family of eight children to be called from this life. She was married to Rev. C. W. Wesley, of Foxworth, Miss., on Oct. 7, 1914. She was converted and joined the Methodist Church under the ministry of the writer at Brandywine Church when quite young and lived a consistent Christian life. Her funeral was preached by Rev. G. G. Yerger in the Methodist Church at Hermanville, Miss., and her remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at the same place, attended by a large numher of relatives and friends.

F. A. GRIMES.

Our hearts were indeed saddened, and our eyes flooded with tears, when the message came to us that the Angel Reaper had visited the home of Brother G. P. White, in Plaquemine, La., on the night of Aug. 29, 1915, and had carried to the heautiful home above the sweet spirit of little G. P., Jr., aged 10 years. He was one of the brightest and best little boys in our town. He joined the Church at the age of six years, and had attended Sunday school and church regularly. He always stood near the door and handed all a song hook as they entered and welcomed them with sweet smiles. To know G. P. was to love him. Just a few moments hefore he passed away, he repeated the Twenty-tbird Psalm. Witb bowed head, we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the hereaved family and commend them to our Heavenly Father, who doeth all things well, and knows bow to comfort tbe sorrowful and heal wounded bearts.

Mrs. SHOEMAKER.

ROBERT JACKSON HOWARD was born in Marshall County, Miss., on May 10, 1862. He bad lived in the Delta, in Coahoma County, Miss., for about twenty years. He was married to Miss Alice Montroy in 1896, witb whom he lived happily until her death on March 8, 1912. The writer hecame his pastor just a few months after he had united with the Methodist Church, and more and more his life materialized into true Cbristian growth. His second marriage was to Miss Maud Horne, of Cooper, Texas. His health failed soon after, and continued to decline until the end came on Aug. 15, 1915. His wife was a ministering angel in all his sufferings and a great boon to his children. His greatest desire was that he might know that his children would he brought up in the Methodist Church, and be faithful, true Christians, and educated for life's work. Among those hy his bedside when the end came was his brother, Ben Howard, of Holly Springs, Miss., and his sister, Mrs. Lane, of Cooper, Texas, his wife, four children, and anxious friends. The funeral services were held at the home in Coahoma, Miss., on Monday, by the writer and Brother W. W. Jones, his pastor, after which his body was laid to rest heside his wife in the Montroy Cemetery.

MEETING AT HODGE, LA.

Rev. J. O. Bennett, the popular pastor of the Jonesboro charge, recently held a very successful meeting at Hodge. This is the second meeting this year the writer has held for Brother Bennett. If every pastor would have the way as well prepared and the people praying and expecting a successful meeting, as Brother Bennett does it would be no trouble to have the hearty co-operation of the Church. Tbere were many tokens of the faithful work of the tireless pastor at Hodge. The large and enthusiastic congregations; the mind of the people to work for the Master's glory, and the deep and abiding interest, all were just tributes to his efforts and zeal. The Gospel messages seemed to he well received and many were moved to lead a more devoted life for the Master. Six new members were received and the names of several children were taken for pastoral instruction.....At the close of the meeting the third quarterly conference was held by the presiding elder of the Ruston District, Rev. Briscoe Carter. The reports showed the charge to be in an excellent condition, and they were a credit to the brethren and the pastor. At the suggestion of Dr. F. C. Wren, several new subscribers were taken for the Advocate hy the pastor. Dr. Wren is a stanch friend of the Advocate, and never fails to get new subscribers. The good peopie of Hodge are growing in grace and in the knowledge of the Lord. They are loyal to the Church and devoted to their pastor.

SOME WORDS OF APPRECIATION.

Dear Dr. Meek: I would like in some way to express my gratitude to Mrs. G. E. Cameron for the article, "How We Found the Master in Prison," and the words of "He Lives and Loves" in your issue of August 5.

Although not a very active Christian worker, I am striving to live for Cbrist and to do something for Him. An article of this kind always inspires me and makes me feel that I should do more for God and my fellow-man. I often think of tbree statements in the eleventh chapter of St. John and this articie of Mrs. Cameron's reminds me of them.

One of these clauses, in the 28th verse, reads: "The Master is come and calleth for thee." It seems that Mrs. Cameron and this League have answered this call and have held back nothing from the Master.

Another: "Take ye away the stone." (St. John 11:39.) Tbis was spoken to the people who had huried Lazarus and had rolled a stone over the mouth of the cave in which he was buried. Tbese poor unfortunates, of whom she writes, are as truly buried as Lazarus was. We have helped bury them by not living the life we should live. There's a stone over the door of their hearts, which shuts out God's light and love and leaves life all dark and cheerless for them. Death is a monster, and who can say what horrors the judgment holds for them?

The third statement is, "Loose him and let him go." (John 11:44.) We're told that he that was dead came forth hound hand and foot with the grave-clothes. Our dead—those buried in the habits of sin—come forth bound with these habits. Release one of those prisoners and we would stand about and watch and expect him to commit some hideous crime, when we should reach out to him a helping hand and point him to the Master who is ahle and willing to give him strength for the great battle of life. Don't we—you and I—usually shun these people instead of trying to help them to a purer life?

Oh, that we might all follow the example set hy Mrs. Cameron!

Sardis Ct., North Miss. Conf.

We have just closed a fine revival at the Cold Springs Church on this charge. The preaching was done by Rev. T. E. Gregory, of the Tyro Circuit. Though in a good working condition spiritually, the Church was greatly helped and strengthened, and there were 17 accessions, and 5 infants were baptized. I feel that a great work was accomplished in the Church and community.—J. B. Conner, P. C.

Franklinton, La.

We closed our meeting at Hackley on Friday night, August 3, with good results. The power of the Holy Ghost fell on the people and many pressed their way to the altar and found salvation. This meeting was held in the Baptist Church; five joined that Church and four the M. E. Church, South. I have received 40 members this year and have had about 130 conversions. Brother Bozeman did fine work. To God be all the praise.—F. N. Sweeney, P. C.

Courtland, Miss.

Dear Mr. Editor: I am just home from a very gracious meeting up in Tate County, where I have been assisting my friend and brother, Rev. W. W. Bruner, of the Wall Hill Circuit. The election was on and the rains came; but, in spite of it all, the people came, and God honored His Word with His presence, and there were but few barren services. Conviction settled on the unsaved until they repented in the old-fashioned way; then with happy faces shining with the joy of heaven they shouted the praises of God. The last night of the meeting was a most gracious one. The altar was filled with penitents. How they did weep and pray! Fifteen gave their names for membership at this one service. This meeting was at Hebron Church, near the home of the sainted and now ascended Rev. J. H. Brooks. There are now in that neighborhood 15 or 20 young men who will conduct (and do conduct) prayer meetings from house to house. Where can this be duplicated? We are getting along nicely with our work on the Courtland charge.—R. I. Collins, P. C.

Sartinville, Miss. (Topisaw Charge.)

Dear Advocate: From every viewpoint the meeting at Sartinville, Miss., on the Topisaw charge, which was conducted by Rev. G. H. Galloway, August 26 to September 2, was a success. The preaching was excellent; it reached all classes of people, and every denomination that was represented was helped. While it gave no uncertain sound as to the fundamental doctrines of Methodism, the Baptists fell in line during the meeting and learned to love Brother Galloway because of his spirit and to appreciate his methods, and there was the most perfect harmony during all the meeting that I have seen in a long time, and there were some bright and definite professions of religion. Six persons joined the church, six infants were baptized, and also one of the largest contribution I have ever seen for a similar purpose was taken up for the preacher, and the Conference assessments came in for their share too. Our hearts go up to God in gratitude for sending Brother Galloway our way, for he wrought well and the church and community will always feel the impress for good that he made on them while there. The Lord bless him graciously!—J. A. Wells, P. C.

Bourg, La. (French Mission)

Dear Brother Meek: I wish to write a few lines to say that the Bourg Church is in a good spiritual condition. Being a local preacher, I can not perform all the duties of a pastor. I have to work six days as a farmer in order to support my family, so that leaves me Sunday as the only day in which I can do church work. Despite this fact, up to now, during the present Conference year, I have received into the Church 17 members and raised a few dollars for various purposes. Poor crops for the last three years have hurt the finances of the charge. However, the prospect for work among the French is more encouraging than it has ever been. Conditions are not exactly like they were in our Lord's time. In His time the harvest was there, but there were few workmen; to-day we have the harvest and the workmen, but lack money, without which the work cannot be carried on to an advantage.....I have just returned from helping my brother, Rev. A. D. Martin, on the Lafourche Mission. We stayed there two days and three nights, and I venture to say that if we could preach, sing, and pray in French among these people every Sunday during the remainder of this year we could secure quite a number of members. I pray the Lord that we may see the day when such work can be continuously carried on among them.—R. E. Martin, P. C.

Waterproof, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: We have just closed a ten days' meeting at Waterproof, La., as a result of which our church at that place has been greatly stimulated. Much interest was manifested in the meeting at the very beginning and it had not in the least abated when it closed. The attendance taxed the seating capacity of the church at nearly every service. The music was under the direction of that veteran choir leader and song evangelist, Brother R. N. Jeffrey, of 1713 Marshall Street, Shreveport, La., and the success of the meeting was due in a large measure to his leadership of the singing, and the inspiring solos which he rendered from time to time. But while this is true, it must be said that our people here entered into the work with a zeal and enthusiasm that I have seldom seen equaled. The young people sang with much ardor, and the older ones prayed and did personal work, and everybody seemed to be of one accord, and to have one aim—the glory of God. I am minded to make individual mention of those of the church who rendered particularly valuable service, but will refrain from doing so because the list would include almost the entire church membership. Our united labors were rewarded by seeing 12 names added to our church roll—ten by vows and two by certificate; and we have reason to believe that the end is not yet. The writer did all of the preaching, but the revival spirit was in the air and the meeting was a success in spite of that fact.—George Fox, P. C.

Sunday School

OPEN LETTER TO SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

Dear Sunday School Worker:

We earnestly ask your co-operation in the effort to have the youth of our country appeal to Congress in the interest of National Constitutional Prohibition as a safeguard for them. The following form of petition is being used:

SUNDAY SCHOOL PETITION.

To the Members of Congress of tha United States of America, Washington, District of Columbia:

We, the undersigned young people, members of the Sunday schools of the various States, desire to say that we are trying to fit ourselves for the duties of citizenship. In order to become good and useful citizens it is necessary that we should have healthy bodies, clean minds and clean characters.

With this end in view, we are doing our part by diligent study in day school and Sunday school, by useful work on farm, in mills, mines, factories and stores. It is our earnest desire to prepare ourselves for faithful and efficient service when we shall be called upon, as men and women, to assume the burdens now being borne by our elders.

We appeal to you, Fathers and Brothers, to eradicate the cause of this disease; to make it unlawful for any one to sell, or traffic in any manner in, alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes. We appeal to you to give us the opportunity to grow up in an atmosphere free from this pestilence.

As the future citizens of these United States, we pray for protection from this dreadful contagion and we earnestly plead for NATIONAL CONSTITUTIONAL PROHIBITION.

City..... State.....

Denomination.....

NAMES.

If desired, the above petition can be clipped and attached to blank paper on which names can be written. The petition is to be signed by members of the Sunday school under twenty-one years of age. Teachers are asked to read and duly consider the petition in their classes and then secure the signatures of pupils. Return all signatures to me. The Superintendent of the Sunday School Department will mount and prepare them for presentation at Washington.

Yours for National Constitutional Prohibition,

WILLA S. NORWOOD,

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney,
Sardis, Miss.

Hold your Rally Day Service—it is better late than never. Send out invitations to all the people, invite them to a class, or some other place in your school. Be interested and you will interest others.

If your superintendent has not decided to observe Hamill Memorial Day, ask him to let you honor your school by its observance. How can we more fittingly honor the memory of this great, good man, than by putting a few dollars into the building in Japan that is to be used for training leaders in our Sunday school work in the Island Empire? Send your offering to Dr. A. J. Lamar, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

Many of our schools are going to use the Graded Lessons for the first time. It is wise to begin with one or two grades at first, but by all means make a beginning, for in a short time all our schools will see the benefit of teaching lessons adapted to the child's needs. Write to Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn., for the following books: "Introduction and Use of the Graded Lessons," by Chappell, "Primary Plan Book Series," Book One and Book Two, by Marion Thomas. These three books will start you off right and furnish material you can not get elsewhere. You must have the best tools if you would do good work.

Mr. A. L. Dietrich, our Divisional Secretary, will be with us the last two weeks in October to hold efficiency conferences in each district. We are depending upon the preachers to urge their superintendents to attend these meetings for one day and get the help they must have, if they mean to put their schools upon a higher plane of Christian service.

Cards have been mailed to each presiding elder, with the request that they be used at the fourth quarterly conference to get information as to the standing of each school in the Conference. This will require some painstaking work upon the part of the preacher, but if this information is furnished as requested, we will know where to work to the best advantage.

Mrs. Lloyd Carr superintends the school at Longtown. This heroic woman stands in the breach and is giving the people a knowledge of God through the study of his Word.

Rev. R. G. Moore, pastor at Duck Hill, promises to put the schools under his charge upon a higher plane, not only the one visited by the Field Secretary, but each one on the circuit. No man can take the place of the preacher in leading the people into more fruitful service. If God finds another to guide the people, where will the preacher be? God help us to see our opportunity.

Rev. W. J. Woods was holding a successful revival meeting at Mar's Hill when the Field Secretary arrived at his place of business Thursday morning. The Sunday school man took hold and the work went right along during the next two days, and twenty-one were received into the Church. The Sunday school is at home in a revival meeting or anywhere else. Brother J. M. Sykes means to have a portion of the Discipline read to his school until his young people know something about their Church. He is also going to have extracts read from the Advocate so his people will have their appetites whetted for more of the good things that they are missing every week.

The big man of the Conference, Rev. O. L. Savage, will put his school on the map long before Belzoni is made a county seat. This school is to take the full program of a first class religious institution and join in with those on the firing line.

It is a fact that the Moorhead Sunday school is the best of all the good things in that wide-awake town. It happened this way. Some good women are willing to work at this great business. This is a model school in many respects.

BRING CHRIST WITH YOU.

E. B. Partin, M. D.

We read much these days about problems to be solved, difficulties to be overcome—how to increase the attendance at Sunday school and at Church, how to reach the masses, etc., until the heart grows sick at the very multiplicity of plans and schemes. It is truly refreshing to read some of the writings of Dr. Adam Clarke, one of the strong and scholarly writers and pioneers of early Methodism, and also author of the best commentary on the Bible ever published.

In his "Christian Theology," under the head of "Ministers and People," he says: "Bring Christ with you and preach his truth in the love thereof and you will always have a congregation, if God has any work for you to do in that place." The one thing needful above everything else is to have Jesus with us in our work for him, and every difficulty will be overcome and every problem solved. In our planning and scheming to get results, it is to be feared that sometimes Christ is left out, and failure is the result. He has said, "Without me ye can do nothing." * * * "If ye abide in me and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what you will and it shall be done unto you" (John 15:5-7).

We may have fine church buildings and a multiplicity of machinery for carrying on the work of the Church, but if Christ is not made first in it all, and his truth, preached in the fulness of his love, is lacking, it will avail nothing and be a failure. He has said, "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." To exalt him in our lives, to keep him in our hearts, and to "bring Christ with us," in all our work for him, is to overcome every obstacle and solve every problem—not worrying about results, but leaving results with him. And he has said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

THE TWO LOOKS.

The servant of Elisha at Dothan saw only the Syrians, but his master saw both the Syrians and the seraphs. Every earthly scene has a setting that is as wide as the whole plan and purpose of God. The Dothan vision was a vision of more than just Dothan, and every man whose eyes the Lord hath opened gains the power to take two looks—one at his immediate surroundings, and the other up into heaven. Unless at every turn of life we visualize our worldly circumstances in the perspective of a celestial vista, we are no better than morally blind men, who at the most can but grope and stumble along the tortuous pathways of life.—Zion's Herald.

REV. A B MOWERS ADVOCATES NERVE REMEDY.

Nervous Indigestion is one of the commonest of the many forms of nervous trouble. It is very hard to treat usually, but those who have used Dr. Miles' Nervine all report that it was not long before their trouble vanished entirely.

Every ailment must have a cause and the cause is what should be removed. When the cause lies in the nervous system Dr. Miles' Nervine cannot be too strongly advocated. It is backed by thirty years of successful use.

The Rev. A. B. Mowers, of York, Pa., is an ardent advocate of this remedy since it completely relieved him. He made the following statement for publication:

"Nearly 10 years ago I was troubled with nervous indigestion in its worst form. I had sick headaches nearly every day, with a dizzy, dull feeling. I was extremely nervous, confused, and suffered much with constipation. I was informed of Dr. Miles' Nervine and Liver Pills and determined to give them a trial. I used them as directed and received much relief. I continued the Nervine until I had used several bottles. I now enjoy good health, relish my meals and can eat any kind of food without fear. I take pleasure in recommending Dr. Miles' Remedies to the public."

Dr. Miles' Nervine or Liver Pills can be purchased at any drug store and the purchase price will be cheerfully refunded by the druggist if after using the remedies you are not satisfied with the results obtained.

Had Pellagra Seven Years Thanks God He's Cured

Cowards, S. C.—David G. Pate, of this place, writes: "I am glad to say to you, after waiting forty days, that I still feel like I am cured of pellagra. I had this disease for the last seven years. The fourth day after beginning your medicine I went back to work and have been able to do my work ever since. I thank God for your remedy."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with much mucus and choking; indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., box 587-X, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—Adv.

FROM A LONG-TIME READER.

Dear Brother Meek: Inclosed find a money order for my subscription to the Advocate. It has been a weekly visitor to my home ever since it started. My father came to Louisiana and Mississippi when one Conference embraced both States—in 1823—and was one of the first subscribers to the Advocate when it began its career. My husband was for many years a member of the Mississippi Conference, his last charge being Jefferson Street, Natchez. He is buried in that old city with many of the people who loved him, and whom he delighted to serve.

I cannot get along without the weekly visits of this old time friend. I am only sorry that all the "peculiar people called Methodists" do not feel the same love for their Church organ. You give us a splendid paper, and we thank you for your fidelity, your adherence to the safe paths—the ones "our father's have trod"—and for the deep spirituality that pervades your editorials.

With best wishes, and the hope that you may be able to keep Methodists supplied with the same good paper that we have had for some time, I am,

Yours faithfully,
Mrs. W. E. BALLARD.

Mrs. Geo. M. Hunter,
Lake Charles, La.

Dear Madam:

We are in receipt of your letter of August 19th advising us of the death of the Rev. Geo. M. Hunter.

We have looked up his account and find that the Rev. Mr. Hunter joined the Werlein Piano Club on June 6th, 1913, and that he paid his dues at all times punctually, never having gone behind a single month.

We agree with the members of our Piano Club that where they make their payments promptly every month that we will voluntarily make a present of the unpaid portion of the Piano to the family in the event of death.

We now take very great pleasure in handing you a receipted bill for this Piano which we hope you will appreciate, as a further indication of the loving care shown by your departed husband whose foresight even after his death relieves you of this considerable debt.

Yours very truly,

A NEW CLUB IS NOW FORMING.

The $400 Werlein is $292. The payments are $6. monthly. We will be pleased to have the applications of those interested in providing the home with a good, dependable piano sold on the most liberal contract ever offered. Write or call on

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SOCIETY.

The great burden of responsibility weighs so heavily upon my heart that I cannot resist the strong desire to send you a message at this time when our energies are depressed by the long warm summer. Have we, the ones on whom our Father depends, been idle? Taking a vacation spiritually as well as physically and mentally? Satan never takes a vacation and it is while we are resting that he accomplishes so much that we can never overcome.

I have just received a most inspiring letter from Miss Head, Secretary of our Foreign Work. Several paragraphs I want to pass on to you. "Our missionaries write as follows: 'We are having wonderful services at the churches. In one week at the North Ward Church, Songdo, 232 became believers, and last week 100 came out on the Lord's side at the three nights' meetings. The Spirit of the living God is working wonderfully with our girls in the schools, and, in fact, He is manifest all over our city. There is a deep heart-searching and a waiting upon God with a contrition that will surely end in His peace. It is a great privilege to work in Korea at this time. What is being done in Songdo is also being done in the other stations all over Korea. Great crowds are seeking to know the truth, and many are standing firm for Christ. The native Christians are working with zeal and devotion, and often at great sacrifice. The test comes now, and we are asking ourselves again and again, Will we be able to teach them, so that they may hold out until they are established? We cannot do it unless reinforcements come, and unless the women at home will help us by the increase of their missionary offerings and by prayer.'

"Last year we found it necessary to cut the appropriation, and the day schools through the country sections particularly have suffered. Except for sacrifices made by the missionaries to keep them going, some, I fear, would have closed. The Japanese are getting more and more strict and are making new demands upon us, which looks sometimes as though we might have to go out of the educational business. They are demanding better teachers and better equipment. A few weeks ago, one of the teachers who supervises six schools in one district, wrote, saying: 'We have done all we can, but unless you can send us another $100 we will have to close three of our day schools because of the extra demands of the Japanese. We are touching more than five hundred families in these day schools.' My heart was much burdened, but I felt that we could not make additional appropriations, so a few of us asked God to touch the heart of some one and give us the money. In a few days this note came from a young woman whose name is unknown: 'As I have been reading of conditions in Korea, it has seemed to me that what we are to do for those people must be done quickly. Surely the Lord's business requires not only haste, but sacrifice. I have only this $100 to give, but I just know that God wants me to send this check to you.'"

Sisters, let us pray more earnestly, put more enthusiasm into our work, make our programs more interesting, form mission study classes, etc., and work with a new effort as the fall season comes to us. Do not forget our Membership Campaign; double the number in your auxiliary, and let us see how much we can do this next quarter, and not be satisfied with doing just enough to keep our consciences easy. We want to be soul-winners for the Master; there are millions starving for the Bread of Life; will we refuse longer to give them the Gospel?

I hope our finances will be increased over the last quarter. While the Council assumed our obligation to meet the note of $1000 on the Biloxi Wesley House, this does not relieve us of our part of the obligation to put this amount into the Treasury, as we promised to pay for this property. Can we not sacrifice self just a little for the sake of our Lord and humanity?

Pardon this long letter, but I love my Lord; I love you, and I love this great work, and I long to see it move forward in our Mississippi Conference as it has never done before.

Will you not help? Sincerely,

Mrs. R. E. JOHNSON.

Gulfport, Miss.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

We are glad to know that our Mission Study and Publicity Superintendent has returned from her trip to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, but sorry to learn that immediately after her return she was ill. We trust that ere this she has entirely recovered. We feel greatly indebted to our efficient Corresponding Secretary, Miss Dunstan, who in the absence of Mrs. Campbell, edited our July and August Campaign Bulletin. Capable and efficient, Miss Dunstan is ever ready to lend a hand anywhere and everywhere toward the promotion of our great work.

It affords me pleasure to state that our Como auxiliary, under the leadership of Mrs. R. M. Short, has entered a girl, Claudia Weddle, at our Vashti Industrial School, at Thomasville, Ga. This girl has no mother, and worse than no father, and was found amidst the most dreadful surroundings there in Como. Prompt entrance was secured for her in Vashti and the Como auxiliary fitted her up for traveling, and Brother W. D. Wendel accompanied her as far as Nashville and put her on the sleeper, and telegraphed Superintendent Bishop of Vashti to meet her. In writing to Mrs. Short afterwards, Brother Wendel said: "I give you credit for originating and carrying out this plan. I believe God and the angels have been looking on and applauding the whole movement. Such work is a noble expression of the Christ in religion." Mr. Bishop writes that he is much pleased with Claudia, and I am sure that the good women of our Como auxiliary will be abundantly blessed for what they have done for this poor girl.

Mrs. VIC THOMPSON HOYLE.

LEARNED, MISS.

The Woman's Missionary Society of this place held an interesting meeting recently. Mrs. Purvis was hostess for the afternoon. After an appropriate Scripture reading and prayer, the mission study book, "Immigrant Forces," was reviewed and discussed. A duet, "Drifting Away," was beautifully rendered at the conclusion of the review of the book, and then a social time was enjoyed by those present. Dainty refreshments added to the pleasure of the occasion. All parted feeling that the afternoon had been profitably and pleasantly spent, and that some good seed had been sown for the Master.

A CONVINCING ANSWER.

It is sometimes asked, "Do missions pay?" A satisfactory and convincing affirmative answer to this question has recently been given by the experience of a Boston man who sent his check for $500 for mission work in Foochow, South China.

This sum, as reported in the Missionary Herald, supported four Chinese pastors and preachers. One of them is the minister of a church seating 500 people, where he preaches to at least 200 every Sunday. Twenty-eight people united with the church in ten months. Two of these pastors organized Bible classes, one of them bringing into the church fifty men. Another visited the cities where the meetings that followed up the work of Mr. Sherwood Eddy were held, and to date 9,230 people have decided to study the Bible. Besides supporting these four native pastors, this fund of $500 supported eight theological students.

This Boston business man thought that missions do pay and he smilingly sent in his check for another $500.

JUDGE A NATION BY ITS DRINKS.

Some one has said that you can judge a nation by the character of books it reads. As literature influences the intellectual development of the nation so food and drink influence its physical development and thereby promotes or retards its civilization.

Every nation, civilized or uncivilized, has its popular beverage which leaves an unmistakable impress upon the character of its people. In this connection the following statistics for the year 1909 have a most interesting and significant bearing. In that year the total population of the world was approximately sixteen hundred millions. The combined population of Great Britain, Germany, and the United States, the three nations that lead the world in literature, theology, science, invention, commence and industry, in fact, in almost every phase of mental, moral and physical development, was approximately one hundred and ninety-five millions, or slightly less than one-eighth of the total population of the world. In the same year the world's consumption of caffein in the form of coffee, tea, cocoa and Coca-Cola was approximately sixty million pounds. Of this, Great Britain, Germany and the United States consumed thirty-one million pounds, or a little more than one-half of the total. Less than one-eighth of the world's population, therefore, consumed more than one-half of the caffein beverages. Figure it out for yourself and you will find that these three nations, the leaders in the march of civilization, use approximately seven times as much caffein per unit of population as the other nations of the world.

These statistics clearly indicate the wholesomeness of the caffein beverages upon which temperate people have relied for centuries for refreshment of mind and body. As compared with other beverages, they possess the special advantage of refreshing the tired nerves and muscles without stimulation and without intoxication.

Coffee, tea and Coca-Cola are identical in effect, though different in flavor. By virtue of their caffein they relieve fatigue, refreshing both mind and body. Coca-Cola differs from the other two in that it contains less caffein, is carbonated, is flavored with a combination of fruit extracts and is free from tannic acid. In the latter respect it is superior to tea and coffee, especially when they are overboiled, for the tannic acid which is thus dissolved is apt to disturb the process of digestion.

Desiring that the public shall fully understand the composition and character of its product, The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet containing the scientific opinions of the world's leading authorities, explaining the wholesomeness and refreshing qualities of this popular temperance drink. A copy may be had by addressing the Advertising Managers of this paper, Messrs. Jacobs & Company, Clinton, S. C.—Advertisement.

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Sir William Osler, Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1892), on page 249: "The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. * * In the granulation products and associated pneumonia a scar tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous areas become impregnated with lime salts. To such conditions alone should the term healing be applied."

The success of Eckman's Alterative in tuberculosis may be due partly to its content of a lime salt in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

It is worth a trial, unless other treatment already is succeeding. We make no promises concerning it any more than do reputable physicians with their prescriptions, but since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

Where God erects a house of prayer,
The Devil builds a chapel there.—DeFoe.

The Executive and Finance Committee of the Board of Church Extension of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has authorized me to offer in prizes for Church Extension messages, in the form of sermons, addresses, experiences, stories, poems, etc., $250 in gold, as follows:

1st prize	$75.00
2nd prize	50.00
3rd prize	25.00
4th prize	17.50
5th prize	12.50
6th prize	10.00
7th prize	10.00
8th prize	10.00
9th prize	10.00
10th prize	5.00
11th prize	5.00
12th prize	5.00
13th prize	5.00
14th prize	5.00
15th prize	5.00

The principal ends sought by the committee are three, namely:

First—A more general study of the subject of Church Extension on the part of our preachers and people.

Second—A more universal presentation of the subject to our congregations.

Third—The creation of a literature especially adapted to the needs of preachers and laymen whose duty it is to speak on Church Extension, and for which calls are made upon the office almost every day in the year.

Conditions.

1. The messages may be upon any phase of the work of church or parsonage building, including such as are suitable for use at the dedication of churches, or calculated to arouse interest in a congregation to build a needed house, or to pay a debt on one already built, or in the interest of full collections on the Church Extension assessment, or on the increase and work of the Loan Fund Capital, or the place of Church Extension in the evangelization of the world, or the message of the church house, or the relation of the church house to the community, etc., and may be in the form of a sermon, address, lecture, story, poem, or experience.

2. Every message submitted must first have been delivered to one or more of the 19,735 congregations of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

3. The manuscript must not contain more than 3,000 words, and may contain as few as 250—the fewer the better—provided the message is clearly stated.

4. Discretion is left to the author as to whether the message shall be in full, or in the form of outline, analysis, syllabus or resume.

5. All itinerant ministers, local preachers, laymen and laywomen are eligible to enter this contest.

6. The manuscripts must be sent to the office of the Board of Church Extension at Louisville, Kentucky, not later than January 31st, 1916.

7. The Executive and Finance Committee of the Board reserves the right to use all manuscripts as it may think best, including those to which no prizes are awarded, in the interest of the work of Church Extension.

Notes.

1. It will be a great accommodation to the office if the manuscripts are submitted in typewriting, and on one side of the paper, leaving no room for doubt as to spelling, punctuation, arrangement, etc., in multiplying the manuscripts for use of the judges.

2. Rev. A. F. Watkins, D.D., Jackson, Miss., Secretary of the last General Conference, and Rev. T. N. Ivey, D.D., Nashville, Tenn., Editor of The Christian Advocate, have agreed to name three or five judges, as they may think best.

3. Copies of all manuscripts will be submitted without information as to the author, and the judges will be requested to render their decisions before the Annual Meeting of 1916.

4. The judges will be requested to give special consideration to the effectiveness of the message.

5. The award of prizes will be announced at the Annual Meeting in 1916 in connection with the dedication of the new office building. Prizes will be sent to the successful competitors immediately following the announcement of the decision of the judges.

6. The office has been instructed to furnish upon request without charge copies of the Board's publications and any other data in its possession that may be desired.

7. Copies of publications containing the manuscripts submitted will be sent free of charge to all competitors.

8. Do not forget that "A bold attempt is half success."

Corresponding Secretary.

SALOONS CENTERS OF POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

Judge Anderson, of Indianapolis, in his remarks incidental to the sentencing of the Terre Haute conspirators and political corruptionists recently, had something to say about saloons. He was considering the cases of several saloon keepers when he said:

"My notion is that the saloon will have to go.

"I believe the time will come when the people will rise up and smash the saloon, at least as we have it now. The evidence in this case showed that the saloons were the centers of nearly all the corruption in the election at Terre Haute."

Judge Anderson said he had noticed that the saloon keepers who appeared on the witness stand looked good physically, and seemed well and strong.

"God Almighty meant for them to work with their hands," he said. "I don't approve of this saloon business, at least as it is conducted in Terre Haute."—Central Christian Advocate.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 62—No. 38. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3109

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1915. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

Editorial

THE IMPORTANCE OF FULL COLLECTIONS.

The Louisiana Conference will meet on Nov. 17; the Mississippi Conference, on November 24, and the North Mississippi Conference, on December 1. Thus it will be seen that within three months the farthest removed of these annual gatherings will have closed its session. This means that the pastors and church officers in our patronizing territory will from now on have upon them a heavy burden of work and that their hands will be quite full. In most of the pastorates perhaps a considerable portion of the preachers' salaries and the larger share of the Conference collections are yet to be raised. It is greatly to be regretted that the finances in so many of our pastoral charges are allowed to drag along through the year unprovided for, thus leaving most of the assessments to be secured in the two or three closing months, and necessitating a final strain upon the part of the churches, which is far from wholesome in its effects. How much better it would be, in every respect if our people could be taught to follow the New Testament plan laid down by St. Paul: "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him." Systematic and conscientious giving throughout the year would wipe out the deficits in most of our charges, and do away with the grinding struggle at the end, which everybody dreads.

But since this ideal has not yet been attained, we must deal with things as they are; and it is to be hoped that our people at every place will, during the few remaining weeks of the Conference year, do their utmost to bring up all the assessments in full. The raising of money, to be sure, is not the chief work of any congregation, but it is very important. The Church must have funds in order to maintain her various arms of service that have as their great objective a spiritual ministry to the souls of men. So, if her financial resources are inadequate, the effective execution of her high and holy mission is necessarily hindered. And if there ever was a time in their history when the churches in America needed to bestir themselves and to give to the point of sacrifice, that time is now. With half the world engaged in destructive war, unless the Christians in peaceful countries will lay themselves out to meet the present unparalleled emergency, the interests of the Master's Kingdom are certain to suffer disastrously. There are doubtless some charges that are inequitably assessed and that would be taxed considerably out of proportion to others to contribute what is expected of them, but their number is comparatively small. In our opinion, as a rule, the question as to whether pastorates send up a clean balance sheet to the Annual Conference is determined more by their willingness than by their ability to pay.

But, however that may be, in the face of the present situation, no pastor and flock should feel free from culpability in reporting a financial shortage when the year is rounded out, unless every resource at their command has been exhausted to avoid having to do so. The call is loud and urgent for every one who loves the Lord Jesus and the Church which represents him in the world to do his full duty in this crucial and perplexing hour. While millions of men are pouring out their blood and treasure and are laying down their lives to promote the selfish interests of earthly governments and rulers, shall the followers of Christ in this richest and most favored of all lands show a lack of true devotion to him and the glorious cause of human redemption? God forbid that it should be so.

A REMARKABLE WILL.

In the Advocate of September 9 an announcement of the death of Mr. James H. Allen of St. Louis, Mo., was made. Mr. Allen was born in Northeast Mississippi a little over seventy years ago, being a brother of the famous "Private" John Allen, of Tupelo, and Mrs. A. D. Robins of the same city, who is widely known in the Methodist circles of North Mississippi for her noble Christian character and constant activity in the Master's service. After attaining to his majority, Mr. Allen lived for a while in Mobile, Ala., but later moved to St. Louis, where he became a millionaire. He was a member of the Church of the Disciples and had for several years impressed all who came into contact with him by his ardently devout spirit. When his will was opened after his decease it proved to be one of the most remarkable instruments of its kind ever written and has attracted considerable attention throughout the country. It evinces so unusual a sense of obligation to God and sets forth the doctrine of man's stewardship in the handling of earthly property so impressively that we are moved to quote its preamble, with the hope that it may lead others to consider seriously the question of their responsibility to their Maker and their duty to their fellow-men. We are not our own, and any talents and possessions that we may have are not ours to be selfishly used as we may please; on the contrary, they have been committed to our keeping to be devoted to high and worthy ends that are in harmony with the purposes of our beneficent Creator. The opening paragraphs of Mr. Allen's will are as follows:

"To whom it may concern:

"This is my only and last will and testament. I have never made a will before.

"I was 70 years old the 4th of March last, having been born on the 4th of March, 1844. My family is not a long-life family, so that, at best, I cannot expect to live much longer.

"I had intended to make some special bequests, but will not do so, as I have a promise from each one of my children to use one-half of the property received from my estate for charitable and Christian work; and with the remaining one-half, they have promised to try to make or earn other property to be used for good Christian purposes. All that we have belongs to the Lord. It is the Lord's property, and he will hold us to a straight account for the way we use it. I am sure the only life worth living here is the Christian life, in which we love and serve God and love and try to help each other to a better life. The devil is smarter than all mankind put together, and will always lead us astray if left to our weak selves; so our only hope is in the Lord, who has promised us if we love, serve and obey Him, that no temptation shall befall us but that he will provide an escape. I have tried to set my children a proper example to be servants of the one true God and Jesus Christ, his son. All that we have already belongs to him and should be used for his honor and glory—for a useful life here and so as to secure a home in heaven when this life is over.

"I hope my children will try to live true, humble, Christian lives, working to upbuild Christ's kingdom in their own hearts and in the hearts of others. Rather be wronged any time than to wrong others. Always do right, let it cost what it may. We are never justified in doing wrong. If others have wronged us, let us leave their punishment in the hands of our Lord and Master. Try to live every day as if it were your last day upon earth, for some day soon may be your last day."

WEST VIRGINIA'S TESTIMONY.

We take the following from the Northwestern Christian Advocate:

"'Is prohibition working in West Virginia? Let the following report from fifty-four municipalities given by the State Commissioner of Prohibition answer: Total arrests for the year ended June 30, 1914, 15,267; for the year ended June 30, 1915 (the first prohibition year), 7731. For the year ended June 30, 1914, there were 7525 arrests for drunkenness, and for the year ended June 30, 1915, 2772. Thus there has been a decrease in crime of virtually fifty per cent."

In the face of such testimony as this, it is amusing to see the devotees of the saloon hereabout juggling with figures in their efforts to show that crime has been increased in Mississippi and the dry parts of Louisiana by the prevalence of prohibition. These patriotic (?) citizens are wasting their time and strength. The facts are against them wherever the no-license regime has been adopted, and every intelligent man and woman knows that this is true. Those who have the audacity to parade the saloon as a preventive of lawlessness must certainly have an extraordinary faith in the gullibility of the people. The truth is, a very large percentage of the crimes committed in dry territory should be set down to the credit of liquor sent into it (often surreptitiously) by drinkshops existing elsewhere. When the manufacture and sale of intoxicants have been stopped in all the States of the American Union evil of every kind will have been dealt the most powerful blow that it is possible for the citizenship of this Nation to strike. May God speed the day when it shall be delivered!

THE MOTHER'S CHARGE.

Lord! I commit my daughter unto thee as a special trust.

Precious and lovely, I yield her to thee!
Take her the gem of thy dwelling to be!
She who was ever my solace and pride
Glides from my bosom to cling to thy side.

Guard her with care, which must never decline;
Make her thy daughter—she hath long been mine;
Lonely henceforth my desolate lot,
What is the casket where the jewel is not?

Take her and pray that thine arm may be strong,
Safely to shield her from danger and wrong;
Be to her all that her heart hath portrayed,
Then o'er thy path there will gather no shade.

Now she doth love thee as one without spot—
Dreams of no sorrow to darken her lot;
Joyful, yet tearful, I yield her to thee—
Take her the light of thy dwelling to be.

PREACHING ALL THE WAY.

You remember the sweet story in the life of St. Francis of Assisi, to whom one day a young monk came with a word of inquiry, and to whom the older man gave the indirect reply of an invitation to walk with him in the streets of the village that lay at the foot of the hill below the monastery where they dwelt. They passed through the gate of the village, to and fro, to preach the gospel, as St. Francis has said to his younger friend, yet all the while the older man spoke never a word. When at last they had come back to the door from which they had gone, still in silence, the young man turned and said, "But, good father, when shall we begin to preach?" "Oh," said the older man. "My son, we have been preaching all the way. Our example has been noted and looked at. Little will it avail a man that he go anywhere to preach unless he preach as he goes.—Speer.

REVERENCE IN WORSHIP.

By Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr.

The Psalmist says, "Be still, and know that I am God." Elijah was still and quiet and he heard the still small voice of God speaking to him. Then he was encouraged and made strong for still further work that God had for him to do.

How many of the people of God have there been into whom he has poured his great strength and power! These have been renewed again to meet a harsh world with a spirit that is undaunted. These have gone quietly and reverently into the secret place of prayer and there have met God to be renewed in their inner natures. They have gone with reverence to the house of God and, waiting for God to come their souls, have been made strong to stand again in the tumult of the outside world.

A reverent spirit is always a requisite to true and spiritual worship of God. Yet how often is it found that there is a very great lack of reverence in worship. Holy things have become commonplace to many. The church—the house—is held lightly by many. The preaching of the Word is often regarded by preacher and people alike to be but the utterance of a mere man. All sorts of themes are discussed and the discourse on these strange themes is dignified by being called a sermon. Prayer becomes but the utterance of well rounded sentences and song is formal and without spirit.

The church—the house—is God's house. Men ought to recognize it as such and go there to meet God. The sermon should be the utterance of God's truth by one of his faithful servants. It should be the message from God to man through a man. Prayer is addressed to God, and not to man. We should be careful lest we become as the Pharisees and be found praying for men only to hear. Songs of praise are unto the Lord. Were men—preachers and laity alike—always to be mindful that we are worshiping God, would there not be a greater spirit of reverence in worship and in our attitude toward God than is now often found in the services conducted in his house?

This writer has seen the sacrament of the Lord's Supper administered in all sorts of ways. There have been men who were careful and reverent. Through the unhurried use of our ritual in this solemn service these have seemed to be able to bring their fellow worshipers into the very audience chamber of God. Others have raced through this service as if they were fighting fire. There was no reverence in the preacher's soul, and how could there be in the souls of others? The same is true of other services conducted in the house of God. This writer has seen people received into the Church in the city and in the country, and it was all done in such a manner as to give but one impression. This impression was that the preacher had a necessary task to be performed and the sooner he could get through with it the better.

When the preachers themselves thus fail in reverence, how can it be expected that the people will come to have the spirit of real and genuine reverence toward God and holy things? God is not in a hurry. If there is anything that people need to learn to-day it is that they must "Take time to be holy." Unhurried, reverent worship of the great God will renew our souls and give new strength to men. Let us not handle holy things with unholy hands and in an unholy manner. We may come to grief as did the presumptious Uzza. The cultivation of reverence both in the private and in the public worship of God will bring a sure and rich reward to every human soul that will give attention to this important matter.

THE BIBLE AND THE "TONGUE PEOPLE."

By Rev. J. C. Rousseaux.

III.

Corinthians Fourteenth.

The great Apostle Paul fathered the Christian Church at Corinth. In his letter to this Church he devotes several firm but gentle passages to correct certain forms of abuse of what he terms the gift of tongues. He makes a distinction of many gifts of the Spirit. He distinguishes three, which for my purpose, will be all that need be mentioned in this connection. These gifts were prophecy, tongues, and the interpretation of tongues.

A careful study of the fourteenth chapter of First Corinthians will convince any fair-minded student that the Apostle is here striving with a firm but gentle hand to guard the Church against confusion, for, says he, "God is not the author of confusion, but of peace." "Let everything be done decently and in order." Do not forbid to speak with tongues as they did on Pentecost and in the house of Cornelius, for God is still able to perform miracles of languages if he sees fit to do so and if thereby people of other tongues and lips can be won in this manner. I see Paul warning the Corinthian Church not only against confusion, but I see him as he in this chapter cautions the Christians against speaking words that the people cannot understand. Purves and other writers on the Apostolic Age agree that these people at Corinth uttered "unintelligible ejaculations of praise," and they thus define what the King James translators call the "unknown" tongue. Of course, all Bible students know that the word "unknown" does not occur in the original Greek, and for this reason the translators had it printed in italics. All words in italics in the Bible are supplied by the translators.

Thus we see that Paul is evidently trying to correct an abuse of the Pentecostal sign. He could not be condemning here in Corinth what Peter commended at Pentecost and agreed to in the home of Cornelius. Therefore, we are led to the inevitable conclusion that some of the disciples at Corinth were in error, else the Apostle would not have written to them in the way in which he did. He told them it was far better to prophesy, preach, than to have the gift of tongues. He said that it did no one any good but the man who was speaking the unknown language, unless there were present some one who could tell what was being said. Plainly, then, these people had gone into gross error, as near to the time of Pentecost as they were, on the subject of the tongue. Paul says to them, Do not do this unless there is some one to tell what you are saying. Why, he could speak reasonably some three or four languages that we know of. He says: "I thank my God that I speak with tongues more than ye all: yet in the Church I had rather speak five words with my understanding, that by my voice I might teach others also, than ten thousand words in an unknown tongue." He says that unbelievers, and people who do not know, will say that the Christians are mad if they hear them all talking in unknown words, but if they preach, or prophesy, people will fall down and worship God, and "report that God is in you of a truth." They will not do it though if they are unable to understand what is being said. The Church at Corinth had gone off, some of the members of it at least, into error. The Tongue Delusion as we see it to-day, in the "Apostolic Movement," is the same as it was in the Corinthian Church. We need not be surprised if we see the second appearance of an extreme practice that Paul himself had to face, and with which he dealt gently but firmly. He laid down his great direction how to govern these people. We need to carefully remember his words (First Corinthians 14:27, 28): "If any man speak in an unknown tongue, let it be by two, or at the most by three, and that by course, and let one interpret. But if there be no interpreter, let him keep silence in the church; and let him speak to himself and to God." Now, I submit that if these modern tongue people have the real article, they do not follow directions rightly. Taking it for granted that they have the gift as they call it, they do not exercise it rightly. Literally, Paul says to keep your mouth shut in the church or assembly, if you want to speak in a language or tongue foreign to your hearers; keep silent unless some one is present to translate your words. This is very much the same form of error as these tongue people seem to forget exists in the Roman Catholic Church, which they fight so fiercely. They forget that the Roman Catholics pray in an unknown tongue, the Latin, and most people understand it about as well as they understand this unintelligible gibberish of the self-styled "Apostolics."

Summary.

Now, in this article I have shown conclusively that the modern "Tongue People" in their practice and teaching break with the Scriptures in five important particulars.

1. They claim that no man can get religion without shouting and praising God in the Unknown Tongue, whereas many are truly saved from sin now and were saved from sin then who did no such thing as this. Instance Paul's conversion, and his direction to the Philippian jailer whom he and Silas led to Christ. These and others remind me of the answer of the colored preacher who was at the meeting of the "Tongue People" the other night. The preacher asked the old Negro if he got religion in the tongue way. His answer was a stunner, "Naw, sir; we jes got it in plain English, but we sho is got it, all right."

2. Their experience of what they call the tongue is different from what they had at Pentecost. That was a language or languages that all understood. This nobody understands. They admit that they do not understand themselves.

3. Paul says when you talk in a foreign or unknown tongue, not to have more than three speakers in each meeting; to use two speakers, or at the most three, one at a time, and then let one interpret. Now, these modern talkers all talk at once, and in this country I have not yet heard an interpreter. Therefore, they part company with the Scriptures at this point. If God makes them talk that way, it looks reasonable to suppose that he would raise up some one who could tell the meaning of this thing. The truth is, in other sections these people attempted the interpreting art, but they got things so mixed up that they seem afraid to attempt it here. It is said that out in Texas a missionary from Mexico got up in one of their meetings and quoted John 3:16 in Spanish, and their interpreter arose and said that the brother's language referred to the coming judgment. How ridiculous!

4. Their claims to lay hands on the sick and have Jesus heal them are overthrown overwhelmingly by the facts in many different cases. They can not do it.

5. Let everything be done decently and in order. I submit that they break with the Bible here. They seem to have nothing in order.

I am not afraid of people who are saved from sin and anchored in God going away with this movement. Those who can understand plain English will know enough not to want to get an unknown gibberish. But I fear lest there will result in the cases of some people a tendency to be irreverent; for many go to these meetings simply to see the "make-up" sights. People go simply out of curiosity. A common hound light can get the crowd from church at almost any service. The biggest show gets the crowd. An unknown tongue or an unknown life, each is undesirable.

Do not forget that sincerity is no guarantee against fallibility. You may be as sincere as a correct adding machine, but that does not relieve you of error, when you attempt to add up a column of numbers.

Remember that the devil has the power to transform himself into an angel of light. Do not forget that he can and does sometimes use good people by deceiving them, confusing them. Be careful of a deadly apathy and discouragement that come inevitably to the extremist. Do not forget that extremes are always extremely dangerous. Steer your course in a happy medium. Do not be deceived. Remember that poison is seldom without perfume; investigate and see if the most deadly sins that one can be capable of committing do not have something about them that the devil makes people think to be good. When you poison a rat, you do not give him poison alone, but you mix the poison with something that is good. If he is a wise rat he eats the good but leaves the poison. But too often, alas! for the rat; he eats both, and the result is that he either dies, or gets very sick.

Be careful how you handle poison, and be careful that in hearing some good things not to imbibe the spirit of error, go to extremes, get discouraged, and lose out with God.

Follow Bible directions, study the Bible as a whole, and remembering that religion is common sense, you can not go far wrong. But where you leave plain, inspired directions, ours must be different paths. They may possibly come together after a while in heaven, but for the present these paths are different, and mine, all aglow and bright with promise, shining more and more unto the perfect day—mine, I say, is right to me.

REPORTING MONEY RAISED FOR MISSIONS IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The joint Committee appointed by the Sunday School Board and the Board of Missions for the purpose of securing the correct reporting of Missionary money raised in the Sunday school, met in Nashville, August 20, and after a full discussion decided to issue a statement for the pastors of the Church about the method of reporting, and, in order that this statement might reach the pastors immediately and in time to guide them in making up their reports for the ensuing Annual Conferences, it was decided to publish the statement in all our Church papers, and further, to send it to the presiding elders, asking that they emphasize the matters set forth in the last round of appointments.

It was felt that the most important factor in carrying out our splendid plan for Missions in the Sunday school was careful and accurate reporting of missionary money raised in the Sunday school, of which the Sunday School Board is to receive the tenth.

1. Attention is called to the explicit terms of the Discipline in paragraph 261, which, defining the method of reporting, says: "And let the entire missionary offering of this day, together with all other missionary offerings, regular and special, made in the Sunday school, be a separate fund, and designated 'Missionary Offering in the Sunday School,' let it be sent through the Conference treasurer, handled and forwarded by him as a separate fund, to the Board of Missions for use in its general work; and let the amount raised for missions in the Sunday school be reported by the pastor in cash or voucher to the Annual Conference, appearing as a distinct item in the Conference journal."

Manifestly two kinds of reports are here provided for, viz., (1) the report that accompanies the remittance to the Conference treasurer and (2) the report in the statistical blank that must appear in the Conference journal.

(1) In the pastor's report to the Conference treasurer, he must keep separate Sunday school missionary money that goes to the General Board of Missions at Nashville. This fund, clearly designated "Missionary Offering in the Sunday School," and sent separately to the Conference treasurer, must not include such funds as offerings for local missionary enterprises. All the money of this separate fund must go through the Conference treasurer to the General Board at Nashville and for use in its general work.

(2) In the pastor's statistical report intended for the Conference journal, he will find in the Sunday school section only two missionary items, They are "Am't raised for Missions (Assessment)" and "Am't raised for Missions (Special)." As the Conference statistical blank provides only these two items, in these items must be reported only what is actually "Missions." Monies raised for local benevolent objects, even if called "Missionary," must under the law be reported "For Other Objects."

In a correct reporting of missionary money raised in the Sunday school is involved the proper distribution of thousands of dollars, and we, therefore, urge every pastor to read over this statement carefully and by following it to the letter, to do for the Sunday School Board and the Board of Missions a great service.

AN APPRECIATION.

On the eve of my going to our "All-day Missionary Rally" at Amory, the news was flashed over the wire to me that the sweet spirit of Mrs. T. J. Binford, of Water Valley, had been ushered out into the Great Beyond, on the afternoon of August 5; and so, while we spoke loving and tender words in her memory on the following day in our missionary rally, she stood in the presence of her Savior and King, a redeemed saint. It is sweet to think how well prepared she was to embark. Truly can we say of her, "She fought a good fight; she kept the faith." In suffering and pain she kept up her work as District Secretary of the Holly Springs District during the closing months of last year. Just before last Christmas tide I received a letter from her in which she said: "I have completed my itinerary of institutes; but no one except my Heavenly Father and myself understand under what painful circumstances the last four were held. I thought if I never worked any more it would be so sweet to leave the memory of this work behind me."

Yes, a beautiful memory does she leave behind, and the fragrant aroma from her consecrated life, which was continually distilled to those round about her, will linger with us a precious memory, inspiring us to diviner heights in our Christian experiences.

In the home going of this consecrated woman, the writer is sorely bereaved. When first elected President of our Conference Society Mrs. Binford was the first woman to assure me of her co-operation and loyal support, and ever since that time I have been sustained by her wise counsel and prayers. In the summer of 1911 it was my privilege to enjoy her hospitality for a few days, and I love to recall the memory of that visit now. I had the privilege of talking to her Sunday school class on Sunday, and could not but note how every man, woman and child in the Methodist Church at Water Valley seemed to revere and love Mrs. Binford. I am so glad too that I did not keep all the flowers for her cold, dead hands, but on the occasion of our last Annual Conference that she attended, which was held at Aberdeen in June, 1911, God put it into my heart to make much of her devoted consecration and faithfulness to our great work. My regret is that I did not carry out one of the best plans she made for her district, and that was for me to visit with her Grenada College and talk to the girls there. But it is all over now. After ten months of suffering, which she endured with a patience and cheerfulness that appealed to every one, she fell asleep in Jesus on the afternoon of August 5. The home of her sister, Mrs. W. H. Hartwell, in which she lived, is much lonlier for her going, but it is such a comfort to realize that the dear one is now safe in that bright world above, where there is no more suffering or sorrow. Yes, the gates of pearl have swung wide on their musical hinges, and this dear one has entered into that land "Where there is no need for the sun by day nor the moon by night, for the Lamb of God is the light thereof."

Mrs. T. J. Binford was born, reared and educated at Sharon, Miss., graduating from the Female College there, before it was destroyed. She married Capt. T. J. Binford, a conductor on the I. C. railroad, and afterwards her home was in different places; but she always exerted an influence for good wherever she lived, it growing stronger as the years went by. She was much devoted to the Sunday school, and wherever she lived she made one of the best teachers in the Sunday school of that church. At the time of her death she was the teacher of a large class of lovely young women in Water Valley, who were devoted to her. She always loved the missionary cause, and became identified with the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of our Conference in 1908, as District Secretary, and served in the same office after union was effected between our Conference Societies, till our annual meeting at Corinth last March, when she was forced to resign on account of ill health. She spent last Christmas upon a bed of suffering and pain, in a hospital in Memphis, Tenn., and after her return to her home she directed the work of her district from her sickbed till our annual meeting was held.

Her funeral services were conducted in the Methodist Church at Water Valley by her pastor, Rev. T. H. Dorsey, and other ministers, on Friday morning, August 6, and the remains were taken to Duck Hill, Miss., and laid away by the side of the husband who preceded her to the Great Beyond many years ago.

The world is better and brighter for Mrs. Binford having passed this way, and I feel that I am a better woman for having known her.

"And I hope they laid her to sleep,
Where the birds will sing
About her the live-long day,
And the flowers will bloom in the Spring."

A GOOD BEGINNING AT MONTROSE.

It was the pleasure of the writer to be present at the opening exercises of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose, Miss., on Tuesday, Sept. 6. The auditorium was filled with students and visitors and a very appropriate program was carried out, consisting of addresses and musical selections.

This institution is under the very efficient management of Rev. J. S. Purcell, President. Beyond question, he is the man for the place. His discipline is firm but kind, and nothing but praise is heard concerning his administration. The little town of Montrose is scattered over several hills and certainly no section of this State can boast of local conditions more conducive to good health. The water is excellent.

While the physical conditions are all that could be desired, the moral and religious atmosphere is most excellent. In a row, side by side, are the Methodist, Presbyterian, and Baptist Churches, and the members thereof live and worship together as Christian brethren should do—in peace and harmony.

This institution of learning puts forth no pretentious claims. Its aim is first of all to instil by precept and example the principles of our holy religion in the hearts and minds of our boys and girls, and, in the next place, to train them in those branches of learning that will qualify them for the active duties of life. To that end the President has associated with him a faculty of eight teachers, men and women, who are thoroughly equipped for this purpose.

One hundred and sixty-one scholars were enrolled, with the promise of many others yet to come. The outlook for this worthy school is most promising.

To those parents who place the welfare of their sons and daughters above mere dollars and cents and who do not care to economize by preferring the cheap tuition and board provided by the State, I do most heartily commend to them this institution of learning.

SOME REFLECTIONS.

Dear Mr. Editor: I sit in my desolate, lonely home, and often allow my thoughts to dwell on my dreadfully helpless and handicapped condition. A kind friend sent me a little book to look over—"Intra Muros." It was a great help to me, in that it turned my thoughts into another channel. I have been thinking to-day, how much better it would be for most of us if we could fully realize, while yet in the flesh, that day by day we are building for eternity. How different our lives, in many ways, would be! Every gentle word, every generous thought and unselfish deed will become a pillar of eternal beauty in the life to come. We cannot be selfish and unlovely in this life and generous and loving in the next. The two lives are too closely blended—one but a continuation of the other.

What strange ideas we mortals have of the duties and pleasures of the blessed life! We will carry into that life the same tastes, desires, and the same knowledge we have before death—don't you think? If these are not sufficiently pure to form a part of that life we, ourselves, may not enter there. Do you think there would be any use in giving our time and efforts in the search for knowledge if, at death, it counts for nothing, and we must begin the new life on a different line of thought and study? Would that we could more fully realize this important fact that we are builders for eternity? The purer the thoughts, the nobler the ambitions, the loftier the aspirations, the higher the rank that can be taken among the hosts of heaven.

Let us all strive more earnestly to fit ourselves to enter our heavenly home, by cultivating pure thoughts and doing loving, kindly deeds—living close to the Lord. Pray for me, that I may be ready to enter my heavenly home when the Lord shall call me.

THE COLLEGE-BRED CROOK.

A recent article in the Outlook, reviewing the struggle against corrupt politics and "graft" in California, states as one of the impressive lessons to be drawn from that fight "that the most dangerous foes of democracy are not Tammany heelers in New York or their kinsmen in San Francisco. The college-bred crook in politics, both in New York and in California, is much more to be fought and feared. Ruef was a graduate of the University of California, the Harvard of the Pacific coast, and his cultivated brain was put at the service of the corrupt foes of the public welfare." The story of the conviction of Ruef, the "college-bred crook," and his sentence to a penitentiary term is familiar to the American public. It furnishes a striking illustration of the fact that education alone, education which is not in some way accompanied by spiritual and moral inspiration, is dangerous. Educating a crook makes him simply a more dangerous crook. Our people have universally recognized the value and necessity of education for the salvation of our democratic institutions; but this striking instance indicates that something else is imperatively necessary besides the cultivation of the intellect and the development of "efficiency." To quote again from the article above referred to, "Democracy should beware of the college-bred crook. And democracy should also remember that the most complete and powerful influence to cope with this cunning has proved to be trained, college-bred integrity.

No qestion to-day is of more vital importance to the Church or to the welfare of the State than the question of the character of education that shall be furnished for our young people. With the limitations imposed upon our State institutions, it is impossible for them to furnish the positive Christian basis and atmosphere in education that are needful in the development of character during the college period. One of the purposes of education under the auspices of the Church is the training of that "college-bred integrity" that is so necessary to the salvation of the State, as well as for leadership in the Church.

A MATTER OF LOVE.

From the date of this issue of the Advocate until the beginning of the 1915 session of the Louisiana Conference is less than two months. During these closing days the most effective work for the material welfare of the Church is done. The limit of the preacher's energy is oftentimes reached in an effort to bring up all assessments in full, and even then failure is often the result. On the other hand, failure is sometimes the result of the want of energy on the part of the preacher in stressing the needs of the Church and the obligation of the individual. In the latter case, the preacher is directly to blame for failure, and should be blamed.

While this column is devoted to educational interests (and for the most part the interests that are named specially should be presented singly), it must be remembered that ultimate success depends upon properly taking care of all the interests of the Church, and not just a favored few to the utter disregard of others. We believe Christian education to be of great importance, but not so great as to be promoted at the expense of missions, or to the neglect of our superannuates, or to the injury of our work of church extension. The Church is one, and just as the whole body suffers when one of its organs is deranged, so the Church suffers when any one of its interests is crippled.

The total assessment on the Louisiana Conference this year amounts to $51,961. There are 36,382 members of the Methodist Church in Louisiana. To pay the entire assessment would require but $1.51 per member. But the fact is, we have on our Church books the names of large numbers of people who neither attend Church nor support it. Granting that but half our membership could be reached in the pocket-book, $3 apiece would settle the whole account. With assessments in full this year, the various Conference Boards would be in the best shape ever for planning the work for next year. Let us stop and consider why these assessments should be paid in full.

The first answer, and one that sweeps all objections aside, is that the Church needs the last dollar of the assessments to properly carry on the work needed to be done. If there is a need and there is any way to satisfy that need, then we should hunt no excuses. It may be said that this Conference year is three weeks shorter than usual, but that does not affect the need of money for next year. Again, it may be said that the war in Europe has caused a tightness in the money market and consequent hard times. But the need remains and the amount per capita is so small that there is really no virtue even in the plea of hard times. Yet again, some preacher may plead that he has too much on his hands to close up, and will not be able to make the rounds to all his members in the interest of the Conference assessments. That might be so in rare instances, but the preacher who puts in eight square hours a day for the Church will close up a good many things in two months if he works with any system.

It is hard to say which assessment is needed the most. We are more familiar with the educational needs than with the needs of the other Boards. The regular assessment for education is $8890. If our Board could have that amount on hand when it meets in Mansfield, every member of it would have heart to push the interests of our two colleges in ways never undertaken before. Take just another instance: The Board of Missions asked for $13,000 for home mission work. This year the charges that are receiving help would be practically closed without what they are getting. Of the seventeen charges being assisted, seven of them are paying rent, and the average salary of the seventeen is but $528. Stop, brother preacher, and pay rent out of a total income of $528 and feed and clothe your family if you can. Certainly, we all answer that the home mission assessment should be raised in full. We could present the needs of each cause, but it is not necessary. As a matter of love, let us Methodists of Louisiana pay the Conference assessments in full.

The New Orleans public school system employs 1400 teachers and furnishes educational advantages for 49,116 pupils. The cost of operating the schools of the city last year amounted to $1,223,030.90.

GRENADA COLLEGE OPENS.

Grenada College opened its doors for the current session on the morning of Sept. 14th with about the usual boarding patronage and an increased attendance from the town and community. While no canvassing has been done outside the bounds of the Conference which owns the school, there are students present from four States. The faculty remains as announced in the catalogue, and is conceded to be the strongest the college ever had, especially in music.

The opening exercises were especially gratifying. Nothing was left to chance. Rev. W. W. Woollard conducted the worship, his Scripture reading and talk being helpful, and his prayer bringing those present face to face with God. The address of the occasion was delivered by Rev. E. Nash Broyles. With chaste and beautiful English and vigorous and luminous thought, he showed most effectively how liberty is the fruit of virtue and the result of obedience to law.

The new dormitory is open for students, and with its modern equipment it probably furnishes the best living rooms for students in the State. The trustees and members of the Board of Education are conferring with a view to raising money for the school to enable it to make great progress in the next few years. By every token it ought to grow in power and influence each year.

HOW TO REPORT BIBLE CLASSES.

By Charles D. Bulla,
Superintendent of the Wesley Bible Class Department.

It is the duty of the preacher in charge to report to the Fourth Quarterly Conference the "Number of Wesley Bible Classes." A Wesley Bible Class is an adult, senior or intermediate class that has been enrolled in the Wesley Bible Class Department. It need not be named "Wesley," but having been organized according to the plan prescribed by the General Sunday School Board and having received the Certificate of Registration issued by the Wesley Bible Class Department it is a Wesley Class—it bears the surname of the Southern Methodist Bible Class Department. It may now be reported to the Quarterly and Annual Conferences as a Wesley Bible Class.

It is the aim of the Central Office to assist in properly relating all our Bible classes to their own Church and thus guard against the class independence that has embarrassed some denominations.

Our Church provides for reporting only those classes that are enrolled in the Wesley Bible Class Department. (See Pastor's Report, Table II and note). It is very important that pastors, superintendents and teachers report Bible classes to the Central Office and receive the beautiful Certificate of Registration that they may enter into fellowship with all Southern Methodist classes.

Leaflets containing the constitution and the application blank will be sent free upon request. Address the Superintendent of the Wesley Bible Class Department, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

TWO TYPES.

"O, I am almost tired to death!" said a woman who spends half her time addressing club meetings. "Our political economy club has been in session all day, passing resolutions and drawing up petitions demanding a law regulating the price of bread. Only think! Three dollars' worth of flour costs, when baked into bread, thirteen dollars. It's outrageous. We'll all be bankrupt. The bakers must be made to feel the power of the law. You should have been at the meeting."

"I couldn't come; I was too busy," said the calm-faced woman.

"Busy on a club day? What on earth at?"

"Baking bread," said the calm-faced woman.—New York Times.

NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL SECRETARY FOR THE GULF DIVISION.

By Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick.

Who's who in the Sunday school world is quite as interesting as who's who in the realm of big business, and the accompanying picture represents a man whom all the Sunday school folk of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas (comprising the Gulf Division) can now look to as chief.

Mr. Arthur L. Dietrich was appointed to this honorable place at the meeting of the Sunday School Board at Junaluska in July. He is from Baltimore, has filled many such positions before, and comes to the Gulf Division from the Field Secretaryship of the Baltimore Conference, where he was pre-eminently successful. He has lately finished a series of Institutes with Mr. Pepper and his "Flying Squadron" and is now engaged in special Sunday school work in Arkansas.

MR. ARTHUR L. DIETRICH,
Sunday School Field Secretary for Gulf Division.

Dr. Bulla writes: "Brother Dietrich has a genius for organization. He has "ink on his fingers" and knows how to use type to advantage. He is never without a well-defined aim. He masters details. He knows the value of a half-hour and how it is related to eternity. His address is Meridian, Miss."

Mr. Dietrich and Mr. Gladney have some dates in Mississippi before Conference and every Sunday school worker possible should avail himself of the privilege of hearing Mr. Dietrich and of rallying fully to his support. We must give him that hearty welcome, generous backing, and interested hearing that Southerners and Methodists are noted for everywhere.

Meet Mr. Dietrich, write him, invite him to your school, give him data, and after a little time watch the Gulf Division take front rank along all progressive and constructive Sunday school lines.

Fellow Sunday school workers and friends, I have the real pleasure of presenting to you Mr. A. L. Dietrich, Field Secretary of the Gulf Division.

Corinth, Miss., Sept. 15, 1915.

THE METHODIST HOSPITAL AND ELSE.

I wonder if all the Methodists in Mississippi know that they are establishing a great big hospital in Memphis? Already they own the finest lot for the purpose in the city, and when we erect another building and rearrange the one we have, we can truthfully say that we have the most modern, up-to-date hospital in the land.

We want to open soon, but we must build an operating room, install an elevator, and rearrange the rooms in the present building before we can open, and it will take $20,000 to do it. Won't you please send on the cash? A great many people say that as soon as we open the hospital they will give, but we can't begin until we raise the money to do this work. Money is needed now more urgently than ever, and if any one whose eye falls on these lines wants to do a monumental work, let him give an amount sufficient to open the Hospital, and it will open. Send your money, much or little, to Mr. J. R. Pepper, Memphis, Tenn.

St. John's Church moves along slowly. Many of my people are away, and we find it very difficult to keep the Sunday school going on a high tide. I have received 128 members since Conference, 30 of these on profession. Finances are very much behind. Many of my leading men are engaged either in the cotton or lumber business, and the war and rumors of war have depressed business, and practically destroyed it in some quarters.

Conference will soon be here, and we are older than we used to be. T. W. LEWIS.

OPENING OF MANSFIELD AND CENTENARY COLLEGES.

Mansfield and Centenary Colleges have each had the best opening of recent years.

On Sept. 8, Mansfield began the present session with an unusually large enrollment. President Bobbitt is an experienced educator, a practical business man, a born leader, a well trained executive, and, best of all, a consecrated Christian gentleman. Under his wise administration the spacious buildings and beautiful grounds have been modernly equipped with reference to sanitation, convenience, and aesthetic taste. New departments, such as Normal Training, Domestic Science, and Art, have been added to meet the present demands.

The faculty has been carefully selected, from the very best educational institutions of the land, with reference to efficiency and regardless of cost.

The College has its own atmosphere of home life and Christian influence, and is closely associated with our First Church, Mansfield (which is now enlarging its splendid plant with a view to taking care of its Sunday school and young people's work), and with the other Churches of the city. With this excellent equipment and the splendid student-body matriculating, we anticipate a year of unprecedented success for this historic college for women. No parent who has a daughter to send off to school can do better than to send her to our own Mansfield College.

From the beginning of Dr. Wynn's presidency Centenary College has been improving in efficiency. With a gentle, yet steady, firm hand, he has molded the discipline, lifted higher the standards of manly deportment among the students, systematized the work, and led the entire institution into a clearer Christian atmosphere.

With much care and prayer he had planned the work and selected the faculty for the present year, and when the opening hour came at 10 a.m., Wednesday, Sept. 15th, every one present familiar with the history of the institution pronounced it by far the most auspicious opening that Centenary has had in Shreveport. There was a large enrollment of young men and a few young ladies. The friends of the College showed greater interest by the large number of visitors present.

Some of the ministers present were: Geo. S. Sexton, R. W. Tucker, L. N. Hoffpauir, F. R. Power, W. F. Henderson, H. J. Boltz, R. W. Vaughan, John L. Williams.

Dr. Sexton in his usual happy style made the principal address of the occasion, and short talks were made by a number of others.

The new members of the faculty present were: Dr. Sawyer, of Virginia; Prof. Henderson, formerly Head Master of the Fitting School of Millsaps College, and Prof. L. A. Sims.

The outlook indicates that all things are conducive to the best year in Centenary's history.

REV. ABEL HOFFPAUIR.

Rev. Abel Hoffpauir, second son of Isaac Hoffpauir and Eliza Perry Hoffpauir, was born on Sept. 4, 1843.

In the early part of the nineteenth century one of the first Methodist churches ever organized in Southwest Louisiana was organized near where the Indian Bayou Church now stands, and Isaac and Eliza Hoffpauir were charter members of that organization. Isaac Hoffpauir was the first licensed exhorter in that Church, retaining his exhorter's license and membership in that same organization until he passed to his reward in his 78th year.

Abel, the subject of this memoir united with the Church of his father in childhood, but was not converted until Sept. 5, 1870. He was licensed to preach soon after conversion, being the first of the Hoffpauir family to enter the ministry, and the first man licensed to preach in this part of the State. He joined the Louisiana Conference on trial in 1872 or '73, but was never received into full connection. The continuous invalidism of his first wife prevented his attending the sessions of Conference, and on that account he was discontinued; but for many years served regularly on works as a supply.

He was first married to Miss Louisiana Spell on April 14, 1863. After her death he was married to Miss Anna A. Lutz on Jan. 26, 1882. Of both these unions children were born, and several, with his last wife, survive him. His natural gifts as a preacher were of a very high order, his sermons being strong, forceful, convincing, and delivered with a natural grace and oratory which made it easy for him to hold an audience, and he was always listened to with pleasure.

Because of his evangelistic gifts, he was a recognized leader at camp and protracted meetings, and it was perhaps on such occasions that he rose to his highest and best as a preacher. Charles Silvester Horne, says: "I am certain that the soul of the prophet is most powerfully revealed in his prayers." If the above witness is true, then the subject of this sketch had the soul of a prophet, for it was in his public prayers that his soul was most powerfully revealed. They were not ornate nor high-sounding prayers, but natural, simple, direct, giving one the impression that they were the expression of the "soul's sincere desire," uttered earnestly and with living faith.

He fell on sleep and entered into rest on July 25, 1915, lacking only a few days of having been with us 72 years. A short while before he passed away he called his family and all who were present to his bedside and exhorted them, giving them his parting benediction and saying: "Weep not for me, for all is well." His body sleeps in the old Indian Bayou Cemetery where reposes the dust of so many of our departed. We shall meet again, for, as he so often sang:

"Further on in realms of beauty,
Far away on the golden shore,
Pressing on in the line of duty,
We shall meet to part no more."

BACK AGAIN TO SCHOOL.

Back again to school, dears,
Vacation days are done.
You've had your share of frolic,
And lots of play and fun,
You've fished in many a brook, dears,
And climbed up many a hill;
Now back again to school, dears,
To study with a will.

'Tis only dunces loiter
When sounds the school-bell's call,
So fall in ranks, my boys and girls,
And troop in, one and all;
For school is very pleasant,
When, after lots of fun,
Vacation days are over,
And real work has begun.

—Margaret E. Sangster.

TWO FAITHFUL FRIENDS.

In far-off Switzerland I saw the statue of a faithful friend. Long ago it was placed in this village church, and hundreds of years from to-day it will still be there to tell the truthful story.

The town of Zug is near the great St. Gothard Pass, with its peaks all covered with shining ice and heavy banks of snow. Sometimes the sunshine melts them a little, and then great masses go sliding down the mountain side, covering everything in their path.

In the year 1628 the young governor of the province was riding over the St. Gothard Pass, and with him were his favorite servant and pet dog. Right at the top of the pass a swift avalanche came crushing, pouring down; and governor, servant and dog were in an instant buried beneath it.

The dog was the first to shake off the terrible load. He barked and howled and moaned, but could not find his master. After a while he seemed to understand that something had happened to his beloved master, and, with a loud bark, he turned and hurried back to the little inn that he had seen as they passed in the morning. His whines and howls and nervous calls and scratching made the people know that an accident had occurred; and snatching up pickaxes and snow shovels, they followed him. When they reached the place, the faithful dog stopped suddenly, plunged his face in the snow, and began to scratch it up, all the while whining and barking. The men set to work at once, found the poor governor, and dragged him out, and after some more work they rescued the servant. The men were barely alive. They had heard the howling and barking of the dog, noticed his departure, and given up all hope.

The faithful dog almost died from joy when he saw his master's face again, and the grateful master resolved that his dog should never be forgotten. He sent for a great sculptor and told him to make a beautiful statue, that all the world might know of the faithfulness of the dog and the gratitude of the men. There I saw it in the little church at Zug—the marble tomb of the governor and his beloved dog resting at his feet.—The Olive Leaf.

A STRAIGHT LINE.

Robbie was working away at his drawing lesson. Presently the teacher came around to see what progress he was making.

"Look here, Robbie," she said; "that line isn't straight."

"No, it isn't quite straight, I know," answered Robbie, "but I can fix that up later."

"A straight line never needs straightening," said the teacher, quietly, as she turned away to look at the work of another scholar.

That simple remark which the teacher made set Robbie to thinking. "A straight line never needs straightening." How much better, then, to make the line straight, rather than to draw a crooked line, which would have to be straightened afterward. Besides, a line that has been partly rubbed out and then made straight never looks quite so well as a line that is drawn perfectly true and straight the first time. So Robbie made up his mind that hereafter he would try to draw the straight lines straight the first time.

A thing that has been done right does not need to be done over again. When we speak the truth we do not have to stop and correct what we have said. Let us try to do and say things in the right way the first time, and we shall find that life is easier, and we shall make far better progress than when we do or say the wrong thing first. Let us always remember that a "straight line never needs straightening."—Apples of Gold.

A HINT TO TIM.

A prosperous-looking citizen, on a down-town corner in Boston, bought a newspaper from an alert little newsboy, who made change instantly, without speaking a word. But the man lingered: "How many papers do you sell here a night," he said.

"About fifty," said the newsie.

"What is your name?"

"Tim Manning."

"Listen, Tim," said the man. "When I was your age, I had this very corner for a stand. But I sold two hundred papers a night, and I did it by carefully saying 'Thank you' to everyone who bought a paper. I said it loudly so that they would be sure to hear it."

Three evenings later the man came by again, and bought another paper of the little chap on the corner.

"Thank you!" said Tim, not recognizing him.

"How's business?" asked the man.

Then Tim knew him. "I'm selling seventy-five papers every night, sir," he said. "I ain't going to forget that any more, neither," and he grinned all over his honest freckled face.

Tim had learned his first lesson of the value of courtesy to all.—King's Treasuries.

WHAT DOES YOUR FACE SHOW?

By Eugene C. Foster.

A few years ago I received the photograph of a boy friend of mine, who is now away at school. It was an interesting photograph, and I showed it to a number of friends.

"That face shows determination," said the first friend. "What that boy undertakes he will see through. He is no quitter." My friend was right. That boy has the reputation of staying by anything he undertakes until he has accomplished it.

"That's a clean boy—clean morally," said another man.

"How do you know?" I asked.

"Shows it in his face," he replied. "A boy whose thoughts are continually impure or whose life has a muddy stream in it soon betrays it in his face. It may not show right away, but it will show sooner or later."

I told him, too, that he was right, for I knew the boy well and believe he is morally clean.

"That boy is gentle and kind," said a lady to whom I showed the picture. She was right, too. Yet there was a time when this same boy was rough and unkind, and even cruel. His face then didn't show gentleness and kindness.

The more I thought about the photograph, the more I studied the faces of boys as they came before me. What a study it is! Here's a boy who used to have such a fine, manly face; now it looks coarse and heavy. What had happened? Well, it doesn't take much study to find out—many things have come into his life which are hurting him, and his face tells the story.

What does your face show? Be sure that folks are reading it, reading it like a book. Be sure, too, that it shows what is going on inside—in the inner life. The face tells the story of the thought life; the thought life, after all, is the real life.

If, as you look in the glass, your face tells the story of some things you would rather not have folks know about, remember that it isn't the face you need to think about; it's the thing back there in your life that finds reflection in your face. What does your face show?—The Christian Guardian.

"METHODISM IN A NUT SHELL"—WALDO W. MOORE, AUTHOR.

The author of this little book is pastor in the pecan region of the Gulf Coast country, which may account for the title. He has condensed the rich contents of the Discipline, storing it within eight lessons—16 pages. His plan sprang from his desire to lecture his Sunday school class upon our Church, its laws, usages, administration. After selling a number of Disciplines, he set to work to show that he had given a bargain to his customers, young and adult. Many of our people are ignorant of much that Methodism means, how far it spreads in practical value—what a field it has in cultivation. An eminent critic is said to have declared that the Book of Discipline of the Methodist Church was the greatest compendium of law, of its size, to be found anywhere. Every Methodist will be stronger with a reason for the faith that is in him. With his faith drawn from his Bible, the law of his Church acts as reason, holding the light for him to look about with.

This book will instantly prove its value to the reader. It simply and succinctly presents the salient contents of the Discipline—a few lessons, designed when fairly studied, to store the mind for intelligent efficiency. Children, adults, all, were considered by the author in the preparation of his book. W. W. Moore's enthusiasm and consecration are well known to the Mississippi Conference. Through his initiative has resulted more than one enterprise of moment to the Church.

This recent expression from him may easily prove the best he has done. To buy his book and sow it over the Church will prove a lasting benefit.

Write to him at Pascagoula for a copy—the cost is trifling. Then you will want a hundred or two, to leave in the homes of your people. Start classes with it, and stimulate rivalries between young classes and adults. Use it like a spelling book at a bee. You will soon see what comes from exercise like that.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

TIME TO DO SOMETHING.

Bishop A. G. Haygood is credited with having said that the Church ought to enact a law making every man a Doctor of Divinity as soon as he is admitted into the traveling connection. We suppose that the Bishop's reason for making this suggestion was to give some authoritative sanction to the title of "Doctor," which is so generally conferred upon ministers by the public. When we first noted this plan of the great Georgian we were disposed to think that he was extreme, but now since preachers and the Church papers (some of them of a connectional character) have fallen into this title-conferring habit, we are inclined to the view that his scheme ought either to be adopted, or that a law ought to be passed forbidding any Methodist preacher to accept a "Doctor's degree" and requiring him to take a vow to call down severely any person who dares thus to dub him. This might result in giving us a good many "militant parsons," but in this day when an effeminate and servile "pacifism" is being so widely preached it might not hurt matters to infuse a more virile spirit into our itinerant ranks.

This much ought, however, to be said in favor of the Church journals complained of above: there are now so many "Doctors of Divinity" that it is very difficult to keep them all in mind, and that giving the degree to persons to whom it does not belong is far less liable to give offense than to omit it in the case of individuals upon whom it has been collegiately bestowed. Undoubtedly some allowance ought to be made for journalistic expediency in this age in which diplomacy so universally reigns.

But unquestionably something ought to be done toward the solution of this perplexing problem as to when to give and when to withhold this ministerial distinction. How would it do to have the General Conference to elect a Secretary of Degrees and make him get out a Methodist "Who's Who" annually that would contain full information on this and kindred subjects? Of course, at this time when there is so much opposition to the multiplication of secretaryships and all other forms of officialism it might be very difficult to get the General Conference to take this step; but if we "progressives" would press the matter energetically we might possibly overcome the old-fogyism that so unhappily persists among us and win for our Church the proud distinction of blazing the way in this new field of service. Provision could be made for sending a copy of this "Who's Who" free of charge to every preacher and Church paper by levying an assessment on the Annual Conferences; and the publication ought to be offered to the general public at a very low price. Of course, the Secretary of this new department would be expected to attend the Conferences and represent its important interests to them in public addresses.

All this is merely suggestive. If any other brother has a better plan, we should be pleased to hear from him on the subject.

A BRIGHT OUTLOOK AT EMORY UNIVERSITY

The Methodist News Bureau (Nashville) sent out last week the following statement:

"Two departments of Emory University—the College of Liberal Arts, Oxford, and the Candler School of Theology, Atlanta—opened September 15. At Emory College the enrollment went one-third beyond last year's figures, the number of new students being unusually large. At Oxford the chief address on opening day was delivered by Bishop W. A. Candler, Chancellor of the University. The School of Theology has an enrollment double that at the beginning of the first year, the student body representing eighteen States and one foreign country. This, especially in view of the fact that our other School of Theology will open at Dallas this week, is a splendid showing. Many other students could be enrolled in each of these schools if sufficient loan and help funds were provided."

This is, indeed, gratifying news. Such an increase in the number of students over last year, in view of the stringent financial condition prevailing in the South, is most remarkable. The progress made in establishing Emory University, under the guiding hand of our capable Educational Commission, has been phenomenal, and is without a parallel in the educational history of the Southern States.

In commenting editorially upon the fine opening of Emory University, The Atlanta Journal of September 16 said:

"There is broad significance in the fact that six foreign countries are represented in the autumn enrollment of Emory University. At the very outset this institution is reaching into lands across the sea and making the South an international factor in education. It has been predicted that the conditions and consequences of the European war will shift the center of scholastic interests from the Old World to the New. Certain it is that hundreds, perhaps thousands, of Latin-American students who formerly went to Europe for higher education will come to the United States, and there is good reason to think that many of them can be brought to the South. This at least is the South's opportunity and obligation. It is cheering to note that Emory University already is making itself felt in this regard. As time goes on, Emory, and Oglethorpe, and other Southern universities will exert a wider and wider influence in the education of the world."

COLUMBIA, ON THE PEARL.

It was the Editor's privilege to spend last Sunday in Columbia, Miss., where he went to fill the pulpit of the Methodist Church for Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, the pastor, who was away assisting in a meeting at Ellisville. We were greeted by a fine audience at 11 o'clock a.m., who seemed to give close attention to the discourse, and, as there was no other service in town, the congregation at the evening hour was still larger, filling the main auditorium and a considerable portion of the Sunday school room. The singing by both the choir and the congregation was exceptionally good and exerted a genuinely helpful influence. What an inspiration there is in sacred song if it is kept true to the great end it is designed to accomplish!

Columbia is the county-seat of Marion County and claims a population of about 3000. It is admirably situated on the bank of the Pearl River, which in that section of Mississippi is a beautiful stream of considerable width, and is navigable. It has nice stores and streets, many attractive homes, a neat court-house, and two substantial public school buildings. Three Christian denominations are represented there—Methodist, Baptist, and Presbyterian—and their houses of worship are tasteful and creditable. Methodism is strong, having a membership of about 400, which embraces many of the leading citizens of the community. The Sunday school enrollment is around 300; the school is splendidly organized in every respect, and has a Men's Bible Class which numbers more than 80. The superintendent is Mr. W. E. Lampton, who has long been in the harness, and who is loved and honored by all who know him. The young people have an active Epworth League and the woman's missionary work is in a flourishing condition.

Our new church in Columbia is one of the most up-to-date and serviceable religious edifices in the Mississippi Conference. One is somewhat disappointed upon first viewing it from the outside, but not so upon entering it. It is handsomely finished, is spacious and finely arranged, contains a large number of classrooms, and, so far as we could see, lacks nothing necessary to make its equipment thoroughly modern and complete. It is a brick structure and cost between $20,000 and $25,000. On an adjoining lot is the parsonage, which is a two-story building of pleasing appearance, and which matches the church well.

While we were in Columbia, every possible kindness was shown us, and we acknowledge ourself specially indebted to Brother Alfred Evans, Brother T. S. Ford, Brother W. H. Austin (a worthy son of Carroll County, who formerly resided at Vaiden), and Sister Sharbrough and the other inmates of the parsonage, where we were entertained, for their attention and courtesies. We desire also to thank Brother W. E. Barnes for the fine service which he rendered the Advocate in securing for it before our arrival a list of 31 subscribers. We shall not soon forget his kindness. We, of course, missed Brother Sharbrough and felt a sense of loss in not having him with us. We heard his praises spoken on every side. He has undoubtedly accomplished great things for Methodism in his present field and ought to be happy in seeing the Master's work prospering to such an extent in his hands.

There are a number of places of historic interest about Columbia and we regretted not to be able to tarry long enough to visit them, but the work in the office was urgently calling us; so we boarded the train on "The Great Northern", at 4:40 a.m. on Monday morning and by 9 o'clock were again at our desk. The heat was terrific, and the trip and pulpit work were, under the circumstances, somewhat fatiguing; but we are glad to have had the privilege of spending a Sabbath with our people in Marion County's interesting Capital, and we hope that we may have the pleasure of meeting them again at some time in the future.

OUR ORPHANAGE "WORK DAYS."

Let all of our pastors and people keep in mind the "Work Days" of the Louisiana and Mississippi Methodist Orphanages. In Louisiana the day named is Saturday, October 9, and the day appointed in Mississippi is Saturday, October 16. Every one is urged to give at least as much as he earns by a single day's work to the maintenance of the Orphanage supported by his Conference. It is to be hoped that attention will be publicly called to "Work Day" in all of our churches and Sunday schools, and that it will be generally observed. Make the announcement next Sunday, and begin to get things in readiness to make a success of these occasions. Much depends upon this.

A CHANGE OF SUPERINTENDENTS.

As was announced in the Advocate last week, Rev. W. M. Williams has resigned as Manager of the Mississippi Methodist Orphanage at Jackson, Miss., and Rev. J. B. Randolph, our pastor at Kosciusko, has been chosen to succeed him. Brother Williams had been in charge of that institution for a number of years, and it steadily grew under his administration, until to-day it is one of the best equipped plants of the kind in the South. Indeed, his work has been of a monumental character, and will abide through decades to come.

We had hoped to present our readers with a picture of Brother Randolph and a brief sketch of his life this week, but were unable to secure the necessary material in time. We hope to do this later, however. We wish to assure the Methodists of Mississippi that, in our judgment, the Orphanage Board has made an admirable selection in naming Brother Randolph for this responsible position. He is kind-hearted, well educated, practical, and is said to possess considerable financial and executive ability. He is 44 years of age. Let the Methodists of Mississippi rally at once to his support and aid in carrying this noble institution forward to still larger things.

SOUTH CAROLINA DRY.

By a majority of approximately 20,000, South Carolina last week voted to take her place in the growing list of prohibition States. After having tried the open dramshop and the dispensary, she has come to the conclusion that the wisest course is to forbid entirely the sale of intoxicating liquors. The new law will go into effect on January 1, 1916. "On with the battle!"

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

All of the $500,000 which the city of Atlanta has pledged to Emory University will be used in the construction of buildings.

It is stated that all of our Annual Conferenees held so far have reported a larger gain in membership than they did last year.

Dr. John M. Moore, Secretary of the Board of Missions for the Home Field, is expeeted to visit New Orleans soon in the interest of our mission work here.

Our new church at De Ridder, La., where Rev. W. S. Henry is the popular pastor, is nearing completion. It is stated that it will cost approximately $13,000.

After a pleasant vacation, Rev. A. C. McCorkle is again at his post at Tunica, Miss. His work is progressing favorably, and he received a new member into the Church last Sunday.

Dr. H. G. Henderson, of Sardis, Miss., assisted Rev. W. R. Goudelock in a six days' meeting at Crenshaw, Miss., last week. The Church was greatly revived and there were 15 additions to its membership.

The Methodist News Bureau says that the Book Committee will not meet to elect a successor to the late Dr. Gross Alexander until iate in Oetober. The Book Committee will elect the new official, and his name will go to the Coilege of Bishops for confirmation at their fall meeting.

Mrs. S. J. Bossier, a refined and cultured Methodist widow of this city, desires a position as a housekeeper, mother's helper, or to do sewing. The best of references will be furnished. Her address is 1026 Tchoupitoulas Street, New Orleans, La.

Rev. J. W. Ramsey, of Heidelberg, Miss., writes: "Everything is moving along smoothly in this charge. I think that the salaries of the pastor and presiding elder will be paid in full. So far, the work has gone beyond my expeetations in almost every partieular."

We received last Tuesday a cashier's check for $1.50 on the Bank of Bienville, at Bienville, La., witheut any accompanying letter to tell from whom it came. The sender will please communicate with the Advocate office at once. The envelope was postmarked Bienville, La.

The Midland Methodist of September 15 says: "Bishop W. B. Murrah, of Memphis, will assist Bishop Waterhouse in holding the Holston Conference at Knoxville, Tenn., next month. A recent report from Los Angeles is not very encouraging as to Bishop Waterhouse's eondition."

Rev. Hugh Jamieson, who for the past three years has been assistant pastor of the First Methodist Church of New Orleans, expects to enter Centenary College this fall and complete his course at that institution, in which he was formerly a student. He will go, later, to one of our Theological Schools.

Dr. Felix R. Hill was an appreciated visitor at the Advocate office last Saturday, coming in with Dr. McMurry, the two heing special friends. Dr. Hill always brings sunshine with him, and to oe associated with him even for a brief season is a great privilege. The Doctor is enjoying his pastorate at "Old Felicity."

Rev. W. T. Woodward, of Sicily Island, La., says: "I desire through the Advocate to thank the ten persons who responded to my request coneerning a physician desiring a change of loeation. I have sent all the letters reeeived to him. He will answer them soon. The community that secures his serviees will be fortunate."

Rev. R. A. Ellis, of Yazoo City, Miss., an honored veteran of the North Mississippi Conference, recently visited Memphis, and while there was the guest at dinner of Rev. J. M. Huggin, another North Mississippi superannuate, who resides in the Bluff City. Brother Huggin's health is stated to be comparatively good, hut Brother Ellis is reported to be somewhat feebie.

Rev. M. L. White, of Flora, Miss., sends us the following note concerning his work: "Our meetings have been successful. We closed the one recently held under a brush arbor at Vernon with 30 accessions and the organization of a Sunday school. We have a good prospect for a church or tabernacle there, and a camp meeting may be established in the near future."

We are indebted to the following friends, whose kindness has not been mentioned elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions to the Advocate sent in since our last issue: Rev. R. M. Brown, Algiers, La., 6; Rev. J. R. Roy, Gilbert, La., 2; Rev. E. S. Lewis, Oxford, Miss., 2; Rev. W. B. Alsworth, Perth, Miss, 2; Rev. A. J. Henry, Wheeler, Miss., 3; Rev. W. C. Carlisle, Guntown, Miss., 2.

Rev. J. J. Kelly, of Hammond, La., gives us a good list of subscribers, and in his business letter appends the following note: "We have had up to the present time 70 accessions to the Church. I took a collection for the benevolent claims yesterday and received $50. Of the ten denominations represented in Hammond, ours leads in membership and Sunday school attendance. We have had a gracious year spiritually."

Brother S. E. Kirby, who has been singing for the brethren in Mississippi in revival meetings for several months, writes: "I am now making Brookhaven, Miss., my headquarters, having placed my membership in the Methodist Church here. Any of the brethren desiring my serviees in meetings may address me at this piace." Those who have had Brother Kirby with them as a chorister speak in terms of high appreciation of his work.

The pastor being away, the pulpit of the Coliseum Baptist Church of New Orleans has been filled for several weeks by Rev. W. G. Evans. Brother Evans, who resides here, is a local preacher in our Church. He is a son of Dr. C. F. Evans, of Kentucky, who is well known in Louisiana and Mississippi, and was formerly a member of the Louisiana Conference. He is an energetic Christian worker and a forceful expositor of the Word.

A correspondent at Greenville, Miss., wrote us a few days ago as follows: "Rev H. S. Spragins, presiding eider of the Greenville Distriet, occupied the pulpit of the First Methodist Church here last Sunday (Sept. 12) and preached a sermon of remarkable power and brilliancy. It produced a profound impression and was widely commented upon." Brother Spragins' work on the Greenville District has been in every respect of a very high order.

Writing under date of Septemher 14, Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick, of Corinth, Miss., says: "I will leave to-morrow to fill engagements in institute work in the Texas Conference, which will begin at Texarkana and close at Palestine, and which will occupy me about a month. I am hoping to be able to attend the session of the North Mississippi Conference in New Albany in Deeemher, but I eannot yet tell for a certainty whether this will he possible."

The Western Virginia Conference has adopted the Methodist Laymen's Herald as its official organ, and made an assessment of $2000 to pay the salary and traveling expenses of the editor. The name of the paper has heen changed to Methodist-Advocate, and the Western Virginia Conference field has been purchased from the Central Methodist-Advocate, Lexington, Ky., which has changed its name to Central Methodist. Rev. W. I. Canter has been elected editor of the Western Virginia Conference paper.

Funeral services for the late Dr. Gross Alexander, editor of the Methodist Review, were held on the afternoon of September 15 in Broadway Church, Louisville. The services were conducted hy Dr. S. M. Miller, assisted hy Drs. R. W. Browder, Frank M. Thomas, A. P. Lyon, and F. S. Parker. Among those from Nashville who went to Louisville, in addition to Dr. Parker, were Dr. Thomas N. Ivey, Editor of the Christian Advocate; Dr. John M. Moore, Home Mission Secretary; and Dr. Stonewall Anderson, Secretary of Edueation.

Dr. W. F. McMurry, Secretary of our General Board of Church Extension, tarried in New Orleans for some time last Saturday. He favored the Advocate office with a call and the Editor had the pleasure of lunching with him at the noon hour. Dr. McMurry was en route to Gulfport, Miss., where he spent the Sahbath with Rev. N. B. Harmon. We know of no man in the Chureh who magnifies his office more than this genial and energetic eonnectional officer. The influenee of his Board is felt wherever our forces are operating, and he is doing a great work for Southern Methodism.

Rev. W. M. Williams, who has lately resigned the position of Manager of the Methodist Orphans' Home at Jackson, Miss., writes that he will assist Rev. J. B. Randolph, the new manager, until he gets moved and becomes acquainted with the work. Brother Williams expects to reside in Jackson until the meeting of the Mississippi Conference, unless some work should open to him elsewhere before that time. He requests us to state that, until further notice, correspondens may continue to address him at Jackson. Brother Randolph was expected to move from Kosciusko to the Orphanage on Wednesday of this week.

Rev. A. H. Williams, of Shannon, Miss., has sent us a report of his meeting at that place, which reached us too late for this issue, but which will be printed next week. He was assisted by Rev. S. A. Brown, of Okolona, to whom, in a personal note to the Editor, Brother Williams makes the following reference: "You ought to see Brown eat chicken. My! he is surely an expert, but he can also preach, and is some 'chicken' himself." We have seen Brother Brown dispatch the 'yellow legs' in the days agone, and we cannot but wonder, after reading Brother Williams' note, if it can be possible that he has grown in grace in this respeet.

In a communication to our office, Mrs. R. F. Harrell, of Centreville, Miss., says: "Our work here is not at a standstill by any means. Seed are being sown all the time and visible results are manifesting themselves. Our greatest joy is in our work with the young people; they are so responsive and full of enthusiasm. We have a flourishing Epworth League composed of members of three denominations, and it is an inspiration to attend the devotional services on Sunday afternoons." Brother and Sister Harrell have wrought nobly in their present field, and the latter is performing a fine service for the Church through the Woman's Missionary Department of the Advocate, which she edits so ereditably.

Rev. J. L. Williams, our accomplished pastor at Greenwood, La., writes us for sample copies of the Advocate for distribution, and states that he will preach next Sunday on "The Place of the New Orleans Christian Advocate in the Program of Louisiana Methodism." Brother Williams is striking out in the right direction. We should be glad to send to any pastor in our patronizing territory sample eopies of the Advocate and a list of our snbscribers in his charge. In writing for the latter, however, all the post-offices in a pastor's work should he given, as we who are in the office do not know how the churches have been grouped in forming the circuits. Let every preacher find out who takes the paper in his field and lend us a helping hand in keeping up its circulation.

Rev. T. B. Cottrell, of Tylertown, Miss., writes: "We have recently closed our revival meetings at China Grove and Tylertown, the preaching being done at both places hy Rev. W. B. Hogg, of Meridian, Miss. He is a gifted revivalist and gave universal satisfaction to hoth congregations. We received 20 members on profession of faith. Rev. Robert Selby, our presiding elder, was with us last Saturday and Sunday (Sept. 3 and 4) to hold our third quarterly conference, and preached two strong sermons, to the delight of the large audienees that heard them." Brother Cottrell has lately been taking care of the interests of the Advocate in his charge with gratifying success. He gave us 9 subscribers a few weeks ago, and his last letter brought us 8 new and 7 renewal subseriptions. We scarcely need to say that we appreciate this fine work in behalf of the Conference organ.

TO OUR PREACHERS.

The management of this Advocate has decided to let our preachers and agents offer six months trial subseriptions at 50 cents during August, September and Octoher. This offer will be withdrawn on the 10th of November, 1915. Suhscriptions must he sent in in clubs and money orders used in making remittanees so as to save expense.

In soliciting new subscribers, please explain to them that the six months' subscriptions are taken with the understanding that, after their expiration, the regular rate of $1.50 will be charged for annual subseriptions unless they are ordered canceled.

We are making this offer for a three-foid purpose:

First—To build up our subscription list before the annual meeting of the Publishing Committee.

Second—To get funds to help tide us over the summer and fall months.

Third—To induce our Methodist people to take the Conferenee Organ and read it.

JOSEPH A. SMITH was born in Wilkinson County, Miss., on March 25, 1841, and died on Novemher 20, 1914. He was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at the age of 17 years, and was a faithful and loyal member until his death. Brother Smith was a licensed exhorter for many years and did great good in his community, not only by his earnest words of exhortation, but also hy his pure, clean, and upright life. He was a Confederate soldier and served faithfully in the Virginia Army until he was wounded. Brother Smith raised a large family, which he leaves, with his aged wife, to mourn their loss. Uncle Joe, as he was familiarly known, was a good citizen, a true neighbor, a devoted husband, and a loving father. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord."

W. W. SIMMONS.

CLYDE JONES was born on Feh. 27, 1902, and died at Magee, Miss., on Aug. 16, 1915. Our hearts were made sad when, on August 16, the death angel visited our home and claimed our dear boy. Our sad and grievous loss was his eternal gain. Clyde's death casts a deep gloom over our hearts and lives, which it seems that time can never efface. But our consolation is that God does all things for the best. Our chain here on earth is broken, yet it is a pleasure to think that we have a link in heaven. Clyde was always faithful in all that he attempted to do. He was diligent in attendance at Sunday school and was always kind and sweet to his mother, never failing to kiss her good-night, always promising her a bright future. It is sweet to think that there is one waiting at the gates of pearl to welcome me home. His mother, Mrs. MARY JONES.

On July 30, 1915, in the lonely cemetery, amid the singing oaks and sighing pines near the Holly Grove Church in Simpson County, we laid to rest the remains of Brother GEORGE W. BELL, one of the pillars of Methodism—a valuable hranch of the Church of the living God. Brother Bell was born on Nov. 16, 1847, and joined the Methodist Church at old Gum Springs on August, 1868. He was first married to Miss Missoura Elizabeth Benton in January, 1873, and of this union several children were horn. She died on March 31, 1903. He was married the second time to Mrs. Jannie Bunkly in 1905. After a life of considerable usefulness as a father, hushand, hrother, and a memher of the church, age and disease kissed his weary eyelids down in peaceful sleep to await the resurrection. He was a faithful steward in the Church for 45 years. To the several children whose hearts are sorely bereaved, and his companion whose love lies with the silent body upon yonder brow, we say weep not, but look for the coming of the Lord of hosts at the sound of whose voice he shall come again.

W. B. WALDROP, P. C.

NATHANIEL ROBERT CARRINGTON was born on June 18, 1822, in North Carolina. He came to this State with his parents in early childhood, and spent the last fifty years of his life at the old homestead He was a success in his chosen occupation of farming, earning an ample competency before reaching the years of his dotage. He was married to Eliza A. Petty on December 18. 1844, and of this union eleven children were horn. The wife of his youth and eight children preceded him to the hetter land many years ago. He united with the M. E. Church, South, at the age of 25, and lived a consistent member of the same for a period of sixty-seven years, always contributing liberally to any benevolent cause. It was the writer's privilege to visit him often during the last few months of his life, and in him he found the words of the prophet verified: "And the evening time shall he sweet." He often spoke of the great opportunities which young people have of serving the Master and his Church, and expressed his regret at not having done more. He died on August 17, 1915, just 21 years after the death of his first wife, and was buried in the old family cemetery. He leaves a wife, one son, and two daughters to mourn their loss.

J. A. COLEMAN.

Mrs. J. M. WRIGHT (nee Green) was born at Vienna, in Lincoln Parish, La., on Oct. 17, 1853, and died in her home at Alexton, La., August 16, 1915, being 61 years 9 months and 29 days old. She was married to J. Monroe Wright on August 31, 1876. Of this union were horn eleven children, two of whom are dead. Sister Wright was a devoted member of the M. E. Church, South, for more than 40 years. She loved her ministers and was never satisfied unless they came often to see her, and her home was a place where every one was made to feel welcome. She impressed all with her beautiful life of love and service. She was fond of home and loved her children and could never do enough for them. She had suffered for a year with an internal cancer of the head and all that loving hands could do was of no avail; and having passed through the valley of the shadow of death, she came to the border-land of eternal life with her faith strong in Christ, whom she had served from girlhood. Those who waited upon her during her long illness were impressed with her saintly character. Dear husband and children, weep not, hut rather lahor to enter into that rest that remaineth for the people of God.

Her son-in-law,

H. WADE CUDD.

On the morning of September 10, the death angel came into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith and took away two of their darling little girls—WILLMA, aged about 10 years, who died at 5 o'clock in the morning, and FANNIE SUE, aged 8 years, at 10 o'clock. They were sick only a few days and everything that the faithful physician and gentle nurse, as well as the kind neighbors and loved ones, could do, was done. These little ones had scarcely ventured out on their journey through this world when Jesus bade them come unto him and enjoy a home where they would not know sorrow or pain. They were unusually hright children; their faces were full of sunshine and they were always ready with a smile. They were favorites with their playmates, and when it became known that they must depart from this world these little friends gathered together and talked of their loss and sorrow. The interment was made in Poplar Springs Cemetery, services being conducted hy the Rev. Mr. Mason. A number of friends and relatives were present when those two little white coffins were placed in the same box and lowered into the grave. Those present had before them one of the saddest pictures that an eye ever beheld. May their translation lead them into a larger service for their Lord and Master throughout eternity, and may God's grace sustain the bereaved ones in this hour of sadness!

JACKSON JOTTINGS.

Dear Doctor Meek:

Our splendid new church, the Galloway Memorial, will be ready for an Annual, or even a General Conference, in the near future. The great and appreciative congregation are happy. They now worship in the Sunday school auditorium; the doors of the different classrooms being folded back so as to greatly increase the seating capacity. The two tiers of galleries add much to the comfort of the great congregations. We have many very pious people and the atmosphere is perfumed with the sweet incense of devout worship. Our people sing with the spirit and with the understanding also.

Last Sunday was "Missionary Day," and the pastor had arranged to have the Rev. Mr. Archibald, Missionary Secretary of the North Alabama Conference, to be with us to preach in the morning and to lecture in the evening. But we were disappointed because he failed to come. A telegram explained why he could not fill the engagement. But the pastor was resourceful. He filled his pulpit at 11 a.m., and with the aid of that eminent Christian educator, Dr. J. M. Sullivan, he also made the evening service one of unusual interest.

I like Dr. Sam Steel's style of writing. He writes with what Chas. F. Deems, whom I loved in the old days, was pleased to call "a freeality." I had the pleasure of hearing a series of beautiful and edifying lectures from his silver tongue at Tuscaloosa when my son-in-law was pastor there. He made the Bible the palace of a king and of the rooms he had much to say. His word-painting of the Psalms—the "Music Room"—beggared all description. Excuse my digression.

If I were to tell of the things that impress me here in Jackson, I would omit the great business houses, the banks, the Capitol, and other public buildings, and point to the charitable institutions—the sanitarium, the hospitals, the Old Ladies' Home, the provision made for the deaf, the dumb, the halt, and the blind.

Our Methodist women—God bless them—have so many wireless stations that they can hear a groan or a sigh in the remote parts of the city; and sympathetic chords are touched as telephone after telephone spreads the tidings and the sorrowing cease to sigh and the disconsolate soul "hopes in God." The systematic service of our city is unsurpassed.

The suggestion and inspiration of these jottings was the Methodist Orphanage of the Mississippi Conferences. Nothing so appeals to my religious nature as the helpless, motherless, fatherless, poorly-clad, hungry child. I rejoice to see the aged cared for, and happy in their religious experiences, but they are going out, many to be ministering spirits, while the dear boys and girls, deprived of the home comforts and cheering environments, need to receive the civilizing effects of soap, water, and towel; neat, clean clothing, "a little bit of love," a new environment, a new inspiration, to prepare them to start out in the great army to contend against the enemies of thrift, of usefulness, of service, and of triumph. To know all about the Orphanage—its numbers, its farm, its crops, its stock, and the various phases of its work—one should subscribe to and read that most interesting little paper, "Our Home."

HAS RESIGNED.

On September 8, Mr. R. A. Maddox sent Dr. H. F. Tolle, of Biloxi, Miss., President of the Mississippi Conference Sunday School Board, the following letter of resignation:

Dear Brother Tolle: I beg to submit to the Mississippi Conference Sunday School Board, through you, my resignation as Field Secretary for the Conference, asking that you accept same to take effect on the 15th day of September, 1915.

In doing this I am not withdrawing my interest and love for the Sunday school work of our Church and Conference. I shall as a member of the Sunday School Board be ready and willing at all times to do all I can for the work.

I am sure it will be asked why I resigned, and to prevent promiscuous speculation, I wish to give my reason for resigning. It is not because of any friction in the Board, nor because I have a distaste for the work—I love it. Not because the work is not needed—it surely is. But I am resigning wholly because the Church has not properly supported and stood by me in the work. * * * *

I began the work in this Conference as the first Field Secretary, and I have worked hard and great good has been accomplished, and the work needs to go on. I rejoice that I have had an opportunity to do this work in God's vineyard for three years and fifteen days.

I certainly thank the Board for standing by me in the work, and the others in the Conference who have always been ready to lend a word of encouragement. As the work in our Conference is so badly needed, I hope and pray that the Board will be able to secure a good man for the place. And if the Board should do this, I earnestly beg of you as members of the Conference and the Methodist Church to stand by him, whoever he may be. The work is not easy but hard, and it is as great as it is hard.

I will be engaged in school work after September 20, at the Forest Hill Consolidated School, six miles from Jackson, Miss. My address will be Jackson, Miss., R. F. D. No. 1. At any time I can assist any one in the Sunday school work, I shall indeed be glad to do so. Don't forget to pray for me in my work as a teacher.

Yours for the Cause,

R. A. MADDOX.

APPRECIATORY RESOLUTIONS.

(Resolutions adopted by the third quarterly conference of the Natchitoches (La.) Charge, M. E. Church, South, in session September 5, 1914, and read to the congregation at the evening service of the same day and endorsed by a rising vote.)

Whereas the connection of Brother H. W. Stopher with this body is being severed by his removal to Baton Rouge; therefore be it

Resolved, That we desire to express our very sincere regret over the serious gap that is being made in our ranks by Brother Stopher's removal. For a number of years he has rendered most faithful and efficient service in every department of our work. He has never failed to respond to every call of his Church and the cause of our Master. He has bound himself to us in the cords of love and Christian fellowship, and will be sorely missed in all our meetings.

Be it further Resolved, That we heartily commend him to the Methodists of Baton Rouge and congratulate them upon this distinct gain to their ranks; that we assure Brother Stopher that he will be followed by our prayers and best wishes for his spiritual and temporal welfare.

Be it further Resolved, That we spread these resolutions upon our minutes and furnish a copy to the New Orleans Christian Advocate and Natchitoches papers, with a request for publication.

Signed: Paul M. Brown, J. C. Monroe, J. T. Sandlin.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

"The Pupil, the Teacher, and the School," by Barclay, is the title of the first book of the first year's course for teachers in our Sunday schools. The cost of the book is 42 cents, postpaid. Order from Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn.

Several of our schools have been waiting for this new book so they could organize their teacher-training classes. One good plan is to have the teachers in one class to themselves, then select a group of young people for another class that shall recite the lesson during the Sunday school hour. The main thing is to have the classes begin the work and continue until they get their certificates.

Our well organized schools must lead in this teacher-training work, for no school can claim to be first-class without a teacher-training circle. We must train teachers by the thousands. We have waited long enough, and while we have been delaying this work, thousands have perished all around us because we did not know how to reach them. The heart-breaking cry comes up from all quarters, "Oh, if we only had teachers, we could have a real Sunday school!" Let us organize a hundred classes before the first of December in answer to the deep need of our people and in answer to the call of God.

Mr. A. L. Dietrich, our Divisional Secretary, will be with us from October 13th to November 1st helping in institute work. Mr. Dietrich is a man of culture, consecration, and wide experience in Sunday school work. We will discuss the most vital topics pertaining to the efficiency of our Sunday schools in a practical and helpful way. Lessons in Bible study will be given that we may know the Book better and love it more. These meetings are designed to deepen the spiritual life of all who attend.

Spend an hour in honest prayer for these institutes and it will be easier to give a day to attend them. Write to the pastor of the church where the institute is to be held that you are coming for one day. Preachers, superintendents, teachers, and all who want to do more effective work should come.

Murine is prepared by our Physicians, as used for many years in their practice, now dedicated to the Public and sold by Your Druggist. Try Murine to Refresh, Cleanse, and Strengthen Eyes after exposure to Strong Sunlight, Wind and Dust and to restore healthful tone to Eyes Reddened and made Sore by Overwork and Eye Strain.

Some broadminded Physicians use and recommend Murine while others perhaps jealous of its Success, talk and rush into print in opposition; those whose Eyes need care can guess why, as there is no Prescription fee in Murine. Just hand your Druggist 50c and you have a Complete Pkg. Eye Book—Murine—Dropper—and Cork Screw—ready for use. Try it in your Eyes and in Baby's Eyes for Eye Troubles—No Smarting—Just Eye Comfort. Write for Book of the Eye Free.

KOSCIUSKO, MISS.

The retirement of Rev. J. B. Randolph as pastor of the Methodist Church here came as a surprise to his membership and the people generally. At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Orphans' Home in Jackson, he was selected as its manager and will leave for his new position in a few days. Brother Randolph, after a pastorate of nine months here, has endeared himself to all the people, who naturally regret to see him leave from among them. He is a Christian gentleman in every sense of the word, and both he and his good wife are effective workers in the vineyard of the Lord. That their new position and surroundings may be both pleasant and profitable to them, is the wish and hope of their friends. The vacancy here caused by his removal will be filled by Rev. C. D. McGehee, a recent graduate of Vanderbilt University, who, with his wife, will be here this week. He comes highly recommended as a gentleman and scholar, and will receive a hearty welcome here.—Kosciusko Courier.

IT IS A SAD SIGHT

to see the face of a pretty girl made unsightly by scaly patches or ugly pimples. We would pity such, were it not so easy to rid the skin of these disorders. Tetterine quickly and permanently ends rough, scaly patches, pimples, eczema, tetter, ringworm, itch, etc., and all cutaneous affections. It is certain to result satisfactorily. 50c at druggist's or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

MANY FAILURES ARE DUE TO HEADACHES.

A headache saps your energy and ambition. It kills your vigor and vitality.

Many have become not only nervous wrecks, but business and domestic failures, owing to the constant drain on their nervous system by headaches.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have for the past quarter of a century proved to be the popular relief for headaches and other forms of pain. They bring the desired relief surely and quickly. They contain no habit-forming drugs and have no bad after-effects.

People who have used them are only too glad to testify to their merits so that others may also be free from pain.

The Rev. J. A. Riley, of Trout, La., has the following to say:

"For over 10 years I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills whenever I was in need of a remedy for pain, to allay fever or induce a natural sleep. I also find that they quiet the nerves. I have used them freely in my family to the exclusion of all other remedies and have always found them to do their work to perfection and never in a single instance have they had any bad after-effects. I heartily recommend them as a safe, pleasant and effective remedy."

Dr. Miles' anti-Pain Pills are sold by all druggists at 25c for 25 doses. Your money will be returned if they are not found perfectly satisfactory.

"DEATH CANCELS THE DEBT."

Werlein Piano Club Member Dies in Lake Charles.

This clause in the "club" contract has saved many a family the struggle with debt which comes after the "provider" has gone.

Sirs: This comes to notify you of the death of my husband, which occurred Aug. 16, 1915. According to your contract all payments for the piano ceased at his death, as his account had never been in arrears.

Mrs. Geo. M. Hunter,
Lake Charles, La.

Dear Madam:

We are in receipt of your letter of August 19th advising us of the death of the Rev. Geo. M. Hunter.

We have looked up his account and find that the Rev. Mr. Hunter joined the Werlein Piano Club on June 6th, 1913, and that he paid his dues at all times punctually, never having gone behind a single month.

We agree with the members of our Piano Club that where they make their payments promptly every month that we will voluntarily make a present of the unpaid portion of the Piano to the family in the event of death.

We now take very great pleasure in handing you a receipted bill for this Piano which we hope you will appreciate, as a further indication of the loving care shown by your departed husband whose foresight even after his death relieves you of this considerable debt.

Yours very truly,

PHILIP WERLEIN, LTD.

A NEW CLUB IS NOW FORMING.

The $400 Werlein is $292. The payments are $6 monthly. We will be pleased to have the applications of those interested in providing the home with a good, dependable piano sold on the most liberal contract ever offered. Write or call on

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S MISSIONARY CONFERENCE.

The Young People's Missionary Conference of the Winona, Holly Springs, and Durant Districts was held in Durant, August 14-16, 1915. A splendid delegation of young people were there. Too much cannot be said of the careful preparation for the meeting by Miss Louise Beall, president of the Young People's Society and Mrs. R. L. Cooper, first vice president of the Adult Axiliary. Beautiful words of welcome were brought us by Mrs. Geo. S. Beall, Jr., and Miss Ethel Moore. Miss Maie Paulk of Valden, in her happy way, gave the response.

It was, indeed, a blessing to be present, to see those young people take part in discussions, lead the devotional services, and preside over public meetings. Their discussions showed that they were seeking to become efficient workmen. Miss Katie Lou Countiss presented "The Ideals of the Young People's Missionary Society." Miss Margaret Leach, of Holly Springs, gave a forceful paper on "The Value of Mission Study." "The Standard of Excellence" was discussed by Miss Winnie Bennett, of Vaiden. Mrs. Leslie Johnson, of Lexington, told of "Our Funds and Where They Go for 1915." Miss Gladys Bryan stirred us by "The Appeal of the Past to the Youth of To-day." Miss Bonnie Lynn Allen stressed "The Personal Side of a Girl's Religion." Miss Zubie Dunn, of Eupora, told "How to Maintain Interest in an Auxiliary." Especial mention should be made of the devotional service conducted by Miss Marie Brown of Durant, whose subject was "Give." The sunrise prayer meeting led by Miss Vera Herbert of Durant, who chose Christ's great prayer for his disciples as her subject, was a good beginning to a day that meant much to each one of us.

Miss Hartwell was present, ready to offer helpful suggestions whenever they were needed. Her address at the Sunday evening service was an able presentation of "The Need of the Young People in the Missionary Work."

Rev. E. Nash Broyles delivered a magnificent sermon on Sunday morning and was of great assistance throughout the entire meeting. Rev. W. S. Shipman conducted the consecration service Monday morning and drew us as a body and as individuals closely to God. We were thankful for their presence.

The closing address was on "Loyalty's Opportunity" by Mrs. Conger. The Conference closed with the circle of Young People around the church singing "Blest Be the Tie that Binds." We left Durant feeling that no greater privilege could be accorded one than an opportunity to take part in the Young People's work.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

At the Annual Meeting held in Columbia this past February no place was decided upon for the 1916 session. Since then Vicksburg has sent a most cordial invitation, urging the Conference body to meet there. The invitation was gladly accepted and Vicksburg will throw open her doors and give us a hearty welcome in February, 1916.

The Port Gibson District meeting will be held this year in the historic old town of Port Gibson. The exact date of the meeting has not been decided upon, but it will be early in October. We understand that Mrs. B. F. Lewis will be the Conference officer present. We know of few women who are so thoroughly up on the work, and, aside from the knowledge possessed, she is a bright, magnetic speaker. The meeting will not only be very helpful, but much enthusiasm and inspiration are sure to be kindled in the hearts of those who attend.

Begin to plan now to send a delegate and let our district have a record-breaking attendance. Put forth every effort to be there and consider no sacrifice too great to make. You will be well repaid in the knowledge gained of the work.

Mrs. Otis Wilson, of Natchez, who has served the Port Gibson District as its secretary for the past several years, has been compelled to resign her office. We are sorry to give her up, for she has served us well and won the love and esteem of the women in her district. Miss Mabel Porter, her sister, has been selected to succeed her. We bespeak for this capable, consecrated young woman your hearty co-operation and earnest prayers. She has already entered upon her dutles with zeal, having sent an inspiring message to each auxiliary, assuring the women of her desire to be very helpful to them. We feel that we are very fortunate in securing Miss Porter for this office.

LETTER TO DISTRICT SECRETARIES, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Sisters:

You will find some changes in the enclosed Standard of Excellence for Race of District Secretaries, which I deemed it best to make. At our next Annual Conference, I purpose holding a Jubilee Service on one evening, in which the District Secretaries will be expected to give their reports, and the pin will be bestowed upon the one reporting the greatest number of new organizations, and the Honor Roll badges upon those attaining unto the Standard of Excellence. This goal should have been set before you at the beginning of the campaign, but my plans have developed in the attempt to direct your work. You will have the last quarter in which to bring your work up to the standard, and I trust that each secretary will be entitled to a Roll of Honor badge when we meet in Clarksdale next February. We bid fair to become the banner Conference, if we continue to push the work begun till the close of the year. So, let us not relax our efforts, but, looking to God for help, continue the work of trying to enlist the great mass of women, young people and children in the Methodist Church who are not members of our missionary societies. Other organizations are claiming their attention; therefore, it behooves us to impress upon them the claims of our own great Church.

Urge upon your volunteer women the great importance of doing follow-up work. It is one thing to organize, and another to keep societies organized at work; so place upon them the responsibility of keeping up the societies they organize and supplying them with Helps, Year Books, Bulletins, and all other necessary literature.

Please glean the following information for me, and send it in at as early a date as possible. It is now time that we were obtaining definite results from our plans, and I hope to have same to give out to the public by the end of this quarter:

(a) Number of new societies in your district, and number of members enrolled in each.

(b) The number of volunteer workers in your district.

(c) The number of members gained in societies already organized.

(d) The number of preachers in your district who observed Woman's Day.

If you have not already done so, send to Miss Dunstan the names of all officers in new societies. She does not enroll societies until she gets this information. Stress upon your organizers the great importance of sending this information to you immediately following the organization of any new society, and also urge the prompt remittance of dues at the proper time, as Mrs. Wilburn does not enroll any societies upon her books until they begin paying dues. Stress the claims for the observance of Week of Prayer, and the practice of self-denial, by way of making a liberal offering. The Literature for the Week of Prayer is now ready to be sent out. Urge the payment of prompt and liberal offerings to the pledge, the organization of Mission Study Classes, and the general rounding up of our work by the close of the year.

You have been faithful to our great work, and I pray that the presence and power of the Holy Spirit may abide with you continually.

Mrs. VIC THOMPSON HOYLE,
Conference President.
Tupelo,. Miss., Sept. 7, 1915.

STANDARD OF EXCELLENCE.

Number of new societies organized and kept up equal to one-half number of churches in district without societies at beginning of campaign, 30 credlts.

Number of preachers observing Woman's Day equal to one-half number of preachers in district, 20 credits.

A District Conference held, 10 credits.

An All-Day Meeting held, 10 credits.

Literature for observance of Woman's Day sent to preachers throughout the district, 10 credits.

Number of volunteer women used averaging two or more to each auxiliary in district at beginning of campaign, 10 credits.

At next Annual Meeting the Secretary excelling in number of societies (Adult, Young People, and Juniors) organized will be awarded a pin and each Secretary attaining to the above Standard of Excellence will be awarded a ribbon bearing the words "Roll of Honor, 1915."

Lime and Tuberculosis

Dr. Roberts Bartholow, former professor in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, says in his Materia Medica (1895), on pages 215 and 216: "Clinical experience has shown that it (referring to a calcium salt) posseses the ill-defined property known as alterative, removes certain toxic or morbific materials and secures their secretion by the organs of elimination. * * * The testimony which has lately been published in respect to its curative powers in consumption is certainly very striking."

He does not refer to testimony regarding Eckman's Alterative, since the medical profession never publicly recommends proprietary remedies. However, many cases of consumption seem to have yielded to this remedy.

This success may be due largely to the fact that in Eckman's Alterative a calcium (lime) salt is so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person. It contains neither opiates, narcotics nor habit-forming drugs, so is safe. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

Wheeler Circuit (North Miss. Conf.)

Dear Mr. Editor: We have just finished our summer revival campaign on the Wheeler Circuit. We did not have any very great revivals this year, but the power of the Holy Ghost was demonstrated in six out of eight places in the old-time custom of shouting. We had conversions at five out of the eight places. We hope to finish up the year in very good shape. There has been so much excitement over politics that this has been a hard year to hold revivals. Political speech-making tended to keep the people away from church.—A. J. Henry, P. C.

Auburn, Miss.

Mr. Editor: My first meeting began on the third Sunday in July and continued during the week following. I was assisted by Rev. J. L. Smith, of Galiman, Miss. Four members were added to the Church. Brother Smith is good help in a revival meeting..... Our second meeting began at Adams on the second Sunday in August. Rev. W. T. Griffin, of Gulfport, Miss., did the preaching. Brother Griffin is a strong preacher. It was said by the oldest members of the Church that it was the best meeting held at that Church for years. Five people joined the Church.....Our third meeting was held at Johnston Station, beginning on the first Sunday in September. I was assisted by Dr. I. L. Peebles, of Wesson, Miss. Four new members were added to the Church and four infants were baptized. Dr. Peebles is one of our strongest preachers. I find him to be good help in a meeting. He is the best Bible scholar that it has been my privilege to be associated with except D. L. Moody, of sacred memory. I trust that the good work begun will abide.—Robert H. Barr, P. C.

Waynesboro, Miss.

Dear Mr. Editor: We closed with a triumphant victory over "The World's Tempter" (the devil) a splendid meeting at Old Hebron Church on the 9th inst. The Master was with us from the beginning and graciously blessed us. Praise his name forever! Brother Joe Stanford contributed largely to the success of the meeting by the use of the good old hymns which our fathers and mothers were wont to sing in the by-gone days, such as "Children of the Heavenly King," etc. It was good to be there. We had six conversions and reclamations, as far as we were able to judge. And we had two promising young men and one bright little girl to join the Church. Rev. Chas. E. Downer, the pastor at Eucutta, Miss., assisted me and his preaching from day to day was edifying to the saints and effective in impressing sinners. This faithful man of God did his work well while he was with us. May the Master daily bless him in his work and give him many souls for his hire! Hebron Church is one of the best small rural churches that I know of anywhere. It is the most spiritual church in my charge. The people love God and his Church and they want to help in the work of extending the Kingdom.—Hilary Westbrook, P. C.

Calhoun City, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: I want to tell the good news about what our Dear Lord is doing for us in these parts. I have just closed a most glorious meeting at Pittsboro. The Church is indeed saved; she is fervent in spirit. The folks there say they have never seen just such before. The young men have indeed seen visions. We added 24 names to our church register and gave our sister Church some 20. Out of this number three-fourths of them are young men from eighteen to twenty-five years of age, and quite a lot of them had been hardened sinners. This revival went to the heart and pocket. At the close we raised our Conference collections in full, which were $120 at this church, and they paid the visiting preacher $100. We are greatly rejoicing because of this turning to God upon the part of this people. Brother W. L. Graves was our visiting preacher in the meeting. He is a most powerful preacher. The station preachers over the North Mississippi Conference should get him to assist them in their fall meetings. Brethren, he will do you most effective work. I believe a most wonderful change would take place in many of our stations if the brethren would secure Brother Graves' assistance. He will be with me some two or three weeks longer.....I have just returned from a two weeks' meeting with Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Myrtle, Miss. Oh, what a glorious meeting we had! God wonderfully manifested his power in those services. The Church was reclaimed and sinners saved. We had a hallelujah time. Pray for us all.—W. V. Shearer.

West Lake (La.) Charge.

Dear Mr. Editor: Beginning on the 22d of September Rev. Paul Brown conducted a two weeks' revival at West Lake that proved a benediction to the Church, and, we believe, marked an epoch in the history of this practically defunct congregation—the Baptists for a number of years having had the monopoly of church life here. During the revival the few scattered members took on new life, some new ones were added, and five new families were enrolled in our Sunday school (in the person of some one or more members), and a general spirit of hopefulness was awakened. Following the meeting, a Woman's Missionary Society of about eight members was organized and started off hopefully, and a Sunday school institute was held that resulted in the organization of an Adult Bible Class, the adding of a Junior Boys' Class, a Cradle Roll, and the beginning of work in the missionary department with a regular superintendent. In the Institute Rev. K. W. Dodson made an address on the value of Sunday school work in general; Mrs. O. C. Stanton discussed the Elementary Department; Mr. Senian Mayo, the teen age classes and their problems; Mr. J. A. Foster spoke on organizing and teaching the Adult Bible Class; Mr. A. M. Mayo on the missionary department, using African curios to illustrate the value of this work. These institute programs were held each night from Monday to, and including, Friday night, and proved very helpful to the school. Brother Brown's preaching, by the way, was all of the expository type and of a high order, the morning sermons being for the most part from the book of Nehemiah—on re-building the walls of Jerusalem. Our meeting at Hayes, in which Rev. A. A. Bernard helped, was also a good one. There was a large attendance and several additions to the Church. Brother Bernard had been pastor here and this was Sister Bernard's home church. She presided at the organ during the meeting. The confidence that the people manifested in Brother Bernard's Christian character and leadership was, by the way, no little compliment to his ministerial fidelity when he served them as pastor.—P. O. Lowrey.

LAFAYETTE DISTRICT NOTES.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am sending you to-day the fourth round of the quarterly conference for this (Lafayette) District. The work in the district is in good shape.

In most places revival services have been held, the pastors doing their own preaching or having neighboring pastors to assist. I have recommended, and insisted upon, this plan and the results have been highly satisfactory to the pastors and congregations.

Brother Atkinson, of Crowley, reports the best revival of the quadrennium. He was assisted by Brother A. S. Lutz, our pastor at New Iberia.

Brother Vaughan, of Franklin, has been in the midst of an almost all-the-year-round revival, having received up to date upwards of 70 members, and he reports that his prayer meetings are well attended. He has been his own evangelist.

Our French missionaries, Hebert and Breithaupt, have proven themselves men "chosen of God" for their special work, and our French Mission work is developing more rapidly than at any time in its history. We need for this particular field more men and more money.

Time would fail me, and space would not be given, to tell of the good and faithful work of Dodson, Bonnette, Lowrey, McCoy, Brown—our dear Brother Brown of Lake Arthur who has been so severely afflicted of late and who in the midst of it all goes bravely on—Bernard, Bryson, Nesom, Fike, the two Hoffpauirs (not the P. E.), the two Martins, workers in the Lafourche mission; Harrison, Weir, Clifford, and last but not least, our Tennessee ex-presiding elder, P. A. Sowell, who strong, has "waxed valiant in fight" and has built up a congregation in the face of great odds, and though he may not have "put to flight the armies of the aliens," he has won a great victory for our Lord.

Whatever of success has been ours, it is due to this faithful, loyal band of pastors, who, under God, have wrought so well.

SOME NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. G. W. Bachman.

On invitation of the pastor, Rev. A. M. Bennett, I spent the fifth Sunday in August and the week following at Longtown assisting in a meeting, which resulted in one accession to the Church on profession of faith and evidences of other good accomplished.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary, occupied the first day and rendered faithful service in the work in which he is engaged. Surely his earnest "labors in the Lord will not be in vain."

As a pioneer, I labored in this country nearly a half century ago, preaching the gospel of Christ and planting churches. That generation has almost passed away, but I rejoiced to find some of their children walking in the truth. It was a pleasure en route to stop over a while in Como with friends, including the faithful pastor, Rev. W. D. Wendel. This is his first year in this charge, but there is already a strong mutual endearment between him and the people which assures church prosperity.

I enjoyed very much a few days in Grenada, including the first Sunday in September. During this time I was the guest of Rev. J. A. Hall and family in their delightful parsonage home, met many good friends, and had the privilege of preaching to a good congregation on Sunday evening. I heard the pastor preach in the morning to a large audience an impressive sermon "Prepare to meet thy God."

Brother Hall is closing the fourth year of a successful pastorate in this charge, to the regret of himself and the people. If they had their way, they would remove the time limit, whether it would be wise or unwise. But while the law remains as it is, all will be loyal and submissive to the authorities that be.

Grenada College is worthy of and should have the patronage and support of all the Methodists—preachers and people—of North Mississippi. Rev. J. R. Countiss, the efficient President, is doing his part to make the coming session more successful than any preceding one. May he realize his most sanguine expectations!

The numerous friends of our highly esteemed lay brother, Marcellus G. Duhard, will be glad to learn that he is recovering from severe physical injuries received sometime ago, and that he expects to be in his place at the approaching session of the Conference.

The death of Dr. Gross Alexander, Book and Quarterly Review Editor, is a great loss to our Church. May a competent and worthy successor be selected!

COMMENDATORY RESOLUTIONS.

At a meeting of the Board of Stewards of the Methodist Church here on last Monday evening the following expression of sentiment was adopted relative to Rev. J. B. Randolph as a man and pastor:

1. That we, as an official Board, voice our own estimate and that of the people generally of Kosciusko in saying that, as a gentleman and citizen, we have found in Rev. J. B. Randolph one without reproach and one who commands the highest esteem of all who know him.

2. That as pastor of the Methodist Church here for the past nine months he has been faithful and efficient and his departure is regretted by its membership. Under his pastorate the membership has increased and is active and aggressive.

3. That in being selected to take charge of the Orphans' Home at Jackson no mistake was made, since his life, character, and mental ability are such as to commend him to the work of caring for and training the young.

4. That we commend him to the people among whom he is to move and work as one worthy in every way of their highest respect.

5. That the loss of him and his Christian wife by any community is the gain of those among whom they move, as all their words and work are ordered for the good of their fellowheings.

6. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the city papers and the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Mississippi recently had a contest to determine which of its towns and cities were physically the cleanest, and the prizes went to Greenwood, Biloxi, and Magnolia. We wonder what places would lead if moral cleanliness were the test applied?

A candidate for the office of Governor in Louisiana is said to have declared that he is opposed to prohibition because "it makes hypocrites." He seems to overlook the fact that the saloon gives us far worse products: drunkards, paupers, and criminals. And if the barkeepers who claim to obey the law at the same time that they are constantly violating aren't "hypocrites," what are they? We scarcely think that the gentleman referred to gave the public his real reason for opposing prohibition.

Cardinal O'Connell says: "The truths of heaven offer no ground for scientific inquiry." He is right. Persons who imagine that they can discover new religious truths by scientific investigation are laboring under a delusion. Not a single religious tenet of consequence has come into existence in that way. It was because of the inadequacy of the human intellect by searching to find out God and the momentous verities of eternity, and man's relation to them, that the infinite Creator found it necessary to make an inspired revelation to humanity. Christianity is wholly and distinctively a revealed religion.

The work of "conservation" should be given much more attention by our pastors and churches. If our congregations could hold and develop the persons that are gathered in during seasons of special revival effort, the growth of Southern Methodism would be much more rapid. Too often it is the case that a period of activity and spiritual quickening is followed by a relaxation of diligence and watchfulness that permits all that has been won to be lost by a gradual process of declension. This explains why so many of our churches that report fine meetings and a number of accessions every year remain practically at a standstill. We should bestir ourselves to hold our converts and make strong and useful Christians of them. Thus only can a flock increase as it should and reach forth to larger things.

A SUGGESTIVE EXHORTATION.

A Church in the Far West is said to have printed upon its bulletin board the following exhortation: "Keep Sunday for the great things of the soul." Undoubtedly this is what every immortal human being should do, but alas! how little is it done. The Sunday secular newspaper, with all of its sensational contents, now finds its way into most of our homes, and it is, in some instances, beginning to carry a special page for the children, thus making them eager for its arrival. In consequence, it is to be feared that less wholesome religious reading is being done by Christian people on the Lord's day at present than in former times. And even in some of our pulpits the themes discussed are more secular than spiritual. This secularization of the Sabbath, which is going on in various ways, should be resolutely resisted; for we are commanded to "keep it holy," which means that we should use it in a way to honor God and to cultivate and strengthen the Christian graces in our hearts and lives.

A CALVINISTIC FALLACY.

Writing in The Presbyterian (Philadelphia), under the caption, "Must we Presbyterians Believe in the Doctrine of Election?" Rev. Daniel Williams, among other things, says:

"In one sense, the doctrine of election is not a practical doctrine, and yet it is most vitally connected with some of the most practical and important doctrines of the Gospel. Take the doctrine of regeneration—the work of God's Spirit enlightening our minds, renewing our wills, and enabling us to receive Jesus Christ—this is one of the most essential doctrines, as the Savior assured Nicodemus, and yet the doctrine of election is vitally connected with this. Deny "unconditional election," and you must deny regeneration. Hold regeneration, and you must hold unconditional election. They stand or fall together. The soul of man as a sinner is spiritually dead. The Lord sends his Spirit to infuse spiritual life into this dead soul and into that one, but leaves others. Why does he do this? The only answer we can give is that he chooses so to do, but that is election. The doctrines of election and regeneration stand or fall together. I say the doctrines. It is very easy to use the words while denying the truths or the doctrines usually expressed by the words. We Presbyterians profess to hold the doctrine of regeneration, and so must hold the doctrine of election also. Those denominations and those preachers or members in our own denomination that do not hold unconditional election do not hold regeneration, either."

We are far from admitting that one must believe in "election" in order to believe in "regeneration." We, of course, understand the argument that is put forward to sustain this view, namely, that all human souls are utterly lost and dead in sin and that a soul is absolutely passive in the process that brings it into spiritual life; and that since God does not regenerate all men, he must "elect" the number upon whom he does bestow this priceless blessing. But the fallacy here, of course, is in the unscriptural conception of "regeneration." The inspired writers everywhere address sinners as if they possessed the power to repent, believe, and choose, or refuse to do so. This power, to be sure, is in a sense the gift of God, but it is not restricted to a portion of the race, being, on the contrary, conferred alike upon all men. Thus St. John, in referring to Christ, said: "There was the true light, even the light which lighteth every man, coming into the world" (Revised Version); and St. Paul declared: "So then as through one trespass the judgment came to all men to condemnation, even so through one act of righteousness the free gift came unto all men unto justification of life."

Mr. Williams leaves the Methodists and all others who are Arminian in their faith in a very unenviable plight in affirming that because they do not accept the doctrine of "election" they have discarded the vital "doctrine" of regeneration. He perhaps would say in answer to this complaint that they adhere to the fact of the "new birth," notwithstanding that their belief as to how it is brought about is wrong. But Methodism has long been the greatest revival Church in existence, and if this view were accepted, we would have the strange spectacle of the denomination that is leading far the largest number of people into the glorious experience of "regeneration" effecting this result through the teaching of error. We scarcely need to say that such a thing is most unreasonable. There is no test of theological teaching that can be so fully relied upon as the results that it produces, especially when its fruits have had ample time to disclose their true nature. We have never known the Presbyterians to discount the work of the Methodists in leading the unsaved to Christ by refusing to take their converts when they have knocked upon their church doors for admission.

Mr. Williams has undertaken an exceedingly difficult task in trying to infuse life into the largely abandoned doctrines of "election and reprobation." They yet hold their place in some Presbyterian catechisms, but they are seldom proclaimed from the pulpit in these days; and though we do not claim to possess the gift of prophecy, we venture to predict that still less will be heard of them in the coming years. And we rather opine that Mr. Williams' unbiblical theory of "regeneration" will follow in their wake as they march to error's vast cemetery, through which no resurrection trump will ever sound.

Christian progress has gone on apace when men and women have gone out and told their fellowmen the story of redeeming love, and when their lips have been sealed Christianity has gone into dark ages and the wheels of progress have been stopped.—H. R. Munro.

A FINE SAYING.

Among the many fine paragraphs uttered by different writers there is one by Ruskin which should be read and pondered, for it is a little lay sermon of helpful and practical truth. He said: "Let the dawn of every morning be to you the beginning of life, and every setting sun be to you as its close; then let every one of these short lives leave its sure record of some kindly thing done for others, and some goodly strength or knowledge gained for yourself."

CHRISTIAN PERSEVERANCE.

"Fight to the finish!" are the inspiring words that fell from the lips of that grand man, the founder of the Salvation Army, General Booth. Henry Martyn thus fought, and amid the groans and curses of the heathen said: "I would rather wear out than rust out." So did Robert Morrison, who toiled seven years in China without a convert; and Melville B. Cox, who before he died requested that his epitaph read: "Let a thousand fall before be given up;" and Hans Egede, who endured mutiny among his converts, ridicule and opposition from his countrymen, to sow the gospel seed in Greenland; and Judson in Burma—think how he fought out the translation of the Bible, through hunger, imprisonment, filth and fever. "To the finish!" What courage this takes! —Methodist Times (Philadelphia).

AN ADMIRABLE PRAYER.

The Constitutional Convention of the State of New York had met for business on May 5. The chaplain, unexpectedly, was absent. Elihu Root was presiding. He bowed his head and offered a prayer which is well worth being preserved. Brief, lofty in spirit, simple as daily life, it searches out all the qualities supremely needed by the leaders of our public life and invokes them for us, reverently, beautifully:

"Almighty God, we pray Thee to guide our deliberations this day. Make us humble, sincere, devoted to the public service. Make us wise, considerate of the feelings and the opinions and the rights of others. Make us effective and useful for the advancement of Thy cause of peace and justice and liberty in the world. For Christ's sake. Amen."—Christian Intelligencer.

SOME WHOLESOME ADVICE.

In an address before the student body at Millsaps College on Wednesday morning Chief Justice Smith contrasted conditions in Germany with those prevailing in America. He pictured the empty universities, the great institutions of learning in the Kaiser's realm almost deserted, while in America the youth of our land are following the blessed pursuits of peace and are able to continue their education without interruption by a senseless war.

It was an accurate picture, a truthful contrast of conditions, but Justice Smith lost sight of one important point involved. It is true that the schools and universities of Germany are in a deplorable condition to-day, but it is because of her splendid institutions of learning that Germany has made such a remarkable showing in the world conflict.

We read every day of the great victories won by the Kaiser's troops. No matter how your sympathies are aligned, the truth remains and you must admit it—that Germany faces, successfully, a world in arms against her because in her schools and colleges her young men have been trained to efficiency, trained to a sense of obligation to their country, trained to give of their best when their country demands it.

We may disapprove of the use to which that splendid willingness has been put by German rulers—but for the willingness, the world cannot have too high praise.

With us, there is no danger of the misuse of devotion to the cause of our people and our nation—for we, ourselves, are our own governors. But picture to yourselves what America might be if to the work of clean democracy and freedom, or broadened opportunity and a fairer chance for men—we Americans could muster, through our schools and colleges, an equal devotion!

That is your chance, young men of Mississippi, who have come to Jackson for your college days!

In the days and months and years to come, America must cease to dwell within herself. She must take to herself the lessons of this heroic age, this age of sublime devotion and of abysmal wretchedness, when the ancient maps are being torn to bits and the subject races are rising from their old-time servitudes.

And to you, and you, and you, the lads of our commonwealth, and to your fellows who are entering now the colleges on "an hundred hills"—we who have gone on before you look for our reinforcements!

Most of you, like most of us, will have no exalted places. Few of us all together can be governors, or congressmen, or generals, or captains of industry, or masters of finance. But not one of us is there, of sound mind and body, who has not in store for him, if he wills it, and works for it, a life rich in opportunity of the rarest profit for himself and of service to his fellows.

Don't despise the humble part. If your place is to till an hundred acre farm a little better than it has been tilled before, the work's worth while. That done on all farms, or two-thirds, or one-half of them, and our whole commonwealth in a dozen years will be re-made. That done on all the farms of America, and America could stand against a world in arms and be self-supporting and self-defending for a century together.

If your place is in a shop, or a factory, or a store, there is work to be done efficiently and well—and in efficiency there is a cure for most of our urban ills.

Keep these facts in mind:

Anything that you do it is worth while to do the best you can.

The way you learn to work in college is the way you will work nine times in ten your whole life long.

Upon most of you, when the doors of college close behind you, will be put the stamp of mental habit and of physical control, which will mark you all your life.

Be a master now, and unless you have a reserve of force and will which few men have you will be a waster all your days.

Sad truths these, but best to be understood.

There is no harder task than to rid the field of your later years of the seed which youthful crops of "wild oats" sow amid your best endeavors.

Room is there in every normal life for play, for sturdy joyousness, for hardy striving, for happiness and song and laughter, for work and love. Balance them in college and your life will go straightly to the end.

THE NEW BIRTH.

Dear Dr. Meek: Will you grant space in the columns of your excellent paper for a discussion of the New Birth. Such a discussion seems to the writer altogether opportune at this time. The chief danger that the Church has had to encounter in all the ages of its history has been the danger of losing its spirituality—getting away from God. Is not the Methodist Church—the most spiritual of all the Churches—greatly exposed to this danged just now? The writer has had an opportunity for several years to attend upon the ministry of prominent city pastors. Their ability to report large numbers of accessions to the Church is no longer a mystery to him. The chief object of their evangelistic efforts seems to be to get people into the Church. Usually a resolution is made the condition of Church membership. But what of membership in the kingdom of Christ? "Except a man be born again he can not see the kingdom of God" (John 3:3). When do the people received into the Church merely on a good resolution obtain the wonderful experience spoken of by our Lord as a new birth? The time was when people were taken into the Church on a six months' probation. If they were without the experience of regeneration the facts were ascertained not only by pastors, but also by class leaders who in class meetings inquired into their spiritual state and led those whose experiences were defective into the glorious light of the new birth. But the class leader, as known in those days, is no more, and class meetings have fallen into desuetude. So there is no means known to the writer by which the unsaved in the Church can be brought into vital union with Christ by regeneration, unless it be by special evangelistic services held by preachers in which the doctrine of the new birth is clearly expounded and its importance properly stressed.

Much might be written as to why the doctrine of the new birth has not been properly emphasized during the last few years, but the limitation of space forbids this. It is hardly necessary, so far as Methodists are concerned, to say that the new birth does not consist in water baptism, nor is it necessarily connected with such baptism. Paul says: "For I suppose I was not a whit behind the very chiefest apostles" (2 Cor. 11:5).

Yet if water baptism is necessary to salvation or new birth, he was very much behind. For he tells us that Christ sent him not to baptize, but to preach the Gospel (1 Cor. 1:17). So we learn that water baptism did not constitute a part of the ministry of Paul in behalf of the Church at Corinth. Yet he tells us that the Gospel was the power of God unto salvation (Rom. 1:16). Then, so far as Paul's ministry was concerned, we are forced to believe that many were saved by it or born of the Spirit without water baptism.

Again, the new birth does not consist in water baptism, joining the Church, and moral reformation combined, even when to these is added a sound creed. All these things are comprehensible to the common and unregenerate human mind, but not so the new birth. "The wind bloweth where it listeth and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh and whither it goeth, so is every one that it born of the Spirit." (John 3:8). And again our Lord says the kingdom of God cometh not with observation (Luke 17:20). We are not brought into the kingdom of God, nor it is not established in us by any or all of the things before enumerated. If so, it could be readily comprehended and observed.

Again, if the new birth consisted in any of the outward things to which attention has been called it is wholly inconsistent with other and very plain passages of Scripture. For, if the new birth consisted in a good resolution, reformation, joining the Church, and submitting to its ordinances, etc., it would be something that man does for himself with the help of some other man. But such is not the case, according to the descriptions of the new birth found in the Bible. According to the Scriptures, man is wholly passive in the new birth. "Born of the Spirit," said John (John 3:8). Ezekiel said hundreds of years before the coming of Christ, in speaking of the time Israel—the redeemed from among all nations: "A new heart also will I give you and a new spirit will I put within you, and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh and I will give you an heart of flesh, and I will put my spirit within you and cause you to walk in my statutes, and she shall keep my judgments and do them" (Ezekiel 36:26-27). But in John's Gospel we have a description of the new birth so explicitly setting forth the passivity of man in the work that we do not see how it could be susceptible of any other interpretation.

"But as many as received him to them he gave power to become the Sons of God, even to them that believe on his name, which were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God" (John 1:12-13).

In discussing the subject in question the writer prefers the term new birth to regeneration because the former term is more specific than the latter. Regeneration may mean everything in the work of man's salvation from conviction of sin in the sinner to the witness of the Spirit in the believer's heart. Not so the new birth. It is the great transformation wrought in the human soul by the Holy Spirit, in which mighty work man is passive. In the most comprehensive sense regeneration is largely a matter of man's co-operation. Since our Lord gave the new birth such an important place in his teaching of Nicodemus, (John: 3-8), should we not expect to find illustrations of it by examples in the Acts of the Apostles where the Gospel with all its provisions was first applied? Not so, if a great many of our instructors are to be credited. The writer believes that according to the reasonable expectations of those not committed to some theological system, the "Acts of the Apostles" are replete with examples of the new birth.

Let us examine some of these examples. First let us look closely into the transaction of Pentecost (Acts chapter 2). Were the Apostles born of the Spirit at Pentecost? Many would give this question a negative answer, accompanied by surprise that such a question should be asked. Surely, it is said the Apostles were born of the Spirit before Pentecost. If so, where is the record of the work? We are told about the family conversions of some of the Apostles, and given the name of their fathers and brothers, and their occupation. But the most important transaction in the history of any human being is not mentioned if the Apostles were born of the Spirit before Pentecost. But had not the Apostles followed Christ "in the regeneration?" (Matt. 19, 28). No, our Lord here speaks of the regeneration to take place at the end of the world or age. That the Apostles were not born of the Spirit before Christ's final ascension and glorification is explicitly declared by the evangelist John and by Jesus Christ himself. This spake he of the Spirit which they that believed on him should receive, for the Holy Ghost was not yet given because that Jesus was not yet glorified. (John 7:29).

But say some, the gift of the Holy Spirit means something much greater than the new birth. What wonderful wisdom is couched in this objection; and what exegetical powers are here manifest! St. Paul says, "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost, which is in you, which ye have of God" (1 Cor. 6:19). This language is addressed to all Christians without distinction. Surely, then, all who are born of the Spirit have the gift of the Holy Spirit. Christ tells his disciples (John 16:7-11) that the coming and whole office work of the Holy Spirit in man's salvation depended upon and awaited his going away. Is it possible, then, to believe that people were living born of the Spirit while he was here?

But for fear of making this article too long, I could write at considerable length on the conversion of Cornelius and Saul of Tarsus. Cornelius received exactly the same kind of blessing that the Apostles at Pentecost received; so Peter tells us: "As I began to speak the Holy Ghost fell on them as on us at the beginning." (Acts 11: 15). And this gift of the Holy Ghost must have been the new birth, as Cornelius was in an unsaved state when he sent for Peter, who, the angel said, would tell him words whereby he and his house should be saved. (Acts 11:14). This gift of the Holy Ghost was not subsequent to the new birth, but was the new birth itself. So of Saul of Tarsus, the chief of sinners. He was filled with the Holy Ghost when born of the Spirit. Perhaps one cause of the new birth being so minified is that so little is found in the Scriptures by a great many people concerning it. In the Acts of the Apostles we find very striking examples setting forth the greatness and importance of the work in question.

WHAT THE OFFICIAL RECORDS SHOW.

"Facts," a whisky sheet published in New Orleans, has been making repeatedly the statement that more crimes are committed in the prohibition parishes of Louisiana than in those which have the open saloon. "The Issue," a prohibition paper published in Baton Rouge, has taken fifteen dry parishes and fifteen wet parishes that are about equal in population and has compared their criminal records, taking the figures from the Attorney-General's Reports, which are open to inspection in the archives at the State Capitol. "The Issue" sums up the results of its careful investigation as follows:

THE LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT.

By Judge E. V. [illegible]

From the various reports from the North Mississippi Conference it would seem that there is a misapprehension on the part of a number of our people as to the true intent, purpose and meaning of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and as a result of this view the men of our Church are not having that training and attention that is contemplated, and that will make them fit and ready for service for the Lord.

Because the movement has appended to it the word "missionary," and the word "laymen," the idea prevails that its activities should be and is limited to raising funds for the support of our mission boards, and a great number of our people are attempting to bind it to these boards so tight and fast that the movement will have no power to grow and expand, and do other service for the Master; they are doing for it what the old Chinamen did for the feet of their women, and in so binding them they are as surely crippling the movement as the women of old China were crippled in having deformed feet.

Missionary as used in this movement does not have the restricted meaning given in the ecclesiastic sense, but it means more. The movement was not born within the organized church, but was originated and named outside of the church, and was intended for all laymen to organize within the various churches for the purpose of giving their service to the great task of evangelizing the world in one generation, and being named out of the church organization its operation was intended to be as broad as Christian activity in every kind of service that men may perform, and the word, missionary, must be taken in its broadest sense and not limited to any single service. Every one knows that missionary means "of or pertaining to missions." Webster among other definitions, defines "mission" to be an organization for doing religious and charitable work. The Laymen's Missionary Movement, therefore, is a movement designed to organize the laymen of the different churches for the purpose of preparing and fitting the men for service and enabling and causing them to do the needful religious work of the church, and to be a factor in the great cause of evangelizing the world, and in doing this they will be a factor in every activity of Christian service.

"Oh," says some objector, "this is not the proper missionary work; the church has its missionary department and they have restricted the missionary work to the cultivation of fields that have not the means of self-support, and that since the laymen cannot go to those fields and do personal work, they can only give proper financial support to those who go and contribute to the erection of proper buildings for the carrying on these missions." In reply it can be said that in every other field of activity, in business, in civil government, etc., the men are not so limited, they occupy every station of life and work in every field of activity; they are a part and parcel of the great mass of humanity, and through all the ages they have made its history, and it would not be seemly and right to limit their activity in spiritual life; and when this is attempted it is done at the expense of spiritual growth and development the fact that the church has heretofore limited the scope of the laymen's activity is largely responsible for the present lifeless condition of the church, and it will continue to be lifeless until it has a broader vision of real service, and departs from that well worn groove that it has been running in so long; until it wakes up to the realization that every person is a missionary, and every life a sermon, for good or for evil, and sets to work to cultivate the lives of the laity, and make each a sermon for God.

Besides, the broad view of the movement given above is the view of the last General Conference at Oklahoma City last year. This Conference appointed John R. Pepper and nine other laymen

A STRONGER REASON FOR CLASSIFICATION.

In the first place, I wish to disavow any intention of offending the Rev. Dr. Featherstun in stating his position in a previous article as to his policy in dignifying a school by calling it a college. I hereby beg his pardon for the offense as he seems to take it. At the same time, since he has challenged me to prove it, I feel it incumbent upon me to do so, and I want to assure him that it is done in the same good intention as before.

According to the minutes of the Mississippi Conference of 1888, the school at Woodville was referred to as "Woodville Female Seminary." The same reference is made in the minutes of 1889. In 1890 the school is spoken of as "Edward McGehee College for Girls." The further statement is made: "H. W. Featherstun is President." Furthermore, in Goodspeed's History of Mississippi, published in 1891, in the department of "Educational History," written by Judge Edward Mayes, the school is referred to as being founded in 1860. He has this to say: "Its name has recently been changed to Edward McGehee College."

Judging from the above facts, and they are historical, it is strange that this change should have been made under the administration of Dr. Featherstun without his knowledge, consent and encouragement. There is not a word relating to a change being made in the course of study, thereby establishing a college course. Had this been done, it seems to me that it would have been mentioned.

Taking his own statement in his recent article, it is evident beyond question that his presidency of the Board of Trustees of the Mississippi Conference Training School was an encouragement to the change of name to Montrose College. He says he gave his consent (as if his consent determined the result) to the change on condition that a college course was adopted. At the same time, the law of the Church was clear that the classification of a school was dependent upon the recommendation of the Conference Board of Education. More than this, the school was already classified as an "A" grade academy. The administration, along with the presidency of the Board of Dr. Featherstun, should have been sufficiently informed as to the terms of classification not to commit the blunder of organizing a college with the teachers and conditions they had, since the Church required certain equipment as to college training, etc. I did not mean to say, and it cannot be construed so, that he alone was responsible, but that he was given to such methods. He told me about the amendment to the charter at Montrose. The very Conference following, the recommendation of the Board of Education was as follows: "It is the judgment of your Board that our Conference Training School located at Montrose should be instructed to continue in its recognized relation to the other institutions in our Conference system of educational institutions for the present, and pending the proposed action by the General Conference providing for Junior Colleges." In the Journal of 1914 is the following: "We respectfully recommend to the President and Trustees of this school that in the future, instead of giving a diploma, a certificate of work done leading to the A.B. or B.S. degree be given."

As to his relation to Port Gibson Female College, he makes his own statement as to what "they" propose to do as to classification. Read what he says: "I am Secretary of the Board of Trustees of Port Gibson Female College, and do hereby certify that it is not the purpose of this school to 'classify' according to the requirements, i.e., the other than educational requirements, set forth by the General Board of Education. We shall go on conferring degrees (D. V.) in 1916, 1917, and on and on, paying no attention to the requirements concerning value of apparatus, volumes in library, and an endowment." Read again: "Port Gibson Female College carries now a full college course in every detail, and challenges any college to show better work done than she is doing. She has raised her standard, placing her curricula alongside of Millsaps and Whitworth, and is striving to do just as good work in every way. Her English course, a bit behind, has been put up to the requirement by the putting in of Old English."

Regarding the above statement, one of the leading ministers of our Conference, a graduate of Millsaps, says: "This, on the face of it, cannot be true."

I have not words to express my regret that a man who is supposed to stand for the recognition of the law of the Church would make so strong a claim for a worthy institution, as Port Gibson is, when it is evident to all who know anything of the condition as to equipment, faculty, and the contrast there is between it and Millsaps as an "A" grade school in every particular, that Port Gibson cannot meet the demands. I regret the necessity that is upon me to make this statement, but I make it without any sort of qualification.

The assertion is made that this school will classify as to the educational requirements as set forth in Paragraph 469. The work of this Commission is set forth in a little booklet of twenty-eight pages, under the caption of "Sixth Report of the Commission on Education, M. E. Church, South." This book, small in size, but large in the statement it brings to the Church, says some things that need to be known by those who are standing for education of any grade in the Church. I repeat: classification does not provide that all of our schools be of the same grade, but it does demand that a school of the Church give heed to the terms that are given in this report.

I quote from this report as follows: "Too much of educational reform is on paper. The Commission is aiming at substance rather than form, and hopes that these standards can in all cases be applied with such honesty as to put beneath all our educational work a complete intellectual sincerity. Again: "The standards as outlined in this report demand a four years' course curriculum based upon fourteen units for admission. This secures an equal amount of work from all alike. The difference in the rating of institutions will now be based upon the quality of the work done. This can be most easily estimated by the resources the institution has with which to provide adequate equipment and instruction. The standard for endowment and equipment has been slightly raised."

From the July, 1915, report appearing in the Bulletin, it is to be noted that only twenty-three institutions are not classified, but eleven of these are organized as Junior Colleges. This leaves only thirteen to be classified—that is, they remain to meet the terms of classification. It should be remembered that the Church is requiring of its schools to do the work they profess to do, and not to pretend to do more than they can do. The efficiency of an institution is to be measured, not by its course of study merely, but by the educational efficiency of its faculty. It is a false presumption to suppose that a teacher who has not finished his college course—and this means a college of "A" or "B" grade—can teach the course that is prescribed by the Commission to correspond with such a school. The teachers of a Junior College are required to have "at least a bachelor's degree." If such be the case in regard to the Junior College, is it not to be presumed, and rightly, that for a college course it is just as essential that the teacher he as fully qualified?

It is, furthermore, to be remembered that a college is composed of MEN, MONEY, and EQUIPMENT—these constitute the standards of our Church in the sphere of education. We are face to face with these very standards as set by the State and private institutions, and to ignore the necessity of a lawful and adequate ground for competition is to admit our speedy defeat, leaving the field to others. For one, I do not propose to stand for such false positions, for we are able to do quite as well as our neighbors if we will only stand together in demanding of our schools that they do the fair thing.

There is much more that I might say, but I leave it for another time. If I have not proven some things, I have "other proof" to give.

DESTITUTE CHILDREN.

We are convinced that few of our people in Louisiana realize the seriousness of the problem presented by the many destitute, homeless children of our great and prosperous State. Aside from the feeling of sympathy for the helplessness of this class of unfortunates, we believe if our people could come to realize the need from the standpoint of worthy citizenship, greater effort would be made to save this class. When we come to know that out of the class of destitute children, children who must be reared amidst evil environment, in the slums and brothels of our cities, on the streets, and in places of poverty and filth in the smaller towns and rural districts, many of them never attending public schools or going to Sunday school, there is to come a considerable portion of our future citizens, surely the better class of our people will do their utmost to save these children and to give them a chance in life. For we must know that it is from this class that the greater portion of our criminals come. And there are thousands upon thousands of them.

It is a sad fact that while our great State does a noble part by the insane, the criminal, the blind, the deaf and dumb, and even in a small way for the delinquent juveniles, they are doing absolutely nothing for the homeless, destitute children of our land. And while it is well that the State is doing what it does for so many unfortunates, it remains a fact that the only class of dependents from which a worthy and efficient citizenship may come are the destitute, homeless children; yet the only effort being made in their behalf is by the Churches and a few independent institutions. And these institutions are powerless to do more than a mere trifle as compared with the need. Every home for homeless children of which I know anything is badly crowded. It is almost impossible to get children from outside the city into any of the institutions in New Orleans, most of which are conducted by the Catholic Church.

In our own Orphanage we have only 108 children, and all available space is taken. We do not have sufficient funds, even if we had more room, to care for more. Yet it is most distressing to be confronted with the almost daily plea from many homeless, destitute children, crying to our great Church for a home and a chance in life, and to be compelled to refuse them. Day after day the most distressing appeals come. Just a few days ago a mother came with three children, homeless, without work or relatives to help, sick and discouraged, not knowing where to turn for aid. A consecrated worker has just written of a twelve-year-old girl, homeless and destitute, pleading with us to take this girl to "save her from a life of shame." A father with a helpless girl, who is unable to provide for her, comes with the same distressing plea. One of our oldest and noblest preachers writes in behalf of a helpless family of children and thus concludes his earnest plea for them: "I fear you are powerless to help. How much we need more room and money! You are doing a great work for the helpless and suffering children of our State. Oh, that some of our rich people would enlarge and endow this institution!" And so the story goes almost day after day, and to all, now, we are compelled to say, "No."

Will not our people rally to our call? Make "WORK DAY," October 9, a great day, and contribute largely to this great cause?

Faithfully,

City Solicitor Ryan of Pittsburgh, who receives a salary of $10,000 a year, has refused to accept $60,000 in fees which a decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania declared he was entitled to. Such scrupulous honesty in a public official deserves the highest praise; and we suggest that he be given a medal, but not one of those handed out by Mr. Andrew Carnegie.

The Louisiana Educational Campaign

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., President

Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Sec'y

Rev. C. A. Battle, Treas., Baton Rouge, La.

(This Department is conducted by Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education, and Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Publicity Commissioner.)

THE APPEAL DIRECTED.

Since Centenary College is destined to wield an influence in our Church throughout the whole of Louisiana, it is to the interest of the whole State that she be properly equipped. We might remark here, parenthetically, that the men who have wrought the most mightily in the past for our Church in Louisiana have been men whose training was within the walls of this, our Church college. But this article is not written to defend Centenary, but to exhort the preachers and leaders all over the State to lend an effort right now in aid of securing the $15,000 maintenance fund. It is quite likely that many pastors will fear that this offering sprung at this time will affect them in securing their other collections. But that reason may be offset by the fact that this money is not needed until December. We have men and women who are able to give largely and never feel it, and at the same time give their part to the regular collections of the Church. We have others who have to use care in handling their money in order to have something to spare for the Church. To these latter ones, we suggest that gifts be made in the form of subscriptions to be paid during the month of December. Then the collections needed before November 17 can be taken and be out of the way.

While it is small givers who, because of their numbers, count for most in maintaining the Church, in this instance the man and woman of larger means should be the one to do the heaviest giving. We have Methodists in Louisiana who could give the whole $12,500 and scarcely miss it. We have scores of them who could give $1000 and scarcely know they had given it. If we could make a ringing appeal, it would be to the men and women who really have money in large quantities. It is true that the calls upon these people are many. The needs of this age are many. But one thing remains: the Church is the fountain source of true civilization, and if her pulpits are not properly manned the fountain is apt to give forth an unsteady stream. So there is no call that should be heard above the call of the Church for adequate support.

ARE YOU A SINNER?

Have you preached a sermon on Christian Education? Have you heard one? Don't drop the paper yet; we have no notion of writing a sermon, yet we fear that sermons are needed. The thing needed most of all is the effect of sermons on Christian education. Paul told the Corinthians he would come to them and measure them by their power instead of their words. Beautiful sermons can be preached on this subject and devout Methodists can give forth fervent amens, but Centenary and Mansfield Colleges need boys and girls and cash.

To preach a sermon urging the maintenance of Church schools and the working of a system of Christian training from the Cradle Roll in the Sunday school to the last cap on the sheaf of a perfect university training, and then leave out the collection and send your own children to a secular school, is a brand of ministerial service that will make Church colleges impossible. To sit in the pew and hear approvingly Christian sermons on education, and then to fail to support to the best of your ability the institutions of your Church is, according to this writer's opinion, a sin. "He that knoweth to do right and doeth it not, to him it is a sin." It is not enough to lend your approval and take the place of a well wisher.

Accounts must be paid, new work must be undertaken, and old work continued. All this takes money. We will have just as much money at Conference as the Methodists of Louisiana give us. It is not our purpose to act as special pleaders and make our cause greater than all others, but we do object to it being overlooked. The last dollar of the assessment for Education is needed. We will not get the last dollar, but we want as much as possible. You who read this article must remember that there are places where collections will be very small, but we must have money and we are depending on you to do your best. If you give your part and do your best to bring up your assessment in full, we shall be pleased.

NOTES FROM CENTENARY.

Dr. Wynn is highly pleased with the opening and prospects for the new session at Centenary. In a recent letter, after commenting favorably upon each member of the teaching force, he says: "The faculty is efficient and harmonious."

He is planning an active campaign in the interest of the financial welfare of the college in the near future. While he is in the field canvassing for the fund of $12,000 being raised, the internal management of the school will be under the direction of the new dean, Dr. J. G. Sawyer, who is making a fine impression as to his fitness for his position.

There are six candidates for the ministry now in attendance, with at least one more to enter shortly. Most of these young men need assistance in paying the expenses of their attendance, and so far the needs of only two are provided for. Will not some one who wants to invest money in the most far-reaching way, in training young men for the work of the Christian ministry, get in communication with Dr. Wynn at once and undertake the provision for one or more of these young men?

The College has just undergone a thorough overhauling and necessary improvements made preparatory to the opening of the session.

Students are in attendance not only from all sections of Louisiana, but from several other States.

REV. J. B. RANDOLPH,

Superintendent of the Methodist Orphanage at Jackson, Miss.

Joseph B. Randolph was born in Prentiss County, near Baldwyn, Miss., on December 13, 1871, and was reared on a farm. He attended the public and high schools, and later entered the Iuka Normal College where he took the A. B. degree. He subsequently spent two years in Millsaps College, and three years at Vanderbilt University, receiving the B. D. degree at the latter institution. His course in securing his education was not a continuous one, but was temporarily interrupted by seasons of practical work. He taught school for about four years, being at one time an instructor in the Macon (Miss.) Graded and High School. In his work as a teacher he was efficient and held a State license. He was licensed to preach on May 19, 1894, joined the North Mississippi Conference and was ordaiued a local deacon by Bishop Hargrove at West Point in 1894, and was ordained elder by Bishop Galloway at Kosciusko on December 11, 1904. He has served the following nppointments in his Conference: New Alhany Circuit, Guntown and Baldwyn, Second Church, Columbus, Hernando and Hinds Chapel, Myrtle Circuit, Iuka, Como, and Kosciusko.

Brother Randolph was married on June 6, 1900, to Miss Fisher Lewis, a young woman of unusual gifts and much force of character, who has been a valuable co-worker with him in all his undertakings. The Church should count itself doubly fortunate in the prospect of having Sister Randolph, in addition to her worthy husband, connected with the Orphanage work at Jackson. Brother Randolph is a brother of Chaplain J. A. Randolph, of the United States Army, and comes of a family noted for poise, clear-headedness, and discretion. His work in the ministry has been uniformly successful and he has shown where he has wrought a remarkable capacity for carrying forward new and difficult enterprises. Our beautiful new church at Como was projected and completed under his leadership. His friends feel that both temperamentally and by training he is admirably qualified for the responsible position to which he has now been elected, and that with his hand upon the helm the Mississippi Methodist Orphanage will continue to prosper and grow in its resources and usefulness.

Let the 125,000 Methodists of the Magnolia State support Brother and Sister Randolph with their prayers, their means, and in every other possible way as they take up in a consecrated spirit the large task to which they have been called.

PERMANENT ENDOWMENT FUNDS.

For several weeks past I have been collecting data to ascertain the total amount of permanent investments which are held, both as connectional and as conference funds, also preachers' aid societies and superannuate homes, for the benefit of Conference claimants. It has been difficult, in a few instances impossible, to get exact figures, and so the table below will not be absolutely accurate, but it will be correct in nearly every instance and approximately so in the few remaining. This estimate includes our connectional endowment fund, the Colvin fund, the several conference endowment funds, preachers' aid socleties and the superannuate homes. It is perfectly fair to count all these sources of income for our claimants. This method is pursued in other Churches. The M. E. Church Is, in fact, raising the bulk of the great endowment funds they are now securing as Conference funds. If they succeed in securing fifteen millions, as they hope to do, scarcely one million will be in the connectional fund.

Co-operation.

The Board handling the general fund desires co-operation, not competition, with these Conference funds. We may often he in a position to aid them in enlarging their funds and at times they will be able to help us increase the general fund. Although there has been no law enacted to co-ordinate our work, we are ready in advance of such legislation, as far as practicable, to give aid and encouragement to Conference movements. Let us have free exchange of ideas and service. We all stand for the same final achievement—ample support for our Conference claimants.

A VISIT TO WHITWORTH COLLEGE.

Last Sunday, the 19th Inst., was opening Sabbath for Whitworth College, and it was my privilege and pleasure to he with Dr. Cooper and his splendid faculty and fine student body on that occasion, and take part in the exercises by preaching to a fine congregation of the Brookhaven people, including the faculty and the student body. Up to the time I left, Monday afternoon, there were 150 boarders, including the faculty, and more were expected to come in the next few days.

The change that has been wrought in the situation and condition of things at Whitworth during Dr. Cooper's incumbency as president is marvelous. The three new buildings put up, the improvement on the campus and the renovation of the old buildings has made practically all things new.

I can say that the prospects for a good year's work could scarcely be better. With one of the best educators of the South to lead and direct the affairs of the institution, an able, competent faculty, and a bright, intelligent student body, the outlook is remarkably bright.

The contribution to the education of the young womanhood of Mississippi made by Dr. Cooper in the work done at this old and honored institution brings the Church and people of the State under an obligation to him that they can never pay. An institution like this makes a permanent and an increasing contribution to civilization.

There is being much more said these days about Christian education throughout the country than ever before in the history of our Nation, and it is becoming more and more necessary for us to understand that the only education that is worth while is that which is Christian. As Mr. Mott says, "We must Christianize our Christianity and take a deeper hold on the life of our people if we are to build permanently and enduringly in the thing we call civilization." It is evident that the chaff of the old countries of Europe is being burned up in the unquenchable fires of man's wrath. The Church must take notice and learn and go forward, remembering that the only thing that will endure is Christian ideals and standards.

Dr. Meek, it would do you good to go up and see Dr. Cooper and his fine, large family.

Yours fraternally,
W. H. SAUNDERS.

CHURCH EXTENSION IN NORTH MISSISSIPPI.

Dear Brethren: We are now within two months of the session of our Conference and your Board of Church Extension is receiving almost every week an application for a donation or a loan for some needy church or parsonage, and we are entirely dependent upon the assessments made upon the charges to meet these worthy and urgent demands. In many instances we go to the relief of some good man, or of a committee who for the sake of the cause in the community has assumed more than a fair share of a just debt, and to whom it is our duty to give relief as far as we possibly can. If the full assessment is paid, we cannot meet the demands upon us. We can make no better investment than that of helping to put a church in a needy community, or to provide a parsonage for the pastor, and it should be a strong incentive to that community to give to the cause for the years to come. Out of the 624 churches within the bounds of our Conference 357 have been helped by the Board of Church Extension, and of the 160 parsonages we have helped 70. Brethren, come to the help of your Board and these needy churches and parsonages. W. S. LAGRONE.

PERSIMMONS.

By M. Louise Baker.

Aquila Porcupine one day
Met Peter Possum by the way;
The latter seemed in haste, for he
Was going toward the 'simmon tree.

"Oh, have you heard," said Peter P.,
"What luscious fruit grows on yon tree?"
The frost we had on yester night
Will make the 'simmons taste just right.

"To fill my basket I have come,
To feed the little chaps at home,
And I must hurry, for I'm late."
And so the two improved their gait.

When Peter scampered up the tree
And shook the 'simmons—one, two, three—
Aquila stayed upon the ground
And ate the best that could be found.

At last, when Peter did descend,
He scarcely recognized his friend,
For on the end of every spine
Was stuck a 'simmon, large and fine.

To eat them all he'd vainly tried,
Then rolled himself on every side,
Till scarce a plum could Peter see
For his expectant family.

—Youth's Companion.

FROM ONE TO ANOTHER.

This happened recently in a printing establishment in a Missouri town of moderate size.

The proprietor, a tall, middle-aged man, entered a trifle late, and summoned the foreman to his office.

"Mr. Jones," he said sharply, "here's a letter from the Valley Title and Investment Company complaining about those Kenesaw County bonds. We promised them a week ago, and they say if we're not going to print them to let them know at once. Wonder why we can't get our work out on time; we pay enough."

"It's not my fault," returned the foreman. "I told you last week we were out of that Fairhaven bond paper; we can't print them until we get it;" and the printer's face gloomed with indignation from the unfair criticism.

The proprietor abruptly turned his back on the foreman.

"Miss Josie," he said, "take this letter."

The pretty young stenographer looked up in surprise at the unusual manner of the boss, but reached for her book and pencils.

"'The Riverside Paper Company, Gentlemen' — No; erase that. Make it 'Sirs.' 'Last week we placed with you a rush order for ten reams of Fairhaven bond paper, 17 by 28. Your failure to fill the order has caused us a large financial loss, for which we will hold you responsible. If you don't take enough interest in our business to prevent such embarrassments, we will put it in the hands of a concern that will. Yours.'"

The boss scowled through the letter, scratched his signature to it, and busied himself with the morning paper.

The censured foreman, with wrath in his heart, gave the pressman a sharp calling down for the failure of some display lines to "work up" properly. The pressman lit on the "job man" for selecting worn-out type, and the job man found some cause of grievance he could take out on the linotype operator.

In a half-hour's time about everybody in the shop was nursing a healthy grouch against everybody else, and was mentally considering other places of employment. Even the machinery seemed to move harshly.

The proprietor tossed his paper down, and turned to his desk. He spied something thereon that made him start. It was a small vase of wild violets. Every delicate petal seemed nodding a gracious smile.

"Who put these here?" he asked of the stenographer, as he picked up the little vase and inhaled the scent of the flowers, fresh from the country.

"Edna," replied the stenographer.

Edna was a girl who lived a mile out of town and walked in to her work. It was her duty to be down at seven every morning, and she was never known to be late. She did hand folding, type-distributing, and "proved" the galleys. Edna was the youngest employe of the office, and drew the lowest salary.

The boss's features relaxed as he reverently set the little vase back on his desk. Then he walked out into the printing room.

"Tom," he said to the foreman, "I'm not blaming you about that bond work. I guess I forgot to order the paper. If what I said hurt your feelings, please forget it."

"Oh, that's all right," returned the foreman, and he smiled good-naturedly.

The proprietor went back into his office. The foreman went over to where a man was sweating about the "make-ready" of a cylinder press.

"Bill," he said, "I guess that type's working all right; it's not your fault if worn-out faces won't come up like new ones."

The surprised pressman looked up from his grimy job, and smiled through his grease-covered face.

"All right, Tom," he replied; "I'll let her go. I don't believe it looks so bad anyhow," and he signaled for the feeder to throw on the power.

"Harry," he said, "the press is running all right with that old type; you can't help it if the edges were worn a bit. I oughtn't to have spoken to you like I did."

"Never mind, old man," replied the job compositor. "I don't cherish grudges."

When the pressman had gone, the "job man" dodged around to where the linotype machine was clicking.

"Katie," he addressed the girl before the type-board, "if that metal is giving you any bother, let me know and I'll adjust the gas better. You're not to blame if it runs sluggish, and I was a cad to light on to you about it. We're still friends, eh?" and he held out a dirty but honest hand.

"Sure thing, Harry," smiled the girl, promptly accepting the amende; "I knew your grouch wouldn't last long."

The cylinder press moved along with well-ordered cadence; the busy motor sung a cheerful tune; and the linotype clattered a merry accompaniment.

That evening, as a girl wearing a cheap, broad-brimmed straw hat and a plain dark suit was passing by the front office, the middle-aged proprietor of the establishment stood at the door.

"Your flowers were very pretty, Edna," he told her.

The girl blushed.

"Thank you, sir," she said.

"Would you mind doing a little errand for me on your way home?" he asked her.

"I should be glad to."

"Then stop at the post-office, and ask them for a letter I mailed to the Riverside Paper Company to-day. When you get it, tear it up, and mail this one instead."—Christian Endeavor World.

SENDING HIS LOVE TO CHINA.

A little boy who had been carefully taught to love the missionary cause and to think of the poor little heathen children, showed in a new way that he was thinking of them.

He looked at the sun one evening as it showed quite brightly just before it hid behind the hills. He had been told that the sun rises in China about the time it sets here. He began in a low and thoughtful tone: "Good-by, sun, good-by! Give my love to the little boys in China."—New York Christian Advocate.

A MUSICAL INSECT.

"The Japanese who come to this country to be educated say that our song-birds do not give them half the pleasure and comfort that the insect musicians of their own country do. There are many of these singing insects in Japan, ranking from the squeaking cricket to the highly prized black beetle, that is called susumushi, the name itself meaning insect bell. It is said the sound this little beetle gives forth is very similar to that of the sweetest and most delicate [illegible] ever hell imaginable. It is also said that [illegible] years ago Mr. Takahira, the Japanese [illegible] Washington, had an idea that he would [illegible] these insect musicians, so that we could hear what real music was."

THE BOY LINCOLN.

The first pen Lincoln had was made of a feather of a turkey-buzzard, by his uncle, Dennis Hanks, who also made him some ink out of blackberry briar-root and coperas. His first writing and ciphering were done with a burnt stick on the floor or on a wooden shovel, which was then shaved off, so as to be ready for further writing.

Little "Abe" was taught to read by his mother, who was distinguished because she knew how. His carpenter and farmer father thought all "larnin'" was foolishness, but the mother was wiser, and she made the Bible his reading book. He had read it through three times before he was ten, and never forgot it.—Christian Endeavor World.

PROOF.

"Mamma!" said a little boy, after coming in from a walk, "I've seen a man who makes horses."

"Are you sure?" asked his mother.

"Yes," he replied; "he had one nearly finished when I saw him; he was just nailing on its back feet."—New York Christian Advocate.

REV. J. H. MITCHELL APPRECIATED.

At the fourth quarterly conference of the Iuka Station, North Mississippi Conference, the following resolution was unanimously adopted.

Whereas Rev. J. H. Mitchell is finishing his quadrennium as presiding elder of the Corinth District and this is his last visit to this charge in that capacity; therefore be it

Resolved, That we hereby express our appreciation of the faithful and efficient manner in which he has served us during his four years' term, and that we heartily endorse his administration and commend him to the people to whom he may be appointed to serve as a most capable preacher and worker; and we pray God's richest blessings upon him and his family.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

MEETING OF THE PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

The annual meeting of the Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate will be held in the Advocate office at 2 o'clock p.m. on Thursday, October 28, 1915.

J. M. HENRY, Chairman.

NOT THE WHOLE TRUTH.

The following is from a recent issue of the New York Christian Advocate:

"It was part of Mr. Wesley's wisdom to make entrance to the Methodist Societies easy. Our General Rules preserve the test: 'There is only one conditlon previously required of those who desire admission to these Societies—'a desire to flee from the wrath to come, and to be saved from their sins.' It is an association not of perfected souls, but of those who are earnestly seeking soul-improvement. There is a good deal to be said for Dr. George Wharton Pepper's lay warning to those ministers who take the opposite view: 'The preacher should dispel the impression of the crowd that the Church exists only for the rich in faith.'"

It is true that Mr. Wesley did not insist upon regeneration as a condition for entrance into the Methodist Societies, and that the only indispensable requirement that he prescribed for admission to membership therein was "a desire to flee from the wrath to come and to be saved from their sins." But this lacks much of being all that the great founder of Methodism had to say on this subject. On the contrary, after stating this condition, he immediately proceeded to say in the General Rules laid down for the government of his Societies: "But wherever this desire is really fixed in the soul, it will be shown by its fruits. It is, therefore, expected of all who continue therein that they should continue to evidence their desire of salvation,

"First, By doing no harm, by avoiding evil of every kind, especially that which is most generally practiced" (here follows a catalogue of improper things that are to be shunned).

"It is expected of all who continue in these societies that they should continue to evidence their desire for salvation,

"Secondly, By doing good, by being in every kind merciful after their power; as they have opportunity, doing good of every possible sort, and, as far as possible, to all men" (here follows a more detailed statement as to the kind of good works that members are expected to perform, both to the bodies and souls of their fellow-beings).

"It is expected of all who continue in these So-these Societies that they should continue to evidence their desire for salvation,

"Thirdly, By attending upon all the ordinances of the Church: such are, the public worship of God; the ministry of the Word, either read or expounded; the Supper of the Lord; family and private prayer, searching the Scriptures; and fasting or abstinence."

Having laid down with great care and emphasis these regulations for his Societies, Mr. Wesley concluded his statement concerning this important matter with the following weighty words:

"These are the General Rules of our Societies; all of which we are taught of God to observe, even in his written Word, which is the only rule, and the sufficient rule of both our faith and practice. All these we know his Spirit writes on truly awakened hearts. (Italics his.) If there be any among us who observe them not, who habitually break any of them, let it be known to them who watch over that soul, as they who must give an account. We will admonish him of the error of his ways; we will bear with him for a season; but if then he repent not, he hath no more place among us; we have delivered our own souls."

From the foregoing it will be seen that a good deal more was required of persons who entered and continued in the early Methodist Societies than a mere PROFESSION of "a desire to flee from the wrath to come and to be saved from their sins." They had "to evidence" that profession, to live in harmony with it, if they were to retain their membership. The truth is, if our churches in this day were brought up to Wesley's standard there would be a startling reduction in the number of their members.

We do not think that this utterance of the New York Christian Advocate is needed at this time, when worldliness is prevailing in the various Christian denominations to an appalling, and we fear in some instances to a well-nigh dominating, extent. It sounds too much like an apology for the present lamentable situation in many congregations. The Church, it is true, does not "exist only for the rich in faith"; but certainly it should not embrace in its fold people who, after having their names written upon its registers, sneer at its admonitions, violate its rules, and live in substantially the same manner as the godless thousands on the outside. And to invoke the great name of the saintly Wesley in an effort to create a tolerance for the low standard now existing in the Church is, we think, going entirely too far; especially when the facts do not at all sustain the contention.

Over against this warning of Dr. George Wharton Pepper, that too much should not be expected of church members, might well be placed the following lay utterance by the Editor of the West Point (Miss.) Times (a secular paper), which, in our opinion, is much sounder and much more timely:

"The preaching most needed these days is that directed to the sinners who have their names on church rolls. The conduct of such people tends to keep outsiders away from the churches. Church members who think more of worldly amusements, such as social functions, dominos, euchre, whist and other such clubs, either men or women, than they do of church duties and obligations, are hindering, rather than advancing, the cause of the Master. Of course, the Book says, 'Judge not, that ye be not judged'; but it also says that you are to estimate the tree by the fruit it bears. The preachers will have to get these worldly-minded church members straightened out before they can hope to reach out after the old, hardened sinners. The old sinner knows he has as much ground for hope as the silly, worldly church member has. The mystery is, why some people wish to belong to the Church, anyhow. They are on the downward road, inside or outside."

THE LOUISIANA POLITICAL SITUATION.

The Louisiana gubernatorial campaign, which had been dragging along at a listless rate, has taken on a sudden blaze of interest within the past few days. It began last week, when Attorney-General Pleasant declared himself for local option, stating at the same time that he had always voted against the saloon when the question was up in his parish. A day or two later Lieutenant Governor Barret came out strongly in favor of the extension of the prohibition unit from the parish to the Congressional district, and pledged himself, if elected, to stand for the submission of the question of State-wide prohibition to the people. Dr. Clarence Pierson, a third aspirant for the Democratic nomination for Governor, was then reported in The Item as having taken a stand for local option. Immediately after this came the announcement by Mr. John M. Parker of his candidacy for the office of Governor on the Progressive ticket. Mr. Parker, in his statement, committed himself to woman suffrage and took an aggressive position against prohibition.

Thus it will be seen that the political situation in the State is considerably mixed. The Advocate is not a secular paper, and will take no part in championing specifically the election of any candidate; but we shall watch the developments with a keen interest and comment from time to time upon the moral phases of the issues involved as we may adjudge to be wise and proper. There is no question but that Louisiana most urgently needs a gubernatorial administration that is pitched upon a high plane and which seeks to promote in every legitimate way the cause of moral and civic reform.

THE SUPERANNUATE FUND OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

We are printing in this issue of the Advocate a statement from Rev. John R. Stewart showing the various funds that have been accumulated in the Southern Methodist Church for the benefit of superannuated preachers. The table which he exhibits contains nothing to the credit of the Mississippi Conference. Knowing that that Conference had for some years been raising a fund of this kind, we addressed a note of inquiry concerning the matter to Rev. N. B. Harmon, who has been an active worker in the movement, and in reply he wrote as follows:

"The Mississippi Conference has invested in interest-bearing notes and bonds for superannuates $17,398.58. This includes the nearly $2000 that has been raised for the Galloway Memorial Fund. Instead of now using the interest on this sum for the support of our superannuated preachers, it is being added annually to the principal and reloaned. When the fund becomes $20,000 it will be available for use in taking care of our worn-out veterans."

SOUTHERN METHODIST UNIVERSITY BEGINS WELL.

The Methodist News Bureau, of Nashville, Tenn., sends us the following statement:

"The Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex., began its first session on September 22 with a registration of four hundred, and with more than fifty men in its School of Theology. That is a splendid showing and one in which the entire Church will rejoice. Texas Methodists are expected to do great things, but this showing goes beyond the expectations of the most optimistic. Southern Methodist University should easily enroll five hundred or more students its first session—this with only three departments open. Dallas citizens have raised another fund of $75,000 for increased equipment, thus showing the faith of the people of that city in the Church and in Southern Methodist University."

This is, indeed, a remarkable beginning for a new institution; especially when it is remembered that all our other schools previously at work in Texas are running at full blast. With the strong Methodism of the Lone Star State and of other Annual Conferences west of the Mississippi River behind it, this institution should have a great career.

ONE WAY TO HELP THE PASTOR.

In many of our charges the work of raising the Conference collections devolves wholly upon the pastor. This is often a very laborious task and draws heavily upon both his time and strength. Why not help to make it easier for him by giving or sending him your contribution before he calls to ask for it? Some members do not mind making him come again and again to get what they expect to pay, thus increasing his burdens. Every Methodist ought to give as generously as he can to these absolutely necessary assessments, doing it cheerfully as a privilege, and without waiting for the minister to solicit his subscription. If this were generally done by our people it would save much trouble all around.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Remember our Orphanage "Work Days": Louisiana, Saturday, October 9; Mississippi, Saturday, October 16.

Rev. J. A. Poe, of Sidon, Miss., was engaged in a meeting with Rev. E. M. Shaw at Benoit, Miss., last week. We are uninformed as to the results at this writing.

Rev. J. G. Johnson has recently held a very profitable revival meeting at Black Hawk, Miss. He was ably assisted by Rev. H. M. Ellis, of Memphis, Tenn.

The total enrollment of all our Southern Methodist schools for the session of 1914-15 was 20,380. Nearly all of these institutions have reported a better opening than they had last year.

Revival services were commenced in the Methodist Church at Leesville, La., last Sunday. The pastor, Rev. W. R. Harvell, is being assisted by Rev. W. H. Coleman, presiding elder of the Shreveport District.

Mrs. Boiling, widow of the late Dr. W. T. Boiling, who was widely known in Southern Methodism, died in the Presbyterian Hospital at Chicago on September 7. The body of the deceased was interred in Memphis, Tenn.

Dr. S. H. Werlein, pastor of the First Methodist Church of New Orleans, delivered an impressive discourse to a fine congregation last Sunday morning on "Making a World." First Church is prospering under Dr. Werlein's efficient ministry.

Brother W. T. Bynum, treasurer of the Board of Missions of the North Mississippi Conference, requests us to state that his post-office address is Webb, Miss.—not Corinth, Miss. His correspondents will please take note of this fact and govern themselves accordingly.

Brother W. E. Upchurch, of Ruston, La., wires us as follows: "Last Sunday was a red letter day in the Ruston Methodist Sunday school. Rally Day was observed with an interesting program; we also observed Work Day for the Orphanage. The attendance was 850 and over $200 was raised."

Under date of September 24, Rev. J. H. Foreman, of Silver City, Miss., writes as follows: "We have just closed a good meeting at Holly Bluff. The church was revived and there were 9 additions on profession of faith. Rev. J. E. Williams, of Gloster, did the preaching. To God we give all the praise."

Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, occupied the pulpit of the Parker Memorial Church last Sunday, and preached an interesting sermon to an attentive and appreciative congregation. Brother Holmes is deservedly popular with both the preachers and people in his "diocese."

Rev. A. W. Turner, Superintendent of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League, spent a good portion of last week in New Orleans, and while here paid the Advocate office an appreciated call. Brother Turner is wide awake to the interests of the important work committed to his hands. He is the right man in the right place.

Writing from Port Gibson, Miss., Rev. E. J. Coker says: "On Sunday, September 12, we baptized Winans Persall Wall, the son of Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Wall, of Fitler's, Miss. The youngster is a descendant of Dr. William Winans, of Methodist fame, Dr. T. H. Wall, his father, being a great-grandson of Dr. Winans."

Rev. C. A. Battle, of Baton Rouge, La., was in New Orleans the latter part of last week. He came to meet Mrs. Battle and their little child here, who were on their way home after a visit to relatives in Alabama. Brother Battle reported that the State University at Baton Rouge had had a fine opening, and he spoke quite encouragingly of his work in that city.

Dr. A. R. Holcombe, of Jackson, La., in renewing his subscription to the Advocate, says: "It has been a visitor either in my father's home or my home for 50 years, and should it fail to come, we would miss it." The Advocate has not a few long-time friends who have supported and read it for decades. These are held in especial esteem, in our office.

Mrs. Candler, the wife of Mr. W. B. Candler, a banker at Villa Rica, Ga., and a brother of Bishop W. A. Candler and Mr. Asa Candler, was accidentally killed near her home by a train on the Southern Railway on September 23. She was an active worker in the Methodist Church, and was about 60 years of age. It pains us to chronicle this sad occurrence.

One of the livest churches in Louisiana is our First Church at Baton Rouge. The Sunday school there, of which Brother W. S. Holmes is superintendent, is superbly organized and aflame with enthusiasm. The Rally Day literature of this congregation was equal to any that we have ever seen prepared to awaken interest on such an occasion.

Prof. R. L. Flowers, of Trinity College, Durham, N. C., says: "We have had a fine opening and everything has started off with indications that this will be one of the best years that Trinity College has ever had." Southern Methodism has reason to be proud of this splendid institution, which has made such an excellent record in bygone years, and which is still forging forward."

Writing under date of September 21, Rev. W. M. Williams says: "We will leave the Orphanage at Jackson next Thursday, and will board at Mt. Olive, from which point I will serve the Seminary work until Conference. Rev. G. H. Thompson, presiding elder of the Hattiesburg District, requested me to render this service, as Brother Stepp, the pastor at Seminary, had given up his charge."

Rev. E. C. Grice, our pastor at Natalbany, La., organized a few months ago the first Methodist Sunday school that has ever been conducted at that place. He believes that the Louisiana Conference should put a Methodist Sunday-school missionary into the field and states his school stands ready to contribute to the support of such a worker. Brother Grice manifestly has this cause much on his heart.

We extract the following from a letter from Bishop Waterhouse, written from Los Angeles on September 18: "It does not seem that I shall be able to come East soon, but I am improving and believe that help is reaching me through the prayers of the Church. I am almost entirely neglecting my correspondence. Assure the brethren of my love and my desire to be constantly remembered in their supplications."

Rev. S. A. Brown, of Okolona, Miss., has issued a printed card to the members of his congregation with a view to infusing new life into the fall work in his charge. He has designated the first Sunday in October as "New Start Day;" the second Sunday as "Rally Day in the Sunday School;" the third Sunday as "Orphans' Home Day," and the fourth Sunday as "Sunday School Promotion Day." Our Okolona pastor is a hustler.

Dr. John M. Moore, Secretary of Home Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, spent last Friday in New Orleans, conferring with Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, and others concerning our mission work in this city. He found time to drop into our sanctum and spend a few minutes, and we greatly enjoyed our brief season of fellowship with him. Dr. Moore left for Tampa, Fla., on Friday night.

A meeting of representatives of the Louisiana, Memphis, Arkansas, and Mississippi Conferences was held in Memphis last Thursday evening to consider the question of uniting in the publication of a church paper, but nothing in the way of a merger resulted from the consultation. The general consensus of opinion was that it would be a serious mistake for the Southern Methodist Church to cease to issue a paper in the city of New Orleans.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions to the Advocate, sent in within the past few days: Rev. J. A. Goad, New Albany, Miss., 6; Rev. G. P. White, Plaquemine, La., 3; Rev. W. L. Blackwell, Van Cleave, Miss., 2; Rev. J. A. Poe, Sidon, Miss., 4; Rev. J. D. Harper, Zachary, La., 5; Rev. G. A. Morgan, Opelousas, La., 2; Rev. A. D. George, Mangham, La., 9; Rev. M. M. Black, Canton, Miss., 2; Rev. Algie O. Oliver, Eden, Miss., 2; Dr. J. M. Henry, Ruston, La., 2.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary of the North Mississippi Conference, says: "In all the meetings that I hold I urge the people to take the Advocate. I also try to get the paper before our people by endeavoring to have extracts read from it in our Sunday schools. My work is planned ahead from now until the middle of November." Brother Gladney has been a diligent toiler ever since he was appointed to his present work and seems to be accomplishing substantial results. We appreciate his efforts in behalf of the Conference organ.

In a business letter to our office, Rev. W. S. Selman, of Mt. Pleasant, Miss., appends the following note: "I have just closed my fourth protracted meeting with fine success. I was assisted by Rev. R. L. Ellis, of the U. S. A. Presbyterian Church, at New Salem; Rev. W. N. Duncan, of Holly Springs, helped me at Union and Mt. Pleasant, and Brother Estes, of Collierville, Tenn., was with me at Marshall Institute. The meetings at Mt. Pleasant and Marshall Institute were the best that I have attended in a long time. The churches were greatly revived and there were 21 additions."

We have received from Rev. B. F. Lewis, of Crystal Springs, Miss., a neat folder that had been generally circulated in his community, which reads as follows: "This is to remind you that next Sunday, Sept. 26, is Commencement Sunday at the Methodist Sunday School, and you are earnestly requested to come and bring some one with you. We have an attractive program." We dare say that the distribution of this folder produced good results and that our Crystal Springs Sunday school was up to the high-water mark last Sunday. Brother Lewis is in the best sense a Sunday school pastor and knows how to awaken an interest among the people in this important work.

Rev. N. B. Harmon, pastor of our First Church at Gulfport, Miss., writes: "We planned a great church rally here for September 19, having with us on that day Dr. W. F. McMurry, Secretary of our General Board of Church Extension. The occasion was in every respect quite a success. Dr. McMurry used the morning hour in the interest of our church debt. He is a prince of platform orators and knows just what to do and say in meeting such an emergency. We realized in that service subscriptions amounting to $17,110, payable in five yearly installments. To this we are still adding. My time since Sunday has been occupied in getting these subscriptions into notes, some of which are bankable."

Our Church at Lake Charles, La., started four Christmas packages to Wembo, Niama, the seat of our African mission, some days ago, being especially interested in that field because two of the workers in it, Mr. and Mrs. Stockwell, went out from Lake Charles. It will take these packages, because of the disarranged mail service incident to the European war, from now until toward the last of December to reach their destination. We have in hand a clipping from the Daily American-Press of Lake Charles which gives a very interesting description of the make-up of these packages and the route by which they will go to Wembo Niama that we hope to publish in an early issue of the Advocate.

Mr. Thomas White Dean and Miss Dorothy Jessie, both of Oakdale, La., were married in the Methodist Church at that place at 4 o'clock p.m. on Sept. 12, Rev. B. H. Sheppard officiating. Mr. Dean is the efficient stenographer of the Bowman-Hicks Lumber Company, and is held in high esteem by all who know him. Mrs. Dean is a most superior young lady, whose strength of character and many attractive qualities have won for her a host of friends. Her home was formerly in Texas, but for some time she had been residing in Oakdale with her sister, Mrs. B. F. Thompson. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the popular young couple were the recipients of a large number of handsome presents.

Chaplain J. A. Randolph, of the United States Army, who is now at El Paso, Texas, with the Sixth Infantry, with which he is connected, received a few days since the following message from Dr. R. A. Elwood, pastor of the Boardwalk Church at Atlantic City: "I am happy to announce to you that you were unanimously elected Chaplain-in-Chief of the United Spanish War Veterans at the National Encampment, held August 30 to Sept. 1, at Scranton, Penn." This high honor came to Brother Randolph when he was not present at the encampment and had no knowledge whatever that his name would be presented for consideration. His many friends in Mississippi and elsewhere will be gratified to learn that this distinction has been accorded him, feeling assured that he will meet worthily any responsibility which it may impose upon him.

TO OUR PREACHERS.

The management of this Advocate has decided to let our preachers and agents offer six months trial subscriptions at 50 cents during August, September and October. This offer will be withdrawn on the 10th of November, 1915. Subscriptions must be sent in in clubs and money orders used in making remittances so as to save expense.

In soliciting new subscribers, please explain to them that the six months' subscriptions are taken with the understanding that, after their expiration, the regular rate of $1.50 will be charged for annual subscriptions unless they are ordered canceled.

We are making this offer for a three-fold purpose:

First—To build up our subscription list before the annual meeting of the Publishing Committee.

Second—To get funds to help tide us over the summer and fall months.

Third—To induce our Methodist people to take the Conference Organ and read it.

The subject of this tribute, Mrs. MARY E. KIMBROUGH, was born on August 2, 1857, and departed from this life on August 21, 1915. She experienced faith in Jesus Christ in her early teens and ever afterwards lived a bright and happy Christian life. She was married to John N. Kimbrough on Dec. 23, 1907. This was a happy union and love was the ruling influence which made their home a happy one. She was a strong Christian character, and though she was never very strong physically and suffered a great deal, she was never heard to murmur or complain. On the contrary, she bore her afflictions patiently and had an unswerving faith in the resurrection of the just at the last day. So sleep on, dear one, and take thy rest; God took thee; He knew best. So grieve not, dear husband and children, as those who have no hope, for we shall see her again. She has entered into that rest that remains for the people of God. The taking of her away is sad—separation, it always brings sadness—but let the bereaved ones strive the harder to so live as to be able to meet the wife and mother in the sweet by and by. Her pastor, T. L. OAKS.

Mrs. MAY TIMMS QUINN, wife of D. H. Quinn and daughter of J. B. and Mrs. L. A. Timms, was born at Buena Vista, Texas, on March 13, 1869. When a small child her parents moved to Mississippi. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in 1884; attended the I. I. & C., at Columbus, Miss., in 1886; married on April 29, 1888, and became the mother of seven children, all of whom are living. For twenty or more years she had been frail—practically a shut-in. These years were not spent in vain. She kept abreast of the times and managed her home wisely and well. She had an unusually brilliant mind, well stored with the best literature. She was a mother indeed; her children are living expressions of her noble, true life and laudable ambition. She loved her Church dearly, prayed for her pastor, and found pleasure in meeting all obligations to the cause of Christianity. God's word was food for her soul. She loved it ardently because it fed her spiritually. She also loved it for the beauty and richness of its literature. A loyal, loving wife, a devoted, wise mother, a genuine, warm-hearted friend, a valuable, helpful member of our Church left us on Sunday night, September 12, for the prepared mansions. She made the world better by passing through it. May her promising sons and daughters and the faithful, kind husband ever live the Christian principles that dominated the mother and wife. What a wholesome and inspiring heritage she left them and all others who knew her!

MARRIAGES.

At the bride's sister's home, at Smithville, Miss., on Sept. 16, 1915, by Rev. W. M. Young, Mr. H. M. FOWLER, of Tecumseh, Oklahoma, and Miss JOSEPHINE McKINNEY, of Smithville, Miss. They will make their home in Tecumseh, Oklahoma.

At the Methodist parsonage, in Amory, Miss., on Sept. 18, 1915, by Rev. W. M. Young, Mr. W. W. THACKER and Miss LENA OLIVE SMALLWOOD, both of Amory, Miss.

At the residence of Mr. E. E. Morgan, at McCool, Miss., on Sept. 22, 1915, by Rev. S. W. Yowell, Mr. J. M. EATON and Mrs. HENRIETTA MORGAN.

MEMOIR OF MRS. TENNESSEE COOPER WAGGONER.

About 1820 there lived in the State of Tennessee two very prominent families—the Cooper and the Thomas families. It seems that the Thomas family moved first from Tennessee to Alabama, and later the Coopers went to Alabama and settled near Florence. On Jan. 10, 1837, Mr. Thomas Jamison Cooper and Miss Mira Lewis Thomas were married and in 1839 moved to Grenada County, Miss., and later to Madison County, Miss., and settled in Couparle City, and in 1850 went to Leake County and settled between the Natchez Trace and Robinson Road, known in Methodist history. By inheritance they came into possession of Aunt Polly Warren's home, and such men as Rev. Newton Vick, John Lane, Lorenzo Dow, Tommie Owens, and other great men who traveled by the stage-coach stopped at her inn or tavern and were entertained. At Aunt Polly's death she gave to the Cooper family several hundred acres of land and several negroes.

Mrs. Tennessee Cooper Waggoner was born in Couparle City, Madison County, Miss., May 24, 1847; was married to W. C. Waggoner on Dec. 15, 1870, and spent her life on the old Polly Warren place. Six children were born to her: five boys, as noble young men as Leake County affords, and a splendid daughter, who married Brother Presley. These, with the husband and Brother Sing Cooper and one sister, Mrs. Ed. Waggoner, remain to mourn her going away. These are prominent members of the Methodist Church. Her brother, T. L. Cooper, was sheriff of Leake County for many years, State Senator from Leake County, and also State Senator from Tate County. On Feb. 7, 1915, after severe suffering, she went to heaven to join her loved ones gone before. The beautiful rites of her Church were read at the grave by her pastor, Rev. C. C. Griffin. Her body was laid underneath the sod in the cemetery at Bethel to await the resurrection. No better woman ever lived. In 1899 this writer had a schoolhouse appointment called Rocky which was the beginning of a great revival and of a church. In July, 1900, I baptized her and received her into the Church. She and her entire family became members of the Bethel Church. Her son-in-law, Brother Presley, and his boys became official members of this Church and are among the most honored citizens of Leake County. No better home could be found in Leake County. No better man than W. C. Waggoner ever lived there. He was devoted to his wife and children. Sister Waggoner was very quiet, tender, and devout, and remarkably devoted to her husband and children. It was indeed a great benediction to be in their home and to think over the past and of the great characters once there, and now it seems so hard to the devoted family to have the home broken up. The husband and children no doubt realize that they are bereft of their best friend. May God in his tender mercy sustain them and keep them loyal to the Church and on the road to heaven. Sister Waggoner is gone, but not forever. Cheer up; we shall see her again.

MISSIONS IN BRAZIL.

In Brazil, which occupies one-half of the continent, the oldest form of permanent Protestant work is the Church of England, which dates back to 1810. Lutheran Church worship was introduced with the coming of the first German colonist in the period of 1820-25; Lutherans are numerous in the southern states.

The present form of Protestant work in the Portuguese language dates from the year 1858. In all there are about 250 foreign and 375 native workers engaged in various forms of evangelical effort. The most prominent and successful methods of work are the regular preaching of the gospel, the circulation of the Scriptures and other religious literature, and primary and secondary schools. There is now some form of Protestant work carried on in each of the twenty states and in the federal district, though the forces are by no means adequate to the demands, and there are millions yet untouched by Christian influences. The native Indian population, scattered through the great interior of the country, affords a large, open field for missionary cultivation; up to the present, no Protestant work of a permanent nature has been done there. In many towns which travelers do not ordinarily visit there are important missionary institutions, as, for instance, the Evangelical College (Presbyterian), at Lavras, and Granbery College, the Girls' School, and the Publishing House (all Methodist), at Juiz de Fora, and others.

THE LAYMEN'S MOVEMENT.

of the Church as a standing committee during the next quadrennium "to encourage our laymen to organize for effective service, to promote a systematic Church-wide distribution of literature bearing upon Christian stewardship and missionary information, to report to the next General Conference the progress made in the enlistment of our laymen in the various forms of Christian service, and to which shall be referred all matters pertaining to their work." This committee is the Executive Committee of the Laymen's Missionary Movement of our Church, and is authorized to enlist the laymen in the various forms of Christian service, and report the progress made to the next Conference.

Again it endorsed most heartily this movement in the following words: "The Laymen's Missionary Movement is recognized as a providential movement among Christian men and is welcomed as a pledge of a closer alignment of the men of the Church with the great awakening of the Church of God of to-day. The laymen of the Church are authorized to co-operate with their pastors in a more aggressive evangelism, to develop missionary interest and intelligence, and to promote lay activity and liberality in co-operation with the regular constituted boards of the Church." See Discipline (1914), Paragraph 425, Article XXX.

This Conference did not stop here, but gave more specific directions for the organization of the laymen. Paragraph 68 of its Discipline reads, "Let every Annual Conference, at its first session after the General Conference, appoint a Board of Lay Activities to consist of the Conference Lay Leader, who shall be Chairman of the Board, and the District Lay Leader from each presiding elder's district, the duties of this Board to consist of considering plans for the better support of the ministry, the larger activity of the laymen in evangelistic work, and co-operation with the other Conference Boards in executing their plans for larger service in all Church work." In paragraph 70 the District Lay Leader and the charge lay leaders were made members of the District Conference, and these constitnted the committee on lay activities for the district under paragraph 80. In paragraph 81, the charge Lay Leader, the Church Lay Leader, the chairman of the Evangelistic Committee, the chairman of the Social Service Committee were made members of the Quarterly Conference, and this Quarterly Conference was charged, in paragraph 91, item 5, with the duty of seeing that each Church had elected a Church Lay Leader and a Missionary Committee, an Evangelistic Committee and a Social Committee, and these committees are required to report to the Quarterly Conference.

From these provisions it will readily be seen that this General Conference entertained the highest ideals for the cultivation of the laymen of the Church and put them in touch with its every activity: it was no longer a mere movement but was actively incorporated in the polity of the Church; an activity for the purpose of training and equipping men for efficient service in all departments of church work and sending them forth into every field of Christian activity.

Reports from the North Mississippi Conference show that our people here have not caught this extended vision of the laymen's work, that while they are obeying the letter of the law in electing the leaders and committees, they are not obeying the spirit by making these committees of activities. It appears to be a movement without a move, and to call them committees of Lay Activities would be a misnomer. Our people are making an outward show, but will reap no beneficial results unless they do more. What has been done is truly shown in the report of the committee on Lay Activities for the Durant District Conference (which report is a most excellent paper and deserves close study). This report states the condition in the following language: "It appears to this committee, however, from the best information at hand, that the necessary organization has been perfected in the various charges throughout this district by the appointment of the committees and leaders, as is contemplated and required by the Discipline; and while this committee does not desire in any sense to sound a discordant note, yet when this is said that about ends the chapter so far as real work and results are concerned. Like some piece of perfect machinery that has been installed for the accomplishment of some great end, but which stands useless and idle because the steam has never been applied, so stands the great field of lay activities in the Durant District to-day. We have the necessary machinery at our command, and it has been properly installed; we have the men—the field is open, the opportunity is now at our door; yet, notwithstanding all this, we seem impotent, inactive and inert; nothing, it seems, is being done, and we can see and feel no real results."

A sad story is here told, and sadder too is the fact that the same condition is prevalent throughout our Annual Conference. Outer forms of religion strictly complied with, inner grace lacking; perfect machinery installed, sufficient and needful laborers present, but steam has never been supplied, the men and machinery has not been touched with the Divine fire, so that the men have become a moving and active power bringing forth results. A dead and fruitless formalism! The Scribes and Pharisees did as well; they were very strict in their obedience to the letter of the law, but with what result? Hear the anathema of the Savior contained in St. Matthew 23:23-28: "Woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone. Ye blind guides, which strain at a gnat and swallow a camel. Woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess. Thou blind Pharisee, cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be clean also. Woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness. Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity." Shall we then have the same condemnation passed upon us, and, by our inattention, inactivity and lack of spiritual power, suffer this machinery to become full of men who are spiritually dead?

Upon whom rests the chief responsibility for the proper organization and development of the laymen in each church? Primarily the duty is imposed on the lay leader elected by the quarterly and church conferences; and these lay leaders should be the most active, intelligent and spiritual members of the church; but since the laymen have been so greatly neglected in the past so far as church work is concerned, it is often very difficult to find a layman with elements of leadership that will enable him to properly develop his fellows, and inspire them with the spirit essential to success; since the pastor is charged with the duty of seeing "that all the ordinances and regulations of the Church be duly observed," and having been moved by the Holy Ghost to preach the Gospel, and having confessed before the Church that he has the love of God abiding in him, and desires nothing but God, and that he is holy in all manner of conversation, and having been examined by a proper committee and been found to have gifts for the work, and a clear, sound understanding, a right judgment in the things of God, a just conception of salvation by faith, the chief duty will fall on the pastor of each charge to inaugurate the movement and to instruct and train the men until they shall have sufficient knowledge and spirit to accomplish the work. In fact the Discipline provides that "It shall be the duty of the preacher in charge to preach frequently on the subject of missions, to organize the Missionary Committee, and to hold Missionary Mass Meetings annually in every church in his charge; to see that a canvass is made of every member early in the conference year for a missionary contribution." Yet from all reports, the laymen and pastor have done very little to put into operation the machinery provided, and as a result the thing is inert, useless, dead, and if some life is not instilled into it, it will become an incumbrance and a stench.

Then why has the pastor neglected so great a work and opportunity? Does he not see in it a great help to himself in his own labors, and a great force for evangelizing the world? Has he not already seen that the world cannot be taken for Christ without the assistance of the laymen? Therefore, why not use every effort to develop the latent powers of the laymen, secure their co-operation and bring them into action through disciplinary measures?

It has been offered as an excuse, that the pastor is so burdened with the care of so many interests to look after, that he does not have the time to devote to this new organization. Not the time to look after the spiritual interest of nearly one-half of the church membership, and that part, too, that has always been regarded as the mainstay and support of the Church. From the laymen the Church draws its entire ministerial supply, its official boards, its stewards, its trustees, and almost all of its superintendents of its Sunday schools; almost the entire administration of the Church is through the laymen; of the five conferences the laymen membership is in the minority in only one, and in the majority in three. And still other work presses the pastor so hard that he has not the time to devote to the cultivation of the great mass of laymen, who are idle for the lack of proper leadership. Besides, among the laymen will be found the heads of almost all the families of the church, and these men move and direct and influence the lives of the children of the church. These men have been neglected so long that a great cry has gone up that the family altar is fast disappearing from the homes, and the call to the ministry is on the decline. Should the laymen be properly developed and trained in proper service we would see new altars erected in the homes and the Holy Spirit would move and call more young men to the ministry. The decadence of religion in the homes is the greatest peril of the day. Yet the pastor has not the time to devote to building up these great interests!

John Wesley, the great founder of Methodism, though one of the busiest of men, travelling almost constantly and usually preaching three times a day, was not so busy that he neglected the development of his laymen. Though he traveled, mostly on horseback, 250,000 miles and preached 43,000 sermons, and wrote about 200 books and pamphlets for future generation, among them a treatise of diseases of the body, still he had the time to look after the physical and spiritual condition of the laymen. But our pastor, with all the conveniences of the 20th century, in stations and circuits, with churches not far apart relatively, has no time to look after their spiritual interest when they are crying to him to come over and help. The great trouble is not the lack of time, but the lack of ability to properly and systematically conserve the time—the lack of that system that caused John Wesley to be called "Methodist."

Some have interposed the objection that they are opposed to organization, that the church is too much organized already, and we need no more. To answer this objection would consume too much space for this article and will have to be reserved for another communication.

Carthage, Miss.

Dear Mr. Editor: We recently held a meeting at Mount Horeb on the Carthage charge. Mount Horeb takes the place of the M. E. Church, South, congregation that worshiped in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church at Pleasant Hill. This congregation has built and painted as fine a little church as you generally see in the country. It was named for the place where the Lord met Moses in the burning bush. The presence of the Holy Spirit was manifest in this meeting from the beginning to the end; there were quite a number of conversions and reclamations, and 10 additions to the Church. The pastor began the meeting at 11 o'clock on August 22 and it continued until the afternoon of August 29. The meeting was said to be the best that this community had ever experienced. Rev. N. S. Loftus, of the Lena charge, came to me Monday night and did the preaching until Saturday night. Brother Loftus is what we sometimes call a live wire; his preaching is forceful and convincing. He is a native of South Africa, being of Scotch-Irish descent. He has been preaching for only about two years, but I regard him as one of our coming preachers. He is good help in a meeting and any one needing assistance would be fortunate to secure his services.—C. C. Griffin, P. C.

Sweatman, Miss.

Dear Mr. Editor: As we are through with our revival meetings on the Mar's Hill Circuit we will give to the readers of the Advocate a short account of our year's work to date. This is our third year on this charge, and in many ways it has been the best of the three. We have held five revival meetings, one at each of the five churches on the charge. We began here at Hopewell, our home church, on the fourth Sunday in July. Rev. J. E. Cunningham, of Greenwood, came to us on Tuesday following, and preached throughout the remainder of the meeting, which closed on the following Saturday with the third quarterly conference. It is needless to say that Brother Cunningham acquitted himself well. The prevailing opinion of all that heard him was that he could preach. There were some conversions, and reciamations took place, and the entire church was strengthened as a result of this meeting.....Our next meeting was at Gore Springs on the second Sunday in August. One of our own boys preachers, Rev. S. H. Coffey, assisted us for a week. We had a good revival; there were some few professions of faith and several pledged themselves to live a better life.....Our next meeting began on the fourth Sunday in August at Chapel Hill, where I was assisted by Rev. T. L. Houston, of Slate Spings, Miss., who did most of the preaching, and did it well—six members were received on profession of faith.....On the fifth Sunday in August we began at Mar's Hill. The pastor did all the preaching until Thursday, when Rev. R. H. B. Gladney dropped in on us and gave us four good and helpful sermons. As a result of this meeting we received 24 members into the Church; 21 of these were on profession of faith, all of whom were members of the Sunday school at this place, and 3 by certificate. A prayer-meeting was also started by the young men.....On the first Sunday in September we went to New Hope—a new church organized twelve months ago and located 1¼ miles east of Grenada—where we found a beautiful new church (completed with the exception of the ceiling) with a membership of 25 persons. We were greeted by a good congregation. Here the pastor did all the preaching except at one service. On Tuesday we hitched up old Charley (dear Brother T. G. Freeman), who gave us a splendid sermon. His presence was a benediction to all of us. We had with us in this meeting dear Brother Elliott of Holcomb, Miss., and he was of great help to us. We had a great meeting—I suppose that there were at least 60 people blessed by it. We received 38 members into the Church, all on profession of faith except one, organized a prayer-meeting, to be held on Thursday night of each week, and on the Sunday following organized a Sunday school with at least 75 pupils. We are expecting still greater things of the Lord. To God be all the glory!—W. J. Wood, P. C.

Pickens, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We have closed our protracted meetings with good results. The Lord has been with us. We have had good revivals—about 30 additions to the Church. We were assisted in two of our meetings by two of the preachers of the Conference. Rev. T. H. Dorsey was with us at Goodman, and he is too well-known to need any words of praise from me; his preaching was of a very high order. Rev. E. N. Broyles was with us at Pickens. Brother Broyles is a splendid man—one of our best preachers—and a very bright future awaits him.

I have just returned from a few days' stay with my home people near Middleton, Tenn. I was with Brother Holland of the Memphis Conference in a meeting while there. We sometimes say that the old-time power is gone, but this is not so; and this meeting was a refutation of that notion. I do not remember to have ever seen such a manifestation of God's power as was shown. Old and young praised God together. Fifty or more were converted and reclaimed. Three old people past seventy-four were converted and received into the Church; children ten and twelve years old would stand up and tell what God had done for them. I think the result of that meeting will give the Church two or three preachers. It was truly a great meeting.

We have had a good year and will close out in fine shape. We are trying to leave things in as good a condition for our successor as we can. We have just made some improvements that were much needed. Any man should feel honored to serve such a good and loyal people.—J. D. Simpson, P. C.

Farmerville, La.

Dear Mr. Editor: As the Conference year is rapidly coming to a close we wish to give you a few items concerning our work for this year. Our work is located in what is known as "the hills," which we think one of the most pleasant places in the Conference to live in. Our people are mostly poor, but they are intellectually equal to the best. We have a splendid High School and our coming generation is getting fine mental training. God grant that their spiritual training may also be assiduously cared for. Our membership is small, but the future is promising, as we have a number of choice boys and girls coming into the Church. During the month of August we held protracted meetings at both of our appointments, Farmerville and Marion. In the former, Rev. T. H. Morris, of Mansfield, assisted and did some excellent preaching. The church was aroused by his spiritual and doctrinal sermons. People were set to thinking and searching the Scriptures. In the latter, Rev. A. R. Rogers, of Strong, Ark., assisted. Brother Rogers is a chosen vessel in the hands of the Lord. He sounded the old-time Methodistic note, insisting upon genuine repentance, regeneration (not reformation), and complete consecration. The membership was lifted to "higher ground," there were 4 accessions, and a number of certificates were sent for. While we haven't seen the results we wished for, we feel that the year's labor has not been in vain. Brethren, pray for us, that this fertile field may be properly tilled and that precious sheaves may be harvested for our God.—A. J. Coburn, P. C.

THE LEXINGTON (MISS.) REVIVAL.

What is generally admitted to be the greatest revival this community has ever experienced came to a close Wednesday night in the big tabernacle in the school yard. After almost four weeks of continuous effort, with from two to four services each day, great crowds came up to the very last, with constantly increasing interest and enthusiasm. The results already attained have been highly gratifying to the leaders in the movement, and have been of incalculable and far-reaching benefit to the town and the whole surrounding country. The number of professions of faith and reclamations will probably run well over a hundred, and yet mere figures cannot begin to measure the real significance and influence of this meeting. The whole community has been awakened, hundreds of lives have been touched and uplifted, public sentiment has been crystallized along certain very definite lines, and a number of practical reforms have already been made possible. People in the various churches have been drawn closer together, numbers of persons have agreed to bury all differences between themselves and their neighbors. The drug stores have bowed to public sentiment and have voluntarily agreed to observe the Sunday closing laws, and the slot machines which had become dangerous to public morals in the cultivation of the gambling spirit, have already disappeared, it is to be hoped never to dare lift their heads again in Lexington.

The executive committee which had in charge the management of the evangelistic campaign, consisting of the most prominent business and professional men of the town, has called a mass meeting at the courthouse Friday night to perfect the organization of a Civic League, the object of which will be to conserve by united action along many lines the general welfare of the community.

A fact worthy of note about this whole campaign is that it did not require the services of a professional evangelist to secure a great revival. The preaching has been done entirely by the local pastors—Rev. V. C. Curtis, of the Methodist Church, Rev. E. T. Mobberly, of the Baptist Church, and Rev. G. T. Gillespie, of the Presbyterian Church. The methods have been aggressive and there has been plenty of enthusiasm and profound emotions have been stirred, but there has been no objectionable excitement or sensationalism. It is felt everywhere that the results for these reasons will be permanent and far-reaching.

The success of the meetings has been due not a little to the work of Rev. S. E. Kirby, of Little Rock, the evangelistic singer, who organized and directed the splendid choir, and whose splendid solo work did much to attract and hold the enormous crowds that came night after night. His enthusiastic work among the young people stimulated them to take a very active part in the meeting and resulted in a number of conversions. The last few days of the meeting Mr. Kirby was ably assisted by Mr. Canzoneri, a young Italian, who is a candidate for the ministry and a student at Mississippi College. Both these brethren carry with them in their work the good will and grateful appreciation of the good people of Lexington.

Had Pellagra; Is Now Well.

Ringgold, La.—Mrs. S. A. Cotter, of this place, writes: "Will say that I am perfectly well and the happiest soul on earth. Wish every pellagra sufferer could know of your great remedy. I know how to appreciate health and sympathize with those that are not so blest as I. Am growing stronger, gaining in weight, and can do anything I ever could. Oh, I know I am well of that horrible disease, and my heart is full of rejoicing. I feel that I have come out of a dense cloud into the blessed sunshine. God be praised! He has spared my life for some good, and I feel that I have just begun to live."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn; skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with much mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., Box 587X, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—Adv.

WHERE DRUGS FAIL.

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from Shivar Mineral Water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other conditions due to impure blood, do not hesitate to accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer as printed below. His records show that only two in a hundred on the average have reported "no beneficial results." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful spring. Simply sign the following letter:

"SPEECHES OF THE FLYING SQUADRON."

The great Flying Squadron campaign closed in Atlantic City, N. J., Sunday, June 6. It began in Peoria, Ill., Wednesday, September 30—lasting 8 months and six days before. Between these two dates and these two cities the Squadron left a Continental Trail 65,000 miles in length, over which it reached every State in the Union—255 cities—for a series of three days' meetings—held more than 1500 public meetings, delivered more than 3500 addresses, and spoke to a million and a half people!

These speeches, taken as a whole, lift the temperanee eause to a higher plane of discussion than it has ever before been lifted. They are epoch-making addresses—forged in the hot fires of a tremendous eampaign. Dynamic with spiritual power, big with moral truth, they are quick with human interest, and clothed withal with an eloquence that lifts them far above the commonplace. For reference purposes they are invaluable, and as reading matter, filled with entertainment and instruction. From the printer's standpoint it is a handsome volume of 400 pages, elegantly bound in gold lettered, dark red silk cloth.

It is published in answer to a widespread and urgent demand from every section of the country. In addition to the addresses there is much biographical and descriptive matter. No such a collection of temperance oratory has ever been published or assembled. The contributors are: J. Frank Hanly, four years Governor of Indiana; Oliver Wayne Stewart, former member of Illinois Legislature; Daniel A. Poling, President's Associate, United Society of Christian Endeavor; Ira Landrith, former President of Ward-Belmont College; Mrs. Ella A. Boole, President New York State W. C. T. U; Clarence True Wilson, General Secretary, Temperance Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Mrs. Ella Seass Stewart, former President Illinois Equal Suffrage Ass'n; John B. Lewis, Vice Chairman Prohibition National Committee; Wilbur Fletcher Sheridan, General Secretary Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Eugene W. Lime Against Tuberculosis

In the May 25, 1912, issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association appeared this statement concerning calcium (lime) medication in the treatment of tuberculosis:

"Under the systematic, continued and persistent regime of calcium assimilation, Van Gelson has seen a number of his patients improve. The sputum clears up of tubercle bacilli, which finally disappear, and the patients are discharged with healed pulmonary tuberculosis."

Ethical journals seldom speak so positively about a remedial agent, yet this testimony coincides with that from many consumptives who have secured like results through the use of Eckman's Alterative.

Since calcium is a constituent of this remedy, its healing power may be due to the way this element is so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Eckman's Alterative contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so it is safe to try. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

MISSION STUDY CAMPAIGN.

October is the Mission Study Campaign month. Begin now to make a systematic campaign of your community and try to enlist every woman, girl, and child in one of these classes. The books selected for the study course are attractive reading matter, as well as calculated to stimulate missionary interest. Enroll your classes and report on the enrollment card that will be sent you; also we will esteem it quite a favor if each class is reported to us as to number of members and books used; and we trust each class will take up the books recommended in this message in the order given.

The books selected for the study of conditions at home are: Adult—"Home Missions in Action," by Mrs. John Allen; price 30 cents. Young People—"John Williams, Ship-builder," by Basil Mathews; not yet ready, but will be in plenty of time for the opening of the course. Juniors—"All Along the Trail," by Sarah Gertrude Pemeroy, 25 cents.

Study of conditions in other lands are: Adult—"The King's Highway," by Mrs. Montgomery, price 30 cents. Young People—"Comrades in Service," by Margaret Burton, price 40 cents. Juniors—"Around the World with Jack and Janet," by Norma Waterbury, price 25 cents.

With all the auxiliaries studying the same subject at the same time, a greater enthusiasm, deeper interest, and larger sense of responsibility will result. We would suggest, therefore, that each adult auxiliary take up the study of "Home Missions in Action" first; each young people's auxillary, "John Williams, Ship-builder," and each junior, "All Along the Trail." Suggestions for using these books will be given in the October Bulletin. This course can easily be finished in six weeks; then take the other books recommended, making a grand finale of a course of Bible study, all of which will be mapped out and given in the Conference Bulletin from month to month.

Trusting that every auxiliary in the Conference will make a careful and prayerful study of the Mission Study course, I am faithfully,

Mrs. WALTER CAMPBELL.

CORINTH DISTRICT MEETING.

The Woman's Missionary Conference of the Corinth District was held in the beautiful little city of Iuka, July 22-23. The unstinted hospitality of the people, combined with the fine health-giving spring water and beautiful natural scenery, made our stay pleasant indeed.

The efficient District Secretary, Miss Corinne Rogers, presided with dignity and ease. The program was interesting from beginning to end. Mrs. Vic Thompson Hoyle, of Tupelo, delivered a masterly address on "Missions," which, I am sure, gave all a broader vision of our Master's command, "Go preach the gospel to every creature." Miss Mary Massey, formerly from Iuka, but now in the service of our Board of Missions, gave a fine address on "Our Work in Mexico." Miss Olivia Pegram spoke to the Conference on "What Scarritt Has Meant to Me;" Miss Mary Daniel delivered two fine addresses—one on "Social Service" and the other on "Our Work in the Home Fields." Other prominent speakers were Mrs. Nash, of Corinth, and Mrs. Copeland, of Iuka.

On Friday afternoon Mrs. Hoyle conducted a praise service which was both inspiring and uplifting. We felt indeed and in truth that we sat together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. I have often heard of men of vision, but this Missionary Conference impressed me as a body of women with a broad vision of the needs of man.

I am sure that great good will come from this Conference to the Corinth District, and to the entire North Mississippi Conference. May God bless and lead in the great work that our women are doing for lost humanity.

Before I close, I must speak of my visit to our Young Women's Co-operative Home in Corinth. This home is presided over by our own beloved deaconess, Miss Mary Daniel, and I found there an ideal home and Miss Daniel in great favor. I observed that the good people from several towns were responding to Miss Daniel's call for "linens," owing to our loss in the fire that destroyed the laundry. If our people more fully knew just what our Co-operative Home is, they would give it a more liberal support.

Mrs. O. P. ARMOUR.

Booneville, Miss.

MULTUM IN PARVO.

For the benefit of those who think there is no way by which we can get in a Mission Study, Bible and Prayer Circle, along with the several (?) lines of work in operation, I will give the Ruston plan.

We hold two meetings each month—one a business and one a social meeting. The business meeting is opened with a short Bible lesson, and the leader assigns a portion of Scripture for home study. The Publicity Superintendent gives a subject for prayer; we get through with the business in one hour, and then proceed to the mussion study, preferring to remain two hours one afternoon rather than one hour two afternoons, and then nearly all the members remain; whereas if we met for the study class alone only those who take the books would attend. This seems to be a good plan for getting in the opening wedge, and may develop into something better.

Mrs. A. C. McKINNEY.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

The District Meeting of the Hattiesburg District, held recently at Petal, was an occasion of deep solemnity, as well as great rejoicing. Mrs. R. E. Johnson, our Conference president, writes: "We had such a fine meeting at Petal. Brother Neill preached the opening night and two young men joined the Church and were haptized that very night, and the next afternoon Miss Willie D. Hearst volunteered for Deaconess work. Both occasions were solemn and beautiful and all felt the presence of the Holy Spirit. The little church was full at every service, and I am praying that great good will come from that meeting." Mrs. H. O. Middleton writes of this same meeting: "Our visit to Mrs. Rawls' District meeting at Petal was indeed a blessing to us. God's Spirit was abundantly manifested there. The president of our Y. P. M. S., at Petal, Willie D. Hearst, gave her splendid young life to be used for Him. She will go into training at once for her life work. Oh, that other young lives may hear and heed the call of God, summoning them to service! The Hattiesburg District is waking up to the privilege of organizing the young people."

The Hattiesburg District is doing more than organizing the young people—it is furnishing laborers for the Master's service. Again comes a message from Mrs. Middleton, our consecrated First Vice President: "Do mention that our Mississippi Conference has another volunteer—Miss Byrdie Burnham, of Magee, Miss. Both Miss Hearst and Miss Burnham are from the Hattiesburg District. Shall we not pray that He may call yet others? 'The harvest truly is plenteous.' These young girls are so happy now that they have surrendered."

We know there is deep and abiding joy in the hearts of these young women, for they have heeded their Master's call. We do not know Miss Burnham; but we had the pleasure of meeting Miss Hearst at two annual meetings. How she has worked and toiled, prayed and planned for her auxiliary at Petal! Such devotion to service is not often manifested in the young and we feel sure she will be successful in her work wherever the Master calls her to go. Many hearts are filled with praise and rejoicing because of the step taken by these two young girls.

Now, just a word about Mrs. Middleton, the leader of our young people in this Conference. She entered upon her duties with fear and trepidation, but she has more than fulfilled the expectations of her friends. She is very winning in manner and full of enthusiasm for her work; but, best of all, she is a woman in whose heart is erected a throne wherein the Master reigns.

Whenever You Need a General Tonic Take Grove's

The Old Standard Grove's Tasteless chill Tonic is equally valuable as a General Tonic because it contains the well known tonic properties of QUININE and IRON. It acts on the Liver, Drives out Malaria, Enriches the Blood and Builds up the Whole System. 50 cents.

EXPERIENCE IS THE BEST TEACHER OF ALL.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating." One is far more apt to believe a man who tells what he has done, than a man who tells what he could do. So it is with medicine. The real proof of the merits of Dr. Miles' Restcrative Remedies lies in the fact that they have been used beneficially for over a quarter of a century and thousands have actually testified to benefits they have received.

We know that Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve all aches and pains because thousands have found this to be proven by actual experience.

The Rev. W. D. Barger, of Hagerstown, Md., has stated:

"Voluntarily and unsolicited I wish to bear witness to the high character of Dr. Miles' Restorative Remedies. To me personally they have been a great blessing, especially the Nervine, the Anti-Pain Pills and the Liver Pills. In cases of headache or pain of any kind they act like a charm. I have given many of them to the suffering and the results have always proven gratifying."

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have no unpleasant after-effect. They are not constipating. They do not contain any of the dangerous habit-forming drugs. We do not claim that they remove the cause of the pain, but we do claim that they bring quick relief in a harmless manner.

They are sold by all druggists at 25c a box, containing 25 doses. If not satisfactory your money will be cheerfully returned.

SCIENCE EXPLAINS POPULARITY OF COCA-COLA.

What is it that gives to Coca-Cola its remarkable popularity and success? Is it the delicious refreshing flavor, imparted by a rare combination of choice fruits, or is there something else that at least contributes to the wonderful success of this remarkable beverage?

Some have suggested Advertising, but even the most efficient publicity can do no more than induce the public to try an article once and if it proves disappointing they will never try it again.

According to our leading scientists, the most important factor in the popularity of Coca-Cola is its wholesome effect in quenching the thirst and in relieving fatigue of mind and body. They tell us that fatigue is universal and inevitable and that our modern civilization has put a premium upon the value of those articles of food and drink which nature has endowed with refreshing qualities. They point to the world-wide consumption of the caffein beverages and tell us that Coca-Cola is merely an improved coffee or tea, more delicious in flavor, more wholesome in effect, but otherwise the same; for all these beverages owe their refreshing quality to a vegetable substance called caffein, which is the active principle of coffee, tea, cocoa, mate and Coca-Cola.

Coca-Cola differs from tea and coffee in that it is carbonated, is flavored with the extracts of choice fruits, contains about one-half as much caffein and is free from tannic acid. In the last-named particular, the scientists tell us, it is distinctly superior to coffee and tea, especially when these are carelessly prepared, for overboiling dissolves the tannic acid from tea leaves and coffee grounds, thus giving these beverages an acrid taste and an unwholesome effect upon the digestion. If you have experienced any difficulty with the use of tea and coffee try the drip process and you will find them vastly more agreeable and wholesome.

The scientists also explain that the caffein beverages—coffee, tea and Coca-Cola—have the same physiological effect as the xanthin beverages—beef tea and meat extracts; for when caffein is digested it is converted into a xanthin. As xanthin (pronounced zan-thin) is one of the natural constituents of the human body, and as caffein, on entering the body, is converted into xanthin, scientists regard the caffein and xanthin beverages as the natural and physiological stimulants for tired nerves and muscles.

Desiring that the public shall know and understand the composition and quality of their product, The Coca-Cola Company has published a booklet containing the expert opinions of the world's leading authorities. Write for a copy. Read it carefully and understand how and why Coca-Cola is the nearest approach to a perfect solution of the world's great problem of fatigue. A copy may be had free by addressing the Advertising Managers of this paper, Messrs. Jacobs & Company, Clinton, S. C.—Advertisement.

From the Field.

Clarksburg, Miss.

Dear Mr. Editor: We have closed our series of six protracted meetings on this charge. At Lodebar, in Rankin County, Rev. D. E. Vickers, of Matherville, Miss., did the preaching. The Lord was with us and gave us a great revival. There were 10 accessions to the Church by profession of faith and 1 by certificate.....Rev. C. C. Griffin, of Carthage, Miss., was with me at Zion's Grove. We had a good spiritual meeting, but there were no accessions. Best wishes to you and the Advocate. I am striving with all my might to increase the circulation of the Advocate on this circuit.—J. W. Evans, P. C.

Shannon, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: The revival meeting at the Methodist Church in Shannon, Miss., was conducted this week. The splendid sermons by Rev. S. A. Brown, of Okolona, Miss., were greatly enjoyed; good congregations attended both the day and night services, and there were three important additions to the Church. The influence of the meeting will linger as a benediction to the town. Brother Brown was once pastor here and was pleased to say at the final service: "Great gains have occurred at Shannon during recent years and very special prosperity is easily possible." Few towns are more happily situated and the Church is well planted in this favored section.—A. H. Williams, P. C.

September 18, 1915.

New Albany Ct., North Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: I have just finished my campaign of protracted meetings and had fine results—51 additions to the Church. Rev. R. H. Pigue, of the Memphis Conference, and Revs. W. L. Storment, C. W. Baley, and S. L. Pope, of our Conference, helped me. All of them preached strong gospel sermons which resulted in much good. Brother Pigue is a great doctrinal preacher and is also a fine revivalist. I am finishing my fourth year on this charge and I have fine Sunday schools—the best in the history of the charge. I will turn over to my successor a fine people to serve—no better to be found anywhere. I joined the Conference 14 years ago at Winona and this is my third quadrennial period. Pray that we may close out the year's work well.—J. A. Goad, P. C.

Alberta, La.

Beginning on August 29 and continuing for nine days, Old Castory Church records perhaps the greatest revival ever known in these parts. The extraordinary attendance from this and surrounding communities attested the great interest that was felt in the meeting. Men and women and boys and girls who professed to know Christ as their Savior were made to see that they were not, and had not been, doing their duty as Christians, and went to work in earnest to win souls for Christ. The preaching was done by Rev. W. B. Perritt of Shreveport, La. His sermons were complete from every standpoint and carried conviction with them. Another very important factor in the meeting was the excellent singing, which was conducted by Mr. C. L. Kennington. These two young men had a great influence for good wherever they went, and especially among the young people, many of whom were brought to Christ. The great plan of salvation was made plain to men and women during this meeting and 26 new-born souls were received into the Church.—Eugenia Koonce.

McCool, Miss.

I have closed my last meeting and will give you a short acount of the results. The following brethren rendered valuable assistance: Revs. R. G. Lord, J. D. Simpson, J. G. Johnson, E. D. Simpson, and V. C. Curtis. All expounded the Word without fear or favor and with credit to themselves and profit to all who heard them. A more consecrated set of brethren than those named above would be hard to find. As a result of their preaching we report 101 accessions to the Church—81 on profession of faith, and the others by certificate and vows. Many family altars have been renewed and others strengthened. The Sunday school work has been in good condition all the year and I have six good, live, active schools. We have four good prayer-meetings which are well attended and are doing a good work. The whole church has taken on new life and the influence of our revivals is felt throughout the entire charge. The people have been good and loyal to us in many ways and I am giving them the best service I can render. I am happy and contented and am willing for the Bishop to return us to this people if he sees fit.—T. L. Oakes, P. C.

Indian Bayou Charge (La. Conf.)

Dear Mr. Editor: Perhaps it will not be amiss to let the readers of your excellent paper know something concerning the Indian Bayou Charge. This is my second year at this place—my home church and the place of my boyhood days—and this year has been up to this time the best of the two. The work of the Church is progressing favorably along all lines. We have a splendid Ladies' Aid Society, which is growing in numbers and efficiency. The good women are planning to make some improvements on the church building, etc. We have had so far about 25 accessions to the Church. We have recently received a "pounding" from the good people of Hebron, which brought us many good things to eat. We have a fairly good mid-week prayer meeting, three Sunday schools with an enrollment of about 250, and an average attendance at Indian Bayou alone of about 100. The improvement and progress on the charge has not been due alone to the efforts of the pastor; but we have had efficient help in two meetings by Rev. Martin Hebert, Rev. F. G. McCoy and the faithful laymen have done much. We hope to go to Conference with a good report. We give God the praise for all that has been accomplished.—J. H. Hoffpaulr, Pastor.

Guntown and Baldwyn Charge, North Miss. Conf.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have just closed nine weeks' of revival work. The second week in July was spent with Brother A. J. Henry at Wheeler, Miss., very pleasantly, and I hope profitably. The third week was put in at Woodland, Miss., on Brother A. A. Martin's work. Brother Martin's wife being very ill, he was not with us in the meeting, but my stay with the good people of Woodland was very pleasant. At both of these places there were some professions. The fourth week in July was spent with Brother M. A. Burns at New Chapel on the Middleton (Miss.) Circuit. At this place the good Lord was with us in great power. There were 40 or 50 conversions and 30 additions to our Church on profession of faith. The campaign was continued the first week in August at Marvin on the Corinth Circuit with Brother A. C. Northington. Here we had a good meeting and some sweet services. From there we returned to our own field of labor.....The second week in August Brother J. H. Felts, of Corinth, Miss., was with me at Saltillo, where our people said he did some of the finest preaching that they ever heard. We had the greatest revival that the Church at Saltillo has had in several years. From this victory, we marched our forces to Pleasant Valley, with Brother R. W. Evans, of the Macon Circuit, to do the preaching, and it goes without saying that it was well done. His sermons were strong and stirring. This community was very much helped. We expect to begin to build a new church at Pleasant Valley next Monday morning. The material is all on the ground now, except the windows and pews. From Pleasant Valley we opened the fight at Guntown, with Brother W. M. Young, of Amory, Miss., to bring the messages, and he did bring us some good ones. This was a rainy week, but in spite of the rain we had some old-time Holy Ghost services. From Guntown, we went to Baldwyn, Miss., and engaged the enemy of the souls of men, with Brother L. M. Lipscomb at the gun, and after eight days of continued battle the smoke of the conflict cleared away and we found that fine execution had been done. We had a splendid meeting, the Church was revived and sinners were converted and brought into the Church. Thus the summer campaign for the salvation of souls closed. We have received in all 30 members, and we expect others to join before Conference. Our work along this line continues all the year in our pastorate. We are sending to you two subscriptions to your excellent paper.—W. C. Carlisle.

KEEP THE LINE IN MOTION.

By Rev. W. W. Pinson, D.D.

The Emergency Fund for the Board of Missions is growing. Almost every mail brings responses. Hundreds of letters breathing love and loyalty to the cause of missions bave come to the office in the last few weeks. Often those who could offer nothing but prayer and good will so heartened us as to make us glad tbere was something better than gold and silver. Others have given with a heartiness and a spirit of self-denial that kindle fresh bopes for the triumph of the Kingdom. The quotation below from a letter received this morning from a pastor is a sample of many:

"The small offering was from a hard-working, heavily indebted farmer, with children in Christian colleges, but with a heart warm with gratitude to God for bis blessings."

Rich and poor have given with the same cheerful and thankful spirit. "I am glad to give" is a familiar expression, and the only note of sorrow or regret is at not being able to respond.

The contributions have ranged as follows: One of $2000, five of $1000, one of $500, one of $300, one of $200, one of $150, eleven of $100, one of $60, eleven of $50, eighty of $25, thirty-two of $10, fifty of $5, and many others of various amounts. All told, there have been about 250 contributions, mostly in cash. The total amount to date is $12,984.25. During the last thirty days we have received in addition to this amount $3750 on annuities account. The income from this source is increasing, and the inquirers are multiplying. We have recently had more than a score of inquiries concerning our annuity plan. A few days since a pastor, by a word in season, was instrumental in putting $3000 into our hands for an annuity bond. There are many opportunities where a similar thoughtfulness by a letter to the Board or a word to a prospective donor will do a blessed service.

The pace has been set by these generous friends. There are thousands who can and ought to follow their example. Surely those among us to whom God has entrusted means will not close their ears to the call in such an hour as this. There are no conscripts. This is a call for volunteers.

Let those who read take heed. Keep tbe line in motion. We are not set to marking time. We are called to a steady and unwavering advance. God is smiling on our Southland. We abound in all things. We should abound "in this grace also."

THE KLEIN-BOYD REVIVAL.

There is now in progress in Meridian a great revival in which all the Methodist churches of the city are united. Rev. G. A. Klein, of Nashville, Tenn., who is one of the General Evangelists of our Church, is doing the preaching with Mr. Boyd, his singer, leading the choir. The services are being held under a large tabernacle which will, perhaps, seat 4000 people. Last Sunday night 1000 were turned away for lack of room, and every night tbe tabernacle is full to overflowing, with many lined up on the sidewalks and people seated in their automobiles drawn up along the curb.

Some years ago, when I was a boy preacher, pastor of a delta charge, a young man named Klein was sent as pastor of my old home circuit, the Blue Spring's circuit, North Mississippi Conference. I spent a part of the summer of that year at my father's home, and at his invitation I assisted Brother Klein in all his meetings. Perhaps tbe churches on that circuit have never had, before or since, such revivals, as Klein and I, both boy preachers, worked and preached and prayed together. At the close of that year he transferred to the Memphis Conference and during all these years, with one exception, I had not seen him. So, when I learned that he was to conduct the revival at Meridian I must needs go, renew my acquaintance, and hear him preach again.

Since I have done more or less revival work, it has been my practice to hear the evangelists whenever possible, to study their methods, and to try to get at the secret of their success. None of them, in my humble opinion, has touched what I believe to be the need of the Church—their work has not been abiding. So I went to hear Klein, hoping that he would prove to be of a different sort, and I was not disappointed.

One of the most serious objections the Church has had to evangelistic effort is its lack of permanency. Usually, when the evangelist is gone the revival collapses and a deadly reaction sets in, because the evangelist stirs the emotions and fails to turn them into channels of activity.

Evangelist Klein is of a different sort. To begin with, he is spiritual. He has religion. He is a man of fine judgment, level-headed. He does not go to pieces; be has no "nerves." He is not sensational, but, keeping his hand on the steering wheel, sees to it that no one else introduces sensationalism into any of his services. His style is simple, his delivery largely conversational, yet impressive and earnest. Beginning with the simple, fundamental principles of Christianity, he goes down to rock bottom, laying the foundation deep, and builds thereon the edifice of Christian life and activity. His arraignment of sin is terrific, yet kind and gentle. His appeals are irresistible, his work is thorough and will, I am sure, abide in Meridian after he is gone, telling in the life and activities of individuals and the Church. There is no doubt that he is the kind of evangelist pastors have been wanting to see. After hearing him for nearly a week, studying the man and his methods, I am convinced that he is the sanest evangelist that it has ever been my pleasure to hear, and that God has raised him up to be the pastor's ideal helper.

Editorial

The poorest man is he who has the least of upright character.

Nothing can take the place of true prayer in the Christian's life and work. All other expedients will fail to produce abiding spiritual results when it is lacking.

Any man, no matter what may be his condition, is worth saving. The value of a human soul, even when lowest in the depths of degradation, is great beyond all computation. Do we not need a more profound realization of this truth? "God has no favorites."

He who works with God never works in vain. Even if he fails to accomplish what he undertakes and visible results among others are lacking, his own character and life are enriched. And there is ahead the glorious reward prepared for the faithful servants of the Master.

A writer in the New York Medical Journal has advanced the view that John Bunyan was a hypochondriac. With the great Bedford dreamer so afflicted and Paul an epileptic, as some have affirmed, one cannot but marvel, according to these representations, at the mighty debt that the world owes to disease.

Paul spoke of the Christians at Corinth as "coming behind in no gift and as waiting for the coming of the Lord Jesus." This was indeed great praise. Such attainments and such an attitude attested a fidelity and faith of the very highest order. To what extent are we measuring up to this lofty standard in this day?

A gentleman at Coldwater, Miss., is said to be mayor of the town, manager of the Cumberland Telephone Exchange, a barber, an undertaker, a tailor, a pressing club proprietor, an agent for tombstones, a school trustee, the owner of a motion picture show, and a candidate for the office of postmaster. We respectfully suggest that this brother ought to join the Methodist Itinerancy and place himself in the hands of the rural church specialists who are rising up among us.

One of the aspirants for gubernatorial honors in Louisiana last week objected vigorously to prohibition on the ground that it does not prohibit, advocating at the same time "strict regulation." As one of our ministers in the city said in commenting upon his position, prohibition will come as near prohibiting as "regulation" will regulating. The latter is what we are supposed to have now, yet practically every saloon in New Orleans, in plain violation of the law, sells liquor on Sunday. The dramshop is anarchistic in its very nature and respects no obligation, legal or any other kind.

THE PARABLE OF THE UNJUST STEWARD.

"The Parable of the Unjust Steward," contained in the sixteenth chapter of the Gospel according to St. Luke, has been variously interpreted and made the subject of much controversy. That an unworthy and unscrupulous man should have been held up as an example to teach others how they should act, together with the somewhat peculiar manner of setting forth what took place between him and his master, seems to have confused a great many people and to have led some to accept very erroneous notions concerning this remarkably interesting passage of Scripture. It is never wise in endeavoring to get at the true meaning of a parable to press the analogies suggested too far; common sense needs always to be exercised; and when this is done in the case of this utterance of the Savior we see little occasion for any misunderstanding of his meaning. It is not to be understood that the lord of the unjust steward commended in any sense his dishonesty; it was his realization that his opportunity was passing and his wisdom and diligence in making it count for the utmost possible that were extolled. These were the important particulars in which Jesus held him up as an exemplar for "the children of light."

One of the most amazing things about Christian people is their failure to comprehend fully the startling brevity of life and the need of fully utilizing without delay all of their talents and resources in proper service, that a rich reward may await them in the eternal world, toward which they are swiftly traveling. All of our possessions may be so employed as to convert them into heavenly treasures to bless us in the future. Wonderfully significant words were those spoken by our Lord in driving home this truth at the time that he uttered this parable: "And I say unto you, make to yourself friends of the mammon of unrighteousness that, when ye fail (die), they may receive you into everlasting habitations." One of the most luminous expositions of this verse that has come under our observation is that given by Bishop Marvin in his impressive sermon, entitled "Our Lord's Doctrine Respecting Riches." We quote briefly from it as follows:

"But is this so? Can we use money in such a way as to make friends for ourselves who will receive us after death? If this text means anything, it means just that. I confess that I was startled when I first got the vision of this truth—but why? Is it unreasonable? Take a case: When I took charge of a certain church—I will not name it—as was my custom, I hastened to find all of my members, and to know them personally, especially the poor. I found one, a widow in humble circumstances, whose youngest child was nearly grown; she told me her story. Fifteen years before she had been bereft of her husband, who was a mechanic, and left her with a helpless family without means of support. Where bread was to come from she did not see. But she had one friend who never failed her: her class-leader was a man of wealth; he kept himself informed as to her necessities; took pains to get her employment; got situations for her sons, as they grew up, in places where they would be under good influences; and whenever the pinch came, and it was necessary, he sent fuel and provisions—always doing what he could first to put her in a way of helping herself, that she might not feel dependent. This went on for years, until her sons were able to support her. He had never failed her; he had been her friend indeed—pure, generous, and noble.

"During the first year of my pastoral term she died. Her old friend was there with me under the lowly roof. Her purity, her piety, and her sorrows had all interested him in her, and he felt that he had lost a friend; his tears were silent, but came from deep fountains. He closed her eyes reverently with his own hands, and taking two pieces of silver coin from his pocket, laid them on her lids. He was with the children at the open grave, and wept almost as profusely as they when the clods fell and the officiating minister pronounced the words, 'Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust.'

"A few months later I saw him die. It was a glorious death—rather, it was a glorious triumph over death. It was in the morning; the sun was just sweeping up from the horizon; Nature was in her most resplendent attire. It seemed as if heaven had lent something of its radiance to the scene. All at once his eye flamed with a new light, his spirit swept up through the golden gates of the morning, and left his face all beautiful with smiles that lingered still upon it when he was borne away to the grave. Tell me, did not that glorified saint whose children he had fed, and who had been a year in heaven before him, receive him with celestial friendship into everlasting habitations?

"It is said that there is a tombstone in the cemetery at Florence, Italy, bearing the inscription: 'Here lies Estella, who has gone to heaven to enter upon the enjoyment of an estate of fifty thousand florins which she transported to that world before her—in charitable deeds.' Why not? What is there unreasonable in that?

"We are all saved by GRACE; no more acts of charity can put away sin, or merit the favor of God. Yet it is God's gracious will that his people, saved through the blood of the Lamb, shall reap the full harvest of their pious deeds in eternity."

Such are the possibilities that lie out before every child of God; and surely none could ask for opportunities more sublime and inspiring.

In the fierce storm which swept over the city of New Orleans last week the plain, unpretentious structures suffered least, while those with towers and turrets and various kinds of fancy fixings sustained the greatest amount of injury. So will the worthless tinsel that men weave about their lives and characters be torn away in the storm that shall come in the last great day. The solid things, with their foundations firmly laid upon the Rock Christ Jesus, will alone survive that awful testing time.

SUGGESTIONS.

Wouldst thou have thy life the brigbter?
Make another's burden lighter.

Wouldst thou know the joy of living?
Find it by the grace of giving.

Wouldst thou precious seeds be sowing?
Blossoms bloom, thou still unknowing.

Wouldst thou golden grain be reaping?
Trust the harvest to God's keeping.

Wouldst thou lose all fear of dying?
Each day live—on Him relying.

BECOMING HUMILITY.

A story is told of Lord Kelvin that once when he entered a great gathering of scientists the audience arose. He wbispered to the companion wbo entered with him: "I think the prince must have come in." He had no idea tbat the demonstration of respect was meant for himself. He did not dream that he was wortby of it. He was the prince and did not know it. His humility, his love for the truth and his service in the cause of truth had given him this honor that he had expected to, be awarded only to the king's son.—Metbodist Recorder.

CONSECRATION.

Entire consecration is a clear, definite, calm taking account of stock by a man, and then giving himself, soul and body, and all that he has, over into the hands of the Lord. The man ceases to be a proprietor and becomes only a steward. It is of no use, in my judgment, to pray that God shall consecrate you. God won't do it. You must do that yourself. God stands ready to receive you, not only your heart, not only your time and talents, but all that you have. Consecration is the act of a man giving himself to God. There are many people living who think they have given their hearts to God, and yet have not consecrated themselves fully to him. A consecrated man is one whose will is surrendered to God and whose life and all that it Includes Is given into the hands of God.—Rev. W. H. Geisweit.

TWO INTERESTING LETTERS.

Mr. John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, has long been known as one of the most actlve and useful Christian workers in the United States. His character is regarded as above reproach and in him every good cause has a friend and dependable supporter. The great Sunday school which he has bullt up in the "City of Brotherly Love" ranks witb the best to be found anywbere, and we have seen it stated that he is one of the stockholders of The Philadelphia North American, and that the high moral tone of that great daily, which is doing so much for prohibition and civic righteousness, is largely attributable to his influence. Recently, accordlng to The Richmond Virginian, a big distiller threatened to boycott Mr. Wanamaker's great stores, wbich are world famous, because of his large contributions for the extension of prohibition. As was to be expected, however, he received a prompt reply announcing Mr. Wanamaker's firm determination to continue to combat the liquor traffic regardless of any losses that might accrue to his business. The two letters referred to are so interesting and suggestive that we reproduce them below:

Mr. Meyers to Mr. Wanamaker.

New York, ———.

Mr. John Wanamaker, Ninth and Broadway, New York City:

Dear Sir: The report Is current that you contribute money to prohiblt the sale and distribution of liquor. I am reluctant to credit this report, and respectfully ask an expression from you on the subject.

If I have been correctly informed, you may be as unwilling to accept money that has been earned in the liquor traffic as I am to pay it to those who are endeavoring to confiscate the business in which I am engaged.

I have indicated my position In this matter by printing on my check, "A Check Against Prohibition," many of wbich have been received by your company in settlement of my charge account with you.

Thanking you in advance for any attention, I remain,

Respectfully yours,
H. C. MYERS.

Mr. Wanamaker to Mr. Myers.

Private Office John Wanamaker:

Philadelphia, ———.

Mr. H. C. Myers, 25 Leonard Street, New York City:

Dear Sir: Your letter of the 17th of February comes before me as I am leaving on the next train for the South.

I thank you for Its frankness, but regret its narrowness. You only buy of me what you want and I give you value for it. I think I do you good service.

As in one sense a father to from 10,000 to 14,000 employes, for many years I have suffered and lost so much from employes that killed themselves and ruined their families I could not and cannot be in favor (of the use) of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and with nothing but good will to you as a gentleman, I will say that personal interest to serve my business can never bribe me to change my principles.

Yours very truly,
JOHN WANAMAKER.

WHEN I HAD CHARGE.

(This is one of a series of articles that Dr. S. A. Steel, of Columbia, S. C., has been publishing in the Midland Methodist concerning his experiences when he had charge of the old McKendree Church, at Nashville, Tenn.)

When I had charge of McKeudree Church I had under my pastoral crook Rev. J. D. Barbee, D. D., our Book Agent, and his family. Dr. Barbee had been pastor of the church himself, and a very popular one. I doubt if any man in Nashville had more friends or stood higher in the esteem and confidence of the best people than Dr. Barbee. Now, the relation between one who has been pastor of a church and one who follows him is a very delicate relation. This is especially true If the retiring pastor retains an official relation to the church and attends it. Another pastor had, it is true, been there for one year, between my coming and Dr. Barbee's leaving; but the Doctor had kept up his connectiou with the church, knew everybody, was respected by everybody, and devotedly loved by many. Under such circumstances a man can greatly embarrass his successor. In the matter of weddings and funerals and disgruntled members, if he hasn't got what Bishop McTyeire aptly called "quitting sense," he can be a serious handicap.

Any man fit to be pastor of such a church as McKendree, perhaps of any church, is sure to arouse antagonism, provoke criticism, and have his hands full of trouble with members who are highly endowed with the talent for finding fault. If a preacher does not make enemies he is most likely a mollycoddle, a clerical mollusk, a sort of theological invertebrate whose popularity is hardly an asset of the kingdom. He is certainly not like the Master, who made enemies on every hand, and said to his disciples: "Woe unto you, when all men speak well of you!" Now, I had a lively time at McKendree. And I know well that Dr. Barbee took a different view of many things from the one I took. Each of us, I think, thought the other a heretic on many points. But it affords me pleasure to say that from no one did I receive more uniform, cordlal, and earnest support than from Dr. Barbee. During the four years that I spent there he held up my hands and, while frank in his counsel, he never obtruded it, was always brotherly in giving it, and frowned on the criticism that shoots from cover. As I was a transfer, this sympathetic and friendly attitude on the part of one of the leading men of the Conference was of great value to me.

I always attributed Dr. Barbee's conduct toward me to two things: First, he was a great big man. He despised everything little and mean and had that native nobility of soul, penetrated with the aura of divine grace, that lifted his mind above the petty prejudices and jealousies of small men. And secondly, to his conception of the dignity of tbe position I filled. To be pastor of McKendree Church, in Dr. Barbee's view, was to hold not only a highly honorable office, but one of sacred responsibility, demanding the respect and prayerful support of every member. In his opinion, it would not do to impair the reputation and influence of a man who had such a weight to carry. It was the same sentiment that restrained David from doing anything against Saul, "the Lord's anointed." What a pity we do not have more of this wholesome respect for the office of the minister of Christ! We would be more guarded in our criticism that often destroys usefulness.

I came to McKendree from Kansas City. That misshapen cult, a sort of philosophical centaur, part truth and part error, called Christian Science, had begun to spread in Kansas City, and like the rank weeds growing in the deep alluvial soil about the mouth of the Kaw where it mingles with the muddy Missouri, found a congenial field in that city of fads. In sizing up my new work in Nashville, I happened to ask Dr. Morrow about Christian Science. "You need not bother about that," he said; "Dr. Barbee killed that snake. But you ought to have seen the flowers in the yard when he got through." That was Dr. Barbee's way. When he found a snake in the yard he went for it with hoe, rake, spade, fence rail, or whatever he could get hold of, and did not stop till the venomous reptile was dead, dead, dead! True, the flower beds might be mashed, and the rose bushes broken, and the geranium pots turned over. All that could he righted—the important thing was to kill the snake.

The most beautiful thing about Dr. Barbee's character was his devotion to his family, and especially his boundless and chivalrous worship of his wife. Mrs. Barbee was a little mite of a woman, frail in person and delicate in health. Dr. Barbee was a man of large and massive physique, the very picture of robust health and manly vigor. But he fairly worshiped that little woman, and I expect she returned his devotion with equal ardor. When the Conferences were being held, his duties took him away from home a great deal; but he wrote every day to his wife. I never heard him refer to her except in the most considerate terms, and he seemed to think she was the sum of all perfections. I know nothing in this wicked world that is more divine than that sort of love. It is inconceivable that Dr. Barbee's children should have called him "Daddy!" His whole family life was built up on a basis of mutual respect and affection which rendered such vulgar speech impossible.

If Dr. Barbee had had the advantage of early collegiate training he would have made his mark, perhaps, in the world of letters, for he has a large mind and a decided originality of thought. But he was what we call "a self-made man," and his attitude toward liberal culture was betrayed, perhaps, by his reference in one of his strong discourses to "that infamous old Dutchman, Go-e-the!" The range of his reading was narrow. He thought for himself. But he was a close student of the Bible and understood Methodist doctrine and history thoroughly. He had a habit of thinking aloud as he walked, and I have seen him going along on Spruce Street, his eyes fixed on the pavement, and every now and then making a gesture that betrayed his mental exercise.

He and Dr. Tigert were together at one of the Conferences, and both were appointed to preach at the same church, one in the morning and the other in the evening. Neither knew what the other had preached about, and both preached on Jacob. They took exactly opposite views of Jacob's character. Tigert made him out a shrewd grafter, a good representative of the unprincipled business man who, if he had his deserts, would be behind the bars and wearing the stripes. Grace in the end saved him, but left deep scars of evil in his soul. Barbee made him out a good man from the start, ingeniuosly justified his dealings, or laid the blame on Rebecca, and held him up as a chosen and elect man. The people who heard them both could take their choice of the two opinions.

Take him all in all, Dr. Barbee was a typical Southern gentleman. It was born in him to be a gentleman. He stood erect in any presence, and those who knew him knew that he walked in his integrity. He bore himself with the dignity and patience of a Christian hero when enveloped in clouds of affliction and detraction and, though crushed with sorrow, stood firm as a rock. I was always glad to see him in my audience, for I knew he came to listen, and the stimulus of his alert attention was a fine pulpit tonic.

OBITUARY—GEORGE ALAXANDER GUICE.

Born October 6, 1852; died April 8, 1915. Admitted on trial by Annual Conference, December, 1890. Served under Episcopal assignment 24 years, and part of the 25th year. Active service recorded in Journals of the Mississippi Conference cover ten charges, as follows: 1891-2-3, Rocky Springs; 1894-5, Hermanville; 1896-7, Warren; 1898-9, Utica; 1900-01, presiding elder of Meridian District; 1902-3-4, Shubuta; 1905-6-7, Angullla; 1908-9-10, part of 1911, Saucier; part of 1911-12-13, Poplarville; 1914, and to April 8, 1915, Bay St. Louis.

To write the life of a busy man should cover the many pages of a book. A biography such as this brief note must be, can be only an outline. When the tree has come to be mature, strong-limbed, ripened fruit upon it, it is profitable to turn the mind back to where the young tree springs—where limb on limb push out in leaf and bloom; until, mature and fruitful, it stands a glory to its grower and a nourishment to men. We turn, then, to early years in the life of Brother Guice, to where he came in young manhood upon the paternal plantation.

In September, 1874, he was married to Medora Abigail Costly, daughter of an old Franklin County family. Inclining to the profession of law, his mind active and logical, we learn of him preparing, on his farm, for the practice of his profession, which he began in 1882.

This paper cannot admit detailed results of his career as lawyer; yet it cannot omit admiring reference to it, since the practice of law amply disclosed the quality of the man Brother Guice later proved himself to be. Adverting occasionally to this part of his life, he has spoken to this writer of experiences moving him. Spoke his pleasure in serving poor clients, mentioning particularly negroes whose crops were threatened by rapacious merchants, they helpless to resist extortion. With ready sympathy he defended such clients with the vigor of inborn love of justice and fair dealing. Spoke of repugnance and reluctance in defending the bad cause. Distinction in his profession and practice of law resulted in his election to the State Senate. At the Capital and concerning his service there, the following high praise from the press of the city, relative to Brother Guice's conduct in handling an important measure will attest his characteristic adherence to principle:

An editorial in the Clarion-Ledger of Jan. 28, 1888, under the caption, "Two Men With Manhood," says: When the bill first passed, and Senator Guice saw all the men who voted with him change their votes in favor of the bill, he remained alone the opponent of the bill, until finally, with the aid of the Governor and fifteen Senators, his ideas were victorious. Such men as these give us assurance that all the powers of appointment and coveted political position cannot crush out the manhood that remains, for there are Spartans yet alive."

As Chairman of Judiciary, his work distinguished him during a session memorable for the trial of a State official. Sympathetic, attentive, just, his public life bore clearly attested value.

God's call for him into his ministry must have been unequivocally clear and strong, for his answer was prompt, unqualified, undelayed. He was admitted on trial into the Mississippi Conference in 1890. Humility and modesty were large characteristics of this lovable man. He coveted the best gifts and appreciated his selection for positions of importance; but unholy ambition, spurring sometimes the pastor to seek prominence of place, held no attractions for Brother Guice. Circuits were welcomed, and his full force went toward saving and serving his people. On the death of Doctor Charles G. Andrews early in 1900, Brother Guice was appointed to supply the position of presiding elder of the Meridian District. Here, the office brought no altered demeanor. Prompt, loyal, indefatigable, the presiding elder went upon his field, his single purpose the progress of his district. Modest, sympathetic, careful of points of law, he left the district bearing permanent impress of consecrated, effective energy. From Shubuta Bishop Key appointed him to Anguilla. Hardly knowing where the new field was, he spoke with me about it on the train leaving the seat of the Conference. The kind face showed no change, only a bit of uncertainly as to the mind of his brethren towards him in his voice, as he said: "When the Conference finds it cannot use me, it needs only to suggest it, and I will make way for the better man." And for three following years his clean, holy influence was strikingly felt among that delta people. They learned profoundly to revere the true, just, tender-hearted pastor, who rarely plead with them to seek their Savior without deepest emotion and flowing tears.

Each year marked growth in preaching power with Brother Guice. It was no uncommon comment to have his hearers asking why so strong a preacher was sent to comparatively weak charges, when abilities and spirit marked such fitness for more responsible appointments. More and more he was in demand for revival work. Evangelistic of spirit, convincing and direct, sympathetic and yearning, his Savior was his ideal, and in fulness of his Lord's Spirit, he preached Christ with increasing effect. Many Christians, under his pastorate, date conversion and the new life in Jesus from his ministry to them.

What more need be said? Here was a man whose ministry wholly absorbed him. Looking neither right nor left, he gave all he was and had in glad donation to his Church. His warm heart drew the young people and all children loved him. With like wide-heartedness he stopped to hear every troubled story, and his big, kind hand went often to his pocket for temporary relief. He gave special attention to the collections imposed by the Conference, particularly Missions and Conference pensions. These he would not fail to clear, while not neglecting the others—I have known him to pay more than half the total himself, where he believed his people overburdened.

At his best, in the prime of his service, this soldier fell, and as we say, untimely. Vainly we strive to penetrate many mysteries, incidents, consequences of life. Injured fatally by a speeding passenger engine which was to take him to his weekly pastoral work and night sermon at Lake Shore Station, of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, he lived but two hours, intensely suffering. Word of the tragedy spread quickly over Bay St. Louis and sadness clouded the day. With Roman Catholic and Protestant alike his name was high as a man of God.

Following is an extract from the city paper, its editor not a Methodist, which pathetically speaks the general feeling: "It requires a more facile pen than ours to number the many virtues which dominated the gentle soul and kindly heart of him whose daily life and work so truly proclaimed him 'a man of God.'

"To know him was to love him, and no one could come within the radius of his influence without feeling that he or she was made better by contact with one whose very life was a shining example of pure and undefiled Christianity.

"Dr. Guice's earnest, quiet and unobstrusive labors in the community were being crowned with success, but his zeal and loyalty to his own creed were never permitted to interfere with or serve as a bar to his friendships, and for that reason there are to-day many tear-stained eyes and hearts heavy with sorrow outside those of his own flock.

"Truly, a tragical death has removed from our midst a saintly man; one whose consecrated life surely found favor in the eyes of God. But the shock of its suddenness is in a measure softened by the thought that no one was ever better prepared to meet his Maker with so little warning—for 'It was well with his soul.'"

Death stilled the husband and the father's heart, and mourning darkened the home. The devoted, delicate wife, a daughter, Mrs. P. B. Bell, two sons, Carroll and Hubert, with many other sorrowing relatives will remember him.

His brethren of the pastorate also will remember him; and we will remember him as one—

"Who marched breast forward,
Never doubting that the clouds would break;
Never feared though right were worsted, wrong would triumph;
Held, we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better
—sleep to wake."

MILLSAPS COLLEGE NOTES.

Millsaps College entered upon its twenty-fourth session on the morning of September 15. Several members of the two Conferences were present. Those participating in the opening exercises were Rev. B. P. Jaco, presiding elder of the Winona District; Rev. M. M. Black of Canton; Dr. W. H. Huntley, presiding elder of the Seashore District; Dr. J. M. Sullivan, of the Faculty; Judge Sydney Smith of the Law Faculty, and the President, Dr. A. F. Watkins.

Each speaker sounded the note of optimism in predicting the success of the present session, and all were made to believe that the college is entering upon one of the most prosperous years of its history.

Major Millsaps occupied his accustomed place upon the platform. He returned just a few days before the opening from Battle Creek, where he had spent the summer regaining health and strength after his illness in June, which prevented him from being present to hear the Commencement Sermon, the first one that he has missed since the college was founded. All were glad to have him present again and to see him looking so well.

At this writing the enrollment is somewhat in excess of that of the same date last year. The student body seems to be the most serious-minded of any that we have had in a long time. They have evidently come with the expectation of doing good work. The work is now under good headway.

The classes are organizing and electing officers for the year. The societies have had their first meeting with good progress in getting new members.

The Lamar Society had an open meeting on the night of October 1, at which time a new picture of Justice Lamar was placed on the wall in their hall to replace the one destroyed in the fire when the Main Building was burned. Mr. R. H. Thompson, of the local bar, was the principal speaker on this occasion. The Galloway Society is planning to place a picture of Bishop Galloway in their hall.

The officers of the Athletic Association have been elected and everything seems to be moving along smoothly in that line. It is to be hoped that the same political factionalism that existed last year will not be evident this year and that all will work together for a greater Millsaps.

We have the promise this year of the best weekly that Millsaps has ever issued. The method of selecting the staff has been changed. The staff this year was selected for merit, determined by the amount and character of the contributions to the paper last year. The honor of Editor-in-Chief fell to Mr. Julian Feibelman, who is in his second year at the college. There will probably be an annual published this year.

Professor Key, who comes from the Southern University, at Greensboro, Ala., to take the chair of Ancient Languages has entered with great enthusiasm upon his work and is winning for himself a place high in the affections of the college folk.

On last Friday evening the meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association was given over to the hearing of reports from Messrs. O'Donnell and Parks, two of the three delegates sent to the Conference at Blue Ridge, N. C. At the close of the meeting Dr. Kern, as is always the custom, presented the cause of Bible study and secured the pledges of those present to devote ten minutes each day to the reading of the Bible.

From every view-point this promises to be one of the best sessions in the history of the college. We wish that we might inspire every alumnus and old student to join in doing something great for the college. It is not too soon to begin work for the success of the session of 1916-'17. Let every man in the two Conferences and every old Millsaps man and friend of the college work together to make that, the twenty-fifth session of the college, the greatest in its history. Then at the end of that session let everybody come to Jackson for a great celebration upon the completion of the first quarter of a century of the college's life.

Why not send four hundred students that year to the college? It can be done if we will try.

Jackson, Miss. G. L. HARRELL.

CALLED TO NEW WORK.

Unsought and unexpected by this writer, while pursuing the even tenor of his way as pastor of a most delightful charge and elegant people at Kosciusko, be was called by the Board of Trustees to the superintendency of the Mississippi Methodist Orphanage.

Fully appreciating the honor of the position, yet realizing the tremendous responsibility, he hesitated before accepting it. After carefully considering the need of these unfortunate and helpless children and having faith in God and the 125,000 Methodists in Mississippi, besides other friends of the orphans, he accepted the trust.

He realizes his limitations and asks your earnest prayers and hearty co-operation in this great work. Yours faithfully,

J. B. RANDOLPH.

A WORD OF EXHORTATION.

Brother W. M. Williams, the retiring manager of the Methodist Orphanage, and bis good wife have wrought well in this institution and have made a great success of the work. They know the needs here now better than anybody else. They both make statements in this issue of Our Home which I hope you will read and heed. I wish to emphasize the importance of "Work Day," Saturday, Oct. 16th. Our needs are many.

Let every pastor and Sunday school superintendent in Mississippi use the program in this issue of Our Home and prepare a special service for Sunday, Oct. 17th, and reap the harvest of "Work Day." Let all who wish to have envelopes for use on "Work Day" have them printed and pay for same out of the proceeds of the "Work Day" collections.

Let all remittances be made to J. B. Randolph, Manager.

We expect to have free cars to run on the roads where they have been running in the past to carry contributions made to the Orphanages at Jackson.

Fraternally,

J. B. RANDOLPH.

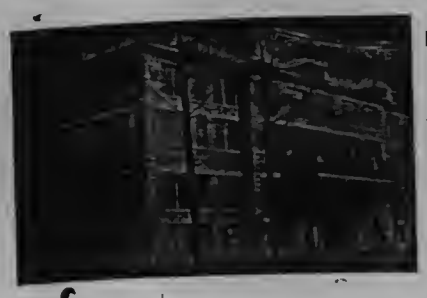
The Louisiana Educational Campaign



LOUISIANA CONFERENCE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., President

Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Sec'y

Rev. C. A. Battle, Treas., Baton Rouge, La.

TAINTED MONEY? NO!

Money is a magnet which draws material things. Giving is a virtue. To exhort an unsaved person to keep the Sabbath day holy is but asking him to do a pious deed. To ask him to sign a temperance pledge is but asking him to do a pious thing. To ask him to give money to aid the Church or an institution of the Church is but asking him to do a pious thing. The money he gives is no more tainted than the pledge he signs or the Sabbath day he keeps. But there is this difference: the keeping of the day blesses himself only; the signing of the pledge accrues most largely to his own good, while the giving of the money puts into the hands of the Church a magnet with which it can work, and thus the act of giving blesses the giver and is a blessing in the hands of the Church.

Why the foregoing paragraph? There are men who have no church relations in your town whose money is now being used for pleasure or traffic. A visit from you would bring from that unsaved man or woman a gift that would benefit the giver, help the Church, and possibly spring an interest in the man for the Church that would ultimately result in his salvation. Cornelius, the Roman, was a charitable man, and his alms preceded his prayers and antedated his conversion. It would be a great thing if the whole unsaved world could be induced to put their money into the hands of the Church, for in so doing their gifts would lead many of them to the altar.

AN EXAMPLE WORTH FOLLOWING.

Our Baptist brethren a few years ago consolidated their educational interests in the Louisiana College at Pineville, which was located and started near the same time that Centenary was opened at its new location at Shreveport. With their usual habit of loyalty the Baptists of the State rallied to their institution, and as a result, in spite of the fact that they were once burnt out, they have erected buildings that have probably cost more than our Centenary buildings, and in addition have finished raising an endowment fund of $100,000. This endowment, if we are correctly informed, was raised from the various congregations of the State largely in annual installments payable in three years.

When we compare this result with what the Methodists of Louisiana have done, or rather have not done, for Centenary, the comparison is enough to make us ashamed of our negligence, or, better, to inspire us to rise to the demands of the situation. If it is true that the Church which provides for the Christian education of its sons and daughters holds the leadership of the future, as is confidently believed by many of those who have thought earnestly on this subject, the fact that the Baptists of Louisiana seem to be outstripping us in their provision for this essential arm of service, together with the fact that the Catholics of the State are not only maintaining but constantly increasing their equipment for education under the direction of that Church, does not offer much encouragement for the hope that Methodism shall be a leading factor in the future development of the State. It is time for us to arouse ourselves to the need of the hour and claim our place in the forefront for the future conquest of Louisiana by a united and generous rallying to Centenary and Mansfield.

A STATEMENT BY THE LOUISIANA ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE.

Now that each candidate for the office of Governor in Louisiana has announced his platform on the liquor question in unmistakable terms, there should exist no longer any doubt as to what all true enemies of the liquor traffic should do. So far as the Anti-Saloon League is concerned, it stands always and everywhere for principle above all other considerations. From its view-point, our only hope at any time to administer a knock-out blow to the liquor traffic is for the friends of prohibition to waive all questions of personal friendship and business relations in the interest of the triumph of the issue, just as the liquor man never fails to do.

The Anti-Saloon League has given each candidate an equal opportunity to declare himself in favor of the principles for which it stands. Of the four men in the race, all are credited with being honorable gentlemen who would undoubtedly keep their pledges on this question.

Hon. R. G. Pleasant has committed himself to local option with the parish as the unit, has ignored the matter of the Congressional unit, and has pledged himself to veto any State-wide submission bill if elected Governor. He thus not only would close the door of hope for a dry Louisiana for the next four years, but even opposes the democratic right of the people to a vote on the question.

Dr. Pierson and Hon. John M. Parker are also unalterably opposed to submission of a State-wide measure. Dr. Pierson, while opposed to the Congressional unit, expresses his willingness to sign such a bill if passed by the Legislature, but promises no support to such a bill. Hon. T. C. Barret, on the other hand, has come out boldly and unequivocally for the immediate extension of the prohibition unit to the Congressional district so as to eliminate the entrenched liquor interests in such centers as Monroe, Alexandria, Baton Rouge, Opelousas, Crowley, Slidell, and others. In addition, he pledges himself to use his best efforts to secure the submission of a State-wide bill during his term of office, if elected. For these principles and measures which he makes paramount in his platform he is already beginning an active and vigorous campaign, and we who have known him intimately for many years have not the slightest doubt of his sincerity. Certainly the liquor interests and their sponsors, the ward bosses, do not doubt his sincerity.

As between men the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League would take no position, but this is clearly a fight for principle and platform and not one for men, and we would be no credit to the high trust committed to us if we did not announce to the friends of our cause throughout the State our purpose to work for the complete overthrow of the liquor traffic.

We will stand with the man and for the measure which offer the only hope of progress for our cause. After many years of waiting and praying, the battle is now on to a finish, and we earnestly hope that all Christian laymen and ministers will present a solid front in this crucial hour. It is strongly urged that steps be taken in every parish to send men to the Legislature who will agree to support the issues set forth in Mr Barret's platform. This is a crusade for the home and the boys, and we call upon the Christian women of the State to aid in every possible way

OUR LAST CALL.

We have been calling for nearly nine years for help for the orphans. You, that is, a great many, but not all, have heard and heeded my calls. Now this last call is for an enthusiastic observance of "Work Day."

We have economized in every way that we knew how this year. On account of the financial stringency we postponed improvements and repairs and the payment of some accounts until we just had to have the money to meet the obligations. Besides our current expenses, we had to buy two new washers for our steam laundry at a cost of over $300, and furniture, seats, desks, etc., for one school room; also two carloads of coal. So we had to borrow $1500 with which to meet our obligations until "Work Day."

So the new manager, Brother Randolph, coming in at this time, and under these circumstances, needs your co-operation. With it he will receive the $5000 needed; without it he and the Church will be burdened with debt. In this last appeal I call upon every one of the 125,000 Methodists in the State to give at least the proceeds or value of one day's work to the Orphanage. We have faith in our people doing great things. This will encourage Brother Randolph and help you.

W. M. WILLIAMS.

NOTICE.

Please let every one make all money orders, checks, etc., intended for the Mississippi Methodist Orphanage payable to J. B. Randolph. Don't be sending money to me, like some did to Brother Oats, for months after he had left the Orphanage.

My address until Conference will be Mt. Olive, Miss. I will serve the Seminary work until Conference. I preached three times last Sunday on my new work. What a privilege to preach the gospel of Christ! W. M. WILLIAMS.

REV. ERVIN ROBERTS.

Rev. Ervin Roberts was born on August 10, 1838, and came to the end of his earthly career on April 7, 1915. Ervin was one of thirteen children born to Mr. James Roberts and Mrs. Mary Ann Roberts. He moved with his parents from Mobile County, Alabama, to Vancleave, Jackson County, Miss., in 1842.

He was a lad of twelve years when first he heard a gospel sermon, which was preached by the Rev. Mr. Geo. Gregory of the Alabama Conference, the discourse being delivered in what was known as a sheepcote, or pen, after some good people had fixed it up for that purpose. This sermon found a lodging place in the heart of this youth which produced fruit in after years. He was a man of prayer and great faith. So much so, that he almost took God literally at his word. Several instances could be given to establish this fact.

While Brother Roberts was a man of limited education he was by no means an ignorant man, but was well posted on most any subject you would bring up. His life was no doubt the outcome of a sound and thorough conversion.

He was the first Sunday school superintendent that Old Mount Pleasant Church ever had, which office he filled for about sixteen years. It then fell to the lot of a younger brother, who is a local preacher in the bounds of this charge, and, a faithful good man, too, to succeed him in that responsible position.

Brother Ervin Roberts was married to Miss Martha Cates in 1861. There were born of this union thirteen children—nine of whom, with a loving wife, a brother and two sisters, and many friends, survive to mourn his departure. But our loss is his gain. We miss his kindly face, genial smile and fatherly counsel.

Brother Roberts was converted after uniting with the Church, under the pastorate of Rev. Jas. Tolle, a local preacher, doing supply work. He united with the Church while Rev. J. F. Randle was pastor.

He was called to the ministry in early life. He received license to exhort under Rev. Irqet, presiding elder, Rev. U. B. Philips being at that time his pastor. He was licensed to preach in 1860 under Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, presiding elder. (This all took place in his own home.)

He preached his first sermon at Old Salem Camp Ground from Matt. 11:28: "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavey laden." And his last sermon was delivered just twelve miles south of Salem, at Caswell Springs last year, the text heing Gal. 6:9: "Let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." This was a fitting text with which to close a successful life, as his had been.

Brother Roberts was ordained a local deacon by Bishop Kavanaugh in 1879 at Meridian, Miss. He was in the itinerancy as a supply at several different periods of life, rendering acceptable service in that capacity.

He was in the strife of the sixties, rendering faithful service as a private soldier and as courier part of the time. He came through it all without a mark on his body or a blotch on his character. During all this time he found time to read the Word of God, which was to him the man of his counsel and the sword of the Spirit. The last official act of his life was to haptize an infant baby, John William Davis, on his fifty-third marriage anniversary.

During the entire period of his illness, he never grew despondent, but was buoyant in faith, for he endured as one who was sure of his reward. There was no fear, for love casteth out all fear. No dark shadows crossed his path, for it seemed as though there was a ray of sunshine in his path. Indeed, the Son of righteousness shined in his soul.

His was a triumphant ending. He died practically with the shouts of praise on his lips, for sweet deliverance had come as we closed up the song, "The touch of His Hand on mine," we began at his former request—for death was on him—to sing "Jesus is all the world to me." Thus he swept out into the everlasting kingdom to receive a crown of life and his garment of righteousness. Thus ended the life of one who was a good citizen, and a consecrated minister of the local ranks of the M. E. Church, South.

"Life's duty done, as sinks the clay,
Light from its load the spirit flies;
While heaven and earth combined to say,
How blest the righteous when he dies!"

GALLOWAY MEMORIAL CHURCH, JACKSON.

Dear Dr. Meek: We have just closed a week's study of the polity, doctrines, and history of Methodism. The attendance on the lectures by our Galloway Memorial congregation was fairly good. The lectures were given in the Sunday school room of the church. The subjects and speakers were as follows:

"Methodism a Providential Movement," Rev. M. M. Black; "Some Great Bishops and Their Contribution to Methodism," Judge J. M. Stevens; "The Rise of the Methodist Movement," Mrs. A. F. Watkins; "Some Outstanding Values of Methodist Polity," Rev. W. H. Lewis; "Some Great General Conferences," Dr. A. F. Watkins; "The Distinctive Doctrines of Methodism," Rev. R. Bradley; "The Beginnings of Methodism in Mississippi," Professor R. S. Picketts; "The Opportunities of a Present-Day Layman," Dr. J. M. Sullivan; "Some Methodist Hymns and Their Authors," Dr. A. A. Kern; "Methodism a World Force for the Kingdom," by the Pastor.

Among other things growing out of this meeting, we will ask that the College of Bishops appoint some one to prepare a biography of the Bishops in encyclopaedic form, this sketch of each Bishop's life and labors to be published in separate volumes, so that each life-work can be bought by any person who desires a special one.

Again, we are going to have a "Hall of Fame" in Galloway Memorial Church. In this room we hope to place on a roll the names of all who have been licensed to preach by this Church. In a similar way we will record the names of any who have gone to the foreign fields. Another roll will contain the names of all who have served as pastors of the Church.

Lastly, we will have the pictures or mural tablets of illustrious Mississippi Methodists, such as Drs. Winans and Drake, and many other like celebrities who have adorned the gospel of Christ and given prestige to our Church.

This latter feature will be of lasting value in teaching Methodist history. When visitors come to our Capital City, we can not only show them a beautiful church but a room which contains the names and pictures of men who have helped to make one of the greatest States in the Union.

We will begin our revival here in October. We are expecting great results. Sincerely,

W. G. HENRY.

THE ORGANIZATION OF THE LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT.

By Judge E. Y. Hughston.

Among the objections urged against the Laymen's Missionary Movement, the most common is that the Church needs no further organizations, that it is over-organized now.

In answer to this objection it may be said that nothing can be over-organized in the true organic sense, and until the organizations of the Church reach every member, to train, prepare and cause him to become active in the Kingdom, a live member, the organizations are insufficient. Organization is but the act of systematizing, of getting into working order; an organization in its true sense is an active, moving, living thing; there can be no life without an organism, and no organism without life, since when the life becomes extinct, the organism disintegrates and decays. It has been asserted that nine-tenths of the membership of the Church is inactive and lifeless; it therefore seems that some organization that will enlist some of these into active life and develop the powers that have so long lain dormant, buried beneath commercialism and pleasure, is very needful and opportune; and the objection that it is not needed bears the ear-marks of that old serpent that deceived our first parents.

The ultimate goal of the Church is to disciple all nations; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever Christ has commanded. This can only be done by so effective an organization of its forces that its every member will have a part in the work. The Church that can enlist only one-tenth of its membership can not expect to make much headway in discipling other people; the Church that has only effectively taught one-tenth of its own membership cannot expect to be very effective in its teaching of other nations; the Church that has nine-tenths of its membership either positive sinners or negative Christians can not successfully claim that it is fully organized and needs no other organization; it can not make such a claim until it has enlisted every member under the banner of Christ, and given him a definite work to do.

But some brethren say that they are opposed to man-made organizations and we have too many of them in the Church, and that this is the cause of the lifeless condition of the Church. Oh, that old serpent again! More "suhtil" than any beast of the field! Man-made organization for the evangelization of the world! This deceiver would have us forget that God has made man his vicegerent on earth; forget that Christ said, "And, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world;" forget that in the spiritual life man is a partner with God in the great work of advancing his kingdom on earth; forget that man is given the task of preparing his bride, the Church, for the coming of the bridegroom, and in that sense all earthly organizations for the spread of the Gospel are of men and through men; and when the spirit of Christ moves and works through the organization of men, the power is irresistible, and a lifeless condition cannot exist. The lifeless condition of the Church is not due to the fact that we have too many man-made organizations, but because of the fact that too many of them are forgetting God, and are worked in the interest of men, in secular life and not for spiritual life, and for the purpose of giving place, power, and influence to men and not to God.

In the material universe we find no strength, power or life without organization. When the earth was without form and void the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters and began to systematize matter and to get it into working order—in other words, to organize matter. The first result of this organization was light; God continued the process of systematic arrangement until the earth brought forth vegetable life and the earth and sea brought forth animal life, beginning with the simplest form of life until it reached the most complex organization, culminat-

WALTER'S TROUBLES.

I thought when I'd learned my letters
That all my troubles were done;
But I find myself much mistaken—
They only have just begun.
Learning to read was awful,
But nothing like learning to write;
I'd be sorry to have you tell it,
But my copy-book is a sight.

The ink gets over my fingers;
The pen cuts all sorts of shines,
And won't do at all what I bid it;
The letters won't stay on the lines,
But go up and down and all over,
As though they were dancing a jig;
They are there in all shapes and sizes,
Medium, little and big.

There'd be comfort in learning
If one can get through; instead
Of that, there are books awaiting
Quite enough to craze my head;
There's the multiplication table,
And grammar, and—oh, dear me!
There's no good place for stopping,
When one has begun, I see.

My teacher says, little by little
To the mountain top we climb,
It isn't all done in a minute,
But only a step at a time.
She says that all the scholars,
All wise and learned men,
Had each to begin as I do;
If that's so—where's my pen?

PUTTING ONE'S MIND TO IT.

Royal Merryman wanted to be a Boy Scout, but was only eleven years and three months old. Ned and Lester Gordon, Frank Rines and Lee Webster had the same ambition and, also, were not yet twelve. So they formed a society of their own and practiced getting ready for scout service. They could learn to do many things that the Boy Scouts did, and they could take tramps and play camp-out. They called themselves "The Junior Hikers," built a hut of spruce boughs in Gordon's field, and spent most of their time exploring Webster's wood-lot.

"We're going to play bear hunt to-day," said Royal one morning. "Lee has a book about hunting bears, and we're going to follow it."

Royal's brother, Jamie, who was only seven years old, listened eagerly. "Oh, Royal," he pleaded, "Can't I belong? Please, Roy! I won't bother a bit."

"You couldn't help a bit," replied Royal. "You'd get tired before we'd gone two miles. Wouldn't he, mother?"

"He couldn't go on long tramps; but can't you take him into camp with you?"

"Well, some time, when we're not going on a hike, I will," Royal agreed, rather reluctantly.

"Don't forget to water the chickens before you go," said his mother. "And I want you to run up to the store and get some steak for dinner and then go over to grandpa's for the apples."

"All right, I won't forget," promised Royal. But when, five minutes afterward, he heard the Gordon boys' whistle, he did forget, and, seizing his bow and arrows, ran to join them. He was pretty well worn out when he reached home in time for supper.

"Hallo!" was his father's greeting, "where's that bear steak? I had my mouth all made up for a bite."

"He got away from us," said Royal soberly, and he added, with some show of pride, "We got lost, but we found our way home all right; it's easy enough if you just put your mind to it."

"How did you do it?"

"Why, we knew that tallest spruce tree in the lot over by the south corner of Gordon's field, and we climbed trees and saw it, and then pointed our course accordingly."

"Oh," said his father, "I see. So you think you are learning scout craft?"

"Yes, sir."

"And how about the other requirements obedience, attention to duty and being a man of your word? You obey your mother, I suppose, and don't forget things or neglect your regular work?"

For the first time since morning Royal remembered his mother's bidding and his promise. He looked embarrassed.

"And that other qualification," continued his father, "the disposition to do a good turn to somebody every day? What deed of kindness have you done to-day?"

Royal considered. "There hasn't been any chance to do a deed of kindness to-day."

"Well," said his father, "I know a boy who has found some of those chances that you have missed. He not only went after the steak that you forgot, and the apples that you forgot, but he took care of the baby while you were off enjoying yourself, and weeded your mother's flower bed, which you hadn't time to look after. It seems rather a one-sided arrangement for him to be doing all the unselfish deeds while you do all the hiking and scout craft."

Royal remembered Jamie's pleading face and his own rude refusal. He felt ashamed, and looked so. "Where is he?" he asked.

"He is coming when I ring," said his mother, touching the tea bell. "He is going to give you a surprise."

The door opened and Jamie came in, very happy and excited. He had on a khaki suit with fringes down the seams, a scarlet neckerchief, a leather belt and pouch, and a hat with a leather band. In his hands he held a beautiful toy rifle.

Royal sprang up, quite as excited as Jamie. "Where did he get it?" he asked.

"Grandpa and I bought it this afternoon," answered Jamie. "Say, Roy," he anxiously besought, "can't I belong now? If you don't want me to hike with you I can stay and guard the camp."

"I guess the boys will be only too glad to have you," answered Royal heartily. Jamie flung himself, gun and all, upon his brother. "You shall carry my rifle half the time!" he cried.

"You see, Royal," said their father, "like scout craft, it's easy enough if one just puts his mind to it."—The Congregationalist.

IN THE CORNFIELD IN JULY.

One hot July morning a boy was hoeing corn in a field. Apparently oblivious of the heat and indifferent as to the exactions of his toils, he whistled while he worked. A dust-laden traveler stopped his horse, drew up to the fence, and called out, "Hello, my lad, I am curious to know how you can hoe corn on a day like this and whistle while you work."

"Well, sir," replied the lad, "I don't know unless it is that I feel somehow that I am a doin' somethin' that even the Almighty couldn't do if I wasn't here to help Him."

What a fine faith is that! In partnership with God! So is every honest, earnest man who does well some work that needs to be done. How the task is dignified! There is no drudgery to the man who feels that he is working with God.—George L. Perrin.

THE CATBIRD IS A JOKER.

He has more whimsies than a minor poet, more streaky humors than a circus clown. He can't even make love seriously. And he's a loafer. He sits on a bough at a brookside out in the country, at early morning right about now, his hat over one eye and his head cocked sportily at an angle; so sitting, he whistles love lyrics to his little gray mate busily engaged collecting materials for a nest.

The redbird, nor even the mockingbird, has nothing on him in respect to purity of tone, caressing grace or sheer joyousness, however much they may excel him in range of repertory. And he knows it. And his little gray mate knows it. And she's proud of it.

But he can't behave; just as his passionate love notes have lured her momentarily off the job of nest-building, to turn and regard him with pleased eyes, the whimsical rascal throws his head back and meows like a cat, or caws like a crow, it's all a joke to him. Little gray mate turns her tail indignantly, turns her back on his love-making and resumes work. Then he flies around to the other bough where he can catch her eye again and begins a new serenade. Her sudden wrath does not worry him a particle. He knows women.—John B. Gorgan, in National Magazine for September.

TOO MANY OF THE KIND.

Judge Flourney, of Washington, D. C., tells this story: A new preacher down in rural Kentucky called on one of his fold, an aged bedridden lady, to sound her out on questions of creed.

"Sister," he inquired, by way of a starter, "do you believe in the doctrine of Falling from Grace?"

The old dame's eyes rolled heavenward.

"Brother," she said, "I not only believes in hit, but I bless the good Lord that I practizes hit!"—Methodist Recorder.

NOT SCRIPTURAL.

At a recent session of the Federal Suffrage Association, held at San Francisco, Rev. Mrs. Brown, president of that organization, is reported as saying: "We must encourage our girls to study for the ministry." The reason she gives for her utterance is that the men have been lured away from their duties as ministers by ping pong, tennis and pink teas, and that there is more brawn than brains in the pulpit of to-day. Of course, all well informed people know that the ground upon which she would encourage girls to study for the ministry are false. If they were altogether true, there is no Scriptural authority for such encouragement, either by precept or example. On the other hand, there are Scriptural reasons why women should not enter the ministry. The Rev. Mrs. Brown's utterances show conclusively that she should have never entered it, and that having entered it she ought to quit it.

"We rejoice greatly in the splendid work that has been done and is being done by the women of the churches, and few women of any denomination have made a more excellent record than have our Baptist women. They are certainly as loyal to the truth as any women in the country, and fortunately, none of them have had such distorted views of their duties, in the light of the New Testament, as to give any expression to having felt called to enter the ministry."—Christian Index.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

MEETING OF THE PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

The annual meeting of the Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate will be held in the Advocate office at 3 o'clock p.m. on Thursday, October 28, 1915.

J. M. HENRY, Chairman.

THE GREAT STORM.

New Orleans and the surrounding country were on Wednesday, Sept. 29, visited by the most severe storm of which there is any authentic record in the history of this section. It originated in the tropics and warnings that it was sweeping northward were published two or three days in advance of its arrival; but hurricane predictions are so frequent hereabout and so often fail to be verified that, with the exception of safeguarding the shipping interests, but little attention was paid to them in this instance.

A strong wind was blowing early Wednesday morning, which steadily increased in intensity until it maintained for about seventy minutes a velocity of 96 miles an hour, and for a few seconds reached a velocity of 120 miles. The barometer reading was 29.13, which is said to be the third lowest in the world's record of storms, having been exceeded at False Point Lighthouse, Bay of Bengal, India, on Sept. 22, 1885, when the reading was 25.15, and at Royal, Porto Rico, on Aug. 14, 1899, when it was 27.60. The wind was accompanied by a constant downpour of rain, and though it blew continuously, it came at times in spiral gusts of varying fierceness. It was practically an all-day storm, and the scenes presented on the streets while it was raging were such as one can never forget.

After the early morning hours practically no business was attempted and it was with the utmost difficulty that one could go anywhere. By noon fences, walls, trees, and weak structures were falling, the air was filled with slate, glass, and other flying material, and it was dangerous to be out of doors. From 1 to 6 o'clock, when the hurricane reached its maximum, substantially all travel of every kind was stopped; nor was it resumed to any considerable extent after the wind began to subside at the latter hour. The street cars were out of commission, the "jitneys" were afraid to operate because of the live wires that were down, and the danger of undertaking to walk the barricaded streets was generally recognized. Thousands of people were unable to reach their homes, all the hotels were crowded, and many spent the night in stores and office buildings. Three hundred young ladies were cared for in the new Post-Office.

The spectacle which the city presented on Thursday morning was a most striking one. Wreckage was everywhere; not a car was in motion; the wires were down in every direction, and there was no communication to be had with the outside world. The various conveyances that were rigged up to transport people to and from Canal Street were well worth seeing. The old-time [illegible] reason was not [illegible] exhilaration [illegible] was [illegible] experimental [illegible] entering [illegible]

[illegible] the severity and duration of the great storm, the loss of life in New Orleans was [illegible] small. According to the information at hand at the time [illegible] persons were killed and some two score were injured. The property loss, however, was [illegible] and will probably reach up into the millions. A number of churches were wrecked or damaged, the most conspicuous of these being the First Presbyterian Church, which was made famous by the ministry of its former pastor Dr. B. M. Palmer. The roof and front inner walls of this noted edifice were demolished and the organ, which was located in that part of the building, was completely destroyed. Of the extent to which our Southern Methodist Churches suffered, Rev. V. V. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, has written elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate.

The storm also wrought great havoc in the country bordering on the Louisiana and Mississippi Gulf Coast. A large amount of property was destroyed there and quite a number of lives were lost. The total number of the dead in the wake of the storm is estimated at from 150 to 175. At Lake Catherine about 20 were killed, at Bizolers 15 or 20, at Pleasure about the same number, at Delacroix 20, and at Point-a-la-Hache 11. There has been considerable suffering for the want of food and shelter at some of these outlying points. The city of New Orleans has been endeavoring to relieve all such distress as far as possible, and Governor Hall also has been lending a helping hand in the matter. Up to the present, voluntary subscriptions amounting to about $[illegible] have been made for this purpose. The rains, which began last Sunday and are still continuing at this time, Tuesday, are adding much to the discomfort of the people in the stricken areas, and are increasing considerably the damage to injured property. Even in New Orleans there are hundreds of buildings with shattered roofs which have little protection against the prevailing weather.

This widespread disaster has fallen upon not a few with well-nigh crushing weight. Let the readers of the Advocate remember them at the throne of grace.

NOT A MARK OF THE TRUE PROPHET.

One speaking to us a few days since of a certain distinguished minister and ecclesiastical dignitary commented enthusiastically upon his imposing and beautiful home in a great city. Alas! not so have lived the mightiest prophets of the Lord. When the great Wesley fell on sleep he had scarcely enough money to bury him. It has been by self-sacrificing toil among outcasts in lowly places, and not by the recognition of princes and presidents, that General William Booth has won an imperishable place among the real leaders of the Christian Church. Of palaces and soft raiment the flaming Baptist knew nothing, and our Lord himself had not where to lay his head. There is a wonderful amount of meaning in Paul's words to Timothy: "Thou therefore endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." Men may be made officials by mere election at the hands of those who have such honors to bestow (this includes Churches), but true heroes are self-made out in the fields of actual conflict. What a reversal of the world's estimates of men there will be when the all-knowing and unerring Judge takes his seat upon his throne in the day of the great assize, with the assembled universe before him!

HEROINES OF THE STORM.

During the recent terrific hurricane that swept over New Orleans the honors for fidelity and courage were won by the telephone girls. The Times-Picayune on the day following the storm thus referred to the splendid service which they rendered:

[illegible] a wonderful number of [illegible] were at the [illegible] Telephone [illegible] when [illegible] was at its height. Despite the [illegible] the [illegible] and flying glass [illegible] at their posts, trying [illegible] alls handed from the [illegible] the [illegible] wires.

"When [illegible] fell [illegible] about [illegible] a number [illegible] rooms gave way on both the [illegible] streets sides of the building and [illegible] glass were hurled through the [illegible] The [illegible] of the falling glass [illegible] to the hearts of [illegible] young women, but they [illegible]. The majority [illegible] remained [illegible] at their boards, [illegible] [illegible] of probable persons [illegible]

"So few of the girls were [illegible] that many [illegible] at their boards, but [illegible] only slightly injured. Several members of the male force were also [illegible] the [illegible] and one male operator [illegible] at [illegible] on the head, but he was treated at the exchange. It was not necessary to move any of the injured to the hospital.

"The management of the exchange raised the work of the girls Wednesday evening. Sixty of the young women were unable to return to their homes owing to the high wind, and these were kept down town at the company's expense."

This is only another example of how women are given to showing themselves equal to great emergencies when they come. They are termed 'the weaker vessels,' but often in perplexing crises they prove themselves quite as strong as men and even more capable of enduring suffering. The people of New Orleans should not soon forget the noble exhibition of heroism in the service of others that these young women gave in the recent disaster that overtook our city.

A RESULT OF WRONG METHODS.

Rev. Charles Stelzle, who is widely known as a leader in Christian work, is quoted as having made the following declaration in a recent address at Winona Lake, Ind. "Speeches and sandwiches have killed the brotherhood movement in the Churches. The brotherhoods have literally dug their graves with their teeth. Instead of being inspired by Mazzini's call, 'Come and suffer,' they were fooled by the swan song, 'Come and eat.' We rather suspect that Dr. Stelzle is correct in his autopsy. We have never had much faith in a banqueting Christianity. We had rather pin our hopes to the prayer-meeting type. So-called religious movements that are stirred by appealing to wrong motives may have a spurt for a time, but usually they are short-lived and barren of substantial results. Neither Jesus nor his Apostles ever resorted to such methods to win followers and workers. On the contrary they appealed to the deep needs of the human soul and challenged the heroic in men.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The presiding elders of the Louisiana Conference will meet in Alexandria on Tuesday, Oct. 12.

Rev. A. W. Turner, Superintendent of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League, addressed the New Orleans Protestant Ministers' Association last Monday.

We are in receipt of an attractive picture card from Rev. J. S. Duke, of Jackson, Miss., which reads as follows: "To announce the arrival of Sadie Elizabeth Duke on September 27, 1915; weight eight and one-half pounds." We extend congratulations to the happy parents.

We are publishing this week a statement concerning the new course of study for our Sunday school teachers and leaders from the pen of Rev. John W. Shackford, our new Superintendent of Teacher-training. We trust that it will be given careful attention by all the readers of the Advocate.

Bishop Cranston's great address on the "Unification of American Methodism" is to be issued in pamphlet form.

Next Saturday will be "Work Day" for the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage. See that it is observed in your community.

Rev. John Paul, formerly a member of the Mississippi Conference, has retired from the editorship of The Way of Faith (Columbia, S. C.), and has been asigned by Bishop Denny to the Hampstead Square Church of Charleston, S. C.

Hon. W. J. Bryan delivered a free address in the interest of peace in New Orleans last Monday evening, being greeted by a large and enthusiastic audience. Mr. Bryan's lecture was for the benefit of the Charity Hospital—the Crescent City's greatest benevolent institution.

Brother S. Taylor Jackson, of West Carroll Parish, was in New Orleans last Friday and did us the kindness to drop into our sanctum. He spoke in terms of appreciation of his pastor, Rev. G. D. Purcell. Brother Jackson is an ardent Methodist and is deeply interested in the present political situation in Louisiana.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions to the Advocate sent in within the past few days: Brother J. J. Fike, Pleasant Hill, La., 6; Rev. R. V. Fulton, Greensburg, La., 2; Rev. W. J. Porter, Bienville, La., 5; Rev. J. M. Brown, Haughton, La., 2.

Rev. N. G. Augustus, our pastor at Houston, Miss., who has a choice and large library, has recently given Millsaps College a file of the Minutes of the North Mississippi Conference from 1882, the year that he became connected with that body, up to the present time. He has also generously offered to present the Editor of the Advocate with a similar file.

Brother W. L. Tucker, of Tucker, La., was an appreciated visitor at our office Friday of last week. He represents the Tilden Company, Pharmaceutical Chemists, of New Labanon, N. Y., and St. Louis, Mo., and stands up and talks for Christ as he goes about over the country. We are always glad to grip the hand of such a disciple of the Master.

Dr. C. B. Baker, of Amory, Miss., in a letter renewing his subscription to the Advocate, says: "Our pastor, Rev. W. M. Young, has lately been delighting us with some doctrinal sermons. He preached on water baptism on the second Sunday in September. His discourse was Biblical and, though convincing, was of a kind not to give any one offense." Brother Young usually does admirably whatever he undertakes to do.

Rev. Robert Selby, presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, writes: "It seems now that we will make a good report at Conference on all claims and also as to conversions and accessions. We are doing what we can to enlist the co-operation of the people in winding up the year's work satisfactorily." Brother Selby believes in using printer's ink in promoting the important interests that have been committed to his hands. In this we think he is wise.

From Atlanta, Ga., where he is attending the Candler School of Theology, Rev. Olin Ray, a promising young member of the North Mississippi Conference, writes as follows: "Our school has had a most encouraging beginning. The new members of the Faculty, Dr. F. N. Parker and Dr. Magath, have won their way into the hearts of the students and are greatly appreciated. The Faculty, as a whole, are spiritual and thoroughly consecrated to the work of the Church."

The Executive Committee of the Board of Education of the North Mississippi Conference and Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, the Conference Secertary of Education, who have had in hand the work of arranging for the Educational Anniversary at the approaching Annual Conference session, have engaged Dr. J. S. Frazer, of Mobile, the Financial Commissioner of Emory University, to make the principal address on that occasion. The anniversary will be held on Thursday evening, December 2.

Rev. E. Nash Broyles, who is winding up his second year at Durant, Miss., has had a remarkably successful pastorate there. During his incumbency about 40 infants have been baptized, more than 90 persons have been received into the Church, and approximately $9000 has been expended on the beautiful new house of worship which he enterprised. Under Brother Broyles' progressive leadership, Durant is fast becoming one of the best appointments in the North Mississippi Conference.

Writing under date of September 28, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Starkville, Miss., says: "We had 350 in actual attendance at Sunday school last Sunday, which was a record-breaking number. There were 123 college boys in one Bible Class. The Mississippi A. & M. College has opened unusually well. There is a fine spirit among the 1100 students enrolled. President Hightower let the students see from the start that a firm but kindly discipline would be exercised, and the year promises to be one of the very best in the history of the school."

A dispatch to the Times-Picayune from Springfield, La., on September 30, said: "Yesterday at about 10:30 a. m. a considerable storm struck this place, doing considerable damage to fences, crops, out-houses, and a few residences. The Methodist Church at this place was completely demolished."

The New Zealand Methodist Times says of Bishop E. E. Hoss, who was one of the speakers at the centenary celebration of Australian Methodism at Sydney August 10: "The lion here and elsewhere at the centenary gatherings was Bishop Hoss. He came with a big reputation, and he lived up to it. He seemed to crowd in every quality necessary to make sermon and speech effective, and the reports lead us all the more deeply to regret that we have not had the chance of hearing him in New Zealand."

This issue of the Advocate has been brought out under very adverse circumstances. The roof of the building in which our paper is published was considerably damaged by the fierce storm that swept over the city last Wednesday, and since then conditions about the office have been more or less disturbed. Our mails also have been interrupted and delayed. In view of the foregoing facts, we trust that persons who expected their communications to be printed this week will be patient with us. We have done the best we could in view of the situation.

At the fourth quarterly conference of the Kossuth Circuit, of which Rev. D. R. McDougal is pastor, resolutions highly complimentary to the work of the presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Mitchell, who is finishing his fourth year on the Corinth District, were introduced by Brothers J. W. McAnulty, F. A. Dilworth, and R. F. Dilworth, and were unanimously adopted. Brother Mitchell is manifestly much appreciated by the people of his "diocese," and we doubt not deservedly so. He has never failed to give a good account of himself where he has wrought.

A communication from Rev. W. B. Hogg, of Meridian, Miss., Chairman of the Publicity Committee of the Klein-Boyd revival meeting, which for some weeks has been in progress in that city, brings the good news that a great work is being accomplished for the Master in that evangelistic campaign. Due doubtless to delayed mails, this report reached us too late for this issue of the Advocate, but will be published next week. We are pleased to know that the East Mississippi's growing metropolis is being blessed with so gracious a season of spiritual refreshing.

Though we mentioned the opening of Trinity College last week, we cannot refrain from extracting the following statement from a personal letter just received from Dr. W. P. Few, the President of that institution: "We have had the largest opening in Trinity's history, and the prospect in every direction, so far as I can see, looks good. We are trying our best to serve the Church and the Kingdom of God, knowing that thereby we best serve the cause of mankind." We like the ring of this last sentence. This ideal that our great North Carolina College has adopted is indeed a worthy one.

We are printing elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate a communication from Hon. W. A. Belk, of Holly Springs, Miss., anent the "Doctor of Divinity" problem. Since Brother Belk seems to be in doubt as to whether our recent brief editorial on that subject was serious or jocular, perhaps we ought to state that we were writing in a facetious vein. We assumed that our views concerning the matters that we touched upon were so well known that our readers would understand that we were very largely indulging in ridicule. There are few things that we are more opposed to than we are to the increase of offices and machinery in the Church.

We acknowledge the reception of the following wedding invitation: "Mrs. Frances Pauline Mosser requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of her daughter, Emma Ernestine, to Dr. Maury Johnson Perkins, on Wednesday evening, October 20, 1915, at seven o'clock, in the Methodist Church at Alice, Texas." This announcement will be of interest to many in North Mississippi, since the groom is a son of the Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Perkins, who resided there for a number of years. Dr. Perkins, if we mistake not, is a graduate of the Medical Department of the University of Texas, which is located at Galveston. The Advocate extends congratulations and best wishes.

A busy man is Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, the Sunday School Field Secretary of the North Mississippi Conference. Under date of October 1, he writes: "Last week I visited 8 churches, made 28 addresses, and traveled over 100 miles. We still have a great opportunity in the Mississippi Delta, but much false teaching is now being scattered through that section to re-enforce Satan in his work. I hear on all sides that we need a sweeping revival among our people. May the Lord put us on our faces, so that he can send it'"

Rev. W. W. Hartsfield, of Golden, Miss., who is in his third year in his present field sends us 5 trial subscriptions, and in his business letter appends the following note: "We are rounding out a successful year's work. A goodly number have been added to the membership of the Church, and a neat house of worship costing $950 has been constructed at Golden. The indications are that everything will be reported 'in full' at Conference."

After spending several weeks at Battle Creek, Michigan, Major R. W. Millsaps has returned to his home in Jackson, Miss., much improved. From a personal letter from this honored layman, we take the following: "You ought to come up and see our new church building (the Galloway Memorial). We will begin a revival meeting tomorrow, October 3; the services will be held in the Sunday school room, as the main auditorium is not quite finished. Dr. J. D. Simpson, President of Birmingham College, will do the preaching." We should like very much indeed to spend a few days in the Capital City of Mississippi and see the beautiful Galloway Memorial Church, which is now nearing completion, as well as to have the privilege of hearing Dr. Simpson's stirring messages; but our hands are quite full of work in the Advocate office. We hope, however, to give our readers in the near future a picture and a somewhat extended description of this finest church edifice in the Magnolia State.

NEW ORLEANS CHURCHES SUFFER FROM STORM.

The Methodist Church in New Orleans has never sustained a greater loss than that caused by the devastating hurricane of last week. Of all our churches only the Carrollton Avenue escaped without damage. The Felicity and Aiglers churches were totally wrecked and all of the others were so badly damaged that there is no way of estimating the loss at this time. In addition to the wreckage caused by the storm, a continuous downpour of rain for the past twenty-four hours has flooded the churches, ruining organs and furniture, weakening the standing walls, and in every way making the outlook very gloomy.

With practically every home in New Orleans more or less damaged, the repair of which will engage the city's working force for at least thirty days, the repairing and rebuilding of our churches becomes a greater undertaking.

We are grateful to God that there has been no loss of life among our people.

W. W. HOLMES.

October 5.

FROM THE FRENCH MISSION.

Rev. C. F. Starnes, formerly of Asheville, N. C., has come to our State to become an addition to our French Mission force. He will work in the Houma and Lafourche Missions.

The storm of last week destroyed the only real church building in the Houma Mission. It was blown down during the 1909 storm, but was restored. The work of reconstruction will begin at once.

Brother Anatole Martin received 6 members into our Church at Foport on Sept. 26. Brothers Breithaupt and Martin have had more than 70 accessions to the Church this year.

C. V. BREITHAUPT.

October 4.

TO OUR PREACHERS.

The management of this Advocate has decided to let our preachers and agents offer six months trial subscriptions at 50 cents during August, September and October. This offer will be withdrawn on the 10th of November, 1915. Subscriptions must be sent in in clubs and money orders used in making remittances so as to save expense.

In soliciting new subscribers, please explain to them that the six months' subscriptions are taken with the understanding that, after their expiration, the regular rate of $1.50 will be charged for annual subscriptions unless they are ordered canceled.

We are making this offer for a three-fold purpose:

Mrs. A. J. DAWSON was born on Oct. 18 1824, in Mississippi. In early life she became a Christian and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, remaining a consistent member until she went to join the Church Triumphant. She was married to Rev. Samuel Dawson on March 25, 1847. He departed this life one year after their marriage, leaving her with one child—a girl. Her granddaughter became the wife of Mr. C. M. Copes, of Delhi, La., and with them she made her home for fifteen years. It was from this place, after a long illness, on August 25, 1915 she ascended to be with her Lord. As she was crossing over the last words caught by the sorrowing ones behind were, "Home, sweet home."

Her PASTOR.

Our hearts were indeed saddened and our eyes were flooded with tears when the message came to us that the death angel had visited the home of Brother and Sister A. C. Marr and had carried to the beautiful home above the spirit of little ISOM, their baby boy, aged [illegible] years. Isom was a bright, sweet child and was loved by all that knew him, and oh, how he will be missed by all, and especially by his dear mother and playmates! We are sometimes made to wonder why it pleases God to pluck the tender buds from our homes, but we know that He knoweth best and doeth all things well. Isom was sick only a short while and his death was a shock to his loved ones and friends. His remains were placed in the Grub Hill cemetery on Sept. 5. A large congregation of friends and relatives attended the funeral service, which was conducted by Rev. W. W. Bruner, the pastor, and Rev. D. M. Floyd. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved father, mother, and brothers, and commend them to the Heavenly Father who knows how to comfort the sorrowful and heal wounded hearts.

TEACHER-TRAINING ANNOUNCEMENT.

By John W. Shackford, Superintendent of the Department of Teacher-Training.

New Course of Study.

The General Sunday School Board, at its meeting at Lake Junaluska, July 22-24, ordered the selection of a new course of study for the Teacher-training circles. For months prior to this action the whole question of a new Teacher-training course and of text-books for the new course had been under consideration by a special committee of the Board. The report of this committee to the Board recommending a new course of study was adopted and the recommendations of the committee regarding the text-books of the new course were referred to another special committee composed of the Sunday School Editor, the Superintendent of the Wesley Bible Class Department, and the Superintendent of the Department of Teacher-training.

The new Superintendent of the Teacher-training Department did not enter upon the duties of his office until September. The consequent lateness of the hour, together with the absence of other members of the committee at the Annual Conferences, makes an early announcement of the complete course impossible. But in order that no circles may be delayed in beginning their work we are announcing at this time the first book of the First Year Course. Circles planning to begin Teacher-training studies should order this at once and begin work. The full course with all particulars will be announced as soon as possible, and before circles beginning now will have need of the second book.

"The Pupil, The Teacher, and The School."—Barclay.

The above is the title of the first book of the First Year Course. The other book in our First Year Course will be on the Bible, but the Committee is not yet ready to announce the text on the Bible.

The price of "The Pupil, the Teacher, and the School" is thirty-five cents, or forty-two cents postpaid. The book should be ordered from our agents, Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn., Dallas, Texas, or Richmond, Virginia.

Point of View.

It will be noted that the new course of study begins with the pupil and not with the Bible, as have former courses. The new course begins with the pupil and will center about the pupil. The teacher and the Sunday school exist for the pupil. Even the Bible in the school is not an end in itself. It, too, is a means to an end, and that end is the religious development of the pupils until they all "attain unto the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a full grown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."

The teacher who has gained this point of view and who has arrived at some understanding of the developing mind and of the needs of the pupil will have a new vision of Sunday school responsibility and of the vast opportunities afforded to the Sunday school of fashioning the character of the pupil after the stature of Christ.

The study of the pupil, therefore, constitutes the proper introduction to that course of training that later is to deal with the teacher in relation to the pupil and then of the school in relation to both, and, finally, of the Bible as a source of moral and spiritual truth. This truth is to be used by the teacher as a means of inspiration and nourishment to the pupil and as the material for the building up within each of a character after the Divine Ideal. And this Ideal is increasingly unfolded in the Bible, and, at last, is set forth in its perfect beauty and fullness in Christ Jesus. The Bible, therefore, we believe, will be studied with a new interest by the student who has caught a vision of the high calling of the Sunday school teacher.

Serious Work.

The entire course of the First Year will contain about fifty lessons. These lessons will be longer and will call for more work than did those in previous courses. But this is as it should be. Sunday school work is becoming more serious, and the ideals for the school leader and for the Sunday school teacher are far in advance of what they were a very few years ago. Likewise, the vocation of the Sunday school teacher is a more honored and a more important one than ever before.

It follows, then, that those who are offering themselves for service in the Sunday school ought to covet the opportunity of taking a course of study that will afford them the best possible equipment for their great task.

The lessons are longer, but for that reason we believe this course will be more interesting, more thorough-going, and more vital than the mere outline courses could possibly be. This method of more mature and fuller treatment of the subject matter is approved by the foremost leaders in religious education and teacher-training work. In announcing this new course we are confident that those who master it will receive a new vision of their vocation in the Sunday school and will desire to continue the course of study in further preparation for their greater efficiency and a larger service within the Sunday school and for the Kingdom.

The best evidence of the inspiration of the word of God is found in the Word itself; when studied, loved, obeyed and trusted, it never disappoints, never misleads, never fails. It always satisfies.—Rev. J. Hudson Taylor.

CHRISTMAS BOX TO WEMBO NIAMA.

One can somewhat appreciate the distance and the time required to get first-class mail to Central Africa to the missionaries at the Methodist mission at Wembo Niama, when last night four packages were started on their journey to reach there for Christmas. They contained a great many articles for use by missionaries and for play by the dear little girl and baby boy so isolated, from dresses made by loving hands to the much-treasured safety-pin. Several friends and members of the church contributed beautiful hand-made articles for the ladies and the children. Mr. Stockwell wrote in a postscript some time ago that the envelopes that contained the letters were often worn entirely through around the edges and since then Mr. Mayo has been enclosing all of his letters in linen-lined envelopes. The overland trip from the post office, Lusambo, to the mission station at Wembo Niama, about two hundred and fifty miles, is made on foot and the articles carried on the backs of natives, through rain, equatorial sunshine, African jungle, streams, and primitive camp, so packages must be well protected. Mrs. Mayo, after very tightly packing, rolling and tying the parcels, then sewed unbleached cotton around them and around that sewed rubber sheeting. The route that will probably be taken by the parcels will be to New York and thence to Lisbon, from which point there is a vessel sailing about every three or four weeks to the Congo and as far up the Congo as Matadi. At Matadi it is taken by railroad to Leopardville; this land route is taken to avoid the great fall in the Congo river. The State boat makes a trip to Lusambo postoffice about once a month. This territory is in the Congo Belge, formerly a part of the great Congo Free State and under the Belgian government. Prior to the European war the communication was very direct through Antwerp and the time required for mail to go was sixty days. The chief of the tribe, Wembo Niama, was not forgotten, and the two native evangelists, Mudimbi and Lufaka, were also remembered. The addresses on the parcels were written with India ink, so as not to be affected by water. The amount required for postage was $5.51.—Lake Charles (La.) American Press.

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind and You Save $2. Fully Guaranteed

This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat colds, is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you—at a cost of only 54 cents—a full pint of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.50. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. Tastes good and never spoils.

You will be pleasantly surprised how quickly it loosens dry, hoarse or tight coughs, and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, be sure and ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., 23 Main St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

What Causes Tuberculosis

In the opinion of many medical authorities, tuberculosis is aided, if not actually caused, by a loss of lime from the system. "Where there is a decalcification, the lime salts must be supplied medicinally," says Dr. J. W. Carhart, of San Antonio, in the May, 1913, issue of "Medical Progress."

To supply these salts often is difficult, since in some forms they are not easily assimilable.

In Eckman's Alterative, however, calcium (lime) is so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be assimilated by the average person, and to this, in part, is due its success.

We make no boastful claims, but many cases of tuberculosis apparently have yielded to it. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so is safe to try. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney,
Sardis, Miss.

Rev. T. L. Porter has organized a new school at Tirzah and Rev. L. A. McKeown reports a new school on his circuit. When we start people to studying the Bible we have done something worth while.

Rev. H. S. Spragins selected the towns, wrote to his preachers, and did many other things that made it possible to get the best of results from institute work in his district. The Greenville District is not only rich in material resources, but it is a most promising field for the development of strong men of God.

There is such a thing as being embarrassed with success. This is the condition of the Sunday school at Greenville. Their church building is too small to accommodate the classes already in attendance. The preacher and superintendent are planning to make room enough to care for all who want to study God's word.

An institute was held for the churches near Lula. Brother McCorkle represented Tunica. The people at Lula resolved to make their school take rank with those in the first class. Brother Halfacre has put his big heart behind the different departments and means to stay by them until the work is done. This school is guided by a Presbyterian and the one at Rich is looked after by a Christian.

The question is often asked, "How can we get others interested?" The answer cuts to the quick. Be so interested yourself that your enthusiasm will be catching. Religion is caught easier than taught. The closer we live to God the more we are interested in others. God's unflagging interest is expressed in the Cross—touch that and some of His love will be let into the soul. Most of the difficulty is nearer than we care to think.

The institute held at Gunnison was well attended. Rev. J. R. Bright, his wife, and three teachers from Friar's Point added much to the occasion by their presence and excellent work. Mr. McKnight, a Presbyterian, and cashier of the bank, superintends the Gunnison school. The minute you go into the church you can see good business sense invested for God. This school and the one at Friar's Point made some good promises, and they will go right on to the Standard of Efficiency.

The institute held at Leland had representatives from Arcola and Hollandale. You can always find a few people who are not too busy to look after the most important things during the busiest season of the year. The Leland church is fortunate in having a man like J. T. Mathis at the head of its Bible study work. This school under his guidance will take the full program of a real Sunday school. The schools at Arcola and Hollandale are doing excellent work, but they believe they can do more and better work. Brothers Cain and Lester are doing fine work in this part of the district.

The leading laymen and a few of the preachers of the Columbus District met at West Point recently, at the call of Prof. Dabney Lipscomb, district lay leader, and Rev. W. W. Woollard, presiding elder, for the purpose of looking at our condition squarely and honestly. We all saw something, and went away from that conference determined to let Christ have the right of way in our lives more fully than ever. Judge E. V. Hughston made the speech of the occasion; others made excellent speeches, and not a few made some frank confessions. Brother Woollard sees and feels the need of a great awakening among our people, and he is throwing himself into the work and means to lead the people of his district to victory.

Murine is prepared by our Physicians, as used for many years in their practice, now dedicated to the Public and sold by Your Druggist. Try Murine to Refresh, Cleanse, and Strengthen Eyes after exposure to Strong Sunlight, Wind and Dust and to restore healthful tone to Eyes Reddened and made Sore by Overwork and Eye Strain.

Some broadminded Physicians use and recommend Murine while others perhaps jealous of its Success, talk and rush into print in opposition; those whose Eyes need care can guess why, as there is no Prescription fee in Murine. Just hand your Druggist 50c and you have a Complete Pkg. Eye Book—Murine—Dropper—and Cork Screw—ready for use. Try it in your Eyes and in Baby's Eyes for Eye Troubles—No Smarting—Just Eye Comfort. Write for Book of the Eye Free.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

REVIVAL AT THE METHODIST ORPHANAGE.

As was announced in the last issue, we opened our school with revival services continuing for a week. The preachers of the city did the preaching, except one sermon, by Brother D. W. Babb, of Crawford. Every service was good. The children and adults all seemed to be benefited. Twenty-five applied for church membership as a result of this meeting. We praise God for his Spirit's presence. Continue to pray for the spiritual life of this Home.

JUST ONE SURE WAY TO CONQUER RHEUMATISM.

If you have tried to get relief and failed, take "RENWAR," the one sure remedy for Rheumatism, and be well. It is a non-effervescent salts, easy and pleasant to take and sure and quick in results. Guaranteed to give relief or your money back. Mr. W. P. Williams, Bank Cashier, of Irving, Ky., writes: "Renwar" is the best remedy for rheumatism I have ever found." For sale by all druggists. 50c or sent postpaid on receipt of price. WARNER DRUG CO., Nashville, Tenn.

OUR NEW MANAGER.

We have been helping Brother J. B. Randolph, our new manager, in the Orphanage for two weeks. He is taking great interest in every department of the work. He is showing himself quite a good student and an apt scholar. I am sure he will do his very best. I bespeak for him the prayers and co-operation of the Methodists of Mississippi and all other friends of the Orphanage. The children are delighted with Sister Randolph. May God's richest blessings rest upon the new management!

THE CREOLES OF LOUISIANA, the descendants of the original Spanish and French settlers, prided themselves upon their hair—and rightly they should—for it was they who first knew the secret of beautiful hair, the one great successful remedy for hair diseases and the greatest of all hair foods: La Creole Hair Dressing. The recipe was kept a profound secret by the race until about fifty years ago, but now you can reap the benefits of their early discoveries by using "La Creole" hair dressing, the very best dressing for keeping the hair fluffy, light and beautiful.

This wonderful preparation of the Creole race not only cleanses the scalp from all disease and filth, but also renews the life of the hair; makes it light and fluffy; restores to the hair its natural color and original lustre and supplies the hair with oil, food which it requires. No house should be without it. Ask your dealer for it. Price $1.00. Manufactured by VAN VLEET-MANSFIELD DRUG CO., Memphis, Tenn.

TETTERINE CURES PILES.

Every sufferer from Piles ought to read these words from H. S. Hood, Bellaire, Mich.: "For 16 years I had been a sufferer from itching piles. I got a box of Tetterine and less than half the box made a complete cure." Tetterine gives instant relief in all skin diseases such as Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, Ground Itch, etc., and constitutes a permanent remedy. 50c at druggist's or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

MINISTER TELLS HOW HE WAS RESTORED TO HEALTH.

The splendid restorative powers of Dr. Miles' Nervine were never better demonstrated than by the experience of the Rev. W. J. Houck, of Greencastle, Pa. We will quote from a statement that he made recently:

"Several years ago I experienced some severe nervous shocks, which came at a time when my nervous strength and vitality had been greatly taxed by a severe season of work. My health was affected and I was seriously threatened with nervous prostration. I could not sleep at night and was so nervous that I would start at every little noise. My appetite was poor and it seemed almost impossible for me to gain strength. Through the advice of a friend I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine and Liver Pills. I soon saw that my health was improving. Instead of that tired and wornout feeling which so oppressed me, I felt strong and cheerful. I could sleep soundly all night and would awake in the morning feeling rested and refreshed. Since that time whenever I am overworked or feel "rundown" I find a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine is a wonderful help in bracing up and in giving me renewed strength and health."

Dr. Miles' Nervine will prove equally beneficial to others who are nervous and run-down from overwork or from any other reason, and if it fails to benefit you your money will be cheerfully refunded. It can be purchased at any drug store.

ALL-DAY MISSIONARY RALLY AT AMORY.

Mrs. J. H. Haughton, Secretary of the Aberdeen District, claims the honor of holding the first all-day missionary rally in the North Mississippi Conference, at Amory, on August 6. The Methodist women of Amory extended open-hearted hospitality to the women of the Aberdeen District, and their elegant new church is one of which they are justly proud. It is modern and complete in its every detail, and at noon a most delicious luncheon was served in the dining room. Forty-one out-of-town guests partook of this hospitality, among whom were a number of distinguished visitors, who added much to the interest of the occasion, namely: Mrs. Vic Thompson Hoyle, Conference President: Mrs. J. F. Evans, Honorary President, Tupelo; Mrs. T. M. Clark; and Mrs. W. C. Hinds of Guntown, who nine years ago organized the Amory Missionary Society. Three ministers encouraged us by their presence: Rev. J. C. Park of Tupelo, Rev. I. D. Borders of Aberdeen, and Rev. W. M. Young of Amory. There were also a number of lay brethren present.

Reports from volunteer women who are promoting the organization and membership campaign in the Aberdeen District showed that much active interest is being taken throughout the district, which has already begun to bear fruit, there having been organized recently four adult auxiliaries, viz: At Troy, Cedar Grove, Ebenezer, and Egypt; and two Young People's Societies, one at Houston and the other at Shannon. Quite a number of new members were reported as added to societies already organized, there being reported a net gain of 75 persons since the inauguration of the campaign at the district meeting held at Shannon the first week in June.

A praise and testimony service was feelingly conducted by Mrs. Hoyle at the 11 o'clock hour. This was preceded by a short memorial service in honor of the late Mrs. T. J. Binford, of Water Valley, who passed into the "Great beyond" only the day before. Tributes were paid this faithful woman, who had served the Conference Society efficiently for a great number of years as secretary of the Holly Springs District. The afternoon was devoted to institutes on each and every department of the work. These were conducted by efficient leaders and proved very instructive. The closing consecration service conducted by Mrs. Haughton was very impressive. The entire band of women knelt around the church and in brief voluntary prayers asked God's blessings upon the work projected, after which they joined hands in a circle that extended around the entire auditorium and sang "God be With You Till We Meet Again."

Before closing I must not fail to say that Mrs. Hoyle appealed for some one to volunteer to organize a Junior Division at Amory, and Mrs. J. H. Mullens volunteered to do this work. Plans were perfected for this society to be organized on the following Sunday.

MRS. C. W. HALL.

Tupelo, Miss.

NATCHITOCHES, LA., HAS A LIVE SOCIETY.

The Publicity Superintendent, Mrs. Gaiennie Hyams, writes that their meetings have been very enthusiastic and inspiring during the summer. They have tried to hold a good attendance by having attractive, helpful programs.

During August a splendidly prepared program was rendered on Wednesday night, taking the place of the regular prayer service, an earnest effort being made to broaden and deepen the missionary spirit, and to gain new members and sympathizers. Of this special service Mrs. Hyams writes: "The Rev. Mr. Lummis, of the Baptist church, conducted an inspiring devotional, giving a ringing call to brother-service to extend to the ends of the earth. 'China for Christ,' the song to become China's national anthem, was sung.

"By the use of a mirrorscope, the pictures of little working children of all nationalities were presented, followed by a picture of Jesus blessing the little children, while Mrs. W. T. Cunningham sang 'Suffer the little Children to Come Unto Me.' So sweetly and softly did she sing this exquisite song that it seemed like the Master was speaking to us in the darkness.

"Pictures were then presented of the Virginia K. Johnson Home in Dallas, Texas, and Mrs. Hargrove very touchingly told the pitiful story of some of the rescued girls.

"Korean scenery was presented, after which Mrs. Cunningham gave a forcible account of the enthusiasm and sacrifice of Korean Christians which destined Korea to become the greatest mission field of the East. 'Whispered Love' was exquisitely rendered by Misses Cassidy and Cunningham."

Several other beautiful and touching numbers were upon the program, but we have mentioned enough to give you an idea of its character and to stimulate others to follow this most excellent plan.

This is not all that the Natchitoches auxiliary is doing, for Mrs. Hyams further writes that they have prayer circles which are always in operation. They have a circle of shut-ins (old ladies and invalids) praying for the prayer meeting which has become a joy and blessing to many. "There is a large circle praying daily that the emergency in foreign fields may be met, that God will show us what we can do, and that he will touch the hearts of those who have wealth, or, who can, to contribute to the pressing need."

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

Mrs. Middleton writes: "Mendenhall had its All-Day Meeting in August, and would recommend it to all the auxiliaries as being a splendid plan. Delegates came from five churches. Mrs. B. F. Lewis and I were the only Conference officers present, but every phase of our work was discussed and all the delegates expressed themselves as determined to go forward more earnestly in the future. The beautifully decorated church, the good dinner, and the social hour added greatly to the day's success. Surely every auxiliary will be greatly benefited by bringing the neighboring communities together to study ways and means of improving our work so that we may be 'workmen that needeth not to be ashamed.'"

Meridian District is now ahead in the number of Young People's organizations, with the Jackson District a close second.

Mrs. B. F. Lewis, our Corresponding Secretary, writes that twenty-two new auxiliaries have been reported to her thus far this year.

She also sends a statement of the amount paid on our pledge during the first and second quarters.

Pledge paid 1st quarter.....	$ 779.79
Pledge paid 2nd quarter.....	576.66
Total	$1356.45

This is not nearly one-half of our pledge, for, if you remember, at our annual meeting in February we raised our obligation to $5500. Unless the third quarter brings the figures up very much, we will have to do some "pretty tall hustling" during the last quarter. Why is it we always delay paying our obligations to God?

ONE BOX CURES THREE.

Jessie W. Scott, Milledgeville, Ga., writes: "I suffered with an eruption for years and one box of Tetterine cured me and two of my friends. It is worth its weight in gold." Tetterine quickly relieves skin diseases including Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, Acne, Blackheads, also best remedy known for itching piles. 50c at druggists, or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

Some weeks later the pastor conceived the idea of raising an Educational Loan Fund with which to educate a worthy young boy or girl who desired to go to college. The people responded cheerfully. In a meeting of the official Board the matter was presented and the Board started the subscription at once. A few minutes a day for a few days resulted in securing $96. Miss Jeanie Brewer, one of our brightest girls, is now at Grenada pursuing her studies, preparing to become a teacher. When she completes her course she expects to pay the money back and some other boy or girl will get the benefit of it. .....We had the pleasure of a visit from Rev. J. R. Countiss on a recent Sunday, who gave a good account of himself in the pulpit. He preached at the morning hour on Christian Education, and also preached again at night. Our people were delighted with him. Why could not many stations help fill up the rooms at Grenada in the way our people have done?

W. D. WENDEL.

Calhoun City, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: The backslider has indeed been reclaimed and the sinner saved around the Big Creek neighborhood. We closed a meeting of ten days' duration there last night and oh, what a glorious victory for our dear Lord we had! Several hundred lukewarm church members had the "joy of salvation restored unto them", and sinners by the dozens embraced salvation. We added 33 to our Church roll there, and other denominations got quite a number, too. We have added in all 100 this year and will get others yet. On Sunday afternoon the good women had a cottage prayer-meeting and there were 67 in attendance. The glorious thing about our meetings all over the charge this year is that they have put the saved and reclaimed to work. They have become zealous for the salvation of other souls and they are also giving of their funds. We have raised our Conference collections and each church has been very considerate of the visiting preacher, and they have also assured me that the salary will be brought up in full. We came here this year asking and expecting great things, and praise the dear Lord, he has given them to us and is going to do greater things still. We are now in a meeting here, which began last night. Things have started off finely. Brother W. L. Graves is still with me. He is a most faithful Gospel preacher. If you want results you had better get Graves, brethren. Pray for us.—W. V. Shearer.

McGowan's Church (De Soto Circuit, Miss. Conf.)

Many of God's servants in our beloved Mississippi Conference are acquainted with what is generally known as McGowan's Chapel, on the De Soto work, and in order to familiarize them with some of the conditions existing at this church this is written. The Sunday school, the foundation of the Church, seems to be pushing forward with renewed vigor. Brother J. H. McGowan, who for many years has served as superintendent, continues his example of fidelity and zeal and we believe that the work will be honored and that many will be saved by the work of this school. During the past summer money was raised to buy curtains and the church was partitioned off into several Sunday school rooms, the good results of which are quite manifest. The Bible class, composed mostly of men, at times has a large attendance and invariably a few "stand by the stuff," inspiring the teacher to further effort. Some modern methods in the different departments are proving helpful, and with the Holy Spirit's guidance achievements worth while may be expected in the future. Our devout pastor, Rev. A. J. Davis, hoped, trusted, and prayed for ministerial aid for the revival recently held, but repeated effort on his part to secure such failed, and when it became evident that no arm of flesh could be depended upon, he leaned upon Jesus and was led himself to preach some heart-searching sermons. Prayer and fasting were observed, and, true to His promise, the Lord gave a number of additions. This time, there were eleven accessions—some of them strong young men. Let us pray that they may be earnest in the cause. It is with somewhat of heartache that we relinquish Brother Davis, who is closing his quadrennium, but those to whom he will be sent may count themselves happy with such a Spirit-filled, zealous, and sweet-spirited pastor. His life, under God, is an inspiration, and with the thought of the great help he has been the means of giving to our members, we are concerned that they shall show their appreciation by having a full Conference report.—Bessie B. Hardie, Trevecca College, Nashville, Tenn.

AN APPRECIATION.

(Recently adopted by the Woman's Missionary Society at Kosciusko, Miss.)

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Kosciusko Methodist Church wish to express their appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Randolph for their good work during the few months they were with us. Both will be missed in the church, the Sunday school, and the missionary auxiliaries. We will especially miss Mrs. Randolph from the Sunday school and Study Circle, where she was always an efficient teacher.

Both had endeared themselves to the people, and while we regret to give them up, we rejoice in their promotion and wish them much success and real pleasure in their new field.

We wish also to thank Mr. Randolph for the gavel which he presented to the society just before leaving. The gavel was made from wood taken from the house in which our beloved Bishop Galloway was born. Kosciusko is justly proud of being the birthplace of so famous a man, and we will cherish this memento for its historic interest as well as a reminder of a beloved pastor.

LAYMEN'S MOVEMENT.

ing in man, the most complex form of life, made in the image of God, and into whom he hreathed His Spirit. If God works only through organisms in order to produce life and power on earth, how can we expect to have life and power without organization? If he produces the highest power and life only through the most complex organization how can we hope to have high life and great power hy anything less?

A study of life in the material universe will he helpful in getting at the causes of faiiure to accompiish more than we have. It will he noted that in animal life there are two classes, the vertebrate and the invertebrate, those having backbones and those without backbones. The higher organizations are vertebrate and the lower invertehrate. The backbone is the cable through which all the nerves of the body pass to and from the brain, the great nerve center; therefore only the vertehrates have brains or intelligence. It is feared that one great trouble of many of the organizations is that they are without hackbone, and are not putting forth strong and intelligent efforts to promote the Kingdom of God on earth. The enemies of the Laymen's Missionary Movement are attempting to so weaken it so that it will be a nerveless invertehrate, with ail of its energies centered not in the hrain but in the pocket as a capacious maw of men.

It will be further observed that in the material world the physical hasis of all life is a chemical compound called protopiasm, an active agency, constantly going through chemical reactions, buiiding up the tissues of the hody, and throwing off the life fluid, which permeates the entire body; if any part of the body is cut off from this protopiasm it dies, and the organism disintegrates and decays. The hasis of the spiritual life of the Church is also a compound, composed of the Spirit of God and the spirit of man, and it permeates the entire body so long as the connection is uninterrupted, and a complete organization of the Church is the union of all persons who have been horn of God and are working to increase his Kingdom on earth. If the connection between either man or God is interrupted so that this spiritual compound does not reach every member of the organization, then the memher not reached dies and is cut off.

Another fact well known is that when an organism decays it throws off noxious and poisonous gases and germs that attack and destroy living organisms; a single speck on an apple will cause the whole apple to decay, and a decayed apple in a barrel of sound ones will cause the destruction of the whole harrel in a short time. Human heings are often afflicted with blood poison, ptomain poison, and a number of other poisons due to the decay of organic matter; decomposed organic matter in our food and water often produces disease and death. Can not the same he said of spiritual life? Will not the disintegration of the spiritual life have a similar effect, sending forth a stench to the nostrils of God, and spiritual disease and death to man? Besides, inactivity produces death germs; a pool of water becomes stagnant and laden with poison by inaction. Are we not in danger of stagnation by having such great numbers of our membership inactive? And if continued in that state of inactivity will we not become cesspools of sin and corruption? It must be just such dead organisms that our brethren oppose.

The Laymen's Missionary Movement is intended to be a movement of activity, fiiied with life, with the Holy Spirit moving on the face of the waters, guiding and directing it and filiing it with power. Such an organization will accomplish much and the gates of heli will not prevaii against it. No Christian can object to such an organization, and the Church commands its members to aid in making it effective in its co-operation with all the activities of the Church.

AT BREWER.

Dear Dr. Meek: The Brewer special meeting near Shannon was an all-right occasion. Great crowds packed the church at night and the attendance upon the services at 10:30 a.m. was good. A splendid interest prevailed and co-operation was the order. Twelve people were added to the Church and large benefits came to the general membership, with awakenings, more or less, among the outside element and the backsiiders. Mr. Moody said: "Some people cannot backslide because they have never slid forward;" but the backslider is a Bible character and is even found at times in Methodist circles. The neighboring pastor, Rev. W. N. Dodds, of Verona, was present and preached six times with great earnestness and with substantiai value to the movement. The Verona people take stock in this newly-fledged North Mississippi preacher, as was true also of Brewer, and the indications suggest that God may find it possible to make of him a still greater power for good. .....This was the finai 1915 revival effort on the Shannon charge. Every meeting was a pronounced benediction to many people, and valuable members have been added to the congregation at every point. The additions of last year are doing well and the churches are in good condition.

HOW AN ARTIST PAINTED IT.

The following from "The Christian" is, we think, worth reproducing:

"Some one tells a story of an artist who was once asked to paint a picture of a decaying church. To the astonishment of many, instead of putting on the canvas an old, tottering ruin, the artist painted a stately edifice of modern grandeur. Through the open portals could be seen the richly carved pulpit, the magnificent organ, and the beautiful stained glass windows.

"Within the grand entrance was an offering plate of elaborate design for the offerings of fashionable worshipers. But—and here the artist's conception of a decaying church was made known—right above the offering plate, suspended from a nail in the wall, there hung a square box bearing the legend, but right over the slot through which contributions ought to have gone he had painted a huge cobweb!"

This conception of the artist is in harmony with the teaching of the Gospel. A fine building, artistic music and singing, eloquent and scholarly preaching, and a cultured and wealthy congregation do not constitute the true glory of a church. It may have all of these and yet be destitute of spiritual life and power, and in consequence dead, so far as exerting a really helpful influence for the upbuilding of the Divine Kingdom is concerned. In his messages to the Churches, spoken from the skies through the Apostle John, our ascended Lord said to the congregation at Smyrna in the midst of its poverty, "But thou art rich;" and to that at Laodicea he said, "Thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing, and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked."

A church that is not missionary in spirit and which does not seek to help others beyond its own narrow confines cannot possess much religious vitality; and if no penitents throng its altars, the larger and more splendid its equipment is the more outstanding and inexcusable is its failure. If the Master should give his estimate of your church, what would it be? His is the verdict that will count.

FEARS NOT REALIZED.

Some months ago a considerable stir was made over the "war babies" in Europe and it was suggested that the present deplorable upheaval there was about to sweep away the bulwarks of chastity. The newspapers in the United States had much to say on the subject and various remedies for the alleged menacing situation were proposed. It now appears, however, that conditions were greatly exaggerated and that the war has not made them worse, as it was feared and predicted that it would. In touching upon this subject in its issue of October 1, The Independent (New York) says:

"Now we know that this was much ado about nothing. The report of the Registrar General gives the number of illegitimate births in England and Wales for the months of April, May and June as 9611. This is a deplorably large number, but is 333 less than for the corresponding period in 1914. This is to say the call to arms has reduced the evil instead of increasing it. The same result is observed in France. The improvement shown in both countries is in part due to the 'war brides' movement, which encouraged the soldiers to marry before going to the front and removed the legal obstacles to such marriages."

This is gratifying news. Nothing has done so much to undermine and wreck nations in the past as the vice on unrestrained sensuality. These figures indicate that the foundations of society are yet secure in Great Britain and the French Republic. But they also show that there is still vast room for improvement in the morals of their citizenship.

AN OVERWORKED BUGBEAR.

Whenever a movement is launched to close up the saloons anywhere one of the objections invariably put forward against it is that it would decrease municipal and State revenues and pile up taxation on the people. We remember that when war began to be made upon the dramshops in Mississippi, where a large part of the money received from the liquor licenses went to the maintenance of the public schools, it was loudly affirmed by the advocates of the rum traffic that if prohibition won the terms of these schools would have to be shortened, or else that the taxes necessary to keep them going would become unendurably burdensome. But when the State went dry nothing of the kind happened. On the contrary, the schools there have steadily improved in every respect; they have had a better financial support and their duration has been extended. Nor was it necessary to make taxes heavier to accomplish this gratifying result.

There are several reasons why the prevalence of prohibition does necessitate an increase of taxation to make good the revenues previously obtained from licensing the sale of liquor. 1. Because the amount of crime is decreased and the cost of maintaining the courts, which are expensive in their operations, is enormously reduced.

2. Because the accumulation of money and property, which are taxable, is rapidly and largely augmented. Most of the profits on the liquor business go to the manufacturers and wholesale dealers, who, as a rule, do not reside in this section of the South. This is a constant and heavy drain upon a State like Louisiana. With the suppression of the saloon and a lessening of the consumption of intoxicants this money would be saved and deposited in the banks of the State. This accounts for the reason why the per capita wealth of Kansas is to-day greater than any other State in the Union.

3. The extent to which the liquor traffic impairs the efficiency of labor, increases pauperism and insanity, and impedes the progress of legitimate business, makes it a tremendous burden upon any city, community, or commonwealth. Look how the nations of Europe have been trying to suppress it since the outbreak of the present great war and the need has arisen for them to throw off all hindrances, that they may do their best in a supreme crisis. If the liquor business is an impediment in the time of war, it surely cannot be anything less in the time of peace. The truth is, it is at all times the mightiest vampire that feeds upon and weakens the social order.

The rum traffic is Louisiana's greatest curse. More than anything else, it is blighting her prosperity and retarding her progress. It would be the proudest and most meaningful day in her history if her citizens would rise up in their might and strike it down. No other issue before her people is comparable in importance to this.

United States Senator J. Z. George of Mississippi, whose masterful work on "Slavery" is reviewed in this issue of the Advocate—a profound lawyer, an eminent statesman, an analytical thinker who knew how to go to the bottom of things, and a financier who amassed a considerable fortune—though by no means a "fanatical prohibitionist," said that the dearest revenue that ever came into the treasury of any town, or city, or State, was that derived from licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors.

ANOTHER LEADER TAKEN.

Rev. Clarence F. Reid, D.D., Secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement of the M. E. Church, South, died on October 7, at the home of his sister, Mrs. G. N. Buffington, at Erlanger, Ky. Dr. Reid was born in the State of New York on July 19, 1849. He later lived for a time in Michigan, but finally went to Kentucky, where he was licensed to preach and entered the Methodist Itinerancy. He was for a number of years an efficient missionary in China and Korea, having been appointed to that field by Bishop Pierce in 1878. He was elected Secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement in 1910, and had since held that position. He was twice married—first to Miss Mary Bowman Wightman on May 1, 1877; then to Mrs. Blanche Miller on January 7, 1903. There are six living children—four sons and two daughters. For the past several years he had been a member of the North Alabama Conference. Dr. Reid had been in failing health since early in the year, and was last May granted an indefinite leave of absence from his work by the Board of Missions. He subsequently returned to Nashville, hoping that he would be able to resume his labors, but found that he was not. He was a strong, resourceful, and consecrated man, and will be much missed.

THE WORLD WAR.

By Rev. W. S. Harrison.

A calm, sweet peace o'er all the earth
Lay softly as a sleeping infant's rest;
When crashed the bolt of war, the knell
Of fate, as if ten million bombs immense,
By one fuse lit—the discharge shook the earth
From pole to pole! T'was thus the world received
The sudden blow; and nations stood aghast
With bated breath and tightening nerves, with hands
Upraised, beheld the awful rush of war!
Then, peace, betrayed, was like a wounded dove
Thrown crumpled in the dust, the nesting place
Of grief and woe, the hell of sin and death.
Alas! that man should bear the guilt of war,
And answer at the bar of God and man
For such a crime. Yes, Teuton, Slav, and Frank,
And Briton, all; the share of each is far
Too large. Deserted reason once more recall;
Combine to tie with chains the hounds of war,
No more to tear a Christian brother's flesh;
And with the might of equal trust and love,
Hold back the savage hordes untaught, and thus Compel the peace of earth. Atonement thus
You have the skill to make, if you but see
The worth of chance the mighty God now gives.
Unborn millions in ages all to come
Would rise to call you chief among the blest.

THE BIBLE THE BEST SELLER.

The one best seller among hooks continues to be the Bible. It is the greatest of all books and will always be. Other books are regular sellers in the book market and are recognized as good sellers, but the Bible has never been surpassed. However neglectful of religious matters the average man may become, he feels that it is necessary to have a copy of the Bible in his home. Cost does not figure, especially in the sale of the Bible. Copies can be purchased for ten cents. Ten thousand dollars was the recent purchase price of a rare edition.

Now that the panic of war prevails in Europe there has been a renewed demand for the Holy Book. Mothers wish their sons to march to the front with a copy of the Bible in their pockets, wives and sweethearts seem to feel that the chanees of escaping death are more certain if their dear ones carry the Bible with them, and feel equally certain that if they are fatally wounded the Bible will be a source of comfort to them.

The Bible has been the greatest source of comfort to the afflicted. It brings renewed hope to the despondent. It shows the way to a greater and more spiritual future.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

"MODERN METHODISM NEEDS A GOOD SHAKING."

Rev. Samuel Chadwick, a recognized leader in Wesleyan Methodism, member of the Legal Hundred, for sixteen years superintendent of the Leeds Misslon, editor of Joyful News, and perhaps the most earnest and successful exponent of the Methodism of John Wesley, thus exhorts the Methodism of to-day:

"Modern Methodism needs a good shaking. The prophets sleep while the vessel drifts. The ministers must tighten their belts, and gird themselves for leadership. The work of the church must be organized for advance. Trenches must be stormed, but they must be assailed strategically, systematically, and enthuslastically. A mere flare up dies out in a fizzle. The situation must be thought out, carefully planned, and doggedly worked.....To the church, aggression is the law of life and the very breath of her nostrils..... Aim definitely at advance. Focus all energy upon increase. Utilize all resources, and success is sure. .....Addition must be by conversion. We must preach for conversions, work for conversions, pray for conversions, and organize for advance by aggressive evangelism. There is no other way in which Methodism can live and thrive."

No truer, more pertinent and convicting message than this was ever spoken. Every Methodist minister of experience in bringing souls into the kingdom and in building up the churches knows within himself that Mr. Chadwick is wholly right. Methodism has lost its ideals. It is not living up to its inheritance and standards. Where is the minister burdened with the salvation of the unsaved about him? Where is the clergyman who is crying out of the depths with John Knox, "Give me Scotland or I die." Burdening of soul for the salvation of the people always does, as it always must, precede spiritual awakening. We must be more with God and have more of God in us, if we are to move men. We must come out of the closet with the passion and intonation and assured presence of the Holy Spirit in heart, voice, and touch before we can move men to come into the kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ. We are mistakenly putting new methods, campaigns, and movements in the place of the Holy Spirit in its chief ministry of salvation. Indeed, "Methodism needs a good shaking."—Zion's Herald.

THE SHADOW OF THE ROCK.

By Rev. John T. Sawyer, D.D.

To God's children, as to others, this world is at times "a weary land." The labors they have to undergo makes it so, for it is essentially a laboring world. Man was given employment in Eden, and in itself labor is a real blessing to him. However, at the close of every day millions are faint and weary, being overworked; and for many of them there can be no sufficient rest until they are in their graves. It is an especial cause of weariness for God's children that they are compelled to give so much of their time laboring for "the meat which perisheth," leaving them so little time for meditation and for communion with God.

This world is a weary land because of the troubles to which all are exposed. Says Job: "Man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward." There is no stage nor condition of life wholly free from troubles. They are national, domestic, personal. The pains and attendant evils of life generally increase as its length is protracted. Scarcely aught can come upon us more wearisome than trouble. Many persons who can stand hard labor can not stand much trouble. Trouble makes the heart ache, and weakens the mind as well as the body. A troublesome world is of necessity a wearisome world.

To God's children this world is a weary land by reason of perplexities by which they are harassed. The life we are living is full of mystery. Strange and unexpected events are often happening, disappointing the hopes and frustrating the designs of the wisest. Providence sometimes baffles interpretation and tests the faith of even the most devout. Wickedness seems very often to triumph while virtue is trodden down; and even good men may sometimes be tired of living subject to continual anxiety and suspense.

God's children find this a weary world because of the sin by which they are surrounded. The moral atmosphere of this world is wholly uncongenial to Christian believers. The principles and practices with which they are daily brought into contact fill them with disgust, indignation, and grief. Just as was Lot, they are "vexed with the filthy conversation of the wicked." As it was with Paul at Athens, whose "spirit was stirred in him when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry," so is it with believers to-day.

Blessed be God, whenever his children are from any cause weary of the world they may find comfort in Christ, for the Son of Man knew fully what it was to be faint and weary. He knows the heart of a pilgrim and stranger, and has the most tender compassion for all in their distress and want. He is as compassionate now as he was when he was on earth, and he feels all that his followers feel. He is the sympathizing Friend and Brother. "We have not a high priest which can not be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin." Believers find comfort in the intercession of Christ. As he prayed for Peter and for all his disciples before his crucifixion, so he still makes intercession for his followers according to their necessities, and his intercession must always prevail. They find comfort in the strength of Christ. Weakness is the cause of weariness, and the weary may find the strength they want in Christ. Paul wrote the Philippians: "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me;" and to the Corinthians: "My strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly, therefore, will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me."

Comfort is found in the fact that Christ is Lord over all and sits as King in Zion, having control over the darkness, tumults and confusion of the world, and governing all things for the benefit of his people. Nothing can hurt his Church or really harm his believing children. How complete is the comfort that we may find in the promises of Christ! He has promised to give his followers peace even in this world, and all along in their journey to heaven. His very words are: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." Again: "These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace." And again: "In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." These are great and precious promises, and they are sure promises. Since our blessed Lord, as "the shadow of a great rock," will comfort and sustain us under all the weariness and troubles of life, we should come to regard the happenings which weary and trouble us as being, after all and indeed, blessings. Christians enjoy more real satisfaction and happiness in adversity than in prosperity, because while prosperity leads them to the enjoyment of the world, adversity leads them to the enjoyment of Christ. Believers in Christ in this life enjoy more solid happiness than sinners do, or can. Though sinners may often seem to be happier than saints, yet theirs is a loud and transient mirth, while the people of God have a deep and lasting joy. Here and now, believers (and only they) are filled with that peace of God which passeth all understanding, affords joy in sorrow, and gives rest to the weary.

This is a world of sorrows, troubles, afflictions; and, even as others, Christians have their share; but there is for them "strong consolation" in their Savior God, their Kinsman Redeemer. Isaiah declares of our Lord: "And a man shall be as an hiding-place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." All of us have need to shelter under the shadow of our great Rock, set up for our comfort and rest. A traveler tells of having toiled for hours under a scorching sun, over a hot, white, marshy flat, seeing nothing but a beetle or two on the way, and no shelter anywhere from the pitiless beating of the sunshine. At last, he and his two companions came to a little retem bush only a few feet high, and flung themselves down and tried to hide at least their heads from those "sunbeams like swords," even beneath its ragged shade.

There was very small comfort in that. They had sore need for the shadow of a great rock, restful in its blue dimness, with likely a fern or two in its moist crevices, where there is rest indeed and a man can lie down and be cool, while all outside and beyond the shade of the rock is burning sun, and burning sand, and dancing mirage. How thoroughly refreshing and strengthreviving is it to rest in the cooling shade of a great rock! How often, amidst the toils, and troubles, and misunderstandings, and persecutions, and injustices of life do we need just such rest and refreshment! We can have rest to our souls only in Christ, the Rock of Ages, and his invitation is as follows: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Christ Jesus is the Rock in whose shadow there is perfect rest for weary travelers on their way to heaven. None are invited to the shadow of a tree, through which the sun or rain may beat upon them, but to the shadow of the Rock, the great Rock, which reaches a great way, and all the way, for the shelter and succor of Christians bound for glory.

THE POLITICAL HISTORY OF SLAVERY IN THE UNITED STATES. BY J. Z. GEORGE, OF MISSISSIPPI.

Under the above title there has just come from the press of the Neale Publishing Company of New York a book which, in my humble judgment, is destined to take rank as, perhaps, the ablest defense of the South upon the questions and issues of the War of Secession that has appeared up to this time. Certainly it is one of the most valuable contributions which has been made to the literature of the War from the Southern side.

It was the purpose of Senator George to discuss the issues and events relating to the War in three Books: I. The Political History of Slavery in the United States. II. Legislative History of Reconstruction. III. Constitutional Deficiencies of Reconstruction. But before the third part of his plan had been touched death called him from his task. And the lateness of publication of that which had been reduced to manuscript is due to the difficulties encountered in bringing out a work which the author was unable to put in final shape for the press. For its appearance now, the South is debtor to the author's son-in-law, William Hayne Leavell, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from the United States of America to Gautamala.

To the work as it is published, Dr. Leavell contributes a biographical sketch which is necessarily brief, but is so discriminating as to give in small compass a splendid survey of a great life. Indeed, nothing which helped to bring him to eminence or secure his fame seems to have been overlooked. The introduction to the work is contributed by John Bassett Moore of Columbia University. He modestly claims to "yield" to the solicitation of a friend, but does two things happily and well. He pays a splendid tribute to the mental and moral integrity of the author; and gives a very felicitous interpretation of the spirit and purpose of his writing.

The style of the book is direct, simple, and clear. It mirrors the man. Without apology, explanation, or preliminary he begins, and the very first sentence counts toward achieving the purpose of the book. In Book I the writer deals with the Political History of Slavery in the United States. In a hurried survey of history as to the genesis of slavery as an institution, he shows that it had existed from time immemorial, and that no one thing was responsible for the enslavement of men. Inferiority in arms, social convulsions, religious differences, and personal avarice and ambition have furnished victims from all races. This against the scornful characterization: "The oligarchy of the skin."

Then the development of the institution in the United States, and the bearing of the anti-slavery agitation are exhaustively gone into. He brings no personal opinion, nor ex parte interpretation of action except as these are recorded as the utterances of leaders in Congress, or recorded in public documents, including State statutes and constitutions. In other words, he has so chosen his proof as to put its genuineness and validity beyond question. He takes up the Acquisition of Louisiana; The Hartford Convention; Missouri Question and Compromise; Annexation of Texas; Lincoln and Douglas Debates; John Brown's Invasion; Secession; and The War and its Purposes. Here he shows conclusively that slavery was but the occasion for asserting a difference that was in reality natural and inevitable. Soil and climate were such as to make one section commercial and the other agricultural, and so a perpetual conflict of interest. Then there was to be added to the natural differences the social unrest and sensitiveness occasioned by the manifest superiority of the South in statesmanship and political genius. The influence of the Southern States from the foundation of the Union had been predominant, and the dissatisfaction on this account was so marked as to find expression through the Hartford Convention.

But Senator George did not start out simply to neutralize the caustic impeachment of Southern morals as respects slavery. He meant also to defend Southern statesmanship and to vindicate Southern honor in politics. From these same Congressional Records he shows that the South was true to its political doctrines, and true to the terms of the compromises to which it became a party; while the North, as soon as the balance of power had been broken by the admission of a free State, which was not counter-balanced by a slave State, was never true to any agreement, and held no political principle if by its repudiation it might be helped to an ascendency which it had not been able to secure through statesmanship. The North opposed the acquisition of Louisiana and the annexation of Texas because their location threatened the possibility of its ultimate ascendency. It was to them a violation of the terms of the constitutional compact; but when California came without an enabling act, but with a free constitution, the insuperable difficulties of the compact were lost to view. The author shows that while the North was parading its virtue and sanctity in the interest of humanity that Illinois, Indiana, Connecticut, Oregon, and other States had stringent statutory and constitutional discriminations against the negro both politically and socially. He also sets out the facts that the terminology used in political utterances at the North, even down to the election of Mr. Lincoln, maintain the Southern doctrine as to the nature of the Union, while the Hartford Convention explicitly asserted it.

Now we come to Part II—Legislative History of Reconstruction. Here we have the bald and unbridled assertion of that which had been cropping out with increasing frequency for fifty years. A Congress representing a medley of power-worshiping humanity and benevolence sought to perform the miracle of excepting their Goshen from the plagues they would inflict upon the South. First, there was denial of the fact that the Confederate States had ever been out of the Union, but this offered little opportunity for the hate, vengeance, jealousy, and ambition which were to be gratified by a program of humiliation and ultimate ruin. So the States were out; and to make sure of an undisturbed and uninterropted course, the President was ignored, the Attorney General was squelched, and the Supreme Court was abolished so far as reconstruction was concerned. The disclosures of this study of reconstruction are that neither wholesome public policy nor principle constituted any part of the basis of readjustment—not even a sense of justice and equity, to say nothing of magnanimity, to a people who had shown themselves as great in the field as they had been in the forum. "Ruin to the South" was the word of Garfield, and he was undoubtedly as good as Thad Stevens, Sumner, Sherman, Conklin, and Blaine.

As we come to the end of the book we can but wish that a good Providence had spared the author to accomplish his larger purpose. And, yet, it is accomplished in a measure through the very discussion of the chaos of action that resulted from the effort to avoid the political doctrines of Jefferson, Calhoun and others of the South. And through the Minority Report on the Bill for holding National Inquests, which was written by Senator George himself and is appended, there is a recitation of cases decided by the Supreme Court of the United States which shows conclusively that force suppressed for a time, but has not settled adversely to Southern contention the question of State sovereignty; and even though the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments have been inserted in the Constitution, the interpretation of that instrument by the highest tribunal is not materially changed.

Copies of this work are already in the Millsaps and A. & M. libraries, and will be placed in all the college libraries of the State. I wish that the book might be included in every course on the South, and that it might have place in the working libraries of our public schools. It is worth something for our children to know that their fathers violated no compromise, held but one side of a great governmental doctrine, came through the vicissitudes of war and the infamies of reconstruction with unstained honor, have lived to disprove the most sanguine prophecies of Edmunds and others as to the permanence of the injuries which they inflicted upon the South, and to defeat the undisguised purposes of Stevens, Sumner, Garfield, Conklin, Blaine, Sherman, and the rest of the sponsors of the reconstruction legislation. I commend it to the parent who would have his child fortified as to the honor and integrity of the South. I commend it to any one who would have an answer for every impeachment uttered against the South touching slavery and the war. I commend it to those who would measure the virtue of those criticisms of the South coming from New England, where the Hartford Convention was held during the War of 1812, and through whose banks the army of the enemy was being paid. I wish for the book a phenomenal sale.

CONCERNING DR. HILLIS.

Dr. D. S. Kennedy, the brilliant editor of The Presbyterian (Philadelphia), in a recent issue of his paper comments as follows upon Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis and his present financial troubles:

"By his own public statement and by the wide discussion through the press, the financial misfortune of Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis has become a matter of public discussion. We confess to a good deal of sympathy with him as he passes through this trial. We were fellow-students in old McCormick Seminary, and we knew and admired him for his brilliancy, clean manhood, and kindly fellowship. We came to McCormick Seminary from the most decided liberal connections, the stronghold of the New Theology. Dr. Hillis came from orthodox and evangelical associations. Our lines crossed at McCormick. The New Theology, when first presented to us in our early twenties, seemed attractive. As we knew it better, it became too subjective, rejected evidence, despised logic, and rested too much upon inner consciousness and special critical faculties, while perhapses, possibilities, and ipse dixits were too prevalent, and with strong disappointment in the closing years of our university life, we turned away from it. At McCormick Seminary, the testimony of Cyrus H. McCormick, Sr., and the strong faith and solid scholarship of such men as Herrick Johnson, Willis Craig, David Marquis, Thomas Skinner, and Le Roy Halsey greatly helped us, and we moved forward to the high grounds of a divine, infallible revelation, and the everlasting gospel of the unchangeable Christ. Dr. Hillis went the other way, and turned his face toward the New Theology and liberalism. For these reasons our lines diverged, and while we have maintained our cordial feeling all these years, yet our opportunity for fellowship has been small. For this reason we have little knowledge of the facts of his present financial difficulties, and are not competent to pass judgment. But we feel confident that the Christian public will find that whatever mistakes have been made, they are of the head and not of the heart. They are in judgment and not in motive. We ask for patience and consideration for this good man, and we most earnestly hope that means will be found by which he may be able to honestly discharge all his obligations and may escape hardships and needs so difficult to bear at his time of life. We also hope that he may find the Lord Christ, his God and Savior, a present help in time of need."

As a result of a recent conference held at Baton Rouge, La., between the State superintendent of education and the twenty parish superintendents in whose school districts the highest percentage of illiteracy exists, it was determined that afternoon and evening schools should be established in 16 parishes for the purpose of teaching adults who have never had an opportunity to learn how to read and write and are capable of being taught. This is a good plan, and let us hope that it can be carried out. It is well to remember that one of our Presidents never learned to read and write until he was grown and married and that possibly there are others in the present day with great talents which will never be discovered unless they are given some educational advantages.

A NOTE OF THANKS.

I knew that many would be surprised when I sent in my resignation as manager of the Home. But I had considered the step prayerfully and was fully decided that it was the thing to do.

We appreciate the kind words of approbation from the Board of Directors, the many kind letters of appreciation which we have received since our resignation, and the many kind words of friends and business men in Jackson and elsewhere. All these things sweeten the bitter that is in the cup that we have to drink. The approval of God and friends and our own conscience is worth more than all the gold.

Wife and I have loved these children with a parent's devotion and have given them our unstinted service. We have made many mistakes and blunders, for which we ask forgiveness. We shall always love the Home and the children and continue our services for them. Pray for us as we return to the pastorate, that we may be more useful and more efficient in winning souls than ever before.

TO THE METHODISTS OF MISSISSIPPI.

Dear Brethren: We have to-day 216 children in the Home. All are well and seem to be happy. They are looking to us for food, shelter, education, and Christian training. We are doing the best we can with the means at hand. We have just finished compiling our bills and outstanding obligations, which amount, to date, to $1645.13. Fifteen hundred dollars having been borrowed to pay debts—the total is now $3145.13.

I am giving you these figures that you may know our real needs. We have nothing to conceal. This is your institution. Will you please request churches, Sunday schools, and private individuals in your district to rally to our support at once? Be sure to insist on a universal observance of "Work Day." Also, insist on regular monthly contributions to the Home.

Brother and Sister Williams have gone to live at Mount Olive. Brother Williams will serve the Seminary charge until Conference. They are very much missed in the Home.

We are getting straight with our new duties, and find the work very pleasant, indeed. We have a good corps of helpers and teachers.

We need your sympathy, prayers, and co-operation. May we count on you? We need $5000 on "Work Day." Yours fraternally,

WHO WILL LEAD US?

Again and again we need to emphasize the fact that one of our greatest needs in the Centenary campaign is a leadership in generous giving that challenges our loyalty and assures success. In a crisis in the history of Mississippi Methodism nearly thirty years ago the leaders of the two Conferences saw that a college, accessible to the Methodist boys of the State, was necessary to the further progress of the Church. This demand of the times was met by the generous spirit of a great layman, Maj. R. W. Millsaps, whom God had blessed with prosperity, who offered to give $50,000 to found a college, provided the Church would raise an equal amount. The challenge was taken by the Methodists of the State, and from that beginning Millsaps College has grown to be one of the strongest Institutions in Southern Methodism. It stands as a perpetual monument to a man who is honored throughout Mississippi as a great philanthropist. But more important than this is the fact that, in making his great offer, as well as in later gifts, Maj. Millsaps has made investments that mean more in the development of manhood, and in the ultimate salvation of his State, than almost any other investment that he could have chosen. Such dividends, in trained and efficient manhood, are worth more than any other to the man who values humanity above the dollar.

While we in Louisiana rejoice in this successful and creditable movement in our neighbor State, we realize that a crisis like that which faced Mississippi Methodists is facing us to-day. We are wondering if Louisiana Methodism has not a man (or woman) with vision to perceive our need, and with generous spirit, into whose hands God has put large possessions, who will meet this crisis in our history by leading our liberality with an investment that will pay human dividends through all the passing years.

We cannot advance much farther without such magnificent leadership in actual giving. We must have a GREATER CENTENARY. We must find some one who will inspire the smaller gifts of the many by a great gift as an inspiration. WHO WILL LEAD US?

OUR CONFERENCE RALLY.

A great educational rally is being planned for Friday night of the Louisiana Conference session at Mansfield. Efforts are being made to secure Bishop Atkins for the principal address on that occasion, and while he has not yet definitely consented to make the address, it is confidently hoped that he will do so. Bishop Atkin's successful experience in the educational work of the Church, as president of both the Emory and Henry Colleges, and the Asheville Female College, has prepared him especially to appreciate and help to solve the problems of both our Conference colleges. He will doubtless lay upon the consciences of both preachers and laymen with new vigor and clearness the pressing importance of our educational work.

Dr. Stonewall Anderson, General Secretary of Education, has also promised to be present to assist the Board in whatever way he can by his counsel and experience, as well as to present the educational obligations of the Church on the Conference floor.

Let all interested in this vital interest of the Church pray that the work of the Conference, and the rally on Friday night, may be the means of inspiring a great educational forward movement.

CENTENARY COLLEGE NOTES.

A patron of Centenary, not a Methodist, recently said that he got better results from it than from any other school he had had anything to do with.

The College management is making special efforts to make the atmosphere home-like, refining, and attractive. Many friends in Shreveport are assisting in this effort. Hutchinson Brothers sent out recently one of their fine Victrolas which furnished several evenings of entertainment. One of the professors commented on each record.

Once or twice a week talented vocalists and readers come out and give delightful entertainments during the forty-five minutes between supper and the study hour. Some of the best musicians of the city also are giving the benefit of their talent.

Mrs. J. J. Booth, a reader of marked ability and helpful personality, has agreed to give a reading once each week. Another lady who gave an interesting entertainment in impersonation recently has offered to give later on evenings with Eugene Field, J. Whitcomb Riley, and Thomas Nelson Page.

Other forms of social entertainment for the students and faculty are being planned by a committee of ladies in the neighborhood. Residents of the college neighborhood and others from the city are invited to these entertainments, and a college atmosphere is rapidly being built up.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

Dr. Wynn is actively at work canvassing for the fund of $12,500 to meet Mr. Blair's proposition. In spite of various hindrances, he is meeting with some success. Somewhere near $5000 is definitely in sight, of which about $1500 comes from the city of Shreveport. The complete canvass of that city has been temporarily postponed on account of certain circumstances that make it inopportune at this time.

The canvass that had been planned in the interest of the fund in New Orleans for about this time has also been postponed on account of the disastrous effects of the storm. Mr. J. M. Davis, a prominent and useful member of the church in Ruston, has joined the number of those who will contribute $100 to this fund.

is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

WORDS.

By Rev. W. A. Hays.

Let the words of my mouth * * * be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer.—Psalm 19:14.

Little word, thou winged sign of thought,
What good or harm by thee is wrought
As from lip to heart you speed!
You strike the chord of love or hate,
And lift the latch to action's gate
For a bad or kindly deed.

Thy purpose, true, is not to curse,
Nor to make the world one whit worse;
But to help poor struggling men
By ministering helpful cheer,
And pointing the way true and clear
To good hope and life again.

A word can ease an aching breast,
And thus may hearts of two be blest—
Goodness doth so much repay;
And, too, a word can love arrest,
And fiendish passions give full zest,
And man against man array.

Thus words are balm or arrows sharp,
To soothe the soul or pierce the heart,
According as we may will.
Then let us offer earnest prayer,
And always guard our lips with care;
That love's good purpose they fulfill.

STORM DAMAGE IN HOUMA AND LAFOURCHE MISSION.

From a financial standpoint it would have been hard for the storm of last week, together with the rains of Sunday, Sunday night, Monday, Monday night, Tuesday, and the greater part of Tuesday night, to have done more damage to our people than was done. We are very thankful, though, that no lives were lost.

Leeville is the nearest place to the coast identified with our work. We have about thirty members in that neighborhood. They lost everything but their lives, as the tidal wave reached there, and I am told there was about 9 feet of water.

About nine miles below Lockport, where Brother Anatole Martin was being assisted by his brother, Robert Martin, in a meeting when the storm came, one of our members had taken the partitions out of his house and had converted all of his rooms in the main part of the house into an auditorium for the meeting. The storm laid this house flat while our people were in there with the family. All escaped unhurt. We have about 20 or 30 members in that neighborhood.

Fayport is another place where we have about 25 members. There were about fifteen houses on the island where these people lived, and there were only two houses left standing. These people did not own their own homes in this case, but not a member of our Church in that section has a home standing at this writing.

Raceland Prairie.—This is a place where we have an American congregation of 26 members. A card from Brother Anatole Martin tells me that two houses were destroyed there, and the rains, on top of the wind of last week, have literally driven some of these people from their homes.

Bourg is the oldest organization we have down here, and it had the best building of all our chapels and preaching places in the Mission. Five houses in that section were torn down, and our church, worth about $600, was torn into ten thousand pieces.

None of these people had more than 50 per cent of a crop before this storm and rain hit them. Now we have about 33 per cent of our people out of doors for the present, a 50 per cent crop, where the members were cropping, again reduced by one-half, and, as Brother Martin says, "Lafourche, the densest section of farming country in the United States, simply has no crop in the lower section, where we work. The storm will ultimately cost those serving in this field at least $1000—perhaps more—and this is a great deal on a mission.

Our people were already behind with the portion of the French assistant's salary which they pay, and some behind on the purchase price of the property, building projects, etc., and this simply leaves us flat in so far as finances are concerned in the country.

From the standpoint of accessions, gaining in prestige, strengthening our organizations, etc., this has been our best year.

Very truly yours,
C. V. BREITHAUPT,
Pastor of the Houma Mission.

DOCTORS OF DIVINITY.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have just read your editorial headed "Time To Do Something." I must confess that I am a bit puzzled to know whether you wrote that editorial in a jocular mood merely to emphasize the extravagant use of the "D. D." title or whether you were really in earnest. I am inclined, however, to the former view. Be that as it may, you have done well to call the attention of the public and of the Church to this habit which is daily growing on us at large. I had observed it on several occasions. The fact is the term "Doctor," as applied to a minister, has become so common that it has no definite or real significance. It is as apt to be applied to some young fellow who is yet in his ecclesiastical "swaddling clothes" as it is to one who has labored well and long and has actually earned the title. Not long since I heard a certain Presbyterian minister reply to one who addressed him as "Mr." that he preferred to be called "Doctor"—that he had worked hard for twenty-five years to earn that title and that he now wanted to wear it and to be so recognized.

In my opinion the public is responsible for the free use of this term. Recently I heard a splendid superintendent of one of our Methodist Sunday schools refer to his pastor as "Doctor" when in fact no such title was due him. He had never "earned" that title. The secular press, too, is largely responsible for this "custom." It is done in a spirit of politeness to the ministry by the press and in an effort to magnify the calling. But, as you have so wisely pointed out, this habit of dubbing every preacher as "Doctor" has greatly depreciated the degree. I once knew the head of a large school to insist that his teachers and pupils call him "Mister" instead of "Professor," saying that the title had now so degenerated that any tyro who was teaching even with a second grade license was called "Professor." I rather admired his position.

I am writing this short article to try to help emphasize this unfortunate habit or custom and to insist that when a minister has in fact earned his title he should have it, but until he has done so let us not deceive him by making him believe that we think he is a "Doctor," and let us not deceive the public by trying to cram off on it one who is only a "Rev." or a "Mr." and make it believe he is a "D. D." It is nothing short of a real sham to make such pretensions.

MRS. LIZZIE THOMPSON.

Mrs. Lizzie Thompson (nee Holloman), consort of Judge D. N. Thompson of Harrisonburg, La., departed this life in Monroe, La., on Sept. 20, 1915, after a protracted illness of seven months' duration. She was born on Dec. 15, 1857. She came from an old and very highly respected family of Catahoula parish; was a daughter of Jesse P. Holloman and his wife, Sarah Waggoner. She is survived by her husband, five sons and one daughter, as follows: M. C., H. N., W. H., D. N., Jr., Fred and Lizzie Thompson; and by two grandchildren and by two brothers, W. H. Holloman of Harrisonburg, La., M. F. Holloman of Alexandria, La., and one sister, Mrs. F. M. Mills of Olla, La., and many nieces and nephews of pre-deceased brothers and sisters.

The home of Mrs. Thompson was in Harrisonburg, La., but she left it some months since with the hope of recovering from her long affliction, and it was her sad lot to die away from her home, though at the residence of her son, H. N. Thompson, where all possible loving care was bestowed.

Mrs. Thompson united with the M. E. Church, South, in 1887, and ever afterward lived the life of a true Christian. She was a member of Chapter No. 15, Order of Eastern Star, of Winnsboro, La.

In the passing of this noble woman, another true Christian has gone to her reward—one whose upright walk in life, unpretentious, humble demeanor, happily blended with Christian charity and goodness, endeared her to all her friends and acquaintances.

Another happy household has been invaded by the grim destroyer, and a faithful wife, a loving mother, sister, relative, and friend has been the victim, causing an aching void the world can never fill. But we can take consolation in these sad bereavements. In this particular instance, the family and friends of the subject of this sketch can feel assured, after everything which human power could do to restore their loved one was done, all to no avail (there being no earthly hope of recovery), that death surely was a happy deliverance from her long suffering, and that her spirit passed on through the gates ajar for her to a glorious immortality and a blissful Elysian with her loved ones and friends gone before.

Let us all remain steadfast and indulge the fond hope that, with pure, sincere action on our part, we may survive the grave and, beyond, find a haven of eternal rest with this loved one—with all our loved ones and friends who have hidden us good-night in this life. And, finally, when we leave the cemetery, after depositing the bodies of our loved ones and friends in the tomb, let us take with us the assurance that we have seen nothing but the grave-clothes. "All our dead have arisen; death is swallowed up in victory."

THE REVIVAL OF DANCING.

A few years ago, according to newspaper reports at the time, a large proportion of the male members of society had got tired of dancing, and hostesses often found it difficult to get enough men to keep the dance going. But there does not seem to be any ground for such complaints now, and the reason of the revival of interest in dancing seems to be that more seductive, more sensuous, dances have been introduced to stimulate the jaded passions of the men.

The Editor of the Witness has no personal knowledge about dances or dancing, either from experience or observation; but judging from remarks on the subject which appear in daily papers that are far from being austere moralists, he is strongly impressed with the idea that dancing as conducted in fashionable society must be a great hindrance to the development of the spiritual life, if it does not make that life impossible.—New York Weekly Witness.

LEARNING TO PLAY.

By Abbie Farwell Brown.

Upon a tall piano stool
I have to sit and play
A stupid finger exercise
For half an hour a day

They call it "playing," but to me
It's not a bit of fun,
I play when I am out of doors,
Where I can jump and run.

But mother says the little birds
Who sing so nicely now,
Had first to learn, and practice, too,
All sitting on a bough.

And maybe if I practice hard,
Like them, I, too, some day,
Shall make the pretty music sound,
Then I shall call it "play."

BALLINGER'S NINE.

Billy came in from the street that first afternoon looking very sober. The tiny living room seemed strange and unfamiliar in spite of the familiar furniture, but he did not mind that, for his mother was in it, and that made it home. It was something else that bothered him.

Mother Ballinger was making biscuits for supper.

"What's the trouble, Billy?" she asked, as she caught sight of his face. She had had bothers enough of her own since the moving from quiet Elmdale into Plum Alley, on the edge of quite another sort of town, but not so many that she could not take notice of Billy's.

"It's the boys," said Billy slowly.

Mother Ballinger nodded. The Alley was full and running over with boys—that was one of her bothers, spelled with a big "B," but she had not told Billy so.

"Aren't they friendly?" she asked.

"Friendly enough. It isn't that," Billy hesitated. "It's—it's the way they talk," he burst out at last. "I'm not a prig or mollycoddle—you know I'm not, mother—but I've managed to keep pretty clean, and the fellows down here don't; not their mouths, at any rate, and they don't play fair, either. I guess they're a good sort underneath, but—you know, mother."

"Yes, I know," she said sadly. "I was afraid of it. They haven't had our chances, Billy. Anybody that has lived in Plum Alley always—"

"That's just it, mother. You don't suppose any one who lived in Plum Alley awhile could catch—"

"Come here, Billy," Mother Ballinger interrupted gently. "You see this pinch of salt? I'm going to put it into this water and see what happens."

It was only a second before the salt had disappeared.

"Where is it, Billy?" asked Mother Ballinger.

"Gone; dissolved."

"Yes, the water has taken it up so you can't see it at all. Nobody would know it was there by the looks. That is what might happen to a boy in Plum Alley. He might get so mixed in with the other boys that nobody would know the difference. But he wouldn't have to, Billy. See, here is some baking powder. I'm going to put a spoonful into the flour I make my biscuits of. It mixes in with it, and by and by you know it's there, because the whole thing begins to rise—to get light. That is the nature of the baking powder to rise, and when it does, the other things just have to rise with it. That is what a boy might do in Plum Alley, seems to me—mix in and yet keep so clean and true that the others would have to come up with him. It all depends upon the boy."

There was a long silence in the little room before Billy squared his shoulders and said, almost solemnly: "I'll try it, mother; honest I will."

Now, it happened that Billy had been a crack ball player on the school nine in Elmdale, and the next day, which was Saturday, Mother Ballinger advised him to carry his bat and ball when he went out. It did not take long for the Alley boys to collect about him when they saw him. You could afford to put up with a fellow's brushing his hair, or even blacking his boots for the sake of an outfit like that.

"Pick out your nine and we'll have a game," offered Billy good naturedly.

"Guess we ain't up on the frills," said Joe Green, handling the bat with awkward, respectful fingers. "Sticks like this never growed down here, I reckon."

"Oh, it's easy when you know how," Billy assured him modestly. "I know a little about it, and I'll pass it on if you say so."

It was plainly evident that they "said so," and the same game was soon in full swing. Billy proved a good teacher, and the boys' respect for him grew apace.

It was in the middle of an exciting play that one of the boys let slip an oath that fairly turned Billy's blood cold. Instantly he dropped the bat and stood still, the color flushing over his sensitive face.

"Aw, cut it out!" exclaimed Joe Green angrily. "Can't you see the kid ain't use to it?"

"Seems to me you're mighty particular all of a sudden," sneered the other boy, repeating the oath.

The color came and went in Billy's face while he summoned his courage, but his voice was clear and firm when he spoke.

"Fellows," he said quietly, "Joe's right. I'm not use to it, and I hope I never will be. It isn't straight to talk like that, and you know it as well as I do. Now, the whole thing is right here, you fellows have the making of fine players in you; inside of six months I could have you playing as good a game as anybody need put up, and I'll do it if you say the word. But, understand this, it's got to be a clean game, no cheating and no shady talking. That's all I've got to say—you can take it or leave it."

It was a bold stroke, and Billy quaked inwardly while he made it, but perhaps because it was so bold, it won. The new bat lay shining enticingly in the middle of the road, the ball hung loosely in Teddy Barse's limp hand, and ahead of the boys lay the alluring prospect Billy had outlined. The combination was too much for Joe, even if something in Billy's frank manliness had not tugged suddenly at the place where Joe's heart was always hidden.

"The kid's all right!" he decided abruptly. "Every fellow that's willin' to keep a civil tongue in his head and give a square deal from now on, go up an' shake with him."

He held out his own hand with the words, and half reluctantly, half eagerly, the boys filed up, thrusting grimy paws into Billy's clean grip.

"It's a bargain, fellows," he said heartily. "I'll do my best and we'll beat the town yet."

In five minutes the game was on again, and "Ballinger's Nine" was an established fact. But only Billy, and the angels knew that the baking powder was beginning to get in its work and Plum Alley had begun to rise.—Marion Mallett Thornton, in What To Do.

WHY CAPTAIN JACK CRAWFORD DID NOT DRINK.

A crowd of drinking frontiersmen urged Captain Jack to drink with them. He agreed to do so, if they insisted, after he had told them a story. This is the story, and it is absolutely true:

"Boys, it seems but yesterday that I was a barefooted boy at my mother's knee; wild, reckless, impulsive, misunderstood and abused by everybody but her. She understood me, and, although the wildest, I was her favorite. My father's intemperance deprived me of even the rudiments of a school education, and, when on her deathbed, she said to me: 'My poor, wild boy, did you know that your mother was going to heaven?' Boys, that was the first great sorrow of my life. Down on my knees by her bedside I wept as I had never wept before. As I sobbed, 'Mother, dear, no one cares for me but you; no one in all the world understands me. Oh, I am afraid I will go wrong.' How beautiful she looked her [illegible] brown eyes aswim in tears, her white cap [illegible] on the pillow, and as she placed [illegible] head, she said, 'Don't cry, [illegible] mother will meet her boy Johnny in [illegible] will give her a promise to take will [illegible] promise you anything you ask, mother, and I will try to keep my promise.' Their promise not to ever to touch intoxicants and then it went on to say to leave these two little sisters in your care. Boys, I gave that promise to mother, and she went to heaven with a smile on her face, still holding my hand, and, as God is my judge, amid all the temptations of a frontier, army or social life, I have kept that promise, even when men who were called bad men have put a six-shooter in my face, when they considered it an insult to refuse to drink with them. I have folded my arms, and, looking into the muzzle of a gun, said, 'You can shoot and you can kill me, but you can't make me break a promise that I gave to a dying mother,' and I've seen a man who had killed his man put his six-shooter back in his belt, take a glass of liquor he had poured out and throw it on the floor, after I had mentioned that word 'mother,' and then take my hand and say, 'Pard, I beg your pardon. I had that kind of a mother,' and walked out of the saloon. That man is living today. He never took another drink.

"As I concluded my story I picked up the demijohn, and, holding it up, said, 'Boys, I said I would drink if you insisted, shall I?' Quick as a flash, there was a shot, the demijohn was shattered; part of the liquor went into the fire, a blue blaze leaped up. I pulled my own six-shooter, for I did not see where the shot came from, when, from behind the fire and smoke, Bill Wild stepped out, the smoking pistol still in his hand and tears on his bronzed cheeks, as he said, 'Nobody can drink when you talk like that. Say, Jack, that's the kind of a mother I had back in the sunrise country. I was jest like you, a wild, reckless boy. I started wrong when I smoked my first cigarette as a newsie; then I got to readin' dime novels, and one time I went to see a Wild West dime novel play, with real western men killing Indians. Later I got to drinking, and one day, when crazed with liquor, I shot a man and had to run away. The only consolation my good mother had was that the man did not die. But I never saw her again. She's up thar with your mother, and when that shot goes ringin' through the canyons of heaven, she'll hear it, Jack, and it will tell her that her wild boy has signed the pledge at last. There's my hand. I swear to God an' mother an' you I'll never touch the poison stuff again.' And he never did." The Amethyst

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

MEETING OF THE PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

The annual meeting of the Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate will be held in the Advocate office at 2 o'clock p.m. on Thursday, October 28, 1915.

J. M. HENRY, Chairman.

BROTHER HOLDER AND PONTOTOC LEAD.

On October 7, Rev. J. H. Holder, our pastor at Pontotoe, Miss., sent us 75 subscriptions to the Advocate, in addition to those which had already been renewed in his charge, the larger portion of these being for six months, according to our "trial offer." In forwarding this fine list, Brother Holder said: "This puts the New Orleans Christian Advocate in every home in Pontotoe in which there are members of our Church. Pontotoe is at the front. We have a great church here."

So far as our knowledge extends, this is the first church in our patronizing territory which has succeeded in getting the Advocate into every Methodist home, and this achievement is well worth noting. We take off our hat to Brother Holder and Pontotoe. We are going to try to form an "Honor Roll" of pastors and churches accomplishing this result, and of course the first place on it belongs to Brother Holder and his worthy flock. Many other congregations ought to join this list at an early date. Few things are worse needed in the average church than to get our authorized Church papers into the hands of its members. We believe that it would be a wise expenditure of money if our official boards would in some way manage to place funds in the hands of their pastors for this purpose. In Brother Holder's letter announcing that he was ordering the Advocate to be sent into every Methodist home in his town was this suggestive sentence: "A generous layman helped to make this possible." There ought to be hundreds of such laymen in Mississippi and Louisiana.

We need more enthusiasm in the work of circulating our Conference organ. We have no more important duty than this, because its successful performance would help every other deserving enterprise both in Church and State. There is a vast significance in the fact that whenever any new cult, or ism, or organization desires to make progress it immediately has recourse to the printing press. The Church has been far too slow to learn this lesson, and what her loss has been in consequence eternity alone can reveal.

What names shall we next place beside those of Brother Holder and Pontotoc?

NO GROUND FOR SUCH A HOPE.

There has lately appeared in the public prints some writing about Vanderbilt University coming back to the Church, and the Church going back to Vanderbilt University. In our opinion, most of the utterances that we have seen bearing upon this matter have been superficial and ill-timed.

According to the way we see it, the gulf between Vanderbilt University and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is too wide and deep ever to be bridged. It has been suggested that the Vanderbilt trustees, since a recent enactment of the Tennessee Legislature, made for other purposes, might so amend the charter of the institution as to place it under the legal control of the Church. We very much doubt whether they could take a step that would set aside the solemn obligations which the Supreme Court of Tennessee has declared they owe Commodore Vanderbilt, the adjudged founder of the University, and administer the funds in a manner different from that which he and those co-operating with him are said to have intended—their purposes having been interpreted by the Court. Certainly this could not be done if any trustee or interested person on the outside should raise an objection and insist upon litigating the matter, for surely the Court would stand by its own decision. Such an amendment to the charter, which perhaps the passage of the measure referred to would have made easy before the Court rendered its elaborate opinion, would in all probability be practically impossible now, in view of the situation, since it would be a nullification of authoritative law safeguarding the trust of a dead philanthropist. The questions of retroaction and constitutionality relative to a new bill would doubtless arise here. There are quite a number of men who are not Methodists on the Vanderbilt Board, and it is unthinkable that, after having battled for years to destroy the power of the Church in the University, they would now consent to its re-establishment. Moreover, as we have already stated, any interested outsider could block such a proceeding. Federal issues would, furthermore, likely become involved.

Nor is it conceivable, after their pleadings in the litigation and their acceptance of the decision of the Court as a righteous determination of the issues involved, that the Vanderbilt trustees would now reverse themselves and do the very thing which, after the lawsuit was begun, they contended would be an indefensible betrayal of a sacred trust reposed in them. So much for the obstacles that stand in the way of any action of consequence upon the part of the trustees.

Of the obstacles in the way of the Church's return to Vanderbilt University we shall mention only one: Mr. Carnegie's Million Dollars. That money was given in a manner and upon terms that the Church by a practically unanimous vote declared to be dishonoring to her and which rendered its acceptance by her impossible. She was insulted by being told, in effect, that she had no business in the field of higher education, and the fact that $800,000 of this donation was virtually conditioned on a verdict against her, while her litigation with the trustees was pending in the Supreme Court, was nothing short of a scandal. The Church could not enter into partnership with Vanderbilt University while this money is in the treasury of that institution without repudiating her former action and discrediting herself in the eyes of the civilized world. All of the accompanying utterances and attending circumstances of Mr. Carnegie's donation show that he did not desire or intend for her to have or control it—the major portion of it was not turned in until the Court had given assurance that she had no legal rights of consequence in the institution. And if the trustees should now evince a disposition to break faith with Mr. Carnegie by trying to set up again Church control, the honesty and honor of the Church would not, under the existing conditions, permit her to consent to the retention of this large gift.

But could not the trustees return to Mr. Carnegie his million dollars? Even if they were willing to do this, a considerable portion of it has been expended in buildings and apparatus and would not now be available; and as to the trustees replacing this amount, it may be said, as Bishop Hoss has more than once observed, they have never distinguished themselves by generous giving to that institution. So, it is safe to conclude that this barrier will forever bar the way of the Church in any approach that she may be solicited to make toward Vanderbilt University; or at least that it ought to do so, if she cares to retain her own self-respect and the respect of the moral and intelligent public.

There is no good reason to cherish any hope that a co-operative relation of any kind will ever be renewed between Vanderbilt University and the Southern Methodist Church. The severance of their relations is complete and wears every aspect of finality. Such is the declaration of all the lawyers who have passed upon the matter, of the Vanderbilt Board of Trustees, and of the general Educational Commission, which was given plenary power to act for the Church. For any Annual Conference to accept the merely nominal relation which the General Conference pronounced impossible would be a highly disloyal and culpable act—one which the General Conference certainly ought not to tolerate; and this talk of the Church and University yet getting together is, as we see it, wholly without justification and harmful in its effect. It tends to unsettle the minds of our people and to distract them from the great and urgently needed work of concentrating upon and building our two new Universities in Atlanta and Dallas. When the Vanderbilt Board of Trust shall in an OFFICIAL AND AUTHORITATIVE MANNER present something definite and of real value for the consideration of the Church, it will, in our opinion, be ample time to begin the discussion of the question of a re-establishment of their relations. And while we do not claim the gift of prophecy, we do not hesitate to express the conviction that this will never be done by that body.

FORTUNATE, IF TRUE.

In a recent issue of the Texas Christian Advocate, Dr. W. D. Bradfield, in an editorial, made the following utterance:

"There is nothing which the Church in Texas will so quickly resent as an effort to make our State schools a political asset of any man or any party. The positions in the faculties of these institutions shall never become a part of the political spoils of any man or party. We demand that the politicians of Texas keep their hands off the schools of Texas. And the indignation and righteous wrath of the people are sure to be visited upon any man who attempts to discharge a political debt by bartering the positions of influence in these schools."

It is rather a remarkable claim which is here made for the Lone Star State. If the educational institutions of that commonwealth have been kept out of politics, they are more fortunate than those of most of the other Southern States. However, Dr. Bradfield is clearly right in his position that such schools ought to be operated entirely free from political influences of any kind. But the problem is how to accomplish this result. In most of our commonwealths the power of the Churches is apparently inadequate to effect it, even if they were to make a united effort to do so. For a number of years the gravest menace that some of the leading State colleges in the South have had, has been the disturbing hand of the artful politician. If our confrere has correctly interpreted the spirit of the Texans concerning this growing evil, we earnestly wish that it could be spread abroad over the whole Nation.

THE PROHIBITION STATES.

South Carolina makes the nineteenth prohibition State in the Union. The entire list is as follows: Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Iowa, North Dakota, Tennessee, Arkansas, Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maine, Mississippi, and South Carolina.

Ten States have gone for prohibition within the past twelve months. Of the commonwealths now under the prohibition flag nine are in the South.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Bishop Murrah is holding the Tennessee Conference at Murfreesboro, Tenn., this week.

Every church should now catch the brisk autumn step in its work. The Annual Conferences are almost upon us, and there is not a day to lose.

Revival services are being conducted at the Parker Memorial Church of this city this week. The pastor, Rev. R. H. Harper, is being assisted by Rev. A. J. Gearheard.

Brother G. W. Hodges, of Felixville, La., was in New Orleans last Saturday and called at the Advocate office to renew his subscription. His brief visit was appreciated.

A revival meeting began in the Methodist Church at Starkville, Miss., last Sunday. The pastor, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, is being assisted by Evangelist J. O. Hanes, of Birmingham, Ala.

Every good Methodist wants to contribute something to the Conference collections. Don't be a shirker in this respect. Without these funds the Church would have to go into bankruptcy.

Our congregation at Soso, Miss., one of the appointments on the Taylorville charge, has recently completed a nice new house of worship. The pastor of this enterprising flock is Rev. B. F. Crook.

Bishop E. E. Hoss is at this time presiding over the annual meeting of the Korean Mission. He will remain in the Orient until after the session of the Japan Mission Conference, which will convene on November 17.

In a business note to our office, bearing date of Oct. 8, Dr. J. W. Price, of Rome, Miss., says: "We have just closed a good meeting. Rev. O. L. Savage did the preaching and helped in the singing. Brother Savage is good help."

A local option election has been ordered in Rapides Parish, of which Alexandria is the county-seat. It will be held on November 16. It is to be hoped that the outcome will be to place that flourishing parish in the dry column.

Reports last week from Atlanta and Dallas were that more than six hundred students were enrolled in the several departments of Emory University and that the Southern Methodist University had enrolled more than five hundred students.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, preached at Plaquemine, La., last Sunday, and left Monday to meet the other Louisiana presiding elders in the conference that was to be held at Alexandria on Tuesday of this week.

Captain Hunter Sharp, of Columbus, Miss., came to New Orleans for medical treatment some ten days ago and last week underwent an operation at the hands of Dr. Matas at the Touro Infirmary. He stood the ordeal satisfactorily and seems to be rapidly recovering.

Mr. A. E. Miller, of Wilson, La., a steward in our church at that place and a brother of Rev. C. C. Miller of Monroe, La., came to the Charity Hospital in New Orleans a few days since for medical treatment. We hope that his physical condition will soon be much improved.

Rev. R. F. Harrell, of Centerville, Miss., was a visitor in New Orleans last week, and favored the Advocate office with an appreciated call. Brother Harrell spoke encouragingly of his work, which has made steady progress toward better things during the past two years.

We regret to learn that Rev. L. W. Cain, our efficient pastor at Leland, Miss., is ill with a severe malarial attack. We pray that he may soon be rid of his malady and able to buckle on his armor again. Brother Cain is a hard worker and feels ill at ease when he cannot be energetically about the Master's business.

We take the following from the Lincoln County Times (Brookhaven, Miss.) of October 7: "Rev. J. M. Morse is at Lumberton, Miss., assisting in a meeting, and will be absent about ten days. The Methodist pulpit here will be filled next Sunday by Rev. C. C. Gibson, and on the Sunday following by Dr. I. W. Cooper."

The Klein-Boyd meeting at Meridian, Miss., an account of which appears on another page, closed last Sunday evening, several days after our published report was written. Definite information as to the final outcome of this series of services is not at hand at this writing. From Meridian Brother Klein went to Cleveland, Miss.

Rev. T. J. Warlick, of Bogalusa, La., has recently closed an excellent meeting at that place, in which he had the capable assistance of Rev. D. E. Kelly. There were 40 accessions to the Church. Brother Warlick has had over 80 additions during the present Conference year. He is obviously keeping up in his present field his usual record of a fruitful ministry.

The following note is from Rev. G. H. Thompson, the official head of the Hattiesburg District: "Rev. S. E. Stepp, who was admitted on trial at the last session of the Mississippi Conference, and who was assigned to the Seminary charge, has given up his appointment, and Rev. W. M. Williams, until recently manager of the Methodist Orphanage at Jackson, has succeeded him on that work."

Rev. H. W. Cudd, of Baton Rouge, La., sends us a club of 11 "trial subscriptions," and adds, "I will send in more before the month is out." We are grateful for this good service. Brother Cudd further says: "My work at Keener Memorial Church is progressing as well as could be expected. We have finished our church, and about 50 members have been received by certificate and on profession of faith."

We acknowledge ourselves indebted to Rev. W. W. Hartsfield, of Golden, Miss., for an additional club of 5 trial subscriptions. Brother Hartfield states that since he had last written us he has received 12 members into the Church—9 on profession of faith, and 3 by certificate. His letter also brought the news that Rev. R. H. Pigue, of the Tennessee Conference, was to begin a meeting at Belmont, Miss., on October 1.

Brother W. S. Holmes, Conference Lay Leader of the Louisiana Conference, has announced that during the approaching session of the Annual Conference at Mansfield the Laymen's Anniversary will be held at 3 p.m. on Friday. Let all the brethren co-operate with Brother Holmes in making this occasion a profitable and memorable one. He will have more to say on this subject in the next issue of the Advocate.

In a personal letter, dated October 7, Rev. H. N. Brown, of Lake Arthur, La., who, it will be remembered, came to New Orleans some weeks ago for medical treatment, says: "I am improving slowly, and am getting the brethren to preach for me. I have learned the value of a local preacher this year." We have in hand from Brother Brown's pen an interesting report of his work, which will be published next week.

After Nov. 10 the time when six months trial subscriptions may be sent to the Advocate for 50 cents will have expired. So it behooves the brethren who may wish to avail themselves of this offer to increase the circulation of the Conference organ in their charges to take the matter up at once. This is a golden opportunity which none should let pass by unimproved. Read our offer at the bottom of the last column on this page.

Since the severe damage of their church in the great storm which swept over New Orleans on September 29, the members of our Felicity Street congregation have been invited by the Misses Wright to hold their services at the Home Institute near-by, and have accepted the invitation. It is stated that it has not yet been definitely decided what course will be pursued toward the restoration of the Old Felicity edifice.

The following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: Rev. J. L. Lay, Simsboro, La., 2; Rev. M. M. Black, Canton, Miss., 2; Rev. J. B. King, Vaughan, Miss., 2; Rev. H. B. Vandenburg, Ringgold, La., 2; Rev. George Fox, Waterproof, La., 2; Rev. E. M. Shaw, Benoit, Miss. (from Pace), 5; Rev. W. W. Nelson, Pleasant Grove charge, Miss. Conf., 3.

Rev. W. H. Saunders, of Fernwood, Miss., is due to be at the New Prospect Camp Meeting, in South Mississippi, from Oct. 13 to Oct. 17. In a letter written on the 5th inst Brother Saunders says: "Rev. Robert Selby was with us yesterday and held our fourth quarterly conference. Everything was reported in full and will be more than full by the time that I have to leave for our annual meeting at Laurel. Brother Selby thinks that the Brookhaven District will make a showing fully equal to that of last year."

Our Board of Missions has recently received several substantial bequests that were left for the establishment of permanent funds. From the estate of Mrs. Kate T. Borders, of Ashland, Ky., there is a gift of $2000, this amount to provide a fund the income of which is to be used for the education of ministerial students in Brazil. The late Mr. William T. Finchan, of Madison County, Va., leaves to the Board of Missions his estate, valued at $8,000 to $10,000. This bequest is subject to the life interest of his widow.

The Christian Commonwealth, the organ of the Anti-Saloon League of Georgia, carried last week a picture of Dr. H. M. DuBose, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Atlanta, and paid a high compliment to the service which he has rendered the cause of prohibition in that State. Dr. DuBose is easily one of the most versatile, brilliant, and useful ministers in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. We are inclined to think that he possesses more literary genius than any preacher in our Connection.

We extract the following from a personal letter from Rev. H. T. Young, of Pleasant Hill, La.: "I shall be very busy from now until the Annual Conference meets in Mansfield. This has been a very strenuous year for me. I have preached more than an average of two sermons a day since April 1, and have seen more than [illegible] persons accept Christ. My charge will make a good report at Conference. Among the things accomplished was the building of a new parsonage. This is indeed a fine record.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, has an engagement at Isabel, La., within the next few days, to dedicate the new church which has lately been erected there. This is one of the appointments of the St. Tammany Circuit, of which Rev. J. S. Rutledge is the energetic pastor. This new house of worship is said to be quite an attractive one, and Brother Rutledge and our people at Isabel are to be heartily congratulated upon having brought this worthy enterprise to so speedy a completion.

Rev. T. W. Adams, the presiding elder of the Port Gibson District, spent last Sunday and Monday in Vicksburg, where he had engagements to hold the quarterly conferences of the Crawford Street and Gibson Memorial Churches. The charges in that territory are making a remarkable showing under Brother Adams' capable leadership. An indication of this may be seen by referring to the report of Rev. C. W. Crisler, Treasurer of the Board of Missions of the Mississippi Conference, which we are publishing this week.

In the Advocate of last week we spoke of Hon. W. A. Belk's article on "Doctors of Divinity" as being carried in that issue, when it was not. The explanation of this is that at one time his communication was in the forms of our paper, but was later removed to make room for urgent matter which had to be published at once. As was stated, our last number was brought out amid much confusion in consequence of the storm. What Brother Belk has to say about the "D.D. degree" appears on another page in our present issue.

Rev. Geo. H. Thompson, presiding elder of the Hattiesburg (Miss.) District, writes as follows: Rev. H. R. Caldwell, one of the most loved superannuates of the Mississippi Conference, has been confined to his bed for nearly three weeks, and fear is entertained that he will be there for some weeks yet. He says that he lives among the best people in the world." We are sorry to be apprised of the illness of this esteemed veteran, and we pray that the Heavenly Father may have him in his gracious keeping in this time of affliction and trial.

Brother James H. Ramsey, of Houston, Miss., in renewing his subscription to the Advocate, says: "Brother and Sister Augustus have done a fine work in this charge this year. On account of the trying times, they have had many obstacles, but have been equal to the task confronting them. The superior service rendered by Brother and Sister R. P. Neblett in this field during their stay here is remembered with appreciation, and they have in Houston many warm friends who wish them success and who will never cease to love them."

From Fulton, Ky., under date of October 7, Rev. J. H. Felts, our pastor at Corinth, Miss., writes as follows: "For eight weeks I have been all but constantly at the bedside of my eldest son at my father's home at this place. He has been critically ill with typhoid fever, but is now convalescent. This will explain my failure to examine certain papers and delay in replying to correspondents. My people have been patient and kind." We regret to know that Brother Felts has had affliction in his family, but are pleased to be informed that the stricken one is at present thought to be on the way to recovery, and we trust that the restoration of his health will be speedy and complete.

TO OUR PREACHERS.

The management of this Advocate has decided to let our preachers and agents offer six months trial subscriptions at 50 cents during August, September and October. This offer will be withdrawn on the 10th of November, 1915. Subscriptions must be sent in in clubs and money orders used in making remittances so as to save expense.

In soliciting new subscribers, please explain to them that the six months' subscriptions are taken with the understanding that, after their expiration, the regular rate of $1.50 will be charged for annual subscriptions unless they are ordered canceled.

We are making this offer for a three-fold purpose:

First—To build up our subscription list before the annual meeting of the Publishing Committee.

Second—To get funds to help tide us over the summer and fall months.

Third—To induce our Methodist people to take the Conference Organ and read it.

W. C. LINDSEY was born in Scott County, Miss., on January 11, 1851. He was converted at the County Line Church early in life and became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Brother Lindsey was married to Miss Burger, of Smith County, with whom he lived happily until the day of his death. The death angel carried away our beloved brother on August 8, 1915. The funeral services took place at the Morton (Miss.) Cemetery, being conducted by Rev. C. W. Crossley. He leaves a wife, three sons, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss.

J. W. EVANS, P. C.

Mrs. REBECCA WINNETT BUTLER passed to her peaceful rest on May 27, 1915, at her home near Booneville, Miss., surrounded by her children and a number of her friends. She was born in Cannon County, Tenn., on July 6, 1834, and was married to Mr. L. L. Butler on January 11, 1854. Of this union were born nine children, the three oldest of whom died in infancy. Sister Butler gave her heart to God while in the prime of life and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and remained a faithful and devoted member of it until her death. She was a loving wife and a kind mother. Mrs. Butler was a woman of beautiful character—strikingly modest and unassuming. Her gentleness of spirit won the love of old and young alike. Her daughter,

HATTIE E. NORTON.

Our hearts were indeed saddened and our eyes flooded with tears when the news came to us that the Angel Reaper had visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Guln at Quincy, Miss., on the morning of August 30, 1915, and had carried to the beautiful home above the sweet spirit of little ALDEN, aged 11 years. He was one of the brightest and best little boys in our community. He joined the Church at the age of nine years, and had attended Sunday school and church regularly. To know Alden was to love him. With bowed head, we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and commend them to our Heavenly Father, who does all things well, and knows how to comfort the sorrowful and heal wounded hearts. A friend and schoolmate,

MATTIE SUE HOLLINGSWORTH.

MR. LILBURN CUNADY BUTLER passed peacefully to that rest that awaits the redeemed on Feb. 4, 1915, surrounded by his family and friends. He was born in Franklin County, Ala., on Jan. 26, 1833, and moved with his parents to Coffee County, Tenn., when four years old. He was married to Miss Rebecca Winnett on Jan. 11, 1854. In 1861 he joined the Fourth Tennessee Regiment as a volunteer and served in it for four years, making a good record as a soldier. He gave his heart to God in 1871 and joined the Methodist Church. He loved the Church and its work and gave liberally to its support. He moved to Booneville, Miss., in 1873. Mr. Butler and his wife had lived together sixty years and twenty-four days. Mr. Butler had many sterling qualities. His religious life permeated his home.

His daughter,

HATTIE E. NORTON.

On Sunday night, September 26, the death angel came into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Smith and took away one of their darling little boys, ALLEN, aged about four years, who died at 11 o'clock in the night. He was sick only a few days. Everything that the physician, kind neighbors, and loved ones could do was done, but without avail. Little Allen had scarcely ventured out on life's journey through this world, when Jesus bade him come unto him and enjoy a home where he would not know sorrow or pain. He was unusually bright; his face was full of sunshine and he was always ready with a smile. This home has been made sad, and fond parents mourn their loss. You cannot call him back, dear friends, but you can go to him. Try not to complain, since God thought it best. But let your aim be to meet him in heaven. Remember that he is in the presence of Christ and has no share in pain or sorrow. May God's presence take the place of the little one, and may those who weep remember that the Savior said, Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted!

A friend, Mrs. J. T. WILLIS.

LETA MAY DENNING was born on Sept. 25, 1897, and received the "crown of life" on Sept. 22, 1915, lacking but three days of being eighteen years of age. She leaves a host of loved ones and friends to mourn her departure, but chiefest among those are her dear parents, Brother and Sister Denning, and her heart-broken, youthful husband, Brother H. A. Sheppard, and his parents, Brother and Sister B. H. Sheppard. She was married to Brother "Gus" on Sept. 26, 1914. They were so happy together that it takes faith to understand why God called her away. Her life was a beautiful commentary on the teachings of Jesus. The immense crowd of people that attended her funeral and the many tears shed by, it seemed, every one of the great crowd, attested Oakdale's affection for this beautiful life and showed that this almost child's life had gripped the hearts of the people of the whole town for her Lord and Master. Those who feel her going most are looking to Him who can help; but, Christian people, let us ask our Lord for special blessings for them. God is good, dear friends, and we will understand fully some day.

HENRY T. YOUNG.

Mrs. ELIZA ANN STANFORD (nee Taliaferro) was born in Alabama in March, 1844, and moved with her parents, while yet a child, to Carroll County, Miss., where she grew to womanhood. In 1871 she was married to A. D. Stanford and moved with him to Warren County, Miss., where they lived happily together until about four years ago when he went away to be with God. Of this union three children were born—two boys and one girl—only one of whom survives, W. T. Stanford of Warren County, Miss. Mrs. Stanford was a faithful member of the Methodist Church from childhood, and her life was a benediction to many. Her heart, her hand, and her home were open to any who were in need of what she had to give. It was the writer's privilege to know her for nearly two years and he wishes to give testimony to the beauty of her life and character, and her fidelity to God and the Church. She lived a Christian life, and on July 4, 1915, she died in the triumph of a living faith and went home to be with God and the loved ones who had gone on before. Her body rests in the family graveyard, hard by the home in which she spent the whole of her married life. Her pastor,

L. L. ROBERTS.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Lizzie Thompson, daughter of Brother and Sister J. P. Holloman, was born in Catahoula Parish in 1867, and her father moved to Harrisonburg in 1874. She died in Monroe on Sept. 19, 1915. She was married to Judge Newton Thompson in 1881, by whom she had seven children; six are living. She and her husband joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in 1887. For twenty-eight years she was an acceptable and efficient member of the Church in Harrisonburg. May her children follow her example! The attendance at her burial was very large.

Her last illness was very severe and long. She was confined to her bed for eight weeks, and many times during the time she was thought to be dying. She was taken to New Orleans for special treatment and from there to Monroe, where she died. All that could be done by a devoted and effectionate husband (I never saw one more so), family, and friends and medical skill was done for her comfort and restoration, but God saw fit to take her. No family could be more devoted to the mother than was this one.

I was often with her before she was taken to New Orleans. She was satisfied in the love of her Redeemer and was ready and willing to go, though she had so many precious ties here. She was patient and uncomplaining and was grateful for every kindness and expression of affection. She was generous and very amiable in Christian character. During her latter illness she had visions of dear ones who had been dead for years—her father and mother among others—and doubtless these dear ones, with the angels, at the last attended her home.

Her husband, the children, grandchildren and many friends are greatly bereft by her leaving. May they be ready to join her when the summons shall come. May God comfort and sustain them until then.

THE MARKS OF A METHODIST.

Bishop F. J. Mc Connell, in a recent address, undertook to give "the marks of a Methodist," and these are what he deemed the peculiar characteristics which differentiate the Methodist from his fellows (1) The Methodist has a conscious living and personal relation to God. (2) He lays emphasis upon entire sanctification, which means, the bishop thinks, "an unresting quest and a conviction that the grace of God can come to us in greater measure than anything we have yet possessed." (3) He also emphasizes the saving and holding of young life from the beginning. (4) The Methodist insists that the one supreme interest is spiritual experience, the inner life; and this has right of way above everything else in the Church. (5) The Methodist has also a special mission to the toilers of earth, especially to the ones who are bearing the heaviest burdens.

THE REAL DEFINITION OF LIFE IS NERVE FORCE.

People often wonder what the difference really is between the living and the dead body. Apparently nothing has been taken away, but still the complicated machinery of the body has stopped and cannot be started again. What is missing is "life" and the modern definition of life is "nerve-force."

This nerve-force must be distributed regularly all over the body. Directly it does not run smoothly ill health will follow.

Dr. Miles' Nervine benefits the health by evening up the distribution of this vital force of life, and by taking all the "jars and jolts" out of the system.

In this conjunction the Rev. C. H. Cox, of Mason City, W. Va., has stated:

"I have found Dr. Miles' Nervine to be unexcelled in all nervous disorders and I have always recommended it to anyone whom I hear is suffering in this way. We also always keep Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills on hand as we feel they are invaluable. No words can truly express the real merit of Dr. Miles' Restorative Remedies."

Dr. Miles' Nervine can be used with advantage in all ailments which have a nervous origin or which have affected the nervous system. It is particularly beneficial in case of sleeplessness, nervousness, epilepsy, hysteria, chronic headache and neuralgia.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is on sale at all drug stores and is strictly guaranteed to benefit you or your money will be refunded by the druggist.

GREAT TABERNACLE MEETING IN MERIDIAN.

Dear Brother Meek: September will go down in history in Meridian, Miss., as a memorable month. The city is stirred as it has not been in a decade, and possibly in its history. With the Klein evangelistic party leading, the Methodist forces of Meridian have swept everything else into obscurity and insignificance and have focused the city's thought on God and his Church.

The Methodist ministers of Meridian, with their laymen co-operating, invited the Klein evangelistic party to conduct a revival campaign here and erected a tabernacle that will seat approximately 3000 persons. From the very first service on Sunday night, September 5, the tabernacle has been filled, and many times hundreds have been turned away.

The preaching of Rev. G. A. Klein has been clear-cut, sane, and attended by the Holy Spirit in such power that the messages have been simply irresistible. The ministers are unanimous in the statement that a series of such soul-searching sermons has never before been heard in this city. Brother Klein has demonstrated that it is possible to find an evangelist who scorns the bizarre and sensational in appealing to the hearts and minds of his audiences. He relies solely upon the Word of God and the Holy Spirit. There has not been said or done a thing that would not be acceptable in any pulpit at any eleven o'clock service, and at the same time there has not been a service at which an invitation was given that scores were not converted or reclaimed. It is amazing to see a meeting run a month without a fruitless service, but such has been the case in this meeting. The emphasis is laid not upon the power of the evangelists, but upon God. And the work has raised up a band of saved, active workers with a robust faith who will be a great power in Meridian when this series of services is finished. Brother Klein's preaching has emphasized personal work, Bible study, loyalty to the leaders in the Church, tithing, and attendance upon the ordinances of the Church. As an illustration of the work done along these lines, a few facts are noteworthy:

At one service, the evangelist never had an opportunity to preach because the personal workers simply swarmed over the great crowd and led about forty souls to the front for instruction and prayer; again, the Sunday schools of the city made unprecedented gains during the month, differences between members and officials have been adjusted in many cases, and a spirit of fellowship prevails. In one church, a class of forty tithers was organized last Sunday. The report of the secretaries has not been made, but hundreds have been saved and entered into a life of activity for the Church and God.

Brother P. M. Boyd, the musical director, is unquestionably the greatest gospel singer that Meridian has heard. There is a power and simplicity in his messages in song that grip the great audiences, as many of our greatest gospel singers do not do. The playing of Mrs. P. M. Boyd has not only the perfection of art but is accompanied by the power of the Holy Spirit. These two have built up a chorus of a hundred voices that makes the tabernacle ring with melody and lifts the hearts of the great throngs up to God.

It is the prayer of the Methodist preachers of Meridian that every large town and city may have these Spirit-filled workers for a great campaign. It is really our bounden duty to let the other earnest preachers who are praying for just such a gospel team know what God has done in Meridian.

Brother Klein's address is Nashville, Tenn.

And the end is not in sight yet. Only God knows the possibilities of this meeting if it continues to grow in interest and power. In the two weeks that lie before us, it is evident that the greatest work of the meeting will be done. We are praying and expecting the number of saved persons to reach or exceed a thousand before the meeting closes.

W. B. HOGG,
Chairman of the Publicity Committee.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney,
Sardis, Miss.

One of the best helps sent out by our Publishing House is the Workers' Council, a monthly magazine full of bright, practical suggestions that the best of Sunday schools can use to advantage. Send for a sample copy and be convinced.

If you have any Childrens' Day money put away in some good man's cash-drawer for safe-keeping, please get it out and send it to Rev. V. C. Curtis, Lexington, Miss., to-day. If you only knew how badly it is needed, you could not forget to look after this important matter.

The Presbyterians have a school at Batesville and one at Independence, a country church, that come up to the Standard of Efficiency. Four years ago the country school had 40 in attendance; now it has 185 enrolled. This school will capture a lot of Methodist children. What is the secret of its success?

The Methodists at Batesville have one of the best church buildings in the Conference, and they are using it to advantage. Brother Lockhart is one of the best loved men anywhere. His Sunday school is moving to the front. The Teacher-training course is their next step toward the Standard of Efficiency.

The Sunday school at Grenada is using the Graded literature in all the departments with great success. The superintendent has promised to order ten copies of the Pupil, the Teacher, and the School for his Teacher-training class. Brother Hall wonders if there is another place like Grenada, and Grenada wonders if it is possible to get another preacher they can love so well.....Brother Freeman attended the services held for the teachers and other workers in the Sunday school. He lingers in the twilight of the heavenly world and waits patiently to enter in. His life is a benediction to the people of this church and community. .....It was a pleasure to speak to the young women at Grenada College on the Teacher-training work. Of course, Brother Countiss will encourage his girls to take advantage of a teacher-training course and be in line with the other leading colleges of Methodism.

Lime Combats Tuberculosis

"It is difficult to escape the conviction that lime starvation and lime assimilation are the real issues behind the masks of vulnerability and resistance in tuberculosis," wrote the late Ira Van Geison, M. D., in the N. Y., Medical Record, May 11, 1912.

Ordinarily, lime is not easily assimilated, but Eckman's Alterative contains it in such form and combination as to insure assimilation by the average person. This explains its success in many cases of tuberculosis which apparently have yielded to it.

Containing no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

A NOTE FROM BROTHER CAIN.

Dear Advocate: Of the 274 months of my life that have been given wholly to the pastorate, the past ten have been the most strenuous. Trying to meet honestly and faithfully my obligations to God and man in a responsible Delta charge this year, with the bad effects of the cruel war on men's souls and pocket-books to contend with extra, with much severe sickness in my home (one operation for appendicitis resulting in the absence of my family in search of health), and with a large amount of outside revival work, my whole being has been constantly wrought up to the highest pitch. But we are called to "endure hardships." With me the time is too short and the work too urgent to be idle in the Master's kingdom. God's work has come to be my work; I know nothiug else and want to do nothing else. He has graciously and tenderly spared and restored my family to health, blessed our work, and my soul is at peace—great peace. There are many things we will never understand. Just why at this time, when pastors in this section need to be out and most active in collecting the finances, I should find this to be my 7th day in bed, a victim of malaria, I shall not attempt to explain. I have had a hard battle to fight, but with the wonderful skill of the Great Physician and the fiue medical aid of Dr. Dobson and the best of nursing, we have old Mr. Malaria on the run, and it now looks as if the Lord's humble servant will soon be at his post again doing full duty. We are hopeful within the next two months of making a happy landing at New Albany.

By the way, our brother in Christ, Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, came down a few days ago and did us lots of really good service. He has a splendid message and is making a tremendous impression in his work as a Sunday school specialist.

Rev. H. S. Spragins is a very busy presiding elder. He knows when and how to strike to make things count, and as a result has his district in fine shape. He is pure gold and we like him. In fact, I have never had a presiding elder I did not and do not love—they are all good men of God.

CEDAR BLUFF, MISS.

Dear Brother Meek: Please give space in the Advocate for a few words from Cedar Bluff. We have had a very good year so far, and hope to make a good report at Conference. However, our people are complaining of hard times, etc., but we have some as good Christian men and women as you will find anywhere.....We held our meeting at Pearson's Chapel on the fourth Sunday in July, the pastor doing the preaching. The results of the revival were 5 additions to our Church, all of whom are grown people. We believe that there are better things in the future for these people; for there seems to be a real desire on their part for more of the things of God and less of the things of the world.....Our next meeting was held at Siloam Church, with Rev. W. W. Jones, of Coahoma, Miss., doing the preaching. We were greatly hindered at this place by rain; but we trust that some good was accomplished, and believe there was.....Brother Jones also assisted us in our meeting at Cedar Bluff the following week, and to say he did good preaching would be to say the least of his work. His sermons both here and at Siloam were such as we hear only from men who know God, and know how to rightly divide the truth. As a result of this meeting six of the choicest young ladies in the town joined our Church. .....The next meeting was conducted at Pheba, where we were assisted by Rev. W. E. Guthrie, of the North Alabama Conference. Brother Guthrie's one theme is, "Turn from sin to God and live; for to die in your sins means to be damned." At our request, he preached (Sunday and Sunday night) at the close of the meeting on "The Origin of the Church" and "The Possibility of Apostasy." These subjects were handled ably and to the satisfaction of all. This meeting resulted in 15 persons being added to our Church, 12 of them on profession of faith. One joined the Baptist Church. Also a Woman's Missionary Society and prayer-meeting were organized.....I assisted in three meetings away from home this year, and God blessed my efforts by giving me souls as seals to my ministry. Some have been converted at our regular monthly appointments, for which we are indeed very grateful and give to Him all the glory.—G. W. McLain, P. C.

Invokes God's Reward For Pellagra Cure.

Jumbo, Va.—J. H. Setterwhite writes: "I want to thank you for what you have done for me. You have cured my wife. God bless you in your work. I hope some day to see you; if I never see you I hope to meet you in heaven. God will reward you for your grand and noble work."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., box 587-X, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—Adv.

PROMOTION DAY AT CRYSTAL SPRINGS, MISS.

The last Sunday in September is Promotion Day in all Graded Sunday schools. Promotion Day in the Sunday school corresponds to Commencement Day in college. On this day, all pupils in the graded departments of the Sunday school who have successfully completed the prescribed course of study are advanced from a lower class to a higher, and from a lower grade to a higher. This day was most delightfully observed by our Sunday school in Crystal Springs, on Sunday, September 26. The church was simply yet beautifully decorated, and a simple but appropriate program was rendered. The school opened at nine o'clock, thirty minutes earlier than usual, and thirty minutes was given to class work before the promotion exercises were begun.

The attendance was probably the best in the history of the school, being ninety per cent of the total enrollment for the entire year. Eleven classes reported every enrolled member present. Three others reported only one member absent. Out of the eight classes now in the Elementary Division, only one pupil was absent. This does not include the many visitors who honored us with their presence.

A bouquet was presented to the youngest baby on the Cradle Roll who was present. When the name of this babe was called, the father, who is our superintendent, brought the little fellow forward and handing him to me, said, "Please present this babe to this Sunday school and to God." As the bouquet was handed the parents, the Beginners' Department rose and sang that beautiful Cradle Roll song, "Happy welcome, dear baby, to you."

A bouquet was also presented to the family having the largest representation on the floor of the school. One of our stewards having eight members of his family present, each a member of the school, was presented the bouquet. The choir for the day was composed of a class of young men, whose teacher is a young man scarcely older than his pupils, and who rendered for the school that very suggestive song, "A Saloonless Nation in Nineteen Twenty."

It has been the custom of this school to raise every year not less than $100 for missions. The Sabbath previous, it was announced to the school that there was lacking $36 of the one hundred. When the secretary made his report, it was found that $40 had been raised. This all came from class contributions, taken in the ordinary way. No offering was asked of our visitors.

At the conclusion of these exercises, the superintendent, in accordance with paragraph 263 of the Discipline, appointed teachers for the ensuing year, after which promotion cards and promotion certificates were given, and the school closed with everything in readiness for another year.

GREENWOOD, LA.

We started out this year with the double dues and felt a bit anxious as to the outcome. Ten cents a month was a fixture with us, and to depart from the good old way was rather trying, we thought. Sometimes we allow the good to become an enemy to the best.

The third quarter's report shows we can do things if we will only try. I believe every one will try to meet the responsibility. We have 36 members, besides a Young People's auxiliary. Our Junior and Baby Roll is a credit to any place. Mrs. Phillips has worked with the children for eight or nine years, and it is a treat to visit one of their meetings.

We used to meet at the church, ring the bell until it would turn over, and long after meeting time some four or five would come. This was so discouraging that Mrs. Alexander, our president, said, "Let's try meeting in our homes." Two years ago we started this plan and it has proven both pleasant and successful. Two ladies serve together, so it is not hard to manage. Our attendance is good and all enjoy the social hour after the program is over. We gained two members this month.

We have organized one society at Bethany, La. Unfortunately for us, this church belongs to the Texas Conference and they will gain this new organization. Bethany had never had a Woman's Missionary Society. Our society here was organized in 1883 by Mrs. J. T. Schumpert of Bethany, and now our society goes over and helps them to organize. "Cast your bread upon the waters," I guess explains this double blessing of ours.

The church at Bethany had been made ready and sweet flowers and cordial faces greeted us when we arrived. Ten gave their names for membership.

Our society supports a scholarship and is a liberal contributor to the Ruston Orphanage; besides we have our local work. We pray God to help us to do more. Mrs. J. M. TROSPER,
Cor. Secretary.

TO THE PRESIDENTS OF AUXILIARIES OF THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The Week of Prayer literature is being sent to you from my office and will be in the hands of all auxiliaries within a few days. It is being sent in sufficient quantities for you to prepare your program, and we trust that you will make use of it. Mrs. Lipscomb writes: "I am sure that you will think that the literature is very attractive. A great deal of care has been put into the effort to make it, and it justifies the outlay. As I send it out I am feeling an unusual burden of responsibility that it shall reach every missionary society in every Conference with its inspiring message. I am asking you to share this responsibility with me and to make a most determined effort to have it reach those for whom it is prepared." As I send it to my auxiliary presidents I am feeling this responsibility, and trust that they each will feel so burdened with this responsibility that it will be carefully preserved and prayerfully used in the Week of Prayer services of November 7-13. The literature is arranged for each day:

Monday, November 8, "Four questions: Answered—Why."

Tuesday, November 9, "Japan the Key: Some Facts about Orientals in the United States."

Wednesday, November 10, "The Lambuth Memorial Bible School: Our Churches and Circuits for Orientals on the Pacific Coast."

Thursday, November 11, "Japan's Back Door: Friendship in Action Among the Orientals of the Pacific Coast."

Friday, November 12, "The Appeal of the Council to the Missionary Society: A Little Argument with Myself."

Friends of the North Mississippi Conference, may we give ourselves, our time, our prayers, and our money to this season of prayer! May no auxiliary in the Conference from the largest to the least, the oldest to the newest, fail to observe this prayer season. Mrs. WALTER CAMPBELL.

NOTES FROM THE TYLERTOWN AUXILIARY.

We have 31 members, and meet in a centrally located place every Monday afternoon. The first Monday is devoted to business; the second, to Mission Study; the third, to the Voice program; the fourth, to Bible study. In addition to regular dues, we pay ten cents per member monthly for local dues to be used at the discretion of the society.

We have done and are doing a good deal of local work in the way of furnishing the parsonage and helping in church work generally. Have obligated ourselves to pay $1000 on the new church that our people contemplate building in the near future. Our pledge is $40 this year, as it was last, and we are paying it quarterly.

The Young People have a membership of 13 in their division, and the Juniors 48. Some good work is being done by both of these.

On the 5th of October we are expecting our district secretary, Mrs. W. H. La Prade, to be with us, at which time we are to have an all-day meeting, and we are anticipating a very pleasant and profitable time.

Our faithful president, Mrs. Josie Misom, is ever ready with her presence and helpful suggestions to encourage us in the work. We are hoping and praying for an increase in interest and membership in the future.
Mrs. T. B. COTTRELL,
Pub. Supt.

REMEMBER THE MISSION STUDY CAMPAIGN FOR THIS MONTH!

Let every Conference and Auxiliary Superintendent endeavor to make this the most enthusiastic campaign we have ever had. Let all work to attain our goal: "A mission study class in every auxiliary, and every woman and child a member."

The study of a new book entitles a class to a new enrollment. Please do not forget this. You can secure the enrollment cards from the Conference Superintendent of Study and Publicity. Fill out the card and mail it to Mrs. H. R. Steele, Educational Secretary, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn. Report the study of each new book to the Conference Superintendent.

Mission study classes for young people should be reported by the superintendent of the Young People's Auxiliary to the Conference superintendent. The enrollment card should be sent by the leader of the class to the educational secretary.

Mission study classes for juniors should be reported by the superintendent of the adult auxiliary to the Conference superintendent of Study and Publicity. The enrollment card should be sent by the leader of the class to the educational secretary.

Rheumatism Conquered.

R. L. Eastman, Sec. Nashville Board of Trade, Nashville, Tenn., writes: "My attention was called to your remedy, 'Renwar' for rheumatic troubles. I gave it a trial and have been permanently relieved. It is with pleasure I endorse the merits of 'Renwar' for rheumatism."

"RENWAR," the new, scientific remedy, relieves quickly and permanently rheumatism, by removing from the blood the cause of the trouble, uric acid. Many wonderful cures of cases of long standing are being reported. If you suffer with rheumatism you cannot afford to miss this opportunity to be well again. "Renwar" is sold by all druggists, price 50c. per bottle, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price. WARNER DRUG CO., Nashville, Tenn.

PUBLIC WORSHIP AND LONG PRAYERS.

Our longest prayers should be in secret—but are they? Public prayers may be too long, but rarely too short. Indeed, it is highly probable that the spirit of devotion may be prayed out of one. More than once, the writer has been the subject of such torture. One preacher—I heard him several times—prayed over all the American continent; went over to Europe, Asia, Africa, and the uttermost parts of the earth, and then came back and "rehashed" the American continent. And when he finally reached the end, I was not very devotional.—John W. Allen in Pacific Methodist Advocate.

YOUR HEART

is closely connected with your nerves, so close, in fact, that anything which affects your nerves must necessarily affect your heart, and vice versa.

If you are troubled with palpitation, dizziness, shortness of breath, swelling of ankles, pain on either side of the chest, or weak and irregular pulse, smptoms of a nervous breakdown, the best way to remedy the trouble is by giving your heart and nerves the proper tonic. Renovine for the heart and nerves is the best tonic for soothing and restoring a shattered nervous system. For sale by all reilable dealers, 50c and $1.00. Manufactured by The Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.

POP THE QUESTION.

Is there any question you would like to ask as to the composition and character of Coca-Cola, the popular temperance beverage? If so, you need feel no hesitancy in asking it for The Coca-Cola Company cordially invites you to write for a booklet on every point connected with their product. They have accumulated and printed the scientific opinions of the world's leading authorities explaining the quantity and quality of each ingredient, its origin and wholesomeness. Among the scientists who have analyzed Coca-Cola and whose expert opinions are printed in this booklet are the following:

Dr. Oswald Schmiedberg of Strassburg, Germany, generally regarded as the greatest living authority on such matters.

Dr. John W. Mallet, Fellow of The Royal Society, and for forty years Professor of Chemistry at the University of Virginia.

Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, Dean and Professor of Physiological Chemistry and Hygiene in the Medical Department of the University of Michigan.

Dr. Horatio C. Wood, Jr., Professor of Pharmacology and Therapeutics in the Medico-Chirurgical College of Philadelphia.

Dr. Hobart A. Hare, eminent author of medical text books and Professor of Therapeutics and Material Medica in the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia.

Dr. H. L. Hollingworth, Director and Experimenter in Psychology in Columbia University and in Barnard College.

Dr. R. L. Emerson of Boston, a chemist of national reputation.

Dr. John Marshall, Professor of Chemistry and Toxicology in the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Samuel P. Sadtler, Consulting Chemist and Professor of Chemistry in the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy.

Drs. Haines, Hecktoen and LeCount of the University of Chicago, also Drs. Wesener and Moyer of Chicago.

Drs. Witthaus and Hamilton of Cornell University.

Dr. Chas. E. Caspari of St. Louis.

These are only a few of the distinguished scientists whose opinions in reference to Coca-Cola are reproduced in booklet form for free distribution. Write for a copy. Read it carefully and you will understand how and why Coca-Cola is the most wholesome and efficient beverage for the relief of physical and mental fatigue. A copy may be had by addressing the Advertising Managers of this paper, Messrs. Jacobs & Company, Clinton, S. C.—Adv.

Donaldsonville, La.

Rally Day was a great occasion with the Methodists of Donaldsonville, La. A fine program was arranged in advance, being issued in a very attractive form, and the exercises measured fully up to expectation. Writing of the observance of the "Day" Rev. T. D. Lipscomb, the pastor, says: "We had eighty present, 76 being members of the Sunday school, which is said to be the largest attendance in this school in its history. There were twenty-one men present. There were no men in this school until last year. Mr. H. L. Baker is our superintendent. Captain Newton, a Government employee, who is a member of the Salem Evangelical Church of New Orleans, is the live teacher of our men's class."

Sulphur and Vinton, La.

An attractively planned affair was the shower given by the Woman's Missionary Societies of the Methodist churches of Sulphur and Vinton at the parsonage as an evidence of appreciation of Brother and Sister Bonnette, who are soon to leave for another field of work. The Vinton ladies motored over and were met at the parsonage by the Sulphur ladies. All proceeded to the dining-room where Sister Bonnette, amid laughter and surprise, opened package after package containing lovely table linen, towels galore, hand embroidered pillow-cases, and many dainty and useful articles. For Brother Bonnette the shower brought ties, handkerchiefs, etc. After singing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," and a prayer by Brother Bonnette, the Sulphur ladies spread a delicious luncheon on the lawn, which was greatly enjoyed by all present.—Mrs. R. S. Andrus.

Tupelo, Miss.

Dear Editor: Our Sunday school has reached the high tide in our "Rally Day" and "Promotion Day" work.

The Rally Day record shows some interesting facts. There were present 652. In the Alpha Wesley class there were 134 present; in the Baraca class, 105. The number of adults present in all classes was 346.

In the Beginners' Department there were 90 present. The Cradle Roll was represented, when the "Cradle Roll" superintendent introduced to the school Miss Margaret Bonner Maynard, who was just nine days old. The oldest person present, hale and hearty, is 87. We had 18 "100-per cent" classes.

Promotion Day finds us thoroughly graded, 100 per cent in efficiency, with a congestion in our great church and annex that is calling for more room. We will have one class in the pastor's study and eight in the main church auditorium. Brother Gladney's visit to our school helped us.

Conference will find us ready.

J. C. PARK, Pastor.

Porterville, Miss.

We have completed our round of revival meetings. We had some good meetings and plenty of good preaching. We were assisted by Brothers Barry, Alford, Clegg, and Ferguson. The work, as a whole, is not what we want it to be, but it is, we believe, on the upward grade. There were 16 accessions to the Church—2 by certificate and 14 by vows. In one of our meetings we received a man 84 years old into the Church; he had never made any profession of faith before and had always been very wicked; but he has quit his old ways and is following the Lord now.

We finished our course of study in June. We took the course through the Correspondence School and enjoyed the hard study and close questioning very much. I have baptized 9 children this year, and have others to baptize before the close of the Conference year. I have made between 225 and 250 pastoral visits. The finances of the charge are behind somewhat. We have been receiving good things from the people all the year; and we feel very grateful for the nice little box of groceries found on the parsonage porch a few nights ago, just before retiring. We are happy, and are praising the Lord this morning, because he always makes the dark places light.—R. H. Clegg, P. C.

Clinton, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: I wish to state a few things concerning a revival meeting held at Clinton, La., which closed a few days since. The meeting opened with Brother Bowman, our beloved presiding elder, in charge. He did some fine preaching for us, though his stay was short. I feel perfectly free to say that much good was accomplished through his efforts and that the great interests of the Church seem to occupy the highest place in his mind. He was relieved by Rev. H. W. Cudd, of Baton Rouge, La., who came to us on Wednesday and remained about one week. We had what I pronounce a good meeting, though there were only two accessions and both of these were little girls, one being my daughter. The Church, however, was greatly revived and seemed to take on new life, and the congregations were good, considering things in general. Brother Cudd is a very fine man, but that isn't all; he is also very religious and is devoted to his calling. He preaches with considerable power, relying upon God for results. He is a man of force and seems to drive the truth home to the people. At the close of the meeting the good women of the church started a movement which resulted in a nice little pounding for the pastor. This was greatly appreciated and I thank all those who had a part in it. May the good Lord bless my people and lead them on to a higher life!—C. Powell, P. C.

Eucutta (Miss.) Charge.

Dear Dr. Meek: We began our revival meeting on Sunday, August 29, at the John Dan schoolhouse, an afternoon appointment, and closed the Friday night following. This community has had a reputation similar to "Sullivan's Hollow," in Covington County. However, we are glad to report that the moral and spiritual life is somewhat improved. The attendance was excellent and there was no disturbing element. Rev. F. O. Bell, a local preacher from Goodwater, assisted me. Brother Bell is a consecrated man, possessing many qualifications that will render him able to give even more efficient service in the future. He won the confidence of the people, and through his earnest messages the Holy Spirit's presence was visible in moving many to lead a more godly life. There were 12 accessions by faith and 10 infants were baptized. Owing to the death of my wife's sister, which occurred at Jackson, Miss., I was called away during the first part of the meeting. Much substantial good was accomplished. .....The initial service of our meeting at Eucutta was on the night of Friday, September 10, and the services closed on September 17. We were assisted by Rev. O. S. Lewis of Shubuta, Miss., whose able preaching and messages in song were prompted, we are confident, by the Holy Spirit and were used, with the hearty cooperation of the Christian people of the community, to carry the campaign on to a reasonable victory. One unsolicited remark to the writer was: "This is the best meeting, in a general way, that we have had in fifteen years." Be that as it may, there were 9 accessions by faith and as many or more reclamations, with several new resolutions to establish family altars. While there are yet many "stumps" to be dug up where sin prevails, we are made to rejoice in the knowledge that the spiritual tone of the community is now upon a higher level. To God be given all the honor and praise!—Chas. E. Downer, Pastor.

THE GREATEST DAY IN LIFE.

By J. M. Pilcher.

Ofttimes in meditation, with unspeakable joy, I recall the day of my conversion. The greatest day, the supreme moment, the most momentous epoch in any man's life is the day when he has renounced the devil and all of his works and has become a child of God and an inheritor of the blessed promise through the cleansing of regeneration. I would rather be a regenerated man than the hero of Macedon or Waterloo. I would rather be the meanest subject of a nation, with conversion, than the grandest emperor of the grandest nation without it. The world may not understand it, but the humblest child of God can. It gives the possessor an assurance which will bear him upward to the smiling face of his Redeemer.

Renew Your Health At Nature's Fountain

Without the Expense and Loss of Time Necessary for a Visit to the Spring

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about as much harm as good for their systems rebel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. I do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read my answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

I have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for to it I owe my Restoration to Health and probably my Life. It has made me tens of thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries, whose faces I have never seen. Yet I count them my friends for the Shivar Spring Water has bound them to me by lasting gratitude.

I ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which I publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health do not hesitate to accept my offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon. If you could read the letters that come to me daily, numbering about ten thousand a year, and the vast majority of them similar to those printed below, you would not wonder that I make this offer displaying my absolute confidence in the restorative powers of Shivar Mineral Water.

INDIGESTION

Savannah, Georgia.

I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

La Grange, Ga., Nov. 25, 1914.

I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to make public announcement of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for the past twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen pounds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this Water to any one with stomach trouble of any character, and truly believe it will cure ulcer of the stomach. I am writing this voluntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia.

C. V. TRUITT.
President Unity Cotton Mills.

Johnston, S. C.

I wish to add my testimony to the wonderful curative powers of the Shivar Mineral Water. For a number of years my wife has been a sufferer from indigestion and nervous debility, and her condition had reached such a stage as to baffle the skill of our most eminent physicians. Her extreme nervousness and heart troubles at times were alarming and she had become almost a nervous wreck. The latter part of last May she began using the Shivar Water, which she has continued to this date with most satisfactory results.

DYSPEPSIA

Blaney, S. C.

I have suffered for many years from gastric troubles, stomach puffed and food sour. I have tried many remedies and a good many waters. Some have helped, but none have given me such relief as your Spring Water. I use it and recommend it to my patients.

W. D. GRIGGSBY, M. D.

Baltimore, Md., April 30, 1914.

For many years I suffered with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in this country, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold of one of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfully recommend the use of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble.

OSCAR T. SMITH,
Vice-Pres. Young & Selden Co., Bank Stationers.

RHEUMATISM

Leeds, S. C.

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.

C. A. CROSBY, M. D.

Fredericksburg, Va.

Mrs. Carter has had enlarged joints upon her hands, caused by rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement.

MRS. H. C. EDWARDS.

Florence, S. C., Dec. 1, 1911.

I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble, and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your Spring Water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it.

MRS. THEO. KUKER.

BILIOUSNESS

Greenville, S. C., Feb. 26, 1914.

For over two years, following a nervous breakdown, I have suffered with a liver so torpid that ordinary remedies were absolutely powerless. Under such circumstances, I came to Shivar Spring, and began drinking the Water. Upon advice however, the first night I took a laxative; the second night a milder one. Since then I have taken none at all. The effect of the water has been remarkable—its action on my liver most marked, and my health and spirits greatly improved. I am satisfied that the laxative, followed by the Water, was the proper treatment in my case. My condition is now perfect.

S. A. DERIEUX.

Buena Vista, Va., Oct. 2, 1914.

It is a great pleasure to tell you that your Water has been a great benefit. I may say a great blessing, to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble.

REV. E. H. ROWE,

LIVER AND KIDNEY

Ohoopee, Ga., Aug. 21, 1914.

I feel that it is due you that I should give my testimony, unsolicited, as to the benefits derived from the use of your Shivar Springs Water. I was unable to do my work, and had been under the treatment of physicians for six months for kidney and liver troubles when I decided to try your Spring Water, and now after using it for about thirty days I am able to do my work, feel good, and have gained about twenty pounds. I most heartily recommend its use to all who suffer from disorder of the liver and kidneys.

GALLSTONES

Greenville, S. C.

Shivar Spring Water cured my mother of gallstones, or, I might say, it snatched her from the hospital door, as the doctors had said nothing short of an operation would do her any good. After drinking the Water she was able to get out of bed, and is today stout and healthy. I hope these few lines will be of help to some one suffering as my mother did.

W. J. STRAWN.

Williamston, N. C. Oct. 3, 1914

My doctor said I would have to be operated on for gallstones, but since I have been drinking your water I haven't had to have a doctor.

W. H. EDWARDS.

Columbia, S. C.

My wife was a chronic sufferer from gallstones. She was stricken critically ill, and nothing but morphine seemed to relieve her pain by rendering her unconscious. My physician, who is a good one, seemed to do very little good. Rev. A. J. Foster, pastor of Shandon Baptist Church of Columbia, S. C., advised me to take her immediately to Shivar Spring. On consulting my physician he agreed that it would be best to do so without delay. In about three days after arriving at the Spring she was apparently relieved and had regained her appetite. She has suffered no ill effect of the trouble since. Please publish this for the benefit of sufferers

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 62—No. 42. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conference Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3113

Editorial

HELP GREATLY NEEDED.

The great storm of September 29 that swept the Louisiana and Mississippi coast wrought havoc with our churches in New Orleans and the French Mission. Rev. W. W. Holmes, the presiding elder, writes: "The Felicity Street and the Algiers churches were totally wrecked, and all the others, except Carrollton Avenue Church, were so badly damaged that there is no way of estimating the loss at this time. In addition to the wreckage caused by the storm, a continuous downpour of rain for twenty-four hours has flooded the churches, ruining organs and furniture, weakening the standing walls, and in every way making the outlook very gloomy. With practically every home in New Orleans more or less damaged, the repair of which will engage the city's working force for at least thirty days, the repairing and rebuilding of our churches becomes a serious matter and a great undertaking."

Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, in charge of our French Mission, writes that one church costing $600 was utterly demolished, while a residence in which services were being held was destroyed. No lives were lost. The crops of the people in the territory of the mission were almost completely destroyed.

We present these facts to the Church at large with an appeal for help. We should send to these and other stricken Churches at least $5000. Without outside help they cannot restore their buildings for many months, if ever. The treasuries of the two Boards are without funds for this emergency. Will not many individuals, Sunday schools, Epworth Leagues, societies and congregations send some contribution to Mr. J. H. Hamilton, Treasurer of the Board of Missions, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn?

HOW HE WAS UPSET.

The departure of Rev. B. Fay Mills from the orthodox faith and his somewhat spectacular return have been the subject of not a little comment in the religious press of the country. In discussing a few weeks ago the influences that led the once noted evangelist astray, a writer in the New York Christian Advocate said:

"Some twenty years ago, when Mr. Mills was in full career among the Churches as a revivalist, he came into the study of a prominent clergyman and flung a heavy valise on the floor. He had just completed the last series of meetings for the season and was starting for his vacation. He explained to his friend that the satchel was full of books for summer reading, and ran over the titles, a list of the 'advanced' works in biblical criticism, speculative philosophy, liberal theology, etc. 'I know those books,' said his friend. 'I've read them all within the last ten years. If you try to read them all in six months' time, they'll upset you!' It proved to be a true prophecy, in which perhaps may be found a moral for some ministers who are just now selecting the books which they will read in such leisure as the summer may bring."

After reproducing this statement, the Christian Intelligencer (New York) thus comments upon it: "The moral here is applicable to laymen as well as ministers. Most of us have all too little time for the reading we would like to do. Better far to read books which furnish true expositions of the Bible and which afford spiritual nutriment than to put ourselves in touch with volumes that tend to confuse us and leave us with a weakened faith."

We heartily endorse this utterance. There is little profit in trying to follow the giants of unbelief in all their speculations and flounderings. A Christian has something better to do than this. There could scarcely be a more foolish notion abroad than that the fledgelings of our theological seminaries may be trusted to make all sorts of mental excursions into the domain of skeptical philosophy and liberal theology and yet remain untainted. Doubt, like disease, is catching.

Are we afraid that error is mightier than the truth? Nay, not so. When the combatants are equally trained and skilled we do not fear the outcome. But let us not expect undeveloped and unanchored young men to read undirected the works of the ablest and most ingenious of unsound teachers, and always discover their fallacies so as not to be wrongly influenced by them. If they wish to traverse these realms it should be in the company of veterans who can rightly guide and safeguard them. Satan nowhere fights more fiercely than he does out in "the bloodless fields of thought," and in them he has well-nigh innumerable snares.

John Wesley was wonderfully wise when he wrote down as one of the things to be avoided by Methodists: "The reading of those books which do not tend to the knowledge or love of God." For the average person, minister or layman, this is an admirable rule; and even scholars would do well to beware of clashing with it too much. A man can no more escape being affected by the company he keeps in the world of letters than he can by his associates in actual life.

FIFTY MILLIONS TO FIGHT PROHIBITION.

According to the press dispatches, Mrs. Frances P. Parks, Corresponding Secretary of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, made the following statement in her report to the Forty-Second Annual Convention of that organization, held in Seattle, Wash., a few days ago: "The Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association has appropriated $50,000,000 for the fight against the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution. Other liquor associations are piling up funds for the same purpose. Our opponents were never so alert and aggressive."

The liquor forces of the United States undoubtedly realize that the existence of the nefarious rum traffic is threatened throughout the Nation as never before. This is shown not only by the large sums of money that they are raising to safeguard it and their tremendous activity in its behalf, but also by the fact that they have begun to advocate a policy of saloon reformation. Their usual disregard of all law and morals, and their present preachment in favor of "model barrooms," lead us to recall the following somewhat homely but suggestive lines:

"When the devil was sick, the devil a monk would be;
When the devil was well, a devil of a monk was he."

A FLASHLIGHT ON THE SITUATION.

We frequently hear one speak as if the Northern Methodist Church had solved the Church paper problem, and that all we Southern Methodists need to do in giving shape to our publicity work is to follow their example. But is this true? Has our sister denomination really found a solution of this perplexing question? The following brief statement, which we take from the Western Christian Advocate (Cincinnati) of September 15, does not so indicate:

"There are 2168 Western Christian Advocates taken within the bounds of the Northeast Ohio Conference, the total membership of which is 156,982. * * * The district taking the largest number of 'Westerns' is Mansfield, with a total of 877, averaging one subscriber for every nineteen members."

So far as the matter of circulation per member is concerned, this is a very poor showing. For the entire Annual Conference, according to these figures, there is 1 paper taken to every 59 members. Nearly all the Church journals in Southern Methodism, if we mistake not, have a circulation more than twice as large as this in proportion to membership, and with some of them the ratio reaches the number of about 1 to every 11 or 12.

The chief papers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, being backed by the General Conference and supplied with ample funds, are superior to ours in quality, and most of them are issued at the low price of $1; but from the foregoing it would seem that a success is not being made in getting these connectional weeklies into the homes of the people; and this is the real end to be achieved by the Christian Church in the handling of its press.

Two other things are also worth noting in this connection: (1) A large sum of money has been lost in the maintenance of the weekly journals of our Sister Church as they are now issued; (2) the establishment of a chain of connectional organs has not prevented other papers confined to a narrower area from springing up.

We mention these things that due consideration may be given them as we continue to face and wrestle with this difficult problem of how to create an effective periodical literature and get our people to take it and read it.

THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD.

(This impressive poem was printed in a recent issue of The Presbyterian, of Philadelphia. The Editor stated that a subscriber had found it in a scrap book and had sent it to him, the author being unknown.)

The church and the world walked far apart
On the changing shore of time;
The world was singing a giddy song,
And the church a hymn sublime.
"Come, give me your hand," said the merry world,
"And walk with me the way;"
But the good church hid her snowy hand,
And solemnly answered, "Nay;

"I will not give thee my hand at all,
And I will not walk with you;
Your way is the way of eternal death,
And your words are all untrue."
"Nay, walk with me a little space,"
Said the world with a kindly air,
"The road I walk is a pleasant road,
And the sun shines always there.

"Your way is narrow, and thorny, and rough,
While mine is flowery and smooth;
Your lot is sad with reproach and toil,
But in rounds of joy I move.
My way, you can see, is a broad, fair one,
And my gate is high and wide;
There is room enough for you and me,
And we'll travel side by side."

Half shyly the church approached the world,
And gave him her hand of snow;
And the false world grasped it and walked along,
And whispered in accents low:
"Your dress is too simple to please my taste;
I have gold and pearls to wear;
Rich velvets and silks for your graceful form,
And diamonds to deck your hair."

The church looked down at her plain white robes,
And then at the dazzling world,
And blushed as she saw his handsome lip,
With a smile contemptuous curled.
"I will change my dress for a costlier one,"
Said the church, with a smile of grace;
Then her pure white garment drifted away,
And the world gave in their place

Beautiful satins, and fashionable silks,
And roses and gems and pearls;
And over her forehead her bright hair fell,
Waved in a thousand curls.
"Your house is too plain," said the proud old world,
"Let me build you one like mine,
With kitchen for feasting, and parlor for play,
And furniture ever so fine."

So he built her a costly and beautiful house—
Splendid it was to behold;
Her sons and her daughters met frequently there,
Shining in purple and gold,
And fair and festival—frolics untold,
Were held in the place of prayer;
And the maidens bewitching as sirens of old,
With world-winning graces rare,

Bedecked with fair jewels, and hair all curls,
Untrammeled by gospel or laws,
To beguile and amuse, and win from the world
Some help for the righteous cause.
The angel of mercy rebuked the church,
And whispered: "I know thy sin;"
Then the church looked sad and anxiously longed
To gather her children in.

But some were away at the midnight ball,
And some were at the play,
And others were drinking in gay saloons,
And the angel went away.
And then said the world in soothing tones:
"Your much-loved ones mean no harm,
Merely indulging in innocent sports,"
So she leaned on his proffered arm,

And smiled and chatted and gathered flowers,
And walked along with the world,
While countless millions of precious souls
To the horrible pit were hurled!
"Your preachers are all too old and plain,"
Said the gay world with a sneer;
"They frighten my children with dreadful tales,
Which I do not like them to hear.

"They talk of judgment, and fire, and pain,
And the doom of endless night;
They warn of a place that should not be
Thus spoken in ears polite!
I will send you one of a better stamp,
More brilliant and gay and fast;
I will show how men may live as they list,
And go to heaven at last.

"The Father is merciful, great and good,
Loving and tender and kind;
Do you think He'd take one child to heaven
And leave another behind?"
So she called for pleasing and gay divines—
Deemed gifted, and great and learned,
And the plain old men who preached the cross,
Were out of her pulpits turned.

Then Mammon came in and supported the church,
And rented a prominent pew;
And preaching and singing and floral display
Soon proclaimed a gospel new.
"You give too much to the poor," said the world,
"Far more than your ought to do;
Though the poor need shelter, food and clothes,
Why thus should it trouble you?

"Go, take your money and buy rich robes
And horses and carriages fine,
And pearls and jewels and dainty food—
The rarest and costliest wine,
My children they dote on all such things,
And if you their love would win,
You must do as they do, and walk in the way,
The flowery way they're in."

Then the church her purse-strings tightly held,
And gravely lowered her head,
And simpered: "I've given too much away,
I will do, sir, as you have said."
So the poor were turned from the door in scorn;
She heard not the orphans' cry;
And she drew her beautiful robes aside
As the widows went weeping by.

And they of the church, and they of the world,
Journeyed closely hand and heart,
And none but the Master who knoweth all
Could discern the two apart.
Then the church sat down at her ease, and said:
"I am rich, and in goods increased;
I have need of nothing, and naught to do,
But to laugh and dance and feast."

The sly world heard her, and laughed within,
And mockingly said aside:
"The church has fallen—the beautiful church;
Her shame is her boast and pride."
Thus her witnessing power, alas! was lost,
And the perilous times came in;
The time of the end, so oft foretold—
Of form, and pleasure, and sin.

Then the angel drew near the mercy seat,
And whispered in sighs her name,
And the saints their anthems of rapture hushed,
And covered their heads with shame.
A voice came down from the hush of heaven,
From Him that sits on the Throne,
"I know thy works, and what thou hast said,
But, alas! thou hast not known

"That thou art poor, and naked, and blind,
With pride and ruin enthralled;
The expected Bride of the heavenly Groom
Is the harlot of the world!
Thou hast ceased to watch for that blessed hope,
Hast fallen from zeal and grace,
So, now, alas! I must cast thee out
And blot thy name from its place."

DR. ABBOTT ON THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIST.

In The Outlook of September 29, Dr. Lyman Abbott, under the caption, "Letters to Unknown Friends," publishes the following inquiry, with his accompanying answer:

"'Will you have the kindness to tell me if I am, in your opinion, right or wrong in believing in the resurrection of Jesus Christ? A. T. F.'

"Right. I do not think there is any fact in ancient history better attested than the resurrection of Jesus Christ. I cannot compact into a paragraph the reasons which have led me to this conclusion. Among them are the following:

"1. The extraordinary change wrought in the disciples in the few days which intervened between the death of their Master and their going forth to proclaim him the world's Messiah.

"2. The gradual change wrought in the sacred rest day of a large portion of mankind from the seventh to the first day of the week. It requires a great deal to make such a change. As the Fourth of July is a continuing witness to the Declaration of Independence, so the first day of the week is a continuing witness to the resurrection which it celebrates.

"3. Christianity. Whatever may be thought by skeptics concerning Christianity, there is no doubt that it is the greatest moral force the world has ever known, and no doubt that historically it is founded upon faith in the resurrection of Jesus Christ. If there had not been this vital faith, Christianity would have perished in the death of its Master. It is wholly inconsistent with the moral order of the world to believe that the greatest moral force in the world is founded on either a fraud or a delusion.

"4. That Jesus Christ is a living force in the world is evident by the power which his personality is at the present day exerting. Says Harnack: 'Not only in the beginning was the Word, the Word that was at once Deed and Life; but the living, resolute, indomitable Word, namely, the person, has always been a power in history, along with and above the power of circumstance.'

"'Whether Jesus Christ reanimated his body nineteen centuries ago or whether he appeared to his disciples as a spirit, but so seen and realized by them that they were convinced of his continuing existence, is a question of secondary importance. The fundamental fact is that millions of men and women are to-day living on a higher plane and actuated by a nobler purpose because they are inspired by the spirit of Him who lives in his disciples and manifests his presence by the life which he inspires in them."

(This statement concerning our Lord's resurrection, with the exception of the closing paragraph, we consider strong and admirable. We cannot concur in the opinion that it is a matter of little consequence whether Jesus "reanimated his body nineteen centuries ago, or whether he appeared to his disciples as a spirit." The latter view would discredit the testimony of the disciples and the writers of the New Testament to a considerable extent, and if they were untrustworthy as to this important occurrence, their account of other things must be accepted with more or less questioning. Nothing is more clearly taught in the Holy Scriptures than that Jesus arose bodily from the tomb. And obviously such a resurrection carries with it a significance and a teaching very different from the assurances that our Lord's reappearance as a spirit would have given.—Editor of the Advocate.)

THE "TEN COMMANDMENTS," OR "THE MORAL LAW."

By Rev. M. B. Sharbrough.

Note, first of all, that these Commandments are not a part of the "Law of Moses." They are rather the basis of the Law of Moses—related to it somewhat as the Constitution of a State is to the laws based upon it. The Law of Moses is that body of legislation, religious and secular, mediated by Jehovah through Moses for the government of the Jewish State, and which passed away with the dissolution of Jewish Theocracy, only as it may contain principles immutable and eternal. While these principles abide, the form perishes. This law, being mediated through Moses, must have partaken more or less of his personality, and hence were more or less imperfect.

On the other hand, the Ten Commandments were not mediated through Moses. They were first uttered by the voice of God from Sinai, and then written by the Divine hand upon the tables of stone. Hence they were perfect, except as they were limited. They are, therefore, immutable, only as they may have been enlarged, in extension, or spiritualization. There is one sense in which they may be fulfilled. They may be transcended through the gospel by the perfect realization of the law in the Christian consciousness and life. When thus fulfilled, every element in them is preserved, while their scope is extended and their spirituality enlarged.

These Commandments are called the "Moral Law," because there are reasons for each of them which are essential and eternal—reasons grounded in the very nature of man, and growing out of his relations to God and to his fellow-man. This law was provisional only in that it lacked completeness, and hence awaited the fulfillment above mentioned. In this fulfillment it passes away only as the stars are obscured by the greater light of the rising sun when the sun has set they are still there, with all their power and majesty undiminished.

Can these commandments be kept? Not by man in his unregenerate state. For the law is holy, just, and good. To the unregenerate man it can only bring condemnation. There must be covering in his case the voice of God, saying: "Cursed be every one that abideth not in all the words of this law."

But the regenerate man can keep it and will keep it, while abiding in the regenerate state; for he, being born of God, is put into conformity with God, and with his holy law. The law of love is within his heart, and "Love is the fulfilling of the law." He keeps the Ten Commandments, and more, for he who keeps the law of love keeps them enlarged in scope and in spirit. His only failure can be from a lack of perfect knowledge of this perfect law, growing out of the limitations of his nature, which failure does not concern the will nor involve character, and it need be, is covered by the blood. It certainly does not preclude practical holiness.

While the Moral Law cannot, in the nature of the case, ever be a means of justification, it must needs be an expression of Christian life. The saved man must keep it, or his salvation is forfeited, for its violation necessarily brings condemnation. For "sin is the transgression of the law," and "he that is born of God doth not commit sin." ..... "He that committeth sin is of the devil, for the devil sinneth from the beginning." ..... "For this purpose was the son of God manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil."

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHER AND THE CHURCH.

By Rev. P. O. Lowrey.

The public school is the most important agency in molding our national and social life, and is the peculiar glory of our American civilization. Here all nationalities are fused into the oneness of Americanism, all social castes are obliterated, and the children of the rich and poor alike are trained for patriotic citizenship. And in no State in the Union, perhaps, has more been done in the same length of time to make the public schools effective in their sphere of work than has been done in Louisiana during the last ten years. What a contrast with the schools of our childhood is the modern, comfortably seated, well lighted, and ventilated houses, the psychological course of study, and the army of well trained teachers! The changes are almost unthinkable, and still the progress goes on.

But in this splendid system of common education there is one serious defect that sooner or later must command more consideration. The present policy of keeping sectarian religious teaching out of the public schools seems to have been interpreted by many to allow a total disregard for religion on the part of some, and to have licensed the teachers to all manner of worldliness without regard to the religious sentiment of the patrons of the schools, and this defect must be corrected.

It is no unusual thing for public school teachers in Louisiana to be found enrolled as members of dancing clubs, often reveling all night with their brain and passions aflame with the lustful excitement of the modern "tummy tickling" dances, and even from a physical standpoint are not, in consequence, capable of earning the wages paid them by the taxes of the people. They would not be allowed to thus dissipate in many of the common callings of modern business life, but since they are servants of the State, and the State puts no religious restrictions on its servants, they consider this form of indulgence as all right for public school teachers. That mystic term "State" seems to be the scape-goat for their every lapse. I pray, what is the State but its voters and citizens?

[illegible] the community they are too often found "wanting." Like the Italians or Chinese who come to America solely to horde their earnings for transport to the fatherland, many of our public school teachers seem to have no further interest in the communities in which they live than to pocket the proceeds of a hearty tax budget and then beg themselves to their own places that had no part in paying the taxes to consume it on themselves.

The reader must not however, infer that we are intimating that they are too well paid, for they with the preachers are the poorest paid of any skilled labor that puts a like amount of time and expense in preparing for the work of life. We simply mean to say that they, owe their time to the Lord, just as do all other people who are thus blessed with position and income, and that they are not justified in doing only what they are paid to do. And as far as we are concerned if the Methodist teacher of the State expect us to stand by them in seeing that they have equal recognition in the faculties of the public schools of the State we are in turn going to expect them to stand by us and the interests of the Church that we represent, and we shall not hesitate to let this be known. And as in the past if those who teach Methodist children shall wantonly either by precept or example cast aside the moral precepts of their Church, a rough house is going to be raised and most likely the offender will not be permitted [illegible]

For [illegible] education in America the Church has no school but the public school and for this relation to continue to exist the school must respect the sentiments of the Church. And we are informed that more and more the Church is going to demand [illegible] State Normal for teachers who will help in the Sunday schools and Church life of the communities where they teach, and this should encourage us to the work, and there are [illegible] be found there a number of normal graduates [illegible] public schools [illegible] of our country. Day school teachers have too great an influence over their pupils for their

LIFT UP THE STANDARD

[illegible] pure and holy a life [illegible] the Holy Spirit [illegible] Spirit of God beareth witness with the spirit of the believer that he is beyond all doubt a child of God. The reasons are [illegible] for lifting up a standard.

1. Because God requires it. He who "be ye holy for I am holy." Heaven is a holy place and nothing impure or unclean can ever enter there. And there shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth neither whatsoever worketh abomination or maketh a lie, but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life." (Rev. 21:27).

2. Because of the influence it has on others. If a godly life [illegible] be lived in a community of ungodly people the transforming power of the gospel will be seen in that consecrated life be lived long enough among them. It is said that the tower of Modely England where the sainted John Fletcher and his consecrated wife lived on [illegible] was so [illegible] very wicked place, but that at his death it had been transformed to be a godly place and a desirable town in which to live. It is said that the effects of the godly life and lifting up a standard for the people by those faithful servants of the Lord can be seen until this day in that town.

3. Because it is the only way to reach the sinner and the ungodly and turn them from the error of their way. Christ said: "And I if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me." John 12:32. And when He is revealed in the lives of Christians the world will take knowledge of them that they have been with Jesus" and will be convinced of their sins. They do not need their Bibles but they watch closely the professed Christian. Oh Christian are you lifting up the blood-stained banner of the cross and showing to others around what a dear Savior you have found? Let our daily efforts be to live the life described in the immortal hymn of Charles Wesley:

"O may I keep on Calvary
In this gracious land I am
Make me Savior what I want
I live devoted wholly to Thee

I shall then show forth Thy praise
Serve Thee all my days long
Then the world shall always see
Christ the Lord [illegible]

THE STORM AND NEW ORLEANS METHODISM.

The Crescent City has weathered the worst storm, and the greatest calamity, in all its history. The Carnival City has passed through another carnival, but not of its own making, a mad revel of wild winds. All the turbulent sons of Aeolus, escaping from their dismal cave, wreaked their pent-up fury upon our fair city. The press has told the story of our travail to the world. But we suspect that even yet those outside our city do not realize the magnitude of our disaster, while we are still counting our losses, and trying to repair and rebuild our damaged and ruined homes and houses of worship.

Methodism shared heavily in the common loss. Only one church building in the city escaped without damage—Carrollton Avenue. The roof of the Mary Werlein Mission was destroyed. The furniture, etc., of St. Mark's Hall was damaged. The building does not belong to our Church.

Other churches suffered far more severely. Rayne Memorial was damaged to the amount of $19,000. The congregation will rebuild and remodel their building at the same time. The cost will be $20,000. First Church had an approximate damage of $2000. The walls of the splendid auditorium are streaked and discolored by water. In the center above, the art glass dome is riddled as if by hailstones. A large sum must be expended upon the roof. The organ was damaged, as were nearly all the organs in the city.

Algiers and Felicity were practically destroyed. The upper story of Algiers was blown away. The great organ which in other days filled "old Carondelet" with a volume of melody was converted into a mass of broken fragments. But the howling winds, which stifled an organ's voice, did not leave the stricken congregation without a place of song; for that most brotherly Episcopal clergyman, Rev. S. L. Vail, offered his own house of worship, and the Methodists of Algiers are now assembling regularly in Mt. Olivet Church. The Algiers congregation had long needed a new building, and had planned to undertake its erection. Now the issue is forced upon them. Let us hope, then, that their loss will be a blessing in the end.

But old Felicity needed no new house of worship. Its building was one of the largest and most imposing in New Orleans. To some it was the finest piece of church architecture in the city. It looked every inch a church. All its lines seemed in beautiful harmony and proportion. But the glory of Felicity was its tower. Rising far above the gothic roof, it dominated all that part of the city. Yet the beauty of its excellency was not in height alone. But the glory of the building was its destruction. The distance of the tower above the earth, the unobstructed winds must have rushed with terrific momentum. The lofty tower fell with a crash, and bore nearly all the front portion of the building to the street in one common ruin, while the driving wind and rain swept into the church and wrought greater havoc. A structure which cost $40,000 was damaged to the extent of half that amount.

One looks with sadness upon the ruin of the old stately building. About it cluster sacred memories of other days. Men, whose names are known all over Methodism, have been among its pastors, such as Holland N. McTyiere, Linus B. Parker, S. H. Werlein, and Chas. W. Carter. It is served at present by one of the most successful pastors Southern Methodism ever had—Felix R. Hill.

Felicity, a landmark of Methodism in New Orleans, is no more. The congregation will rebuild their dismantled house of worship. But it will not be the same; the commanding tower is doubtless gone forever. The work necessary will cost $7000, or more. And the raising of that amount will prove a heavy task to the present membership. Time was when Felicity ranked well with Carondelet. That time is past. Conditions have changed. Many of the congregation of other days have moved further uptown, and have united with other churches. Some have passed to an eternal "Fellcity," unchanged by the storms of earth.

The material damage to Methodism can not be measured by the damage to its churches alone. For few Methodists in the city escaped without property damage. The business of a wealthy and liberal member of one church was ruined. The comfortable home of a family, connected with Parker Memorial Church, was entirely destroyed, and the collapse of the building seriously injured the mother. Loss to our people can but add to the heavy loss to our church buildings.

Naturally, the havoc of the storm has interfered with the work of the Church at an important time of the year. Churches not destroyed have had to forego many services because they had no lighting. Picture a Methodist preacher burning candles in his church at a wedding! It may not have been the "abomination of desolation" spoken of by the prophet, but the burning of tapers in a Methodist church was surely an innovation.

Mention must also be made of the gloom which settled upon the people because of the rain. On the memorable day of the storm the wind blew its worst about five in the afternoon. Then, for a few seconds, it drove madly upon us at the astounding rate of 120 miles an hour. Something had to give way under the strain. Fortunately there was little rain after that, while the wind howled on through the inky blackness. And the full extent of the damage was not realized until the following Sabbath. Then the rain began. It dripped and poured down through the big sieves of roofs, ruining walls, carpets, and furniture, and making men miserable. The continual dripping of rain affected their nerves, when they could hardly find a dry spot in their homes, and could not get their houses repaired, then at any price. From September 29 to October 12 New Orleans had 20 inches of rainfall. In one day there were 7 inches.

The damage to municipal buildings was nearly $500,000, and the city will borrow that amount to repair and rebuild its schools and other structures. Methodism has suffered a proportionate loss, and the pastors of the city have asked the writer to tell the readers of the Advocate the full extent of our disaster. We believe you hardly realize the loss to our Methodism.

We are staggered at the extent of our loss, and at the magnitude of our calamity. This greatest Southern city, with a population of 350,000 or more, gateway of the Mississippi Valley, and port of entry for the shipping of the world, this city destined to be one of the chief in our country, is alien to our Methodism. And while that accounts for our struggles, it is all the more reason that we should plant ourselves firmly here.

While we have had a struggle to maintain ourselves, and while we are staggered by a calamity which doubtless outweighs any one calamity that ever befell Methodism in any other city, we do not pity ourselves, and ask others to do what we can do. The record will prove that we have not shirked. New congregations have been formed, and beautiful houses of worship have been built. Last year the Methodists of New Orleans paid to all purposes $22.40 per capita. That was no mean showing, and would excel that of thousands of churches. But now churches already burdened with heavy obligations, some with debt, have had their burdens made heavier. To help retrieve losses, which in reality belong to all Methodists, the Church would do well to put thirty or forty thousand dollars into this greatest city of Southern Methodism. And it is hoped that the appeal in the Nashville Advocate, of recent date, will find a response, in seven or eight fold the amount asked.

THE REPRESENTATIVE CHURCH AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

The General Conference Commission, charged with the erection of the Representative Church in Washington City, held a meeting on October 6 for the purpose of taking steps to proceed at the earliest possible moment with the work of erecting the building proposed. After going over carefully all the facts in the case, it was judged necessary that an agent be appointed to collect outstanding subscriptions and pledges, and prosecute further the campaign in this interest, and to represent the Commission in the work of erecting the building. Accordingly, Rev. S. S. McKenney, of the Texas Conference, was chosen for this work, and Bishop McCoy has confirmed the appointment.

The attention of subscribers is called to this appointment and Brother McKenney is commended to the Church at large for sympathetic and generous co-operation in the important work to which he has been assigned.

It is earnestly desired that all subscriptions and pledges of every sort be paid at the earliest possible moment, in order that the work of building may proceed without further delay. The speedy completion of this enterprise is important to our cause at the National Capital, and to the credit and welfare of our Church throughout the connection.

The Publishing Committee of the Alabama Christian Advocate met on October 6, and adjourned to have another meeting after the sessions of the two patronizing Conferences. In a public statement it was announced that all prospective plans are based upon the expectation of continuing to issue a Church paper in the State of Alabama. The Editor and Publisher, Brothers Glenn and Whitehead, were commended for their faithfulness.

The Louisiana Educational Campaign

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE
BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., President

Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Sec'y

Rev. C. A. Battle, Treas., Baton Rouge, La.

READ THIS!

We want this article read. You now have the paper in hand and it is open at the proper place. Just linger long enough to read all that is here written. Solomon says: "There are three things that are never satisfied, yea, four things say not, It is enough." If some of our preachers had written the next verse in the Bible we are afraid they would have included the Louisiana Conference Board of Education. For a number of years we have noticed that when the reports of Boards are being read, members of the Conference take occasion to leave the room and to limber up a bit and exchange friendly gossip. When the anniversary programs were rendered, roll call would not find more than half the preachers present.

We are anxious to emphasize the fact that the Board of Education does not wish to go forward with plans that are not familiar to the pastors of the churches; it has no desire to make assessments that are not approved by a majority of the preachers; but it has a right to expect, after it has carried on its work for a whole year and then summed up the results in a report, that that report should be heard by the brethren. It has a right to expect that when a man rises to speak to that report he should be heard by every one. It has a right to prepare a program for the purpose of developing a co-operative spirit among all the members of the Conference and has a right to expect that no preacher will neglect to attend that service. These things we expect.

The reason this article is published is this: At Shreveport last year the Board of Education made plain its works and plans. Yet all the year we have been hearing from preachers to the effect that they were opposed to certain plans. These same objections were not stated on the floor of the Conference, and no votes were cast against the reports or assessments. We do not know that the objectors were absent when the report was read, but we do know that if they were not, and then did not lift their voice or vote in protest, they are morally bound to support the actions of the Conference, as recommended by the Board. If they purposely left the room when reports were read, then they are just as much responsible for carrying out the actions of the Conference during their absence as they would be had they been present and voted.

This fault of ignoring the reports of Boards is not restricted to the Board of Education alone—it extends to every other Board that reports. Last year, when a certain report was about to be read, so general was the exodus that Bishop Candler called out from the Chair that the Conference had not adjourned. For five days in the year we are expected to sit as one body and deliberate on the welfare of the Church in our State. The length of those days that we sit as one body are but three or four hours each, at the most. Considering the little the best of us do in the course of a year's time, we should be so used to sitting around that a few hours' siege would not make us tired.

ATTENTION, PASTORS!

Many inquiries have come to the Secretary and Treasurer of the Board of Education as to the crediting of amounts collected on the subscriptions taken by Brother P. M. Brown last year in the Educational campaign. The understanding when those subscriptions were taken was that they were to be credited on the regular educational assessment, and the Board at its meeting this year authorized the credits to be made in that way. They can not, however, be credited on the Centenary Special. It is to be hoped that all these subscriptions for the current year will be collected, and pastors are requested to assist the Board in collecting them. The needs of the educational work are so great and pressing that it is hoped that these collections on the Brown subscriptions may be used as a surplus over and above the assessment, while being credited on the assessment.

The following statement is ascribed to Col. George W. Goethals, the well known governor of the Panama Canal zone: "The best results are secured through the co-operation of men who are contented and who have respect for and confidence in their leaders."

There is at present a tendency on the part of the up-to-date navies of the world to use oil as fuel instead of coal. In our own navy all the torpedo boat destroyers that have been built since 1897 have been constructed so as to use oil exclusively; the battleships "Delaware," "Florida," "Utah," "Wyoming," "Arkansas," "Texas," and "New York" are built so as to be able to burn either coal or oil, and the "Nevada" and "Oklahoma" burn oil only.

Major General George W. Goethals has withdrawn his resignation as governor of the Panama Canal, which was to have become effective on November 1, on account of the landslides which recently took place in the Gaillard cut, and will continue to hold his position indefinitely. In General Goethals the Federal Government has a faithful and efficient servant and it is to be hoped that the time when the country shall be deprived of his services is far distant.

American carelessness is shown in the statement recently issued by the postmaster of Chicago, in which he said that "[illegible] per cent of the mail handled in the Chicago postoffice is improperly addressed." The cost of correcting these unnecessary errors entails upon the postoffice of that city an expenditure of $[illegible],000 per month, which is not at all unreasonable when one considers the millions of pieces of mail that are handled and the large percentage of mistakes that are made. Care always costs little and carelessness much.

ALONE WITH GOD.

(Written by Mrs. H. B. Perritt on October 9, 1915, while convalescing from an operation in the Baptist Hospital at Jackson, Miss.)

Alone with God! The door is closed,
No other eye can see,
No other ear can hear the words
That pass to him from me.

Alone with God! He lends his ear
To hear the words I speak:
He reaches down and lifts me up,
And gives the rest I seek.

Alone with God! His loving hand
Is resting on me now:
The living waters quench my thirst
And cool my burning brow.

Alone with God! These painful days
To me are blessings sweet:
They purify and make me fit
To sit at his dear feet.

Alone with God! He teaches me
That everything is best
That comes to those who trust in Him
For life and peace and rest.

HOW CECIL WON.

Z. Elton Irvin.

Every Sunday morning, with his sixty-page illustrated Sunday paper before him, Sam Glover—hail fellow well met—sat in his easy chair or stretched his tired body on the comfortable sofa in the corner of the cozy sitting room, regaling himself with the latest sensational news of the day.

It was nearing nine o'clock, and as Cecil, his ten-year-old daughter, came through the room, her father cast a sly glance at the clock and said in his kind, fatherly way: "Cecil, my dear, it will soon be Sunday school time, and you are not near ready yet. Do hurry, or you will be late, and you know papa does not want that."

Now Cecil was a very kind and dutiful daughter, but she had heard these very words Sunday after Sunday for many, many weeks past, and they were beginning to very dangerously encroach upon her good nature. To tell the truth, she had begun to detest this stereotyped form of speech from one who made no pretensions at Sunday school attendance, although a member of the church and a well-known and supposedly good Christian. It was now a little past nine o'clock as Cecil again came through the room. She dropped a book, which very quickly aroused her father from the doze into which he had fallen, and he addressed his little daughter rather harshly, "Cecil, do hurry up or you will be late to Sunday school!"

Cecil, be it said, was a good Christian child, and she loved her father deeply, and many times as she trudged off to Sunday school under these trying circumstances a great lump would come in her throat because of her loneliness, for she had prayed many times that her father might go with her, and she had begun to doubt that the Lord would answer her prayer. This morning her little heart was almost full to bursting, and uttering a little silent prayer as she faced her father, she spoke in childish language that could not be misunderstood:

"Papa," she said, "every Sunday morning it's hurry, hurry the children off to Sunday school. We are hustled off while you lie here at home lounging, reading, and sleeping when you should set the example for us children. You could go to Sunday school just as well as us children, and I think you are about the biggest, laziest, loving papa I ever saw." And Cecil hastily left the room with the hot tears coursing down her cheeks.

Her father was astounded at his daughter's outburst of language. It made him angry, and yet he knew that every word she had uttered was only too true. He began to see things just a little different.

Cecil came into the room, ready to go, and casting a longing look at her father, she went to him, planted a kiss on his rough cheek, put her chubby arms around his big, burly neck, and bade him good-bye. She had reached the door when she heard her father's voice. Ah! could she be mistaken? No, it was her papa speaking, and his voice was somewhat husky and there was a tear in his eye:

"Cecil, if you can wait a moment, papa will go to Sunday school with you not only today, but every Sunday hereafter." And taking the child's hand, they, father and daughter, trudged off down the street together in a bright, happy mood, while watching them from the window was the wife and mother. She, too, was happy, and as she uttered a prayer of thankfulness, just two tiny, crystal tears trickled down over her cheeks. And Cecil's prayer was answered. Western Christian Advocate.

TRUTHFUL NED.

A group of boys stood on the walk before a fine large drug store, pelting each other with snowballs. In an unlucky moment, the youngest sent his spinning through the frosty air against the large plate glass of the druggist's window. The crash terrified them all. Ned now stood pale and trembling, with startled eyes, gazing at the mischief he had wrought.

"Won't old Kendrick be angry? Run, Ned! we won't tell. Run quick!"

"I can't," he gasped.

"'Run, I tell you, he's coming' Coward! Why don't you run? I guess he wouldn't catch me."

"No, I can't run!" he faltered.

"Little fool! he'll be caught! Well, I've done all I can for him," muttered the elder boy.

The door opened; an angry face appeared.

"Who did this?" came in fierce tones from the owner's lips. "Who did this, I say?" he shouted, as no one answered.

The trembling, shrinking boy drew near; the little, delicate-looking culprit faced the angry man, and in tones of truth replied.

"I did it, sir."

"And you dare tell me of it?"

"I dare not deny it, sir; I dare not tell a lie."

The reply was unexpected. The stern man paused, he saw the pale cheek, the frightened eyes, wherein the soul of truth and true courage shone, and his heart was touched.

"Come here, sir; what's your name?"

"Edward Howe, sir. Oh, what can I do to pay you? I'll do anything." His eyes filled with tears—"only don't make my mother pay it, sir!"

"Will you shovel my walk when the next snow falls?"

Ned's face was radiant, as he answered,—

"All winter, sir. I'll do it every time, and more too, sir. I'll do anything."

"Well, that's enough, and do you know why I let you off so easily? Well, it's because you're not afraid to tell the truth. I like a boy that tells always the truth. When the next snow falls, be sure you come to me."

"I will, sir."

"We'll all help him!" shouted the others; and, as they turned away, three hearty cheers rose for Mr. Kendrick, and three more for the boy that dared not run away. The Sunbeam.

NOT TO THAT SCHOOL.

A boy of seven protested earnestly after his vacation against being sent back to school. "What!" said his father, "don't you want to go to school?"

"Yes, but not that school."

"And why not to that one?"

"Because they want to teach me a lot of things that I don't know anything about." Youth's Companion.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

Judge Peters, of Mt. Sterling, Ky., was a classmate of Mr. Davis at Transylvania. He says of him: "He was a good student, always prepared with his lessons, very respectful to the president and professors. He was never reprimanded for neglecting his studies or for misconduct of any sort, during his college course. He was amiable, prudent, and [illegible] whom he was associated and beloved by [illegible] and students."

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE TOAD.

The toad lives from ten to forty years [illegible] can lay over a thousand eggs a year. It can live two years without food, but cannot live long under water. It never takes dead or motionless food. It captures and devours wasps, yellow jackets, ants, beetles, worms, spiders, slugs, bugs, grasshoppers, crickets, weevils, cutworms, potato bugs, etc. In twenty-four hours the toad consumes enough food to fill its stomach four times. A single toad will in three months destroy over 10,000 insects. If every ten of these would have done one cent damage, the toad has saved ten dollars. Evidently the toad is a valuable friend to the farmer, gardener, and fruit grower, and can be made especially useful in the greenhouse, garden and berry patch. Our Dumb Animals.

THE METHODIST REVIEW QUARTERLY.

The October number of this interesting periodical spreads before the reader an inviting table of contents. The opening contribution, entitled "A Plea for an Alliance between Philosophy and Theology," from the pen of Dr. Henry W. Clark, of England, is a cogent and thought-provoking discussion. Other leading articles are "The Mission Populaire de France" (the McAll Mission) by Louise Seymour Houghton, "Christianity and the War," by Rudolf Eucken, "Educational Possibilities and Responsibilities of the Local Church" by Dr. J. A. Rice; "The Cotton Mill Problem from an Operative's Standpoint," by Thomas J. Carter and "Personal Religion and Social Work," by Charles A. Ellwood. Especially entertaining are the papers, "Personal Recollections of My Father and Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Davis," by Sophia Bledsoe Herrick, the accomplished daughter of the late Dr. Albert Taylor Bledsoe, and "My Old Servant, 'Uncle Cy,'" by Bishop H. N. McTyeire, with the note appended by his daughter, Mrs. Tucker Hill. The issue contains the usual number of book reviews, several of which are from the brilliant pen of the lamented Dr. Gross Alexander, an excellent picture of whom adorns one of the first pages.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

SUNDAY CLOSING IN CHICAGO.

The Saturday Blade, of Chicago, comments as follows upon the recent shutting up of the dramshops of that city on the Sabbath:

"For the first time in forty-three years the saloons of Chicago were closed on Sunday (Oct. 10), as a result of the order of Mayor Thompson to enforce the long-ignored State law. Only 6 of the 7152 saloons were found open, and in only two or three of these did the police have evidence of actual sales. Only 16 arrests for drunkenness were made during the day, as opposed to the usual Sunday average of 150. Automobile accidents were markedly less. Crimes and tragedies of every character traceable to drink were practically missing. Twenty thousand saloon employees enjoyed an unusual rest. * * * Church attendance was greatly increased. On the streets the Salvation Army meetings had the biggest crowds ever known. Drug stores did a heavy business, but turned away victims of 'cramps,' 'toothache,' and similar ailments. The first 'Sahara Sabbath' had none of the dire results predicted by the wets."

We quote also the following utterance bearing upon this matter by the Memphis Commercial Appeal, one of the South's greatest daily papers: "'We lost $400,000 that one dry Sunday,' say the disconsolate saloonkeepers. And their loss, in the main, was a family gain. Multiply that by 52 Sundays, and see how much the households of the city would be benefited in a year—how many grocery bills would be paid, how many children would be clothed and shod, how many men would go clear-brained to the beginning of the week's work."

But why restrict this calculation to the Sabbaths? Would not the gain in helpful things be equally as great on any other day? Why not do away with the saloons altogether? They cannot be a curse during one portion of the week and a blessing during another portion.

The population of Chicago is more than 2,000,000; that of New Orleans about 375,000. Yet we are told that the law requiring Sunday closing cannot be enforced here. That, of course, is the emptiest balderdash. Prohibition laws can be enforced anywhere as well as any other legal enactments if there is only some one vested with the requisite authority, who will execute them. Here is the first and paramount duty of Louisiana prohibitionists, namely, to see that men are elected to office who want the laws pertaining to the liquor traffic, whatever they may be, respected and observed.

WOULD CELEBRATE MISSISSIPPI'S CENTENNIAL.

December 10, 1917, will mark the one-hundredth anniversary of the admission of the State of Mississippi into the Union, and there is considerable sentiment in favor of celebrating the centennial birthday of that commonwealth with elaborate ceremonies. Dr. Dunbar Rowland, the accomplished Director of Mississippi's Department of Archives and History, was recently called upon to express his views concerning this proposal, which he did in a somewhat extended manner in the Memphis Commercial Appeal of September 19. Among other things, Dr. Rowland said:

"The appropriate observance of our centenary would fill the minds and hearts of our people with veneration for the past, pride in the present, and confidence in the future. It would result in making us better, broader, and more patriotic citizens. On the other hand, a failure to celebrate would be a disaster, the evil effects of which we could hardly estimate. Such a failure would be a new precedent among American commonwealths." Referring to the progress that the State has made in its nearly one hundred years of history, Dr. Rowland, furthermore, declared: "From a pioneer outpost in 1817, with a population of 60,000, the State in 1917 will have grown to over 2,000,000 of inhabitants. No State in the Union for the same period has had a more marvelous record of achievement in every field of endeavor."

Dr. Rowland also discussed the question as to how to celebrate, as follows:

"How to celebrate our centenary is a question that interests all of us, and since I have been requested to make some suggestions as to the best manner of doing so, after careful consideration and study of the nature of such celebrations, I am of the opinion that the celebration of Mississippi's centenary should be State-wide. Every county in Mississippi should have a part in the anniversary. Beginning in April or May, 1917, every town and supervisor's district should conduct celebrations in some central school building. These community observances in the counties of the State should be concluded with a grand celebration at the county-seat, with addresses, recitations, patriotic songs, pageantry, etc. There should also be exhibits of historical objects, such as Indian relics, household articles of pioneer days, old firearms, early methods of transportation, such as the family coach, covered wagon, ox wagon, etc. A display of Confederate relics should be made, such as uniforms, flags and all makeshifts of the war—in fact, everything that would give the people a clear idea of the struggles, hardships, privations and daring of those who made the commonwealth. Finally, on Dec. 10, 1917, a celebration for the entire State should be held at some place selected by the Legislature. It should be made possible, if practicable, to strengthen up the Old State Capitol for the purpose, that being the oldest public building in the State, and such action would of itself be a worthy commemoration."

We are in hearty accord with Dr. Rowland's views both as to the propriety of the proposed centennial celebration and as to the plan of procedure which he has suggested. And especially would we like to see this occasion result in effecting the restoration and preservation of the Old Capitol, which has inseparably associated with it so many rich historic and inspiring memories. The prospect of having that noble old structure to continue to crumble into ruins and finally cease to exist has never been to us a pleasing and satisfactory one. On the contrary, our heart has unvaryingly protested against such a fate for it, if it could possibly be avoided. Other sections of the country are given to honoring patriotically their great men and preserving the interesting shrines connected with the memorable achievements of their past. The South needs more such sentiment. Unsurpassed in her record, and having produced sons who wrought as worthily as any who have lived and labored elsewhere, she owes it to herself and to future generations to see that the splendid story of her vanished years is not allowed to pass into "dumb forgetfulness."

One thing more: If the proposed celebration materializes, as doubtless it will, it is to be hoped that the Churches in Mississippi will avail themselves of the opportunity which the occasion will furnish to set forth impressively the salient facts of their history in the State and emphasize the part which they have had in its upbuilding. In our judgment, steps looking to the accomplishment of this end should be taken by the two Mississippi Conferences at the proper time. Methodism was planted in the Mississippi Territory as far back as 1799; it has grown steadily as that commonwealth has developed, and it is to-day one of the most virile and influential forces that exist within its borders. (It is said that the first Sunday school in the United States south of Philadelphia, Penn., was organized in the Methodist Church at Natchez.)

A DESERVING APPEAL.

We are publishing this week an appeal signed by Bishop Atkins, Dr. McMurry, and Dr. J. M. Moore to the Church at large for a $5000 fund to help churches in New Orleans and in the French Mission field in Louisiana which were wrecked or injured in the disastrous storm that swept over this section on September 29. The extent of damage done is indicated in the statement made by these officials and in the article from the pen of Rev. R. H. Harper, which also appears in this issue. We sincerely hope that the Methodists of Mississippi and the parts of Louisiana that were untouched by the cyclone will respond generously to this call. Let every congregation and every Sunday school take an offering for this worthy cause and either send the money to Mr. J. P. Hamilton, Treasurer of the Mission Board, being certain to state plainly what it is for, or to Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, New Orleans, La., who will report it to the connectional officers who are leading in this movement.

Some may think that because New Orleans is a large city the churches here ought not to be helped. That is a great mistake. Protestantism has a hard struggle to maintain itself in this strongly Roman Catholic center, and our Church here is no exception to the rule. The Methodists of this city are a heroic people, and they never fail to do a worthy part for local and connectional Methodism.

New Orleans is by far the largest of our distinctively Southern cities; it is the second port in the United States, and is one of the Nation's great immigrant gateways. To allow our Church to suffer here for the lack of adequate facilities to meet its tremendous responsibilities would be a serious and hurtful blunder—one that would be powerfully felt in many directions. The Northern Methodists are already on the ground here with a resident Bishop, a weekly paper, and money to carry on their work. By every token, we need to be up and doing unless we are willing to be outstripped by other denominations.

LET US BE METHODISTS.

We have been told that, because the Louisiana Conference will meet this year a little more than three weeks earlier than it did last year, there has been some talk in a few places of paying the pastors their salaries for only eleven months. Such action upon the part of the membership of any church would be unprecedented and un-Methodistic. It is not unusual for the sessions of an Annual Conference to vary two or three weeks and the preachers' salaries are always expected to begin and end with the Conference year. If that year extends over a period of twelve months a pastor does not expect additional pay and makes no demand for it: why then should his salary be shaved if his term of service happens to be a little shorter than the full year of the commercial world? There is also this fact to be considered:

most of the charges will not think of adopting this cutting-down suggestion; therefore, if any of them should do so, some pastors would be unfairly discriminated against as compared with others. Let us be loyal Methodists and stick to our time-honored way of doing things. Our preachers are far too meagerly paid at best.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. B. P. Fullilove, of Rienzi, Miss., writes: "Rev. L. M. Lipscomb will dedicate our new church at Pisgah on the first Sunday in November. All former pastors are invited to be present."

Do not overlook the message of Brother W. S. Holmes, of Baton Rouge, to the Laymen of the Louisiana Conference which appears on page 14 of this issue. It deals with matters of importance.

After an absence of three months, during which he held our Conferences in Brazil, Bishop E. D. Mouzon has returned to his home at Dallas, Texas, in good health. He was booked to occupy the pulpit of the Oak Lawn Church of Dallas last Sunday.

Rev. W. E. Thomas, pastor of the Second Methodist Church and of St. Mark's Hall, this city, is winding up a very successful quadrennium, and is held in high esteem by those among whom he has labored. His flock will give him up with not a little reluctance.

Referring to the late session of the Holston Conference, the Midland Methodist says: "The brethren were delighted with the presidency of Bishop Murrah and will be pleased, if in the providence of God, he is selected to preside over the Conference again."

Writing from Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Texas, on October 8, Rev. R. A. Bozeman, of Louisiana, says: "Our new school here is something to be proud of. Over 500 students have enrolled up to the present, and they are still coming. The theologues are numerous."

Rev. J. L. Lay, of Simsboro, La., continues to bring us under obligations to him for good work done in behalf of the Advocate. He has sent us during the year about 20 subscriptions. He believes in taking care of all the interests of the Church, and is making a fine record in his present field.

The legal Conference of the Louisiana Annual Conference will meet in New Orleans on Tuesday, October 26. This body is composed of the following brethren: Dr. J. M. Henry, Dr. R. H. Wynn, Rev. P. M. Brown, Rev. R. W. Tucker, Dr. J. T. Sawyer, Mr. S. H. Meyer, Mr. W. B. Thomson, Mr. J. C. Foster, and Mr. W. W. Carre.

Miss Cora Godat, of this city, who is a graduate of the Scarritt Bible and Training School of Kansas City Mo., will conduct a course of Bible study in connection with the Young Women's Christian Association of New Orleans this fall. She will use as her text-book, "Jesus, the Man of Galilee," prepared by Elvira Slack of New York.

A card from Rev. J. W. Priee, our pastor at Benton, Miss., brings information of the arrival in the parsonage at that place on October 14 of a baby girl, who has been given the name of Mary Lucile. May a kindly Providence watch over the mother and infant, and may the latter prove a great blessing to her fond parents in the days and years to come!

Rev. Seth R. Steel, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, at Butte, Montana, in renewing his subscription to the Advocate, says: "Please state in your paper that I would like to correspond with some evangelist of our Church with a view to getting him to hold some meetings in the Montana Conference. It would be a treat for a Southern man to visit out here."

Rev. W. C. Carisle, who serves the Guntown and Baldwyn charge, North Mississippi Conference, writes: "My work is moving along nicely. Our Pleasant Valley Church is nearing completion. We will get in it before Conference. At Saltillo nice pews have been placed in the church at a cost of $400. We have had up to this time 32 additions to our membership."

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, of Sherman, Miss., in writing our office about a business matter, adds the following: "Things are going on well hereabout. Everybody is in a good humor, and at the parsonage we are happy over the arrival of a nine-pound boy, David Anderson, on October 10, 1915." We extend congratulations to the father and mother and pray God's blessings upon the little one.

Writing from Jackson, Miss., on October 15, Rev. W. Fred Long says: "Mother went home at Rochester, Ky., on Oct. 12. Rev. T. E. Lewis will doubtless send you the particulars." Brother Long will have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in the great bereavement which has come to him. May the Heavenly Father comfort and sustain him and all others who have been touched by this sorrow!

Rev. R. P. Neblett, our hustling pastor at Ripley, Miss., sends us a copy of the program of Adult Bible Class Day, which was observed in his church on Sunday, Oct. 10, with marked success. His letter also brings to hand a printed announcement of Orphanage Work Day, which was observed on the 10th inst. Brother Neblett believes in taking care of all the interests of Methodism where he has charge.

Rev. C. J. Nugent, an esteemed member of the Kentucky Conference, died at Lagrange, Ky., on October 5. He was a brother of the late Col. W. L. Nugent, of Jackson, Miss., and was formerly a member of the North Mississippi Conference. We knew Brother Nugent and appreciated him as a friend, and we regret to learn of his decease. He was a scholarly and accomplished minister, and a brave, true, and manly man.

Dr. I. W. Cooper, of Brookhaven, and Rev. W. H. Saunders, of Fernwood, Miss., spent a part of last Monday in New Orleans. They had been attending the New Prospect Camp Meeting in the Seashore District, and were en route home. We scarcely need to say that we greatly enjoyed the brief season of fellowship that we had with these brethren. They were both in excellent spirits, and stated that the camp meeting which they had been attending was an interesting and profitable occasion."

The general public will be gratified to know that the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of this city has decided to restore its well known house of worship facing Lafayette Square. It is estimated that it will cost about $25,000 to do this, not including the tower or the replacement of the organ. This church was made famous by the brilliant ministry of the late Dr. B. M. Palmer and has the most desirable site of any down-town Protestant Church in the city.

Mr. Marion Lawrance, General Secretary of the International Sunday School Association, with a number of strong associate workers, will visit Hattiesburg, Miss., Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 13 and 14; Laurel, Nov. 15, and Meridian, Nov. 16. Prior to this the same party of Sunday school experts will fill engagements in Louisiana as follows: Minden, Nov. 5; Shreveport, Nov. 6 and 7, Monroe, Nov. 8; Alexandria, Nov. 9; Lake Charles, Nov. 10 and 11; Crowley, Nov. 12.

We acknowledge the reception of the initial numbers of "The Purple and White," a bright weekly published by the students of Millsaps College. They indicate that the work of the session is well under way and that there is much of interest going on about the campus. The student body was recently favored by an informing and helpful lecture by Dr. Winfield Scott Hall, Professor of Medicine in Northwestern University (Illinois), whose theme was "Social Ethics in College Life."

Ex-Governor Hodges of Kansas, who has been delivering a series of speeches in Louisiana in the interest of the prohibition cause, spoke in New Orleans twice last Sunday. He addressed a fair audience at the Athenaeum in the afternoon, at which time Rev. A. W. Turner, superintendent of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League, also made an impressive speech, and at night he was heard by a fine gathering of people at the First Methodist Church. Gov. Hodges handles the financial aspects of the liquor problem in a very able and convincing manner.

The Bulletin of our First Church at Baton Rouge, La., of which Rev. C. A. Battle is pastor, says: "Last Sunday, Oct. 10, Rev. W. W. Holmes of New Orleans, on his way to the presiding elders' meeting at Alexandria, dropped in at the parsonage and upon the earnest solicitation of the pastor preached for us on Sunday night. The message delivered was unusual in character and force; it was evangelical and practical, tending to make one think seriously of his soul's salvation. His subject was, 'The Tragedy of an Empty Life.' The sermon held the congregation throughout."

We extract the following from a personal letter from Rev. E. Nash Broyles, our pastor at Durant, Miss.: "We recently observed 'Rally Day,' and it was perhaps one of the best days in the history of Durant Methodism. Much credit for the success of the occasion was due the committee on arrangements. Brother Lanfair has been the superintendent of our Sunday school for more than twenty years, and we believe that we have in him one of the most faithful superintendents in the North Mississippi Conference. And he is supported by one of the finest corps of teachers to be found anywhere."

We take from the Memphis Commercial Appeal the following dispatch from Calhoun City, Miss., dated Oct. 16: "A terrific warfare has been waged against sin in the Methodist Church here for the past two weeks. Rev. W. L. Graves, who has assisted the pastor, Rev. W. V. Shearer, has wrought well. These two zealous preachers have held wonderful revivals all over this section. Hundreds of backsliders have been reclaimed and several hundred sinners have been saved and added to the Churches. The revival spirit prevails everywhere. This fact is evidenced by prayer meetings that are being organized in churches and in the homes of the people."

Rev. W. L. Anderson, of Sayre, Oklahoma, in renewing his subscription to our paper, takes occasion to say a few kindly things commendatory of it. He sends his love to the brethren of the North Mississippi Conference, of which he was formerly a member.

Rev. Francis R. Power, of Pelican, La., has our thanks for 8 subscriptions to the Advocate. He says: "While I am very busy with the various duties of a pastor, such as visiting, preparing sermons, raising Conference collections, improving the parsonage, etc., I am not unmindful of the interests of the Conference organ." We trust that Brother Power will find the Advocate a helpful assistant in his labors to extend the Kingdom.

Rev. T. H. Mills, writing from Drew, Miss., says: "We are boarding at the parsonage in Drew with Rev. J. W. Raper and family. They make things very pleasant for us. Brother Raper is much loved by the people here, who will regret to give him up, as they will have to do because of the time limit. The Lord has greatly blessed us in our new work near here. Three churches have been organized since I took charge, about the last of July. Members have been received nearly every Sunday. Last Sabbath, Oct. 10, 5 united with the Church on profession of faith and one by certificate, and 2 infants were baptized. This Quiver country is a very promising field."

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Starkville, Miss., writes: "Yesterday (October 17) was a great day in our meeting here. I never saw a man do a harder and more successful day's work. Brother Hanes preached a telling sermon on the Prodigal Son to the college boys at 9 a. m. At 10 he conducted a revival service in the Sunday school, at 11 he preached with fine effect on "The Good Samaritan;" at 3 to several hundred men on "I thought on my ways," and at night, before a packed houses, he reached the climax in a sermon of rare power on "Weighed in the Balance and Found Wanting." We are having a good meeting and are expecting greater things to come."

In a letter to our office, Rev. T. H. Morris, of Mansfield, La., appends the following note: "I am just recovering from an illness of more than two weeks, which commenced at the beginning of a pleasure trip to Kentucky. I spent several days in a sanitarium at Jackson, when I was permitted to resume my journey; but was forced to give up again at Memphis, and after several days in the Baptist Hospital there, I was compelled to abandon my visit to the Blue Grass State and return home.....Conference entertainment comes easy." We regret to know that Brother Morris has been ill, but are pleased to learn that he is about over the attack. He is finishing his fourth year at Mansfield, where he has wrought with marked success.

Dr. Dunbar Rowland, Director of the Mississippi Department of Archives and History, has been spending some days in New Orleans and favored our office with a call last week. He is preparing to publish at an early date the official letters of the Hon. William C. C. Claiborne as Governor of the Territory of Mississippi, Provisional Governor of the Province of Louisiana, Governor of the Territory of Orleans, and the first Governor of the State of Louisiana. This correspondence will cover the period from 1803, when Louisiana was purchased, to 1816—a most interesting period of her history. It will make about six volumes, which will also contain editorial and explanatory notes from Dr. Rowland's gifted pen. The forthcoming of this work will be awaited with much interest by students of Southern history.

TO OUR PREACHERS.

The management of this Advocate has decided to let our preachers and agents offer six months trial subscriptions at 50 cents during August, September and October. This offer will be withdrawn on the 10th of November, 1915. Subscriptions must be sent in in clubs and money orders used in making remittances so as to save expense.

In soliciting new subscribers, please explain to them that the six months' subscriptions are taken with the understanding that, after their expiration, the regular rate of $1.50 will be charged for annual subscriptions unless they are ordered canceled.

We are making this offer for a three-fold purpose:

First—To build up our subscription list before the annual meeting of the Publishing Committee.

Second—To get funds to help tide us over the summer and fall months.

Third—To induce our Methodist people to take the Conference Organ and read it.

Mrs. P. T. McILWAIN was born on Dec. 22, 1842, and fell on sleep on July 27, 1915. Her going away as death's victim was a sudden shock to the entire community, for none expected her death at that time. She was married to Mr. P. T. McIlwain on Nov. 12, 1867, and of this union were born nine children. One son preceded her to the better clime, and her husband, four sons, and four daughters survive her in this world of mutation. Her life had been a long and useful one, in her home and in the Church. She died as she had lived—"a Christian." She joined the Church early in life, and to it she was true and faithful in every sense of the word, until her translation came. She was buried by the writer, with Brother Loyd Decell assisting, in Pleasant Grove cemetery, on July 28, 1915, in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends who had come to pay their tributes of respect and love to her memory. Loved ones, weep not as those who have no hope; but only be patient and true, and one day you shall meet her again on the beautiful shore, robed in the garments of white, "for she lived the white life." Peace to her form!

HILARY WESTBROOK,
Pastor.

Mrs. CLEMMIE R. YOUNG ROSS, granddaughter of Tandy Kee Young, and niece of the Hon. Casey Young, was born on Nov. 13, 1845, in Henderson County, Tenn. Being left an orphan in early childhood, she lived with her grandparents until their death and was then reared by her aunt, Mrs. J. Ingram. She was educated at Mrs. Echols' school at Byhalia, Miss., and St. Agnes in Memphis, Tenn. She was converted under the preaching of Rev. John Moss in 1867, and joined the M. E. Church, South, at Byhalia, Miss., and remained a member of this church until her death, which occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Florence Ross Ford, in San Antonio, Texas, on June 12, 1915. In the death of Sister Ross many hearts are made sad, for her life was one of great usefulness. As a loved one in the home, a neighbor, a friend, and teacher, she touched many lives and her influence was always for the right, uplifting and strengthening the characters of those whom she met on life's road. She was her pastor's friend. It was the writer's pleasure to know her in her last days, and to find her growing stronger spiritually as the end drew near—waiting bravely and patiently for the hour of her passing from pain and physical weakness into eternal joy. While we see her face no more, we find her Christian influence and sweet memories of her in the homes she touched during her stay on earth.

MRS. NANNIE LEWIS WHITSON.

The subject of this sketch was born in Chickasaw County about 51 years ago. She was a daughter of the Hon. and Mrs. J. A. Lewis, and a sister of Revs. T. W. and E. S. Lewis, and Willard Lewis, of Oklahoma City, and Hon. Dixie Lewis, of Chattanooga, Tenn. She married Rev. F. A. Whitson in about 1884; she had four children, three boys and a daughter, all of whom are living.

Sister Whitson professed religion and joined the M. E. Church, South, when a small girl, at old Friendship Church, near what is now Woodland, Miss. She was a faithful itinerant, going with her husband wherever duty called, and doing faithfully her part of the work. As a daughter she was much loved by her entire family. While pastor of the Montpelier Circuit I was her pastor for three years. She was ever faithful in the work of the Church, and was loved and esteemed by all who knew her. The poor and sick always had a friend in her.

For several years after her husband's death, she lived with her parents at what was then called Congress, Miss. After her children had grown up she moved to Jackson, Miss., where she gave them the advantages of Millsaps College. All four are now equipped for life and are doing well.

She died and was buried in Jackson a few months ago. She wrought well, filling her mission in life as faithfully as the best, and has gone to meet her husband, while the children mourn their loss.

Sister Whitson was active in church work, helpful in the community in which she lived as a neighbor, a loving, tender mother, and an obedient, faithful wife. She was a woman of unusual intellectual attainments, which, supported by her perfect Christian character, made her one of the noblest Christian women I have ever known. The Church never had a more worthy, faithful servant than she. She has gone to receive her reward in the "house of many mansions." Peace to her ashes!

We extend sympathy to the children, father and brothers.

THE PASTOR RESPONSIBLE.

The question is sometimes asked, Who is responsible for those who hold services in our Churches? A great many seem to have the idea that a Methodist Church is a place for any one who may come along, and may want to do so, to hold services. This being true, and there being so many "mountebanks" who are traveling throughout the country and passing themselves off on the people as regular ministers of the Gospel, I, for one, believe the time is at hand for us to call a halt and demand of those who come along and want to enter our churches a clean bill of health. I have noticed where I have gone that these renegades, who often claim to be ministers of other Churches, when they enter a town try to pack themselves off on the Methodist people.

Why is this true? Is it because we are more lax than other Churches? Or is it true that Methodists are more easily duped? I have about reached the conclusion that Methodists are too liberal for their own good. It looks like they also will go off after anything that comes along. If we have nothing to stand for as a Church, we have no justification for existing.

In the Discipline of 1914, Page 56, Section iv, Par. 124, where the pastor is referred to, is found the following: "And in the absence of the presiding elder or Bishop, to control the appointment of all services to be held in the churches in his charge." The latest Discipline thus defines in part the duties of the preacher in charge. This right and duty I do not think the preacher should surrender to any one. I know of a case that happened not long ago, where a man came along and the pastor heeded the request of some of the members and let the "mountebank" enter his pulpit, and after a few days he made an attack on the Methodist Church; and when the pastor called him down, the official members sided with the transient man against their pastor. This to me is one of the strange peculiarities of human nature.

The law thus defining the matter, I, for one, do not surrender this right to any one. When a man comes along and wants to enter my pulpit, I call for his authority and recommendation, and if he can not produce them he has to hunt for more congenial surroundings. I fear that we as preachers are responsible to a great extent for the conditions that exist by being too lenient. To be right often means to stand alone.

If these "mountebanks" have a much better article of preaching than we do, as they claim, why don't they build their own houses of worship? Why do they look to the Methodists to furnish them houses to preach in? To my mind the reason is apparent: they do not have it. So they look to us to furnish them a shelter so they can abuse us; and if we resent it, then use that against us.

I love the Methodist Church and believe it is the greatest of all the Churches and I am going to stand for her against all kinds of isms that may come and go. This grand old Church will be here for centuries after these isms are dead and forgotten. I thank God for her grand history in the past, and as I look towards the future I see the horizon bright with the promise of greater things.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

THIS YOU CAN DO.

A gifted Christian writer has undertaken to tell the rest of the story of the Prodigal Son. He pictures the youngest son going out into the city and finding a boy who was just starting for the far country and winning him back by sympathy and love. After he had won him, the youngest son of the parable felt that he had nothing to give, but the lad replied, "Thou hast given me everything, for all I had need of was a friend." And are there not thousands upon thousands like him, and is not the finest and fullest opportunity that comes to any one of us that opportunity of being a friend to men and women just when the one thing they need is a friend? We should not sigh for a mission when there is this thing we can do, this thing more splendid, and more difficult, too, than any we will ever undertake; this thing of helping men and women and boys and girls into the ways of noble and high living through the magic doors of friendship. That task is worth spending a lifetime at, surely.—The Christian Guardian.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE LOUISIANA SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

It was the writer's pleasure to attend the annual meeting of the Executive Committee of the Louisiana Sunday School Association in Alexandria on October 12. The General Secretary, Mr. Van Carter, submitted to the Committee a well prepared report of the work and its development since the meeting of the State Convention in May. This report showed a remarkable amount of work accomplished by himself and his corps of assistants, thirty parish and twenty-nine ward or district conventions having been held, as well as a great many Parish Officers' "Efficiency Conferences," a scheme of Brother Carter's own invention for drilling those who have been elected to serve in any parish or ward office. The Secretary's statement also disclosed the fact that he was more and more beginning to use unpaid voluntary workers in carrying forward the work of the Association, notably among these being Miss Marguerite Cox, of Meeker, La., who is a recent graduate of the Scarritt Training School, and who is giving an indefinite time to this work. Revs. J. F. Foster and Geo. Sexton, and Dr. J. L. Scales are other Methodists who have helped in this service. Miss Cox has made such a good record that Mr. Carter asked that she be employed on a salary for the rest of the fiscal year, which request was granted. Her father and family are prominent in our Sunday school work at Lecompte.

With many expressions of love did the Committee vote to grant Miss Linden a vacation until the next Annual Convention on account of a physical breakdown, and "to do as well by her as corporations do by those worn out in their service," said the mover who proposed to continue her salary during this period of rest and medical treatment.

A motion was made by the Chairman, Mr. H. L. Baker, to inaugurate a more efficient scheme to organize and promote Men's Bible Classes through the Sunday School Association, and in speaking to the motion Mr. O. B. Webb of New Orleans and Mr. B. F. Thompson of Alexandria made as strong (or a little stronger) plea for enlisting men in the Sunday school as we have ever heard. In fact, we considered Mr. Thompson's clear-cut address a classic. He believes that the greatest thing now before the Church, next to preaching from the pulpit, is the enlisting of men in Bible study, and he emphasized his point by saying that "if a pastor finds that he cannot do this, he ought to resign and let some one else take his place who can." Mr. Baker, Mr. Webb, and Mr. Thompson, were appointed a committee to have special oversight of the Men's Bible Class work, and the Secretary announced that he had asked one man for the money necessary to put an Adult Bible Class worker in the field, and he was hopeful that this might be done.

Mr. Holloman, of Alexandria, brought up the matter of a commission to investigate the feasibility of having the course in Bible work as done in the Sunday schools recognized as a unit in the high schools of the State, as is done in many other places, and the commission will be appointed.

Altogether, the meeting was a spiritual and fraternal feast to those present, and the pure democracy of the meeting had in it an element that will always attract men. The Methodists present were: Mr. H. L. Baker, of Plattenville; Mr. T. B. Holloman and Mr. W. W. Williams, of Alexandria; Mr. A. M. Mayo, of Lake Charles; Capt. Mat Cox, of Meeker; Mr. H. N. Pharr, of Olivier; Mr. A. R. Wallace, of Pollock; Mr. C. W. Scales, of Gilbert; Dr. Haas, of Alexandria; and Revs. J. F. Foster, C. V. Breithaupt, and the writer. Revs. W. W. Holmes, C. B. Carter, and H. W. May were present as visitors. Bishop Thirkield, of New Orleans, and many others sent in their apologies and explanations for being absent, either by wire or letter.

Woman's Crowning Glory

Is Beautiful Hair—coveted by all, but possessed by few. If you have allowed your hair to become coarse, stiff, streaked with gray or void of its original lustre, the trouble lies in the absence of the natural hair oil. There can be no life without food, so unless the hair is well fed with proper oil it cannot be expected to retain its lustre and beauty.

La Creole Hair Color Restorer, when applied to the scalp, will restore those ugly, grizzly hairs to their natural color and at the same time leave the hair light and fluffy.

The tremendous success of La Creole Hair Dressing has encouraged a large number of imitations. Lime Medication In Tuberculosis

In the New York Medical Record of December 5, 1914, Dr. John North, of Toledo, says: "I have come to the conclusion that one of the most prominent causes (of tuberculosis) is 'lime starvation.' * In all cases of incipient tuberculosis there is a deficiency of calcium. Many do not eat food containing enough lime. * In such cases we must resort to lime medication."

Eckman's Alterative should be given a fair trial in such cases, because one of its chief ingredients is calcium (lime), in such combination with other remedial agents as to be easily assimilated by the average person.

Where its use is combined with proper diet, fresh air and hygienic living conditions, we believe it will prove beneficial in any case of tuberculosis.

It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so is safe to try. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

SEVERE RHEUMATIC PAINS DISAPPEAR

Rheumatism depends on an acid in the blood, which affects the muscles and joints, producing inflammation, stiffness and pain. This acid gets into the blood through some defect in the digestive process. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the old-time blood tonic, is very successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It acts directly, with purifying effect, on the blood, and improves the digestion. Don't suffer. Get Hood's today.

EUCUTTA (MISS.) CHARGE.

Dear Dr. Meek: The last of our revival meetings began on Oct. 3 at Boice, which is located about halfway between Hiwanee and Waynesboro on the M. & O. R. R., and is served in the afternoon from our appointment at New Hope, on the west side of Chickasawhay River. Rev. F. O. Bell, our local preacher at Goodwater, assisted us. His gospel messages of truth were presented in an earnest manner and were received with appreciation. He is highly esteemed and held in reverence by all who know him. We had 3 accessions by faith that will prove a strength to the congregation, which was spiritually benefited, we are quite sure. The attendance was small, owing to almost continual rain for the first days. However, we continued until Thursday night.....On the 9th and 10th our fourth quarterly conference convened at Goodwater Church. Rev. Geo. H. Thompson, our presiding elder, used for his text on Saturday Rom. 1:16, from which he very clearly and convincingly brought us an inspiring message. As Sunday, the 10th, was my regular day here, it was our misfortune not to hear Bro. Thompson preach Sunday morning. We thank God for his spirit-filled life and consecrated service. He presided in his usual efficient manner over the business session. Every church of the four on the charge was represented, except New Hope, 25 miles distant. While the financial condition is not what it could and should be, we are expectant and believe that our people will enable their pastor to present a creditable report to the Annual Conference. God has wonderfully blessed us this year in every respect.

CHAS. E. DOWNER,

WAYNESBORO (MISS.) CIRCUIT.

Dear Editor: We have recently completed our revival meeting campaign for this season. We began our meeting at Fedora on Sunday, Sept. 12, and we closed on the evening of the 16th. I could not be there on Sunday morning, as I was called away to attend a funeral service. So I got Brother W. E. Lathrem, a faithful layman from the Waynesboro Church, one of Brother Loyd Deceil's truest and best men, to conduct the service for me at the 11 o'clock hour, and my people were highly pleased with him. I reached the scene in the evening and preached.

Brother A. J. Davis, the "Giant" of the Meridian District, came on Monday morning from DeSoto, Miss., to begin work with us, and his messages from day to day were of a high order. They are proving to be fruitful and abiding. "Jack didn't fail to preach the old-time gospel."

The Winchester meeting began on Sunday, Sept. 19, and closed on the evening of the 22d. Rev. B. Frank Crook, of Taylorsville, Miss.—"the straight Crook of our Conference,"—did the preaching for us, and he did it admirably. His sermons from time to time were good to the use of edifying. Brother Frank is a great and good man, and a splendid preacher. To know "Jack and Frank" is to love them. These fellows are fine help in a meeting.

I have held two other brief meetings recently, one at Olive Branch and the other at Chaperal schoolhouse, with some good results.

As I have stood in the arena and watched the tide go and come on my charge for four years, I feel that I will be safe in saying that we have made some advancement in all of the different phases of church work. This year we have received 11 persons into the Church—6 by vows and 5 by certificate; 13 infants have been baptized, and we have lost 9 members by death and otherwise. We are coming along slowly with the finances. We are on the way and happy every day. Praise ye the Lord!

HILARY WESTBROOK,
Oct. 15, 1915. Pastor.

TETTERINE WHEN OTHERS FAIL

That's the great thing about Tetterine skin remedy. It does insist upon relieving the severest cases of Tetter, Ringworm, Eczema, Itch, Acne, Pimples, etc., when others fall down. Mrs. S. E. Hart, Cross Trails, Ala., says: "I used Tetterine for tetter which has been running for 5 years. Nothing gave relief until I used your remedy and one box made a final cure." 50c at druggist's or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

BIRTHDAY DINNER.

A man who holds the responsible, dignified and consecrated position of a presiding elder does not announce his exact age on his birthday occasions. However, Rev. R. A. Tucker, though his head is not yet bald or whitened by the snows of many winters, is possessed of ability which would do credit to one many years his senior.

Last Friday was the milestone which marked another year in the useful life of this beloved preacher, and in honor of the occasion his wife, his good mother-in-law, Mrs. Carter (whom all Holly Springs love and honor), and his sister, Mrs. Mary Jones, prepared for him a most elegant course dinner, to which a few close friends were invited.

The guests were Rev. and Mrs. W. N. Duncan, Dr. and Mrs. Ira B. Seale, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Ford and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Curd. The repast was greatly enjoyed and the time most pleasantly spent by this congenial party. The fact that the occasion was the noting of the flight of years caused this editor to recall the "long ago," when he and Mr. Tucker were schoolboys together, and no one rejoices more or takes more pride in the wonderful work this beloved preacher has done in the cause of the Master than does this friend of his youth, whose friendship bas continued through all these years.

The party was loathe to break up and each one departed wishing for Mr. Tucker many happy returns of his birthday.—Holly Springs (Miss.) Reporter (October 14.)

IS HE CRAZY?

The owner of a large plantation in Mississippi, where the fine figs grow, is giving away a few five-acre fruit tracts. The only condition is that figs be planted. The owner wants enough figs raised to supply a co-operative canning factory. You can secure five acres and an interest in the canning factory by writing the Eubank Farms Company, 1013 Keystone, Pittsburgh, Pa. They will plant and care for your trees for $6 per month. Your profit should be $1,000 per year. Some think this man is crazy for giving away such valuable land, but there may be method in his madness.—Adv.

MISSIONARY BRIEFS.

Among the many needs in the Korean Church to-day some good Christian literature is one of the most urgent ones. The Christians, especially the workers in the Church, ought to have some instructive and inspiring books to read, and they are crying for them, but we cannot feed them.—J. S. Ryang, Seoul.

On February 20, an evangelist and I finished translating the Baluba-English vocabulary of Dr. W. M. Morrison's Grammar into Batetela, making eighty-three pages, closely typewritten. Our church attendance has about doubled in the past six months; there are more than one hundred in catechumen classes, well attended day schools, and forty enrolled in the evangelistic training school.—C. C. Bush, Wembo-Niama.

Methodism is in Japan to stay. There is a note of triumph in every report, and an assurance of victory expressed in every prayer.—W. A. Davis, Kyoto.

"You will find enclosed a check for $100 for the support of my missionaries in Brazil. This is for July. I hope to be able to send the balance of this year's salary by August 1. My prayer is that God will enable me to continue to provide for my missionaries, and soon support another. If I were able I would gladly furnish money for all the missionaries." (This big-hearted South Carolina layman is giving $1200 a year for a missionary and his wife.)

On August 1, the Board of Missions had over seven hundred Regular Specials, amounting to $186,480.50. These Specials are supported by churches, Sunday schools, Epworth Leagues, individuals, classes, clubs, associations, etc., the Sunday school having the largest number. The amount received on Specials Account from January 1 to August 1 was $58,042.06.

We are not without interesting incidents to encourage us. Recently the young wife of a soldier was baptized in Nakatsu Methodist Church. Then she and her mother-in-law brought her two little children forward for baptism. While these three generations were before the altar the great-grandmother of the little children, who had been baptized a few Sundays before, was seated in the congregation. Four generations in the way of righteousness—what a happy contemplation.—J. W. Frank, Nakatsu, Japan.

I am glad to be able to report that, considering the critical political and financial condition of Mexico and the border, we have had a good year at Lydia Patterson Institute. The total enrollment in all departments during the year has been 130. We have maintained night classes for English, Spanish and Music on Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week, and there is a demand for other studies for young men and boys who are obliged to work during the day.—Lawrence Reynolds, El Paso, Texas.

THE RACE OF DISTRICT SECRETARIES, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Mrs. D. B. High, of the Sardis District, planned wisely and well for her all-day missionary rally at Sardis on September 30, but the rain storm upon that day interfered with the meeting. Regardless of this, there were seven out-of-town delegates, including the District Secretary, and the work of organizing the district was thoroughly planned. Mesdames Graham, East, Morgan, Gladney and Sanford were secured as volunteer organizers, and work was assigned to them. A new society is reported at Pleasant Grove with twelve members, and we are expecting great things from the Sardis District during this last quarter of the year.

Mrs. Elizabeth Clark, of the Greenville District, will hold her district meeting at Alligator this week (Oct 6 and 7). Two Conference officers will assist her in this meeting, Miss Louise Dunstan and Mrs. Julia Jones Shaw, while she also expects deaconess Nelia Godbey from First Church, Memphis. We are looking forward with pleasure to our annual meeting, to be held at Clarksdale, in the Greenville District, next February. We noted with joy the report of two volunteers from our sister Conference (Mississippi), Miss Willie D. Hearst and Mrs. Birdie Burnham. We are praying for our own Conference to furnish its share of volunteers, one to each district, ere the close of the year 1915. May our Father grant an outpouring of his Spirit upon these rallies and conferences to that end.

Miss Corinne Rogers, of the Corinth District, made a recent itinerary of her district, during which she presented our work on Woman's Day at the 11 o'clock service Sunday, Sept. 26, at Saltillo, and the Aid Society at that place agreed to become connectional; she also addressed a young people's rally at Corinth on the evening of that same day. She, furthermore, visited and organized at the following places: Belmont, Golden, Wheeler, and Union Hill. The volunteer workers from Corinth, Misses Laura Price and Mary Daniel, and Mrs. W. F. Riley, recently held an all-day rally at Gain's Chapel and organized a promising society there, while a young people's society has also been organized at Rienzi.

Mrs. W. L. Duren, of the Columbus District, will hold her all-day rally this week at West Point (Oct. 7), and she has planned a most excellent program, the chief feature of which is to be reports from volunteer workers and the presentation of the urgent needs in our various fields as a reason for our Organization and Membership Campaign. Mrs. T. W. Woodward and Mrs. Susie Thomas will assist her in this meeting. Mrs. Duren adds the name of her presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Woollard, to her list of volunteer workers, as he recently organized a society with fourteen members. My prayer is for the Holy Spirit's presence and power to be realized in her all-day rally.

Mrs. J. H. Haughton, of the Aberdeen District, also adds a preacher's name to her list of volunteer workers, Rev. J. H. Holder having recently organized a society at Pontotoc with 29 members. He also promises to assist in organizing at the Palestine Church, while the Conference President goes to Plantersville to present our work on Woman's Day, October 10, and then organize the women in the afternoon of that same day. May the Holy Spirit in all its fullness and power anoint our district secretaries for doing follow-up work by way of keeping their new secretaries at work. May they be directed to touch leaders in all newly organized societies. ONE consecrated leader can keep up any society. It is an easy thing to organize; but it requires planning and praying continually to keep societies at work.

Mrs. A. M. Pond, of the Winona District, is busy with her plans for her district meeting, to be held at Itta Bena on October 14 and 15. Deaconess Mary Daniel of the Co-operative Home at Corinth and Miss Louise Dunstan will assist her. Mrs. Pond reports that she believes the new organizations at Inverness and Tutwiler to be the direct result of Woman's Day. When all our preachers present our work to their congregations at the 11 o'clock service on Sunday and urge upon our women, young people, and children the claims of our great Church, then it will grow by leaps and bounds. The great majority of our women do not attend our missionary societies, and consequently we are endeavoring to take our work to them through our church services.

Miss Elie Willingham, Secretary of the Durant District, in a letter dated Sept. 14, says: "I was out on an organizing trip for a few days last week and am happy to report three newly organized societies in this district in one week. Will report more fully soon." Then a card dated Sept. 26th tells us that the Durant Volunteers, Mesdames Elmore, Beall and Miss Ramsey, organized an adult auxiliary at Bowling Green on September 26, while Mrs. T. W. Woodward organized at Weir on October 2.

Miss Lizzie Horn, Secretary of the Holly Springs District, is quite busy just now with her school duties, but she plans to devote her time on Saturday to the work of organizing and to carrying on the work through correspondence during the school days. Mrs. W. W. Duncan, of Holly Springs, writes: "Miss Horn has the work of this district well in hand and presided with ease and skill over her district meeting. I am much encouraged over our work here. The three auxiliaries are at work, and something is being done in every department; but what delights me most is that there is a Mission Study class in each auxiliary. If the work in the Holly Springs church is a type of the work being done in the district, then Miss Horn will easily hold her own in the Race of District Secretaries."

MRS. VIC THOMPSON HOYLE,
Conference President.

NOTICE.

The Week of Prayer literature has been sent out from Nashville to your Conference Corresponding Secretaries, and they, in turn, have sent same to your district secretaries. If any auxiliary has failed to receive its share of this literature write at once to your Corresponding Secretary, who has a reserve supply in hand, and she will gladly furnish you with same.

The literature is very attractive and shows that a great deal of care has been put into the effort to make it. Now that it is being sent out well in advance of the date set for the observance of our Week of Prayer, we earnestly pray that the auxiliaries will put it to the use for which it was published. Only 40 auxiliaries out of 130 observed this occasion last year. Is it too much to ask that every auxiliary in the Conference observe it this year? We have much for which to be thankful; so let us show our love and gratitude to God by making of this Week of Prayer a season of great spiritual refreshing and real sacrificial giving.

SIXTEEN YEARS OF TROUBLE.

Ended for H. H. Jackson, Friar's Point, Miss., with the use of Gray's Ointment. "I am glad to report that it has made a permanent cure of a sore of sixteen years' standing," he writes. This is one of the numerous instances of the remarkable curative powers of Gray's Ointment. Since it was first prepared in 1820, it has been used year in and year out by American families for boils, sores, ulcers, wounds, burns, bruises and all abrasions and eruptions of the skin. It quickly heals the skin trouble and is a sure preventive of dangerous blood poison which often follows from a neglected skin wound. Only 25c a box at druggists. Get a free sample by writing W. F. PASTOR'S SON RELIEVED FROM EPILEPSY.

Epilepsy has long been a bugaboo among American mothers.

There are two forms of this disease, one which is accompanied by unconsciousness and falling fits, and the other where the spasm is so fleeting that it is hardly recognizable. Both of these forms will yield to persistent treatment with Dr. Miles' Nervine.

The Rev. J. A. Schuler of Severy, Kan., had a little boy who suffered from epilepsy. After three years of fruitless treatment it was decided to give Dr. Miles' Nervine a fair trial and the result was this letter:

"I want to thank you for the inestimable benefit Dr. Miles' Nervine has been to my son who was afflicted with epilepsy. He had suffered for three years prior to taking treatment with this remedy. He has never had an attack since the first dose he took of Dr. Miles' Nervine. He has so improved in general appearance and looks that you would not know he was the same boy. The medicine is everything that it is claimed to be. We had tried everything else we could think of but failed to benefit my son until we used Dr. Miles' Nervine."

Parents who have children who suffer from epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance, and other like ailments should avail themselves of this remedy, which has been successfully before the public for the past thirty years.

If the first bottle does not prove the remedy up to your expectation your druggist will refund your money.

TO THE LAYMEN OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock of Conference week has been designated as the time for our Laymen's anniversary. Therefore, it is necessary for the Board on Lay Activities to meet before that time to attend to the business that shall come before it, and to perfect arrangements for our anniversary. I would suggest that we meet at 3 p. m. on Wednesday and at 3 p. m. on Thursday of Conference week. Please let me know at once whether this hour and these days meet with your approval.

The Board on Lay Activities is composed of the Conference Lay Leader and the District Lay Leaders. It is absolutely essential, therefore, for you to attend these meetings.

I am sending you two blanks for your report. Please be sure to make out the report and bring it with you, and if it should become impossible for you to go to Conference, please send your report to me. We must make our report to the Laymen's Missionary Headquarters at Nashville, and it will be impossible to do so unless we have reports from all district leaders. So that even if your report should be meager, send it anyway.

As to our anniversary program, I should think we ought to have a sort of "Experience Meeting"—reports from those who have worked the Every Member Canvass. Please let me know whether you approve of this, and make any other suggestions that occur to you as to the program.

We ought to have as large an attendance as possible at our anniversary. So please see all your lay leaders or communicate with them and prevail upon as many as possible to attend the anniversary meeting, which will be at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon of Conference week.

Please write me at once and oblige.

Yours sincerely,
Baton Rouge, La. W. S. HOLMES.

How To Get Rid of a Bad Cough

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly. Cheap and Easily Made

If you have a bad cough or chest cold which refuses to yield to ordinary remedies, get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking a teaspoonful every hour or two. In 24 hours your cough will be conquered or very nearly so. Even whooping cough is greatly relieved in this way.

The above mixture makes a full pint—a family supply—of the finest cough syrup that money could buy—at a cost of only 54 cents. Easily prepared in 5 minutes. Full directions with Pinex.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup preparation takes right hold of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough in a way that is really remarkable. Also quickly heals the inflamed membranes which accompany a painful cough, and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Excellent for bronchitis, spasmodic croup and winter coughs. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children like it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex,"—do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., 235 Main St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

From the Field.

Golden, Miss.

We have just closed our last meeting for the year. We have had 32 additions to the Church during the year, the majority of them being on profession of faith. . . . .Rev. R. H. Pigue, of Munford, Tenn., was with us at Belmont. He needs no recommendation, because he is a recommendation unto himself. As an exponent of the doctrines of Methodism, and an evangelical preacher, he is great in the full sense of the word.

The finances of our charge are nearing the 100 per cent mark.

I hope to secure another club for the Advocate by next week.—W. W. Hartsfield, P. C.

Long Beach, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We have lately had a great revival at Long Beach, Miss. We had with us to do the preaching one of the best men it has been my privilege to meet; a man who completely hides himself behind the Cross of Jesus, and who preaches the necessity of living a life which is above reproach; a man in whom there is no compromise with evil and who is unalterably opposed to sin in any form. I am talking about Rev. George D. Anders of the Louisiana Conference.

During the ten days that he was with us it didn't occur to him to open the doors of the Church. He preached altogether to church members and convinced them beyond doubt of the truth of the statement, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." His preaching is good; his life is beyond reproach, and we of Long Beach are stronger because he tarried with us for a little while.—Elmer C. Gunn, Pastor.

First Church, Jackson, Tenn.

Dear Brother Meek: Possibly you will be glad to hear of the great revival that has come to my church and the city of Jackson as a whole, and I feel that my friends within the bounds of the Advocate's territory would also be pleased to hear of it. We closed on September 27 the greatest meeting that my church and the city of Jackson have ever had. Rev. Burke Culpepper was with me for two weeks and preached to the greatest crowds ever assembled to hear any man here. We had a tent that would accommodate 3000, but had seats provided all around the tent, making the seating capacity about 4500. At night we had from 4000 to 8000 people, and during the day the tent was packed. As a result of the meeting more than 300 have joined the different Churches of the city. I have received 140 into my Church the last two Sundays. The first Sunday after the meeting closed I received 101 at the morning service and 29 at the night service. I am at present having over 200 people at prayer-meeting. My membership is now 1030. I have had the pleasure of receiving 380 into my Church during the three years that I have been here. I welcome each week the visit of the New Orleans Advocate and read it with much pleasure.—Robt. A. Clark, Pastor.

Oakdale, La.

Sunday, October 10, was observed by the First M. E. Church, South, of this place as "Rally" and "Orphanage Day." On Saturday before we had a big Sunday school parade. The wagons and cars were decorated with flags and Sunday school banners. After the parade, all returned to the church where delicious refreshments were served.

Sunday was a great day. A large number of promotions were made and the regular Sunday school class work was carried out. Following this, at the eleven o'clock hour a splendid program of singing and reading was rendered. We doubt whether our city churches could have had a better program. Brother Sheppard made an inspiring talk about the work of the orphanage,, after which a free-will offering of over $50 was taken.

Our Sunday school attendance was 204 and the house was packed at the eleven o'clock hour.

Besides the cash offering at the Sunday service, Mrs. Woodruff's class of young ladies, "The Hustlers," furnished a box of winter clothing valued at $20 for the little 8-year-old girl at the Orphanage which this splendid class is supporting.

Our "Rally Day" this year has doubled the one held a year ago both in attendance and in the amount of money raised.—A Participant.

A GREAT REVIVAL.

Dear Advocate: George's Chapel, near Houston, Miss., has just enjoyed one of the greatest, if not the greatest, revivals in its history. On the second Sunday in September that saintly minister, Rev. R. Mason Evans, of Strongs, Miss., came to us, and for eight days gave us the old-time Methodist gospel in its purity and with much power. The manifestation of the power of the Holy Spirit reminded us of Pentecost. The Church is revived. We face the future with our vision enlarged and our hearts full of hope. Thirty-seven persons joined the Methodist Church, and quite a number went to other denominations. Scores were blessed by having attended these services and we had a grand time.

The meeting was held under an arbor—no church in our section could have held half the throngs that attended. The attendance was counted by the hundreds at each service. A handsome purse was made up and presented to Brother Evans as a token of our appreciation of his faithful work, along with our kindest regards and best love for him. A unanimous vote was taken calling Brother Evans back to us for the fourth time. Our beloved pastor, Rev. R. P. Goar, may have more to say later.

J. OSCAR PULLEN.

MY FIRST REAL VACATION.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have been interested in vacations for a long time. When I was a boy hoeing cotton I used to think it would be great if we could lay the crop by in time to have a few weeks' rest before the picking season opened. But the coveted season of rest never came. I went to college one year, but spent what promised to be a vacation slinging a maul and pulling a crosscut saw. I have made several attempts to secure a brief season off since entering the ministry. I visited a farmer brother on his farm, but found when I arrived that I had a preaching appointment, and preached once a day during that vacation. My next effort was a visit to a brother who was merchandising. He had been warned not to tell his pastor I was coming. But when I arrived I found a meeting already under way, arranged to keep me busy. I afterwards planned a visit to my old home Camp Meeting, taking pains to wait until I saw that the men had been selected to do the preaching before I let any one know I intended to go. But when I arrived the evangelist had decamped, and the other preachers were sick, and I occupied the gap, even if I did not fill it, twice a day.

But I have finally had a real vacation. It came about this way: Our family physician sent Mrs. Brown to New Orleans for an operation; and advised me to consult a specialist on my own case. So, after being examined, analyzed, x-rayed, diagnosed, etc., I was advised to make the operation a family affair. So I gallantly pushed my wife into the water first, and when I saw how well she came through, I followed bravely after. Isn't it wonderful how brave a man can be when his wife takes the lead? My vacation began with that operation, and has lasted about six weeks. I spent a few days of it in a hospital, a few more at my brother's home in Algiers, then I came home and have taken things easy ever since. I tell you it is fun to sit down and see others do all the work.

I have had good help. The preaching here has been done by Brothers R. P. Howell, M. C. Holt, A. R. Hoffpauir, and my presiding elder, Rev. J. I. Hoffpauir. The Epworth League has held the evening services.

Well, my vacation is about over. It has been the occasion of the deepening of some friendships. The brethren in New Orleans were kind and helpful in their visits to the Hospital, and our friends have cheered us by their messages and assurances of prayerful interest. I have tried to preach once, and will work into it from now on. But I want no more such vacations. I had rather preach every day, or pull a crosscut saw. Fraternally,

Lake Arthur, La. H. N. BROWN.

EVENING.

A few years ago the late Dr. S. Weir Mitchell was a guest of the University of Chicago. With his name in the president's guest-book he left a few lines of verse, which were read by President Judson on the occasion of the funeral of Prof. Charles R. Henderson. The lines are printed in the University Record, and are as follows:

I know the night is near at hand;
The mist lies low on hill and bay,
The autumn leaves are drifting by,
But I have had the day.

Yes, I have had, dear Lord, the day;
When at thy call I have the night,
Brief be the twilight as I pass
From light to dark—from dark to light.

TWO INTERESTING VISITORS.

(The following, taken from a recent issue of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, will prove interesting to many of our readers.—Editor of the Advocate.)

Two interesting callers at our editorial rooms recently were Major R. W. Millsaps, a banker of Jackson, Miss., founder of Millsaps College, a Methodist institution of the two Mississippi Conferences, and the Rev. Hiram M. Lipe of Blairstown, Ia. This was their first meeting in sixty-one years, at which time they graduated from De Pauw University, being the only surviving members of the class of 1854. Mr. Lipe served in the ministry of our Church five years, then engaged in teaching for ten years, and the past forty years has been a surveyor. He is eighty-seven years old, and appears vigorous. Mr. Millsaps is eighty-two, and we were strongly prompted to ask his secret for keeping young. Mr. Lipe, after his retirement from Conference membership, became a local preacher, which position of honor he still holds.

Major Millsaps, after finishing at De Pauw, graduated in law from Harvard University. He won the rank of major by service in the Confederate Army. He was wounded at both the Battles of Nashville and Shiloh. His contributions to Millsaps College amount to more than a half million dollars.

In De Pauw, Major Millsaps was a roommate of Robert R. Hitt, who afterwards was a conspicuous figure in the United States Congress as Chairman of Foreign Relations. Schuyler Colfax, afterward Vice-President of the United States, was a De Pauw student at the time. Franklin Pierce was President of the United States. Mr. Lipe walked fifty miles to Greencastle when he entered De Pauw and Major Millsaps journeyed there by way of the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers.

HEROISM REWARDED.

In an interlude to his discourse Sunday morning, Dr. H. M. DuBose, pastor of the First Methodist Church, of Atlanta, said:

"This is a great day for the churches and the Christian public of Atlanta and all Georgia. Personally, I esteem it the greatest of all days. Since my residence in this city, both as a citizen and minister, I have prayed and worked for the destruction of the licensed drink privilege, as embodied in the social whiskey clubs and beer saloons, which have been the greatest possible curse to the church and society.

"To-day brings the assurance that my pastorate in this city shall witness this consummation. Within fifty days I expect to see this baneful privilege overthrown. For two years I stood nearly alone in this fight. Some have fought nobly, but some who began to fight with us, when the battle grew hot, sought a convenient place of hiding. Recently a group of very strong men in this city have come to the aid of this cause. God has particularly raised up a man of this congregation (referring to T. B. Felder) who has dedicated his powers, his time and substance unselfishly to this work. At last victory is in sight. It is a great day, for which we should give thanks."

Dr. DuBose's many friends are rejoicing with him, since he has brought to bear upon the situation the rare power of his ripe experience, and the concentration of his varied influence. His adherents here regard it as the consummation of well directed, uncompromising efforts. His equipoise has been masterful and admirable throughout the contest.

All the power of years of training has been brought to bear upon the situation.—The Atlanta (Ga.) Commonwealth.

HOPE FOR MEXICO.

The recognition of Carranza by the United States Government and most of the Central and South American countries has awakened new hope for torn and distracted Mexico. Backing up this policy, President Wilson has placed an embargo on the sale of arms in the United States to all the Mexican leaders except Carranza. Whether or not the latter can subdue the various factions and secure order in our Sister Nation to the south, of course, yet remains to be seen.

Referring in The Commoner to the recognition that has been accorded Carranza, William J. Bryan, who has had an opportunity to learn much about the Mexican situation, says: "It is worth trying. He (Carranza) risked everything when he took up the fight against Huerta—he was the choice of those who organized to resist the new despotism and to secure agricultural reforms. He has shown courage and perseverance—it took both to maintain his position. His dispute with Villa looked foolhardy, but he has been able to overcome the forces of that intrepid leader. He has succeeded, and 'nothing succeeds like success.' * * * Those who have the good of Mexico at heart will wish him well."

It is interesting to note in this connection that Carranza has made the following statement concerning the attitude of his Government toward religious propagandists: "Religious workers who have not been and will not be active in politics in Mexico are free to return and will receive protection of their lives and property. They will enjoy freedom to continue their religious work so long as their activities do not extend into the political field."

This pronunciamento was obviously made with a vivid remembrance of the pernicious efforts of Romish priests to interfere with the affairs of the Mexican Government in the past.

NOTHING GREATER.

According to the Literary Digest, the women of Japan participated actively in politics during the recent elections in that country. Their most conspicuous leader is said to be Mrs. Aki Yosano, editor of the Woman's Department of the Taiyo, an influential mouthly published in Tokyo, who is quoted as having said in a recent discussion: "I am frankly impatient with the patience of the Japanese women. Their old-fashioned notion that woman is and should be the maker and keeper of the home, and that only, is all wrong. She should be something very much more and greater than that."

We have no disposition, for the present at least, to discuss the question of woman's participation in politics and public affairs, but we must except to the view that she can find any "GREATER" work in any sphere than to be "the maker and keeper of the home." The influence that the right kind of a wife and mother exerts in the family circle will endure when armies and navies and the constitutions of nations shall have ceased to exist. The home is the foundation of the entire social order and upon its proper maintenance depends the destiny of both Church and State. If its standard is lowered, all other institutions must correspondingly suffer; and if it is destroyed, all else that is good in modern civilization must go down with it.

Mr. Elihu Root, the eminent lawyer, ex-Secretary of State, and ex-United States Senator, is regarded by many intelligent people as perhaps possessing the strongest and most capacious brain of any living American. He is past seventy years of age and has voluntarily given up public office and announced his purpose to remain hereafter a private citizen. In addressing a few weeks ago the New York Constitutional Convention, over which he had been presiding for several months, he closed his able utterance with the following impressive words:

"Mr. Chairman, there is a plain old house in the Oneida hills, overlooking the valley of the Mohawk, where truth and honor dwelt in my youth. When I go back there, as I am about to do, to spend my declining years, I mean to go with the feeling that I have not failed to speak and act here in accordance with the lessons I learned there from the God of my fathers."

Here we see home influences swaying for good one of the world's greatest statesmen across a period of three score years and ten. We dare say that the most valuable "lessons" of all Mr. Root's illustrious life were learned in that "plain old house in the Oneida hills." And who can measure its contribution to this and other nations, made through the brilliant son sent forth from its walls? No, no; the woman who makes and keeps a pure and happy home where sound character is formed and lofty ideals are born in youthful brains, need not fear that her work will suffer in comparison with that of any of her sisters, no matter to what heights they may attain, or in what other realms they may achieve distinction.

PROHIBITION LESSENS DRINKING.

The effrontery of the advocates of the liquor traffic has probably never been surpassed by the champions of any cause, if indeed it has ever been equaled. Think of men having the audacity to try to make the public believe that prohibition increases the consumption of intoxicants, and hence produces more drunkenness than would exist if the saloons were permitted to continue to do business! This, too, when every brewer, distiller, and liquor dealer is fighting prohibition to the full extent of his ability. The fact that these men are opposed to shutting up the dramshops ought, on the very face of it, to discredit with all rational people their contentions in this respect.

But actual proof that their representations are not true is not by any means lacking. Prohibition has now been prevalent in a considerable area of territory long enough for its beneficial effects to begin to be shown, and the results are highly gratifying. We quote from a recent issue of the New York Christian Advocate the following statement which bears pertinently on this question:

"The advance figures from the forthcoming report of the Internal Revenue Commissioner for the year which closed June 30, 1915, will not need the usual explanation. They at last show the long expected results of the hammering to which the liquor fortresses have been subjected for a dozen years. Here are the official figures: Consumption of fermented liquors decreased 200,300,436 gallons. Consumption of distilled liquors decreased 14,983,333 gallons.

"Dr. A. C. Bane, of the Anti-Saloon League, figuring eight drinks of beer to the gallon, reckons that a billion and a half fewer schooners crossed the bar, and that nearly half a million fewer drinks of distilled beverages were taken during the last fiscal year than during the one preceding. The per capita consumption, 20.53 gallons, was 2.15 gallons less than last year and was the lowest in ten years. The revenue tax receipts fell off $20,837,221.50, a decrease of $57,088.27 per day. There were 16,270 fewer liquor dealers on June 30, 1915, than on the corresponding date last year, which shows that forty-four saloons a day went out of business."

DESTROYING A WHOLE PEOPLE.

The New York Independent of October 18 speaks of the killing of the Armenians by the Turks, now going on, as "The greatest of religious massecres." In the Turkish outrages of 1895, 300,000 Armenians lost their lives. At the outbreak of the present war they were estimated to number about 1,500,000, and of these 450,000 are believed to have been killed, and more than 600,000 have been driven ruthlessly from their homes and set adrift in the world without food or money.

The Independent says: "The tale comes from Marash and Ruitab on the west, from Trebizond on the North, and from Bitlis and Van on the east, of men slaughtered by the tens of thousands, of women and girls buried in Moslem harems to bear future soldiers for the Turkish Government and the moslem faith. Others are driven in herds from their homes, families separated, to go they know not where, or to perish by hunger on the road. No massacre of modern times compares with this."

Our distinguished contemporary thinks that the only hope of stopping these brutal murders and outrages lies in an appeal to Germany. Alas! we fear that such an appeal will avail but little in this perplexing time of world darkness. But notwithstanding the fact that it does not promise much, it should be made.

The Armenians seem to have done nothing to provoke these malignant attacks upon them. On the contrary, at the outbreak of the war a large percentage of the males among them volunteered to the Turkish Government for military service and exhibited a truly patriotic spirit. Their persecutions apparently have been due entirely to a bitter hatred that has been nurtured and cultivated for long decades.

THE CHRISTIAN MAN'S EXAMPLE.

By Rev. C. A. Battle.

Text: "Be thou an example of the believers in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity." (Revised Version—"But be thou an ensample to them that believe in word, in manner of life, in love, in faith, in purity.")—I Timothy iv: 12.

These words were addressed by the Apostle Paul to the young man Timothy who was located at the time in Ephesus as the head of the great work that had been inaugurated there. Timothy was a young man, just a youth; and he had upon his shoulders great responsibilities. Paul said to him: "Let no man despise thy youth."

Ephesus was another of those Eastern cities given over to pleasure-loving and luxury-seeking peoples. They, of course, had become rich in trading and in furthering their business interests. The city was largely under heathen dominion—tinctured with Greek and Roman mythology. Diana was worshiped in a temple 400 feet long and 225 feet wide. Paul had come and preached and weaned many of these people away from their heathen gods. They heard him talk some time for as long as five hours a day.

Timothy was left in this great and wicked place to uphold the work that had been begun. No wonder then that Paul admonished him to be careful. What a trying position he must have been placed in! Paul had preached a gospel above reproach. He had told them that careful words, clean living, right thinking, the fear of God, prayer, given to listening to advice, were some of the things that evidenced the Christian from others. And Timothy was sent there to live out what Paul had set as a standard. Most of us would consider it difficult to live up to a standard that we ourselves had set for ourselves, but were another man to set the mark for us to attain, it would seem perhaps still more difficult to realize.

Timothy was to be especially an example to those who believed in the gospel in that city. Paul had preached his gospel of cleanness and openness to the people. It would be a severe blow to his cause did the exponents of his views not live up to his teachings. He had told them that Christ would save a man, would help him ward off the evil one, would attend him in all the phases of his life. Timothy must certainly live up to his teachings.

"Be thou an example to the believers," he told Timothy. He meant those who thought there was power in this religion that he represented. They would be watching him. They would be governed by his life. He must be extremely careful.

I. The Christian must be an example in word. Timothy must be careful of what he taught. The pure religion of Christ was the theme that should engage his thoughts and heart. The Timothys are watched in the Church to-day, as that one was scrutinized years ago. The Timothy in the pulpit must be as careful of the words that he speaks as was Timothy in the days of Paul. The Timothy in the official seat of the Church, in the pew, as a layman of the Church, must exercise the same diligence. Timothy was to preach to those people in Ephesus Christ crucified and risen for the sins of men.

Perhaps the age in which we now live calls for as much care in this respect as it is possible to imagine. Christianity is under fire from some sources. We hope not from those sources that really amount to much. But some are questioning its vitality in the face of the war that is now raging in Europe.

We seem to lose our grip often in the face of these difficulties. We are confronted by the argument that if the war has come in such terrific force, the power of Christ must have dwindled through the years; or it had never risen to amount to much among the nations. This seems to me to be doubting one's own Christian experience more than anything else. If we doubt the power of Christ we are doubting our own Christian experience. To the Christian, the war can mean nothing but that those wrong morally in this terrible matter certainly knew nothing of Jesus Christ.

The war has given to many men an excuse to turn loose their venom upon Christianity, saying it has collapsed or failed—that the Church is dead. Now is the time for the Christian to witness his faith by believing and knowing the truth in his heart so that those without him may realize the truth within.

Dr. E. L. Pell said in a recent article: "Who is it that is saying Christianity has collapsed? Men filled with the Spirit? Men you would like to crawl to for a word of comfort if you were dying? Men who would climb a glacier with bared feet to save a soul at the top? None of that sort?" "Well who, then," asks Dr. Pell? World-famous scholars and philosophers who make a scientific study of hook worm, pellagra, militarism, Christianity, and other phenomena that the telescope and the microscope have brought within their ken? Yes, says the Doctor, they are the ones. But we ask, They ought to know, ought they not? The Doctor said that the other day he made some observations upon football to a son and he remembers with what fine scorn he received his innocent opinions. His son said that he didn't know a quarterback from a canvass back, he had never been on a football field and had never entered the football world. The son had no right, no matter how learned Dr. Pell might have been, to expect him to know anything about football. But these men ought to know, we think, because they are great scholars, that Christianity has collapsed. Dr. Pell drew an illustration from imagination, saying, Suppose a young man were a fine violinist, could lift the soul of his listeners with the wonderful crescendoes of his instrument. And suppose some great and eminent philosopher should go to work and try to prove, and actually scientifically and mathematically prove that there was no such thing as music. Would the violinist believe him? Never. He would laugh at him; it wouldn't trouble him one minute. Perhaps this same musician would face a six-inch gun without the flicker of an eyelash, said the Doctor, but when the philosopher who never knew anything of a religious experience tells him there is nothing of the sort he collapses. The trouble is not the collapse of Christianity, but it is the collapse of the man within us.

I have in my library a book, and a good one, on the Problems of Philosophy, by Bertrand Russel, M. A., F. R. S., Lecturer and late Fellow in Trinity College, Cambridge, England. There is a chapter in this book entitled, "Appearance and Reality." The author goes on to say that he believes the sun is 93,000,000 miles away; that he sits in a chair in his room, looks out of the window, and sees the sun. Yet all this may reasonably be doubted, he says, and requires much careful consideration before one can state it in a form that is wholly true. This is but an illustration of the ease with which one may begin to doubt. Just start at the beginning and doubt the very existence of anything. Then what have you gained? Nothing.

The Timothys of this day must be most careful to combat the words of evil that may be heard, to correct the mistakes that may be made, to lead an exemplary life before others who may walk uprightly themselves.

II. The Christian must be an example in conversation. How careful Timothy must be in conversation. Paul knew how easily people became offended in any righteous cause. He meant the whole of the practical life here. This is a critical world. Some of its criticism must be condemned. It is ready to worship the man from afar, but when it finds he is of like passions with it, it loses its devotional regard for him. Some Churches have realized this and they have somewhat apotheosized their ministry by clothing the preacher in a special garb, with a collar that buttons at the back. And it makes the minister look a little awesome and a little harder to approach. Therefore, some think he is just a little above the ordinary in the regalia. I do not mean to criticise this kind of paraphernalia; I only mean to picture the difficulties in understanding people and getting them to do.

There are some people who think a man is a god almost until they know him personally, and then they realize he is just an ordinary human being. He cannot be a Christian, they say, because he is not any better than we are.

On the other hand, the criticism by the world of the conversation of the Christian should never be given ground for justification. That is, the actual practice of the Christian man in the community life should be above reproach. That is the way Timothy lived in Ephesus and the Kingdom of God advanced mightily under his influence.

Every one who professes the name of Jesus Christ and who does not live up to the profession is setting a very bad example for the unbeliever and the sinner at large. They say if that man is going to heaven, then I do not care to go there. Perhaps it is just a little word, a little act, a little temper; but it has worked untold harm in the way of the man who is on the outside of the Kingdom.

But certainly one cannot be a Christian as Christ taught we should be unless one is really an example in conversation, in practice, in the daily life. There has never been a Christian who at the same time knew Christ and who lied; who knew Christ and who was dishonest; who knew Christ and who was corrupt in his moral life. He may have gotten forgiveness for his sins and then been placed upon the right track, but he knew not Christ when he was in the midst of his sin.

Further, for a Christian to be continually backsliding and again getting into the path of the right—wearing the path smooth where he has slidden backward and crawled forward so often—doesn't make a very good impression upon the world at large. The life of the Christian should be an open life, above reproach, leading others into the Kingdom.

III. The apostle told Timothy he must set an example in the matter of charity. The Greek word in the Westcott & Hort text is "agape," and means that he must be an example in love. It seems to me that the great apostle here meant the spirit that was to be borne to every one. It was to be a surprise. It was a wonderful manifestation in the life of Christ and it has always been such in those of the followers of the Master. This is what is meant when one is said to be sweet-spirited, kind and gentle. Christ said if one should smite us on one cheek we should turn the other; if the coat should be demanded, the cloak also should be given; if one should compel us to go with him one mile, we should go with him two.

John Paul Jones in commanding the Bonhomme Richard against the English boat Serapis in the Revolutionary War, when his boat was almost sinking and his men were seemingly embarrassed by the tide of battle, upon being asked by the English commander if he would surrender, replied: "I have not yet begun to fight." And before many more minutes had passed the immortal hero had conquered the enemy.

In the midst of the embarrassments of the ordinary life, surrounded by the ill-will and the dislikes of the common run of the general public, some may expect us to lose the battle and give up our experience with Christ, but we may reply: "I have not yet begun to love."

Anger has never saved a soul from sin, but rather made it worse. Standing up for one's rights has never impressed the other with the spirit of Christ and shown to others that one was an example to follow. Christ conquered the world; but it was done with a crown of thorns, with the Word of God as a sword, with no place to lay his head while on earth, with healing in his voice, with peace in his heart, with a prayer for his murderers in his mouth as he died upon the Cross.

Further, this is the counterpart of a life of good feeling and brightness in the every-day life.

We may see the good in people and not the bad. They are liable to be better if we do. Place a man upon his honor and trust him and he will not betray your trust; guard him and show that you doubt him and he will be depressed in turn, and do the wrong thing. Bishop Candler said at the last Annual Conference that some preachers were just naturally gloomy and morose. Everything showed a net loss, just a little worse, the world was growing a little worse every year, the Church was losing ground, men were not as good as they used to be, things are being depreciated in general, according to the idea of the downcast and ill-feeling brother. He said if the Church depended upon this kind of spirit entirely to lead it to victory it would only be swept off the face of the earth.

Love and happiness should be the note emphasized in the life of the Christian.

IV. The Christian must be an example in faith. He must ever be ready to point the way for others in distress. If he is as helpless as others when beset on every side, if his God is not near him, then his religious profession is but empty words. Let not the note of the pessimist and the unbeliever depress us in our looking toward God.

The Outlook, one of the greatest papers in America, had a strong editorial not long since showing the strength of the nations in spite of the adverse criticisms of many self-appointed critics. It said that many writers had taken the position that a degree of softness had come over the world in this luxury-loving age, when men would perhaps not shoulder the responsibilities of warfare, but would sit idly by and allow a foreign enemy to come in and take possession. This was actually said of the Belgians—that they had lived so long in plenty, surrounded by the luxuries of life, that their manhood was sapped. But at the sound of the iron footfall of the German army Belgium rallied her sons and gave to the god of war the flower of the land. It had been said that France was a fallen nation, that she had become wanton and weak, that her men were effeminate and unmindful, but when the hour of trial came and the blackness of the war cloud grew greater, she rallied three millions of her noble sons and sent them forth from her palaces and schools and business houses to live or die in the muddy trenches of a wintry battle-field to withstand the shock of a mighty invading host. When England saw that her national life was in peril she gathered her children about her and all London stood by and heard without a murmur, without a shout, the roll of her cannon, the tread of her horses, the beat of the feet of her soldiery, and they went to the front in a foreign country—for aught they knew—never to return.

Let us give up the idea of the feebleness of the kingdom of God. It is not dead or decaying.

V. The Christian must certainly be an example in the matter of purity. If one professing to follow the Lord and Master desires to bring reproach upon the Kingdom he may easily do so by living the wrong kind of personal life. Nothing is more hurtful to the influence of the Church; nothing is more evil than to bring reproach upon the Lord's work by doing things that are not compatible with it.

Not only is this true of the moral life—it is also true as to what we stand for among men. The world is quick to scent a compromise of a Christian with things that are wrong. When moral issues are before the public upon which we may vote, the Lord desires that we stand upright before him and not be swerved by any political influence that we think might be detrimental to us. If the wrong is to be condemned the world should know the stand that the Christian takes and it should be the righteous stand.

Who are to lead the hosts of Zion to victory if the Christian is not to do it? How is the cause of righteousness ever to conquer unless the Christian is true to his obligations to the Church and to the Master?

The weight of the blood of a normal man is about 20 pounds.

SOME VIEWS OF A SCIENTIST.

(The following article, by Edgar Lucien Larkin, appeared in a recent issue of the Memphis Commercial Appeal.)

I have answered many questions in regard to the nebular hypothesis, but still they come. Here is another one from San Francisco:

"I recently read that Prof. Campbell of the Lick Observatory had refuted the nebular hypothesis, stating that stars (suns) were not evolved from planetary nebulae (that stars (suns) came first, this having been demonstrated by the speed of the suns—the older the star the swifter its motion. I should like to ask the following questions:

"1. How did the sun first come into existence?

"2. Is the earth a part of the sun, thrown off into space, gradually cooling?

"3. Do you think it possible that the universe was created by electrons (electricity)—electricity forming atoms and atoms forming matter, the formation of all which being directed by the Master Mind?"

The nebular hypothesis of La Place has been abandoned in favor of the meteoric hypothesis of Lockyer, and planitesmal hypothesis of Chamberlain. All suns, planets and moons, by these two nearly identical theories, were made by the falling in from space of small cosmical bodies, such as the meteors now falling on the earth.

Trillions of years ago there was a meteor moving in space. It is now in the center of the earth. Another meteor joined this by collision; then another, and this falling in is now going on at a vastly diminished rate, so that comparatively few are now coming in, as many may be seen on almost any clear night.

2. No: the earth never was a part of the sun.

3. My "pet" theory, so-called by hundreds of my correspondents within four years, is that mind created electrons. And the letters came in so many languages from so many parts of the world that I can translate the word "pet" only. Then electrons either formed every atom and molecule and object in the entire universe, of their own mighty knowledge, or were directed by a mighty knowledge from without.

Since I first published this four years ago I have thought of every possible phase of the problem. I here assert and state that electrons know when, where and how to wheel themselves into atoms of matter of their own volition and most astonishing wisdom, or are directed by an incredibly wise external force.

All of my publications since advocate directivity. The external excessively wise director I have called mind, and have used the word mentoids, now incorporated in many foreign languages as written—mentoids—the most important word now confronting man.

(In his expression, "or were directed by a mighty knowledge from without," and others like it, Mr. Larkin leaves a possible place for God in his theory of creation. But how indefinite are the attestations of the scientists to the existence of a Supreme Being who originated all things! However, it is worth something to know that even according to their teachings belief in God is not unscientific.—Ed. Advocate.)

"DOCTOR" AND "JUDGE."

Dear Dr. Meek: I notice that the indiscriminate use of the term "Doctor" is being repeatedly deplored through the columns of the Advocate and that some of the brethren appear to have reached the "slough of despond," believing that a very grave danger here threatens the ministry.

Really, is there danger threatening? In my humble judgment there is no cause for alarm. Certainly there can be no greater danger to the minister on account of some people applying the term "Doctor" to him than to the lawyer addressed as "Judge."

It very frequently happens that when a member of the legal profession wins his "laurels" by gaining a verdict in a magistrate's court that he thus wins from the public the title "Judge."

As a matter of fact the people are not clamoring for the title "Doctor" and it matters little with them whether the minister is addressed as "Mr.," "Rev.," or merely by his first name for no shallow appeal to vanity is going to be likely to sweep them off their feet and into the church.

It is readily evident that the term "Doctor" as bestowed by the public carries equally the weight with it that the same term carries conferred by many of the little mushroom institutions of the country and worn with all the satisfaction and delight of a master.

The public mind can not be farther in fault by bestowing the title "Dr." than many institutions of the land now doing so, and the title coming from the one means just about as much as it does coming from the other.

There are degrees complimentary, honorary and then there are others, you know.

One might well ask, What institution conferred the degree? Why? And what weight of superior scholarship is thus evidenced anyway?

But in "cutting out" the term "Doctor" and its promiscuous usage, let us also observe the same with reference to "Judge."

THE SITUATION IN THE FRENCH MISSION FIELD.

Dear Dr. Meek: The New Orleans Advocate (October 14) contained a letter from Brother C. V. Breithaupt, in which he sought to set forth conditions as they are in the Houma and Lafourche Missions since, and owing to, the recent destructive storm of September 29. To some who have never seen this country his statements may have seemed to be exaggerations. But I have just been over part of the territory referred to in his communication (not the worst part of it), and I write to say that his statements were conservative, and that conditions there are such that it would be almost impossible to exaggerate them. Many farms are still covered with water, the corn and hay crops being completely destroyed and the cane crop being seriously damaged—in many places to the extent of total destruction. The greatest destruction was to our work in Lafourche, and this I did not see. The majority of our people escaped with their lives only, and scant clothing to cover them.

Our only church building near Houma is a complete wreck and will have to be built anew.

I trust our people throughout the Connection, and especially our own Conference, will read carefully the appeal in the Christian Advocate (Nashville) and respond with liberal donations.

Now is our time of need. A quick response will be doubly helpful. Cordially,

According to Secretary Hingely, 80 per cent of the delegates to the approaching General Conference of the M. E. Church are new men. Not one of the delegation from the Des Moines Annual Conference, clerical or lay, was ever before a member of a General Conference. This, in our opinion, is rather an unwholesome trend of things, as so many inexperienced legislators can scarcely be expected to accomplish the best possible results for the Church.

THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE EDUCATIONAL ASSESSMENT.

One of the Standing Rules of the Mississippi Conference is as follows: "Pastors are instructed to prorate all collections taken on assessments so as not to discriminate against one claim in favor of another." The justice of this rule is apparent to all right thinking people.

With this regulation no pastor needs to argue that it is his privilege to act otherwise because of a greater need (as he sees it) of some other claim. The fact is, we have no greater and more enduring cause for the efficiency of our ministry and Church than that which is possible in our educational opportunities.

From all reports, so far, our schools have had splendid openings, with larger attendance than for several years; and this is due to the growing need of proper equipment, educationally, as is appreciated by parents and young people alike. Many of our people are, in all probability, making a great sacrifice to send their children to school—some of them having to make arrangements for payment in the future. This makes it incumbent upon our people to do the best they can to make full payments on the Educational Assessment. A large proportion of the students of our schools are the children of preachers who add nothing to the literary tuition fees, and others are preparing for the ministry, and they are of no financial strength to the institutions. This is as it should be, though it makes it necessary for us to be careful at the point of marked adherence to the rule quoted above.

The General Conference ordered that the proceeds from $20,000 of the $95,000 assessment for the General Conference Board of Education be turned over to the Special Educational Commission to be used for theological education. The collection last year on the assessment for the General Board was only 61 per cent, and this gave the Board of Education only $12,000 for the Commission to use. All of the assessment, had it been collected, could have been used by the Commission for the purpose to which it had been appropriated. The theological schools at Atlanta and Dallas will need all of this apportionment for their current expenses this year, and it behooves the preachers and laymen to see to it that it is paid. We must have a better prepared ministry, and to provide for it we must see to it that our people are acquainted with the needs of the day.

The appropriation to our Mountain and Western schools had to be reduced for this year on account of the shortage in collections last year. This is a feature of our Home Mission work which should have the largest possible sympathy of our people. It will be hard on the Board to be forced to reduce again, since the schools need all of the appropriation, and even more.

We are doing missionary work in maintaining Paine College, and those who have charge of this school for the education of preachers and teachers must have the financial support of the Church in order to do a work that is adequate to the needs there. Paine College is almost wholly dependent upon the Board for its support. There are other colored schools which must have the support needed, and provided for by assessment against the Church.

Please note that while the Church paid 78 per cent on the assessments for Missions, Church Extension, and Education combined, only 66 per cent of the assessment for Education was paid—a difference of 12 per cent. Had the collections for these three causes been prorated, the cause of Education would have received $42,000 more than it did receive. Shall it be said that this discrepancy was a deliberate depreciation of Education? It evidently was the result of not properly appreciating the place of the Church school, which stands for Christian education.

My appeal to the pastors of the Mississippi Conference is to see to it that the Educational Assessment has a fair deal in your efforts to secure all claims. This is not too much to ask, and we would be derelict in giving less than a fair and equitable proportion of what is paid in the budget.

In closing, I would call your attention to the strong and appropriate remarks of Bishop McCoy with reference to making discriminations in the matter of the collections, which are as follows:

"Let me say that it is to be hoped, too, that when these collections are taken in lump sum, that the claims be permitted to share, and share alike, in the distribution. No one has a moral right to discriminate in favor of any one of these interests as against any other in the diversion of the collections, where the funds are not specifically directed. That any claim should receive less than its pro rata share of the sum of the collections by arbitrary discriminations is unthinkable, and that is putting it mildly. It would be cause for surprise, not to say grief, to find such a practice."

For a "square deal." ROBT. SELBY.

The defeat of woman suffrage in New Jersey is conceded by all parties concerned. At this writing official returns of the voting have not been obtained. The advocacy of the suffragist cause by President Wilson seems to have added a surprisingly small amount of strength to it.

A medical journal states that in the United States 85 out of every 100 persons die without leaving any estate aside from their life insurance, and that millions of women are left to provide for themselves by thoughtless husbands. Improvidence is an evil very common among a large portion of the citizens of this country and ought to be combated.

Tennis and football are now played in China. Whether the Chinese will gain anything by a knowledge of and participation in these American sports will depend upon what use they make of them. If used solely as a means of recreation, they are likely to be beneficial, but if they become professions in themselves, little good and much harm is likely to result from them.

DAISY MISSION, NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT.

Writing to Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, on October 17, Brother John Edgecomb, who resides at Daisy, La., says: "The storm on September 29 was awful. The water was 9 feet deep in Daisy. Within three miles along the river, which includes Daisy, there were 48 homes; 19 of those were completely destroyed, 22 were partially destroyed, and 7 withstood the terrific wind. This does not include the out-houses, practically all of which were demolished.

"The church at Daisy is a wreck. It cannot be repaired, but needs to be rebuilt. Some of the lumber, however, can be used in reconstructing it. Now, Brother Holmes, we need the Gospel at Daisy more than we do food or clothes. For $500 or $600 the building could probably be broken up and a new one made to replace it. We will do our best, but it will be impossible for this amount to be raised among the people of Daisy now.

"Can you send us some second-hand hymn books and enough Sunday school literature for the remainder of the year? We also need a Bible. All our books were destroyed."

Daisy is the center of our mission near the mouth of the Mississippi River, and the church there was the only one that we had in a large stretch of country surrounding that point. This private letter, which was not intended for publication, constitutes a most touching appeal indeed. Surely something will be done to help the people of this sorely stricken territory, who count the Gospel a thing more to be desired than relief for their physical needs. Any one desiring to help the Daisy Mission should write Rev. W. W. Holmes, 1015 Dublin street, New Orleans, La.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The presiding elders who have not sent me the names of lay delegates will please do so at once. I also request that the names of those coming up for admission and orders be sent. PLEASE BE SURE TO INCLUDE THE P. O. ADDRESS of all persons whose names are forwarded.

I am, furthermore, forced to ask the brethren not to expect provision to be made for preachers' wives. We would do this gladly and willingly if we could, but we cannot. New Albany will be ready for the brethren on December 1. Our town is small and the number of homes necessarily limited; hence the request about our sisters.

New Albany, Miss. S. L. POPE.

EMORY UNIVERSITY EXTENSION LECTURES.

Gentlemen: The Faculty of the Candler School of Theology of Emory University, desiring to make the benefits of that institution as widespread as possible, and in response to a number of requests, have decided by unanimous action, recently taken, to offer their services for University Extension lectures, in co-operation with our pastors and churches, east of the Mississippi, the territory which properly belongs to the school. The only necessary cost of the lectures will be traveling expenses and entertainment.

The Secretary of the Faculty will be pleased to correspond with any of the brethren on the subject.

W. J. YOUNG,
Secretary of the Faculty.

THE HOLMES STORE

OF NEW ORLEANS

is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

She read the "Journal" and the "News,"
The "Creep Book" and the "Red;"
She kept the serials of the month
Securely in her head.

She went through books both old and new,
Best sellers, too, she thought;
She read the jokes and studied styles,
No item went for naught.

She read the sporting page, she knew
Each athlete by his name;
She read of baseball, football, golf;
Familiar with each game.

She looked the funny papers through;
She watched the mails to seize
The magazine she liked the best,
Whose columns most did please.

But in her house there was a Book
With pages never turned;
Whose mesages of truth and hope
Were still by her unlearned.

The Book that tells of Him who came
To earth that we might know
The beauty of a sinless life,
Lived here so long ago.

What pity 'tis she does not know
This Man of Galilee,
Who healed the lame, the blind, the deaf,
Beside the sapphire sea!

And still she reads and laughs and cries
O'er stories of the hour,
And lets the Book, dust-covered, lie
Unopened in its power.

And still the Book, dust-covered, lies,
Its pages never turned;
Its messages of truth and hope
Are by her yet unlearned.

And shall we not a lesson glean
From readers such as she:
And let our favorite Book be His—
The Man of Galilee?

REV. ROBERT SELBY'S REJOINDER AND ELSE.

By H. Walter Featherstun, D. D.

Personal controversy is very distasteful to me. Never before have I engaged in it. I have been unwittingly drawn into it, feeling that my Brother Selby's attack upon my policy in the past might with some of the less thoughtful discount my contention in behalf of our small colleges and their patrons. But at last, what has my policy twenty years ago, even if it was as my brother thinks, to do with the contention I am now making?

He has not even attempted to reply to any one of the arguments I have made in this series of articles. He cannot disprove them. Does not his attack upon me rather than my contention stand as a confession that he cannot?

Not a single item concerning my policy has been correctly stated. He cites my becoming president of the Woodville Female Seminary in 1890 on condition that its name be changed to Edward McGehee College for Girls, and inferred that though named a college, it remained an academy. No such inference is justified. Its catalogue, its name, and its reputation, to say nothing of my own reputation for honesty and truthfulness, were a full guarantee that the institution was made a full college, conferring baccalaureate degrees which were well earned and honestly given. If it be necessary I am ready to say in any way demanded that such was its character and its work for the four years I was at its head. I had already held Kavanaugh College for six years to the same standard.

During all the years since them, as a member of three boards of trustees I have labored, sometimes at great cost to myself, to keep up in those institutions high educational standards. I have pleaded for that in the columns of this Advocate, in sermons and addresses, one of which was published in pamphlet form by request of district and quarterly conferences, and by every word and vote uttered on the subject. I most solemnly declare that Brother Selby's statement to the effect that it has been my policy to have lower grade schools call themselves colleges, while still doing academy work, has not the slightest foundation in fact.

He charges also that my voting in 1913 to change the Montrose School to a college was an act of disobedience to the law of the Church, in that the Conference Board of Education was not consulted. Will he kindly cite me page and paragraph of the Discipline of 1910, where any such law is to be found? The law he evidently means to cite was not passed until a year after I so voted—namely at the General Conference of 1914.

Brother Selby has done me and the sacred cause I am contending for a very grievous wrong by these misstatements. I leave it to his sense of justice and love of truth to right the wrong he has done. Surely he will do it.

But something of vaster importance requires my attention. In the articles entitled "College-Killing" and published in this Advocate I have clearly shown:

1. That the policy set forth by the General Board of Education which would forbid any college, not having an endowment (or its equivalent) yielding $5000 annually and certain costly library and other equipments, to confer any baccalaureate degree, whether or not it meets the real educational requirements, would result in the throttling of every small Methodist college in Mississippi. No one has yet attempted to disprove this contention. It cannot be disproved.

2. I have shown that the small college, though hampered much by its want of endowment, large library, etc., yet often does real college work, and really the best college work. By the way, Brother Selby quotes some preacher, whom he does not name, to disprove my statement regarding the relative grades of work done at Port Gibson, Whitworth and Millsaps. I do not know what his quoted brother knows; but I KNOW that the catalogues of the three colleges justify my statement, which was to the effect that their curricula were practically the same, and that Port Gibson was striving honestly to do the work promised in her curriculum. Nobody has disproved my statement relative to the value to us of our small colleges—nor yet the incidental remark I made about Port Gibson.

3. I have shown that if our small colleges be throttled, our poorer boys and girls—and they are the majority in our Church—will seek college training outside of the Church—or do without it; hence the rank injustice and positive unrighteousness of the policy I am combating.

4. I have shown that the policy sought to be forced on us in 1916 is contrary to the law of the Church in letter and in spirit; and also that the General Conference of 1914, by its positive action, vetoed this very policy. No one has yet denied either of these correlated statements. Certainly they would have been contradicted, if they could have been disproved.

These four contentions must be honestly met or accepted. No thrusts at me—no vapid appeals to obey the Church's General Board—no improved charges of disloyalty—no pleas for just any sort of correlation, legal or illegal, just or unjust, so it be correlation—no vague generalizations, will claim or receive my attention henceforth. These four contentions must be fairly met.

The Mississippi Conference Board of Education has not yet taken up the matter. I am persuaded that this Board will not kotow to the illegal and unrighteous behests of the General Board by recommending that its unlawful policy be adopted by our Conference; and if such a recommendation should be extorted from the Board, I am confident that our Conference would follow the General Conference by voting it down.

The world membership of the Young Women's Christian Association is estimated at 650,000.

WHY A LAYMEN'S MOVEMENT?

By Bishop William A. Quayle.

Because the laymen have not till now shouldered the world load as men ought to do.

Because there is no escape from God. He will hold men to rigorous account for their carelessness in this gigantic matter of saving the world.

Because this is a day of great things. We must not play at service any longer, but must work at service. Men are at world designs outside of religion. World movement appeals to the breadth of broad men. But there is no world movement which compares with the salvation of a planet.

Because the world will not wait. The tide drives by. The sea is mad with motion. All creation is in travail is the wide word of the great Book.

Men, God's men, up and seize the hour! Make God's hour yours.—New York Christian Advocate.

"WORK DAY"

For the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage.

Knowing that the friends of our cause are interested in the results of "Work Day" for the Orphanage, I feel sure the following statement will not be without interest to many of the readers of the Advocate.

The net cash returns to date (Oct. 20) is, in round figures, $2250. Of this amount $200 was raised in the church at Ruston, and $500 by First Church, Shreveport. The balance, $1500, was received from the various churches and Sunday schools over the Conference. We have had no report from many of the churches and Sunday schools, and feel quite sure this amount will be considerably increased when all have reported.

The special services arranged at Ruston and Shreveport were very inspiring and helpful. At Ruston, our home, Sister Henry, the pastor's wife, very skillfully arranged the program. An interesting feature was the little model of the Orphanage Building, an exact duplicate in miniature, and the contributions were dropped down the Chimney of the building—the Orphanage was literally filled with money! At Shreveport the congregation was very large, and the people listened with patience to the Superintendent's appeal for help, and responded nobly, nearly $1000 being pledged.

Besides a good cash donation, Tallulah, under the leadership of their vigorous pastor, Rev. V. D. Skipper, made up a carload of fine produce and sent it in as their "Work Day" offering. Think of it, just one pastoral charge sending a carload! And it was full—full to the brim. Corn, hay, meal, potatoes, sugar, hogs—what a fine lot of produce, and just the things we needed, all of which will help greatly in our work at the Orphanage. And Brother Skipper writes: "I don't think I ever had an easier or more pleasant job in my life than I had in getting up that car for the Orphanage." He even suggests that it would be easy, yes, a delightful task, for every pastor to do likewise. At least we are grateful to him and his big-hearted people for this fine work for our Orphanage. The V., S. & P Railway Co. put the car through free.

We are very thankful for all that our people have done, and are doing, for our cause. Even from the storm-devastated sections of the State some remittances have come.

With profound gratitude to Almighty God, and praying that His richest blessings may come to our preachers and people, I am, Faithfully,

ROB'T W. VAUGHAN,
Superintendent Louisiana Methodist Orphanage.

The Home Circle

THE HEATHEN CHILD TO THE AMERICAN CHILD.

If you had been born in a far-off land,
Far over the deep, wide sea,
And I in America had my home,
In America, land of the free,
If you were I, and I were you,
Do you know what I would do?

If you had been born with a swarthy skin,
And people looked on you with scorn,
While I knew nothing is black but sin
And the soul may be white as the lily at morn,
If I had a chance to uplift you,
Do you know what I would do?

If you were an orphan and homeless, too,
And never had heard of the Lord,
While I had been taught from earliest days
To love and obey his Word,
If I were poor and ignorant, too,
Do you know what I would do?

I would save my pennies and nickels and dimes,
And send them over the sea,
That you might be fed, and clothed, and taught
To worship the God who is dear to me!
If you were I, and I were you,
That is what I would do.

I'd tell all the boys and girls around
Just what I was working for, too,
And I'd never give up till I'd got them to help
Send the gospel to needy like you.
If you were I and I were you,
That is what I would do!

AN INTERESTING SCHOOL.

"Ugh! But it is cold this morning!" said Hugh Baron, as he was standing by the kitchen range, watching mother make toast and get the breakfast ready. He had been out in the barnyard feeding the stock and the chickens, and now he was warming his feet before time to eat his own breakfast and get ready for school. "I don't see how some of the boys and girls that live so far away are ever going to get to school this morning!" he went on. "I just bet this is the coldest school in the United States to-day!"

"Not if you count Alaska as part of the United States," answered mother.

"Why, I didn't know the children up there went to school!" said Hugh. "I thought they were all Indians and just hunted and fished for a living."

"They are Indians," said the mother, smiling, "but they do go to school and try to learn just as other children do. At Barrow, a town in Alaska, the Government has a school and about 120 Eskimo boys and girls go to school there. This town is the most northern town on the American continent, and these boys and girls are the most northern school children in the world. Some of these Eskimo school boys get up at 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning and walk four or five miles to the open water to catch a seal for their mother before breakfast, but they always get back home in time for school to begin at 9 o'clock. How is that for punctuality?"

"I think that is just fine!" answered Hugh, with shining eyes, "and I think Uncle Sam has cause to be proud of those 120 little northern school children. Do they walk to school?"

"Most of them do," answered mother, "though they sometimes ride. Occasionally a little Eskimo child will ride a reindeer for amusement, but this is not common with these people as it is with the people who live in Siberia. These people drive the reindeer to sleds or sledges, as they call them, and that is the way that the children ride to school when they have to ride. That is the way, too, that all the mail, and the passengers, and the freight are carried about in that country. The most northern mail route in the world is from Barrow, where these children go to school, to Kotzebue, a distance of 650 miles. This is the most dangerous and the most desolate mail trip in the world, and the reindeer make the journey one way in about fifteen days, so that it takes a whole month, if everything goes well, to carry a letter from one city to another and back again."

"I wouldn't like to have to carry the mail up there for a living," said Hugh thoughtfully.

"No," answered his mother, "and I wouldn't like to have you do it. There are not very many ways up there that the people can make a living. Now that the canneries have taken up so many of the fish and the whale trappers have taken so many of the fur-bearing animals away from the country, there are fewer ways than ever for the Eskimos to make a living. If it were not for the hardy reindeer the country would be much worse off than it is. A lot of the people herd and raise the reindeer just as our people do cattle and horses. A number of years ago, the United States Government brought into Alaska from Siberia a small herd of reindeer and began breeding and raising from these, until now there are more than 33,000 of the deer in Alaska. The Government does not sell its deer, so the nation has no competition in the market. Of the whole number of deer in the country the natives own about 20,000, and they value the creatures so highly that they would rather be paid for their labor with deer than with money.

"A young Eskimo who wants to go into the reindeer business can get a good start in life from the Government. They will take the Eskimo boys, give them a four years' course of training in caring for the reindeer, and at the end of that time give them a herd of fifty deer for their own. If this herd is managed at all well it will bring them a good income for the rest of their lives. While they are working for the Government, they are taught how best to care for the deer, how to harness and drive them, to throw the lasso and protect the young fawns from the attacks of wolves and dogs.

"And now your breakfast is quite ready and you may eat it and take your lunch and books and run away to school and try to think about your northern Eskimo cousins who are going right now to the coldest school in the world."

"I'd like to see all the school children of other countries," said Hugh, thoughtfully.

"Indeed I would, too!" answered his mother, heartily. "But now there are duties at home that keep us all here, and it is nice to read and learn of other countries and people so we can understand and appreciate them better when we do get to see them."

"That's so," said Hugh, "and I mean to start in and do a little extra work on history and geography so I won't be so ignorant when I do travel."

SENSIBLE ROOSTERS.

"Papa," said little Harry, excitedly, "Pliny Smith says his bantam rooster can lick my big Plymouth Rock, but he couldn't, could he, papa?"

Papa was too busy, so he only said: "Oh, Harry, you mustn't talk about roosters fighting; it isn't nice for roosters to fight any more than it is for little boys."

Harry said no more, but he did not forget about the matter as soon as did his father, for, a couple of days after this he met his father at the gate with a proud smile on his face, and said: "Oh, papa, Pliny's rooster didn't lick mine at all!"

Papa looked grave. "I hope you didn't have the fight," he said.

"Well, papa," acknowledged Harry, "Pliny just bragged so much about how his rooster could lick mine that I told him to go and bring him over, and we would see."

Papa looked stern, but said nothing.

"So I swept off a place in the coalhouse," continued Harry, "and threw some corn on the floor, and then told Pliny to bring on his bantam."

Papa looked stern, but there was a suggestion of a twinkle in his eyes.

"Pliny said," went on Harry, coming close to his father's knee, "that whichever rooster first quit fighting and went to eating the corn was to be counted licked. So we threw the roosters into the coal-house and shut the door, and went and climbed up to the window." Harry stopped with a curious smile on his lips.

"And which of them went to eating?" asked papa.

"Why, we don't know, papa," said Harry, "because when we got to the window both of them were eating as fast as they could!"

"And they didn't fight at all!" papa went on, while the twinkle in his eyes grew ever plainer.

"Naw!" Harry's voice was quite expressive of disgust. "When we opened the door they both came out and walked around together, just as Pliny and I do, and each one tried to see which could crow the louder."

"I do believe those roosters have more sense than you and Pliny have," said papa. And Harry wondered what he meant. The Pacific

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

OUR HONOR ROLL.

On this roll will be placed the name of every church and pastor that succeed in placing the Advocate in every Methodist home. So far it stands as follows:

1. Pontotoc, Miss., Rev. J. H. Holder, Pastor.

A WORD CONCERNING THE COLLECTIONS.

The dates of our Annual Conferences are near at hand, and it is to be hoped that nothing possible will be left undone in the various pastoral charges to pay the preachers and secure the whole of the Conference collections. Our pastors are in most cases meagerly paid when they get all that has been promised them, and when there is a shortage on their salaries it usually results in hardships, and sometimes in actual suffering for the necessaries of life. They cannot collect their own money and must look to others to do this for them. It is to be hoped that all our official boards will be energetic and faithful in caring for their interests and that the members of every church will heartily co-operate with them in their efforts to do so.

The importance of raising the Conference assessments in full could scarcely be too much stressed. Practically all the enterprises of the Church are largely dependent upon these funds. The amounts asked for are the minimum sums needed, and to fall below them is to hinder the operations of Southern Methodism, which have for their aim the helping and saving of humanity. Let every congregation do its level best to secure every dollar of these claims. A Methodist who fails to contribute as liberally as he reasonably can to these worthy causes falls lamentably short of his duty.

AN UNSTEADY STAR.

Rev. R. J. Campbell, the successor of the famous Dr. Joseph Parker, has resigned his great pastorate at City Temple, London, and will go to preach to the British soldiers in France. This step is said to have been prompted by ill-health, but reports are current that when Mr. Campbell returns to England he will unite with the Anglican Church and will become dioecesan missioner to the Bishop of Birmingham. In commenting upon this piece of Church news from over the seas, the Northwestern Christian Advocate says: "This makes another step in Mr. Campbell's interesting career. Ten years ago he published his 'New Theology,' which marked a dangerous divergence from evangelical Christianity and caused him to be excluded from the fellowship of his communion. On account of a change in his views, Mr. Campbell some time since withdrew his 'New Theology' from the market. Now he swings to the conservative extreme in uniting with the Church of England."

When an unsteady star begins to exhibit perturbations in its orbit, there is little telling how far it may wander in its course, or in what direction. And it should gratify Christians who keep in the straight way when one of these eccentric luminaries, as is sometimes the case, recovers its balance, returns to the point from which it began to digress, and begins again to own the sway of the glorious Sun of Righteousness. How short-lived are the "new religions and theologies!"

A NEW TEMPERANCE AGENCY.

The Anti-Saloon League of America has effected an organization known as "The Young People's Co-operative Temperance Bureau," the purpose of which is to quicken the interest of the young people's societies of all the Churches in the subject of temperance. Its slogan is, "Education as a Means to the Complete Extermination of the Liquor Traffic." Rev. E. H. Dailey, who has been connected with the Anti-Saloon League for about five years and who is actively in touch with the young people's work in Ohio, has been placed in charge of this movement. He is a member of the Southeast Ohio Conference of the United Brethren.

The operations of this new organization will at first be confined to Ohio, but its program is nation-wide and its efforts will be rapidly extended to all the other States. This educational campaign for and through the young people will embrace the following features:

1. To introduce in each society a course of study in which scientific facts concerning the effects of intoxicants are set forth in simple language.

2. The placing of specially designed posters in barber shops, fire engine houses, shoe shops, grocery stores, and the like.

3. The distribution of small temperance leaflets in manufacturing plants, at fairs, fall festivals, picnics, and other public gatherings.

4. The use of scientific and other temperance post-cards. These will be carefully selected and mailed to persons who are thought to need them, doubtful voters being given special attention.

5. The young people will be influenced to take an active part in prohibition elections by furnishing conveyances to the polls, by distributing temperance literature, by placing powerful temperance posters in conspicuous places near the polls, and in such other ways as may be deemed expedient.

Thus to educate the youth of the nation concerning the evils of intemperance and enlist them in the great crusade against the sale of intoxicants could hardly fail to produce far-reaching results for good in the course of a few years. Persons wishing fuller information concerning this new movement would do well to write Mr. E. H. Dailey, in care of The National Daily, Westerville, Ohio.

NO SUCH SUGGESTIONS MADE.

We are publishing in this issue of the Advocate an article on "Doctors and Judges" by Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Myrtle, Miss., in which he sets forth his views on the subject of fictitious titles. Having ourself recently touched upon this theme in a brief facetious editorial, we deem it proper to state that nothing that we said could by any process be tortured into an insinuation that Methodist preachers upon whom the degree of "D. D." has not been conferred by some institution of learning like to be thus designated. On the contrary, it is our conviction that it is offensive to them, and this conviction was in part our reason for touching upon the matter. If there are any who think that Christian ministers have a fondness for "fictitious titles," it surely must be those who are given to bestowing them, and this we have never knowingly done in a single instance.

Nor did we, in what we said, remotely suggest that preachers are in any danger of being harmed by this practice. If this were the only peril to which the Christian ministry is exposed, we should feel perfectly safe as to its future. This is a question of manners, rather than of moral influence. The habit of applying to men titles in a promiscuous fashion, without any reason for so doing, tends to suggest that they need something of the kind, and is unrefined, and, to a well-bred man, discourteous. In numbers of instances we have heard both ministers and laymen resent with some show of feeling being dubbed with "cockle-bur" appellations. This inelegant practice is said to be wholly unknown in England. So long as it was confined to secular papers and the outside world, we felt that the thing could be endured, and made no reference to it; but lately it seemed to us to have taken a new spurt in the realm of religious journalism, and this led us to advert to it humorously. We have too much pride in our Church to desire to see such a lack of good manners become widely prevalent therein. In our former brief editorial, however, we were dealing with the question in a general way and striking at nobody in particular. It was wholly impersonal.

THE GREATEST ENGLISH DICTIONARY.

In nothing has there been greater advancement within recent centuries and decades than in the making of reference work for scholars and students. The tools of literary workers have improved quite as much as the machinery used in agriculture and the other industrial arts. The lexicons and encyclopaedias of this day have attained to a comprehensiveness and completeness wholly undreamed of by the early pioneers in the work of compiling information and arranging it in volumes for general use. As an illustration of the vast amount of labor that is being expended in this day in preparing works of this kind, we quote the following statement by a writer in a recent issue of Zion's Herald concerning the late Sir James Murray and the great dictionary of the English language, to the making of which he devoted so large a part of his life:

"If Sir James Murray, the English lexicographer, had lived two years longer he would have seen the completion of the greatest English dictionary ever projected. Dr. Johnson had the assistance of six clerks (the work on his dictionary began in 1747 and ended in 1755); Sir James was at the head of a staff of thirty assistant editors and more than fifteen hundred co-operating readers. His lexicon has been in progress for twenty-seven years. This seems a long period, but it becomes insignificant when we recall that the French Academy has been at work for nearly three hundred years on the production and perfecting of a French dictionary."

A NEEDED WORK.

The Committees on Evangelism in many of our Conferences are doing great things. They have succeeded in awakening a revival spirit and setting in motion evangelistic campaigns that have led large numbers into the Kingdom. It is to be regretted that these Committees in the Louisiana and Mississippi Conferences, thus far, seem to have been able to accomplish but little. It is to be hoped that they will at once begin to plan for more aggressive work. The Methodism of this section needs to be set on fire with a passion for the salvation of immortal souls.

HIGH PRAISE FOR BISHOP ATKINS.

The Texas Advocate last week devoted a full page to pictures of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and more excellent likenesses of them we have never seen anywhere. The College of Bishops are now holding their fall session in Dallas—it began Thursday, Oct. 28, and will continue through next Sunday. In briefly referring to some of our chief pastors, the Editor of the Texas Advocate has the following to say of Bishop James Atkins, who this year has supervision of our work in the Louisiana and two Mississippi Conferences:

"Especially will we be pleased to have Bishop James Atkins to behold the fruition of his own plans. We are sure that the Bishops will not take offense if we say that no other Bishop among us ever quite did the constructive work accomplished by Bishop Atkins during his quadrennium. To his constructive genius more than to that of any other one man, possibly, Southern Methodist University is due."

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The presiding elders of the Mississippi Conference held a meeting in Jackson on Tuesday of this week.

Billy Sunday says: "I have no use for the fellow who tells me he can live a Christian life outside of any Church. I have no faith in him. He can't do it."

Mr. Alfred Noyes, the famous English poet, accompanied by Mrs. Noyes, will come to New Orleans on November 15. Mr. Noyes will while here deliver a public lecture.

On the last Sunday in September a Sunday school was organized at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas, with 250 students. Mr. Frank Reedy was made superintendent.

The Book Committee of our Church is expected to elect a successor to the late Dr. Gross Alexander as Book Editor and Editor of the Methodist Review to-day (Thursday). This Committee will meet in Nashville.

Grenada, Miss., has its first female attorney in the person of Miss Bessie Young, a daughter of Dr. Young, a well known physician of that city. Miss Young was graduated from the Law Department of the University of Mississippi last June.

"Our church at Pope, Miss., one of the appointments of the Courtland Circuit, was blown off its foundation last June, and our people there have now begun the work of restoring it." So writes Rev. R. I. Collins, our consecrated and energetic pastor on that charge.

Dr. H. W. Featherstun has lately had a series of revival services in his church at Port Gibson, Miss. The interest and attendance were good, but we are not informed at this writing as to the definite results of the meeting in the way of conversions and accessions.

The Fourth Annual Mississippi State Boys' Conference, conducted under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, will be held in Jackson, Miss., November 12-14. Entertainment will be provided for three hundred boys and a large attendance is expected.

During his two years incumbency as pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, of Shreveport, Rev. George S. Sexton has received 500 members. He has also handled in an admirable manner the church debt that was incurred in constructing the present magnificent new house of worship.

In the absence of Rev. H. W. Jamieson, Dr. J. T. Sawyer preached Sunday night at Mary Werlein Mission. He reports having had a large congregation and a good service. The Doctor states that Pastor Jamieson has done a good year's work at that church and is highly regarded by its entire membership.

The Oaklawn M. E. Church, South, of Dallas, Texas, had 516 persons present in the Sunday school on Sunday, September 26. The pastor of this growing congregation is Rev. Claude M. Simpson, a Millsaps College man. He has many friends in Mississippi who rejoice in his continued success in the Methodist itinerancy.

We acknowledge the reception of an invitation to a Hallowe'en party to be given by the Morris Bible Class of Eupora, Miss., in the Masonic Hall at that place on October 29, 1915, from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m. We trust that the occasion will in every respect be an enjoyable and profitable one. This is one of the livest adult Sunday school classes in North Mississippi.

Rev. C. A. Battle, pastor of our First Church at Baton Rouge, La., says: "We had a great day at Sunday school and church yesterday, October 17. The Sunday school report showed 15 officers present, none absent; 31 teachers present, none absent. The total attendance was 345, with only 71 absent. Our church was well filled at both the morning and evening preaching services."

The National Missionary Campaign, which is now going forward under the direction of the Laymen's Missionary Movement and which will continue through April, 1916, will reach 75 of the leading cities of the United States. Among the number are New Orleans, La., and Jackson, Miss., the date at the former place being January 23-26 (including a Sunday), and that of the latter, January 26-29, which also embraces a Sabbath.

The first contribution to reach our office for the Louisiana storm sufferers was a check for $25 from Brother James Hand, of Purvis, Miss. Every deserving cause finds a friend in this generous layman, who always seems to take pleasure in helping those who need assistance. This check will be turned over to Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, who will see that the best possible use is made of it.

A card from Evangelist G. A. Klein, who is conducting a revival campaign at Cleveland, Miss., written on the 19th inst., brings the following news: "The meeting here is getting hold of the people and we are expecting it to grip the whole town. We had 650 people out on Sunday night (Oct. 17). This is not one of those exaggerated guesses at a crowd that are so often made, but is a careful estimate of the number in attendance."

The fourth quarterly conference of the Morgan City and Berwick (La.) charge was an occasion of much interest. A rising vote of thanks was extended to the Messrs. Pharr for having given to the church an iron safe, in which to keep its records. By a unanimous vote, Bishop Atkins was requested to return Rev. J. I. Hoffpauir as presiding elder and Rev. C. C. Wier as pastor. An excellent corps of officials were elected for next year.

The following friends, to whom we have not made acknowledgment elsewhere, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions to the Advocate, sent in within the past few days: Rev. T. B. Winstead, Burns, Miss., 2; Rev. D. R. McDougal, Kossuth, Miss., 3; Rev. J. L. Smith, Gallman, Miss., 5; Rev. W. B. Alsworth, Perth, Miss., 2; Rev. J. L. Lay, Simshoro, La., 2; Rev. J. L. Smith, Gallman, Miss., 5; Rev. T. B. Holloman, Vicksburg, Miss., 2.

Writing under date of October 23, Dr. W. H. Huntley, the genial presiding elder of the Seashore District of the Mississippi Conference, says: "I have been busy for some hours comparing last year's progress with this year's, and have been surprised and pleased to find that the district is within a small margin of holding with last year." This is good news, considering the difficulties that Dr. Huntley and his associate workers have had to encounter. They are a faithful and efficient hand.

The New Orleans Daily States in its issue of October 17 virtually concedes that Rapides Parish will go dry, and tries to counteract any influence that such a victory might have in the State gubernatorial campaign by affirming that the issues in that contest are wholly different from those being fought out in the pending Democratic State primary. Let the prohibitionists of Rapides Parish see that The State's prophecy as to what is to happen there is fulfilled in heaped and rounded measure.

Rev. Harry E. Wooiever, of the Central New York Conference, has been elected Assistant Editor of the New York Christian Advocate. He was born at Van Etten, New York, March 19, 1881. He was graduated from Syracuse University in the class of 1907, and attended Drew Theological Seminary one year. Dr. Joy, the Editor of the New York Christian Advocate, says of him: "He was brought up to love the Methodist Episcopal Church." This, in our opinion, is a qualification well worth mentioning.

We take the following from a recent dispatch to the Jackson Daily News from Lexington, Miss.: "The fourth quarterly conference of the Methodist Church here met last night. The presiding elder, Rev. W. S. Shipman, preached on 'Intercessory Prayer,' after which he called the conference to order. Most of the large congregation which was present remained, and the official board was largely represented. All the collections were reported in full, and the pastor, Rev. V. C. Curtis, was strongly endorsed and an earnest request made for his return."

Mr. Arthur L. Dietrich, Divisional Sunday School Secretary for the Gulf Division, and Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Field Secretary of the North Mississippi Conference, are at present engaged in conducting a series of Sunday school meetings in North Mississippi. The first meeting was held at Grenada on Wednesday, Oct. 6, and this campaign will continue until the end of the month. Brother Gladney has issued a neat folder giving the dates at the various places that are to be visited. He calls the force of workers headed by Brother Dietrich a "Flying Squadron."

Through the courtesy of Rev. Paul M. Brown, of Natchitoches, La., we have received a copy of a song, entitled "Hear Me When I Call," with the accompany music. Both the words and music of this production are by Mrs. Fannie Carter Guardia, a daughter of the late Dr. C. W. Carter, long an honored member of the Louisiana Conference, and formerly editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. The Marks-Goldsmith Company, of Washington, D. C., are the publishers, and the form in which it has been issued is very attractive. The price is 50 cents. We wish for this meritorious composition a wide circulation.

The following schedule of meetings has been arranged in the Organization Campaign to be conducted by the Woman's Missionary Society of the Louisiana Conference: Alexandria District, at Alexandria, Oct. 25-28; Monroe District, at Monroe, Oct. 29-Nov. 1; Ruston District, at Ruston, Nov. 2-5; Shreveport District, at Shreveport, Nov. 6-10; Lafayette District, at Lake Arthur, Nov. 11-15; Baton Rouge District, at Wilson, Nov. 16-19; New Orleans District, Parker Memorial Church, Nov. 20-24. Among those who are announced to participate actively in this campaign are Mrs. W. T. Cunningham, Mrs. R. H. Harper, and Mrs. S. S. Harris, of China.

At the fourth quarterly conference of the Amory and Nettleton charge, North Mississippi Conference, held Oct. 11, the following resolution concerning Rev. W. M. Young, who is winding up his fourth year as pastor there, was introduced by Brother J. A. Lowe and Brother E. D. Gilmore and unanimously adopted. "Be it resolved, That we extend to Brother Young our heartfelt thanks for his faithful service to us during the past four years, and pray that the great Head of the Church may guide, lead, and bless him in whatever field he may be called to enter." A truer and more deserving itinerant minister than Brother Young would be difficult to find.

From a personal letter from Dr. J. W. Boswell we take the following: "I have been under the weather physically all the summer and fall. I have spells of indigestion frequently, and at times they are very severe. Unless I improve I shall be afraid to venture on the trip to Conference. I would greatly regret to miss meeting the brethren the second time in succession.' We regret very much to know that Dr. Boswell's health has not been good of late, and we trust that it will soon improve. It will be quite a disappointment to his North Mississippi brethren if he fails to join them at New Albany on December 1. No member of their body is held in higher esteem than is he.

Under date of October 19, Rev. H. R. Singleton, of St. Louis, Mo., writes as follows: "I am entering upon my third year at the Scruggs Memorial Church with bright prospects for the best year I have yet had as pastor of this congregation. During the two preceding years we had 312 accessions to the church, more than 200 of them being on profession of faith. However, we dismiss members about as fast as we receive them; so our membership stays around 700 or 800. Representatives of Southern Methodism from the whole State of Missouri will assemble in St. Louis next week for a 'Go Forward Conference.' Bishop Hendrix will preside and we are expecting a great time."

The Tennessee State W. C. T. U. three or four months ago offered a prize for the best essay written by any student of the Ducan Training School of Nashville on "The value of Total Abstinence to a Life." This prize—$10 in gold—was won by Master Harry B. Duncan, fifteen years of age, who was also invited to read his admirable paper before the Tennessee W. C. T. U. Convention, which was held at Martin, Tenn., Oct. 1-4; and it will be published in "The Open Door," the official journal of that organization in the Volunteer State. This gifted young writer is a son of Mr. Whitten Duncan and Mrs. Nettie Armstrong Duncan, who formerly lived at Tupelo, Miss., but who now reside in Nashville. The Editor had the honor to officiate at the marriage of this couple on May 12, 1898, and rejoices with them in the triumph of this promising young representative of their Christian home.

Dr. A. C. Millar, the accomplished editor of the Western Methodist (Little Rock, Ark.), spent Sunday, October 17, in Shreveport, occupying the pulpit of the Noel Memorial Church at 11 o'clock a.m., and preaching to a large audience at First Church at the evening hour. Referring to First Church in his paper, Dr. Millar, among other things, says: "The membership is now about 1200, the Sunday school enrollment about 1560, and some $10,000 are contributed to objects other than local. A night school is maintained five nights in the week. In addition to the pastor, there are a paid secretary, a deaconess, and a special church worker. There is a very live woman's missionary society of 250 and an Epworth League of 150." The pastor of this fine congregation is Rev. George S. Sexton, to whom Dr. Millar refers as "one of my boys." Dr. Millar has sent us a communication concerning Centenary College, which reached us too late for this issue of the Advocate, but which our readers will have the pleasure of seeing next week.

On June 12, when the sad news came to us that little EDWIN V., the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Turner, had gone home to God, we felt that we had indeed lost a friend. He was a friend to all, never met a stranger, and was always ready with a sweet smile for everybody. He was only 15 months old, but could speak many little words, and loved to sit quietly in the Sunday school while his parents worked to save souls. They carried him to a sanitarium in Mobile and all that could be done for him was done, but to no avail. His work was finished here; his smiles have ceased; his little chair is empty. We can only commend the loved ones to the Father who doeth all things for the best to those that love him. "Sometime, somewhere, we'll understand" why our Father took this little jewel to himself. The body of little Edwin sleeps in the cemetery here at Leakesville, where the birds and gentle zephyrs will sing sweet songs till the graves give up their dead, clothed with immortality.

H. E. CARTER.

Mrs. SARAH CLARK SLOANE, wife of T. J. Sloane, was born on August 18, 1830, and died on August 2, 1915. "Grandma Sloane," as she was familiarly known to her friends, had been a widow for more than a quarter of a century and had spent the most of her life with her daughter, Mrs. Letta Young, who lives near Petreville, La. She had been a member of the Southern Methodist Church for over fifty years. I have never known a person, young or old, who seemed to have more faith in the Father or more love for the Master. During the past two years I have seen Sister Sloane quite often, and always enjoyed being with her because of her love for the Word and prayer. She had been in poor health for several years, but she never failed to join in a word of prayer to the Father. There never has been any doubt in the minds of those who knew her as to where she would spend eternity. Her life was a reflection of her soul. She leaves four daughters and one son, as well as a host of friends and loved ones, who miss her, but rejoice in the memory of her pure and noble life. Her Pastor, T. L. BRYSON.

Our heart was indeed saddened when the news came to us that the Death Angel had visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philyer Smith, near Pelahatchie, Miss., on the evening of August 28, 1915, and that the sweet spirit of little CLAUDIE C. SMITH, aged 4 years, had been carried to the beautiful home above. Claudie was a bright little boy and was loved by all who knew him—to know him was to love him. He was sick only a few days and everything possible was done to restore him to health, but nothing that loving hands did could avail anything. His face was full of sunshine and he was always ready with a smile. This home has been made sad and the fond parents mourn their loss. You can not call him back, dear friends, but you can go to him. Try not to complain, since God thought it best to take him from you, but let your alm be to meet him in heaven. Remember that he is in the presence of Christ where he has no share in pain or sorrow. May those who weep call to mind that the Savior said, "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted." One who loved him,

Mrs. BEATRICE SMITH.

SAMUEL A. CRAWFORD was born in Eutaw, Alahama, on January 22, 1859, and died in Leakesville, Miss., on June 22, 1915. He was educated at Culleoka, Tenn. After teaching for several years, he came to State Line, Miss., and entered the employment of the R. R. Company at that place. There he met and was married to Octavia Knobles on August 30, 1890. Of this union were born six children, one of whom died in infancy. The other five, together with their mother, remain to mourn their loss. Brother Crawford was a member of the Methodist Church and was always in his place whenever possible. I talked to him about his spiritual condition and he said that he had nothing to fear when the summons came. He would gather his loved ones around him at night and read the Bible and pray. He said to his wife a short time before his death that the way was clear. They often found him in the silent watches of the night on his knees in prayer to God. He loved his family and was a friend to everybody. We took his remains to State Line for interment and laid him away there to await the coming of the Lord and Master.

His pastor,
H. E. CARTER.

MRS. SARAH V. SMITH PRATT was born at Milan, Gibson County, Tenn., on November 30, 1840, and departed this life September 29, 1915. She was united in matrimony to John M. Pratt on Oct. 26, 1854; and of this union were born thirteen children, nine sons and four daughters. Her husband, six sons, and two daughters, preceded her to the grave. Five children—three sons and two daughters—survive to mourn their loss. Sister Pratt united with the Cumberland Presbyterian Church early in life and lived as a true and consistent Christian should until death. She bore her afflictions with the patience and fortitude that become a true child of God. She was kind and sympathetic in her dealings with her acquaintances and friends. Sister Pratt resided in Tennessee until 1892. Then she and her husband moved to Hillshoro, Hill County, Texas. She lived at Hillsboro until 1911, when she and a son and daughter removed to Lockney, Floyd County, Texas, and there she dwelt until her death. The funeral service was conducted at the Pratt residence, four miles south of Lockney, by Rev. J. A. Sweeney, pastor of the Lockney M. E. Church, South. Her mortal remains were carried to Hillsboro where they were laid to rest by the side of her husband.

O. C. STAPLETON.

MRS. HENRIETTA McWILLIE STOVER POWE was born on March 10, 1829, and died on the morning of September 23, 1915. She had the privilege of living longer than her allotted time in this world of mutation, having reached the age of 86 years, 6 months, and 13 days when death came. She was married to Mr. Samuel H. Powe on October 2, 1850, and became the mother of eight children, 6 of whom are living, and two of whom had preceded her to the "City Celestial." She was a loving mother, a good wife, a splendid neighbor, and a friend to all with whom she came in contact; and, best of all, a devoted Christian. Throughout her long illness hers was a life of steadiness. She was a member of the Methodist Church. The Church has lost a good member, society a splendid character, her children a sweet mother, and the home a queen. But heaven has gained a ransomed soul. The funeral was conducted by the writer at the old home on September 24, at 10:30 o'clock a.m., where a large concourse of people were gathered together to pay tribute to the memory of the deceased. After the services had been conducted, her body was laid to rest in the home cemetery. May the hand of Him who rules the world and they that dwell therein help her friends and relatives to prepare to meet her where there will be no sad partings, nor even a tear, but where God shall wipe all tears from their eyes!

Her pastor,
HILARY S. WESTBROOK.

A CALL TO SERVICE!

Dear Sisters: I hope that you have received the social service leaflets and study for December with the report blanks sent out some days ago. If this literature has not been received, please notify me at once by sending the name and address of the auxiliary social service superintendent to me at Lafayette, La.

This short message comes to you from an old friend with an earnest request and is designed to "stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance."

As Superintendent of Social Service in the Louisiana W. M. S., I need your help. This field is so broad that, like the love of God, it extends to the uttermost parts of the earth. It includes everything that stands for betterment in your own community and in all other communities—in the home land and across the sea. Now dear friends, let's have a part, each one of us, in trying to place this ladder of love and service so firmly that others may climb up and out of their wretchedness and sin into the sunlight of God's love and mercy.

In tabulating the reports for this year, I find that as many as forty or more auxiliaries in the Louisiana Conference have no superintendents of Social Service, and I want to urge and emphasize these three points most earnestly.

1. A superintendent in every auxiliary, working through a committee.

2. Use of the Leaflet and Study at the third meeting in each quarter (March, June, September, and December).

3. Send the name and address of each newly elected Superintendent to me at Lafayette, La.

These items form the basis of the work in every auxiliary and on this foundation each auxiliary may extend its lines to include all that is best in your own community and others. Just the old ladies' aid work—only on a broader scale.

With a prayer for God's blessing on each one of you personally and on your work, I am your friend and sister, Mrs. E. R. KENNEDY.

Mt. Vernon, New York.

JONESBORO, LA.

Dear Doctor Meek: In some respects we have had a fine year on the Jonesboro work. When I took charge last December we had a membership of 111. We have had 48 accessions during the year.

Our first meeting was held at Jonesboro, the "Hub" of the charge. Here we were assisted by Rev. A. Inman Townsley, who did some very fine preaching, attacking fearlessly all manner of sin and remonstrating with all kinds of sinners, from the worldly dancing church member to the most wicked and ungodly transgressors in the town. Three persons united with the Church. The pastor had received 19 before the meeting began.

Our second meeting was held at Dodson, La., and we were assisted by Rev. W. W. Perry, our pastor at Haynesville, La. Brother Perry is a strong gospel preacher, and the Lord greatly honored his messages and much was done. Fifteen joined the Church on profession of faith, and one by restoration.

Our third meeting was held at Hodge, La., and again we were assisted by Brother Townsley. He was at his best, preaching with great power, and the Holy Spirit came upon the people. We received 8 into the Church, two having joined prior to the meeting.

Our Sunday schools are well organized and are doing fine work. Dr. F. C. Wren is our efficient superintendent at Jonesboro. He understands his work and knows how to secure results. The McBride Bible class is one of the best, if not the largest, in the District. We have had to build an additional room to meet its needs. Brother C. F. McBride is the teacher of this class, and is the right man in the right place.

Brother D. M. Pyburn, whom many of our preachers know, is our faithful superintendent at Dodson, and under his wise and efficient management the school is doing well. The school at Hodge is a union one, and therefore cannot be reported to the Conference.

We are trying as best we can to look after every interest of the Church in this charge, including the Advocate, which should be in every Methodist home in Louisiana.

Our presiding elder, Rev. Briscoe Carter, is a live wire. He is looking after the interests of his district with his usual zeal and efficiency. When we meet at our Annual Conference in Mansfield I doubt not that you will hear a good report from the Ruston District.—I. O. Bennett, P. C.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, the Sunday school of the La Branch Street Methodist Church, McComb, Miss., has been called upon to part with one of its pupils in the untimely death of Aubry Reagan; therefore be it

Resolved, 1. That in his death our school has lost a faithful scholar, his home a dutiful son and affectionate brother, and the Church and Baracca Class a true and loyal member.

2. That we tender our sympathy and prayers to the bereaved family, assuring them of our deepest interest in their welfare, and praying that the Divine presence may be with them.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the New Orleans Advocate for publication, a copy sent to the family, and also that a copy be spread upon the records of our Sunday School.

Signed by: Mrs. F. B. Ormond, teacher Barracca Class; Thomas Swearengin, and Roy Wardlaw, Committee.

A DELIGHTFUL OCCASION.

(Brother and Sister Morris are winding up a quadrennium of faithful and efficient service at Mansfield.)

Conference being so near at hand and its convening meaning the removal of our esteemed co-worker, Mrs. T. H. Morris, a lovely surprise was planned several weeks ago by the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church. Monday, at 3 o'clock, while all were busy with the Bible lesson, a committee of six quietly repaired to the parsonage and placed vases of roses and cosmos on the buffet and tables and arranged a miscellaneous shower on the dining table. After the meeting of the Society, Mrs. Morris escorted the members from the church to see the new rug they had just bought for the dining room, and on opening the door, much to her surprise, found this lovely shower. The look on her face compensated for the labor on the part of the ladies. There were few dry eyes as all realized that the meetings with Mrs. Morris were numbered. The gifts were tokens of appreciation for kindnesses, help, and prayers extended to all by this untiring worker. It was indeed a pleasure to all to see her open the packages of hand-embroidered tablecloths with napkins to match, towels, pillow cases, centerpieces, lingerie, several crepe-de-chine waists and a house dress, silk hose, gloves, handkerchiefs, gold thimble, silver spoons, cut glass bowl, canned fruit, preserves, pickles, a wool comfort and various other lovely and useful gifts. The committee, which was composed of Mesdames Logan, Wemple, Mallery, R. T. Moore, C. K. Sheppard, and J. L. Lowrey, served choice refreshments to the honoree and her guests, which numbered sixty.—S., in the Mansfield (La.) Enterprise.

Have Dark Hair and Look Young

Nobody can Tell when you Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach remedy in the whole world and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach trouble forever by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach doctor in the world.

WATCH YOUR HEART IF YOU WISH HEALTH

Weak hearts are more common than weak stomachs, lungs, eyes, backs, or kidneys. Every time your heart misses a beat your life is being shortened. Heart disease, taken in its early stages, is quite easy to relieve, but every day that treatment is delayed the relief becomes more difficult.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy taken in conjunction with the Nervine, or alone, has proven very efficient in relieving heart disorders.

The Rev. Geo. W. Kiracofe, of Keller, Va., in this connection stated as follows:

"It has been many years since I was cured of heart trouble by Dr Miles' Heart Remedy and Nervine. I am just as sound as a dollar in that organ to-day. Before I took these remedies my breathing had been short and at times difficult; there were sharp pains about my heart, accompanied by fluttering which would make me feel faint and languid. The least excitement or worry would unnerve me. The trouble grew steadily worse. Doctors' prescriptions did me no good. But since using Dr Miles' Remedies all symptoms were removed and have never returned since."

If you suspect that you have heart trouble avoid all dangerous delays.

It costs you nothing to try these remedies if you are not benefited. All you have to do is to return the empty bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money.

A Foe to Tuberculosis

The Journal of the American Medical Association (August 9, 1914), reviewing an article on "The Influence of Calcium Salts on Constitution and Health," said: "They (the authors) report numbers of concrete instances in which patients gained in vitality and energy after taking calcium."

Doctors agree that in tuberculosis lowered vitality and lost energy must be overcome.

One of the constituents of Eckman's Alterative is calcium (lime), in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person. To this, in part, is due its success in the treatment of tuberculosis—a service which even some ethical practitioners have acknowledged to their patients. We make no wholesale claims for it but since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, a trial is safe. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

Obituaries

Mrs. NANNIE R. TAYLOR was born in Sinclair County, Ala., on Sept. 13, 1836. She moved with her parents to North Mississippi while she was yet a child and there she grew to womanhood. On Oct. 3, 1861, she was happily married to Mr. Benjamin F. Holcomb, who died soon after their marriage. Of this union one son was born. In 1869 she was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and was a faithful member until her death, which occurred at the home of her stepfather in Centerville, Miss., on Oct. 3, 1915. It was my privilege to receive her into the Church twenty-five years ago, and I say unhesitatingly that her life for twenty-five years was a beautiful Christian life. Sister Holcomb was a good neighbor, always ready to help those in trouble or in need. She was a devoted mother and an obedient and dutiful daughter. She leaves an aged stepfather, one brother, one sister, one son, and a host of friends and relatives to mourn their loss. Her death was sudden, but her end was peace. Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord!

W. W. SIMMONS.

Mrs. LUCINDA ANN TATE (nee Johnston) was born on June 22, 1842, and died on September 8, 1915, at her home in New Albany, Miss. In the fall of 1869 she came with her parents from Georgia and located in Pontotoc County, Miss. Sister Tate was married to Mr. H. N. Tate on November 16, 1871, and they lived happily together for many long years. Brother Tate died about four years ago. There were five children born into this happy home, two daughters and three sons. Two sons died in young manhood, and one son and two daughters are left to mourn her departure and revere her sacred memory. When quite young Sister Tate was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. She lived and died in the communion of the Church of her choice, and during all her life never for one moment ceased in her love for her Lord, her Church, and the world of unsaved souls. She was quiet, retiring, unobtrusive, modest, and the surface of her life did not reveal to the casual observer the wealth and depth of conviction, the rich Christly graces, and the deep stream of splendid womanly traits that flowed through her quiet soul at all times. She cared little for the outward show, the surface, the glare; but she did care for the matters that concern the soul and for those forces of the inner life that bring constant peace to all being. A great throng of her old-time friends and neighbors attended the funeral services at the Mt. Olivet Church, and her body now sleeps in the cemetery of that church, awaiting God's great resurrection after awhile. It is very precious to know that God will take care of His own dead.

INFLUENCE OF SCHOOLS.

A missionary states that more than two hundred members of a congregation in South India trace their conversion to the influence of one village school. "In every school the Scriptures are taught, and even where the government requires a conscience clause, as at Omdurman, not a single child is withdrawn from instruction in the New Testament, though of the eighty girls on the register about half are from Moslem homes. The missionaries find it possible to make the Bible lesson the most popular of all, and many of the boys, non-Christians though they be, are able to pass as good an examination in general Scripture knowledge as some divinity students at home in their first year."

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhœa, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

ANENT THE MISSISSIPPI METHODIST ORPHANAGE.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am beginning to feel at home in the Capital City. I like my new work very much. The greatest trouble that I see is the lack of funds to run the institution adequately and creditably. We are now getting responses, however, on Work Day collections. We received about $1000 this week. Our institution is full, and in some departments very much crowded. Our school is doing well. We have five teachers besides the music teacher. They are Miss Georgia Brumfield, Tylertown, Miss., principal and teacher of the seventh and eighth grades; Miss Corinne Avery, Jackson, Miss., the fifth and sixth grades; Miss Amanda Howell, third and fourth grades; Miss Inez Driskell, first and second grades; Miss Sudie Robinson, primary department, and Mrs. Mary Williams, music teacher. Misses Howell and Driskell are products of the Orphans' Home.

We have introduced some practical features in the work to train the pupils for their life work. We have organized two classes in sewing—one for the large girls and one for the small girls, taught by Miss Avery; a class for boys and girls in shorthand and typewriting, taught by Miss Brumfield; a class in domestic science, taught by Miss Bessie Porter, our kitchen matron; a class in nurse training, taught by Miss Gertrude Crabtree, a graduate nurse furnished the Home by the United States Government Department of Health.

The Home has a system of marking the clothing of the children so that each individual has his own clothes. There is not a single case of sickness in the institution, which is remarkable when you consider the number in the Home.

We expect free cars to be run a little later in the season on all the roads on which they have been accustomed to run. I hope to give you a notice a little later of the exact dates and names of those in charge of cars. The time will be, however, between the 17th of November and December 1.

Come to see us when in Jackson.

Your friend and brother,

J. B. RANDOLPH.

UNION, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: We closed an eight days' meeting at Union last Sunday night, October 17, with excellent results. Brother Dan Kelly, our Conference evangelist, did the preaching, this being the second meeting he has held there. Interest grew from the beginning, and some of the services were of unusual power. Professor W. E. Neff kindly closed the school for the afternoon services, and notwithstanding the busy season, there was a good attendance of business men at the day meetings. The last day seemed the best of all, with splendid congregations and enthusiastic services.

There were a number of professions and 40 accessions to the Church, more than thirty of them being on profession of faith. Brother Kelly was invited by a unanimous vote of the people to hold their meeting next year. Brother Kelly's personality, preaching ability, unfailing wit and, best of all, deep consecration especially fit him for the work whereunto God has evidently called him.

A WORD FROM BROTHER BALEY.

Dear Dr. Meek: I notice in my article which appeared in the last issue of the Advocate an error that destroys the meaning I intended to convey. This was possibly an oversight on my part. The error I refer to is this: "If these 'mountebanks' have a much better article of preaching than we do, as they claim, why don't they build their own houses of worship." What I intended to say was this: "If these 'mountebanks' have so much better article as they claim, than we do, why don't they build their own houses of worship?' Please make this correction in your next issue.

We have had a good year at Main Street this year. I think the Church is on the upgrade and stronger than it has been at any time for the past several years. I am in hopes that we are on the eve of greater things in the Church work here. Sincerely yours,

C. WESLEY BALEY.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complication.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

"GUIDE ME."

An Indian, writing concerning his own conversion to Christianity, says:

"One day—it must have been Sunday—I was following a path which led past the little church. Out of the open window I heard the sound of voices. The tune they sang was pleasant to hear. I wanted to hear it again, to learn it if possible. So I went to the church on three seccessive Sundays, but that tune was not sung. On the fourth Sunday, however, I was happy to hear the hymn I had longed for. I stood next to a man who sang out of a book. From him I caught the words of the first verse and learned them by heart.

"When I left that church, able to carry the tune and sing the first verse of the Dakota translation of 'Guide me, O Thou Great Jehovah,' I felt that I was possessor of a great treasure. From that day on I attended the services with regularity, hoping to learn other things as beautiful as that hymn."

THE BIBLE IN EGYPT.

Rev. Stephen Van R. Trowbridge, Sunday school secretary for Egypt, has been receiving money from friends in London and Cairo for the distribution of New Testaments among the Australian and New Zealand troops as well as among the Turkish prisoners in Cairo and the Moslem students in the government schools.

The actual distribution among the soldiers and prisoners he has turned over to the Army Y. M. C. A. secretary. The work among the schoolboys, Moslem policemen, and street car conductors he is carrying on personally as he goes about the city.

In this work he is following the plan suggested by the Pocket Testament League. On a recent journey to Middle Egypt he distributed about one hundred and eighty copies of the Arabic New Testament to fellow-travelers.

Calomel Makes You Sick, Ugh!

"Dodson's Liver Tone" better than calomel and can not Salivate.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

ALL-DAY MEETING AT WAYNESBORO.

On the spacious veranda surrounding the suburban residence of the President, Mrs. J. W. Alexander, an all-day session of the Waynesboro auxiliary was held on Thursday, September 16. The meeting was opened by the President reading a Scriptural greeting from Mrs. W. S. Davis, Sr., the revered chapter member of the auxiliary who was unable to be present. Mal. II was read and commented upon. "Rock of Ages," and "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," were sung, then Mrs. McQueen, secretary of the Meridian District, in a fervent, earnest prayer, invoked the Divine blessing upon the meeting.

Excellent papers on various activities of the Church were contributed at the forenoon and afternoon sessions. Mrs. McQueen delivered an inspirational address on the work and workers in foreign lands, and then gave a survey of the work in the home field, emphasizing the work in the district over which she so ably presides.

At noon a sumptuous lunch was partaken of and a social hour enjoyed.

The following forenoon Mrs. McQueen, in zeal and earnestness in the Master's work, organized a young woman's society, incorporating with it the young people's society which had been a benefit to the younger members of the church. Mrs. C. H. Cole will organize another young people's society with those who are now of age to join it. Much benefit and inspiration were received by the sojourn in Waynesboro of Mrs. McQueen, the devoted and consecrated district secretary. The auxiliary appreciates her services, as well as those of their energetic president, who labors faithfully in the work of the Kingdom.

Mrs. J. F. PON, SR.

A CORRELATED JUNIOR LEAGUE AND MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

A Correlated Junior Epworth League and Junior Missionary Society has been organized at Patterson, La., by Mrs. T. B. Clifford, with an enrollment of 25—nineteen of these being juniors and six babies. We meet every Sunday afternoon and follow some line of study. On the fourth Sunday the program from The Young Christian Worker is carried out. We have seven subscribers to this paper. Mite boxes have been given out and we have had one mite box opening, at which time $4.17 was taken in.

A Bible study class has been started and the children are working diligently for their ribbon diplomas. We use the Epworth League "Gold Book" and follow the order of worship in the opening and closing. Have only been organized six weeks and have made 46 visits to the sick and carried 18 bouquets. Sent to the Conference treasurer for dues $1.05; mite box, $4.17; and enrollment for six babies, $1.50. Total $6.72. Leaflets given out, 82.

Mrs. T. B. CLIFFORD.

WEEK OF PRAYER, NOVEMBER 7-13.

Let every auxiliary plan to observe the Week of Prayer this year. The entire support of the Pacific Coast work of the Home Department depends upon the collections this year. How is this money appropriated? It supports five Oriental preachers; it supports a night school with two teachers at Alameda; it supports two kindergartens; it supports various settlement features, like mothers' clubs, study hours, etc.; it helps in the upkeep of a Korean circuit of four appointments and a Japanese circuit of six appointments. If any auxiliary fails to contribute this year to the Week of Prayer fund it will curtail the appropriation for this work and cut it out of a part in this important phase of home mission work. How much is needed for the support of this Pacific Coast work?! $9700.

This is not the only use to which our Week of Prayer offering is to be put. The opening of the work of the Woman's Missionary Council in Japan depends upon liberal giving in every auxillary. The work to be undertaken is the support of six missionaries, nineteen Bible women, six kindergartners, and the Lambuth Memorial Bible Woman's Training School. The missionaries are Misses Maud Bonnell, Nellie Bennet, Ida Worth, Vanie Bell Williams, Annette Gist, and Charlie Holland. The last two are new and sailed in August. It will require $10,000 to enterprise this work.

Both of these amounts can be readily raised if our women will only remember that this season is to be one of fervent, earnest, prevailing prayer. If we enter upon it in this spirit then sacrificial, self-denying giving will follow, and our coffers will be filled to overflowing.

PORT GIBSON DISTRICT MEETING.

The Port Gibson District Meeting, held in Port Gibson on October 6 and 7, was a most enjoyable occasion. Our new district secretary, Miss Mabel Porter, presided over the sessions and did so with a grace and charm which won for her many warm friends. While the work is new to her, she impressed us as having a wonderful grasp upon it. She is making strenuous efforts to have an auxiliary in every church in the district, and where possible to organize the young people and children, too.

Mrs. B. F. Lewis was the only Conference officer present, but such a wealth of information, helpful suggestions, and inspiration as she brought to us! The opening service was given over to her and a deeply impressive address was made. After strongly presenting the work in the foreign land, showing how wonderfully doors have been opened in response to our prayers, and then holding the attention while ably discussing some phases of the home work and its great needs, she closed with the soul-stirring question: "What are you going to do about it?"

Only four delegates were present, but we felt that it was good for us to be there. Dr. Featherstun was in the midst of a revival service and a deeply spiritual air seemed to permeate our entire session. The presence, at the night service, of so many young boys and girls from the college was an inspiration, and the prayers went up from more than one heart that something might be said which would prompt one of those precious young lives to enter into God's service in a definite way.

We visited in the College and felt that it was a rare privilege to be the guest of Rev. and Mrs. O'Neil and their adopted family. It was from this same college that our Miss Nell Drake graduated and in after years went to China, that her life might be used of the Master in bringing light, hope and love into the hearts of heathen womanhood.

We are sorry for the women in the district who failed to attend this meeting. They are undoubtedly the losers. Take our advice and do not miss the next one. These meetings are a means of grace as well as schools of missionary information.

NOTICE.

For the benefit of those who have been interested in the Indian, Tom Jackson, we would say, please do not send any more board money to Brother Purcell, of the Montrose Training School. Tom Jackson lost his wife early in August and is so grieved over her death that he finds the pursuance of his studies impossible at present. This brother of the red skin should appeal to our sympathies and should have the prayers of every Christian in the Mississippi Conference. How hard it is for us to give up our loved ones! Pray that this poor Indian may find comfort and consolation in Christ and that time may bring healing upon its wings and that he may be able to accomplish the purpose which was his—of being a minister unto his own.

WINONA DISTRICT WOMAN'S MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Winona District was held in the Itta Bena Methodist Church on October 15. After morning devotionals which were conducted by Mrs. J. E. Coleman, the business session was called to order by Mrs. A. M. Pond, District Secretary. Mrs. J. W. Conger, First Vice-President, and Miss Louie Dunstan, Corresponding Secretary, were introduced to the body. The chair called for reports of the auxiliaries. Twelve adult and five young people's and junior societies responded.

Two interesting papers were read: "Woman's Missionary Work in M. E. Church, South," by Mrs. J. B. Ellis, and "Our Co-operative Home," by Mrs. Alexander, after which prayer was offered by Mrs. J. T. Carroll. A General Institute, conducted by Miss Dunstan, constituted a most interesting and helpful part of the program.

At noon a delicious and abundant dinner was served in the Sunday school room by the good women of Itta Bena.

The afternoon session was opened with devotional exercises by Mrs. J. E. Thomas. Business was resumed and the following papers read: "Young People's Work," by Mrs. J. W. Conger; "Our Periodicals," by Mrs. W. M. Campbell; "Scarritt Bible and Training School," by Mrs. C. A. Neal; "Missionary Study and Publicity," by Miss F. A. Gardner; "Our Orphanage," by Miss Bomer.

Indianola was chosen as the place for the next meeting. On motion a rising vote of thanks was accorded the ladies of Itta Bena for their hospitality and royal entertainment.

The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. J. E. Coleman.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

Can You Write a Letter Like This?

Mrs. Theo. Kuker, Florence, S. C., writes us under date of Aug. 29, 1915, as follows: "I have ordered 'RENWAR' for several people and many others come to me for the name and address. As my recovery has been so wonderful I am happy to recommend such a sure remedy. It has never failed to relieve those who used it." This is only one of many such letters received by us almost every day. You, too, can be well, if you will. "Renwar" relieves rheumatism by removing the cause, uric acid, from the blood. For sale by all druggists, 50c per bottle, or sent postpaid on receipt of price if your druggist cannot supply you. WARNER DRUG CO., Nashville, Tenn.

EXCHANGE YOUR OLD BODY FOR A NEW ONE.

You can do it in three weeks and thereby renew your health. This article is written by a physician who has seen it demonstrated in numerous cases and explains how it is done.

Listen: If your weight is one hundred and thirty-three pounds your body contains eighty pounds of water, for, according to standard medical books, the human body contains sixty-seven and one-half per cent of water. Now disease is invariably caused by impurities which we call poison, and these are readily dissolved by the right kind of natural mineral water. Drink ten gallons (eighty pounds) of Shivar Mineral Water (use no other water for twenty-one days), and you will have exchanged your old body for a new one, so far as the soluble part of it is concerned. The impurities will be dissolved and pass away. If you suffer with dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning, or other conditions due to impure blood, accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer which appears below. Read the following letter carefully; then sign and mail it:

Shivar Spring,
Box17G, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

Petal, Miss.

The little village of Petal, Miss., needs a Methodist Church, and ten of our leading men met at my house Friday night and adopted a plan to raise $500 by approaching one hundred men on a $5 proposition; so far we have been encouraged. We wonder if there are not some who read the Advocate who would not be in sympathy with a hustling, yet weak little community enough to invest $5 in this worthy cause. If you will allow our cause space in the Advocate we will appreciate it. I wish to say that we have been using the Church of the Presbyterian people and I think that we should make an effort to build one of our own. Brother H. Mellard, of Broad Street, Hattiesburg, Miss., is our pastor and a better man and preacher cannot be found anywhere. If this should be given space in the Advocate and any one should read and wish to contribute any amount let him mail his contributions to H. C. Norsworthy, Treasurer, Petal, Miss. I assure you that whatever may be sent will be properly used and that upon receipt of any money the Treasurer will mail a receipt to the donor stating if the Petal Methodist Church is not under construction by April 1, this money will be refunded. Thanking you in advance for any favorable consideration, I am,

Sincerely,
H. C. NORSWORTHY.

Fayette, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: It has been some time since my charge has had a "write up" in our Advocate; so I shall proceed to let you and any other interested parties know something of what has been transpiring in this part of the Kingdom. Of chiefest interest—to myself, at least—is the fact that since last writing you I have added unto myself a wife and I at last realize what I was missing all along while I was single. And here I might say that the good people of Fayette gave us a royal reception. My wife and I have only words of praise for the people of our town as to their hospitality. We found a well-ordered supper on the table and a well-stocked pantry awaiting our return. The Lord hath dealt kindly with us and we are thankful.

But to the work of the year. On the fifth Sunday in May we observed Children's Day, an interesting program being rendered and much interest being manifested in the entire service. A liberal offering was made. Then last week we carefully observed Work Day for the Orphanage and the result of our efforts was a contribution of nearly $35. On Easter Sunday we raised over $40 for this cause and we make a monthly offering also.

But most pleasing to me right now is the result of our meeting at Rodney last week. Brother Alsworth, of the Nebo work, was with us, and the Lord was with us indeed. There is scarcely any one in that thinly-settled section who is not a member of some Church, so we did not expect much increase. We laid out our energies in stirring up the church itself and in this the Lord blessed us. Several family altars were erected and the importance of tithing was so forcibly presented that several of our leading members in that Church have promised to tithe. The faith of all was strengthened and our church there has received an impetus that was much needed.

It is so near Conference, Dr. Meek, that I am not going to tell you just what I am doing on the claims assessed against us. I'll tell the Bishop when I am called on at Laurel, but I think I had better not make any promises before, because I might fall down. Suffice it to say, I will not be the cow's tail. I have enough now to be sure of that statement.

We will start our meeting here next Sunday week. Brother J. V. Bennett of Monticello will preach for us. Pray for us. We need a great spiritual awakening in Fayette.—M. F. Adams, Pastor.

Vancleave Charge (Miss. Conf.)

Dear Brother Meek: With the hope that these few words may find a place in your valuable paper, I will give a short account of the work we have been trying to accomplish here.

Our fourth quarterly conference has become a matter of history. With all members of the Quarterly Conference present but four, we had about as good a time as was possible.

All of our revivals have been held. We closed the revival campaign with our annual camp-meeting at the New Prospect Campground. This meeting proved indeed to be a time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. While we had rather a wet time in the beginning, we found the people making every effort possible to be at the campground on time, even going in the rain to be present at the first service.

We began the meeting at eleven o'clock on Thursday, October 14, with Rev. W. H. Saunders, of Fernwood, Miss., to do the preaching, which was of a high order and was acceptable to all who heard him. And the Spirit of the Lord seemed to be present at the first service, as was evidenced by shouts of joy and tears of repentance. Brother Saunders did most of the preaching, owing to the fact that the other brethren did not arrive in time to take a large part in the meetings.

Brothers John L. Carter and L. R. Roberts, local preachers on the charge, rendered good service which the Master saw fit to honor. Then Rev. W. H. Huntley, D. D., our presiding elder, gave us such a gracious sermon, seasoned with tenderness of grace, at the eleven o'clock hour on Saturday, October 16, that we were made to rejoice again. But the good times did not stop there, but kept getting better all along. To the delight of us all, Rev. I. W. Cooper, D. D., President of Whitworth College, came to us with his genial smiles and whole-hearted fellowship, and at the eleven o'clock service on Sunday morning almost lifted us into the third heaven. We sang hymns of praise and rejoiced in the fact of our fellowship with the Lord, our Savior. Faithful work was done by the choir throughout the meeting. It seemed as if the Lord accompanied and made effective our efforts from the very first service and we were all happy and felt that it was indeed a time profitably spent. There were 5 bright conversions, and several reclamations, six infants were baptized, and there was one addition to the Church by profession of faith.

The meeting closed Sunday night with a handshaking as a promise that we were going out to try to let the world feel that our religion is not a vain profession, but a living reality—a religion worth while—something not merely to be sought for, but to obtain and hold on to. It will do to live by and it will do when we come to die; for this old-time religion will take us all to heaven.

God bless the faithful ones who worked so valiantly for the success of the camp-meeting now closed. Eternity alone will reveal the good done. I wish you could have been with us, Brother Meek.

With the hope that this will not find the waste basket, I will close by saying that we have had five Children's Day services this year with a total collection of $26.15.—W. L. Blackwell, Pastor.

A Book of the Widest Interest Describing a Country of Infinite Variety

Seeing America describes every section of the country. The great cities with populations greater than those of many nations, teeming with people and expressing the latest developments of our civilization; the places which millions have visited as on a pilgrimage because of their historic significance; the resorts of fashion and pleasure where Americans spend their leisure; the magnificence of scenic wonders and natural beauty; the scenes of industrial activity where the great wealth of the country is produced—all these are described in the book with a fascination of narrative and an interest of detail that makes Seeing America remarkable for the enjoyment and instruction it holds out to the reader.

No other book of the kind describes so wide a variety of interesting places in America, or is so lavishly illustrated with photographic reproductions of famous cities and places.

Mount Rainier, National Park, Washington

The vivid descriptions in this book disclose to Americans the often undreamed-of picturesqueness and historical interest of their own country.

Increases the Love of Every American for His Country

Seeing America stimulates the patriotic feeling of the whole family. No one escapes its fascination. From the oldest to the youngest, parents and children alike will find something of absorbing interest in description and illustration. The lure of seeing people and places is universal, and those who cannot travel from place to place find pasture and profit in reading of those things which they cannot see. The author, who has been in the position both of those who long to go and of those who have been, clears up the hazy mental pictures of the former class, and revives the memories of the latter.

THE CRY OF THE HUMAN SOUL.

The image of God is stamped upon the human soul, and nothing but God can satisfy it. Its sense of orphanage and need has caused it to cry out after the Supreme Being in all lands and ages. This is the meaning of the sacrificial smoke ascending from pagan altars, of the towering temples built by heathen hands, and of the various religions that have come into existence among the scattered and benighted sons of men. Its echoes are heard all through the Canon of the Divine Revelation. The Psalmist voiced it in his passionate outburst: "As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God. My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God." It found expression by the Greeks who had come to Jerusalem to worship, when they said to the disciples, "Sirs, we would see Jesus." And when the Master, in sight of Calvary, was speaking his farewell words to the little band that he had chosen, this ardent longing again broke forth in the memorable utterance of Philip: "Show us the Father, and it sufficeth us."

The reason for this earnest outcry of the soul for God is because in the serious moments of life it knows, perhaps intuitively, the utter inadequacy of all other sources of help. It realizes that it exists surrounded by mighty forces that only a higher Power can control. It confronts mysteries and perplexities upon which it is aware human wisdom can shed no light. It is conscious of the fact that it must rapidly march to the grave and pass into the great beyond, and knows that no earthly hand can reach beyond the tomb to give it succor and assistance. It feels even in this life the sting of guilt and wants pardon and peace within, and these blessings, it soon learns, it is not within the scope of man's ability to bestow. God only can supply its primal and increasing necessities.

In this stupendous fact lies a great truth that Christians would do well to lay to heart. The Churches that have swayed humanity most in the past have been the ones that have appeared to wield most constantly and mightily the power of God; and so it will be in the future. This is what the suffering, struggling millions of mankind want to find and come into touch with. Its claim, spurious though it may be, to mediate between God and men and bring divine power and blessings into human hearts and lives, in our judgment, constitutes to-day the greatest source of strength that the Roman Catholic Church has, far outweighing the helpful influence of even its charitable and educational institutions. People, when overtaken by trouble and disaster, will turn to agencies that promise assistance, even though they may not be able to give it. That which inspires hope in men will ever appeal to them.

The true ministers of Jesus Christ should not merely AFFECT to represent him and exercise the power that he has pledged to those commissioned to be his special ambassadors, but they should do so in reality. We are inclined to think that the priestly (the intercessory, the mediatorial) function of the Christian ministry has perhaps been too much neglected among Protestants. To have God with him and to bring him consciously into the lives of others is the fundamental part of a preacher's work. And when God is manifest in any man so that the world can see him, he will not want for a hearing or a following. It was because he carried the rod through which flashed forth the Divine Power that the children of Israel were willing to follow Moses as their leader. Moses was too wise to undertake the task of leadership until that unmistakable proof that he was God's appointed representative was given him. God working through him and producing spiritual results that could not be denied, was Wesley's credential, it is Billy Sunday's credential, and it is the only credential that will continuously command the confidence of mankind.

The cry of deathless human souls still is, "Show us the Father, and it sufficeth us." Other things may engross their thoughts in their lighter, gayer moods, but in times of solemn reflection this deep longing, like a smouldering fire, again springs up within. A holy ministry, envisaging and reflecting Christ, both knowing and making him known, is the only kind that is efficient. Without this chiefest qualification, all other forms of equipment, however much ado may be made over them, are but "as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal."

Human agency, surrendered to God and used of Him, is, according to the divine plan, necessary to effect the salvation of mankind, but, apart from him and working in its own strength, human agency can achieve nothing toward that end. The world is not to be saved by the inventions and devices of men. As a rule these multiply in proportion as faith in God and his promised cooperation weakens. The Holy Spirit only can break the power of sin in the soul and impart to it spiritual life. A Pentecostal baptism upon its membership will contribute more to the true success of a church than all the schemes and contrivances that human ingenuity can produce. Not yet obsolete are those meaningful words that fell from the lips of our glorious Lord: "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."

More of Christ in our houses of worship and not moving pictures, grand opera or such like is what is needed to attract and hold the multitudes. The Church cannot compete with the world in show entertainments which must be ever changing to continue to command attention, but she can minister to the deep needs of immortal spirits and help to answer their earnest cry, "Show us the Father," as the world can never do. This is her noble mission, and herein she has an opportunity to render to the millions of the race a service that will outlive the stars, and of which the angels and the shining hosts of the redeemed will sing throughout all eternity.

NOT ALL THE GOOD THINGS NEW.

The New York Times, a short time since, invited twenty-eight of the leading novelists of the United States and England to respond to the question: "Which, in your judgment, are the six best novels in the English language?" Those selected in the order of popularity were "Vanity Fair," "Tom Jones," "David Copperfield," "The Scarlet Letter," "Robinson Crusoe," and "Ivanhoe."

The attention of persons who think that the generation now living is so far superior to those preceding it in its capacity to do high grade mental work is called to the fact that nearly all of these novels were the products of former decades. We must also turn to the past for the best poetry, as well as some of the best literature of other kinds. We would not have it to be inferred from what we have here said that we have any disposition to depreciate the work done by the scholars and writers of our own time; but we should recognize the fact that other ages have had men and women of genius, and that newness is not necessarily a guarantee of superiority.

THIS IN ILLINOIS!

The following is a part of a press dispatch sent out from Murphysboro, Ill., on Oct 16, 1915: "Joe Doherty (a negro) was hanged here to-day for the murder of Mrs. J. H. Martin, wife of a leading attorney of Southern Illinois. Two thousand persons crowded into a stockade to witness the execution."

Think of such a thing in the enlightened, highly civilized North! The attention of The Literary Digest and The Detroit Times is respectfully called to this occurrence. Surely they will not fail to administer due punishment in the public prints to the community that permitted this execution to take place publicly, with so immense a throng in attendance, after their arraignment and ridicule of the people of Starkville, Miss., for a similar hanging among them, which they had done everything in their power to prevent. True, the last mentioned execution took place in the "half barbaric South," and the other in the cultured Christian North, but that only makes more culpable the people across Mason and Dixon's line for more should be expected of those who lay claim to a superior civilization.

We shall watch with interest to see to what extent the citizens of Murphysboro are belabored by the Northern press for their lack of humanity and a proper sense of decency and propriety.

One should speak the truth even if it should bring upon him the opprobrium of being a pessimist.

"We must be ready to labor, not because we choose, but because we are chosen; and stop, not because we are tired, but because we are told."

THE MEANING OF PAIN.

The cry of man's anguish went up unto God:
"Lord, take away pain—
Lord, take away pain from the world thou hast made,
The close-coiling chain
That tangles the heart, the burden that weighs
On the wings that would soar—
Lord, take away pain from the world thou hast made,
That it love thee the more!"

Then answered the Lord to the cry of his world:
"Shall I take away pain,
And with it the power of the world to endure,
Made strong by the strain?
Shall I take away pity that knits heart to heart
And sacrifice high?
Will ye lose all your heroes that lift from the fire
White brows to the sky?
Shall I take away love that redeems with a price
And smiles at its loss?
Can ye spare from your lives that would climb unto mine,
The Christ on his cross?"

HUMILIATION AND CONQUEST.

By Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, D.D.

Principal Caird once observed that "we never are what we seem designed to be." There are in our natures the beginnings and materials of great things. The foundation is ever greater than the structure, the outline than the picture, the promise than the fulfillment. We can form soaring ideals of individual and social perfection and then deliberately grovel in the blood and dust of wholesale destruction. We paint a deity and envisage a demon. The idealizations mock the poverty and meanness of our actual life. Boundless possibilities, but miserable performances; endless capacities, but feeble developments; such a creature is man.

The survey is depressing, but a deeper insight shows that humiliation is the herald of our progress. If we did not feel these amazing contradictions, if the divine within us was not constantly warring against the beast, struggling to lift us into an honorable and clean existence, then our riddle would be read, and we should be food for the worms, and know not, neither care. For such insensates God could be nothing, Christ could do nothing. It is because we have these conflicting tendencies, because in the best of men and women we perceive the hints of a programme of life which centuries of righteous action could not overtake, that we who are in this body of death have hope. And the scale and loftiness of that hope is the promise and measure of our future achievement. Christ's presence here among us as his brethren has made the alliance between us and our Father and between us and our Redeemer the transcendent fact of moral progress and spiritual conquest. The more keenly we feel the unspeakable degradation of our iniquity, the more resolutely we appropriate by a living faith the life of Christ and the life in Christ, and the more his victories become ours. They are costly because they are precious beyond comparison. For they are God's expression of himself in us, and they will not cease until we come in the unity of the faith we have named unto the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ.—Brooklyn Eagle.

IS A MINISTER OLD AT 68?

A congregation the other day declined to "accept" a minister sent to it by the church authorities, giving as their reason that he was too old. The minister is only 68 years of age. So the question arises, is a minister old after having lived but 68 years?

Certainly he ought to be at his best, so far as the ministry is concerned. He ought to be possessed of such a wealth of experience, he ought to know so much about humanity, he ought to be such a philosopher and so poised, that he would be just enteriug upon the most useful years of his life after the storms of 68 years of age.

If a man is old at 68, it is because he has ceased to study and to learn. One never begins to get old until he eases up in study. So long as he devotes himself to learning something, so long as he wrestles with new problems, so long as he strives to attain something, he cannot grow old. Age comes when one has decided in his own mind that there is nothing further to be learned or accomplished by him. This is especially true where only the intellect is involved. The muscles may become flabby from use or the lack of use; the bones may harden and the arterics become less capable of taking care of the blood pressure; the hair may drop from one's head and the teeth from his mouth and the eyes grow dim. But the brain keeps young and fresh and quickened, where one studies or plans or thinks. So we must conclude if this minitser is old, it is because he "laid down on the job," as the boys say—because he has not tried to keep up with the procession of thoughts and ideals that the generations precipitate upon the world.—Jackson (Miss.) THE PRIMORDIALS OF LIFE.

By Rev. W. S. Harrison.

By these we mean the primal laws, or the basic desires of our nature. They are three in number: self-preservation, race preservation, and soul preservation. These are the first laws, manifesting themselves in the deep primal desires of normal men and women. These laws in natural conditions persistently tend to the best interests of the race. Their power is manifest in every legitimate phase of our complicated civilization. As man is triune in the fundamental constituencies of his nature, his life flows from a three-fold fountain. From these primary sources come all the activities of life.

1. Self-preservation, in the very nature of things, is the first law to assert itself. It demands activity from the very beginning of existence. Before the dawn of thought or reason, instinct is in action, quick, energetic, persistent. This great law has developed industry, foresight, ingenuity. Necessity from the beginning has been the mother of invention. Self-preservation has developed agriculture, commerce, and finance—the production, distribution, and sale of necessary food and clothing. It heartens the toilers in the heat and grime of the summer's sun. It sings with the reapers and shouts the harvest home. It hums in all the factories of the world, and is the life-blood in the arteries of commerce and the veins of business.

2. Race preservation. The instinct, the primal law, resulting in a strong desire for race preservation, being inborn, is universal in the human breast, except where nature has been perverted into an abnormal condition. The perpetuity of the race is best accomplished by the mating of one man and one woman in sacred wedlock. This is God's plan, and therefore the only one to be considered. This is the beginning of the family. The family is so necessary to the well-being of the race that it was instituted in the very beginning and has in some form been co-extensive with the activities of man.

The family is the origin, the strength, and safety of the State; the power, the bulwark, the glory of civilization, the support and hope of the Church. Families grow into tribes, tribes combine to form nations, and nations have blended into a world-wide social compact for commerce, trade, and general helpfulness. In all this race preservation is the dominant law. Of course, the things which primarily serve race preservation may also help self-preservation, the two great laws acting conjointly.

3. Soul preservation is demanded by a law, or strong desire within us, which looks to a higher power for the help we so sadly need, and which we are so surely unable to supply. The thirst for divine guidance has been gratified by a revelation from God, by which true religion has been revealed and the Church has been developed. Jesus came to complete this revelation, to fulfil its provisions, and to build the Church on the solid rock of truth, his own eternal nature, and to be the perfect example, or pattern, of the kind of life which makes the Church immortal. He meets the necessities of our immortal souls. Therefore, in him we find the completion and satisfaction not only of our moral nature, but of our entire life. He is the Desire of all nations. The offspring of the race, the Son of Man and also the Son of God, he is the head and representative of the race, bringing it back to God. This meets the great want of our spiritual nature. It is the divine response to man's primal need and satisfies the thirst for soul preservation.

The first two of these great laws we share in common with all animated beings. But the law of soul preservation is peculiar to man. It is the law of his spiritual nature and it works to the best interests of his soul. In the final test it is found to be the most potent law of our nature. The law of self-preservation is, of course, the first to assert its power. The other two are later manifestations, but are none the less powerful. It is the most common lesson of history that men will put life in jeopardy for the common good. The birth of each child is at the peril of the mother's life. Thus we see there is a law superior to that of self-preservation.

But the history of the race shows that men and women will suffer more, will voluntarily impose on themselves suffering for what they consider the demands of religion to a greater extent than they will in any other cause. Sin is the most terrible calamity in human experience. When man is fully alive to its awful reality and begins to plan for release the first thought is that of sacrifice. But what is sufficient to atone? "Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousand rivers of oil? Shall I give my first-born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?"

This trend of thought has led to human sacrifice, to half-starved lives in lonely dens and caves of earth, to painful pilgrimages, to self-lacerations, and to many other forms of voluntary suffering. This same false reasoning has given such terrible character to what are known as holy wars. When men are fully persuaded that the war is holy and that all who die in it are surely blessed with eternal salvation, they become absolutely fearless and fanatically obsessed with the idea of making the final grand success of life by throwing themselves recklessly into certain death. In all ages people have suffered martyrdom rather than imperil the interests of the soul.

Here surely we see manifestations of the deepest inborn desire of man. To meet this desire, to satisfy this longing, Jesus came. We see, therefore, how his life tones with manifest fitness to the primal condition of our being. The highest conception of sacrifice has been met. The completest satisfaction of the soul has been provided. God has been manifest in the flesh and man has been raised to communion with God. Jesus has met, fulfilled, satisfied the deepest primordial law of human life.

A FINE PASTORATE.

With the approaching session of the Louisiana Annual Conference Rev. Thomas H. Morris will close a pastorate at Mansfield, which deserves more than a passing notice.

Spiritually, the improvement is noticable. Congregations have increased and the Sunday school, under the superintendency of Mr. J. H. Thatcher, has trebled or quadrupled in attendance and has increased even more in efficiency. The missionary societies have been increased in membership and largely increased in offerings to missions as well as to the local work. Three Epworth Leagues have been organized and kept going during the whole four years. Several great revivals have been held during the quadrennium and members have been added to the Church.

As might be expected, the material interests have grown with the spiritual interests. The Board of Stewards is a splendid company of business and professional men. Every one of the four years has seen some decided material result achieved. The first two years were devoted to paying off debts on the church and parsonage, aggregating about $7500, and the following notable improvements have been made: The pipe organ has been overhauled and a new electric blower and electric fans installed; a new piano has been bought and paid for; the parsonage has been overhauled and remodeled inside until it is now one of the most comfortable parsonage homes in the Conference. The latest improvement is the construction of the Sunday school annex to cost $4250, which will be furnished, paid for, and in use before the session of Conference. There were during the quadrennium two substantial raises in the pastor's salary, putting it among the first-class churches of the Conference. The total collection for the four years for all purposes will exceed $40,000, an average of over $10,000 per year. The total membership has never exceeded four hundred. This is a remarkably creditable work, comparatively speaking. Brother Morris has insisted upon Bible methods of raising money, eliminating suppers, bazaars, etc., and substituting instead direct giving and tithing. Everything is always paid in full.

Brother Morris has also been a friend to Mansfield College. One very noticeable service was raising the money to save the old church property in Mansfield for the College. To have lost this would have ruined the College campus.

As many of the preachers know, in addition to his own heavy labors, he has ever stood ready to help them in meetings, as far as he could, as well as in Conference campaigns, and he has many times gone beyond his physical strength in such labors.

In all the work of the Church Brother Morris has had the untiring and efficient help of Mrs. Morris; but her particular work has been in the Leagues for the children and in the Missionary Society. Her heart has been in every phase of the work and her hand ready for every good deed.

A STRATEGIC LOCATION: AN EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY.

By Rev. A. C. Millar, D. D.

Centenary College is one of the most valuable assets of Louisiana Methodism. It has a proud history. Its new location at Shreveport is strategic and in every way admirable. The building is substantial and convenient, and the campus is naturally picturesque and susceptible of artistic development. Shreveport is a strong city with a great future. It is capable of co-operating in establishing a good educational plant. Wisely encouraged, it will do its part. No college or university is near to divide patronage. High schools, found in every progressive town, will supply the students. The universities will gladly accept the graduates.

Endowment is needed, at least $200,000, to maintain an adequate faculty without undue sacrifice, and laboratory equipment to meet present-day requirements. The time of probation should be past. Now a vigorous forward movement for strengthening and enlargement should be projected. For self-preservation Louisiana Methodism must furnish its own leaders in the ministry and in secular life. For this the college is imperative. It is vital. A radius of 150 miles measures the influence of a college. There is practically nothing in such a circle to compete with Centenary, if it is properly endowed and equipped. Wisely planned, a campaign now should succeed. Postponement may be costly. Methodism in Louisiana can establish this plant. Let it be done.

These reflections have been suggested by a recent visit to Shreveport. I was wonderfully impressed with the possibilities of the city and of our First Church, and pleased with the location and outlook of Centenary College. The initial work is good. Loyally backed, its prospects are bright. Having seen many colleges, I am convinced that Centenary, at Shreveport, offers a great opportunity. The faithful President, Dr. R. H. Wynn, is laying solid foundations. The time has come to build larger and better. Let the Louisiana Conference back this brave President and say that a strong small college shall be maintained. Now is the time of testing. Now is the day of opportunity. Let it not pass unimproved.

THE DOCTORATE.

Dear Brother Meek: Many years ago I asked the lamented Dr. E. C. Slater about the contract to confer the D.D. on a certain preacher. His reply was: "If you obtained your information from Prof. J——, it was doubtless correct. Some men regard the doctorate thusly." I have found that to be true. But some regard it otherwise. The late Dr. A. T. Goodloe (a medical doctor who earned the title before he entered the ministry), of the Tennessee Conference, was much distrssed about what he thought was ungodly ambition on the part of preachers in seeking such a distinction, and at one session of the Conference he offered a resolution condemning the ambition, and, if I am not mistaken, proposed legislation to regulate the evil. Bishop Keener was in the Chair, and, looking straight into the face of the Doctor, inquired: "Are you in earnest, brother?" The Doctor replied, "I am."

A few nights after Dr. Goodloe's onslaught, I dreamed that Rev. J. T. Duncan, a member of the same body, offered a resolution requiring all the D.D's. of the Conference to wear green hats. The resolution was adopted, and next morning there was a considerable sprinkle of D.D's. in the Conference room, each one adorned with a green hat. On some heads green hats are appropriate.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., President

Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Sec'y

Rev. C. A. Battle, Treas., Baton Rouge, La.

(This Department is conducted by Rev. W. W. Drake, Conference Secretary of Education, and Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Publicity Commissioner.)

NOTICE.

By order of the Chairman of the Board of Education of the Louisiana Conference, the Board is called to meet in Mansfield, at such place as may be designated by the Mansfield pastor, on Tuesday, November 16, at 2 p. m.

W. WINANS DRAKE, Secretary.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

The Executive Committee of the Louisiana Conference Board of Edueation met at Louisiana Avenue Church on Wednesday, Oct. 27, and went thoroughly into all the educational interests of the Conference, so as to facilitate the work of the Board at Conference time. Plans were discussed for the rally on Friday evening, Nov. 19, the interests of Mansfield College were carefully considered, and the necessity of securing the $12,500 to meet Mr. Blair's proposition by Jan. 1 was emphasized. To this end, the preachers are urged to bring up in full as far as possible the balances on the Centenary special, which may become part of the necessary amount, and will materially help to secure it.

In connection with the meeting, one of the leading preachers of the Conference stated that when he gets the Advocate he opens it first at this department. We wonder how many other preachers do the same, and how many read it carefully every week.

A SUGGESTIVE BOOK FOR PREACHERS AND OTHERS.

A book under the title "Christianity and Education," by Dr. Frederick Eby, Professor of the History of Education in the University of Texas, which appeared some months ago, contains a rather comprehensive and very suggestive study of the relation of the Church to education. We heartily commend it to the attention of all our preachers and forward-looking laymen who are interested in this vital and timely subject. Though written by a loyal Baptist, and naturally giving a fuller account of the edueational work of that denomination than of others, it is by no means a sectarian study, but is characterized by a broad spirit of Christian liberality. Perhaps the fact that such books are being written and read by the leaders and members of the Baptist Church is closely connected with the fact that that denomination is making marked advance in the work of education, sometimes outstripping the Methodists in their interest in this work.

The work referred to is well worth the careful study of every preacher or other leader in the Church, because of its able discussion of the province, aims, and justification of distinctively Christian education, particularly at a time when the problem is critical and vital on account of the assumption of superior broadness and excellence on behalf of secular institutions. In addition to its value in deepening and intensifying the convictions of those who are our leaders as to the imperative duty of the Church to provide and patronize Christian colleges, and in furnishing to the thoughtful preacher suggestive material for effective sermons on Christian education. It is valuable likewise in its clear and convincing discussions of such subjects as the relation of evangelism and education. The style of the book is clear and readable, and the arrangement logical. A brief review of its contents may help to introduce it to those progressive men who are on the lookout for helpful books on vital themes.

Part One deals with the history of Christian education, finding its preparation in the Hebrew system, its basis in the work of Christ as a teacher, and tracing its development through the apostolic, primitive, medieval, reformation, and modern periods, and discussing the rise of Christian colleges in America, the development of theological edueation, and the present-day tendency toward the secularization of all the schools.

Part Two, in discussing the theoretical basis of Christian education, presents in a vital way various phases of the subject. The danger of secularized education are pointed out with the conclusion that "secularized culture has broken down, and that the educational world is to-day in the throes of a revolution." He finds that "fully half of the people of this country are growing up without any real religious instruction of any kind." He traces the Scriptural teachings on education, points out the function of religion in education, bringing the testimony of some of the world's greatest educators to establish the fundamental importance of religion in a well rounded development of the young. Our author clearly and strongly states the reason why the Church should maintain educational institutions for the development of ministers and efficient leaders among the laity, showing the value for this development of the Christian atmosphere in college life and the power of such personal influence as is possible under the conditions of the Christian college. Concrete and convincing studies are given of the efficieney of the small Church college, and of the relation of Christian education to denominational expansion and missionary progress.

Part Three, treating of the organization of Christian education, discusses the various agencies concerned in elementary education, the home, the Sunday school, and the public school, and pleads for some wise co-operation between these agencies, with the suggestive statement, "If the home and the Church shirk responsibility, our people will be in fifty years a nation without a religion." The work of Christian institutions of higher education is treated with reference to problems of maintenance, organization, curriculum, etc., in Church colleges, and in regard to Christian training in connection with State institutions.

This brief and inadequate statement of the contents of the book will serve to indicate its general character, and to point the preacher who desires to carry out efficiently the disciplinary mandate which requires a sermon on Christian education once a year, a source from which he may get suggestions and facts which will enable any earnest and thoughtful preacher to present convincingly this vital interest of the Church. The book may be ordered of Smith & Lamar for $1.50, and the Dallas House will be requested to have a supply on hand at Mansfield, so that the Louisiana preachers may have a chance to examine and purchase it.

NOTICE.

The Committee on Admissions of the Louisiana Conference will meet at such place as may be designated by the Mansfield pastor on Tuesday, November 16, at 4 p. m. All persons applying for admission on trial, re-admission, admission from other Churches, or expecting to be admitted into full connection will please see that they are properly represented at that meeting, so that the work of the Conference may not be delayed.

W. WINANS DRAKE, Chairman

SCHEDULE OF CONFERENCE EVENTS.

The probable members of the Committee on Public Worship have agreed on the following order of events for the approaching session of the Louisiana Annual Conference:

At 2 p. m. daily, beginning Wednesday, there will be a prayer and praise service, in answer to a special request. Rev. W. L. Poss, Jr., will have charge of these services. There will be preaching at 3 p. m. daily, when nothing else conflicts.

These dates have been given in the order asked for. The committee felt that this was the only course to pursue.

THANKSGIVING CARS FOR ORPHANAGES.

Dear Brethren: We are planning to run several cars to Jackson, Miss., for the benefit of the Methodist and Baptist Orphanages, and we are anxious to make a success of the undertaking. May I depend upon you to take the matter up in your community, and interest, with you, others who will push the work? Please with their assistance see all the people in your community and induce them to aid in filling these cars.

The car plan is a great success where it is well worked. On account of the boll weevil and other conditions in certain sections of our State the contributions will necessarily be cut off, so we shall need to make an extra effort to secure contributions in money and provisions for our orphan children.

In the two Orphanages we have more than 450 children to be fed, clothed, and warmed. Besides the money that you can give, they can use anything to eat or wear for girls or boys from 2 to 16 years old. Get your people to send molasses, corn, flour, sugar, grits, cured meats, lard, all kinds of canned goods, all kinds of dishes, and boxes of clothing, shoes, hats, hose, elastic, soap, pins, needles, thread, buttons, pencils, tablets, quilts, blankets, sheets, pillow-cases and towels.

The railroads are better pleased when we fill the cars well and so are our orphan children. Appoint a soliciting committee, get them to secure contributions of goods, then arrange with some one to carry them to the depot in due time and the car will pick them up and carry them to Jackson. Mark every package plainly either to the Methodist or Baptist Orphanage. Please see to that.

Trusting you, I am yours for our orphan children,

J. B. RANDOLPH,
Superintendent Mississippi Methodist Orphanage.

THE NEW ALBANY METHODIST CHURCH.

By Rev. S. L. Pope.

There is one preacher who should not be forgotten by New Albany Methodists. He wrought so well, with such large faith in God and his church in New Albany, that amid the most unpromising and discouraging circumstances, he planned and organized what is known now as the Methodist Church of New Albany.

In 1885 the Rev. D. L. Cogdell, now of South Side Church, Corinth, was sent to the New Albany Circuit by his Conference. I do not know what other churches composed this circuit at that time, but they were such in number that Brother Cogdell could only preach here the fourth Sunday night in each month. His services were held in an old church [illegible] that stood west of the present Baptist Church. This old church was burned in December, 1913.

Rev. W. D. [illegible] and Brother Cogdell held the first Methodist revival ever conducted in this town. There were between 50 and 100 conversions, but somehow most of them went to other churches. I feel sure that this fact revealed to Brother Cogdell with increased emphasis the necessity of organizing a Methodist Church here, which he proceeded to do, having just eight charter members.

Shortly after the organization of the church a session of the district conference was held here, which was followed by a great revival, conducted by the noted and lamented Rev. George Inge. Many people joined the Methodist Church as a result of this meeting. In the meantime, Brother Cogdell was busy gathering funds to buy a lot and build a church. I quote from a letter recently received from Brother Cogdell in which, after stating that Mr. G. S. Mitchell gave the front of the lot on which the church now stands, he says: "When the building was framed, and all the outside work was done, I had no money (owing to the building of two railroads through the town, I had to pay $77 for hauling lumber, and $100 for the rear part of lot; this left me entirely without funds). I had begged for money all over the country, so I went to Memphis, put up at the Gaston Hotel, stayed two weeks, and when I returned I had pews, paper, two stoves, lamps, and two nice chandeliers, all paid for."

Since then the church has had a gradual increase in members, year after year, until now, just 30 years from its organization, there are 350 members, more than 350 on the roll of its Sunday school, 90 in the Home Department, 65 in the Missionary Society, a prayer-meeting that averages 75 in attendance, the pastor is paid $1500, the presiding elder $200, and the budget for the benevolent claims is $600.

Extensive preparations are being made for the approaching session of the North Mississippi Conference, which will assemble on December 1. The brethren will find a splendid, whole-souled, open-hearted type of hospitality awaiting them when they come to Conference.

REV. S. L. POPE.

Rev. S. L. Pope was born in Rome, Ga., and was reared in the State of his nativity. He was educated in the common schools of that commonwealth and at Young Harris College, attending the latter institution for four years. He left Rome in 1904 to become a member of the Indian Mission Conference and was admitted at McAllester in the fall of that year. His first appointment was Webber's Fall Station, in the Indian Territory, and, following his pastorate there, he was sent to Oak Lodge, Indian Territory, to teach in the Oak Lodge Seminary, in which institution he was an instructor for three years. While there, he met and married Miss Minnie Nichols, a Mississippi young lady, who was also a teacher at Oak Lodge. His next appointment was Waggoner Station, which he served for two years. He was then transferred to the North Mississippi Conference, in which he has served the following charges: Hebron Circuit, Amory, Hillhouse, Brooksville, Second Church, Columbus, Senatobia, and Itta Bena. He was stationed at New Albany two years ago, which is his present field of labor.

REV. S. L. POPE.

Brother Pope is a man of sterling character and consecrated life, an instructive and helpful preacher, and a faithful and popular pastor. He is possessed of studious habits and carries no unbeaten oil into the sanctuary. He is thoroughly loyal to the Church and believes in insisting upon a high standard of Christian living. He has given an excellent account of himself in every field in which he has wrought and is held in high esteem by all who know him. He is one of the solid men of his Conference, true, manly, and unselfish, and gives promise of still larger usefulness in the coming years. Perhaps not a little of the success that he has achieved in his fields of labor has been due to the fact that he had so efficient a co-worker in the person of his accomplished and consecrated wife, who does not spare her strength in the work of the Master. The North Mississippi Conference is fortunate in having Brother Pope as its host, and may feel assured that he will leave nothing within his power undone to make its approaching session a pleasant and profitable one.

A WORD FROM BISHOP THIRKIELD.

Dear Dr. Meek: I wonder if our preachers and laymen fully realize the large value of such a Christian organ as the New Orleans Advocate, not only in broadening the horizon of the reader, bringing him into vital touch with modern movements in the Kingdom of God, but also in giving fresh, forceful, and illuminating material for sermons and addresses. On my Westward journey I have taken a number of copies of your Advocate, accumulated during my absence from the city. I have just made several clippings that have vital relation to addresses and sermons, formerly used or now in course of preparation, so I give you this note of thanks.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The presiding elders who have not sent me the names of lay delegates will please do so at once. I also request that the names of those coming up for admission and orders be sent. PLEASE BE SURE TO INCLUDE THE P. O. ADDRESS of all persons whose names are forwarded.

I am, furthermore, forced to ask the brethren not to expect provision to be made for preachers' wives. We would do this gladly and willingly if we could, but we cannot. New Albany will be ready for the brethren on December 1. Our town is small and the number of homes necessarily limited; hence the request about our sisters.

ALWAYS IN A HURRY.

I know a little maiden who is always in a hurry,
She races through her breaktast to be in time for school;
She scribbles at her desk in a hasty sort of flurry,
And comes home in a breathless whirl that fills the vestibule.

She hurries through her studying, she hurries through her sewing
Like an engine at high pressure, as if leisure were a crime.
She's always in a scramble, no matter where she's going.
And yet—would you believe it?—she never is on time.

It seems a contradiction until you know the reason,
But I'm sure you'll think it simple, as I do, when I state
That she never has been known to begin a thing in season,
And she's always in a hurry because she starts too late.

—Words of Cheer.

HOW BETTY WAS PUNISHED.

Betty sat on the porch and kicked her heels into the graveled path, and as the dust flew up she scowled until her little nose was all wrinkled up. For Betty had been a very naughty girl! Guess what she had done. She had broken mother's pink cup with blue flowers painted on it, and then ('cause she didn't want mother to know) she said that Tommy (Tommy was the pussy cat) had knocked it off the table. And Tommy, the poor kitty, had been put out of doors and not given milk for dinner.

A little bird sat in a tree and sang, and when he sang it sounded as if he said: "Naughty little Betty! Naughty little Betty!" And a big bull-frog in the little brook croaked, and it sounded just as if it said: "Poor Tommy! Poor Tommy!"

And then Tommy came walking around the side of the house and looked mournfully at the little girl on the steps. And when she called to him he said, "Meow" sadly, and ran away. And Betty felt so badly that she stopped kicking the path, and jumped up and ran across the lawn to the orchard. And when she got there she lay right down under a big, fat apple tree and cried.

Betty lay there for a long time, crying, and crying, and crying, when suddenly, right behind her, she heard a loud "meow."

And, looking up, she saw Tommy, the pussy cat, standing beside her. And oh! he had other kitties, lots of them, with him. One was a gray kitty, and one was a yellow kitty; and there were black kitties, and white kitties, and tortoise-shell kitties; and yes, Betty had to rub her eyes to be sure, there was a pink kitty trimmed with blue flowers, just like mother's cup.

Betty was rather scared, but she was much more scared when Tommy spoke up.

"Gentlemen," he said, in a loud voice, "this is Betty, the little girl who doesn't tell the truth."

The gray kitty looked at her with a sad shake of his furry head.

"Is she the little girl who said that you broke the cup?" he asked.

"Yes," answered Betty's Tommy.

"Why did you do it?" asked a fat black kitty; "answer, Betty, and tell us why you were such a bad little girl."

"I didn't mean to be," sobbed Betty in a small, frightened voice; "mother's pink cup got in my way and I knocked it over—"

"But why," said the yellow kitty, "did you say that Tommy did it? And why didn't you ask the cook to give Tommy his milk? Tommy is so, so hungry!"

"I am sorry," said Betty again.

"What good does that do me?" asked poor, hungry Tommy. "I haven't had my dinner, and maybe I won't get any supper, either. Go, tell your mother the truth, Betty, and then she will ask the cook to feed me."

Betty shook her head stubbornly. "No, no, no!" she cried.

The pink and blue kitty spoke up for the first time.

"Kitties," he said, "Betty is a naughty little girl. She told a story which cheated Tommy out of his dinner, and now the horrid little girl will not tell her mother the truth. Tommy must eat something! Why not have him eat Betty?"

Betty tried to run away, but she couldn't stir from the ground. And the kitties grew bigger and bigger until they were twice as high as Betty. And then they all licked their paws (just for all the world as if Betty were a little mouse). And just as they were going to jump at her she screamed, and—

Betty opened her eyes. The orchard was quite dark, and there was not a kitty in sight, not one! And then Betty knew that it had been a dream—an awful, awful dream; so she jumped up and ran to find her mother. And oh! how nice it did seem to see mother walking down the path, and Betty threw her arms around her mother's neck and said:

"Oh, mother, darling, I broke the pink cup with the blue flowers on it, and won't you forgive me and give Tommy some milk?"

And mother said:

"Of course I forgive my little girl, but she was very naughty to make Tommy bear the blame. Betty, promise me never to do it again; always tell your mother everything."

And then she kissed Betty, and they went to the kitchen and gave Tommy a big saucer of thick cream.

And when Tommy saw the cream he began to purr—and guess what he did. He looked right up at Betty and winked his big, green eye!—M. E. Sangster, in Sunday School Times.

WOULDN'T STAND SWEARING.

A boy who attends one of our Sunday schools went out into the country in the summer to spend his vacation—a visit he had looked forward to with pleasure. He went out to help the men harvest. One of the men was an inveterate swearer. The boy, having stood it as long as he could, said to the man:

"Well, I guess I will go home to-morrow."

The swearer, who had taken a great liking to him, said: "I thought you were going to stay all summer."

"I was," said the boy; "but I can't stay where anybody swears so. One of us must go; so I will go."

The man felt the rebuke and said, "If you will stay, I won't swear;" and he kept his word.

Boys, take a bold stand for the right; throw all your influence on the side of Christ, and you will sow seed, the harvest of which you will reap both in this world and that which is to come.—Messiah's Herald.

"DOCTOR AND JUDGE."

Dear Dr. Meek: I notice in the issue of the Advocate of October 28th that our good brother, E. H. Cunningham, of Myrtle, has an article on the above subject. In this article he says: "In my humble judgment there is no cause for alarm. Certainly there can be no greater danger to the minister on account of some people applying the term 'Doctor' to him than to the lawyer addressed as 'Judge.'" He seems to overlook the fact that "two wrongs never make a right." The little "ding" that he takes at the lawyer is not argument.

The point which we tried to make in our former article on this subject is that the world has always, and I hope always will, find the true guide in the ministry, and that it is deception which the public, not the minister, exhibits over his shoulders by applying to him a title which he has not earned, and which (at least in many instances) he does care to falsely wear. We tried to set out in our brief article the causes for the false practice. We placed the blame on the public and on the secular press in an effort to magnify the ministry. But at the same time we tried to show that it is wrong, because it puts the minister himself in a false light before the world. The small lawyer may find comfort in being called "Judge," and the small minister may likewise find consolation in being called "Doctor," but it is our firm conviction that no man who is big enough to ever win the title will care to wear it until his time comes or until he has earned it. Our Church is full of preachers big enough to wear the title and it will sit gracefully upon them when it is bestowed. They will keep quiet, look with disfavor upon false titles, and wait until the "degree" has been conferred before they try to wear it. It is only those who can never really earn it or win it that will complain.

"He who is a Doctor, will know it,
Without having others to blow it."

Holly Springs, Miss. W. A. BELK

The Baptist Standard thinks that a statue of Adoniram Judson should be placed in the Hall of Fame at Washington, D. C. Commenting upon this suggestion, the Northwestern Christian Advocate says: "Certainly the man who went as the first foreign missionary from America, the pioneer in the most significant of all modern world movements, deserves this recognition."

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

REMEMBER THE ADVOCATE.

We trust that the pastors in Louisiana and Mississippi, in winding up the work of the year, will keep in mind the interests of the Advocate, and seek to secure the renewals of the delinquent subscriptions in their charges. A word from the pulpit on this subject would help, though a direct personal solicitation, where possible, would doubtless prove more effective. We shall appreciate anything that you may be able to do for the paper, brethren. A representative of the Advocate will be at each of the three patronizing Conferences. Let us begin now to make 1916 the greatest year in the history of our Conference organ, as well as the greatest year in the history of Methodism in this section. We can do it if we will.

MEETING OF THE PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

The Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate was called to order by Dr. J. M. Henry, Chairman, at 2 p. m., on Thursday, Oct. 28, 1915. Rev. T. W. Adams led in prayer. All the members of the Committee were present. Dr. J. M. Henry was elected Chairman; Rev. W. W. Drake, Secretary, and Mr. J. D. Barbee, Treasurer. J. M. Henry, W. W. Woollard, and J. W. Cooper were elected as an Executive Committee.

The editor, Dr. R. A. Meek, read his report, which was received. The report was interesting and suggestive. The editor can not only use a versatile pen, but he also understands the needs of the paper. Few papers in Southern Methodism are so well edited as the New Orleans Christian Advocate. The editor is true at all times to the old landmarks. Bishops Hoss and Candler have pronounced the New Orleans Christian Advocate one among the best of the Advocate family—no better endorsement.

The report of the publisher of the Advocate, Mr. C. O. Chalmers, was read and received. There was a slight decrease in the receipts from subscriptions. The present circulation is 6500. This shows a decrease as compared with last year. The falling off was due largely to the pruning process used by the publisher. Those who are next to Mr. Chalmers understand the sacrifice and arduous work connected with his office. He deserves the thanks of the Church. His entire receipts from subscriptions and advertising for the past year were less than $9000. Were it not for the job printing which he does, it would be an utter impossibility for him to give the Church such a paper on the present terms. Mr. Chalmers enjoys the respect and confidence of the entire Publishing Committee. The Committee is gratified to announce the re-election of Dr. Meek and Mr. Chalmers for the ensuing four years.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, 1. That the Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate are pleased with the report that the publisher has made for the financial depression of the past year and is pleased to see the paper so well established.

"2. That the pastors of the Committee are the men on the firing line and realize the necessity of keeping the paper in the attention and support of their people. Will they not take the matter for their own good.

A Forward Movement Endorsed.

The following resolution regarding a forward movement was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That we set 10,000 subscribers as the next goal number that we should arrange to secure at once, and that the Executive Committee be instructed to cooperate with the editor and Conference in putting on a vigorous campaign to produce this result."

Of the 3500 new subscriptions to be secured, the following apportionment was made: 1000 subscribers from the Mississippi Conference; 1000 from the North Mississippi Conference and 500 from the Louisiana Conference. At present only one out of 20 members in the North Mississippi Conference, one out of 24 members in the Mississippi Conference, one out of 20 members in the Louisiana Conference subscribe for the New Orleans Christian Advocate. With an united effort, we should at once make this number, one subscriber for every twelve members. This would give us our 10,000 subscribers.

There never was a time when the Church more needed urgently than now a revival of Methodist doctrines in the hearts of the people. If the Church is to have a gracious revival of Methodist doctrine, of missionary spirit, of educational interest, of honoring God with her substance, of a clearer vision of our Savior, we must have an enlarged sense of the necessity of the circulation of Christian literature. Brethren of the ministry and the laity, give us your help and your prayers, just now, in behalf of the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

J. W. COOPER,
For the Publishing Committee.

DR. H. M. DuBOSE CHOSEN.

At a meeting of the Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Nashville, last week, Dr. H. M. DuBose was elected to succeed the late Dr. Gross Alexander as Book Editor and Editor of the Methodist Review Quarterly. This selection was promptly confirmed by the College of Bishops, then in session at Dallas, Texas. We are indebted to the Methodist News Bureau (Nashville) for the following facts concerning the life of this distinguished minister:

"Son of Rev. Hezekiah and Amanda Hawkins DuBose. Born in Choctaw County, Ala., Nov. 7, 1858. Boyhood days spent partly on a farm and partly in town with his father in the mercantile business. Education received in primary schools, in Waynesboro Academy (four years), and under private tutors. Converted in 1866. Licensed to preach (Mississippi Conference) October 1, 1876. Became pastor at the age of 19. List of appointments: Mississippi Conference—1878-79, Chotard Circuit; 1880, Fayette Circuit; Texas Conference—1881-82, St. James Church, Galveston; 1883-84, Huntsville; 1885-86, Shearn Church, Houston; 1887-88, Marvin Church, Tyler; Los Angeles Conference—1889-90, Trinity Church, Los Angeles; 1890-94, editor Pacific Methodist Advocate; East Texas Conference, 1895-96, Marvin Church, Tyler; Mississippi Conference—1897, First Church, Jackson. Elected Sec'ty of the Epworth League in 1898. He continued in the Epworth League Secretaryship until 1910, when, at his own request, he was not re-elected. Transferring to the North Georgia Conference in 1910, he was appointed pastor of St. John's Church, Augusta, and in 1912 was appointed pastor of First Church, Atlanta. He has been a member of five General Conferences and of two Ecumenical Conferences (1901 and 1911). He was fraternal delegate from the [illegible] Christian Missionary Convention.

Dr. DuBose possesses a remarkable literary taste and extraordinary versatility. He is a poet and has published a volume of verse. He is a writer of books and a preacher and has proved to be a power in the fields of [illegible] the daily and periodical press. He is a Masonic scholar and an effective platform speaker. [illegible] the last years he has given his attention largely to the writing of books of historical merit and has among these the 'Life of J. D. Barbee,' 'Life of Bishop Key,' a Biographical study of 'The Life of Virginia Soule' and 'The Story of Methodism.'

The new Book Editor is a man of great faith and a tireless worker. What means much in these days when so many men prominent in the Church are shorn of their influence and are trifling with the times, he has a practical capacity for business. We feel sure that he will make Southern Methodism a great service in the vital field to which he has been called.

We congratulate the Book Committee upon its choice and the Church upon the fact that interests so important have been committed to the hands of one who is so true and capable.

TO HAVE A SUMMER TERM.

The Candler Bulletin of Emory University contained the following interesting announcement:

"With the year 1916 the Candler School of Theology will become a four-term school, a summer term occupying the months usually given for vacation. The primary purpose in establishing this summer term is to benefit those students who may find it impossible to remain in school during the four terms or who for any reason may desire to shorten their courses. Such students will be able to take regular work during the summer terms, and thus materially shorten their three years in residence.

"But the school hopes that, in addition to offering advantages to regular students, the summer term may be of service to pastors of churches who feel the need of such an opportunity for study during their vacations. For this reason some recitations will be held six days a week during this term, in order that the work may be compressed into as short a time as possible. A full course of sixty hours, which is given in twelve weeks during the other three terms, is thus given in ten weeks in the summer. And in order to further accommodate the pastor who desires to use his vacation in this way, the summer term is divided into parts of five weeks each. The second part falls almost entirely within the month of August, which is the month most popular for vacations, and during each of these parts half courses complete in themselves will be offered. No matriculation fee will be charged for the summer term. Dates for the summer term in 1916 will be: First half, June 21-July 25. Second half, July 26-August 29."

It greatly pleases us to know that the Candler School of Theology is planning to do work of this kind. It has long needed to be done, and we doubt not that it will exert throughout the Church in the coming years an influence that will be vastly beneficial. Hundreds of our pastors ought to avail themselves of the splendid opportunities thus opened to them. We think it is desirable, as far as may be possible, to induce Southern Methodist preachers who wish to pursue summer courses of study to take them in our own institutions. In our humble judgment, the South has been dependent educationally upon other sections of the country quite long enough—far too long for her own good, in some respects.

REV. R. A. SIBLEY DEAD.

Just as we are closing our forms, we are in receipt of the following message from Rev. C. M. Crossley, of Forest, Miss.:

"Rev. R. A. Sibley, the oldest member of the Mississippl Conference, passed away on Sunday afternoon, October 31, at 2 o'clock. Brother Sibley was nearing the century mark."

We regret to chronicle this news, which will touch with sadness many hearts in South Mississippl. Brother Sibley had wrought worthily and leaves behind an unsullied record. Our heart goes out in tenderest sympathy to the hereaved. We hope to be able to give a fuller account of the translation of our honored brother in the next issue of the Advocate.

OUR HONOR ROLL.

On this roll will be placed the name of every church and pastor that succeed in placing the Advocate in every Methodist home. So far it stands as follows:

1. Pontotoc, Miss., Rev. J. H. Holder, Pastor.

ADVOCATES WANTED.

The issues of the Advocate of October 14 and October 21 have been exhausted, and if any of our subscribers have those numbers that they do not care to keep, we would highly appreciate their kindness if they would send them to us.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Annual Conferences are almost on us. Lend your pastor a helping hand in rounding out a full report.

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Starkville, Miss., received 35 members into the Church last Sunday—32 of them on profession of faith and 3 by certificate.

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, of Sherman, Miss., reports the outlook in his charge as highly encouraging. Liberty Church is being given a coat of paint, and things are being shaped up for Conference.

Rev. A. R. Hoffpauir, of Covington, La., writes as follows: "I am at the bedside of my brother, A. W. Hoffpauir, pastor of the Covington charge. He is seriously ill, and I request the prayers of the brethren for him."

The "Autumn Revival" at Meridian College, Meridian, Miss., began on Oct. 29, and is expected to continue until Nov. 7. The services are being conducted by Rev. Joseph Owen, of Alabama, and much interest is being manifested in them.

Major R. W. Millsaps, of Jackson, Miss., sent Rev. W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, $100 a few days ago to be used in the interest of our churches in New Orleans that were injured by the recent severe storm.

At the late session of the Los Angeles Conference, Rev. D. Scarborough, our pastor at Santa Ana, Cal., was appointed presiding elder of the Arizona District. Brother Scarborough was formerly an esteemed member of the Mississippi Conference.

Rev. A. Inman Townsley has recently held a series of revival services at Rayville, La., in which the preaching was done by Rev. J. W. Lee, of Lake Providence, and Brother John B. Kelly led the music with his cornet. We are not at this writing informed as to the visible results of this evangelistic campaign.

The following Bishops attended the fall meeting of the College of Bishops held in Dallas last week: Bishop E. R. Hendrix, Bishop J. S. Key, Bishop W. A. Candler, Bishop H. C. Morrison, Bishop Collins Denny, Bishop J. C. Kilgo, Bishop W. B. Murrah, Bishop W. R. Lambuth, Bishop E. D. Mouzon, and Bishop J. H. McCoy.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: Rev. A. I. Townsley, Rayville, La., 3; Rev. J. L. Greenway, Silver Creek, Miss., 2; Rev. S. A. Brown, Okolona, Miss., 4; Rev. W. A. Bowlin, Sherman, Miss., 2; Rev. A. S. Oliver, Eden, Miss., 2.

Rev. W. J. Wood, of Sweatman, Miss., sends us a club of 6 trial subscriptions from his charge (Mars' Hill), for which we extend to him our thanks. Referring to his work, he says: "Things are moving on fairly well. We have had good revivals at all our churches, and this charge will make a better report to the Annual Conference next December than it did last year."

Mrs. Carter H. Bradley (nee Edla Davis), a sister of Rev. R. A. Davis of the Louisiana Conference, died at her home in Lafayette, La., on October 12, 1915. She leaves a daughter, a husband, a brother and a sister, and a large connection of nieces and nephews to mourn her departure. She was a native of Tennessee, and was a consistent member of the Methodist Church.

The pastor and Epworth League of the Carrollton Ave. Church, New Orleans, are planning a special service for old people next Sunday, Nov. 7, at 11 o'clock a. m. Invitations have been sent to a number of elderly persons and automobiles will be sent to bring those who otherwise could not attend. The order of exercises will be appropriate to the occasion.

The Young Men's Prayer Meeting, of the Methodist and Baptist Churches of Brookhaven, Miss., celebrated its anniversary in the Baptist Church of that city last Sunday night. Rev. W. H. Lewis, of Jackson, Miss., who formerly was the Methodist pastor at Brookhaven and had a hand in the organization of this prayer meeting, was booked to preach the sermon of the occasion.

Rev. T. M. Bradley of Shelby, Miss., reports that all the Conference collections assessed against his charge have been paid in full, as also have been the salaries of the pastor and presiding elder. Forty members have been received into the Church during the year. Brother Bradley declares it to be his purpose to place the Advocate in every Methodist home in his charge at an early date.

Brother J. W. Sturdivant, a layman on the Tyro (Miss.) charge, in renewing his subscription to the Advocate, expresses great appreciation of Rev. T. E. Gregory, his pastor, who is rounding out his quadrennium, and expresses regret that he will have to go to another field. We are not surprised to hear such a sentiment voiced concerning Brother Gregory, who is a workman that needeth not to be ashamed.

A correspondent sends us the following note: "The pastor, Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., and the people here at Poplarville, Miss., closed a two weeks' series of revival services which were a wonderful help in toning up the Church spiritually, and in which there were several conversions. As a result, the outlook for a successful winding up of the work of the year is much brighter than it was prior to the meeting.

Brother S. E. Kirby, under date of October 27, writes: "Rev. Dan Kelly, Mississippi Conference Evangelist, and I recently closed a meeting at Camden, Miss., which lasted 8 days. It was a great success—there were 51 additions to the Churches. We are here in Canton now in a great meeting with Rev. M. M. Black. We will go from here to Longstreet, La., where Rev. G. D. Anders is pastor. Pray for us."

In a business letter to our office bringing us some subscriptions, Rev. W. A. Mangum, of Denham Springs, La., appends the following note: "Our work is progressing very favorably, considering the stringency of the times. I began my meeting at Holden, where we recently finished our church on October 24, and it is still in progress at this writing. We are praying for a gracious season of spiritual refreshing."

A letter from Rev. P. O. Lowrey, of Westlake, La., bearing date of October 23, brought us two additional subscriptions. Brother Lowrey, in his communication, said: "At the beginning of the Conference year there was one subscriber within the bounds of this pastoral charge; now there are 22, including the pastor's—a net gain of 21." Brother Lowrey has done a telling work for Methodism along all lines in his present field.

A Shannon, (Miss.) correspondent says: "Rally Day was delightfully observed by the Sunday school at this place on October 24, from 10 to 11 o'clock. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the program was one of constant and captivating interest. The enrollment in this school is larger than the membership of the church. Mr. W. M. Miller, of the Bank of Shannon, is the faithful and efficient superintendent."

Rev. O. J. Chandler, who, after serving our First Church at Lexington, Ky., for four years, was recently transferred to the Louisiana Conference and stationed at Alexandria by Bishop James Atkins, has, we are informed, made a fine impression upon his new parishioners. He is said to be a man of uncommon gifts as an expositor of the Word. We trust that he may be largely used of the Master in this section of the Church.

Writing under date of October 30, Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., of Poplarville, Miss., says: "The parsonage at Carriere, Miss., where my brother, Rev. James A. Lewis, is pastor, was gladdened on the 29th ult. by the safe arrival of James Marvin, Jr., who was heartily welcomed to this world of smiles and songs and sorrows and tears. Brother James and his wife feel rich in the possession of this new boy." The advocate extends congratulations to the happy parents.

The Methodist News Bureau (Nashville) says: "A letter written by Bishop Hoss from Manila on September 9, on his way from Australia to Japan, gives a glowing account of his stay in Australia. He states that his health has improved every day since leaving home, that he traveled 4000 miles in Australia, delivered thirty sermons and addresses in the chief cities, and that he was most graciously received by the people everywhere. He further states that he expects to be home by December 15."

From a letter from Bishop R. G. Waterhouse, written from Los Angeles, Calif., on October 27, we take the following: "You will be pleased to know that while my health has not been sufficiently restored for me to take up my work, I am steadily improving and expect to recover fully." We are delighted to have this good news, which we feel sure will make happy Bishop Waterhouse's many friends in the Advocate's patronizing territory. Let the brethren continue to remember this honored chief pastor at the throne of grace.

Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Myrtle, Miss., writes: "Our fourth quarterly conference has been held and the usual good reports were made. My quadrennium will soon be completed, and my successor will find a most loyal and cooperative people. The work has made good progress in all respects during the past four years. The membership in the charge has been doubled." The quarterly conference referred to by Brother Cunningham adopted resolutions expressing a high appreciation of the service which he has rendered and assuring him of a deep interest in his future career as an itinerant minister.

The Legal Conference of the Louisiana Annual Conference met in the Advocate office on Tuesday, October 26, with the following members in attendance: Dr. J. M. Henry, Dr. R. H. Wynn, Dr. J. T. Sawyer, Mr. S. H. Meyer, Mr. W. W. Carre, and W. B. Thomson. Information was presented that the Bynum plantation had been sold to the Red River Land and Cattle Company, of Kansas City, Mo., for $43,500, which increases the Bynum fund to $57,500. This, together with another fund in hand amounting to $4000, makes the total holdings of the Louisiana Conference for its superannuates $61,500.

From Buckholts, Texas, on Oct. 23, Rev. J. W. Campbell, an ex-Mississipplan, wrote us as follows: "The Lord most signally blessed my labors during the past year, in spite of the adverse conditions existing in my charge. The August hurricane destroyed two of our churches, but within two months we worshiped in a new church at one of these points—rebuilt from the foundation up. Great are these Western people! They are not afraid to undertake great things, and when they get busy there is something sure to be accomplished." Brother Campbell has been transferred to the New Mexico Conference and stationed at Fort Davis, Texas.

Rev. J. A. Poe, of Sidon, Miss., writes: "Mrs. J. W. McElroy, most of whose life was lived at Columbus, Miss., died in Memphis, Tenn., last night. She was one of the oldest citizens of Columbus and had long been a member of our First Church of that city. I never knew a more ardent church worker. She was a helper of the helpless and the friend of everybody. We have lost a mother in Israel." Sister McElroy was the mother of Sister Poe and of Dr. J. B. McElroy, one of the most brilliant physicians in the Bluff City. She was indeed a burning and shining light, and has left behind her a noble record. May the Heavenly Father comfort the bereaved!

Read what Rev. J. B. Randolph has to say elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate about cars to be run in the interest of the Methodist and Baptist Orphanages at Jackson, Miss. These cars should be loaded to their full capacity. It seems from what Superintendent Randolph says that only about $1900 had come in from "Work Day" up to the close of last week. That sum is not creditable to the 125,000 Methodists of Mississippi. The less than 40,000 Methodists of Louisiana went considerably beyond that sum on the "Work Day" observed for their Orphans' Home at Ruston. Let the Mississippi Methodists retrieve themselves in this respect during the approaching Thanksgiving season.

Rev. S. A. Brown, of Okolona, Miss., under date of Oct. 28, writes: "The Sunday school Institute for the Aberdeen District closed last night at Houston, Miss. Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, our Conference Field Secretary, and Mr. A. L. Dietrich, our Divisional Superintendent, were with us and did most excellent work. They are both men of large vision and are suggesting methods of work and plans of organization that are calculated to work a great revolution in the Sunday school work of our Conference. Mr. Dietrich is a man of pleasing personality, very affable, and has a wide reach of information. He met the officers and teachers of our Sunday school at Okolona last evening and made a most impressive address."

The revival services in the Methodist Church at Sardis, Miss., which continued eight days, closed last Sunday night, with 15 additions to the membership, mostly on profession of faith. The pastor, Dr. H. G. Henderson, was assisted by Evangelist J. O. Hanes, of Birmingham, Ala., and his singer, Mr. W. G. Waltermier, of the same city. The local paper at Sardis, speaking of these brethren, says: "Evangelist Hanes is an earnest, eloquent, and popular preacher, and a sweet-spirited, consecrated, earnest revivalist, whose work the Lord signally blesses. Brother Waltermier is a great helper in the work by his singing, and a fine leader of song services." Large crowds attended the meeting, and great interest was shown and much good done. A number of persons gave their names to join other Churches.

CORA WILL McMORROUGH, daughter of C. H. McMorrough and Cora Wilks McMorrough, was born on Sept. 27, 1911, and died on Sept. 23, 1915, lacking fourteen days of being four years old. Within these narrow limits there was compressed a little life of unusual gifts. Her mentality and development beyond her years while she was but a little more than a babe when the loving Father called her back to Him, yet she had learned of a Savior's love and gained freely of Jesus during the four years of her life. The simple faith of a child is beautiful indeed. It was a sad day in that home when the little body of Cora Will was laid in the tomb, but they sorrow not as they that have no hope for she has gone to be with Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

W. C. CURTIS.

Mrs. REBECCA OWENS was born in Warren County, Miss., on Oct. 24, 1843. She was married to Mr. Wm. Owens on July 27, 1865. Of this union several children were born, all of whom died in infancy, except one little girl who lived to be about 10 years old, and then went to a better world. About seven years ago Mr. Owens died, leaving Sister Owens alone in the world, except for two cousins who were very dear to her and with one of whom she made her home in her last years. Sister Owens had belonged to the Methodist Church a long time and was as true and loyal to her Church and pastor as she knew how to be. Though a poor widow with no income, save a very small pension, she never failed to contribute her dollar once a month for the support of the preacher, and to make a contribution for the various benevolent causes besides. Sister Owens was really and truly a good woman. Her's was a real Christian character. She died on Sept. 14, 1915, as she had lived, trusting in Jesus. We buried her in the Old Red Bone churchyard, the dearest place on earth to her while she lived, and her chosen resting-place while she awaits the glorious resurrection morning.

Her pastor, L. L. ROBERTS.

NATLEY HANSON was born on January 27, 1835, and died on June 4, 1915. Nine years before the writer was born there came to Jefferson County, Mississippi, from Prince George County, Maryland, Mr. Natley Hanson. He arrived in our community the day Cane Ridge Church was completed. Soon afterwards, on December 31, 1867, he was married to Miss Lizzie Watkins, a daughter of the Rev. C. C. Watkins of the Mississippi Conference. Their home was one mile from ours, and connected were they by a narrow path through a brake of cane and oak and pine, over which our childish feet hurried many times a day, from one home to another. Childless through life was this couple, but for that the father and mother of us all. Several children left parentless found refuge in their home and the love they craved in their arms. How we loved to go there! Wonderful were the stories he told us. The more wonderful that they were true, telling them while busily he worked at the carpenter's table, with hammer, and ax, and saw; stories of war, for he had been with Lee in many battles—at Richmond, at Gettysburg, where he was wounded on August 8, 1864; of imprisonment, for he was captured, and on David's Island was a prisoner. Of all he saw and suffered, we loved to hear, over and over again, until he was our hero, our father, our mother. Of pure genuine, honest manhood, sincere affectionate true, no community had an superior. Brought up an Episcopalian, later he joined our Church, whose doctrines he came to love and which, especially in his last months of suffering, brought him peace and even joy. Nearly all the homes are broken now. How the years have gone by! His neighbors fell asleep, but he was left to old age. The cane-brake is cleared away, the little pathway is forsaken and both homes are desolate. He died on June 4, 1915, and on the next day we had him to rest near the old Church where sleep most of the neighbors he loved. Who knows he has joined them in a better world, where they, together, shall await our coming. His widow, making her home at Lorman, with her sister, Mrs. Willie Watkins, is comforted in the memory of a good life and in the expectation of a new day.

A WEDDING AND A FUNERAL.

By H. Walker Featherston, D. D.

It was a golden wedding, and a wonderfully beautiful wedding, with the big home tastefully and beautifully decorated with Southern smilax, golden-rod, roses and autumn fruits. The six daughters, four granddaughters, and three great-granddaughters, many relatives, some from far distant States, and a host of friends crowded to the festivity.

Just at eight-thirty Charles Adams Taliaferro led in his bride of fifty years ago, Elizabeth Macon Rice, dressed in white as on that other wedding night, October 3, 1865, in the old home in Copiah County. The writer talked a little of that long ago occasion, just after the great war, when the Confederate soldier-boy led his girl-bride to the altar in the Mount Hope plantation home, and then Dr. T. B. Holloman prayed, and all the assembled guests tendered congratulations and good wishes, there was music and merry making and much joy.

But early the next morning the writer was called to the home across the street and found that the semi-centennial bridegroom of the evening before had quietly slipped away to the other land. He had seemed feeble as he stood before the preachers the night before, but later, reclining on the sofa, received the visitors very cheerfully, and no one realized that he was so close to his "home over there."

It was a beautiful death in the glow of his golden wedding, with his children, some from other States, gathered about him. He went without a groan or a murmur, only saying a while before he slipped away, "There is nothing the matter with me—I am just tired—that's all."

When a mere boy, having been born Sept. 18, 1844, he entered the Confederate army in 1861, and served in Company D, 12th Mississippi Regiment. He was wounded in one of the battles in Virginia; and when his wound healed, reported for duty; but, as he was unfitted by his maimed arm for further service as a regular infantryman, he was made a courier, and in this difficult and dangerous work served until the war ended, surrendering with Lee.

For a number of years he lived here near the parsonage. The preachers and everybody else loved him. He was worthy—a quiet Southern gentleman of the old school. He was a member of our Church, always in his seat near the front when able.

I am glad that I have known him, for he was "one of God's good men."

Be Pretty! Turn Gray Hair Dark

Try Grandmother's Old Fashioned Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded or streaked or gray and adds marvelous growth and stops falling hair. There is no other way to get this mixture as good as to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Now-a-days by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.

Save your Hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

THE NEW TEACHER-TRAINING COURSE.

Upon the announcement that the Sunday School Board had adopted a new Teacher-training course for the Sunday school workers of the M. E. Church, South, and that one book was ready for delivery, I at once ordered this book, and, after a careful examination, I am delighted with both its method and its matter. The book—"The Pupil, the Teacher, and the School"—is by W. C. Barclay, Educational Director of the Board of Sunday Schools of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and it has these three distinct advantage over "The Legion of Honor," the book that has been used in our First Standard course ever since our Teacher-training department was organized:

1. It starts with the pupil rather than the Bible as the first subject studied. Since the studies in Biblical history and geography, as well as memorizing the books of the Bible, are the hardest part of the whole course, and the studies in child nature and nurture are the most attractive, there is a decided advantage in this change. In fact, this Biblical work in the former course was of so brief and complicated a nature that many classes "stumbled and fell" here and never got beyond it, or else so many got discouraged that it was hard to rally them with zeal again. The new course avoids this, and the very first work is of the greatest interest.

2. The former course was so brief that the minimum work was on the pupil and the maximum on the teacher. In the hands of such a teacher as Dr. Hamill, its illustrious author, these brief outlines and concise sentences trembled with life, and when put on the blackboard by him nothing could have been more effective in impressing truth upon the mind of the pupil. But there was only one Dr. Hamill, and many teacher-training class leaders made a failure of many of the author's most happy schemes and blackboard exercises. The new course is an improvement here, the discussions in the book being fuller and more explicit, giving the pupil more to do and the teacher less to explain, and thus making it easier for the leader to teach the class, which removes one of the greatest hindrances to successful teacher-training classes in many of our churches.

3. The present course is also superior to the former, in that considerable space is given at the conclusion of each lesson for helping both the pupil and teacher in the practical application of the lesson. These are in keeping with the best pedagogical method and the science of teaching. A fine series of "questions on the lesson," references for supplemental reading, "memory assignments" of various steps in the lesson, and the use of many Biblical and other illustrative readings are here given a place of great helpfulness.

With this inspiring first book of this new course before us, it would seem that a pastor could hardly let a Sunday pass without calling his Sunday school and church workers together for organization for this work. No one is more conscious of the need than the workers themselves, and in most cases, either in the town or country church, all that is necessary to enlist them is to give them a chance. The class can meet in connection with the weekly prayer meeting on a separate week night, or in a country church after Sunday school on those days when there is no preaching. Or a class of prospective teachers might be organized from the senior and young people's classes to meet at the regular Sunday school hour, using the teacher-training course rather than the regular Sunday school lesson in the class work. If there is any place in the educational world where there is a crying need for efficiency, it is in the case of the teachers of our Sunday schools. Our preachers are being educated, as are our day school teachers, with special training for their peculiar work, and our Methodist Sunday school teachers must not be allowed to lag behind.

A SUCCESSFUL INSTITUTE.

The Sunday School Institute held at Sardis, Miss., on Wednesday and Thursday, October 16 and 17, was indeed a most profitable one. We count it a very great privilege to have had Mr Dietrich and Rev. R. H. H. Gladney with us. We shall always be grateful for the inspiring messages and splendid help they gave us. Mr. Chisolm was with us on Thursday and gave us quite a helpful and interesting talk in the afternoon on "Teen age work." The weather was very inclement and our attendance was not as good as might have been, but those who were present have a new vision and a greater desire to know God better and to do God's will more perfectly. We praise the Lord that these men of God have been called to do this specific work and pray that every effort that they may make may be crowned with glory and honor.

BOILS NEEDN'T BOTHER YOU.

Gray's Ointment puts an end to them right away. This remarkable ointment was first prepared in 1820 by a North Carolina physician. For nearly a century the American people have found it the most effective preparation for all eruptions and abrasions of the skin, burns, cuts, wounds, bruises, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, sores, etc. It speedily heals the skin trouble, and prevents the development of blood poisoning, which not infrequently rises from a neglected sore or cut. "The best remedy I ever tried for risings, and all my friends who have tried it say it beats anything they ever used," writes Miss E. M. Manley, Auburndale, Fla. EVANGELISTIC WORKERS COMMENDED.

One of the greatest revivals Meridian has ever had recently closed. Brother G. A. Klein, of Nashville, Tenn., conducted the meeting and Professor P. M. Boyd led the singing.

At the concluding service the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, a revival has been in progress in Meridian since September 5, conducted by the Klein Evangelistic Party: be it resolved by this audience of some three thousand people:

1. That we, the people of Meridian, do hereby heartily commend the work of Mr. Klein for its great power and wonderful scope; for the earnestness of his activities; for the truth contained in his messages, and for the sane and old-fashioned gospel of pure religion presented.

2. That we hereby express our appreciation of the splendid work of Professor and Mrs. P. M. Boyd in conducting the musical work of the revival.

3. That we hereby acknowledge that all glory and honor are due to our God for the thousand souls reclaimed and converted, and all the other good accomplished.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished Mr. Klein, and Professor and Mrs. Boyd, and the press.

Lime-Loss in Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (January 17, 1913), was the following:

"It has been many times stated that in tuberculosis or in the pretuberculosis stage an increased amount of calcium (lime) is lost both in the urine and feces. In fact, a demineralization has been thought to be a forerunner of the development of tuberculosis."

If tuberculosis is due to lime loss, the success of Eckman's Alterative in its treatment may be due, in part, to its content of a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Always we have urged consumptives to attend strictly to matters of food, but often some effective remedial agent is needed. In many cases of apparent recovery Eckman's Alterative seems to have supplied this need. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so is safe to try. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

DOING A GREAT WORK.

Dear Brother Meek: Brothers R. H. B. Gladney, Field Secretary of the North Mississippi Conference, and Mr. A. L. Dietrich, Divisional Secretary for the Gulf Division, are planting good seed for the Sunday school. They need and merit more hearts to gladly place themselves under their earnest sowing. They were here with us last Thursday and Friday holding a Sunday school conference for the Durant District. We feel greatly benefited by their coming and faithful labors. If they could touch all of our Sunday school superintendents and teachers by their wise, practical instruction and Christly inspiration, this very important cause of our blessed Church—studying the Word of God and saving souls—would leap forward. These men are well equipped for this ready, rich field, which is truly white unto harvest. There is no place in the Church of God where men, women, and children can be so readily reached, taught and prepared to seek Christ in regeneration and become efficient in Christian service as in the Sunday school. It is part of the gospel preached, and no mean part. Preachers are generals in the gloriously great army of Christ, but generals cannot win battles alone. Let us give the leaders the best chance possible. J. M. WYATT.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

A PROFITABLE MEETING AT HATLEY.

This meeting was held on the Smithville Circuit, in the Aberdeen District, by Rev. W. D. Bass, of Corinth, Miss. Hatley is an inland town, about four miles east of Amory, where there are two Baptist churches—the Missionary and the Primitive Baptist. The Antioch Methodist Church is one and a half miles away; so the meeting was held in a large tent. Great crowds attended, especially at night. There had been much preaching in this part of the country on immersion as the only Biblical form of Baptism, and Methodism had been belittled and ignored; so in this tent meeting Brother Bass preached the Gospel from a Methodist view-point with unusual clearness and power. His methods were sane, Scriptural, and Methodistic. He used the old-time altar services and made only a Gospel exhortation to get the people there. All the services were spiritual, and yet he preached much on the great controverted doctrines of Christianity, and in each case God helped the preacher to impress the public with the truth as held by the Methodists. The meeting did great good for our Church in giving a clearer conception of its teachings and in reviving the spiritual condition of its membership. This was shown in the recent report of the stewards at the quarterly conference and in the enthusiasm which they are manifesting in behalf of their pastor, Rev. D. C. Foust. The whole spirit of the Antioch Church breathes with new life, and vital enthusiasm prevails among its members. Brother Bass' meeting here, under God, will abide and do good for years. I write this note to the Advocate for two reasons: first, to commend the work, and, second, to stress the importance of preaching the great doctrines of the Bible that made Methodism great in other days and that must now save Methodism in the country. And this preaching must be done by men who understand these doctrines and enjoy the power of them, and who are students and preachers of ability. Such are the men we must have as Conference Evangelists—men who help the Church and the pastor and force the critics of the Church to respect her, and who save sinners. Such was the meeting held at Hatley by Rev. W. D. Bass. W. M. YOUNG.

Eat Less Meat If Back Hurts

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, and bladder irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous Salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

THE TROUBLE IS NOT INSIDE.

The myriads of parasitic germs which cause Tetter, Eczema, Ringworm, Itch, Acne, Salt Rheum, etc., cannot be killed internally. They live and feed on the surface and must there be treated. Tetterine is the common sense treatment that has scientific principles to back it up. E. A. Kennedy, druggist of Brooklyn, Fla., says: "Tetterine has cured quickly and permanently several stubborn cases of letter that came under my personal knowledge. REV. A. B. MOWERS ADVOCATES NERVE REMEDY.

Nervous indigestion is one of the commonest of the many forms of nervous trouble. It is very hard to treat usually, but those who have used Dr. Miles' Nervine all report that it was not long before their trouble vanished entirely.

Every ailment must have a cause and the cause is what should be removed. When the cause lies in the nervous system Dr. Miles' Nervine cannot be too strongly advocated. It is backed by thirty years of successful use.

The Rev. A. B. Mowers, of York, Pa., is an ardent advocate of this remedy since it completely relieved him. He made the following statement for publication:

"Nearly 10 years ago I was troubled with nervous indigestion in its worst form. I had sick headaches nearly every day with a dizzy, dull feeling. I was extremely nervous, confused and suffered much with constipation. I was informed of Dr. Miles' Nervine and Liver Pills and determined to give them a trial. I used them as directed and received much relief. I continued the Nervine until I had used several bottles. I now enjoy good health, relish my meals, and can eat any kind of food without fear. I take pleasure in recommending Dr. Miles' Remedies to the public."

Dr. Miles' Nervine or Liver Pills can be purchased at any drug store and the purchase price will be cheerfully refunded by the druggist if after using the remedies you are not satisfied with the results obtained.

From the Field.

Coahoma, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are closing a good year on this delightful charge. We had good meetings at all the places and received into the Church some of the best people in this country. We were ably assisted by Rev. G. W. McLain at Bobo, and by Rev. J. E. Cunningham at Coahoma and Lyon. Both of these men are fine preachers and present the truth in a peculiarly striking manner. I had had them before and that is why I called on them again. If Providence does not hinder me, I am not through with them either.

Brother Spragins recently made us a pastoral visit at the parsonage. We enjoyed having him. You know how we enjoy a visit from the presiding elder when he is not on official duty. You will recall how pleased you were when the preacher "used to drop in a little unexpectedly." Brother Spragins is looking well, and you know he is a good presiding elder.

Many of our people have been sick—some so seriously so that they had to submit to the use of the surgeon's knife, but the Lord has been good, and though he slay us, we will trust Him. While we have suffered with the afflicted of the charge, we have been wonderfully blessed in not having a day's real sickness in the parsonage. I sometimes wonder at God's great goodness.

I want to say that the Methodist who fails to read "Wesley and His Work," by Bishop Candler, will miss one of the rare treats he could easily have. The "Fraternal Address before the British Wesleyan Conference at York, England, in 1908," and "John Wesley, Defender of the Faith" are each worth many times the price of the book.—Walter Jones, P. C.

Coldwater, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: The meeting in Coldwater, Miss., held by our pastor, Brother Roberts, and his brother, Luther, from Vicksburg, was, in every way, a great and profitable meeting. I am sure of one thing: the preaching and personal work of our visiting brother, Luther Roberts, was of a high order and evangelistic to the core. He went to the bottom of things and preached truth "deep as the center."

Many were the slain of the Lord, and the Church has grown and multiplied here, because of such a consecrated messenger and his messages. The work will abide. Twenty-five were added to the Church. The Church is on a higher plane. The people have a more exalted idea of what the spirit-filled minister and congregation stand for—not in forms and ceremonies, the beggarly elements of the world, but in power and demonstration of the Spirit.

This is glory enough for any mortal man to be able, under God, to bring to pass. Such a blessed work as this was done by this man of God. We not only appreciate him, but we love him, and shall esteem him highly—for his work's sake—evermore. Our Roberts is a team, too, strong and true. Anti-Christs, et id omne genus, fall by his sword. You should hear him.—T. W. Dye.

MY LAST REPORT.

Dear Advocate: The short days and long nights, the cool mornings and the yellow leaves, and the reports of Conferences just held, admonish me that a new season is at hand—Conference times! A time when the efficient and the inefficient members are required to give an account of themselves. Superannuates, as a rule, have little to report, but that little will be required. I have had one appointment at home in the morning, and have filled appointments for some of the near-by pastors—H. B. Perritt, J. W. Alford, and E. G. Wood. I got along so well two or three times, that, as a Paddy would say, I had a little "consate" about preaching, but alas! my next effort would be such a failure that I closed without conceit.

I have suffered more in body this year than in any preceding year since my superannuation, and yet it has been one of my happiest years. I have prayed more, and with entire resignation to the Lord's will, have been content. The neighboring preachers and their families have visited us, and shown us much kindness. Brother Perritt and his good wife came up from Selma on the 5th of August, with a fine dinner, and spent the day.

Now, if I fail to get to Conference at Mansfield, I have sent my report to our good Brother Meek. God bless the Advocate and all its readers!

Olla, La. H. ARMSTRONG.

THOSE "ISMS."

Dear Doctor Meek: Our Brother "Layman" in the Advocate of October 21 is indignant, and justly so, concerning the false teaching which is propagated in some parts of his territory, and, no doubt, also in some other sections of our Methodist Zion. His righteous soul is vexed, and should be, and certainly a remedy for such distresses should be procured. The pastor should post himself and should "go loaded," as Bishop Key once advised under similar conditions. The Methodists are a people of peace and preach a gospel of peace, but, as was said by an Irish preacher, "when the truth is fallen down in the streets some one should lift it up."

The "rural districts" I suspect are not the only places infected. "Town people" even have heard about that "Can't sin" business and "Once saved always saved" doctrine. The District "Elder" too should "pick his flint" and open fire at the big quarterly meeting occasion. Of course, he should preach in the city station and certainly he is highly competent when such grave duties have been committed to his hands. He, like the pastor, took the vow to "drive away all erroneous and strange doctrines, contrary to God's word," and is supposed to be out for anything needed, especially so in any section where the supply of proper "ammunition" is a bit scarce with the pastor, or for any reason which might appear to be sufficient. False teaching reverberates from even the big centers at times. The antidote should also be sounded forth at the proper time. Of course, good gumption and sound common sense must prevail as to the time and treatment. Some things are too small to notice. The preacher "loaded for bear" can not afford to disturb the country by exploding his good hunting shells at small game and snow birds. A modest preventive or silence entirely is better still in some cases than full treatment. Shooting on suspicion might hit on occasions, but it is better to have the game in sight. The "specialist" for such cases would be O. K. at the expense of the local congregation, if he could be on the ground without notice and administer at the psychological moment. Confusion, however, is easily stirred up in that direction, but "the other side of the question" gravely needs to be heard in some special cases if it may be presented from a sense of duty and in a manner approved of Him who has called and sent.

A QUESTIONABLE MOVEMENT.

The following is from a recent issue of the Baptist Record (Jackson, Miss.):

"Effort is being made in many places and in various ways to graft religious instruction on the public school system and into the curriculum of other than denominational schools. The effort is in most cases well meaning, though in some there is reason to fear that it is a superficial if not a fictitious effort to satisfy the wholesome demand of parents in religious organizations and an awakened public opinion for religious education that will save us from the calamity of a godless culture. We welcome all effort to give a better knowledge of the Word of God to the school children and to others, and, like Paul, rejoice that the truth is preached, though it be in envy or strife. One of these efforts is to give credits for instruction given to the school children under teachers appointed by and under the supervision of the Church. Candidly, we are afraid of the 'credit' idea in religious training. It is too much like mixing oil and water or speaking the language of Ashdod in the city of Jerusalem."

We heartily concur in the foregoing sentiments expressed by our worthy contemporary. That the youth of the nation urgently need more religious instruction there can be no question; but that such instruction can be successfully imparted in a roundabout way in connection with public schools, from which the Bible has been excluded, we have never been convinced. Under this proposed arrangement of having the Churches to do a work of religious teaching that the public schools will recognize, each denomination is expected to restrict its operations to the children belonging to it. Of these children it has control (or ought to have control) both in the homes of its people and in the Sunday school; and its best opportunity is to see that they are made familiar with the Bible there. If they have the needed knowledge, "credits" amount to but little. The truth is, this whole "unit and credit" business, according to our way of thinking, is being made entirely too much of. We hope that we will never get to talking about "Carnegie units" in our Sunday schools.

Moreover, this movement to introduce denominational work into our State schools and colleges seems to us to be ill-timed and out of harmony with the spirit of the age. Everywhere else the trend is toward co-operation among the Churches where they have a community of interest. Why vary it in this particular? We dare say that a general religious work, in the promotion of which at least all the Protestant evangelical denominations could unite, is as much as is desired in any of our State institutions. Such schools furnish no place for the teaching of the doctrines of any particular Church.

And why should the Churches, while staggering under the load of maintaining their own schools, assume the additional financial burden of providing moral and religious training in the educational institutions of the State? Do not their members pay taxes to keep up the State schools? Do not Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, and representatives of other denominations compose very largely the trustees of such institutions? Why, then, do not our Christian people demand of them that they shall select and support a chaplain for our State colleges, as some such boards of trust used to do? These chaplains could be distributed from time to time among the various denominations. If the State adjudges moral training to be an essential part of the right education of our youth, then by every consideration of fairness and right the State ought to pay for it.

We cannot discuss this question any further at present. Dr. J. S. Kennedy, the able editor of The Presbyterian of Philadelphia, recently in an extended editorial expressed the conviction that the Presbyterian Church had made a mistake in not continuing to maintain ordinary elementary schools, as the Lutherans and Roman Catholics have done. Possibly he is right in this view; if so, other of our Churches have fallen into the same error; and the re-establishment of such schools may finally prove to be the only solution of the perplexing problem of how rightly to educate our children. Of one thing at least we are firmly convinced, namely, that it would be a stupendous and well-nigh ruinous mistake for the Church to undertake to do her work of Biblical instruction in the State schools where the atmosphere is necessarily unfavorable to the accomplishment of the best results, especially when this course would involve the neglect and weakening of her own institutions. Such a policy would be nothing short of suicidal.

We hope to go more fully into this subject at some time in the near future.

SOME SUGGESTIVE WORDS.

As has been stated in the Advocate before, Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, the brilliant successor of Henry Ward Beecher and Dr. Lyman Abbott as pastor of the famous Plymouth Church, Congregational, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has lately become involved in serious financial troubles as a result of having engaged with others in certain kinds of business speculations. At first it looked as if there was to be a thorough sifting of the whole matter before the public in the courts, but it now seems possible, through the intervention of Dr. S. Parkes Cadman and other friends, that a settlement of all differences may be reached by arbitration. So far as we have seen nothing has yet come to light that reflects upon the moral character of Dr. Hillis. And the public statement which he made to his congregation, though to some extent a confession of his mistakes, contained much that was admirable and calculated to do good. From that utterance we quote the following, which is well worth being meditated upon by every Christian minister:

"Often I have loved my books more than the poor. I have loved position and office and honor and sometimes I have thought of my own interests, when every drop of my blood and every ounce of my strength and every thought of my mind belonged to our schools, to the sick, the friendless, the poor, and to the boys and girls with their eager and hungry minds.

"Often I have had honors offered to me when I should have chosen solitude, and dwelt apart and listened to the voice of God and tried to repent. For years I have had a growing conviction that a minister has no right to make money, and does his best work without it.

"At best, the longest life is short, all too short, for the noblest of tasks, that of the Christian minister. Great is the influence of the law and medicine, wonderful the task of the jurist and statesman; marvelous the power of the press, great also the opportunity of the merchant and manufacturer who feed and clothe the people; but nothing can be higher than the call to shepherd Christ's poor and weak, and happy the minister who has never interpreted his ministry in terms of intellect alone or has never secularized his sacred calling, and who at the end of his life is able to say: 'Behold, these are the sheep that thou gavest me, and not one of them is lost.'"

GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATES INTERROGATED.

At its meeting last Monday morning the New Orleans Protestant Ministers' Association, by a unanimous vote, ordered the following inquiries to be sent to the three candidates for Governor of Louisiana, Messrs. Barret, Pleasant, and Parker:

"1. If elected Governor, will you exercise to the fullest extent the authority vested in you for the suppression of gambling on horse races, by a strict enforcement of the Locke law?

"2. If it is found impossible to prevent gambling, under existing devices and arrangements by which gambling on races is encouraged and promoted, will you use your influence for the passage of additional legislation which will suppress such devices and arrangements?

"3. Will you, if elected Governor, use all the power vested in your office to secure the thorough enforcement of the Sunday law, the Gay-Sentell law, and such laws as exist against gambling, in every section of the State?"

This action was in our judgment proper and timely and we shall await with interest the replies of our gubernatorial aspirants to these pertinent interrogations. With most of the saloons of New Orleans selling intoxicants on the Sabbath in open violation of the law, with the notorious record that was made in race-track gambling last winter, and with races topped by a prize fight for the world championship again being scheduled for the Crescent City between now and next spring, it is high time that the moral sentiment of our citizenship was waking up, and seeking to do something for the enforcement of the law and the suppression of vice. Memphis has recently set New Orleans a good example in ejecting from office its mayor, who was charged with being in league with the law-breakers in that municipality. More of that kind of work needs to be done in our American cities.

It is in the north mill section of the town, and was much needed just at that time. The other was located in the northern part of the town, and is known as the Kingston Methodist Church. Each of these churches has done a great work for Methodism in their respective places.

The parsonage was at West End and the two churches were served by the same pastor until December, 1905. These pastors were: W. W. Hopper, 1902-03; C. M. Chapman, 1903-04; J. S. Parker, 1904-05; and R. P. Witt, 1905-06.

At the Annual Conference held in Jackson in 1905, Bishop Hendrix made a station out of each church, and appointed to each a pastor for his full time.

Since that date the following men have served our West End congregation: W. W. Moore, December, 1905, to June, 1910; J. O. Ware, June, 1910, to December, 1910; J. F. McClelland, December, 1910, to December, 1913; Dr. E. H. Mounger, December, 1913, to December, 1914; R. P. Pikes, since December, 1914. The present total membership is about 150. The growth this year seems to have been better than during any previous year.

After the separation of the two churches, a splendid parsonage was erected at Kingston, and the following men have served as pastor (I am not sure that the dates are correct, but I give them as they seem to be indicated by the available records): L. F. Alford, from December, 1908, to December, 1909; H. Mellard, December, 1909, to December, 1910; J. J. Golden, December, 1910, to June, 1912; M. M. Black, June, 1912, to December, 1913; C. C. Evans, December, 1913, to December, 1914; W. F. Baggett, from December, 1914, to date. The present total membership is approximately 225. The location of this church is one of the most desirable in town. Laurel is growing altogether in that direction, and there seems to be no reason why this should not become one of our strong congregations.

REV. J. L. NEILL.

John Lambert Neill was born at Montrose, Jasper County, Miss., on January 17, 1882. He attended the old Brandon (later the Forest) District High School, now the Mississippi Conference Training School, at Montrose. He was graduated from that institution in May, 1898. He tanght two years in the public schools of the county, and in 1901 entered the Freshman Class at Millsaps College. In 1902-03 he was the principal of the Klondyke High School, at Hand, in Kemper County, and re-entered Millsaps College in the fall of the latter year, where he graduated with the B. S. degree in 1906.

While attending college, he taught school and sold life insurance during the summer months to pay his expenses. He was an active member of the Y. M. C. A., at Millsaps, and represented the College twice in Y. M. C. A. conventions at Ruston, La., as he also did in the International Convention held at Nashville, Tenn., in the spring of 1906. He was a member of the Galloway Literary Society and represented it on two occasions in joint debates. He won the Von Senter medal for oratory offered the Senior Class, and represented the College in an inter-collegiate oratorical contest at Crystal Springs.

After his graduation, Mr. Neill accepted the position of General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at the Georgia School of Technology, in Atlanta. He also conducted classes in Bible study at Ruston, La., and Asheville, N. C.

He was recommended for license to preach in May, 1907, by the quarterly conference of St. Mark's Church of Atlanta, Ga., Dr. S. E. Belk at that time being the pastor. A few days after this he resigned his position with the Y. M. C. A. went to Biloxi, Miss., where he was again recommended by the quarterly conference for license to preach, and stood the examination before a committee of the Seashore District Conference the next day, and was given license by that body which was at that time (May, 1907) in session at Biloxi. He then went to Pass Christian, accepting a junior preacher under Rev. W. T. Griffith at Long Beach. He was admitted on trial into the Mississippi Annual Conference at Jackson in 1907, and was returned to Pass Christian, which

In 1910 he was appointed to the Hazlehurst Circuit, and in 1911 to Bruce Street Church, Hattiesburg, which he served most ably. This year he was transferred to First Church, Laurel, by Bishop Candler, which is his present charge. He was ordained elder in Meridian by Bishop Candler in December, 1911.

He was married to Miss Edith Reed of Jackson, Miss., on June 5, 1907. He has one child, a daughter, Nellie Neill, who is five years old.

Brother Neill is one of the strong young men of Mississippi Methodism. He has a fine presence, is an instructive and forceful preacher, and a tactful and efficient worker. His pastorate at Laurel has been a notably successful one.

he could in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary. He is a man of studious habits, a strong preacher, and efficient leader in the work of the Church. He is an excellent pastor-evangelist, and knows how to lead souls to Christ. He believes that Methodism yet has a mission in the world and is stanchly loyal to its doctrines and polity. His pastorate at Mansfield has been marked by a steady strengthening of his congregation in every respect, and that charge under his direction has become one of the most desirable appointments in Louisiana.

THE DIVINER CONTRIBUTION.

It is a good thing to be able to contribute to the world a painting like Raphael's Transfiguration, or a poem like Tennyson's "In Memoriam," but a greater contribution to the world than all these is a perfect, stainless character.—Thomas Hughes.

MRS. HOYLE ILL.

Dear Brother Meek: Mrs. J. W. Hoyle, President of the North Mississippi Woman's Missionary Society, whom we know as "Miss Vic," underwent a serious surgical operation at the Baptist Hospital in Memphis yesterday. Over the telephone from Tyro, I learn that she is doing very well this morning. I think it is fitting that the Church at large, and the Woman's Missionary Society, in particular, be called to a season of earnest prayer to God that the life of this useful and consecrated woman may be spared.

In a note to me just as she was leaving for Memphis she asked for prayers and said, "All will be well with me either way, for God will take care of me." HELEN PORTER WOODWARD

The steel mills in Pittsburgh, Penn., are said to be paying a million dollars a day in wages.

As a war measure, the price and supply of food throughout Germany are now controlled by the federal power.

There are 600,000 words in the English language, but about half of these are of a technical nature, and hence are not in common use.

The German parcel post service to the United States has been discontinued. The official reason for this action and the length of time it is to be in effect are both unknown.

Denmark's new constitutional enactment giving women the right to vote will go into effect on June 5, 1916. A general election in that country will be held in July, 1916, and the Danish women will vote then for the first time.

Many of the counties in Mississippi, nearly half of them, have abolished the office of county attorney. They considered it a needless expense, and the Legislature of 1912 had left the question of its maintenance optional with them.

C. A. Doellinger, a Swiss bicyclist, who was convicted of being a spy by the German Government, has been pardoned by Emperor William. Doellinger was a fortunate man. For every spy whose case is spoken of in the public prints and who is pardoned and set free, many die and are never heard of. Nations do not make it a rule to let the world know how many spies they kill, but prefer to keep that a secret.

According to the Federal Bureau of Education there are 3,000,000 foreign born persons, 10 years old and over, in the United States who can not speak or write any language. The Bureau of Education has issued a pictorial poster, accompanied by writing in Italian, Polish, Yiddish, Lithuanian, Bohemian, and Hungarian, emphasizing the importance, both as regards themselves and their adopted country, of immigrants learning the English language as soon as they come to this country by attending night schools and of the great value that a knowledge of it will be to them in earning a livelihood. These people must be Americanized by education so that they will love our institutions and look upon them as their own.

THE HOLMES STORE

OF NEW ORLEANS

is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

"THE PASSING OF THE SCRUB."

By Rev. James H. Felts.

It is easy to misunderstand men. It is easy to misinterpret a well written article. I may have failed to catch the real spirit (import) of the "Passing of the Scrub," by Rev. R. O. Lawton, appearing in the Nashville Christian Advocate of some months ago.

As a matter of fact the "scrub" is not passing. Like the poor he is with us always, and when we will we may use him as an illustration. He is marked by heredity, environment, want of application, inability. The New Standard defines him as "Stunted or stunted looking; of inferior, common or worthless kind of breed. A person who labors hard and lives meanly; a mean, stingy fellow, etc." The scrub has never wrought well. It is not in him. The men who wrought well in the past were not scrubs. Some of them were well trained, some poorly trained, but they knew men and conditions, and they wrought marvelously. There has not been a period in the history of the world, in Church or State, when some men were not in advance of others. The present time is no exception to the rule.

A careful reading of Brother Lawton's article leads me to the conclusion that he would relegate to the rear all who are lacking in collegiate training. "The scrub is passing away in the educational world. The old field school turned out some intellectual giants, but this was in spite of, rather than because of, their methods. Some men are born great, and slipshod schools cannot deprive them of their immortality. Education is moving so fast that the scrub is left hopelessly behind."

While it is true that some men are born great, and slipshod schools cannot deprive them of their immortality, it is also true that some men are born scrubs, and even modern schools cannot reconstruct them. The more you feed a runt the poorer he gets. The best schools cannot furnish men brains. They only do the best they can with available material. "You can't make a whistle out of a pig's tail." An educated ass is an ass still. The "ancient" lion's skin, donned by a donkey, often finds its counterpart in the modern "sheepskin," carried by a college graduate. It is not education that is leaving the scrub behind—he has always been behind. He has never been and nver will be aught but a "hewer of wood and a drawer of water." The educational world is not calling for trained men, but for raw material that may be converted into a finished product for leadership in Church, State, business. These great fields care not a whistle whether a man is college bred or not "IF HE DELIVERS THE GOODS."

The reference to the "scrub preacher" was unfortunate. "The scrub preacher—and I write this paragraph reverently—is passing away. He may, with poor equipment and the fire of God, work wonders and save ten times as many souls as his finely equipped brother, but this is by virtue of the power of God and not the poor equipment."

Is one soul saved "by fine equipment" worth more than ten saved by the "power of God?" Here is a man that is ten times as great a soul saver as the equipped man, but because he is not equipped (?) he is relegated to the rear. God can use him but the Church cannot. I have been laboring under the impression that "it is not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord." I have also been taught that a "soul winner" is WISE, that he shall "shine as the stars." I cannot believe that a wise man, a soul winner, is a "scrub." Were the poor fishermen scrubs? "For ye see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called: but God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to naught things that are: that no flesh should glory in his presence. But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption: that, according as it is written, he that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord."

Also, I have believed that fine equipment could not make a man a soul saver. The equipped man is a soul saver "by virtue of the power of God"; just as truly as is the "scrub." Paul was finely equipped, but he said, "I came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom—for I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified." "And my speech and my preaching was not with the enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." And this is the only preaching that will ever count. When a man's preaching is with enticing words, marked by great intellectuality, the power of the Spirit wanting, you have Pegasus without his wings; nor will a blow from his hoof produce a modern Hippocrene. Bellerophon may ride him, may even kill a church school or two, but, as of old, he will fail to "scale heaven."

Equipment no more makes a preacher than trappings make a horse. Other things being equal, our college-bred men are our greatest leaders. All honor to them! But no man ever came from the walls of a college educated. He is simply prepared to get a real education. Education is not an end sought, but a means to an end. The hare was better trained than his humble opponent, the tortoise, but he depended on his known fleetness of foot. EQUIPMENT, only to find the untrained, but persistent, tortoise at the goal. When a college man presumes on his equipment he is out of the running. When he uses his equipment as a means to an end we have greater efficiency, more marked success. Some men quit courting as soon as they are married—they make mighty poor husbands. Some men quit studying as soon as they get their diplomas—they make mighty poor leaders. They usually talk real big with their mouths. From Washington, whose "education was but elementary and defective, except in mathematics," to Moody, the immortal evangelist, and Munsey, the greatest orator of them all, may be found leaders in Church and State whose contributions to government and righteousness "live forever." Why mention the men now living and working in our greatest fields whose work is commended of men and honored of God? A born genius becomes a "scrub," if he has no genius for work.

Magnify our colleges? Yes. Urge our young men to attend them? Yes. Declare a man fit just because he is a college graduate? No. (Note our four years course.) Shut the door of hope in the face of the man who has not been to college? No. "Honor to whom honor is due." We need all kinds of good men for our work yet. "And the eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee, nor again the head to the feet, I have no need of you. Nay, much more those members of the body which seem to be more feeble, are necessary: and those members of the body which we think less honorable, upon these we bestow more abundant honor." We ought to support the weak, NOT "SCRUB" THEM.

Let the college-bred men show their "breeding" by giving honor to whom honor is due. For men to enter the field at harvest time, enjoy the fruit of the toilers, the scrubs (?), and speak lightly of them is not polite. Let the college-bred men go into the undeveloped fields—there are still plenty of them—and show their less fortunate brethren how to do mighty things. Let them remember that increased facilities and ability to do, bring increased obligations. If they meet theirs of to-day as well as the fathers met theirs of yesterday, there will still be "something doing." To demand the best appointments because one has "been to school," don't look well. We have a right to expect of our college men larger sacrifice (especially when they have been educated by the Church), more heroic effort, more pronounced results. The appetite of the drone is the most marked thing about him. I have known more than once in my ministry men "fresh from college" who gave more trouble about their appointments and did less when they got them than a dozen "common men."

Not a great while since I was at headquarters. One of our leading men was presiding at a "Round Table." He asked why it was that we could not keep our efficient men in the country. Made the statement that as soon as a man was educated he wanted a town or city appointment. He was distressed. The brethren looked wise. I presumed to answer the question. I said, "For the same reason that you demand a city appointment." I was ruled out of order. Was I out of order?

If only college men are fit, then indeed is our condition deplorable. It will take many years yet to get none but college-trained men in the field. It is still true that many of our men will get their training in the school of hard knocks. Some of our efficient men are taking post-graduate courses in that school now. Good work is good work, whether a college or an old field school is behind it. All the inefficient men are not uneducated. We need a more brotherly policy than obtains in many places. We need a more marked and definite consecration as truly as we need better trained workers. If some of our trained men "had more religion," some of our untrained men would be doing better work. We must not forget that practically all the heresy, destructive criticism, rebellion against authority, restlessness, place-seeking, even the wrestling of schools from the hands of the Church, has come from "college-bred men." JUST A LITTLE MODESTY WOULD BE MOST BECOMING. A great deal of charity would be equally good. The thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians might be studied afresh with real profit. If you will give us college-bred men with a Calvary vision wrought in the fabric of their own souls—not a vision for the other fellow—you will see the work of the Lord prosper in our midst. "So mote it be."

TWO VOTERS.

Along in November, when chill was the weather,
Two ballots were cast in a box together.
They nestled up close like brother to brother,
You couldn't tell one of the votes from the other.

Chorus—
They were both rum votes,
And sanctioned the license plan;
The one was cast by a jolly old brewer,
And one by a Sunday school man.

The Sunday school man—no man could be truer—
Kept busy all summer denouncing the brewer.
But his fervor cooled off with the change of the weather,
And late in the autumn they voted together.

The Sunday school man had always been noted
For fighting saloons except when he voted.
He piled up his prayers with a holy perfection.
But knocked them all down on the day of election.

The foxy old brewer was cheerful and mellow:
Said he: "I admire that Sunday school fellow.
He's true to his Church, to his party he's truer;
He talks for the Lord, but he votes for the brewer."

A PRAYER 274 YEARS OLD.

By Thomas Elwood, A. D. 1639.

Oh! that mine eyes might closed be
To what concerns me not to see,
That deafness might possess mine ear
To what concerns me not to hear;
That truth my tongue might always tie
From ever speaking foolishly;
That no vain thought might ever rest,
Or be conceived in my breast;
That by each deed, and word, and thought
Glory may to my God be brought.
But what are wishes? Lord, mine eye
On thee is fixed, to Thee I cry;
Wash, Lord, and purify my heart,
And make it clean in every part.
And when 'tis clean, Lord, keep it, too,
For that is more than I can do.

POLLY'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

There wasn't any missionary society at all at Stubbs Corners. There wasn't anybody who cared about little heathen children, except Polly Griggs. She had been visiting Aunt Lorena in the city, and heard a really live missionary talk, and she cared. But Polly was only a little girl; what could she do?

"Never mind, Polly, dear," Aunt Lorena said. "Couldn't you start a little-girls' society of your own?"

"I'll try, anyway," said Polly.

When she returned home, Polly asked the girls to come and talk it over, so they met in the front yard.

"You see," began Polly, "there are lots of little heathen children who haven't ever heard about Jesus. Isn't that dreadful?"

"Yes, it is," the girls cried. "But how are we going to help it, Polly Griggs?"

"Send some one to tell them," said Polly promptly. "I am going myself as soon as I'm big enough; but I can't wait for that. There are other people who will go now if we save up money to send them."

"Oh, Polly," said Sue, "we haven't enough!"

Polly counted upon her fingers: "There are peanuts and candy and soda water we needn't buy; O we can save a lot if we try."

After that seven little red-apple banks began to get the pennies instead of the corner-store man.

"Where are we going to send our missionary?" Susie asked one day, as she and Polly sat in the back garden.

Polly brought out some papers. "Here are some stories about children that need them. We can read up and see who needs ours the most. Couldn't we have a society, and read them out loud?"

Pretty soon Stubbs Corner had a missionary society—just a little-girl one, but they read so much, and saved so many pennies, that the big folks began to think they would better do something too. So they began to read and save, too, till soon Stubbs Corners' big folks and little folks really sent a missionary 'way off to a foreign land. It was the strangest thing the way people, old and young, began to think missions and talk missions and give to missions—and yet it was not so strange, after all.

"And it was all because you cared, Polly Griggs," said Aunt Lorena.

"And tried," said Polly. "But it was because everybody helped so that our society has been a success."—Evangelical Messenger.

POOR BOYS WHO WON SUCCESS.

Your destiny does not depend so much upon your environment as upon yourself.

Many a young man imagines that if he had only been blessed with the surroundings of wealth and the benefits of culture he would have been somebody; but being compelled to toil for his daily bread, he can not be other than what fate decreed—a poor, unknown man.

No, my boy, if you are a real man, if you realize the possibilities of your almost infinitely endowed manhood, if you are not satisfied with your condition, if you grasp the fact that you have been given powers by which you may overcome every obstacle and that you have wings strong enough to bear you far above your surroundings and you are willing to put forth your mighty strength, you need not remain where you are. But if you do, don't blame fate; blame yourself.

Call the roll of some familiar famous Americans. They were the sons of poor and obscure parents:

Benjamin Franklin rose from a penny roll eater in the streets of Philadelphia to world-wide fame as a scientist and statesman; Patrick Henry, from a grocer's clerk to orator of the Revolution; Stephen Girard, from cabin boy to founder of a great college; Henry Wilson, from cobbler's bench to the vice-presidency, Orlando B. Potter, the penniless boy, became the author of our old national banking system; August Belmont worked up from errand boy to a great financier; Thomas Edison, from newsboy to the world's greatest inventor; Peter Goelet, from inn manager to founder of a famous fortune.

The cottage has contributed more than the castle to the making of manhood.

Poverty, instead of pinching, dwarfing, and shutting a man up, rather enlarges, ennobles him, and sets him free.

The country has given birth to more great men than the city, and the University of Hard Knocks has graduated the best scholars.

Born in poverty and cradled in obscurity were the world's seers and sages.

Columbus was the son of a weaver and was a weaver himself.

Mohammed, who changed the face of empires, was a camel driver.

Copernicus, who introduced the modern system of astronomy, was a baker's son.

Stephenson, inventor of the locomotive, and Watt, perfecter of the steam engine, were both of poor and humble origin.

Shakespeare was the son of a wool carder, and Burns was a plowman.

You have no right to be discouraged on account of adverse circumstances or feeble abilities. The giant oak in the forest was once an acorn, kicked about by the feet of passing swine.

One of the winning forces in life consists of being handicapped.

Genius has rocked her biggest children in the cradle of hardship.

It seems that an essential condition of success is the necessity of working hard and faring meanly.

Those who begin with fortunes generally lose them. Those who begin life on crutches will always limp.

Let no vision haunt you of some old uncle or aunt or some unheard-of relatives conveniently dying and leaving you a trifle of $20,000 with which you may earn $100,000.

Grapple like a man and you will be a man.

All things come to him—not who waits, but who hustles while he waits.—Madison C. Peters, in the Watchman-Examiner.

CENTENARY FROM THE INSIDE.

By Prof. B. D. Battle.

Centenary College has been brought much before the public in Louisiana for the past year or two. The New Orleans Christian Advocate has mentioned its needs and discussed its importance more fully than any other medium. The needs of Centenary are numerous, too, and can be dwelt upon without waste of space. However, in dwelling upon the needs of Centenary, the fact that we need it must not be overlooked, and this article has as its purpose to impress this fact more fully upon the Methodists of Louisiana.

The school began its new career three years ago under the efficient management of Dr. R. H. Wynn, whom all Methodists in this section know. Doubtless the school had made progress then from its chaotic state of renewing its existence some four or five years previous to that time, but those struggles are unknown to the writer. By that time a majority of the students were special taking work both in the Preparatory School and the College. This was made possible because of the fact that the teachers in the two departments of work were usually the same and it was hard to separate the two classes of students. But a clear distinction is now made and no student is taking work which could be either preparatory or college. This was accomplished by paying special attention to the Preparatory School and making it in every department distinctly preparatory. A course of study is mapped out which may be completed by bright pupils in three years, and at the completion of the fourteen units the pupil receives a certificate. The Preparatory School has such a strong hold upon the community that it certainly seems a necessity. The improvements in this department has required constant thought and effort, but though gradual, it is marked.

The college proper offers courses equal in scope to other standard colleges. It is here that our future lies. As we see it, the best way to build is by classes, and we have the nucleus of a great school. We can see in our mind the Freshman Class each year larger, more spirited and with a greater Centenary in view. The present Freshman Class has organized, elected all of its officers, and adopted as its motto: Incemus, alii sequantur—"We lead, let others follow" a motto which we hope is to be taken very literally and liberally. Most of these Fresmen are unconditioned and their presence means much to our inspiration.

Three years ago it was hard to get a crowd out to anything given at Centenary, now, the students are entertained a short while in the evenings occasionally and the people come. This shows how the community spirit has grown in our favor. This tends to create a helpful atmosphere, which means much to any school. This atmosphere is largely due to Mrs. Wynn's influence, both in the community and in the city, where she has created an interest among the ladies of the First Church.

Dr. Wynn feels that the school is fortunate in having the services of Professor J. G. Sawyer, who is with us this year for the first time. As dean, he is of invaluable assistance to Dr. Wynn in matters of general supervision and discipline.

The other two new teachers, Mr. Simms, who is head-master of the Preparatory School, and Professor Henderson fit harmoniously in the scheme of things. All things are so working together that Centenary is making herself a place in our hearts. An aching void which would be felt keenly by the whole Church would be the result of underestimation and consequent half-hearted support. We feel encouraged on the inside.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

SUGGESTIVE.

The Union County Times, published at New Albany, Miss., where the approaching session of the North Mississippi Conference is to be held, in a recent issue, said:

"At this Conference New Albany will entertain the largest number of great and good men that she has ever had within her bounds as guests. There will be about three hundred ministers of the Gospel and Christian workers—enough to brighten every home in the town, and we feel that every home that is opened to them will be brightened and benefited."

This brief utterance is quite suggestive as to what is generally expected of ministers and leading Christian laymen by those who entertain them, and such guests should see that their hosts are not disappointed in this respect. The spirit and deportment of a disciple of Jesus in any sphere or place in life is never a matter of small moment. The quiet influence that goes out from his bearing, conversation, and example as he touches people on the street, in business or social circles, or in the home is often more potent for good than the most brilliant pulpit utterance. Nothing speaks so impressively in behalf of the Master's cause as a pure, unselfish, Christlike character.

Moreover, a true Christian should be anxious to make the most of every opportunity that comes to him by strengthening and enriching every life with which he comes in contact. Both sinners and believers need such a ministry upon the part of the saints, and it ought to be tactfully exercised on Conference occasions, as well at other times. We have heard Bishop Candler pay Bishop Pierce the beautiful tribute of affirming that, more than any other minister he had ever known, he seemed to carry with him everywhere and under all circumstances, in a modest yet impressive manner, the consciousness that he was a commissioned ambassador of Christ. This is a weighty responsibility which certainly no one who has been called to the Christian ministry should ever allow himself to forget.

DEATH OF JUDGE W. K. McLAURIN.

We take the following from the Vicksburg (Miss.) Herald of Tuesday, November 2: "The entire community was shocked yesterday when the news rapidly spread about the city that Judge William K. McLaurin, County Attorney, and one of the three surviving brothers of the widely known McLaurin family of Mississippi, had fallen from the Big Black River State highway bridge and had been accidentally killed by striking upon the hard earth in the river bed. Friends rushed to his assistance and found that, while the spark of life appeared still, there seemed to be no chance for the well known citizen, and he breathed his last without uttering a word while being carried to a near-by automobile." Judge McLaurin had a few minutes before accompanied a party of friends to the site of the bridge and was engaged in inspecting it when he in some way lost his balance and plunged to his death below.

We knew Judge McLaurin and counted him a personal friend, and it is with sincere sorrow that we chronicle this sad occurrence. He was a son of Lauchlin and Ellen Caroline (Tullus) McLaurin, of Smith County, Miss., and was born on March 29, 1857. He was one of eight brothers who figured prominently in the recent political history of Mississippi, among whom was included the late United States Senator A. J. McLaurin. He received his early education in the country schools of his vicinity, and for a while attended Mississippi College, at Clinton. He studied law at home, was soon admitted to the bar, and was one of the best known attorneys in his section of the State. He served as Circuit Judge of his district from 1896 to 1900, and for a number of years represented Warren County in the State Senate. He was a man of large heart, genial, kindly nature, loved his friends, and was never happier than when serving them. Like the other members of the McLaurin family, he was strongly attached to the Methodist Church. He had been for years a subscriber to the New Orleans Christian Advocate, read it regularly, and often expressed his appreciation of it.

Judge McLaurin was married to Miss Willie Clanton Aden, of Valley Park, Miss., on November 25, 1892, and of this union four children were born. To the devoted Christian wife, who survives him, and all others who have been stricken by this deplorable tragedy, we extend heartfelt sympathy, and pray that the Heavenly Father may graciously comfort and sustain them.

THE EVANGELISM THAT IS NEEDED.

We hope that those who have the matter in hand will recognize the fact that the evangelism that is needed in our Conferences is chiefly a pastoral and personal evangelism. This is the kind that is bringing forth results throughout the Church. For our Committees to employ an evangelist or two and then sit down, feeling that they have done all that is required, is to make a great mistake. Particularly do we think it unwise to burden a Conference with salaried evangelists. What is wanted is to stir up the evangelistic gift in all our pastors, or in as many of them as possible, and to develop personal workers and soul winners in every charge. Those who are interested in this movement, which has in it such great possibilities, should send at once to the Methodist Publishing House, at Nashville, or Dallas, and secure the little volume entitled "The New Evangelism," by Rev. Elmer T. Clark, which is full of helpful suggestions. Brother Clark would also doubtless take pleasure in giving our Committees on Evangelism the benefit of his experience in this work if they would communicate with him. His address is St. Louis, Mo. The admirable little book, to which we have just referred, ought also to be in the hands of every pastor. The price is 75 cents.

A DISTURBED EAST TENNESSEEAN.

With apologies to some of our friends, who have had some connection with that part of the Volunteer State in the days agone, we reproduce the following:

"'Them roads is vile with them automobyles,' 'Life' makes a Tennessee mountaineer say as he sat in front of his lonely cabin while the horseman drew rein on the deeply rutted road. 'Why, do many come up here?' asked the surprised visitor. 'Many? Why, stranger, I don't believe there air a week but what one goes by!'"

Self-will will never be satisfied, though it should have command of all it would, but we are satisfied from the moment we renounce it.—Pascal.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. A. W. Turner was announced to deliver a prohibition address at Greensburg, La., on Wednesday of this week.

Rev. N. E. Alford, of Magnolia, Miss., was a visitor in New Orleans last week, and while here favored the Advocate office with a call.

The end of the Conference year is practically at hand. What about the pastor's salary and the Conference Collections? Have you contributed your part toward them?

Rev. H. W. Cudd, pastor of the Keener Memorial Church of Baton Rouge, La., has our thanks for a club of 7 subscribers. Brother Cudd has had a successful year in his present field and will carry a good report to Conference.

Rev. H. P. Lewis, of Jackson, Miss., writes that Rev. S. M. Thames, of the North Mississippi Conference, has been quite ill at his home in that city, but that he is now up again. We trust that this worthy veteran will soon be in his usual health.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, the capable presiding elder of the New Orleans District, preached in Bogalusa, La., last Sunday. Brother Holmes is leaving nothing possible undone to round up the work in his "diocese" satisfactorily for Conference. He is a leader who leads.

The Kelly meeting at Canton, Miss., resulted in 21 additions to our Church—19 on profession of faith and 2 by letter. Twelve joined the Baptist Church, and 2 the Presbyterian Church. A fuller report from the pen of the pastor, Rev. M. M. Black, will appear next week.

Rev. W. J. Johnson, the gifted pastor of our First Church at Beaumont, Texas, sends us a check for $17.07, an offering made by his congregation last Sunday, to help repair our damaged churches in New Orleans. The Methodists of the Crescent City will appreciate this act of kindly generosity.

If their members would tithe, the treasuries of our churches would be full and overflowing. Is it not a reproach that we are not in this respect measuring up to the standard of the Jews under the Old Dispensation? There are Methodists who spend more money upon the "movies" than they pay for the maintenance of the work of the Church.

The Acona Church, one of the appointments of the Black Hawk (Miss.) Circuit, has pledged $1000 for the support of the ministry and the Conference collections next year, and will request Bishop Atkins to give it the service of a preacher for his entire time. This congregation is a most plucky and deserving one, and never fails to show an active interest in the Master's work.

Rev. J. L. Evans, pastor of the Tangipahoa charge, attended the fourth quarterly meeting of the St. Helena Circuit at Greensburg, La., and preached on Saturday night and Sunday night. The local paper there spoke in high terms of these discourses, and said of Brother Evans, "He is one of the coming men of the Louisiana Conference and will some day be heard from."

Brother T. J. Graves sends us the following note from Longstreet, La.: "Our fourth quarterly conference was held here on the 1st inst. Brother W. H. Coleman, our presiding elder, gave us two most excellent discourses: one on "The Origin of the Church," and the other on "The Parable of the Vine and Branches." He is a very able preacher, and his congregations are greatly edified by his plain and simple method of expounding the Word. He has wrought well on the Shreveport District and is held in high esteem by all who know him."

From a note written by Rev. A. S. Byrd, we learn that Rev. R. A. Sibley, whose death was announced last week, was ill only three days before he passed away. He died at his home in Trenton, Miss., and his end, which came at 4 p.m. on Sunday, October 31, was peaceful. The interment took place in Zion Cemetery, near his home. Brother Sibley's name stood first on the chronological roll of the Mississippi Conference—he was admitted on trial in 1851. A suitable memoir of the deceased will doubtless be furnished the Advocate at an early date.

We hope that every pastor in Louisiana and Mississippi will look after the renewal of subscriptions to the Advocate in his charge before going to Conference. Why not make the Publisher happy by also bringing along a few new subscriptions? We know that our preachers have many burdens upon them at this time, but the Conference organ is very largely dependent upon them. Indeed, but for what they do, we would soon have to shut up shop and quit. So, please remember that we are looking to you for assistance, brethren. We must reach our goal: "A circulation of 10,000."

Writing on Nov. 5, Rev. S. L. Pope, of New Albany, Miss., the pastor-host of the near-by session of the North Mississippi Conference, says: "I would like for you to state in your columns that everything is in readiness for the Conference, and that we are happy in anticipation of the visit of the brethren."

Rev. C. T. Barton, of Ansted, W. Va., in renewing his subscription to the Advocate, adds the following note: "I have an excellent charge. We have just closed a fine revival, resulting in 35 conversions."

We regret to be informed that Sister Griffin, the wife of Rev. D. L. Griffin, our pastor at Slidell, La., is still very ill. We sympathize with Brother Griffin in his anxiety, and pray that his faithful helpmeet may soon begin to improve and be speedily restored to health.

Rev. H. T. Carley, who for the past three years has been teaching in Centenary College, will reenter the pastorate at the approaching session of the Louisiana Conference. Brother Carley is a minister of uncommon gifts and the charge that secures his services may count itself fortunate.

We take off our hat to Rev. W. M. Campbell, of Minter City, Miss., who gave us on Nov. 4 a club of 15 subscriptions to the Advocate, at $1.50 each. Brother Campbell is a hustler and believes in taking care of all the interests of the Church. May his labors continue to be crowned with a large measure of success!

See the statement made by Dr. Lamar and Mr. J. R. Pepper concerning the "Hamill Memorial" on Page 10. That the Sunday schools of Louisiana and Mississippi have done so little for this cause is much to be regretted. It is not yet too late to do more. Let our pastors and superintendents at once lend this movement a helping hand.

Rev. R. M. Evans, of Strong, Miss., has had a pleasant and profitable year and expects to bear a good report to New Albany. By request, he has lately preached in his churches some able and convincing sermons on "The Design and Mode of Water Baptism." Brother Evans is one of the choice men of the North Mississippi Conference.

Rev. M. F. Johnson, formerly of Louisiana, but who is now stationed at Hartford, Ark., in renewing his subscription to the Advocate, says: "I am getting along very well in the North Arkansas Conference. Since uniting with the White River Conference, this a large body. We meet at Conway this year, the date of our assembling being November 24."

Our esteemed friend, Rev. J. H. Smith, of Carrollton, Miss., sends us a club of 17 subscribers from his charge, for which we extend him our thanks. Referring to his work, Brother Smith says: "We are getting along nicely. As a result of the loyalty and faithfulness of this good people, I will be able to make a creditable report at Conference."

At Pleasant Grove Church, near Shannon, Miss., on Nov. 4, 1915, Mr. Henry Battle and Miss Mary Spenser were united in marriage, Rev. A. H. Williams officiating. The church was tastefully decorated and many were present to witness the ceremony. We wish the happy couple a life enriched by Divine blessings and largely useful, in the coming years.

In a personal note to the Editor, Rev. Thomas H. Morris, of Mansfield, La., says: "I am glad to say that I am almost entirely well. All the preachers have been assigned Conference homes, and a notice to each has already been mailed. If any brother fails to hear from me at once, he had better write me. We want to provide for all. It is now too late to make provision for ministers' wives and none henceforth need write me on that subject."

Old Folks' Day at the Carrollton Avenue Church, this city, last Sunday was largely attended and the service was a beautiful and impressive one. A great many elderly persons were present. The pastor, Rev. W. W. Drake, delivered a most excellent and appropriate discourse, and the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered. The Woman's Missionary Society of this Church is now engaged in observing the "Week of Prayer," having begun last Sunday evening.

We acknowledge the reception, from Mrs. S. C. Taylor, of Cleveland, Miss., of a report of the revival meeting at that place, which was recently conducted by Evangelist G. A. Klein and his singer, Prof. Boyd, which reached us too late for this issue of the Advocate, but which will appear next week. It is stated that more than 100 persons gave their names for membership in the various Churches. Our pastor at Cleveland is Rev. E. R. Smoot, under whose leadership the work of our church there has gone steadily forward.

We take the following from the St. Helena Echo (Greensburg, La.) of Nov. 5: "Rev. H. W. Bowman, our able presiding elder, arrived here on Friday last and held the fourth quarterly conference of the St. Helena charge. He preached three sermons that will be remembered; especially is this true of the one delivered on Sunday morning. It was, indeed, a great pronouncement, and came, as it were, as a prophetic vision of the past, present, and future. It certainly amounts to something to listen to such preaching."

Yuan Shi Kai, President of the Chinese Republic, has given $2000 to the Peking University, and has pledged himself to contribute that amount annually. This institution was formerly wholly under the control of the Northern Methodists, but hereafter it will be under the direction of the Board of Foreign Missions of the M. E. Church, the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, the Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and the London Missionary Society.

Rev. B. P. Jaco, presiding elder of the Winona District, says: "I put on a district campaign about October 1 and it is stirring up things greatly. The Sunday schools have grown largely, some of them having an attendance twice as large as the church membership. Some prayer meetings have risen from an attendance ranging from 20 to 30 to an attendance of from 60 to 120. Many members have been added to the Woman's Missionary Society, and several of the charges have reported new subscribers to the Advocate. I am sure that there has not been a more vital cooperative movement in this section in years."

The following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. John C. Chambers, Sumrall, Miss., 2; Rev. T. M. Bradley, Shelby, Miss., 4; Rev. J. E. Cunningham, Greenwood, Miss., 4; Rev. F. R. Power, Pelican, La., 3; Rev. A. S. Oliver, Eden, Miss., 2; Rev. L. Carley, Ellisville, Miss., 16; Rev. W. J. Wood, Sweatman, Miss., 3; Rev. W. B. Alsworth, Perth, Miss., 3; Rev. C. R. A. Brantley, Indianola, Miss., 7; Rev. W. W. Bruner, Wall Hill charge, N. Miss., 2; Rev. J. W. Lee, Lake Providence, La., 15; Rev. G. H. Galloway, McComb, Miss., 2.

Brother W. E. Kellner, of Fernwood, Miss., writes us as follows: "This charge has the distinction of having a pastor, Rev. W. H. Saunders, who is not only an excellent preacher, but who is also a successful grower of Chrysanthemums. He has some very pretty specimens, and has on several occasions been awarded prizes for his flowers. Brother Sanders finds the cultivation of flowers helpful in his spiritual work. These beauties of nature inspire him in the writing of impressive and uplifting sermons." We trust that our esteemed friend will guard against letting his floriculture influence him to become too "flowery" in his pulpit discourses.

We take the following from the Mansfield (La.) enterprise of Nov. 4: "At the Sunday school of the First Methodist Church next Sunday the new Sunday school rooms will be allotted by the superintendent, Mr. J. H. Thatcher. Great interest is attached to this event, as there will be more classes than there are classrooms. The annex is a beautiful addition to the church building, and will add largely to the effectiveness of the work done by the school. The superintendent deserves great credit for initiating and pushing to completion this important undertaking, in which he was very materially helped by the venerable and much loved Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard."

The Editor made a hurried visit to Central Mississippi on personal business last week, being out of his office Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. While on the trip it was his pleasure to look into the faces and grip the hands of the following brethren, all of whom seemed well and happy: Rev. Robert Selby, presiding elder of the Brookhaven District; Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Starkville; Rev. E. N. Broyles and Rev. W. S. Shipman, of Durant, and Rev. V. C. Curtis, of Lexington. The cotton crop in the section of the Magnolia State that he visited was the shortest that has been grown in a long number of years, and apparently the times of financial stringency are yet by no means at an end.

Rev. W. B. Jones, of Lumberton, Miss., who is one of the wide-awake pastors of the Mississippi Conference, says: "We have lately closed possibly one of the best meetings that Lumberton has ever had. Rev. J. M. Morse, of Brookhaven was with us and did nearly all the preaching, which was well done. I do not remember to have heard a more appropriate or abler series of sermons than he gave us. We also had with us Rev. S. E. Kirby, an evangelistic singer. He has fine singing ability, and his power to organize and direct young people in song and other religious services is far above ordinary. They rally under his direction and are charmed by his wit and humor, and he never fails to touch them spiritually. He also preached two or three sermons, which were listened to with pleasure. Twenty-nine persons were received into the Church—all but one on profession of faith."

Rev. O. S. Lewis, of Shuhuta, Miss., under date of November 4, writes as follows: "Rev. J. T. Leggett, our presiding elder, preached us a fine sermon last night. It was indeed inspiring and helpful. The indications are that Shuhuta will make a full report as usual. We have had a good year along all lines. The church was greatly revived in a meeting held in the first part of October, in which the preaching was done by Rev. J. T. Lewis, of Greenville. We are pained to note in Brother Lewis' letter the statement that Sister Lewis, who underwent an operation in a Hattiesburg hospital early in September, is rapidly recovering her strength, and we trust that she will soon be entirely well.

A Winona (Miss.) correspondent under date of the 4th inst., writes: "Rev. O. W. Bradley recently started down his front steps and his heavy in his arms and stumbled and fell headlong toward the pavement, but in order to save the little one, twisted and caught [illegible] knee and elbow, with the result that both were fractured. He is now in bed in great pain and suffering very severely. Such an accident would have been bad at any time, but it is calamitous now when every moment of time is needed to round out his quadrennium in his present charge." We regret very much indeed to be apprised of this unfortunate occurrence, and we pray that Brother Bradley may soon be making rapid progress toward a perfect recovery.

Rev. and Mrs. B. P. Jaco, of Winona, Miss., have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Annie Ruth, to Rev. J. Howard Brooks, of Tutwiler, Miss. The ceremony will be solemnized at the district parsonage in Winona on Wednesday, November 17, 1915. This announcement will be of general interest in North Mississippi and elsewhere. Miss Jaco is a young lady of many graces and accomplishments, and has a wide circle of friends; and the prospective groom is an alumnus of Millsaps College and a graduate of the Theological Department of Vanderbilt University. He is a son of Rev. J. J. Brooks, of Boyle, Miss., and a grandson of the lamented Rev. J. H. Brooks, of the North Mississippi Conference whose honored name he bears. The Advocate extends in advance of the wedding congratulations and best wishes.

REV. A. W. HOFFPAUIR CALLED HOME.

The following telegram from Rev. A. R. Hoffpauir, dated at Covington, La., on Nov. 8, came to hand this (Tuesday) morning, as we were about to close our forms:

"My brother, A. W. Hoffpauir, pastor of the Covington charge, passed away this afternoon at 5 o'clock. He will be buried Wednesday morning from the family home at Bethel Church. He leaves a widow (nee Lesia Smith) and one little son."

It grieves us to make this sad announcement. Brother Hoffpauir was serving his second year on trial in the traveling connection and gave promise of many years of usefulness in the itinerant ministry. From a human standpoint, his death seems untimely, but the Heavenly Father knows what is best. In His goodness and wisdom we may safely repose our faith. We pray that Divine grace may be vouchsafed to the sorrowing wife and all other bereaved loved ones.

"We cannot raise our confident expectations too high; for 'He is able to do for us exceeding abundantly above all that we ask' as well as 'think.' The Apostle has set the limit of our expectations, and here it is, in the same context. 'That we may be filled with the fulness of God.'"

Wherever we be, whatever we do, in our busy daily life, in public trusts, and in private retreats, He is with us, and all we do is spread before him. Do it, then, as to the Lord. Do nothing you would not have him see. Say nothing you would not have said before his visible presence. That is to do all in his name.—Manning.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, liver and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhœa, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

On the morning of October 6 the Death Angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charley Melder, of Glenmora, La., and took little J. P., their darling babe, to the bright home above. All that loving hands could do was done, but God saw best to take him to himself. Weep not, papa and mamma; your little babe is in the arms of Jesus. Live so that you can meet him in the sweet by and by. The funeral services were conducted by Brother Crooks, the pastor, who gave a beautiful talk, and the little body was laid to rest at the Old Spring Creek Campground Cemetery, to await the resurrection morn.

Their Aunt, Mrs. A. L. MONROE.

MATTIE BELL SCOTT was born in Coplah County, Miss., on Jan. 26, 1829. She was married to Rev. B. F. Phillips on Dec. 18, 1859, and became the mother of four children—the first was a girl, who died when 10 years of age; one son, the youngest, died when about 39 years of age; two sons lived to feel the loss of their mother's love, Dr. D. M. Phillips, of Booneville, Miss., and Dr. A. M. Phillips, of Eulogy, Miss. Sister Phillips lived with her son, Dr. A. M. Phillips, at Eulogy, Miss., who tenderly cared for his mother, with the assistance of a faithful wife and loving children, during the several months of pain and suffering through which she passed. On Oct. 10, 1915, she quietly passed away from the home of her son to a house on high, not made with hands, where she met with loved ones, gone before. Her husband, the late Rev. B. F. Phillips, was an esteemed member of the North Mississippi Conference. He loved revival work and the old-time songs, and was true to his calling and faithful until the time of his death, which occurred some years prior to the death of his wife. Sister Phillips was a Christian from childhood, and joined the Methodist Church while quite young. She kept the vows of the Church, and loved the Gospel her husband preached and made it a living power for good. She was a devoted wife, a loving mother, a true friend, and made friends wherever she lived. She loved the Bible, and lived according to its teachings. Her pastor found pleasure and profit in talking with her about the Bible and heaven, where she has gone. Friends and loved ones, meet her there! W. J. O'BRYANT.

MRS. C. E. BAKER.

On October 20, Mrs. Carrie Emiline Baker, closed her eyes to earthly scenes and opened them to behold the glories of heaven.

Sister Baker was 62 years of age, was the companion of Brother John W. Baker, of Friendship Church, this charge, and was the mother of 10 children, 2 of whom are Revs. G. A. and W. B. Baker of the North Mississippi Conference. Three of the others preceded their mother to the better world.

Practically the western half of the county attended the funeral service at Ebenezer Church. They had known her from childhood, and loved her and felt that in her going each had sustained a personal loss.

The writer was her pastor, and she was buried at the Ebenezer Cemetery, which is situated within the charge of which her son, Rev. W. B. Baker, is pastor. All the children were present when the angels came, and she was ready to go. Her consecrated life was a beautiful expression of her close fellowship with God.

Summing up all the graces and qualities of the truest type of a Christian's life would but feebly portray the life of such a loving mother, devoted wife, and friend.

May the God of all grace comfort, and bless with his gracious presence the faithful companion in the loneliness of his remaining years, and the children in their great loss!

"Somewhere beyond the border of the world there is a hand
That spreads the deep blue shades of evening o'er sea and land,
And drives the red sun on behind the hills—out of our sight,
And we are free from care in this great border land of night.

"The afterglow above the purple peaks sheds over the way
Its splendor, and flowers that shed perfumes are bright as day;
The evening songs bear to the hearts the softest melody;
And something whispers, 'Now behold the region, blest tranquility.'"

THE HAMILL MEMORIAL AND THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Some time since the Committee in charge of the Hamill Memorial appealed to the Sunday schools to set apart the third Sunday in September as Memorial Day, and take a collection for the purpose of erecting the Memorial Building in Kobe.

The matter has evidently been overlooked by many of the schools, and we now appeal again to all Superintendents to bring it before their schools at once and give them an opportunity to take part in this great work. It is important that the matter receive early attention. Only one school in the State of Louisiana and four in the State of Mississippi have forwarded contributions to the Treasurer as yet. It is due the memory of one of the greatest of the world's Sunday school men that this memorial be erected from the contributions of the schools of our Church to whose interests his life was so largely devoted.

Let not your school fail to have some part in this work. Forward all contributions to A. J. Lamar, Treasurer, Nashville, Tenn.

JOHN R. PEPPER, Chairman.
A. J. LAMAR, Treasurer.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine. Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

MANY FAILURES ARE DUE TO HEADACHES.

A headache saps your energy and ambition. It kills your vigor and vitality.

Many have become not only nervous wrecks, but business and domestic failures, owing to the constant drain on their nervous systems by headaches.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have for the past quarter of a century proved to be the popular relief for headaches and other forms of pain. They bring the desired relief surely and quickly.

They contain no habit-forming drugs and have no bad after-effects.

People who have used them are only too glad to testify to their merits so that others may also be free from pain.

The Rev. J. A. Riley, of Trout, La., has the following to say:

"For over 10 years I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills whenever I was in need of a remedy for pain, to allay fever or induce a natural sleep. I also find that they quiet the nerves. I have used them freely in my family to the exclusion of all other remedies and have always found them to do their work to perfection and never in a single instance have they had any bad after-effects. I heartily recommend them as a safe, pleasant and effective remedy."

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by all druggists at 25c for 25 doses. Your money will be returned if they are not found perfectly satisfactory.

FREE ORPHANAGE CARS.

Free cars for the Baptist and Methodist Orphanages have been arranged as follows: One on the N. O. & N. E., in charge of Rev. S. L. Hearn, Pachuta, starting from Hattiesburg on the morning of Friday, November 26, goes down to Picayune, and is brought back to Hattiesburg by a through freight; it leaves Hattiesburg for Meridian Saturday morning, November 27, and lies over in Meridian Sunday. Two cars leave Meridian Monday morning, November 29, for Jackson. One on the M. & O. starts from Vinegar Bend. Also one goes to Waynesboro on Friday the 26th, lying over until Saturday at noon and then leaving there for Meridian; leaving Meridian Monday for Jackson. Rev. W. H. Thompson, of Forest, will be in charge of both cars from Meridian. The Mississippi and Alabama, from Leaksville to Vinegar Bend, on November 26. The Mississippi Eastern, from Theadville to Quitman, on November 26. Shuhuta Southwestern, from Enoutia to Shubuta, on November 26.

SUGGESTIONS: The friends of these noble institutions should go about filling these cars with some system. Place a keg, half-barrel or barrel at each cane mill to be filled by owners and patrons, and see that it, with all other donations, is hauled to the shipping point. Let the churches, missionary unions, young peoples' societies and Sunday schools select some residence from which to send a box, the size you can fill, and all light articles, bucket molasses, tomatoes and all canned goods, glass preserves, to be packed and crated. Ten-pound molasses crates should be 7½ inches high. Have a committee to make a canvass for anything that can be used, either provisions or clothing, for over four hundred orphan children. They want all kinds of peas, for they use them for medicine as well as food. Have a lady or ladies in charge. Mark on tag all packages plainly; haul them to the depot and give the agent ample time to issue bill of lading, waybill, etc. Give the agent one copper for the revenue stamp. Have two young men stack in car separately. They have shoes up to and including children's No. 6, and have raised plenty of potatoes.

COARSENESS IN CONVERSATION.

Many otherwise excellent people have fallen into the deplorable, not to say vulgar and filthy, habit of indulging at times in coarse conversation. Those who descend to it are perhaps unaware of the fact that these blemishes in speech are annoying to most high-souled people and disfiguring to themselves. As Dr. James Stalker says: "There are men who wince, as high-blooded horses do at the touch of the whip, at the first sound in their hearing of words which in other companies form the staple of conversation." It is worth while to cultivate and practice purity and soundness of speech.—Biblical Recorder.

GOD'S UNSEEN PROTECTION.

There is in all of us, though often unexpressed and often unrecognized, a demand for proof that God cares for us, and this is the more necessary because God's care has so many disguises. Sometimes it does not look like protection at all, and we are inclined to complain. Of course, complaining does no good, but it betrays the attitude of the helpless. We must endure our lot whether we like it or not, and yet, by that very experience, so varied are God's methods, we may be receiving an education and a fitness for greater and more noble living.

One way to prove that God is caring for us is to remember how he has cared for us in the days that are gone. Very few thoughtful people can look back over their lives without discovering that the years that are past seem to have been controlled by a power greater than the events, and greater than the individual. To the eye of faith that power is the providence of God. Recognizing it in past events, we may say with reverence and not a little awe: "God has thus far helped me." Once a stone of remembrance was set up, when this thought came to a man's heart, and he called the place of it Ebenezer—that is to say, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped."

An old proverb reads: "God's providence is my inheritance." If it is true, and every Christian knows it is true, how rich we ought to feel! Others have wealth, and position, and power, which we do not possess. Even in the face of their enlargment we do not need any evidence that God cares for us if we believe him. The very sky above us becomes a shining proof of his love.

What is the lesson of it all? That the Christian, confessing his faith, and living his religion, has taken out the best insurance policy in the world. Like other insurance policies, it has its conditions and its limitations, but so long as we meet its conditions and observe its limitations there can be no harm befall us; what seems harm is really help.—Epworth Herald.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The church forces at Columbus are awake. The preacher, superintendent, and teachers are doing honest work that is telling on the life of that city. Although the congregation has recently spent several thousand dollars in enlarging their church building, they still need more room to accommodate their growing Sunday school.

During the past two weeks, Mr. A. L. Dietrich, our Divisional Field Secretary, took the leading part in holding a series of district institutes in our Conference. The first was held at Sardis. The attendance was small, but real good was accomplished. The Sardis church has some most excellent people that are doing honest Bible study. The graded literature is being introduced in this school.

Our next point was Clarksdale. Brother Lagrone has a group of superior teachers doing the kind of work that will make a strong church in that Delta city. The church building is not half large enough to accommodate his school, so a tent has been raised on the church lot to shelter the Elementary Division. The tent is floored, carpeted, and will be heated during the winter. Brother Lagrone is a man who believes that "where there is a will, there is a way." Rev. H. S. Spragins contributed much to the success of this institute and to others that have been held in his district during the year.

Rev. J. H. Brooks has one of the neatest, best equipped church buildings in the Winona District. His school at Tutwiler is not large in numbers, but the preacher and some of the people have a vision of a real Sunday school, and the work being done there and at Matson is equal to the best that is being done in the older churches.

Big, busy Greenwood has the equipment and has people that know how to use their fine plant. The Wesley Bible Class, under the guidance of Judge E. V. Hughston, is evangelistic in name and in practice. This class is constantly on the lookout for men to win them for Christ. Mr. W. H. Stokes, the superintendent, has his school to do one thing at a time, and do that well. The result is that he holds the ground that he takes. Mr. Dietrich spent one evening with the Winona people. This school is making fine progress. It could not do less with O. W. Bradley as pastor. Rev. B. P. Jaco has wrought well in this great field.

Ackerman is falling into line, with graded literature, an organized Bible class, taught by Mr. J. Lem Seawright, and a Teacher-training class. The big thing about all this work is, the teachers will be unconsciously and steadily developed into strong, fruit-bearing Christians. Weir, Kosciusko, and Durant were visited in this district. Kosciusko thinks she has the livest preacher in the Conference; Durant would not exchange Broyles for any man. Broyles is not only a leader, but he is training leaders. Brother Shipman deserves the love of his preachers and people. His district has more schools that come up to the Standard of Efficiency than any other district in the Conference, according to reports in hand.

Water Valley was in the midst of a great revival when we reached that place. Brother Dorsey received seventy-seven into the Church. A large per cent of this number came out of the Sunday school. Judge McGowen, with his excellent teachers, is making a truly great school, one that stands in the front rank with the best. Rev. R. A. Tucker succeeded in getting a good attendance of his preachers and laymen at this institute. The work has prospered under his wise leadership.

The institute for the Aberdeen District was held at Houston. Brother Bell and a number of his preachers were on hand to take part in and encourage the Field Secretaries in their task of raising the standard of efficiency in our Sunday school work. Houston received an uplift.

Everywhere the church buildings are too small and too poorly equipped to take care of the people who come to study God's Word. True, the study is not as real as it will be, but there are hungry hearts to be fed, earnest souls ready to spend and be spent. Alongside the throng of pleasure-lovers and mammon-worshipers, there is a quiet, but determined band of disciples as worthy as that apostolic band of whom Paul said, "the world is not worthy." Let us all study God's Word constantly, and then shall we be strengthened to pray more effectively.

WAYNESBORO, MISS.

We are closing out our second year at Waynesboro. The year has been one of progress along all lines of Church work.

The attendance upon the mid-week prayer services and the regular preaching services has been good. Our Sunday school, under the efficient superintendency of Brother W. E. Lathram, has been doing splendid work. The enrollment and average attendance for the year have had a good increase.

Our Woman's Missionary Society is alive and accomplishing a great work. The interest in spiritual things has been greatly increased by the "Bible Study" hour, under the leadership of Mrs. Dr. J. F. Pou, Sr. The president of the Society, Mrs. J. W. Alexander, has the work at heart and is leading this department of the Church into larger fields of service.

Our official board is composed of professional and business men who have the "things of God" at heart. They are loyal and devout. Brother J. R. Huggins, the president, is leading the Board to a successful close of the Conference year. All of our claims ordered by the Conference and the salaries will be paid in full this year. The pastor of this charge does not have to take a collection for anything. The Board "takes all collections."

Heretofore, the church at Waynesboro has had only three-fourths of the pastor's time, Hiwannee having one-fourth. Hiwannee is a mill town, north of here, and the church at that place deserves credit. They are true and active. Brother W. H. Fields, one of the most capable Sunday school men in the Conference, has done great things for our Sunday school there. Brother J. E. Graham has carefully and successfully looked after the finances.

At our fourth Quarterly Conference, which was held here last Monday, Nov. 1, Waynesboro requested the presiding elder to give it full time for 1916. This request will be granted, according to the presiding elder's statement.

Our presiding elder, Rev. J. T. Leggett, is closing out his third year on this district. By his forceful preaching, judicious executive ability, and brotherliness in administration, he has become a strong leader of the Church's forces in the district. His "coming" is hailed with delight by our people and they gather in large crowds to hear his great messages.

Our much-beloved brother and co-pastor, Rev. H. S. Westbrook, is closing out his quadrennium of service on the Waynesboro Circuit. His life and work have been fruitful of lasting good in our town. Our people claim him as theirs, too, and they, with his people, reluctantly submit to his leaving us. He is a strong preacher and a useful pastor. Blessings be upon him!

The work of the Lord bids fair to prosper in the future in this charge because of the two good meetings held this year by Rev. G. S. Harmon, at Waynesboro, and Rev. W. F. Baggett at Hiwannee. These brethren did good and faithful work. We have had 9 accessions and about 30 professions of conversion or reclamation.—J. Loyd Deceli, Pastor.

TO THE PASTORS OF THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Brethren: As treasurer of the Joint Board of Finance, I would respectfully urge each and every pastor in the Conference to forward to me at once, if possible, your assessments in full for Bishops, Conference claimants, ministers, and the superannuate endowment fund, in order that I may do the greater part of my work before Conference convenes and be prepared to report to the Board at its first session the amount of funds on hand, without having to wait two or three days for delayed reports before the Board can proceed in an intelligent way with its duties.

Thanking each and every one of you in advance for your prompt remittance to cover the above claims,

I am truly your obedient servant,
P. J. CALLICOTT,
Treasurer Joint Board of Finance.

If Kidneys Act Bad Take Salts

Says Backache is sign you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

A New Remedy for Kidney, Bladder and all Uric Acid Troubles.

Dr. Eberle and Dr. Braithwaite, as well as Dr. Simon—all distinguished authors—agree that whatever may be the disease, the urine seldom fails in furnishing us with a clue to the principles upon which it is to be treated, and accurate knowledge concerning the nature of disease can thus be obtained. If backache, scalding urine or frequent urination bother or distress you, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, gout or sciatica or you suspect kidney or bladder trouble, just write Dr. Pierce at the Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.; send a sample of urine and describe symptoms. You will receive free medical advice after Dr. Pierce's chemist has examined the urine—this will be carefully done without charge, and you will be under no obligation. Dr. Pierce during many years of experimentation has discovered a new remedy which is 37 times more powerful than lithia in removing uric acid from the system. If you are suffering from backache or the pains of rheumatism, go to your best store and ask for a 50-cent package of "Anuric" put up by Dr. Pierce. If he does not keep it, you can obtain a large trial package by sending 10 cents to Dr. Pierce, or 50 cents in stamps for full treatment. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak women and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood have been favorably known for the past forty years and more. They are standard remedies to-day—as well as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for the liver and bowels. You can have a sample of any one of these remedies in Tablet form by writing Doctor Pierce.

If you are troubled with palpitation, dizziness, shortness of breath, swelling of ankles, pain on either side of the chest, or weak and irregular pulse, symptoms of a nervous breakdown, the best way to remedy the trouble is by giving your heart and nerves the proper tonic. LOUISIANA METHODIST ORPHANAGE.

Superintendent R. F. Vaughan, of the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage at Ruston, states that although this has been a year of financial distress, and in spite of the fact that the Methodist Church removed the assessment by which the Orphanage had been cared for heretofore, the institution has received a better support than ever before. Nearly $14,000 has been raised, of which amount Mr. C. W. Blair, of Shreveport, gave $2025.

The institution has had under its care during the year 111 children, who have shown marked advancement along all lines and have maintained a high standard of excellence in the public school at Ruston and in the Louisiana Industrial Institute, where they are receiving their education.

An interesting feature of the work done by the children during the summer was the canning of vegetables and fruits, and very nearly 1000 gallons of peaches were put up for future consumption. The building is now crowded with children, and many have been turned away for lack of room and the means to provide for them.

Stop! Calomel is Quick-Silver

It's Mercury! Attacks the bones, salivates and makes you sick.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated to-morrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.—Adv.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. Sage Tea to Darken Hair

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.—Adv.

Take Lime for Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (July 27, 1912, Page 308), Dr. C. F. Disen, of Minneapolis, holds that a "deficiency of calcium" (lime) is responsible for the physical conditions which lead to tuberculosis, "and the therapy he advocates rests on this basis."

One of the reasons for the wide-spread success of Eckman's Alterative in the treatment of tuberculosis is its ability to supply this deficiency. It contains a lime salt in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person. Many cases seem to have yielded to it.

We make no exaggerated claims for it, but prefer that it be tried on the same basis as any other prescription, and since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit forming drugs, it is safe. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

HOW THE BILOXI WESLEY HOUSE STOOD THE RECENT STORM.

Miss Mary Hasler, Head Resident of the Biloxi Wesley House, writes that the night school, with fifty students in attendance, was in session during the memorable storm of September 29th on the Gulf Coast. When the storm began to rage so furiously that anxiety was apparent, the school was turned into a prayer service. Miss Bowers led the thought by using the fourteenth chapter of John. Praying and singing, they passed the greater part of the night; and when weariness overtook them and sufferers along the coast kept coming in, the hallway, up-stairs and down, all the class-rooms were converted into bedrooms. Quilts and all available bed clothing were laid upon the floor, and the children and young people were put to bed. At every hour during the night the officials came to the house to report the conditions along the beach. Fortunately, the Wesley House was not in the belt of the storm, so that it did not suffer and was a veritable "house of refuge in time of trouble."

A GREAT NEED.

The recent laws of Texas compel the placing of fire escapes on all schools. Holding Institute, at Laredo, Tex., has been given notice that these must be placed on every building occupied by this school. There are four such buildings, and the cost comes to more than $500. There is no appropriation for this extra expense by the Council, and already the larger part of the contingent fund has been consumed. The all-important question is: Where are we to find the $500 for this expenditure.

Holding Institute is a mile and a half from the city. Every visit to the city requires the call of a 'bus from the city at an expenditure of twenty-five or fifty cents. We greatly need a runabout, a Ford roadster, or something on wheels to connect Holding Institute with the city. Who will give either the money or a machine? Surely there are, in this time of so many, many machines which are cast aside because they are not the latest make, some which could find service at Laredo.

ALL-DAY MEETING IN CENTREVILLE.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Gloster met with the Woman's Missionary Society of Centreville for an All-Day meeting on Thursday, October 14. We would say just here that we do not want credit for holding an all-day meeting, when in reality it was only a half-day meeting. This was due to the fact that railroad connections between the two towns were such that it was impossible for the Gloster women to spend more than that length of time in Centreville. Seven women came as delegates, and no time was lost, for the entire program was rendered during the afternoon.

Mrs. John Brown, of Gloster, conducted the devotional exercises, after which Mrs. Cammack spoke of "Missionary Effort in the Sunday School," urging that we swing the great Sunday school army into line for the missionary cause, that all may know the great joy of giving.

"Our Woman's Organized Work," and "Missionary Effort in the Home," were ably presented, and a lively discussion of methods of teaching missions to children followed. The next topic taken up was that broad one, "The Home Field." Mrs. Cook, of Gloster, read a very interesting paper on the subject. "How Can We Increase Our Efficiency?" and "Are We Qualifying for the Honor Roll?" were two important questions propounded and interestingly discussed by Mrs. Harrell.

A splendid paper was read before the meeting on "How Can we Help our Pastor?" and a hearty discussion followed. By request, Mrs. Harrell gave echoes from the district meeting at Port Gibson; especially did she touch upon the children's and young people's work.

It was our pleasure to have in our midst Mrs. Bianchard, of Gunnison, who, when called upon, gave us a brief report from the Greenville District meeting, which had been held at Alligator a few days previous. Mrs. Bianchard spoke in a most pleasing manner and held our close attention.

The papers and discussions of the afternoon were interspersed with soul-inspiring, missionary hymns, and several friends rendered special selections in an exquisite manner. The entire occasion was one of good fellowship and inspiration.

MRS. JOHN BROWN.

ARE YOU QUALIFYING FOR THE HONOR ROLL?

We have not had space to allude to our Honor Roll for some months, and some few may think it is no longer in existence, but it undoubtedly is; and many auxiliaries in our Mississippi Conference are striving to have their names placed upon it. If you remember correctly, there were six points required, and to faithfully observe each one meant hard work, not only then, but throughout the year. The very first point demands a 50 per cent increase in membership, and that seems to be a stumbling-block to many auxiliaries. One auxiliary reports this point as an impossibility in their case, as there are not women enough in the Church to double their numbers. We should imagine that they would be entitled to a place on the Honor Roll if they secure every woman in the Church as a member, provided, of course, that they fulfill the other requirements, which are:

(2) One All-Day Meeting.
(3) Observance of "Woman's Day" by special program.
(4) Observance of the "Week of Prayer."
(5) Assistance in organization of a new auxiliary in adjacent territory.
(6) Auxiliary projecting Young People's and Children's work in its own church.

These points are to be reported to your district secretary not later than Jan. 1st, 1916. The district making the best report in these items will be known as the "Banner District" at our next Annual Meeting. All auxiliaries making these "points" will receive special mention in the Missionary Voice, the Conference Minutes, and the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Whether you gain a place on the Honor Roll or not, make the effort to do so, for the most important object in our great campaign is to enlist the women and girls in this missionary cause. Remember, out of the 1,300,000 women and children in our Church only 200,000 belong to our Missionary Society.

A recent report from the campaign shows 1213 new members at the close of the second quarter. We have gained that number and now it behooves us to put forth every effort to retain them in the work. It will take wise planning, an interesting presentation of the work, and much praying.

Topisaw (Miss.) Charge.

Dear Advocate: The last meeting on my charge was held at Holmesville and conducted by Rev. J. W. Thompson, of Meadville, Miss., and I have never heard such plain, pointed, practical preaching as he did. The Holmesville people cannot say they have not had the unadulterated Word preached to them; the Spirit of God was manifestly upon Brother Thompson. There were five accessions to the Church—3 on profession of faith and 2 by certificate.

Our third quarterly conference was held during the meeting and Brother Selby said that we had the best reports we had had at any third quarterly conference since the present pastor had been on the work.

Since then we have lost one of our best members at Topisaw, in the person of Brother J. C. Huffan, who died on Sept. 12. He was the Sunday school superintendent and a steward, and it was said by many when we laid him away, "We have lost the best man we had." It was the most distinct and irreparable loss I have had in my ministry, but while God buries his workmen, he carries his work on.

Despite all obstacles, we have made substantial progress on the Topisaw charge this year, and we give God the glory.—J. A. Wells, P. C.

Natchez, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: When my predecessor, Brother Huntley, left this field in a note to me he said, "I leave your hands and heart full," and truly they have been full ever since—full of care, and anxiety, and labor, and prayer. But I am glad to say that during the four years that have passed since then our heart has often been full of gratitude and gladness. Especially has that been true this year, which has been by all means the best, as if the reaping time had come. There have been more people at Church, more active in the Master's business, more at prayer-meeting, more praying in public (and I believe in private, too), and more by far at Sunday school than in any of the other years.

Our Sunday school has increased at least 75 per cent in average attendance during the past six months. On a recent Sunday we had 275 pupils present and our average attendance is now well above 200. Our total enrollment, including the Home Department, must be about 400, which, while we count five "for us," is but the beginning of what I expect to be one of the great schools of our Conference. It is well graded and in the hands of good officers and teachers who know and love this work. Our men's and women's classes are large and active and are adding much to the life of the Church. However, what is to be done is so much greater than what has been done that I can still say to my successor, "I leave your hands and heart full."

This year it was my melancholy duty to take charge of the Pearl Street congregation along with our own. I say melancholy, because to many it was like breaking heart-strings to give up their work. You can't blame them. And yet they have proved true Methodists and most of them with cordial readiness have come to Jefferson Street and have helped us more than we can tell. I do not know of a single family whose children have not come promptly into our Sunday school. Every department of our church, especially the Epworth League, has been blessed by them.

Recently we have had a very good meeting. Rev. C. N. Guice, who has now gone to California for revival work, was with us three days. Then came Brother J. A. Bowen. When he alighted from a Y. & M. V. train and my eyes took in his face and form I said, "That's the man we need!" We had a great time. Our Church was helped in every way. His favorite text is, "Strengthen the things that remain." He preaches the doctrine of encouragement and heals many evangelistic sores. Perhaps his frequent saying, "Feed the sheep, don't beat the sheep," needs to be remembered by all of us. Since the meeting we have received 25 people into the Church on profession of faith and a large number by certificate. We hope to have Brother Bowen help us again before long somewhere.

Natchez Methodism, I believe, stands at the threshold of a new era, with a great opportunity before it. The people are loyal and expectant. Happy the man who shall lead them!—H. B. Watkins, P. C.

A HINT TO LAWYERS.

Many years ago there was a young lawyer who went home one day and told his wife that he had become a Christian. They were going to have some company that evening, and he said: "After supper I want the servants to come into the drawing-room, and I'm going to read and pray." His wife was a professing Christian, but she said, "My dear, you know that these lawyers who are coming to dinner are scoffers or skeptics, and it will be very embarrassing if you should succeed in your attempt to pray. Don't you think you'd better put it off until after they are gone, or go out into the kitchen and pray with the servants?" She seemed to think it would be well to pray with them. The man thought a little while, and then said, "Well, wife, it's the first time I've taken Jesus Christ into my heart, and I feel that I should ask him into the best room in my house." And, after supper, he said to the gentlemen there that he had that day accepted Jesus Christ and would like for them to go with him while he prayed. They went into the drawing-room and the young man led in prayer. That was Judge McLean, one of the finest judges of our Supreme Court, who stood for Christ constantly over forty years. Wasn't it a grand confession? Would to God that we could have men coming out like that now! Let our young men start out like that and declare that they will be on his side; it would help turn the spiritual tide in any city.—The Christian Herald.

A Book of the Widest Interest Describing a Country of Infinite Variety

Seeing America describes every section of the country. The great cities (with populations greater than those of many nations), seething with people and expressing the latest developments of our civilization; the places which millions have visited as on a pilgrimage because of their historic significance; the resorts of fashion and pleasure where Americans spend their leisure; the magnificence of scenic wonders and natural beauty; the scenes of industrial activity where the great wealth of the country is produced—all these are described in the book with a fascination of narrative and an interest of detail that makes Seeing America remarkable for the enjoyment and instruction it holds out to the reader.

No other book of the kind describes so wide a variety of interesting places in America, or is so lavishly illustrated with photographic reproductions of famous cities and places.

Mount Rainier, National Park, Washington

The vivid descriptions in this book disclose to Americans the often undreamed-of picturesqueness and historical interest of their own country.

Increases the Love of Every American for His Country

Seeing America stimulates the patriotic feeling of the whole family. No one escapes its fascination. From the oldest to the youngest, parents and children alike will find something of absorbing interest in description and illustration. The lure of seeing people and places is universal, and those who cannot travel from place to place find pastime and profit in reading of those things which they cannot see. The author, who has been in the position both of those who long to go and of those who have been, clears up the hazy mental pictures of the former class, and revives the memories of the latter.

"Don't look for flaws as you go through life,
And even when you find them,
It is wise and kind to be somewhat blind,
And look for the virtues behind them;
For the cloudiest night has a hint of the light,
Somewhere in the shadows hiding;
It is better by far to hunt for a star
Than the spots on the sun abiding."

The New York Tribune is credited with having said, "Germany is bleeding to death."

At any rate, there is one kind of "preparedness" that is thoroughly Biblical: "Be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."

William J. Bryan says: "What the world needs to-day is a Pentecost, not an Armageddon." Whatever one may think of the famous Commoner as a practical statesman, his loyalty to Christianity is worthy of high praise.

The pastor and church that try to keep up with all the new-fangled things of this day are liable to meet the fate of the chameleon that was placed on a piece of plaid cloth and which sought to do justice to all of the colors surrounding him. In the end there was a dead lizard on the scene.

Dr. Arthur Twine Hadley, President of Yale University, thinks that people should read only newspaper that "try to tell the truth." The distinguished gentleman should have gone further and stated where such secular dailies are to be found. As a matter of fact, if our papers were to undertake to tell the whole truth about current happenings, we fear that the race of editors would soon become extinct.

There is but one thing that can save modern civilization, and that is, REAL CHRISTIANITY. Nominal Christianity abounds, but that will not answer. The Gospel must be truly lived to be made efficacious, and when this is universally done all the ills of society will be healed. The present world war is raging because there was in Europe too much counterfeit Christianity and too little of the genuine religion of the Lord Jesus Christ.

* * *

In a letter to us some time ago—we do not remember whether it was original or quoted—Bishop James Atkins said: "Our schools of religion need to be made religious schools." This is certainly true. There could be no worse treason to our Lord and the Church than for us to fail to maintain at our educational institutions such an atmosphere as must inevitably strengthen the faith and enrich the life of every student who attends them. Nothing else that can be done for our youth can atone for a deficiency at this point. Even more than it needs trained intellects, the world needs men and women of sound character—men and women who know and fear God.

OUR GREAT BENEFACTOR.

God is the great giver, and from him have come all our valuable possessions. We are indebted to him even for our being itself, and no part of any man's estate that is worth having, either that which relates to his person or environment, has ever been inherited or acquired independently of the Heavenly Father. Both the soul, which wears the Divine image, and the body, "the house beautiful" in which it lives, are the creations of his unerring wisdom and power.

How vast and incalculable are our obligations to the beneficent Creator for what he has done for us in the past! We are the beneficiaries of the achievements of all the generations of men that God previously brought into existence and who lived and wrought before us. The fertile fields which they cleared, the cities which they builded, the railroads that they constructed, the factories that they set in motion, the ships that they launched upon the mighty seas, in fact, all that civilization is: its churches, its schools, its governments, its literature, its commerce, its arts, its sciences—all are ours. And they are such because God willed it to be so. It was He who made this beautiful world to be our home, everarching it with skies of various hues, carpeting it with emerald, lighting it with stars and suns, and bedecking with ten thousand splendors that beggar all description and that defy the artist's brush.

There are learned scientists who tell us that there has been an evolution or gradation of created orbs and that it took stupendous antecedent labors to make possible the earth's existence; that it was the great objective of the Divine Architect in the remote beginning, that it is the only inhabited planet, and that the whole universe was, so to speak, but the scaffolding used to make and perfect it. If this be true, how great must he the dignity and worth of man. And how infinite is his debt to the omnipotent and omniscient Being who brought into requisition such immeasurable masses of matter and expended such unlimited energy to prepare for him a theater of action and set him to living and moving in it.

But God's efforts in behalf of humanity are not confined to the past. He is still the preserver and the race and its bountiful provider. To him we owe the inexhaustible productiveness of the soil, the sunshine and the shower, the seed time and the harvest, the clothes that we wear, the water that we drink, and the very air that we breathe. Having made the world, he has not forsaken it and left it to be governed by lawless chance. His eye is ever upon it and he is directing all its affairs. Not a sparrow falleth to the ground but that he knoweth it. He who clothes the lilies of the field, will not neglect his own offspring for whom the flowers are made to bloom. It is the good hand of God that has given our Nation the bountiful crops with which it has this year been blessed—said to be largest and most valuable, taken all together, that it has ever had in its entire history.

We also owe more to God for the future that we may have in Christ than we can ever know. How splendid is the destiny of man if God's plan for him be realized! It was he who saw deeper into the things that are to be than perhaps any human being that has ever lived who uttered those wonderful words of unfathomable depth: "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when He shall appear, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is." Well may Christians be profoundly grateful for what God has prepared for them in eternity, where they shall share the glory of their victorious Lord and dwell with Him evermore.

But how shall we show our gratitude to God for his unfailing mercies and his abounding goodness? With the lips? Yes; we should speak forth his praises and voice them in the sweet notes of music and of song. But we should not stop with that. Our lives should also be such as to attest our appreciation and thankfulness. Nothing so honors and delights the Heavenly Father as a pure heart and holy living. And, furthermore, we can exhibit our gratitude by scattering blessings abroad among our fellow-men—his children—in his glorious name. How sorely is this needed by the sin-sick and suffering millions of mankind!

"If all the pity and love untold
Would scatter abroad its coins of gold,
There would not be, on the whole round earth,
One hungry heart, nor one wretched hearth.

"And oh, if the kind words never said
Could bloom into flowers, and spread and shed
Their sweetness out on the common air,
The breath of Heaven would be everywhere."

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

President Woodrow Wilson on October 21 issued the following proclamation to the people of the United States:

"It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for his many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. The year that is now drawing to a close since we last observed our day of national thanksgiving has been, while a year of discipline because of the mighty forces of war and of changes which have disturbed the world, also a year of special blessing for us.

"Another year of peace has been vouchsafed us; another year in which not only to take thought of our duty to ourselves and to mankind, but also to adjust ourselves to the many responsibilities thrust upon us by a war which has involved almost the whole of Europe. We have been able to assert our rights and the rights of mankind without breach of friendship with the great nations with whom we have had to deal; and while we have asserted rights, we have been able also to perform duties and exercise privileges of succor and helpfulness which should serve to demonstrate our desire to make the offices of friendship the means of truly disinterested and unselfish service.

"Our ability to serve all who could avail themselves of our services in the midst of crises has been increased, by a gracious Providence, by more and more abundant crops; our ample financial resources have enabled us to steady the markets of the world and facilitate the necessary movements of commerce which the war might otherwise have rendered impossible; and our people have come more and more to a sober realization of the part they have been called upon to play in a time when all the world is shaken by unparalleled distresses and disasters.

"The extraordinary circumstances of such a time have done much to quicken our national consciousness, and deepen and confirm our confidence in the principles of peace and freedom by which we have always sought to be guided. Out of darkness and perplexities have come firmer counsels of policy and clearer perceptions of the essential welfare of the nation. We have prospered while other peoples were at war, but our prosperity has been vouchsafed us, we believe, only that we might the better perform the functions which war rendered it impossible for them to perform.

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the 25th of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and invite the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this 20th day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and fortieth.

"By the President:

"WOODROW WILSON,

"ROBERT LANSING, Secretary of State."

THANKFUL FOR OUR CITIZENSHIP.

If one pauses to think, it is much to be thankful for to belong to a Nation which was founded upon such broad ideas of human liberty and opportunity, which has become a people of an hundred millions, with unparalleled enterprise and prosperity, with inexhaustible resources—only we have to remember that thus far it is the little nations which have done the great things and furnished the great leaders for humanity. What American citizen, what American youth can fail to offer up a devout thanksgiving that the external grandeur of our land is so sublimely worthy of the political ideas and lofty sentiments which found a place in our early settlements, and every now and then appear in worthy leaders and give us hope that in the midst of all our tremendous problems there may always be found those wise enough and strong enough to hold high up this national ideal when it has fallen into unworthy hands—to give it new life when it languishes? There are reasons in our foundation and in our history for profound gratitude. We do well to call them to mind, to glorify them. Only too often we confess them as a creed we glibly repeat and then immediately neglect; we accept them as the air we breathe, and forget what responsibilities they lay upon us, and whose gift they all are.—Western Christian Advocate.

THE WICKED.

By Rev. Rolfe Hunt, D. D.

The writer of the Seventy-third Psalm was not the only man who has had trouble about the prosperity and pride of the wicked and the adversity and sufferings of the righteous. Possibly the time has come to every thoughtful mind when faith has been sorely tested over this problem, which is as old as the ages and as universal as is the presence of human beings.

The Psalmist in question was about to conclude that wicked men are universally more prosperous than the righteous and that it is a vain and costly thing to serve God.

Reflection clearly shows that his conclusion was about to be hastily formed, with much overlooked. It is not true that all the wicked are prosperous and happy. The most squalid and miserable destitution on earth is found among the vilest sinners. It is not true that all the righteous are poor and miserable. Many of the prosperous and happy people of all ages have been among God's truest saints.

REV R. H. WYNN, D.D.,
President of Centenary College, who is leading the campaign to endow that historic institution.

But we must admit that there is a great deal in common between the righteous and the wicked, when it comes to temporary fortune and misfortune. The rain descends upon the just and the unjust. The righteous sometimes prosper, but so do the wicked. The wicked sometimes suffer straits through short crops and low prices, but so do the righteous. The wicked lose by fire and flood, but the righteous are not exempt. The wicked sicken, but the righteous are also stricken by disease. The wicked bury loved ones and in loneliness mourn over severed ties; the righteous stand over new-made graves and bewail the departure of those most fondly cherished. The wicked dies upon his bed of suffering; but from the same bed and from the same home the holiest man that ever glorified God yields up the spirit and passes to realms unseen. Verily, of this world's good and evil, the servants of God and the servants of Satan have no little in common.

From these facts, subtle temptations come, and from them different men have drawn different conclusions.

One class have concluded that God is at present having nothing to do with this world; that, in the beginning, He created the earth and its inhabitants, impressed them with the possibilities of continuance for an indefinite period, and retired without administration.

Skeptics and infidels have concluded that there is no such being of infinite perfections and benevolence, and they stand ready to plunge the world into the desperation of godlessness and atheism.

Yet others have entertained the conclusion that it is a vain thing to trust God or to render Him service. For a short time, even Job and David had their soul-struggles here, and, in the days of Malachi, the Jews generally became open in the avowal that it is a vain thing to serve God.

To the rational man who reflects, it will be apparent that there is much involved here that a finite person can not comprehend. It is sensible to rejoice that God is doing greater things than we can at present understand. To me, it would be appalling that God's providence should be limited to my poor comprehension.

But there are many things that we can understand, if we will consider; and it is well for us to turn attention to a few of these.

In the first place, if God did not deal in mercy with the sinner, no one could ever become a righteous man; for we have all sinned and come short of the glory of God.

In the second place, if God were to refuse to deal mercifully with sinners, there would be no adequate demonstration of His benevolent and gracious character, and nothing to win the sinner's gratitude and love.

In the third place, should the wicked receive nothing but adversity and bitterness at the hands of God, they might, with some justice, when they receive their sentence at the Judgment, say: "You never showed us any kindness; you never situated us as you did those entering into life." As it is, every mouth will be stopped; every condemned soul will be speechless.

But let us for a moment consider this question in relation to the righteous.

In the first place, if distinctions in every particular were made so complete as to cancel everything in common between the righteous and the wicked, there could not exist any bond of understanding or sympathy which would lead the good man to make proper effort for the sinner's salvation; and without this bond of sympathy the sinner would never melt and yield to the Christian's overture.

In the second place, if God should send only ease and pleasure to his servants, there would be a constant tendency to obey God from selfish and temporary considerations, which would submerge that which is noblest and eternal.

Were no difficulties or hardships put in the good man's way, how could the superior character and unswerving loyalty of the man of God be demonstrated; or how could any one know the sufficiency of Divine grace for every human lot?

No matter how we may shrink from pain, the fact remains that we need chastening; and it is equally true that many of our best lessons are learned in the school of suffering. No less is it true that many rebellious hearts have laid down their rebellion and lost all their skepticism when they have looked upon the joy of God's saints in agony. In view of our social relations, God must consider others, as well as ourselves, in dealing with us.

But while it is true that there is a great deal in common between the righteous and the wicked here in this age of the world, we must not conclude that all things are common. There are important differences, even temporarily.

The righteous man may, now and then, suffer loss or undergo persecution for his devotion to God; and the wicked man may, now and then, make friends and gain wealth by his rascality—but even with it so, the suffering saint enjoys the approval of his own conscience and the approbation of God, while the sinner suffers remorse and is conscious of Divine condemnation.

Amid all the good man's trials and hardships, he enjoys the Divine assurance that it is for his good, while the wicked man has no promise, pledge or guarantee, either for time or eternity.

No matter what may be the ordeal of the righteous man, within abides a sustaining Comforter who enables him to sing where the bad man despairs and suicides.

Finally, we must remember that no matter how numerous and how great the distinctions and differences now really are, the lines of discrimination are not yet fully drawn and the differences are not yet completely discerned. We must ever keep in mind the fact that this is not our ultimate place or condition. This is only a probationary State and a probationary world. We are here to get ready for Eternity. In the Judgment that is to come, paths will diverge, lines will be clearly drawn, distinctions will be made plain; and from that time on the righteous and the wicked will have nothing more in common. It was this forward look that reassured the troubled Job and the doubting Psalmist. It was this that led Malachi to hurl defiance at a faithless nation, saying: "Then shall ye return and discern between the righteous and the wicked; between him that serveth God, and him that serveth him not."

The Judgment and Eternity are the solution of all problems that can not be solved in Time, and they give to Time its richest significance.

Hickory, Miss.

SOME WORDS OF APPRECIATION.

Dear Mr. Editor: There dwells in our midst, in the old historic town of Mansfield, La., the grandest patriarch that the Louisiana Methodist Conference has ever known since the death of Rev. H. C. Thweatt, D.D., who was the founder and first president of Mansfield Female College. Dr. Thweatt's portrait adorns the pages of "The Methodist Pulpit, South," and his remains quietly rest on the beautiful campus of M. F. C., once so dear to the loving heart of its founder.

No man, since the days of President H. C. Thweatt, has done so much for Mansfield Female College (the legacy he gave to us) as he of whom I write, his worthy follower, Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard, of the later Louisiana Conference. He has borne the finances of M. F. C. upon his heart—has labored with his active brain to devise some plan to help. The untiring energy of his nature has been spent in lifting its financial burdens in the past, always succeeding in bridging over the chasm that, more than once, has threatened the dear old institution with desolation, and even death itself, giving of his own substance (though not a millionaire) to save it from ruin.

So much for his invaluable work in the interest of the college; but his efforts to advance the interest of the M. E. Church, South, in our town have been just as marked.

Now—possibly in the last decade of his wonderful life—his last crowning act appears in a work of much needed service to his beloved church.

Again has he "put his shoulder to the wheel." Such unceasing activity fell heavily upon this aged man, to which his weakened physical condition bore testimony, but "he went forth to conquer," and by his strong will-power and never-flagging efforts he was successful in raising the balance of funds necessary to build a beautiful Sunday school annex to the Methodist house of worship here, in which the Louisiana Annual Conference will be held on the 17th inst.

But for Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard this beautiful annex would have been only a beautiful vision, and not the materialized reality of to-day; for hope had died in the hearts of much younger men on the Building Committee, who were ready to abandon the project as hopeless and altogether impracticable this year. Brother Sheppard, as ever of old, came to the relief of the despondent committee, assuming the responsibility of raising the amount required.

Very soon, now, that much-needed Sunday school annex will be completed—

"A thing of beauty, and a joy forever"—

a fitting memorial to Brother Sheppard's unceasing love and devotion to the Methodist cause in the town of Mansfield, La.

"Honor to whom honor is due!"

Sunday, Nov. 14, is to be "Dedication Day" for the annex.

Sincerely yours,
AN ALUMNA OF M. F. C., AND A FRIEND TO THE METHODIST CHURCH.

THEIR RESPONSES.

As was stated in last week's Advocate, the New Orleans Protestant Ministers' Association addressed to the three candidates for the office of Governor of Louisiana the following inquiries:

"1. If elected Governor, will you exercise to the fullest extent the authority vested in you for the suppression of gambling on the horse races by a strict enforcement of the Locke law?

"2. If it is found impossible to prevent under existing laws, devices and arrangements by which gambling on the races is encouraged and promoted, will you use your influence for the passage of additional legislation which will suppress such devices and arrangements?

"3. Will you, if elected Governor, use all the authority vested in your office to secure the thorough enforcement of the Sunday law, the Gay-Shattuck law, and such laws as exist against gambling, in every section of the State?"

All of these gentlemen have now been heard from, and we give below their responses.

Mr. John M. Parker:

"First—There is a State law providing for the regulation of racing throughout the State, and when conducted within the law there will be no interference by me.

"Second—I am personally not a patron of racing, but if the people want it, and it is conducted within the law and along lines that are fair and clean, I will not interfere.

"Third—The enforcement of the law is largely left to the local authorities, and if a law is obnoxious its enforcement is impracticable. This question should be submitted to every local authority in the State for answer."

Mr. Pleasant:

"Replying to yours of the 8th instant, I wish to say that, if elected Governor, I will enforce the laws to which you refer, and all other laws, as far as the power and the authority lie in the Governor so to do."

Mr. Barret:

"Yes, to all the questions. I do not favor horse race gambling. My position on the Locke law is clear. I favor the enforcement of the Sunday law and the Gay-Shattuck law, whether in Shreveport or New Orleans.

"Furthermore, if elected Governor, I will endeavor to have passed a law similar to that of Tennessee, whereby officials who do not perform their duty and enforce the laws can be removed in a summary manner, a proceeding invoked in Memphis just a day or two ago."

The Times-Picayune has epitomized the attitude of the three gubernatorial aspirants as follows:

"Home rule and non-interference with racing when within the law."—John M. Parker.

"Enforcement of the laws as far as the power and authority lie in the Governor to do so."—Colonel R. G. Pleasant.

"Strict law enforcement and additional statutes to compel local authorities to enforce the law."—Thomas C. Barrett.

The Editor of the Advocate will make no comment upon these replies, except to say that an enactment similar to the one existing in Tennessee by which the Mayor of Memphis, who apparently had been squinting at notoriously open violations of the law, was recently ejected from office, would, in his opinion, be a great thing for Louisiana.

THE PASSING OF THE TOBACCO HABIT AMONG PREACHERS.

By Rev. P. O. Lowrey.

Knowing our spirit of antagonism for the use of tobacco among preachers, a friend has asked us to write a few words for the Advocate on "preachers using tobacco at Conference." We suppose that he had in mind the discredit that has often come to the cause of Christ and his Church from the habit that some Christian ministers have of assembling on such an occasion and so filling the air of the streets with tobacco smoke, or the sidewalks with tobacco juice, that the citizens of the town are at a loss to know whether the visitors are not nomadic "sports" rather than a body of Christian ministers whose "pure religion" is to keep them "unspotted from the world." Or perhaps the friend had in mind the too oft occurring experience of some housewife who, in the spirit of Christian hospitality, has thrown open her home to receive ministers of Christ and becomes so aggrieved and disgusted to find her hearths ambeer stained and her lace curtains, dresser scarfs, and bedclothes so saturated with tobacco smoke, and the training that she had given her boys against the use of tobacco so upset that when the Conference is over and the guests are gone she almost registers a vow that she will never again be a party to entertaining a Methodist Conference. If these be the offenses that our friend would condemn, we join him in his condemnation. A body of public school teachers, or college or State university professors, or even a student body of boys themselves could beat that, and for the Christian minister to be in the rear of such a procession makes him a leader in the wrong direction.

If "of every $1000 spent in America $500 goes for liquor and tobacco," and "the cigarette is becoming a greater national evil than alcohol," as scientists assert; if "tobacco is the arch-enemy of efficieney," and if one "might as well try to educate a post as a boy who smokes," and "nearly all incorrigible truants and youthful offenders are cigarette smokers," as other scientists declare; and if Harriman, the railroad king, was right when he said: "I would just as soon think of getting my employees out of the insane asylum as to employ cigarette users," and if our Legislature was right when in 1908 it enacted a law that "the sale, barter, or exchange by wholesale or retail of tobacco, cigarettes, or cigarette papers to minors shall be prohibited in the State of Louisiana;" if these declarations and enactments be correct and our Church was right in its recent legislation in this matter, then it is time for our Methodist preachers to discard this money-destroying, body-destroying, mind-destroying, and filthy habit, or else they must suffer in the esteem of the commonplace men of affairs who observe and think a great deal, though out of their great courtesy they may say but little.

And if, for no other reason, our few remaining tobacco-using brethren should desist, at least publicly, in view of the growing public sentiment against it—on the same ground that one of our younger Bishops gave for his giving up the habit, following the last General Conference, when its use was prohibited by law to the future candidates for admission into our traveling connection. The Bishop assigned as his reason for giving up his cigars the same that an old darkey gave for getting off of a mule. He chanced to pass down the street where a younger negro was feeling his way towards mounting a tricky mule, whereupon the old negro, in much scorn at such timidity, seized the bridle, and, taking the bare-backed animal by the rein, proceeded to "sho' dat nigger how to ride dat mule," and with one leap he straddled him. But no sooner had he done so than the mule put his head between his legs, bowed his back upward somewhat in the shape of a barrel-hoop, and the thing came off. The old negro cut several whirling figures in the air and landed in a sand-pile on his head. As he arose, brushing away the dirt from his face and clothes, he said: "Dat's what I's a tellin' y'; when yo' see a mule's gwine ter throw y', get off'n 'im!" Thus science, and business, and culture, and religion are now engaged in the broncho bucking act, and while the tobacco user may swing on for a few rounds, trying to ease his conscience and justify himself before men, the contact with the sand pile is certain.

At Mansfield neither the pastor, the Sunday school superintendent, the College president, the women, the children, nor many of the men use tobacco, and all are teaching their children not to use it, and they would much prefer that the Conference delegates leave their pipes and quids at home. Let's make it unanimous!

A NOTABLY SUCCESSFUL PASTORATE.

The Beaumont (Texas) Enterprise, on Monday, Nov. 8, contained an account of a farewell service conducted in the First Methodist Church of that city, complimentary to Rev. W. J. Johnson, its pastor, who had served it for four years. A number of other Protestant ministers of the city took part in the exercises, the sermon of the occasion being preached by Rev. G. B. Butler, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The audience in attendance was estimated at 1500.

The First Methodist Church of Beaumont is one of the large congregations of Southern Methodism, its present membership numbering 1142. This does not include 125 members given early in the year to the North End Methodist Church, one of the two mission churches that have been established in Beaumont by First Church. The other mission church is called Deaton's Chapel. The value of the property held by this congregation is as follows: First Church, $96,000; parsonage, $18,000; Deaton's Chapel, $1000; North End Church, $3000.

Mr. Johnson's pastorate in Beaumont has been a remarkably successful one. During the past year 212 members have been received, and the church has raised for all purposes $14,192.20. Since the present pastor took charge four years ago the total number of members who have come in is 812, and the total amount of money raised is $61,670. All the different departments of the work are in a flourishing condition and the outlook for Methodism in Beaumont was never so bright. Particularly to be commended is the missionary activity that this flock has shown. Besides planting and helping to maintain two local missionary churches, much has been done for the general cause of missions. Its contributions for this purpose this year amounted to $3454.

Mr. Johnson is an ex-Mississippian, being a son of Col. J. M. Johnson, of Holmes County, Miss. He was educated at the Mississippi A. & M. College, the Southern University at Greensboro, Ala., and Vanderbilt University. He joined the West Texas Conference in 1891 and served appointments in it with marked efficiency until eight years ago, when he was transferred to the Texas Conference and stationed at Galveston, where he wrought effectively for four years. From there he was sent to Beaumont, where he has just completed a quadrennium. The Beaumont Enterprise says that progressive city has never had in it a more popular pastor, or one that will be given up with greater reluctance.

Mr. Johnson is a grandson of the late Rev. Stephen Johnson, of Carroll County, Miss., who was a widely known pioneer local preacher in Central Mississippi, and a man of picturesque and remarkably forceful personality. In the autumn of 1905, after a visit to Black Hawk, Miss., to dedicate a new church that had been erected there, Bishop Charles B. Galloway, in mentioning in the New Orleans Christian Advocate some of the leading Methodists of that community that he had known in other days, thus referred to this loyal and zealous worker: "The Rev. Stephen Johnson, local preacher, planter, financier, public-spirited citizen, had the head of a Roman senator and the strong figure of a gladiator. His majestic frame was a fitting temple for his massive brain. He amassed a fortune without taint on a single dollar. His judgment was sought by statesmen and financiers during the dark days of Reconstruction. He served a term in the State Senate with conspicuous ability."

So, it will be seen that Rev. W. J. Johnson, who is giving such a good account of himself in the itinerant ministry in Texas, has behind him a worthy Methodist ancestry. Such a succession has not been uncommon in the history of the great Wesleyan movement. Rev. R. A. Meek, editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, is also a grandson of the Rev. Stephen Johnson.

INSURANCE WITHOUT AEGNTS.

It is well known that several States are attempting to furnish their citizens insurance without the employment of agents. Many people are not aware that Methodist preachers have had for over thirty-seven years such an Association—the Methodist Ministers Relief Insurance and Trust Association. Its insurance is issued on applications received by mail from the ends of the earth. The Association numbers over eleven hundred policy holders, representing eight branches of Methodism and over one hundred Conferences. Sixty-seven policy holders were elected delegates to the last General Conference. For the last five years it has averaged the payment of $1000 in claims weekly. Over one million two hundred thousand dollars has already been paid to beneficiaries. The most popular policy is one payable at death or on reaching age of 65. Another policy combines insurance with Old Age pension beginning at 65. It is an Old Line (legal reserve) company, chartered under the laws of Massachusetts, with its office in the Wesleyan Building, in Boston.

LET US CATCH STEP.

This issue of the Advocate will go out [illegible] many thousands of subscribers to their homes before it will be delivered to every pastor and delegate attending the Louisiana Conference. The Secretary and Publicity Commissioner of the Conference Board of Education have had much to say to Louisiana Methodists through this column during the past few months about Christian Education and our duty to maintain Centenary College and Mansfield Female College. We fear that right now, while we are assembled together, we ought to catch step in a great forward movement along educational lines. We ought to go home to our charges with our heart on fire with enthusiasm for our own institutions. We should be unified in our efforts and feel confident that there is none who sounds a discordant note.

It is encouraging to note that the very things we desire is being realized to a great extent. The following messages from editors and leading laymen and ministers are virtually a trumpet blast calling us to action. We commend to our reader every line of these messages.

The "Why of the Church School."

If it is true that the side on which the individual touches God and things eternal is the side of his largest possibilities, the matter of training that particular side should be to us one of serious concern. Especially does this demand our best consideration at this time when there is so much in our modern life calculated to demoralize and degrade. And put system of training or culture, or any theory or course of education, that fails at this point must be set aside as inadequate. Herein is found a key to that often asked question, "Why the Church School?"

The Day of the Trained Worker.

This is the day of the trained workers. "Efficiency" is the watchword of the hour. The man that succeeds at anything is the man that does that thing better than others do it, and the man that succeeds best of all is he that the does his work better than anybody else does it.

In this respect the work of the Church is not vastly different from other work. Time was when any willing worker may have been good enough but in this day of specialties the work of the Church requires trained specialists as much as does any other work.

Other Churches, and our Church in [illegible] have realized this, but we of the Louisiana Conference have not.

Unless we equip Centenary College to give us trained workers—lay and clerical—to the end of the Church, she will go backward instead of forward.

THANKSGIVING RESOLUTION.

By Schuyler E. Sears.

Our blessed Lord and Master in the Book
Has told us of a man who prospered so
That not in buildings old could he bestow
The increase of his fields, and so betook
Himself new barns to build. If we but look
About we all can see God's overflow.
Let's not resolve with faces all aglow
How we may keep for self in some new nook
The blessings we have garnered through the year;
But let us seek to find some neighbor's mow
Where scanter harvests are, and there some sheaves
Lay down from our own fields. 'Twill warm and cheer
The heart full well when falls death's chilly snow
To have some treasure 'neath the heavenly eaves.

EVERY DAY A THANKSGIVING.

Thanksgiving should never be wantlng in a life. It is not enough to observe one day in the year for thanksgiving, although that is a beautiful thing to do. Nor is it enough to put a sentence of thanksgiving into our daily prayers, although this also is proper. It is the grateful spirit that pleases God, the spirit that is always full of praise. Too many of us go to God only with requests, our burdens, our worries, while we but rarely go to him with praise. We are not to be thankful only for the pleasant things that come into our days—we are to be thankful, too, for the things that appear to us to he adversities. "In everything give thanks." That means, in the sad days as well as in the glad days, when clouds are in the sky, as well as when the sunshine is pouring everywhere. It is specially said here that this is the will of God for us. This is the way God wants us to live. A rabbinical teaching says that the highest angel in heaven is the angel of praise. The Christliest life is one that is always keyed to the note of praise and thanksgiving.—Rev. J. R. Miller.

CO-OPERATIVE WELFARE.

By H. N. Pringle.

The four passions for drink, drugs, sexual indulgence, and gambling are methodically stimulated by four allied armies of promoters, whose combined receipts exceed $3,000,000,000 per year in the United States. If this sum—worse than wasted—were used for trade schools, hospitals, good roads, levees, flood storage, irrigation, drainage, waterways, scientific agriculture, fighting plant pests, staying avoidable diseases, for industrial safety and general welfare, this old world would be transformed in ten years, with happiness increased, and the span of life prolonged.

These saloon men, drug venders, madams, and professional gamblers have no desire to inflict the least injury on property, person or reputation. Many of them possess more good qualities than the average of their patrons. When a useful citizen becomes a drunkard, or a drug fiend, or a rue, or a gambler, the vice promoter who helped him on his way deeply regrets the result. The charge justly brought against these people, who exploit the passions, frailties, and appetites of weak humanity, is that, in order to derive large profits from their investments, they shut their eyes to the results of their traffic.

The promoters of vices recoil at some of the results of their sordid commercialism. An example was Mr. Holzschelter of the Green Tree Cabaret, who recently spilled his goods, locked up his dance hall, and disappeared from New Orleans, after chalking on the bar: "No longer will I remain in association with thieves, disreputable women and men, still worse, who live upon their earnings. I lose all, but I will live among clean people and make my living honestly." Lincoln Steffins says that converted crooks are better material for reformers than many of the good people, who can be duped and led. Most reforms are greatly assisted by some former opponents.

The Constitution of Louisiana declares: "Gambling is a vice, and the General Assembly shall pass laws to suppress it." At six sessions the Assembly has legislated out eight specific forms of gambling; but, as the law now stands, "private betting" is systematically promoted at the race-track, and poker rooms, where men gamble for money, are operated openly every night in the week. Archbishop Blenk recently wrote: "I am unwilling to believe that the advocates of this damnable vice of race-horse gambling will have the effrontery to attempt again to foist upon us this form of iniquity." The Reinhardt bill to restore book-making was defeated in the last Assembly only by a vote of 55 to 50 in the house.

DR. STONEWALL ANDERSON'S DECREE—IS IT?

By H. Walter Featherstun, D. D.

The Bulletin of the Board of Education for November, 1915, contains an article from Dr. Stonewall Anderson, Corresponding Secretary of the Board, entitled "The Educational Policy of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South." Some of the items of this policy as told by Dr. Anderson are evidently not a part of the Church's policy. This will be made plain by use of the "deadly parallel:"

DR. ANDERSON	DISCIPLINE, 1914
"It (the commission of ten practical educators) shall prescribe the minimum requirements to be demanded of the several classes of institutions of the Church."—Page 148.	"They shall prescribe the minimum requirements to be demanded of the several classes in institutions belonging to or controlled by the Church."—Par. 469.

"The minimum requirements are to he demanded of the several classes in the institutions," i. e., the Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior classes. The Discipline commissions the "ten educators" to prescribe the minimum requirements for entrance by pupils into these several classes: Dr. Anderson indicates that the Commission is authorized to prescribe the requirements to be demanded of the institutions seeking classification. Anybody who understands the English language may see the wide variance here. The rest of Par. 469 indicates clearly that the classification of the institutions of the Church is to be made not by this Commission, but by "the General Conference Board of Education, assisted by the several Conference Boards of Education."

On page 149, the Doctor says: "Only Universities and A and B Colleges may confer the baccalaureate degrees." By what authority does Dr. Anderson or the General Board of Education say this? Neither the Discipline nor the Journal of the General Conference of 1914 gives the Doctor or his Board any power to issue or enforce this decree.

How does the Doctor propose to enforce this decree? By withholding from the disobedient college its share in the appropriations? Somebody tried to write into the law these words: "No institution shall receive financial support or recognition except those which are duly classified according to the standard and requirements of the Commission on Education;" but the General Conference on May 22, 1914, by its vote, declared that such should not be the law of the Church. See Journal, page 308. Paragraph 461 of the Discipline puts the disbursing of the educational fund of the Annual Conference in the power of the Annual Conference; and no edict of a General Board or a General Secretary can interfere. So, how does Dr. Anderson propose to prohibit the conferring of baccalaureate degrees by our fine, but not large, colleges which are unclassified?

I have shown—and no one has attempted to disprove it—that any college in Mississippi which fails to confer these degrees may as well close its doors; for speedy extinction will be its certain doom.

THE BEGINNING OF ANOTHER LOAN FUND IN OUR SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

Bishop John C. Kilgo, in a recent letter, writes me as follows: "I send you herein a check for $100. It is the gift of Mr. H. W. Ackerman, of Landrum, S. C. He graduated from Wofford College and has been a teacher for all these years. I know him to he a royal soul. Desiring to help some person, he sent me the check and I wrote him of the needs of young men preparing for the ministry at Candler School of Theology, and suggested that the amount be placed there as a loan fund. To this suggestion he heartily agreed; so I ask you to take it and use it as is indicated. Let the fund be known as the Ackerman Loan Fund. In the years to come it should render a large service, as my experience with such funds has proven."

This is a good gift, and it will be of great service. Many young men need help to complete their preparation for the ministry, and they prefer a loan to a gift. The Ackerman Fund will aid many in the years to come, and it will grow with use. It is impossible to overstate the value of such funds.

About a year ago an aged saint, then living at Milledgeville, Ga., sent me $3 to be used in this way. She was so infirm at the time she made the gift that she could not walk; but she desired to do something to aid young men looking to the ministry, and she gave all she had. I published her letter, and others sent contributions to be combined with hers for the same purpose. The fund has now grown to the amount of about $300. I am glad she lived to see such an increase come to the fund which she started with faith and prayer and a gift as large as she could make. Recently she passed to her reward, but before her departure she was comforted by the knowledge of what her deed of faith and love had accomplished. It is now not improper that I should give the name of this saintly woman, Mrs. Sarah Frances Forbes, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. N. Cobert, in Milledgeville, Ga., on September 30. I wish others might add to the fund which she began and make it a worthy memorial to this dear old saint. Truly she did what she could.

"SWEET BELL OF LIBERTY."

By Miss E. Carver Jamieson.

Ring out, ring our forever,
Sweet Bell of Liberty
Sing out, sing out forever,
"My Country, 'Tis of Thee
Unfurl the royal banner,
The red, the white and blue
O let it wave forever,
Ye loyal patriots true.

O gracious Heavenly Father
Of all mankind, we pray,
Give us the grace and courage
Thy calling to obey.
O help us send the gospel
Of peace and liberty
To every tribe and nation,
O'er every land and sea

Great God of all creation
The earth, the sky, and sea
In mercy, bless our Nation,
The noble, brave and free
In tender mercy, keep us
Till kingdoms here shall end
Thine be the power and glory
Forevermore. Amen.

THREE BOYS.

"Watch that boy, now," said Phil.

"Which boy?" said Ned.

"That boy who was at play, will sit down on the sand. His name is Will. He knows how to look out for himself, doesn't he?"

Phil and Ned, with their parents, had been spending some time at the seaside. Will was a boy who had come to pass the evening in the parlor of the boarding house. Here it was that Phil and Ned saw him.

First he had hunted out a large easy chair, and was tugging at it to get it to the table.

"There! He's got it squared around just to suit him," Ned said.

"Now he's moving the lamp nearer to it," said Phil. "Well, did I ever! If he isn't putting a footstool before it. I suppose he's all ready to enjoy it."

It was plain that Will was. With a pleased look he gazed around the room until he caught sight of a lady who was standing. He darted toward her and said, "Come, mother, I have a nice place for you." He led her to the chair and settled the stool at her feet as she sat down.

Phil and Ned looked a little foolish. Presently Phil sprang out of his chair as his mother came near. "Mother, take my chair," he said.

Ned stepped quickly to pick up a handkerchief which a lady had dropped and returned it with a bow.

There are wise boys who profit by a graceful lesson given by a true gentleman. Apples of Gold.

FATHER DIDN'T MIND IT.

He was a bouncing, big turkey, and they hung him by the heels, so that his nose almost touched the walk just outside the butcher's shop. A little girl was standing there watching it. You could see that she was a hungry little girl and, worse than that, she was cold, too, for her shawl had to do for a hood and almost everything else. No one was looking, and so she put out a little red hand and gave the great turkey a push; and he swung back and forth, almost making the great iron hook creak, he was so heavy.

"What a splendid, big turkey!"

The poor little girl turned around, and there was another little girl looking at the turkey, too. She was out walking with her dolls and had on a cloak with real fur all around the edges and she had a real muff, white with little black spots all over it.

"Good morning, miss," said the butcher man. You see he knew the little girl with the muff perfectly well.

"That's a big turkey, Mr. Martin."

"Yes," said the poor little girl timidly. "He's the biggest I ever saw."

"Papa's going to buy that turkey for dinner."

"Come, Lillie, we must go home," said the little girl with the muff. "Mamma gave me some money in my pocket and said I could do just as I pleased. I'm going to buy the turkey."

The poor little girl's face fell. "I wish you would," she said. "We haven't had any meat always so much. Every day we go home for Foxy to help. Poor Foxy! I know we can carry him."

I haven't room to tell you all that the poor little girl got for turkey and things.

"What's this?" said the butcher, as he lifted eighteen pounds, $1.20.

"That's all right," said the little girl with the muff. "I bought him and gave him to a poor little girl who never ate one, and it's money in my iron bank."

The bank was opened, and there were two dollars big pennies in it.—New York Tribune.

THE LIBERTY BELL.

The Bell was cast in London in 17[illegible] by order of the Assembly of Pennsylvania, at a cost of one hundred pounds sterling. It was landed in Philadelphia in that year and at the first trial was "cracked by a stroke of the clapper without any other violence."

Pass and Stow, two Philadelphia [illegible] workmen, undertook the recasting of the Bell. The first trial was not satisfactory, the Liberty Bell being the result of the second effort. The cost was £[illegible] 10s 9d (about $[illegible]).

Editorial

IN JUSTICE TO ALL CONCERNED.

(By the Editor)

We are informed that rumors have been afloat that the New Orleans Christian Advocate is being issued at a considerable profit to the Publisher, and that the best contract possible for the Church has not been made. We desire to assure the Methodists of Louisiana and Mississippi that all such reports are without any foundation in fact. Members of the Publishing Committee, before renewing the contract with Mr. Chalmers, had other well-equipped printing establishments to submit bids, and all of these were largely in excess of the amount paid for the work under the present arrangement. The Editor knows personally of three such bids, and two of them were for printing and mailing alone higher than the whole income of the paper, leaving nothing whatever for the salary of an editor or office expenses. And we are under the impression that the third bid (we did have the privilege of examining it carefully) was substantially in keeping with the other two just mentioned—it was, at any rate, far above Mr. Chalmers' offer. These figures are doubtless available if any one should desire to see them.

The truth is, it is the Publisher's job printing that enables him to issue the Advocate upon such remarkably favorable terms. This is not unusual. The editor of one of our best $1.50 papers wrote us a few weeks ago that in order to keep the journal with which he is connected going it had been necessary to establish a general printing business as a means of earning a part of the funds needed to meet expenses. As is well known, many of the Nation's leading periodicals (perhaps a majority of them) such as The Century, Scribner's Magazine, The Literary Digest, Harper's Magazine, The Saturday Evening Post, etc., are issued in close connection with publishing houses and large printing plants. This is by no means accidental. There is much significance in it.

We know of no Church paper in Southern Methodism, with an income so small, that is as well printed or which meets its bills so promptly as the New Orleans Christian Advocate. We happen to know that under some former administrations the paper was often in debt and that the editors sometimes went for months without their salaries.

As Brother Chalmers' co-laborer, we have felt moved from a sheer sense of justice to make this statement. The Conferences that own the paper may feel assured that he is rendering them faithful and efficient service at a lower cost than it can be secured at the hands of any other responsible party. The Publishing Committee of the Advocate is a wide-awake body of men, and is taking nothing for granted in caring for its interests. They are in every respect worthy of the confidence which has been reposed in them.

WILL WAR AGAINST OFFICIALISM.

"The Forum" has announced its purpose to publish in its next few issues Herbert Spencer's series of essays, entitled "The Man versus the State," which he is said to have written with a view to warning the English people against the blight of officialism, and in which he explains in the most masterly manner the evils of too much legislation and over-administration. It is claimed by "The Forum" that this same trend has been going on in the United States for some time and that the harmful results are widespread and urgently need to be combated. We take from its statement bearing on this subject the following extract:

"One can now hardly take up a newspaper without reading of some legislative measure, either State or Federal, which narrows the area of personal freedom and increases that of official control. A historian once observed that all the reforms in Europe were made not by making new laws, but by repealing a large number of the old. Such must be the task of those in America who attempt to reform the work of the present reformers. For many years we have had no conservative party in the United States, no party to be a break upon the accelerating speed with which we are taking people from the producing class to make of them parasitic officials. So obsessed are we with the idea of law-made remedies that a California Legislature was gravely congratulated upon the number of laws that it had passed, the 'collective wisdom' having turned off the appalling total of 4000 in one short session—a record in the construction of wire entanglements. * * * Unmindful of Burke's observation that 'all innovation is not progress,' we have departed from the old conservative traditions."

As these essays appear, they will be commented upon by well known public men in the United States and their applicableness to American affairs will be pointed out.

We do not claim to be a complete "stand-patter," and we recognize the fact that it is sometimes necessary for the government to use its strong arm to strike down evils that are preying ruinously upon the body politic, as in the case of the liquor traffic, the great trusts, etc.; but with much of the foregoing utterance we are in hearty sympathy. The strength and stability of our Nation in the past have lain in the fact that it was a well-ordered democracy, with adequate checks, giving the people ample liberty, yet protecting our institutions from the dangers of a reckless radicalism. There has been within recent years a double drift away from this tested form of government which was bequeathed to us by our fathers: one in the direction of paternalism, and the other toward an unrestrained and immediate rule of the populace. The question as to whither we are tending is one that every intelligent and patriotic American may well begin to ponder. The republics that rose and fell in the past were largely unbridled democracies without constitutional safeguards from the excited and angry passions of the people. Are we to abandon the government that was framed by Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, and their illustrious compeers for one of this type? There are many in this day who seem very anxious to have us do so.

This disposition to break away from the old landmarks and traditions and build up a gigantic officialism is, we regret to say, also manifest in the Churches. Along with an effort to give the people in them a larger liberty in certain directions, paradoxical as it may seem, is a steady movement to abridge their freedom in other not less important respects. Bureaucracy is flourishing as never before and overseers are multiplying apace. More than once, we have heard the lamented Bishop Charles B. Galloway, who was a man of marvelous insight and vision, comment upon the heavy tax that Southern Methodism was bearing to maintain her work of supervision, and it has grown constantly larger since he went from us. For our part, we have pretty nearly come to the conclusion that about the most crying need of our Church is to re-discover the pastor and his capacity to lead and achieve. And if we knew that Mr. Spencer's series of essays would exert an influence toward this end, we should be very much inclined to wish for them a wide circulation among our people. True, he has not been distinguished as an instructor in matters ecclesiastical in the past, but this might be another case of good coming even out of Nazareth.

SIGNIFICANT.

We take the following from an article in the November number of Health Culture by Louis H. Chalif, entitled "Dancing Rules:"

"Four-inch distance between partners for dancing position this year. But do you think that it will do any good for us to try to standardize position? Do you think anybody is going to get as far away from his partner as four whole inches? No.

"It is impossible to eliminate closed position. I've tried for years, and neither man or woman is ready to give it up. Oh, yes, four inches when the dancing teacher is watching, but wait until they go to the dancing places and watch them close; the dancing public won't pay any attention to our four-inch decree, and go on as they please."

When one reads the whole of the article from which this is taken it is quite obvious that Mr. Chalif is not a prudish moralist, but a dancing instructor who is thoroughly up on the Terpsichorean art. Therefore, what he has to say in the paragraphs here quoted is entitled to all the more weight. We commend it to the careful consideration of those ministers and other professed Christians who are disposed to make concessions to dancers and to insist that dancing is one of the things that should be left to the individual conscience. It is not to the credit of Methodists that they have ceased in so many places to protest vigorously against this harmful diversion.

A FINE TRIBUTE.

In an article on John Bright, the great British statesman, in the October number of The North American Review, the Hon. George W. E. Russell, himself a distinguished English publicist, concluded with the following words: "With my whole heart I loved and honored him, and I count it one of my highest privileges to have heard, even though only in its failing force, that 'God-gifted organ voice of England,' which had spent its music in the service of humanity and freedom."

This is indeed a beautiful tribute. To be dowered with noble gifts and to use them faithfully for worthy ends is to be great in the only true sense. To possess superior talents and let them run to waste, or to devote them to wrong purposes, is to defraud one's self and God and humanity. Whether one's efforts are crowned with what the worlds calls success, or end in what men term failure, will matter but little in the last great day if one shall have put forth the full measure of one's strength to promote the cause of righteousness on earth and the betterment of mankind.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. C. Carlise, of Guntown, Miss., sends us some subscriptions and sounds an optimistic note from his developing field. His efforts this year have been crowned with a goodly measure of success, and he is happy in the work.

Rev. A. S. J. Neill, our popular pastor at Leeompte, La., has our thanks for a club of 9 subscribers to the Advocate, forwarded on November 9. He serves a good people, and has been achieving substantial results in his labors among them.

Under date Nov. 13, Rev. J. C. Park, of Tupelo, Miss., says: "We have everything about ready for Conference." It scarcely needs to be stated that Brother Park and the choice charge which he is serving will make a fine showing at New Albany.

A campaign is under way in New Orleans to raise $5000 for the Young Woman's Christian Association. Among those who are taking an active interest in this movement are Mrs. W. W. Carre and Mrs. Paul Saunders. This is a most deserving undertaking, and we wish it success.

Rev. C. A. Battle has reason to be gratified with the success that has attended his labors as pastor of the First Methodist Church of Baton Rouge, La. During the year 114 members have been received, and the work has prospered in every respect. The membership of this congregation now numbers 710

Mr. J. R. Carruth, of Chatawa, Miss., was in the Crescent City last Thursday and favored our office with a call. He left with the Publisher the money to have the Advocate continue its visits to his home for another year. We were glad to see again this worthy Methodist layman.

Rev. J. W. Dorman, who for the past four years has led our forces in the Sardis District, North Mississippi Conference, has made an enviable record. Clear-headed, faithful, and brotherly, he is splendidly adapted to the work of the presiding eldership. He has contributed largely to the upbuilding of Methodism in his Conference.

We are indebted to the Nashville Christian Advocate for the following note, which will interest many of our readers: "Rev. George D. Parker, formerly stationed at Petropolis, Brazil, has been transferred to the South Brazil Conference and made presiding elder of the Uruguayana District, with headquarters at Uruguayana."

It is stated that Rev. N. E. Joyner, who for some time has been doing educational and missionary work in Mexico, will be transferred to the Louisiana Conference at its approaching session at Mansfield. Brother Joyner's many friends in the Pelican State will extend to him a warm welcome. He is a product of Louisiana Methodism.

Rev. T. B. Winstead, of Burns, Miss., says: "Things are moving along very well in the Johns charge. We have had a good revival at every church, and are now striving to send up a full report to Conference, which we hope to do." Brother Winstead's letter brought us 6 subscriptions to the Advocate, for which we extend to him our thanks.

Rev. A. L. Davenport, of Walnut, Miss., writes: "We are closing our fourth year on the Chalybeate Circuit, with everything in good shape. This has been the best year of our stay here. We now have on this work four Sunday schools, two prayer meetings, and twenty family altars. My successor will find here a loyal, progressive, and spiritual people."

Rev. J. R. Jones, pastor of our Central Church at Meridian, is closing out his third year with all departments of the work in a prosperous condition. During his incumbency he has received 420 members. His congregations are larger at present than they have been at any time since he took charge. This showing will occasion no surprise among those who know Brother Jones.

Alfred Noyes, the distinguished English poet and writer, lectured in the auditorium of the Sophie B. Wright High School building, this city, last Monday evening, and was greeted by a large audience. His theme was "Optimism in the Poetry of the Future," and his remarks held the close attention of all present. He is a man of fine physique and a pleasing speaker.

We desire to thank the following friends, to whose kindness no reference has been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: "Rev. T. M. Bradley, Shelby, Miss., 2; Rev. W. L. Blackwell, Vancleave, Miss., 2; Rev. W. C. Galceran, Caledonia, Miss., 2; Rev. J. Wilson Brown (from Bayou Chicot, La.), 2; Rev. S. E. Flurry, Hub, Miss., 3; Rev. W. S. Lagrone, Clarksdale, Miss., 9.

A "Reprospect and Prospect Service" was conducted in the Methodist Church at Crowley, La., last Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Among those participating in the exercises were Rev. J. F. Wynn, Brother A. P. Holt, and the pastor, Rev. C. D. Atkinson, who is finishing a remarkably fruitful quadrennium at Crowley. The flourishing Sunday school there expects to report $1200 toward the liquidation of the debt on the new church by the end of the year.

We are indebted to Dr. I. W. Cooper, the popular President of Whitworth College, for the two following items of interest: "Rev. B. W. Lewis, of the Utica (Miss.) charge, is having a successful pastorate. He serves a noble people, and there is a universal demand for his return for another year..... Rev. J. M. Morse is closing a successful year at Brookhaven. He knows both how to work himself and how to get others to work. He is greatly beloved."

In a personal note to the Editor, Dr. F. S. Parker states that he expects to reach the North Mississippi Conference during its approaching session. This means that the members of that body will hear a vigorous message concerning our Epworth League work, which happily seems to have taken an upward trend since the last General Conference. Dr. Parker has for a number of years been the secretary of the Louisiana Conference, and a most efficient one he is.

At the late session of the North Alabama Conference there was a spirited debate as to whether the Alabama Christian Advocate should be merged with the Wesleyan Christian Advocate of Atlanta, or continued as an independent publication. The supporters of the latter policy won by a large majority. The management of the paper, however, will undergo a change. Rev. H. Whitehead, the present publisher, was assigned to a pastoral charge. He will serve the Vincent work, in the Talladega District.

Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Birmingham, Ala., Southern Methodism's model evangelist, wrote us on the 9th inst., as follows: "We had a great session of the North Alabama Conference. Dr. DuBose was at his best in his first platform message as Editor of The Methodist Review. He captured the Conference. I expect to see you at New Albany." The news that he will attend the approaching session of the North Mississippi Conference will delight Brother Bowen's many friends in the northern part of the Magnolia State.

We have in hand a program of an interesting public meeting held by the students of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose on Nov. 5. Besides the music and singing, there was a lively debate between representatives of the junior and senior classes, the subject under discussion being, "Resolved that the mind gains more knowledge from reading than from observation." The negative side, which was represented by Leland Clegg, Lola B. Armstrong, and Bertram Williams, was awarded the decision.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Bowman, of Wildwood, La., have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Pauline, to Mr. J. D. Rucker, of Ita Bena, Miss. The marriage will take place in the Jefferson Street Methodist Church at Natchez, Miss., on Thursday, November 25, at 1 o'clock p. m. No cards. Miss Bowman is a great-granddaughter of Mother Bowman who was known in the pioneer days of Methodism, and a granddaughter of the well known minister, Rev. James Bowman. The Advocate extends congratulations.

Mr. Frank A. Daniels, a prominent figure in the business activities of New Orleans, and who at one time was postmaster here and who had held various other public offices, died suddenly on Wednesday, November 10, as a result of a stroke of apoplexy. He had been in declining health for some two months or more. Brother Daniels was one of the leading members of the Algiers M. E. Church, South, and in his decease that congregation has sustained a great loss. The obsequies were conducted on Thursday, the 11th inst, by Rev. R. M. Brown, and the body was interred in Greenwood Cemetery.

The following pastors in the Louisiana Conference will be forced to change their fields of labor by the time limit: Rev. Wm. Schuhle, presiding elder of the Monroe District; Rev. J. D. Harper, Zachary, La.; Rev. C. D. Atkinson, Crowley; Rev. J. D. Nesom, Gueydan; Rev. H. N. Harrison, Lafayette; Rev. A. J. Bonnett, Sulphur; Rev. J. W. Lee, Lake Providence; Rev. T. J. Embree, Plain Dealing; Rev. J. L. Lay, Simmshoro; Rev. T. H. Morris, Mansfield; Rev. J. C. Rousseaux, Zwolle; Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., Epworth Church, New Orleans, and Rev. W. E. Thomas, Second Church, New Orleans.

Rev. J. E. Stephens reports as follows concerning his work at Louisville, Miss.: "Everything is moving on well. Succeeding Brother Smylie, I have been here ten weeks, and have received ten members into the Church. Over half of the Conference's assessments is in hand; it will all come by the time Conference meets. Our Sunday school has pledged $60 for the Methodist Orphanage, which is to be paid by Thanksgiving Day. We have many excellent people here." Brother Stephens' letter brought us 20 trial and 6 renewal subscriptions. We highly appreciate this good work in behalf of the Conference organ.

We acknowledge the reception, from the author, Rev. W. T. Bazzel, of Iuka, Miss., of an interesting and suggestive pamphlet entitled "That Ye Sin Not." It is an earnest discussion of the Scriptures to show the possibility of a Christian life free from sin and holy in the sight of God. Brother Bazzel closes his message with some original verses of far more than ordinary merit. In this day when low standards of living are so generally prevalent among Church people, this stirring plea is in our opinion, quite timely and calculated to exercise a wholesome influence. The price is ten cents. Write the author for a copy.

From a letter from Rev. J. L. Neill, pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, at Laurel, Miss., we take the following: "I have had to be away from home a good deal for the past two weeks. Mrs. Neill's mother was buried last Monday afternoon, November 8 [We suppose in Jackson, Miss.—Editor.] Our hearts are sad, yet glad because of her faith." We deeply sympathize with Brother and Sister Neill in their great loss, and pray that divine grace may sustain them. We hope that some one in a position to do so will send us a fuller and more definite statement concerning the [illegible] of the Mayer.

The Methodist News Bureau (Nashville) sends us the following: "The Executive Committee of the Laymen's Missionary Movement met last week in Nashville to elect a successor to the late Dr. Clarence F. Reid as Secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement. After giving careful consideration to this matter it was decided to carry on the work of this department by utilizing the present secretarial and office force of the Board of Missions. Dr. E. H. Rawlings, Educational Secretary of the Board of Missions, was elected Field Secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and Mr. Arthur C. Tippens, who has been assistant to Dr. Rawlings, was elected Office Secretary. The work of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, while in charge of committees, will be carried on without adding to the present force of missionary secretaries."

MEMORIAL WINDOW TO TOBIAS GIBSON.

To the Preachers and Laymen of the Mississippi Conference:

Dear Brethren: Last year we placed a memorial window in the Gibson Memorial Methodist Church of Vicksburg to the Rev. Tobias Gibson, who was the first Methodist missionary to the Natchez territory. After completing a number of the preachers of the Conference we felt sure that the Conference would be glad to contribute this window, which cost $160. So we lettered the window as follows: "IN MEMORY OF REV. TOBIAS GIBSON, BY THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE." We got terms on the windows, making a cash payment and giving notes for the rest. This note is due and the window people want their money; and, as the Conference has only paid $30.00 to date on this window, I am writing this, hoping that enough preachers and laymen may read it and be interested to help paying for this window. Brethren, you will probably never have an opportunity to contribute to a more worthy memorial. Please send cash at once to the undersigned.

The Sunday school of the Garlandsville (Miss.) Methodist Church, is very much grieved over the loss of our beloved teacher, Miss ALLIE WILLIAMS, who was called to a higher service on Octoher 19, 1915. She was a faithful church member from early childhood, and we all shall miss her example of inspiration and good cheer. She was sick only a few days and bore her sufferings with Christian fortitude. It makes our hearts sad to give her up, but we know that our loss is her eternal gain. We feel sure that our heavenly Father makes no mistakes. She left a devoted sister, two brothers, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her death. We know that God will so guide us that we may meet her in the beautiful beyond. She was laid to rest in the Garlandsville Cemetery.

On Saturday morning, Jan. 9, 1915, Brother M. B. DARROH passed from earth to the great beyond. Brother Darroh was born in Pickens County, Ala., on Sept. 2, 1860, and moved to Webster County, Miss., in 1865. He moved to Slate Springs, Calhoun County, Miss., in 1893. He was married to Miss Hattie Strong on Dec. 9, 1902. Brother Darroh professed religion early in life; and, uniting with the Baptist Church, lived a true and consecrated Christian life. Indeed it can be said of Brother Darroh that he was a model Christian, tender-hearted, kind, and true—a devoted worker, loyal to God and his Church. He was loved by all who knew him; to know him was to love him. He was buried by the writer in Old Bethany Cemetery on Sunday, Jan. 10, 1915, in the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives who came to pay the last trihute of respect and love to his memory. To his wife and relatives we would say, weep not for him as those who have no hope; for he has finished his course; he fought a good fight, and kept the faith; there is laid up for him a crown of righteousness.

T. L. HOUSTON.

On the night of Dec. 11, 1914, the sweet spirit of little MITTIE VIVIEN MEIGS went away to he with Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me." She was horn on April 23, 1909, at Carthage, Miss., and was baptized hy Rev. T. J. O'Neil at that place. Though so young, her heart was in the Master's work, and her place in the Sunday school and church was never vacant. She often took part in the Epworth League programs, though too young to he a member. Bright and winsome as she was, she had won a host of friends among the young and old. She was a verltable little sunbeam in the home and during the five and a half years of her life not one undesirable trait of character appeared to mar the beauty and sweetness of the life which was just in the bud. During the five days in which she suffered from a severe attack of scarlet fever, she uttered no word of complaint, hut submitted to treatment in the sweet manner that was so characteristic of her in everything. Her memory lingers with us like the fragrance of a sweet flower, and, while our hearts ache and long for her, we know she is happy in that home above—the home of the soul—and is waiting and watching for us.

MOTHER.

Mrs. SUSIE McDILL was born on March 22, 1890, and died on Sept. 19, 1915. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Carson, of Coushatta, Miss. Her going from us as death's victim was a sudden shock to the community, and especially so to her family. Her funeral was conducted hy her ex-pastor, Rev. W. W. Graves, her present pastor being away at the time. She was converted in youth, joined the M. E. Church, South, and remained a consistent member of it until death. She was married on Jan. 2, 1910, to V. L. McDill, and of this union was born one son. Sister McDill was an obedient daughter, a devoted wife, and a loving mother. I don't think I ever knew a more consecrated woman. Though she was sick all the year, she never murmured or complained, hut she tried and found to be true that affirmation of Scripture in Romans 8:28: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God." Often during her illness at home, she would say to her mother, "Mother, I am so happy." Loved ones, weep not as those who have no hope, hut be true to God, and one day you will meet her in glory. Her pastor,

M. W. PORTER.

MR. B. T. BONNEY.

On Monday morning, October 25, 1915, our church and community suffered a great loss in the death of Mr. B. F. Bonney, in the 84th year of his age. Brother Bonney was horn in Princess Ann County, Va., on April 17, 1832. When a child he moved with his parents to Yazoo County, Miss.; and later to East Feliciana Parish, La. He was educated in Centenary College, Jackson, La., and was one of the type of cultured Christian gentlemen that the Centenary of long ago used to give to the State, and whose ranks are hecoming sadly depleted.

In 1867, Brother Bonney moved to Tensas Parish, La., and was identified with its interests and progress to the time of his death. For many years he was engaged in teaching in the puhlic schools of the Parish, and many of our best citizens—themselves now grandparents—recall years under his tutelage.

As a Christian and loyal Methodist, Brother Bonney towered above many of his fellow-men; and the very existence of the Methodist Church and Sunday school at St. Joseph, La., is due, in a large measure, to his efforts. He magnified the church and inspired a new respect for Christianity. He was unassuming, but his steadfast and consistent life spoke with a surer voice and more convincing testimony than any profession could have done, though proclaimed from the housetop, and all with whom he came in contact felt instinctively that he was a man who walked with God.

Of all the many hranches of the church work with which he was identified, he loved the Sunday school most, and was for many years its faithful superintendent. And as a fitting close of his life he spent his last day on earth—Sunday, October 24—in that beloved service. He believed that the Church of the future must spring from the Sunday school, and that the spiritual strength of the future Church would he measured by the spiritual teaching of the children of to-day. He loved the children, and was loved by them, and was never too much engaged to hear and sympathize with them in their little trouhles. He was the friend and counselor of the preacher; and when this writer first came to this work, Brother Bonney said to him: "When you come to my house you will not find any latch-string on the outside, but you will find the door open." I am a hetter man and a better preacher for having been this good man's pastor for two years.

He leaves to mourn his departure, besides his wife, several children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren, to whom he was able to hequeath but small legacy in the way of material wealth; but in his honored name they have a priceless heritage, and one that fadeth not away.

In life he enjoyed the respect and esteem of his fellow-men, and knew that peace that only comes to one who walks with God. He died full of years and honors, and in the full assurance of a glorious resurrection.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

NOTES OF A WESTERN TRIP.

My farthest objective point was Broken Arrow in the State of Oklahoma. Leaving Starkville, Mississippi, on Thursday, July 8, I reached Little Rock, Ark., early next morning. A kind welcome greeted me in the home of my son, W. B. Wier, who, with his family, resides there. The Sabbath following my arrival in this capital city, it was my privilege to attend the Sunday school and morning service at Winfield Memorial Church, when a good sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. James Thomas. He was appointed to this church after the former pastor, the Rev. Mr. Workman, had been elected to a college presidency. Brother Thomas seems in favor with the Winfield Memorial congregation as a preacher, but is not expected to do full pastoral work, as he still retains his position as the very efficient financial agent of Hendrix College. At the evening service, we worshiped at a suburban church, of which Brother Baker, an earnest young preacher, is pastor.

While in Little Rock, I made a brief visit to the sanctum of The Western Methodist, edited by Dr. A. C. Millar. The Doctor gave me a fraternal and kindly greeting. He was formerly president of Hendrix College, at Conway, Arkansas.

On Wednesday, July 14, I left Little Rock for Fort Smith, Arkansas, where I arrived rather late in the afternoon, having been delayed by a wrecked freight train. My two sons, Howard B. Wier and T. C. Wier, Jr., were on the lookout for me, and we had a glad handshake at the depot. Howard B., my eldest son, has spent most of his active life in this city, much of the time being engaged in the insurance business. Thomas C., has also made his home here for a number of years, and is at present in the office of the Fort Smith Compress Company.

Spending the following Sabbath with my Fort Smith children and grandchildren, I attended Sunday school and the morning service at the First M. E. Church, South, of which Rev. J. S. Seneker is the pastor. He is unmarried and rather a young man, and impressed me as a man of cultured mind and pleasant address. When he arose to preach he deliberately removed his palmbeach coat and hung it on a chair, intending, no doubt, to indicate to the men of his mid-summer congregation that they could remove their coats, and the ladies, their hats if they chose to do so. But I saw no responsive movement in the congregation. At the close of a good sermon, two men were received into membership, one of them on profession of faith. This church is said to be improving under the pastoral oversight of Brother Seneker.

On the Wednesday following, July 21, I left Fort Smith via the Midland Valley Railroad, for Muskogee, Oklahoma, the home town of my daughter, Mrs. Bonnell. About 7 o'clock p. m., or later, I arrived at Muskogee, and was taken in charge by my son-in-law, Dr. A. E. Bonnell, and conducted to his pleasant home, where a kind welcome awaited me by my daughter and her five olive plants, two daughters and three small boys. Dr. A. E. Bonnell is a member of the First M. E. Church, South, of Muskogee. For many years he has been the enthusiastic superintendent of the Sunday school. He has repeatedly been a lay member of the Annual Conference, and one or more times of the General Conference. Mrs. Bonnell teaches a class in the Sunday school, and their five children are Sunday school pupils.

I made but a short stay in Muskogee at this time, purposing a longer visit on my return trip. On Saturday, July 24, after my arrival the Wednesday before, I went on to Broken Arrow, distant by rail 37 miles. My younger daughter, Gertrude Summers Rowe, lovingly awaited my arrival at the depot.

Broken Arrow, one of the smaller towns of Oklahoma, is yet Western in its type. Besides a good public school, there is located there one of the secondary agricultural schools of the State. Mr. K. M. Rowe, my son-in-law, is cashier of the Arkansas Valley State Bank. He is a member of the Methodist Church, and though not a steward, I was glad to see him assist in taking up the Sunday collection. By the invitation of Brother Reynolds, our pastor at Broken Arrow, I occupied his pulpit the next morning and preached to an appreciative congregation.

Our Northern Methodist brethren have a church and a pastor at Broken Arrow, and I suppose in many other towns of the State. But it is thought that most, if not all of these churches, require help from their Mission Board. It was my great pleasure to occupy the pulpit of Brother Reynolds again the following Sunday morning. His good people gave me a responsive hearing.

Broken Arrow being the objective point of my westward journeying, I started, August 1st, on my return trip, stopping the same day at Muskogee, where for several weeks I enjoyed the genial atmosphere and kindly ministries of my daughter's home. On Sunday morning, August 15, by invitation of Brother Pugsley, the pastor, it was my pleasure to occupy the pulpit of the First M. E. Church, South. Brother Pugsley has since been transferred to San Antonio, Texas.

While still in Muskogee, I received an invitation from Rev. T. F. Brewer to preach for him and his congregation at Wagoner, by rail fifteen miles distant. So, at the eleven o'clock hour on Sunday morning, August 29, I enjoyed the privilege of delivering a gospel message to our Southern Methodist people at Wagoner. It was a most unexpected pleasure to meet at Wagoner that Sunday afternoon Rev. J. W. Rogers, the young preaching elder of Vinita District. He occupied the pulpit at the evening hour. Brother J. W. Rogers transferred from the North Mississippi Conference several years ago and is doing a good work in the East Oklahoma Conference.

Brother T. F. Brewer transferred from the North Mississippi Conference in his young manhood. He went West many years ago and has done a good and great work for Southern Methodism and Christian education in that Southwestern country. For twenty years he was principal of the Harrell Institute, later called Spaulding Institute, in Muskogee. He is now closing a successful quadrennial pastorate at Wagoner, where he is in high favor with his people.

Continuing my return trip, I was again, on Sept. 2, in Fort Smith. After a few days with loved ones there, including a Sabbath, I was again, Wednesday, Sept. 8, on the road, homeward-bound, arriving at Little Rock in the early evening. A glad welcome greeted me in the home of my son, W. B. Wier. After a sojourn with the family of several days, including another Sabbath, I bade adieu to Little Rock, and about one o'clock a. m. on Tuesday, Sept. 11, I resumed my journey, ticketed for Starkville, and should have reached my destination on the same date, but a delayed train caused a loss of connection at Tupelo, where I was, however, most kindly entertained Tuesday night, in the home of my long-time friends, Brother and Sister Turner Clark. It was a special pleasure next morning to make a short visit to Brother J. C. Park in his parsonage home, and to find him greatly improved since his late illness. May his recovery be complete, and a life of long and eminent usefulness be opened up before him!

The trip from Tupelo to Starkville, Wednesday, Sept. 15, was without special incident, save, perhaps, some delay of the trains. After the kindly greeting of my son, R. K. Wier, and family, I was ready to join them in a good dinner.

The many blessings of this Western trip call for gratitude to God. The visit to children and grandchildren, and their affectionate ministries, after an absence of more than two years; the privilege of preaching several times, and of attending Sunday school and public worship every Sunday while away; "journeying mercies," and a safe return to home and loved ones in Starkville, all call for devout thanksgiving and praise to our heavenly Father. The Psalmist says, "Children are a heritage of the Lord." My children are daily on my heart and in my prayers.

T. C. WIER.

Calomel To-day, Sick To-morrow

Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out just go to your druggist and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow, besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

UNIVERSAL FINGER PRINTING.

In a recent letter to the New York Sun Mr. Waldemar Kaempffert, formerly managing editor of the Scientific American, urges that the finger-print identification system be universally adopted. In the United States Army every private records his finger print when he enlists. Banks are beginning to require thumb marks as well as signatures to validate checks. Painters have seriously proposed to thumb-mark their canvases. The time will come, says Mr. Kaempffert, when finger-prints will safeguard every life-insurance policy and every accident policy, and every applicant for a civil service position will sign his examination papers in that way, as well as with his written name. The finger-print is the greatest aid to the identification of criminals ever devised. The late Dr. Alphonse Bertillon declared that society needed nothing short of "a dactyloscopic card catalogue of the human race." Police Inspector Faurot, a disciple of Bertillon, recommends that finger prints of children be recorded, so that the children can be identified if they get lost.—Youth's Companion.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Brother McClain has a plucky band of workers at Pheba. This school has organized a Cradle Roll and Teacher-training Class and has promised to organize two Wesley Bible Classes. And so the good work goes on in the small churches as well as in the large churches of the towns.

The West Point Church has seven organized Bible classes, a long Cradle Roll, and a Home Department. The Elementary Department, in charge of Mrs. Howorth, is doing work that will go far toward the building of a new church in this progressive city. Here, as in many other places, the church is seriously embarrassed for a lack of room in which to do the teaching work of the Church.

The Church with all her defects and shortcomings is the result of our imperfect teaching. The Church of tomorrow will be the result of our teaching in the church school, the home, and the public school of to-day. We have it in our power to make the Church what she ought to be. God is doing his utmost to get us to see this. The prophet was correct when he said, "My people perish for lack of knowledge."

A firm in Memphis recently spent $10,000 for one million postage stamps to be used in sending out whiskey advertisements to the people in the surrounding territory. God alone will know the number of hearts broken, homes desolated, and souls sent to torment as a result of this worse than wasted money. Will the Church hesitate to spend a few thousand dollars on her Sunday school work to help counteract this dreadful influence engendered by man's love for money?

Central Church, Columbus, Miss., has made progress under the guiding hand of Rev. J. E. Carpenter during the year. His people respond readily to the call to do more and better work. The teachers promise to have five Wesley Bible Classes before Conference. When the history of this church is written the name of Rev. A. P. Leech will shine among the brightest. Only a few years ago he gathered around him a group of people in a Sunday school, and out of this beginning many soul's have been brought to Christ and trained for service.

GRAY HAIRS

mean that your hair is not receiving proper attention, and yet a gray hair will do more to make you look old than anything else. Rid yourself of an aged appearance by giving the hair correct treatment and proper food. There can be no life without food and unless you give your hair the proper attention you cannot expect it to retain its lustre and beauty. Use "La Creole," the best of all hair dressings and see your gray hairs disappear. This dressing was discovered by the Creoles of Louisiana many years ago, who were famous for their beautiful hair. Since then it has worked wonders, banishing gray hairs and restoring the hair to its original lustre. As a hair dresing it has no equal, keeping scalp in a clean, healthy condition. It has stood the test for over fifty years. Don't use strong alkaline soaps as they do more damage than good. Use "La Creole" hair dressing, the natural preservative. For sale by all dealers. Price $1.00. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

REV. J. A. BOWEN'S REPORT.

The following report made by Rev. J. A. Bowen, one of the Conference evangelists of the North Alabama Conference, to the Evangelistic Committee of that Conference will be read with interest by many of our readers:

"I have assisted pastors in 23 successful revival meetings this year—have preached 640 times. By conservative estimates given me by pastors, I have witnessed over 900 conversions outside the membership of the church, and several hundred reclamations in the Church. The reports given to me state that between 500 and 600 joined our Church. Many have been added to the Church since the meetings, but not reported to me yet.

"I spent two months in Florida last winter in Bible study and rest. This is my best opportunity to prepare myself for larger usefulness.

"The 20 services conducted for men and boys, and the 21 Decision Day services for young people and children, were the best that I have seen. The urgent and universal request from pastors and leading members of the church, that the revival work be deep and abiding, actuates me to try to do deep and constructive work in all departments of church activity."

HELP THE DISCOURAGED.

Often when you see a man who is a down-and-outer, you say: "Isn't that too bad," but you don't make any effort to assist him to a better life.

There are many "bums" who might be respected citizens if they had been given the right sort of help and encouragement when they were in need of it.

They have had hard luck; they have become discouraged; their friends turned against them and they are drifting downward.

Undoubtedly you know men of this sort.

If you have not tried to help them you are partially to blame for their downfall.

It shouldn't be a difficult thing for you to have a talk with a man whom you know to be discouraged. Now, this will help a great deal, but it is not all you should do. If he is out of a job, you should help him to land one. If he's hungry you should try to satisfy his immediate needs. If his family are in want you should lend a hand to help him.

Many men become dishonest because they are unable to meet the family expenses, and do not know how to go about it to work out their problem. Help at the right moment might have saved them.

Help a man when he's beginning to slip instead of looking at him when he hits the bottom of the hill and saying "Too bad!"—New York Journal.

Big Eaters Get Kidney Trouble

Take Salts at first sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

ALL-DAY MEETING, AT HEIDELBERG, MISS.

Mrs. M. V. Hickman, Superintendent of Publicity of the Heidelberg auxiliary, writes as follows: "Acting on the recommendation of the Woman's Missionary Council, the women of the Heidelberg Methodist Church held an all-day meeting on Sept. 29. Mrs. Rawls, our district secretary, was unable to be present, and her absence was quite a disappointment to all. Mrs. Ramsey, our president, presided in her place, and did it very graciously.

"To our surprise, we were greeted by none other than our own Miss Womack, deaconess from the Meridian Wesley House, who conducted the opening devotional exercises. Mrs. Middleton, of Mendenhall, was the only Conference officer present, but she brought us a wealth of information, many helpful suggestions and much inspiration.

"The morning session was given over to Miss Womack, who told in a most pleasing and interesting manner of the work being done at the Wesley House. No one will ever know of all the good accomplished by these handmaidens of the Lord as they go in and out among our poor and among the foreigners in our midst.

"After partaking of luncheon and enjoying a social hour, the afternoon session was opened with a solo, 'For a Little Bit of Love,' by Mrs. Middleton. Then with zeal and much earnestness, she addressed the young people and closed by organizing a Young People's Missionary Society.

"All felt greatly encouraged and helped by this meeting, and the attendance was good, though the day was damp and rainy."

REJOICING AT PETROPOLIS.

The missionaries at Petropolis are rejoicing over the completion of fireplaces, which will be of some help in making them comfortable during the extremely cold weather. Miss Barton writes as follows: "Bishop Mouzon and the ladies from Rio came up to our house-warming on the evening of July 30. Our English and American friends from Petropolis came in, and we had a house full at the official inauguration of our fireplaces. A Brazilian friend in Santa Rita sent us half a bushel of popcorn, and an American friend from Juiz de Fora made us a corn popper. It was amusing to see the English people gather about the fireplaces and hear their explanations as the corn popped. One English lady said: 'Ah, yes; quite American!. You buy a small amount of this, and after it swells up you sell it, don't you know.' Bishop Mouzon was amused over our enthusiasm about the fireplaces, but he has not yet experienced studying or writing for several hours on a winter's night with no fire in the house, and then trying to sleep between a pair of icy sheets. We are so thankful to the ladies of the Council.

EXPERIENCE IS THE BEST TEACHER OF ALL.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating." One is far more apt to believe a man who tells what he has done, than a man who tells what he could do. So it is with medicine. The real proof of the merits of Dr. Miles' Restorative Remedies lies in the fact that they have been used beneficially for over a quarter of a century and thousands have actually testified to benefits they have received.

We know that Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve all aches and pains because thousands have found this to be proven by actual experience.

The Rev. W. D. Barger, of Hagerstown, Md., has stated:

"Voluntarily and unsolicited I wish to bear witness to the high character of Dr. Miles' Restorative Remedies. To me personally they have been a great blessing, especially the Nervine, the Anti-Pain Pills and the Liver Pills. In cases of headache or pain of any kind they act like a charm. I have given many of them to the suffering and the results have always proven gratifying."

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have no unpleasant after-effect. They are not constipating. They do not contain any of the dangerous habit forming drugs. We do not claim that they remove the cause of the pain, but we do claim that they bring quick relief in a harmless manner.

They are sold by all druggists at 25c a box containing 25 doses. If not satisfactory your money will be cheerfully returned.—Adv.

Makes Stubborn Coughs Vanish in a Hurry

Surprisingly Good Cough Syrup Easily and Cheaply Made at Home

If some one in your family has an obstinate cough or a bad throat or chest cold that has been hanging on and refuses to yield to treatment, get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex and make it into a pint of cough syrup, and watch that cough vanish.

Pour the 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 54 cents, and gives you a full pint—a family supply—of a most effective remedy, at a saving of $2. A day's use will usually overcome a hard cough. Easily prepared in 5 minutes—full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste. Children like it.

It's really remarkable how promptly and easily it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. A splendid remedy for bronchitis, winter coughs, bronchial asthma and whooping cough.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction goes with this preparation or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., 235 Main St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

A MESSAGE FROM BROTHER LEWIS.

I saw Brother Armstrong's report in the Advocate of November 4, and greatly enjoyed reading it. I think that it would be a splendid idea for the superannuates to report what they are doing, and anything else of interest, once a year.

I am nearing the close of my 58th year in the Mississippi Conference, having joined on probation in November, 1857. I was admitted into full connection at the Conference held in Jackson in 1859. Fifty-two years of my time have been given to the work. I have been on the retired list six years. A Presbyterian brother wanted to know of me a few days ago how long it had been since I was "executed," meaning superannuated. In a sense he came near having it right. I still preach every time I have a chance.

My health has been pretty good so far this year. I feel a deep interest in all my brethren. I love them all. I enjoy preaching as much as I ever did.

It was my privilege to be at the Hennington Camp Ground during the camp-meeting in August. The preaching was done by my five preacher boys. The meeting was quite a success. There were four services a day, besides the early morning prayer service. The singing and preaching were splendid. Congregations, especially at night and on Sunday, were unusually large. The best of order prevailed. It was good to be there. I had attended camp meeting there 38 years ago.

We are moving along pleasantly here in Jackson. A good meeting was held here by Dr. Simpson of the North Alabama Conference in the month of October. Brother Henry, pastor of Galloway Memorial Church, is moving along quietly and pleasantly. He preaches good sermons, which are listened to by large congregations. Our new church will soon be completed. It is a thing of beauty—some say it is the finest church in the State. We want the Mississippi Conference to meet here in 1916.

God bless the Editor, the Advocate, and all its readers. H. P. LEWIS.

REVIVAL AT CANTON, MISS.

Dear Doctor Meek: On Friday evening, Nov. 5, we closed a twelve days' revival meeting at our church which has been pronounced by many one of the most gracious and far-reaching revivals ever held in Canton. There were scores of conversions and reclamations, and Christians of all denominations received a great spiritual uplife. The closing service was a veritable Pentecost, and will never be forgotten by those present. On yesterday (Sunday) I received 21 members into our Church—19 on profession, and 2 by certificate—as a result of the meeting. The Sunday school was full to overflowing, and at the sacramental service last night we had the largest number of communicants I have seen this year. It was indeed a red-letter day in the history of Canton Methodism.

During the meeting 12 persons gave their names for membership in the Baptist Church, and 2 went to the Presbyterian Church. One of the most beautiful and impressive features of the meeting was the fraternal spirit manifested by the other pastors and members of the various Protestant Churches of our little city. Rev. E. W. Ford, the greatly beloved pastor of the Presbyterian Church, and Rev. J. E. Phelps, the popular pastor of the Baptist Church, and their congregations co-operated heartily with us, and contributed no little to the success of the meeting. We wish to thank them most cordially for standing by us so faithfully. Rev. Wm. McBride, the highly esteemed pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Camden, preached the opening sermon, which was very appropriate and inspiring. The service for men and boys at the court-house on Sunday afternoon was largely attended, and produced a profound impression.

The meeting was conducted by Rev. D. E. Kelly, our well-known Conference evangelist, assisted by Rev. S. E. Kirby, of Little Rock, Ark., a soloist and choir leader of much talent. We are deeply indebted to Brother Kirby for the excellent service he rendered in our revival campaign. Brother Dan Kelly is undoubtedly one of the most gifted, successful and consecrated revivalists in our Church to-day, and his plain, pointed, and fearless presentation of the truth never fails to stir the hearts of his hearers. People of all classes came to hear him gladly, and he greatly endeared himself to the good people of Canton. We feel like saying with the Psalmist: "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."

Our lot has been cast among a kind and appreciative people, who are thoroughly loyal to the Church, and to their pastor. M. M. BLACK,

Nov. 8, 1915. Pastor.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

AN INTERESTING TRIP.

The Educational Trip of a party of students from the Memphis Conference Female Institute of Jackson, Tenn., to St. Louis, Oct. 13, 14, 15, was quite a success. The party was chaperoned by President and Mrs. H. G. Hawkins, and upon reaching the city found that The Business Men's League of St. Louis had appointed one of their secretaries as conductor for the crowd for two days and evenings. Having thus as guide a man familiar with the parks, municipal buildings, churches, and other places of interest, made it possible for the purpose of the trip to be carried out in a very advantageous way. The Business Men's League gave the party a complimentary dinner at one of the leading restaurants of St. Louis.

HOW TO GIVE HELP WHEN IT IS NEEDED.

Dear Advocate: My Grandfather Belk was a local Methodist preacher. My father's house over in Clay County, near Montpelier, was the home of the circuit rider and presiding elder as far back as I can remember. It has fallen often to my lot to be on boards of stewards, and I have studied a little bit over the question of the pastor's salary. Only too often have I seen pastors sent to a new work without money enough to start out without embarrassment. So let me make this simple suggestion by way of aiding the pastor in securing money at once upon his arrival.

Let me take first a city appointment that pays say $1200. That would be $100 a month or $300 per quarter. In a congregation of that size there could easily be found 12 men who could and would gladly pay as much as $25 on their pastor's salary at the beginning. This would mean $300 to him without any further ado about it, and would greatly help him along and would not fall heavily on anybody. Too often he has to call on his board to underwrite for him at a bank, and that is embarrassing and ought not to be necessary.

Let us next take a circuit which pays say $600, and which embraces three churches. That is $50 a month or $150 a quarter. Now, out of those three churches it ought to be easy to find 10 men who would pay $15, or 15 men who would pay $10 to start with.

Let the matter be gone at in a business-like way before the pastor comes and hand him the money immediately upon his arrival, and thus put him at ease financially and bid him godspeed in the work of saving souls. I have written this only as a suggestion; but the plan could easily be worked out in the various charges if only some one would undertake it.

W. A. BELK.

To Darken Hair Apply Sage Tea

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcobol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded bair beautifully dark and luxurlant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonlc, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell because it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray halrs have disappeared, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.—Adv.

CLEVELAND (MISS.) REVIVAL.

The great union meeting closed Sunday night. The tent was crowded, as on some other occasions—hundreds of people were present. The largest crowds ever seen in Cleveland were in attendance at these meetings. Not only was our town reached, but the surrounding towns and communities were also influenced by the meeting.

Brother Klein is a mighty man of God. In a fearless way he denounces sin in all its forms. He does not come with beautiful, flowery sermons, but his messages are deep, spirited utterances that dig down into one's very life. In every message Christ is uplifted—the efficacy of his blood magnified. As a man, he is sweet-spirited and humble and has great faith. The great theme of the meeting was: "Have Faith in God." And while showing the greatness of God, he did not fail to let us know that we had to fight the devil continually. I am sure we received new visions along many lines that will enable us to be better followers of Christ in the days to come.

Professor Boyd, with Mrs. Boyd as accompanist, gave us some great, soul-stirring music. Mrs. Boyd is a fine musician and plays to the glory of God. Professor Boyd is filled with the Spirit and truly sings with the Spirit and understanding. He is not only a fine leader, but his solos touched many hearts. He ranks with the best singers of this country.

As a result of the meeting, hundreds of people renewed their consecration to God, and many who had never taken a stand for right came out on the Lord's side. More than one hundred gave their names for membership in the churches. Over $1000 was raised for the expenses of the meeting.

On the last evening of the meeting one hundred men met in a men's prayer-meeting. Eternity alone will reveal the far-reaching influence of this revival. Let us be true to God, and, with a great faith in him, continue in this great work until he shall say, "It is enough; come up higher."—Mrs. S. C. Taylor.

GRADING MINISTERS.

We have never had much disposition to find fault with the appointing powers in our Church. on the contrary, it has long been our conviction that our Bishops and their Cabinets are inclined to do the best they can for both the preachers and the charges. There are, however, in our opinion, some tendencies incident to our system which are harmful and which need to be carefully guarded against. One of these is the perhaps unconscious inclination to grade the preachers into certain classes and to keep them in the same grades year after year. It ought not to follow because a minister has been doing circuit work that he should be considered ineligible to station appointments, or that because a man has served a station of a certain rank he should never be assigned to a charge of less financial strength. The prevalence of such arbitrary standards is out of harmony with the spirit of true, unselfish Christian service.

The Methodist itinerancy is a wonderful school of training. It has always been characteristic of it to take men who, in the outset, were meagerly equipped and transform them into majestic workers and mighty builders of the Kingdom. Some of its products were Francis Asbury, Joshua Soule, William McKendree, H B Pascom, John B. McFerrin, and Enoch Marvin, who gave to the world the strongest and most illuminating volume of sermons that has ever been issued by our Publishing House. Nor has our itinerancy yet lost its power to develop efficient preachers. They are still coming up among us from the rank and file. It, therefore, behooves us to be observant of the men on our weaker charges, and, as they gain in strength and effectiveness, to see that they are given the recognition in the Conferences to which their merits justly entitled them. Certainly, these men who have been toiling in the hard places ought not, when capable, to be passed over to provide comfortable and remunerative fields for young preachers fresh from college, who as yet have made no sacrifices and rendered no service. Even human governments show more appreciation than this of their faithful employees who have borne their burdens in the past.

We yield to none in our loyalty to our institutions of learning, or in our desire to secure for our Church an efficient ministry, but education and EFFICIENCY are by no means synonymous terms. Some of the most complete failures in the ministry that we have ever known were made by men who had classical scholarship and numerous degrees. As a rule, scholastic training of the right sort contributes toward making a preacher effective, and therefore it should be encouraged and placed within the reach of as many of our ministers as possible. But those who have had such training should not be recognized as having superior claims upon the Church. The last thing that Southern Methodism needs is an educational aristocracy with the intellectual snobbery that usually accompanies it.

Our advice to every young man who feels called to the Christian ministry is to secure as thorough an education as he can, not because he can thereby secure better appointments, but because it rightly used the equipment that gained may enable him to accomplish more for the Master's cause. But, while this is true we have scant patience with the talk that we sometimes hear that none but educated men should be allowed to preach. No man in the history of Methodism ever did more to promote the cause of education than Bishop H N McTyeire, and it was he who wrote, in his 'History of Methodism' the following emphatic words:

"It is as unphilosophical as unscriptural to allow no one to preach the gospel until he can properly be styled 'learned.' A man whose literary education falls below that standard may, nevertheless, in knowledge and experience be sufficiently in advance of multitude of hearers to guide and teach them in religion, to their infinite profit. Methodism is a friend of learning; it gave the first impulse to popular education in the last century. It encourages all ministers to reach the highest attainments in knowledge and has always been able to show a fair proportion in the ranks of the 'learned;' but Methodism has never committed the blunder, the crime against destitute regions and perishing souls of saying that none but 'learned' men shall be allowed to preach the gospel. The Christian ministry must have Greek and Hebrew scholars; but that all ministers must be Greek and Hebrew scholars does not follow. The link connecting such a conclusion with that premise no logician has ever found or can find."

In this, as in many other things, the safe path for us to follow is to be true to the past history of Methodism. The door of opportunity should not be shut in the face of any man whom Christ has called to be His representative and spokesman, nor should he be discriminated against because he does not have the imprimatur of a college. His gifts and graces should be recognized for whom he got them. The best creden[illegible] that any minister can have is spiritual fruitfulness. It is worth more than all the diplomas and degrees that institutions of learning can confer, because it is our Lord's certificate that he is his commissioned ambassador.

THE OLD PREACHER SPEAKS.

Because I'm old and lame and halt
Is no excuse for my finding fault
With the church as it is in these new days;
I don't wish to quarrel with modern ways.
No doubt you preachers are abler men
Than those I often wish back again.
Your choirs are finer, your pipe organ sings
In a sweeter voice than memory brings.
But there is a matter I wish to state
(You will say my views are out of date):
But, with all your talents, I wonder why
Your churches echo no penitent cry
Of sinners, mourning their sin-stains deep?
About your altars no mourners weep?
And never a glad, triumphant shout
For sin, by God's grace, driven out?
No burdened soul cries out to God
For pardon, pleading Jesus' blood?
Have you no sinners this modern day,
Nor blood to wash their sins away?
I wonder—I'm old, and the times are new—
Is the faith of your church so warm and true
As was ours? Is it simply I'm growing old
Or has the church grown formal and cold?

A few days more, I'll be gone above,
To dwell in the light of the Savior's love.
And I wonder, there on the streets of gold
Will the saints be "cultured," formal, cold?
Not there! We'll shout and praise and pray
As we did in the church of the early day!

—George Henry Willett, in the Northwestern Christian Advocate.

WHY SHOULD YOU GO TO CHURCH?

Because the church is the mightiest agency on earth for the realization of human progress.

It is the efficient advocate and ally of every great reform of the day.

It stands for the highest thinking and most sacrificial doing.

It presents the noblest ideals of life and points the way to their realization.

It furnishes the motive and the incentive for the expression of sympathy and compassion.

It is the supreme character-making institution in the world. It is the only organization under the sun doing business for God exclusively.

It is the divinely appointed and accredited agency for the realization of the kingdom of God on the earth.

It is the avenue through which men and women walk up the heights to God.

It relates mankind to God savingly and satisfyingly and to one another in joyful fellowship.

In its advocacy of civic and social righteousness it does more than all other organizations or institutions combined to make crime difficult and virtue easy.—Christian Evangelist.

"BILLY" SUNDAY'S "TEN COMMANDMENTS."

I—Thou Shalt Not Gossip.

There are three ways to spread the news—telephone, telegraph, and tell a woman. The Devil is so afraid of some of you women he wouldn't get within twenty feet of you.

II—Thou Shalt Not Covet.

Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's cook, nor his automobile, nor his rubber-tired carriage, nor his private yacht. Many a man would like to have his neighbor's wife. You let her alone.

III—Thou Shalt Not Tango.

I'm against that rotten, licentious, hell-begotten dance, that sends more girls to hell than anything else. I'm in favor of everything that the Devil is against, and I'm against everything the Devil is in favor of.

IV—Thou Shalt Not Be Stingy.

Some would-be Christians are so stingy that they would steal flies from a blind spider. There are others so mean that they sing through their noses to save wear and tare on their false teeth.

V—Thou Shalt Not Have Too Many Beaux.

It's hard to fool a real suitor, and a man doesn't want to marry a girl that's been pawed over by every young buck in the community. The frizzled-headed girl that sits up in a dark parlor until all hours of the morning with one buck after another is on the way to perdition.

VI—Thou Shalt Not Be Conceited.

A conceited man is like a cheap-skate restaurant where everything is in a window and nothing on the table but hot air. Self-conceit will always be a millstone around your neck.

VII—Thou Shalt Not Drink.

The man who says he can drink and let it alone, lies. No man ever intended to become a drunkard. Every drunkard started out to be simply a moderate drinker. If you believe you can leave it alone, why don't you?

VIII—Thou Shalt Not Cuss.

One of the things that show the foundation of a man's character to be rotten is to hear him cuss and vomit out oaths. I would not trust a profane man any too far in any transaction.

IX—Thou Shalt Not Dodge Thy Debts.

Some haven't religion enough to pay their debts. Would that I might have a hook and for every debt that you left unpaid I might jerk off a piece of clothing! If I did, some of you would be left with only a celluloid collar and a pair of socks on.

X—Thou Shalt Not Flirt.

Society takes no note of the flirtation on the street. It waits until the girl has lost her virtue and then slams the door in her face. I wish I could make a girl who flirts see herself as others see her. If you make eyes at a man on the street he will pay you back.—Strand Magazine.

VANDERBILT AND THE TENNESSEE CONFERENCE.

As its recent session at Murfreesboro, the Tennessee Conference, within the bounds of which Vanderbilt University is situated and which has had closer relation to that institution than any other Conference, by a vote of 124 to 33, adopted the following resolutions:

Whereas through the report of W. B. Taylor, special commissioner appointed by the Tennessee Conference to act with the Educational Commission of the M. E. Church, South, in the matter of the reconveyance of Vanderbilt University to the original patronizing Conferences, we have been officially informed that said Commission at a meeting in Memphis, Tenn., February 19, 1915, after fully reviewing the case and weighing the opinions of a number of eminent lawyers, decided that under the decision of the Supreme Court of Tennessee it "was wholly without power to convey or transfer anything whatever to said original patronizing Conferences," and that it was unwilling to stultify itself by the execution of a useless form of transfer;" therefore Resolved: 1. That we acquiesce in the decision embodied in the report of the Educational Commission as a final settlement of the relation between Vanderbilt University and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

2. That, believing with all our hearts in the educational mission of the Church, we hail as providential the auspicious opening of Emory at Atlanta and of Southern Methodist University at Dallas, that we express our profound appreciation of the munificent gift of Mr. Asa G. Candler by which the establishment of Emory University was made possible, and that we pledge to it our prayers, our faithful co-operation, and our financial support.

3. That, in view of the peculiar relation which the Tennessee Conference has sustained to Vanderbilt University, we deem it fitting at this time that we should make the following statement of our views as to the equities in the case between Vanderbilt University and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and in regard to our present attitude toward said university:

Attitude Toward the University.

(1) While as law-abiding citizens we accept the decision of the Supreme Court of Tennessee in regard to the relation between Vanderbilt University and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, we desire, without any intention of reflecting upon the court, to declare our unshaken conviction that our fathers who laid the foundation of Vanderbilt University meant to establish a school owned and controlled by the Church, and that in equity said university is to-day as much the property of the Church as is the building in which we are assembled.

(2) We believe that in taking a course that resulted in the wresting of Vanderbilt University from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the trustees of said university seriously erred in the interpretation of their duty and thereby wrought grievous injury and injustice to said Church. We believe that they were the agents and representatives of the Church and that it was their duty, in view of the historical facts to which we have referred, if they discovered any defect in the charter of the university, to set about correcting it instead of taking advantage of it to eliminate the Church entirely from participating in the direction and control of the university.

(3) With special keenness do we feel the wrong that has been done the Church in the case of certain funds belonging to the Biblical Department of the University—funds contributed by Methodist people and partly out of the meager salaries of Methodist preachers for the specific purpose of aiding in the support of a Methodist school of theology for the training of Methodist preachers. Whatever may be thought in regard to other funds in the hands of the university, it seems to us a plain matter of equity, about which there is no room for difference of opinion, that these funds ought to be turned over to the Educational Commission now acting under the authority of our General Conference, to be administered according to the clear intent of the donors. If this is at present technically impossible, we feel that an effort should be made either to remove the difficulty or else to secure the equivalent of those funds from other sources.

We express no opinion in regard to the wisdom of establishing non-denominational schools of religion. With the desire to further the spirit of interdenominational comity and cooperation, which is urged as a reason for the establishment of such schools, we are in hearty accord. But we submit that there are considerations in the case of the School of Religion of Vanderbilt University which sharply differentiate it from that of other institutions of like character, and to us these considerations are so profoundly significant that we cannot possibly look upon this school with favor.

As to the Biblical Department.

We have occasionally heard it suggested that the Board of Trust of Vanderbilt University would have been willing to enter into an agreement whereby the Church would have been given a limited control of the Biblical Department of said university. We have no authoritative information in regard to this; but even granting that it may be true, it still would not have met the objection we here urge. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, asks no favors of the trustees of Vanderbilt University, who are themselves the creatures of the Church, nor does she propose to humiliate herself by exchanging her influence and patronage for a limited control of one department of an institution of which she feels she has been unjustly dispossessed. What she desires is not charity, but justice.

(4) While the stern logic of facts forces us to the conclusions and positions stated above, we wish to assert that we still maintain a lively interest in the spritual welfare of the students of Vanderbilt University, who have come and must continue to come from the homes of the South and who must return qualified to take positions of large influence in our civilization, and that we earnestly desire to serve them through whatever agencies we may employ without compromising our convictions or doing that which appears to us to be in conflict with our duty in relation to the larger mission of our Church.

Signed: E. B. Chappell, W. B. Taylor, W. L. Jackson, W. J. Collier, J. J. Stowe, John Durrett, and J. T. Blackwood.

In publishing these resolutions, the Nashville Christian Advocate said:

"The Tennessee Conference, by nearly one hundred majority, goes on record as being in accord with the views of the Church throughout the connection. To those who have known the sentiment of the Tennessee Conference brethren, the large majority was not surprising. This action disposes of the Vanderbilt case in so far as this Conference is concerned."

Loronzo Ergenbrack in April, 1850, was licensed to preach in November, 1850, and was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial in 1851 from Pleasant Valley Church on the Bayou Pierre Circuit, Rev. D. M. Wiggins being his pastor and Rev. H. J. Harris his presiding elder. Brother Sibley was received on trial in the Mississippi Annual Conference at Clinton, La., in December, 1851, when and where he began a long and useful career as an itinerant preacher. He served the Decatur Mission in 1852-53, and was received into full connection at Canton, Miss., in November, 1853. He was elected to Conference ordained deacon by Bishop Capers in 1854 he served the Leaf River Mission, and in 1855 the Philadelphia Circuit. He was ordained elder in November of the same year at Vicksburg, Miss., by Bishop Kavanaugh. Since that time and to the time of his superannuation he served the following charges in the Mississippi Conference: Livingston Mission, 1856; Strong River Mission, 1857-58; South Jefferson Mission, 1859; Scotland Circuit, 1861-62, Meadville Circuit, 1863-64-65, Homochitto Mission, 1866; Natchez Circuit, 1867-68, Fayette Circuit, 1869; Hopewell Mission, 1870, Brandywine, 1871, Trenton, 1872, Morton, 1873; Raleigh, 1874, Walnut Grove, 1875, Forest, 1876, Raleigh, 1877, Trenton, 1878-79, Leaf River, 1880, Raleigh, 1881-82, Cato, 1883, Shiloh, 1884, Westville, 1885, Trenton, 1886-87, Hillsboro, 1888; Strong River, 1889, Raleigh, 1890-91-92-93; Homewood, 1894-95. He was superannuated in December, 1895, and remained in that honored relation of our Conference until the hour of his death, which occurred on October 31, 1915.

The dates and places which we find above reveal some comforting and unusual facts. First, we find that Brother Sibley went to work at once for the Master when he was converted and that in less than two years thereafter he joined the Conference, in which he labored without a break for 13 years almost a half century. Second, we find that he was appointed to the Raleigh Circuit for four separate terms of service as pastor, and that the last time he served for four years, and was appointed three different times to the Trenton Circuit, to the Strong River Mission for two terms, and to the Homochitto Mission for two terms a record seldom made by any of our preachers. Brother Sibley spent his life as a preacher in Central and South Mississippi and East Louisiana, where many souls were led by him to Christ, and where he was known and loved by hundreds of people.

Brother Sibley's first wife died on June 29, 1901, after more than a half century of self-sacrifice and faithful service to her Lord and her husband's work, for she was a good woman. To this union God gave five children, two sons and three daughters. Only two survive him: Rev. R. A. Sibley, Jr., an honored member of our Conference, and Mrs. J. C. Summer, of Jackson, Miss. He was married again in 1902 to Mrs. S. M. Lovitt, who lives to mourn his death.

Brother Sibley was a strong preacher of the old Methodist type. He loved the Methodist Church and her doctrines next to his Lord and his Bible. In fact, he firmly believed that his Church and its teachings were in perfect harmony with God's word and born of the Spirit of God. Again, he was an energetic, enthusiastic man. He had no use for an idler, and he himself was never happier than when engaged in the raging battle against sin and Satan, the author of sin. We find that his whole life as a pastor was spent on works that paid very small salaries. He was sometimes forced to teach school or farm to make his family comfortable, yet so far as this writer has ever known, he never complained but worked where his Conference sent him. His meant service with Brother Sibley. Now it self-sacrifice, self-denial, hard work, traveling over long, bad roads, preaching God's Word, visiting and praying with and for the people of all classes is for the good of humanity. One only can estimate the contribution that was made by our departed brother, for it was too great for the human mind to grasp or comprehend.

Brother Sibley's faith in God was strong. He believed with Paul "That the foundation of God standeth sure." In 1870 while serving the Homochitto Mission he frequently visited my father's home in Jefferson County, Miss. This writer would sit for hours and listen to him and father talk and used to wonder why father was always so glad to see Brother Sibley come to our country home. Later in life I understand. They both loved and worshiped the same God and loved each other. One night after he had preached in my father's home I gave him my hand for church membership. Forty years ago last August, and on [illegible] desired to give God my child's heart. I owe [illegible] I next to the influence of [illegible] came into my life when a child. I [illegible] Not many months more to record these words to me. You are one of the two or three in the ministry that God has given me. I count that number is correct.

He loved revival work, and would often praise his Lord about when souls were being born of God. After he was superannuated he availed himself of every opportunity to preach assisting in revival work with good effect. His ministry was a fruitful one. He is not dead but lives here to the lives of many. He lives yonder in realms sublime, where the unfolding mysteries of the glory of God will reveal to him, as the cycles of eternity roll, more and more the fullness of that rest that remaineth for the people of God.

On October 31, 1915, in his home at Trenton, Miss., he passed calmly and peacefully to his reward, surrounded by loved ones and a number of friends. He was almost 93 years old. We can say of him:

"Servant of God, well done
Rest from thy loved employ
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy."

May God grant to his only son the abundance of his grace, as he represents his father in the work, that he may be ready for every good word and work.

Brethren of the Conference, our senior member has answered to the roll call in glory. Soon all the men who toiled to make our work easier will have passed over the river to rest under the shade of the tree of life. Let us, too, be faithful to the trust committed to us.

The funeral was conducted in the Methodist Church at Trenton by Rev. J. S. Byrd, Rev. C. M. Crossly, Rev. J. F. Ellis, and Rev. T. H. Winstead. He will sleep in the Zion Cemetery in Smith County till the resurrection morn.

Yazoo City, Miss. W. M. SULLIVAN.

The Louisiana Conference

By Rev. R. H. Harper.

First Day's Session.

The Louisiana Conference met in the Mansfield Church, Wednesday, November 17, at 9 a. m., Bishop James Atkins in the chair. The Bishop read from the 10th Chapter of St. Luke, and made a very helpful talk. He said that success in the ministry should not be confused with salvation, and that a minister of the gospel should be concerned first of all that his own name be written in heaven.

The Secretary of the preceding Conference, Dr. F. S. Parker, called the roll, and 145 ministers and delegates answered to their names. Dr. Parker was unanimously elected Secretary of this session, and upon his nomination, the following assistants were elected: M. C. Holt and John F. Foster. R. W. Vaughan was elected statistical secretary, with the following assistants: H. W. Cudd, C. V. Breithaupt, J. L. Williams, H. T. Young, G. A. Morgan, and Thomas Carter. The hour of opening was fixed at 9 a. m., and that of adjournment at 12 m. The main auditorium was made the bar of the Conference.

Rev. Briscoe Carter, for the presiding elders, nominated the various standing committees, of which the following are chairmen: Conference Relations, J. B. Williams; Memoirs, C. C. Miller; Worship, W. H. Coleman, District Conference Records, J. C. Ronsseaux; Church Publications, R. H. Harper; Sabbath Observance, C. D. Atkinson: Temperance, S. H. Werlein; Lay Activities, W. S. Holmes; Evangelism, J. G. Snelling.

Dr. J. W. Gilbert, of the Colored Methodist Church, was introduced, and represented the interests of Paine and Lane Colleges. Dr. Gilbert will be remembered as the traveling companion of Bishop Lambuth and his assistant in establishing the Congo Mission. He is a forceful speaker, and his remarks were attended with rapt interest by all present. At the close of his address, a regular old-fashioned Negro collection was taken for Paine and Lane Colleges, each contributor going forward and laying his offering on the table.

Dr. S. S. McKinney of Texas was introduced, and delivered an address, representing the Board of Church Extension relative to the erection of a representative church in Washington, D. C. At this time Bishop Atkins expressed himself not only in favor of building a church in Washington City, but in favor of its costing not less than a half-million dollars.

Before calling question 22, "Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration?" Bishop Atkins expressed himself as heartily in favor of giving every preacher a chance to report his year's work on the floor of the Conference, but added that, in his opinion, the average preacher could tell all that was worth hearing in one minute. Without exception, the presiding elders, in their reports, set a good example to their preachers, both in brevity and clarity. Progress was reported all along the line, in spite of storms, bad crops, and other adverse conditions.

At this point, the names of the superannuates were called, and the following brethren were present, and made their reports to the Conference: J. A. Parker, R. S. Isbell, J. L. P. Sheppard, S. L. Riggs, and R. A. Davis. Rev. S. L. Riggs, who has been in ill health for two years, reported his health greatly improved, and his name was placed on the effective list without objection. Letters were read from F. G. Hocutt, M. G. Jenkins, and T. S. Randle, and the presiding elders represented those from whom no communication had come. With the exception of the name of S. L. Riggs, placed on effective list, the names of all these brethren were referred to the Committee on Conference Relations.

The following Committee, to prepare for the proper celebration of the Asbury Centennial, was appointed: F. S. Parker, P. M. Brown, and W. W. Drake.

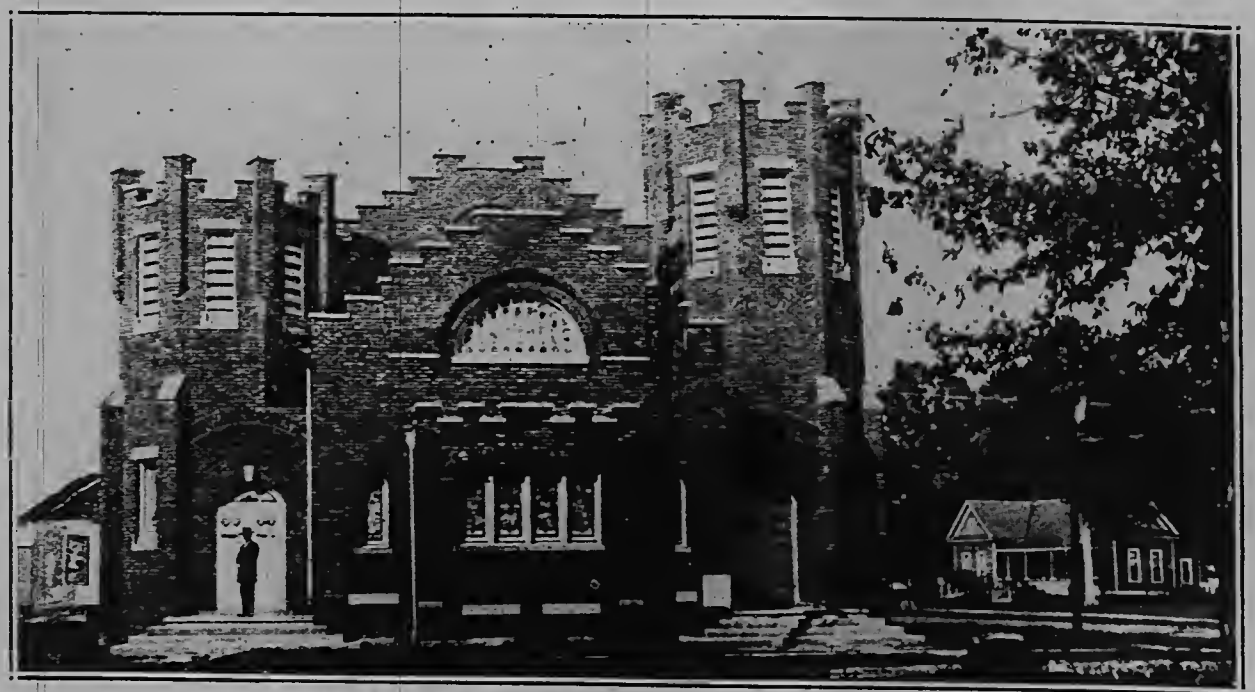
The Bishop announced the transfer of G. E. Cameron to the Kentucky Conference. He also announced the transfer of O. J. Chandler from the Kentucky Conference, and N. E. Joyner from the Mexico Conference to the Louisiana Conference.

The names were called, and the characters passed of those pastors serving in the Alexandria District, and a part of those serving in the Baton Rouge District.

Dr. McCain of Texas, and Rev. O. M. Powers, pastor of the Mansfield Baptist Church, were introduced, after which announcements were made and the first session adjourned.

Second Day.

Bishop Atkins resumed the call of Question 22, and nearly completed the calling of the names of pastors in the New Orleans District. At 10 o'clock Dr. Casper Wright, of Texas, addressed the Conference in the interest of the Methodist University, recently founded at Dallas. The Conference passed a resolution associating itself with other Conferences west of the Mississippi in furthering the interests of the University at Dallas. The resolution called for the election of a trustee of the University, from the territory of the Louisiana Conference, and Rev. W. W. Drake was elected.



THE NEW METHODIST CHURCH AT DREW, MISS.

This edifice has been completed during the year 1915. The total cost of the structure is about $16,000. It is equipped with Sunday school rooms and is one of the most up-to-date and attractive houses of worship in the North Mississippi Conference. Its erection reflects much upon the present pastor, Rev. J. W. Raper, and his enterprising flock. Brother Raper is closing his fourth year, and it is said to have been the best year of his quadrennium. The construction of this handsome church at Drew is indicative of the vitality and progressive spirit of Methodism in the great Yazoo Delta, where it has always been by far the strongest denomination.

Third Day.

Question 22 was completed. During the morning the question of recommending the appointment of members of the Conference to chairs in Vanderbilt University was discussed, and the Conference voted to recommend the appointment of Rev. Thos. Carter, and Rev. H. B. Carre to professorships in the theological department. In this connection, the Conference voted that a committee be appointed to draft resolutions, clearly stating that, by the recommendation of the appointment of these men to the University, the Conference does not place its aproval upon the course of Vanderbilt, and is in hearty accord with the General Conference action of 1914. Such resolutions were later read and adopted by the Conference.

A. L. Harper, E. G. Wood, A. A. Phillips, F. B. Hill, B. H. Andrews, J. L. Lay, and A. D. Searcy were admitted on trial.

Fourth Day.

On the fourth day of the Conference three sessions were held: one in the morning, one in the afternoon, and one at night. Baton Rouge, Minden, Lake Charles, and Bogalusa were nominated as the place of meeting for the next Conference. Baton Rouge receiving a large majority, the Conference voted to make the choice of the Capital City unanimous.

Mr. Pringle, of the Reform Bureau, and Dr. S. H. Werlein spoke against race track gambling in Louisiana, and Bishop Atkins declared there is need of information from the preachers against the evils of all forms of gambling. Dr. Werlein presented a very strong report on temperance. The Conference ordered that the report be published in the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and that a request be made for its publication in the secular press. The report of the Sunday School Board emphasized the need of teacher training and adult Bible classes, and of the observance of Children's Day. The Board recommended the appointment of a Sunday School Field Secretary, the salary and expenses to be met by a collection at the session of the Conference and by assessment upon the various charges, amounting to 2 per cent of the total sum paid to ministerial support.

Mr. Moore, of Mansfield, addressed the Conference in the interest of Mansfield College and asked that a special week, to be designated later, be set apart by the Conference as a time in which to bring Mansfield College before the people and secure students for the institution. The Conference ordered that such a week be observed in all the charges.

T. L. Bryson, and W. F. Henderson, Jr., were admitted into full connection. At the time of their reception, the Bishop made a very appropriate talk. He emphasized the fact that the men to be received were to be admitted into the traveling connection, and that meant that they should hold themselves in readiness to go to the ends of earth, if the interests of the Church should demand it. But they would have the blessed fellowship of their brethren. He warned them against ever believing they had fully attained, and directed them to look ever toward the morning of a better day. He said men should not allow themselves to become old at forty, that they should guard against succumbing to the hardening of the intellectual and spiritual arteries. Youth is a period of preparation, and youth can be retained by constant preparation for larger usefulness yet in the future. In discussing youth and age, the Bishop said that a certain man had made a study of the lives of the world's greatest men, to ascertain the period of life when the greatest achievements are wrought, and he found that 35 per cent of the world's greatest achievements were by men between the ages of 60 and 70. Don't be narrow, he said. Methodism is the greatest thing in the world that is not too thin. Breadth is measured both across the head and across the breast—in the mind, and in the heart and affections. The Bishop concluded with the hope that God would make the ministry of the two men very fruitful, and all their associations blessed.

In the afternoon the report of the Orphanage Board was read by C. C. Wier, and adopted. The report of the Board of Church Extension laid special emphasis upon Loan Fund Day. The Committee on Church Publications made its report, and after some modification the report was adopted. The report of the American Bible Society was read and adopted. The report of the Committee on the Pineville Cemetery was read and adopted. According to its terms, a proper division between the Pineville Church and the Cemetery Association will be made.

The report of the Epworth League especially stressed the correlation of Junior Leagues and Children's Misionary Societies, and called for hopefulness and renewed zeal in the work among the young people of the Church. In recognition of his splendid services to the Conference, in reporting so well its sessions, during a period of many years, to the morning press, Rev. H. H. Ahrens, a delegate to the Conference, was called to the floor, and he made a graceful response.

The report on the Asbury Centenary recommended that a suitable program be carried out at the next Conference, and that an appropriate sermon be preached in the various charges on the Sunday nearest the date celebrated. To arrange the program, the following Committee was appointed: S. H. Werlein, C. A. Battle, F. R. Hill, Jr.

C. M. Thompson and Geo. Anders were given the supernumerary relation. M. C. Holt was readmitted into the Conference.

The report of the Board of Education was read and adopted. Dr. Stonewall Anderson was present during the reading of the report, and following it, made a stirring address.

In the evening session, an additional report of the Board of Church Extension was adopted. The reports of the following committees and boards were read and adopted: Sabbath Observance, Legal Conference, District Conference Records, Washington City Church, Board of Missions, Evangelism.

The report of the Committee on Sabbath Observance endorsed the Sunday League of America. Upon the adoption of the report, the Bishop said he would like to call attention to a very suitable text for a sermon on Sabbath observance. It is found in Isaiah 58: 13, 14.

The report of the Board of Missions, having recommended the action. N. E. Joyner was elected Conference Missionary Secretary. The Committee on Evangelism asked that the first quarter of the year be spent in prayer, and in enlisting personal workers by the pastors. It also requested that the presiding elders call the preachers together for the purpose of promoting evangelistic movements in their respective districts. The Committee is ready to assist pastors in securing brethren to assist them in meetings. Resolutions, introduced by Dr. Werlein, addressed to Governor Hall, calling upon him to use his power to enforce the Locke Law, and commending his efforts in Jefferson Parish, were read and adopted by the Conference.

Sunday.

Sunday, at 10 a. m. a Conference love feast was led by Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard, and many touching and helpful experiences were given.

At 11 o'clock the largest audience that Mansfield Church has known gathered to hear the sermon of Bishop Atkins. Automobiles came in from Shreveport, Minden, and other points within reach over model roads. These, with cars from the town, half filled the streets in front and by the side of the church building. All available space was taken, and the house was filled to overflowing. At the thoughtful suggestion of Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard, a number of the ministers present gave up their seats and went elsewhere to worship in order that others who had never had the privilege of hearing a Bishop might be permitted to enjoy the service. The Bishop preached a great sermon, which was in no way a disappointment to the hundreds who had flocked to hear him. After the sermon, the Bishop ordained the following as deacons: T. L. Bryson, J. L. Lay, E. G. Wood, and M. W. Moncrief. A. L. Harper was recognized and received as a deacon from the Methodist Episcopal Church.

At the same hour, Rev. A. G. Shankle preached in the Baptist Church, Rev. R. H. Harper in the Presbyterian Church, Rev. A. I. Townsley in the Christian Church, and Rev. W. E. Thomas in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon Dr. S. H. Werlein preached a very able and appropriate sermon, after which Bishop Atkins ordained the following as elders: Louis Hoffpauir, D. L. Griffin, S. D. Roberts, R. V. Fuiton, G. V. Romano, and P. A. Swann.

At the same hour, Rev. C. V. Breithaupt and Miss Walker, both of Houma Mission, addressed a large audience in the Baptist Church.

The Conference of 1915 will be a memorable one. While some losses were shown in the Statistical Secretary's report, they were doubtless due in large part to the fact that the Conference year of 1914 was but little more than eleven months. And it is interesting to note that the losses included the indebtedness of the churches, and that the total indebtedness of the churches in the Louisiana Conference has been very greatly reduced. The spirit that prevailed during this Conference will mean the retrieving of all these losses, except that of indebtedness, and great progress in the Church during the coming year. Careful attention was given to every interest of the Church. Bishop Atkins won the esteem of all, not only in his presidency of the Conference, but also in his generous gift of himself wherever needed to further the interests of the kingdom. He gave himself unsparingly by timely addresses in a number of special meetings, held in the interest of important departments of church work, and thus gave a great impetus and inspiration to all the work of the Conference. We have never had a chief pastor with us who gave himself more willingly and unsparingly in this way.

The excellent people of Mansfield extended to the members of the Conference a hospitality which can not be surpassed anywhere. That, and the beautiful weather prevailing, contributed greatly to the even spirit of the Conference, which was evident throughout the sessions, while large plans were made, which will be executed, for the extension of the kingdom of God.

Fifth Day—Sunday Afternoon Session.

Pursuant to adjournment Saturday evening, the Conference met in memorial session Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. C. C. Miller, Chairman of the Committee, presided. After stating the solemn purpose of the session, the Chairman asked Rev. J. M. Brown to read the Nineteenth Psalm. A paper upon the life of Rev. A. W. Hoffpauir, by Rev. C. C. Miller, was read by Rev. R. H. Harper. A paper upon the life of Dr. Hamill was read by Rev. P. O. Lowrey, while Dr. Alexander and Dr. Reid were also remembered in the service. Rev. J. D. Harper was asked to lead the Conference in a prayer of thanksgiving for the lives of these men, and an invocation that a portion of their spirit might abide upon those who yet remain to carry on the Lord's work.

Sunday Night Session.

Sunday Night, at 7:30, the church building was filled to overflowing. Besides the large number of preachers so vitally interested in the reading of the appointments, there were many members of the Church in Mansfield, and other citizens of the town who, in view of the fact that the fruitful pastorate of Rev. T. H. Morris in Mansfield had extended through a quadrennium, awaited with intense suspense the "scattering remarks" of Bishop Atkins. After a stirring address on the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage, by Rev. R. W. Vaughan, additional reports from boards and committees, and a resolution of thanks, adopted by a rising vote, the Bishop made a very helpful talk, and read the appointments. The benediction was pronounced, and the Conference of 1915 passed into history.

Boys' and Girls' agricultural clubs have been organized in thirty-three States in the Union with a membership of 110,077 last year, which has been increased to 151,194 this year.

King George V of England is an admiral of the German navy and Emperor William of Germany is an admiral of tbe English navy. Being chiefly honorary, tbese positions have in the past been of little importance except as a means of showing tbe friendly attitude of tbe two monarchs, and now that the two countries are at war they have virtually ceased to exist.

At tbe November election the new Constitution for the State of New York failed of acceptance by about 400,000 votes. Commenting on its defeat, The Outlook says: "Although the Constitution was defeated, Mr. Root, as leader of the Convention, has laid down certain principles which will finally be recognized and embodied into tbe political structure of New York."

A monument to Daniel Boone has been erected in Warren County, Mo., and was dedicated by delegates from the Missouri branch of the Daugbters of the American Revolution. The famous ploneer lost his land when Kentucky was admitted into the Union and moved to Missouri, where he passed the declining years of his life, and died in 1820; later his remains were removed to Kentucky.

In the Battle of the Marne, which began on Sept. 6, 1914, and ended on Sept. 18, 1914, lasting twelve days, the battle front was over 140 miles long and two and one-half million men were engaged, 1,600,000 Allies and 900,000 Germans. The losses of the Allies were the heaviest on account of their being on the offensive. The fact that the Germans were so largely outnumbered at this time doubtless explains why they did not attempt to besiege Paris.

The following are some interesting statistics concerning the telephone: There are 13,570,874 telephones in the world, of which 8,975,074 are in the United States, with a wire-mileage of 23,797,962. Los Angeles, Cal., has the largest number of telephones of any city in the United States in proportion to its population, having 72,000 telephones and 319,198 inhabitants. There are eight times as many telephones in the United States as there are in Germany.

On October 26 a $25,000 monument to the Confederate Women of Florida was unveiled at Jacksonville, Fla. In the past one of the chief things that the South has been able to boast of to the world has been the nobility of her women, and at no time in the history of our country was this better displayed than during the Civil War period. A similar monument ought to be erected in every other Southern State in the Union where one does not now exist.

Christians will not be allowed to be present at the coronation of Emperor Yoshibito of Japan. The failure of the Japanese Government to recognize the Christian religion is in striking contrast to the policy of the Chinese Government in respect to it, and indicates that, in spite of the faithful work of the missionaries, Japan is still a non-Christian nation. Though the Government of China is weak and apparently unstable, this is in no way the fault of Christianity.

Woman suffrage has been defeated in New York by about 180,000 votes, in Pennsylvania by about 50,000, and in Massachusetts by about 130,000. A journal of high standing states that the eleven States (Wyoming, Colorado, Idaho, Utah, Washington, California, Arizona, Kansas, Oregon, Montana, Nevada) that have granted suffrage to women have a total population of only 8,000,000, while the 37 States which have not granted it have a population of about 83,000,000. The anti-suffragists have reason to be encouraged, but the suffragists are by no means discouraged and intend to do greater things in the future, and will, unless those who oppose them work harder than they have in the past.

ACTION OF THE NORTH ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

The North Alabama Conference, as one of the original patronizing Conferences of Vanderbilt University, bad before it at its recent session the report of its Commissioner in reference to the joint meeting of the Educational Commission and the Conference Cimmissioners to consider the matter of the transfer of all rights in Vanderbilt University from the General Conference to the patronizing Conferences. This report, which announced the decision of the Educational Commission that no transfer could be made, was adopted by a unanimous vote, and the following resolutions were then unanimously adopted:

RESOLUTIONS.

"Whereas the Educational Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has decided, after fully reviewing the case and being guided by the opinions of eminent counsel, that it was wholly without power to convey or transfer to the original patronizing Conferences any right, title, or interest in Vanderbilt University; therefore

"Resolved: 1. That we accept tbis decision of the Educational Commission as a final settlement of the disturbing Vanderbilt University question.

REV. D. E. KELLY, of Hattiesburg, Mississippi Conference Evangelist; who is steadily growing in reputation as an effective revivalist.

"2. That in this acceptance of the decision of the Educational Commission and the decision of the Supreme Court of Tennessee we are unshaken in our conviction that in equity Vanderbilt University is to-day our property, and that our fathers laid the foundations of an institution to be owned and controlled by the Church they represented in the establishment of Vanderbilt University. Our conviction was expressed a year ago when we instructed our Commissioner to agree to no terms that did not recognize 'the ownership and right of control of the entire university by the patronizing Conferences.'

"3. We rejoice in the auspicious opening of Emory University at Atlanta and of the Southern Methodist University at Dallas. We have to-day in these two universities more than twelve hundred students and more than five million dollars in property and endowment. These institutions have been made secure to the Church by deeds of gift and by charter and we believe will be thus held to the end. To Emory University and to Southern Methodist University we pledge our prayers, our faithful co-operation, and our financial support."

ALMOST HOME.

By Rev. J. L. Greenway.

The banks of the river I am nearing,
Its ripple I now seem to hear;
But Jesus so sweetly is saying,
"Beloved, I always am near."

In Him I am simply confiding,
So gently He's clearing my way;
The sunlight from Heaven is streaming,
And darkness is fleeing away.

I am nearing the portals of Glory,
I am catching the heavenly strain.
The angels are chanting the story
Of Jesus, who liveth again.

The breezes of Heaven are blowing—
So calmly they're cooling my brow;
And softly the angels are coming,
They're gathering around me now.

The swellings of Jordan are flowing,
And washing just now at my feet;
My shepherd so gently is leading,
My journey is almost complete.

Across the dark waters I am looking,
My vision of Heaven is bright;
Its splendor to me is unfolding,
And glory now breaks on my sight.

Sweet voices are earnestly calling,
They're coming from loved ones most dear;
To greet me they're watching and waiting—
To welcome me home with good cheer.

The river I softly am crossing,
In the midst of its water I stand;
A good-by to those I am leaving,
A welcome from those on the strand.

THE SMILING FACE.

We've formed a new society,
"The Order of the Smiling Face."
An honored member you may be,
For every one may have a place.

The rules say, you must never let
The corners of your mouth drop down,
For by this method you may get
The habit of a sulky frown.

If playmates tease you, let your eyes
A brave and merry twinkle show;
For if the angry tears arise,
They're very apt to overflow.

If you must practice for an hour,
And it seems a long, long while,
Remember not to pout and glower,
But wear a bright and cheerful smile.

The rules are simple, as you see;
Make up your mind to join to-day.
Put on a smile, and you will be

THE LITTLE MUSIC MASTER.

You little people all love music— don't you? Well, I am going to tell you a story about a little boy who loved music better than anything else in the world.

His name was Adolph, and he lived in a small German country town, close to a great oak forest. Now, his father was famed throughout Germany as a maker of wonderful violins, and it was most natural that Adolph learned to know the violin when he was very young. At the time of this story he was nine years old and almost every fair day you might find him deep within the the woods playing softly on his violin to the trees and birds.

One day when Adolph arrived home after one of his wonderful days in the forest he found his good father very much excited. The good man had received orders for violins from some of the most famous musicians in all Germany, for it had been announced that day that a prize of gold had been offered by the Emperor for the best musical composition to be sent him some time during the next two weeks.

And the good father felt that here was a chance for Adolph. He knew that the little chap was more than an ordinary player; he knew he had already composed pretty songs and waltzes, and so why would he not have an equal chance with any musician, no matter how great, of winning the prize?

For the next three days it rained and Adolph, try as he would, could not play a note. He wanted the woods and the birds about him. The fourth day was one of those beautiful summer days, when the air was sweet and the sky evener than a fairy sea, and with joy in his heart Adolph started for the woods with his violin tucked under his arm.

From the glaring sunlight, he entered the cool shade of the trees, and after walking for some time he sat down on a large rock close beside a mountain brook.

And then Adolph, with a smile on his face, began to play. The wonderful music sobbed through the forest like a living thing, and presently from afar off came the flutter of wings. The birds of far and near were coming to hear him play. On every bough there was every kind of a bird, while among the trees and on the rocks the beasts of the forest crept to listen.

All of a sudden Adolph stopped. Then, throwing back his curly head, he spoke to the birds.

"I want you to help me," he said. "I want you to sing for me, for the Emperor bids me compose some music that man has never heard before."

"You are our friend," answered the nightingale, "and we are very glad to help you." And every little feathered fellow in the forest piped long their offer of aid. It was the nightingale who took command. In a second he had called fifty nightingales to his side and they opened their throats and sang as no other chorus had ever sung before, while below in the rock Adolph trembled with joy. Not a note did he forget, and when, two weeks later, he played it all on his wonderful violin before the Emperor, the musicians of Germany marveled and called it "The Song of the Angels."

And so it was that Adolph won the prize, and also became one of the greatest musicians the world has ever seen. Unidentified.

HOW RODERIC AND GORDON WENT CAMPING.

Roderic looked very much out of sorts. "Fred Stone has gone deer hunting with his father, and Joe Gilmore and Duncan Reeves have both gone camping out. I say it's a shame. I've wanted to go camping out all my life." He dug his pencil impatiently into the map he was drawing.

"So have I," said Gordon, who always wanted to do just what his brother did.

Sister Ruth looked up from her sewing. "What sort of a place would you pick out to camp in?" she asked, thoughtfully.

"Oh, a nice woody place. I like lots of pines and hemlocks. There are more apt to be bears and deer, you know, stalking about."

"Yes, and water, too," said Gordon. "We would want fish. I've had my tackle all ready since spring, but haven't been fishing once."

"It seems to me you could have a pretty good time right here at home, boys," Ruth suggested. "There are the woods on Uncle Ezra's place." Roderic turned his head disdainfully.

"And Goose Creek," went on his sister, calculatingly.

"Whoever heard of fish in Goose Creek?" scoffed Gordon.

"What do you say to going camping with me, boys?" Ruth proffered boldly. "I think I know of a delightful place. We'll start Monday and stay all the week if you say so. We can take father's tent and some of mother's dishes and a load of provisions. Shall we?"

"Oh, yes, yes!" both boys shouted at once. "But where is the place, Sister Ruth?"

"That you must leave entirely to me," she told them. "There are pines and spruces and water; are they enough?"

When they were ready to start she insisted that both of the boys should be blindfolded securely, which added to the general mystery.

They were to be drawn to the camping ground by Seth, the hired man, and the light spring wagon was loaded with things for their comfort and enjoyment. The boys sat, one on either side of Ruth, and asked questions. Roderic felt sure that they were going a very great distance. "It must be miles and miles, isn't it, Sister Ruth?" But Sister Ruth only laughed at him.

"We must be up in the mountains, I am sure," said Gordon. "It is so very rough." They were crossing the pasture then. They took many roundabout turns and at last stopped on a beautiful wood road, close by a gurgling spring.

"I think we will camp here," Ruth said, and she untied the bandages from the boys' eyes.

They soon had things unloaded and were pitching the tent. Two happier boys never lived, and they spent several joyous days there.

"Oh, Ruth, tell us the name of this lovely place. We will want to come here next year," Roderic cried. But Ruth only smiled.

On the way home she did not bandage the boys' eyes, and they were both surprised when, after a short trip through the woods and across a field or two, they turned into their own home lane.

"Oh, Ruth, have we really been in Uncle Ezra's woods, after all?" they cried. "I never guessed it was half as lovely as that."

"I wanted you boys to know how many really wonderful things there are right close at home," Ruth said. "I wanted you to know what you were missing by being discontented and wanting to do something that was impossible. All this beauty has been right within your reach always."

THE NEED OF SALVATION IN YOUTH.

Many times we hear children and young men and women make the remark that religion is good enough for old folks, but that they themselves are too young.

Oh, what a sad mistake, children! Does the Bible not say, 'Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them?' Eccl. 12:1.

In every part of Scripture it is remarkable with what tenderness the season of youth is always mentioned.

It was in youth that Samuel was called. It was in youth when the Spirit fell upon David. It was at that age that the little children were brought unto Jesus to be blessed and the disciples rebuked those that brought them, but Jesus was displeased when he saw it, and said unto them, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God."

When Timothy was a mere child, he was taught the Scriptures daily by his mother, Eunice, and his grandmother, Lois, and he was converted while very young.

Truly, children, it pays to give Jesus your heart while in youth, for if you live apart from him, as you grow older you will meet with more of life's temptations, and little by little you will find yourselves losing pleasure in the things pertaining to God and heaven and your hearts and minds will be taken up with worldly amusements, worldly associates, etc., until you will scarcely think of Jesus at all.—Methodist Recorder.

THOUGHT-PROVOKING

A little girl was sent in a hurry for the doctor the other day, and when she reached the steps of the physician's house she found there a doctor of divinity, the pastor of the church which she attended.

"Well, my little girl," said the minister, who recognized the child, "what's the matter? Nothing serious, I hope."

"I don't know for sure," said the girl. "Only we can't find my tennis ball anywhere, and we think perhaps the baby has swallowed it."

"Dear me!" exclaimed the reverend gentleman, much amused. "And so you want the doctor. Well, I'm a doctor. Won't I do?"

The little girl eyed him for a moment in a brown study, as though the idea was new and might be good. "No," she said, at last, shaking her head with decision. "We want a doctor that practices, not one that preaches."—Telonis.

As a rule, we get most excited over those matters which are of the least consequence. The path of life behind us is dotted with molehills which we once thought were mountains.—Edward Leigh Pell, D. D.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days, how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Southern Conference for Education and Industry will meet in New Orleans next spring.

Rev. W. D. Wendel has had a most successful year at Como, Miss., and a correspondent states that his return is much desired. He will make an excellent report at Conference.

Mr. H. H. Alirens gave excellent reports of the proceedings of the late session of the Louisiana Conference in the New Orleans Times-Picayune. He is a master in that line of work.

Dr. F. N. Parker, of Emory University, and Dr. Thomas Carter, of Vanderbilt University, were present at the late session of the Louisiana, of which they are members. They were cordially welcomed by the brethren, who were glad to see them.

The local option election in Rapides Parish last week was remarkably close. The prohibitionists won by a majority of seven votes. Following their usual tactics, the saloon advocates have appealed to the courts to stay the day of the doom of their iniquitous business.

Writing from Colbert, Oklahoma, Rev. W. W. Williams orders his paper changed to Maud, Okla., and adds: "I have a delightful appointment and expect a great year." We are pleased to know that this worthy worker is well located, and we hope that his expectations will be fully realized.

Rev. John Ritchey, the Secretary, writes us as follows: "The Veteran Ministers' Association will hold its annual meeting in the Methodist church at New Albany on December 1, 1915. Rev. G. W. Bachman will preach the annual sermon, after which the usual handshaking exercises will follow."

In the last issue of the Advocate, in noting the much-regretted death of Prof. Booker T. Washington, the noted Negro educator, the statement was inadvertently made that the school which he founded at Tuskeegee, Ala., has an endowment of five million dollars. It should have been two million dollars.

At the late session of the Texas Conference, Rev. W. J. Johnson, whose remarkably fruitful four years' pastorate at Beaumont was noticed in last week's Advocate, was transferred to the North Texas Conference. That body, however, has not yet met and what his new field of labor will be is not known at this writing.

The new Editor of the Methodist Review, Dr. Horace M. DuBose, is now in Nashville and has taken active charge of the work of bringing out the January number of the Review. He and his family have received a cordial welcome to Nashville, where they made their home for a number of years and where they have a host of friends.

Rev. O. L. Savage, of Belzoni, has our thanks for a club of 5 subscriptions. Success has crowned his labors during the year; and, along with the other interests of the Church, he has been mindful of the Conference organ. He is a workman who does not believe in overlooking anything and who knows how to achieve results that are worth while.

After addresses by Dr. A. J. Lamar and Dr. J. S. Frazer, financial commissioner of Emory University, the Memphis Annual Conference last week subscribed more than $6000 to that institution. This collection was taken by Mr. T. B. King, of Memphis, one of the leading laymen of Southern Methodism, who is a remarkably forceful speaker.

Work on the campus of Emory University, in Druid Hills Park, Atlanta, has begun; and under the hand of the landscape engineer the grounds begin to present many charming views. Dr. E. E. Chappell, editor of our Sunday school periodicals, visited the campus recently and says that there is nothing more beautiful at any American institution of learning.

Owing to the illness of Prof. Henderson of Centenary College, Rev. H. T. Carley was induced at Mansfield to forego his purpose to take a pastoral charge in the Louisiana Conference and to accept again a professorship in that institution.

Reports to date indicate that the membership gain of our Church for 1915 will be considerably in advance of that of last year. Some of the Conference gains reported to date are approximately as follows: Holston, 3500; North Alabama, 2900; Missouri, 2700; Northwest Texas, 2300; St. Louis, 1900; West Oklahoma, 1600. Fourteen Conferences to date report a total gain in membership of more than 24,000.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Tyro (Miss.) charge, adopted by a unanimous vote resolution expressing high appreciation of the services of their pastor Rev. T. E. Gregory, and of their presiding elder, Rev. J. W. Dorman, both of whom will be compelled to go to a new field by the operation of the time limit. These brethren were commended for their ability and faithfulness, and a deep interest was expressed in their future work and welfare.

During the recent session of the Louisiana Conference, Brother C. O. Chalmers, Publisher of the Advocate, was delightfully entertained at Mansfield College by President and Mrs. R. E. Bobbitt. His associate guests were Rev. J. L. Williams, Rev. A. D. Martin, Mr. S. H. Meyer, and Mr. H. L. Baker. Brother Chalmers was much impressed by the fine student body of the College and the work that it is doing for the young womanhood of Louisiana.

At the recent session of the Mississippi State Baptist Convention a Commission was constituted "to exercise general supervision over the management and editorial policy of The Baptist Record." This paper is issued at Jackson, and has hitherto been entirely under private control. This convention also adopted as one its aims to to be achieved during the next twelve months: "250 Sunday schools contributing regularly $5 a month to the Baptist orphanage at Jackson.

Rev. H. P. Crowe, formerly a member of the North Mississippi Conference but who for some years has been a member of the St. Louis Conference, is now serving as Financial Secretary of Marvin College, at Fredericktown, Mo. In a letter renewing his subscription to the Advocate, Brother Crowe says: "Methodism in this part of the country is fast moving to the front. In fact, we are the leading denomination throughout this great section of the State of Missouri."

Under date of November 12, Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, of Booneville, Miss., writes: "We are having some great services in these closing days of the Conference year. On a recent Sunday I received three persons, two of them on profession of faith, into the Church, and baptized two infants; and last Sunday we had two additions—one by profession." Brother Lipscomb is an uncommonly effective preacher, and that he should have such seals to his ministry is not surprising.

At the fourth quarterly conference of the Guntown and Baldwyn charge (North Mississippi), resolutions appreciative of the work of Rev. J. H. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Corinth District, were unanimously adopted. He was commended for his interest in the work, his superior administrive ability, and his Christian spirit and brotherliness. Manifestly the brethren within the bounds of that appointment hold Brother Mitchell in very high regard.

In a recent meeting, while he was out of town, the official board of our church at Starkville, Miss., passed, without a dissenting voice, a resolution requesting the return of Rev. T. H. Lipscomb to that charge for the fourth year. There is not a more responsible pastorate in Mississippi than the one at Starkville, and Brother Lipscomb has met its exacting demands with a marked degree of efficiency. The A & M College, which is located there, has a student body of approximately 1000 young men.

The youngest presiding elder in the North Mississippi Conference is Rev. R. A. Tucker, of the Holly Springs District, who is finishing his first quadrennium in that responsible office. Those who have been associated with Brother Tucker in the work speak in enthusiastic terms of the service which he has rendered. He is a son of the late Rev. H. R. Tucker, long an esteemed member of the North Mississippi Conference; so he has been identified with the itinerant ministry practically all of his life.

From a letter from Mrs. Laura L. Delap, of Natchez, Miss., we take the following: "We are grieved to feel that we shall so soon have to give up our beloved pastor, Rev. H. B. Watkins, and his family. His sermons are so filled with the Holy Spirit that they are unusually helpful and comforting, and out of the pulpit he is such a good friend. More than 59 years ago, when I was sixteen years of age, his grandfather, Dr. W. H. Watkins, took me into the Church." This is not an unusual testimony concerning the work of this gifted young minister, who is one of the choice members of the Mississippi Conference.

A Drew (Miss.) correspondent of The Sunflower Tocsin, in the issue of that journal appearing on Nov. 18, said: "Rev. J. W. Raper, who has served this charge for a full quadrennium, will under the law of his Church have to go elsewhere. He has done a wonderful work during his pastorate here, advancing all the interests of the Church, adding to it many new members, and erecting at a cost of $15,000 a handsome new house of worship, which for convenience of arrangement and architectural beauty compares favorably with the best church edifices in the State. His membership and the community generally regret the necessity of his departure and entertain the hope that the lines may fall to him in pleasant places."

Rev. J. J. Hoffman and his wife were found in a helpless condition physically in their rooms above their little Bible House on Baronne Street one day last week and were carried to the Charity Hospital, where they both have since died. It was stated in some of the city papers that they were in destitution and want at the time that they were stricken with illness; but we are pleased to note that the Rev. Mr. Becker, who officiated at their obsequies, affirms that this was not true. Mr. Hoffman was a Lutheran minister and the founder of the New Orleans Helping Hand Mission, which sought to give assistance to the "down-and-outs." He also kept for sale a collection of Bibles. He and Mrs. Hoffman did a good work and will be missed in the Crescent City.

As a memorial to his beloved wife, Mrs. Kate McWillie Powers, whose regrettable death occurred some weeks ago, Dr. R. V. Powers has bought several acres of land south of and adjoining the Methodist Orphanage at Jackson, Miss., and will erect thereon a building to cost not less than $10,000 as a domicile for The Children's Home Society. That institution is not an orphanage in the strict sense of the word; its object is not to rear children, but to take charge of them and secure homes for them. It received last year 117 children. It is stated that it will work in harmony and co-operation with the Methodist and Baptist Orphanages at Jackson. This benefaction of Dr. Powers is a noble one, and will doubtless exert a wide influence for good in the coming years.

At the session of the Texas Conference a resolution was adopted pledging the Conference to endow a chair in the School of Theology of the Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex., the needed amount, $50,000, to be raised during the coming year. The Conference extended an invitation to Bishops Candler, McCoy, and Mouzon to co-operate with Dr. C. S. Wright, Vice President of Southern Methodist University, in making plans for this campaign. The Conference also adopted a resolution agreeing to the amendment of the charter of the University, making the institution one owned and controlled by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. This amendment was prepared by the Educational Commission of the Church. Dr. Wright, the Vice President, believes that within a year four of the seven chairs of the School of Theology will be endowed by the Conferences of Texas and that endowments for the other chairs will be secured from individuals.

A NEW AND VALUABLE BOOK.

I have recently read with much appreciation a new and valuable book which I desire to heartily commend to the readers of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. The title in full is: "God's Estimate of Man and Other Sermons, Together with an Autobiographical Sketch." By the late Rev. W. C. Black, D. D., of the Mississippi Conference, with an introduction by Rev. H. M. DuBose, D. D. Published by Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn.

The autobiography will be read with interest by the many personal friends of the author.

There are ten sermons selected from those delivered during his active ministry—some of them many times with great effect. Of them Dr. DuBose says in his introduction: "The tone of their theology is silver-clear. * * * They will now be available to the younger ministry, to whom they will become valuable as models of frankness, faithfulness, and earnestness in pulpit utterance."

The older ministry and Christian people of every rank will find them good in substance and expression, to the use of spiritual edification. This worthy book should have a wide circulation and an extensive reading. It will be on sale at the coming session of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, and should have a liberal patronage at the hands of the preachers and visitors. It can be had also from Rev. M. M. Black, Canton, Miss. The price is reasonable, being only 75 cents per copy, net; 80 cents by mail, postpaid.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Tuesday night, Dr. George Sexton, of Shreveport, delivered a forceful sermon on the power of the gospel to save. He took his text from Romans 1:16, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." He said that many sermons he had heard upon this text emphasized the word 'ashamed,' but that he considered the key word of the text to be 'power,' and the text was discussed largely from the standpoint of that word.

Wednesday afternoon Dr. J. W. Gilbert preached to a large congregation, and all who heard this able leader of the Colored Methodist Church were thrilled by the message he brought.

Wednesday night the Epworth League anniversary was held, Rev. W. E. Thomas, Chairman of the Epworth League Board, presiding. Mr. J. D. Saint, of New Orleans, President of the Louisiana Epworth League, made a fine address on the work of the League in the State. The keynote of his address was optimism. He reported great progress in the work, and inspired those who heard him with great hope of the future. Dr. F. S. Parker, General Secretary of the Epworth League, was the principal speaker of the evening. He dwelt upon the great value of the League in the past, and declared that it must have a large part in the life of the Church in the future, if the young people are to be properly trained and developed in Christian service. It is invaluable as an agency in reaching and holding the young people at a very critical period in their mental and spiritual life.

Thursday afternoon, Rev. J. L. Williams preached to a large audience. Brother Williams has recently come into our Conference. He was stationed last year at Greenwood.

Thursday night, a splendid meeting was held in the interest of Sunday schools. Bishop Atkins made the chief address of the evening, and all who heard him were impressed with the fact that the Sunday school is an absolute necessity to the life and growth of the Church. After the Bishop's address, Rev. Briscoe Carter took a collection for the extension of the Sunday school work in Louisiana. A goodly sum was realized, and this amount was later raised, during a regular session of the Conference, to $1000. This timely collection by Brother Carter, and an assessment ordered by the Conference, make it possible for Rev. W. H. Coleman to give all his time during the year to the work as a Sunday School Field Secretary.

Friday afternoon, a laymen's meeting was held, under the direction of Mr. W. S. Holmes, Conference Lay Leader. The Bishop was present, and spoke upon the laymen's responsibility in the Church. Mr. Spinks, Rev. H. W. Bowman, Rev. W. H. Coleman, Rev. J. A. Mangum, and Rev. K. W. Dodson spoke on the use of Duplex envelopes, and other practical ways for the laymen to meet their responsibility.

Friday night the educational interests of the Church were represented to an audience which taxed the capacity of the building. Dr. J. M. Henry, President of the Conference Board of Education, presided. Bishop James Atkins delivered a masterly address on Christian Education. At the close of his address, the Bishop called for an offering of $5000 to meet immediate and pressing needs of Mansfield College. Mr. Liverman, of Mansfield, said that he had been authorized by Mr. Blair, of Shreveport, to state that Mr. Blair would give $1000 toward the collection, provided the remaining $4000 be raised. Mr. Moore, of Mansfield arose and said that he would duplicate Mr. Blair's proposition. With this splendid start, more than half the amount asked for was subscribed before the meeting closed. A committee was appointed to complete the collection during the days following. More than $1000 are yet needed to make up the amount. Let the people of our Church, and the friends of Mansfield College, all over our territory respond to this great opportunity. The $2000 of Mr. Blair and Mr. Moore are offered upon the condition that the full sum of $5000 be raised. We can not afford to fail to raise the $3000.

The musical department of Mansfield College contributed largely to the educational meeting. A large chorus of the College students sang a number of songs, while members of the musical faculty at the College gave some exeellent selections. The Mansfield Church has a fine choir, which added much to the special services of the Conference. And the effectiveness of the choir is largely due to the work of the College musical faculty. Altogether, our College at Mansfield made a fine impression upon the members and delegates of the Conference, and they went away believing in its prsent thorough work, and in its greater usefulness in the future.

Saturday night was devoted to Missions. Rev. C. C. Miller presided. A large audience listened with intense interest to Dr. S. H. Werlein who spoke on conditions and missions in New Orleans, and to Rev. N. E. Joyner who discussed conditions in Mexico.

ITS POSITION MADE CLEAR.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the Louisiana Conference during its late session at Mansfield:

"Whereas, the Rev. Thomas Carter and the Rev. H. B. Carre are at present, and have for some years past been serving as professors in Vanderbilt University at Nashville, Tenn., and whereas, this Conference has requested the presiding Bishop to appoint Brothers Carter and Carre to profesorships in Vanderbilt University, therefore,

"Be it resolved, That while we have recommended the appointment of these brethren to professorships in Vanderbilt University, we desire to place ourselves on record as commending in every particular the action of the General Conference of 1914 and also all the acts of the Commissioners appointed by said General Conference relative to the said Vanderbilt matter."

HELP URGENTLY NEEDED.

By Mrs. Lily Meekins.

As you have probably heard, or read, the Mary Werlein Mission, of New Orleans, was very badly damaged on September 29 when the great hurricane struck New Orleans. The roof was practically torn off and the damage to the inside of the buildings on that day and during the heavy rains of a few days later was frightful. The roof has been fixed and we are protected from further damage by the rains, but owing to a lack of funds the inside work is still almost at a standstill. Some of the rooms are barely habitable and others cannot be used at all, making conditions very crowded and unpleasant, which tends to hamper the work. We have been able to raise enough money to take care of some of the inside work, and if given time we could manage the rest among ourselves, but our membership is composed of poor people, who can not raise any appreciable sums on short notice, and this repair work must be attended to at once.

This appeal has been delayed, as we expected to raise enough money to take care of our needs, but find it utterly impossible, and find it necessary to use this means in order to reach our more fortunate brethren and sisters who have not suffered from the storm. We need at least $75 to take care of repairs still absolutely necessary to be made, and could use more to get everything in good shape. What can you do for us, reader? Names and amounts contributed will be printed weekly until the desired amount is secured. All contributions, great or small, will be very much appreciated, and should be forwarded to Mrs. Lily Meekins, Resident Missionary, Mary Werlein Mission, 1026 Tchoupitoulas Street, New Orleans, La. We have already received one contribution with which we head our list:

TO PUBLISH A PAPER IN NEW ORLEANS.

At the session of the Presbyterian Synod of Louisiana at Lake Charles, La., last week, it was decided to begin the publication of a Presbyterian weekly in New Orleans at an early date. There is said to be about $6000 behind this enterprise. It was stated that Dr. George Summey will be the editor of this new publication, and Dr. L. C. Voss the assistant editor. It is expected that this journal will serve not only the Presbyterians of Louisiana, but also those of adjacent States.

This development is quite a suggestive one. Several years ago a paper known as The Southwestern Presbyterian was published in this city, but, with a view to making a stronger periodical, it was merged with The Central Presbyterian and Southern Presbyterian, of Atlanta, Ga., and Richmond, Va., the new publication (which was issued at Richmond) being called The Presbyterian of the South. We have not seen it so stated, but we infer that the Presbyterians of Louisiana feel that a journal issued so far away does not adequately meet their needs, and that this is the cause of this late action upon their part. That they should have reached such a decision is not surprising; for a paper, to be most effective, needs to be where it can grapple with problems of a State or community at a close range and reflect in some measure the local atmosphere. No politician would be so unwise as to expect a journal in St. Louis or Richmond to champion the interests of his party successfully in Louisiana or Mississippi. Yet there are prominent men in our Church with little enough discernment to contend that four or five Church papers are ample for the whole of Southern Methodism.

NOT A GOOD RECORD.

During the past year in the United States 25,000 workers were killed and 2,000,000 were injured in accidents which might have been avoided had the necessary precautions been taken. This does not include the 3,000,000 people which preventive diseases temporarily kept from their work. The moral lesson to be derived from this is that the welfare of employers is dependent upon that of the employed.

WHAT THE MEMPHIS CONFERENCE DID.

We are indebted to the Memphis Commercial-Appeal for the following resolutions that the Memphis Conference adopted during its late session at Trenton, Tenn., which closed last Monday:

"Resolved, That we, the members of the Memphis Conference, one of the original patronizing Conferences, accept the action of the Educational Commission as final in the settlement of the whole Vanderbilt matter.

"Resolved, second, That, while we accept this action and bow to the opinion of the Supreme Court, we do nevertheless still entertain the opinion that the Church did foster this university and that by all moral and equitable right it is the property of the M. E. Church, South, to-day.

"Resolved, third, That we do most heartily commend the action of the minority of the Board of Trustees of Vanderbilt University, who, after the judgment of the Supreme Court against the Church, resigned their places on the Board of Trust, thus declining to hold in trust a great estate that was in right the property of the Church.

"Resolved, fourth, That we rejoice in the auspicious beginning of our two great schools, Emory University at Atlanta, Ga., and the Southern Methodist University at Dallas, Texas, and commend these institutions to the patronage of our people everywhere.

"Resolved fifth, That in view of the fact that the Trustees of Vanderbilt University succeeded in alienating that institution from the Church, thereby declaring that they considered the patronage of the Church a hindrance rather than a help, we cannot recommend to the Bishop to appoint men to professorships in that school, lest the Church be considered as attempting to hold on to an institution from which it has been discarded.

"Respectfully submitted,

"S. R. H. MAHON,
"H. B. JOHNSTON,
"W. D. JENKINS.
"W. T. M. FOSTER.

"On motion to adopt the resolution a lively discussion arose concerning the last clause. Rev. C. A. Waterfield opposed its adoption, but failed to rally sufficient strength to defeat it, and after a number of speeches pro and con the entire resolution was adopted by the Conference."

The Rev. Dr. Stevenson, Professor of Old Testament Language and Literature in Vanderbilt University, held his membership in the Memphis Conference.

MRS. AMANDA ALFORD (nee Felder) was born near Topisaw, Miss., on June 12, 1884, and died at Tylertown, Miss., on Oct. 13, 1915. The interment was made in the New Tylertown Cemetery on Oct. 15, 1915, the funeral services being conducted from the Methodist Church by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. B. Quin, pastor of the Baptist Church. Dr. I. W. Cooper was also present and paid a beautiful tribute to her memory. She was married to Mr. Jas. M. Alford on Oct. 17, 1908. Their married life was one of happiness and devotion. Her husband said of her: "She was the best wife a man ever had; you cannot say too much that is good of her; she helped me to be good. What will I do without her?" To this union was given one child, a little boy, only 15 days old when the mother died. She joined the Methodist Church when young, and her life was consistent and helpful. Her friends and neighbors testify of her worth. The beautiful floral offering and the large attendance at the funeral evidenced the esteem and love in which she was held in the community. The writer, her pastor, can speak a word of praise as to her worth to the Church and its interests. May God sustain the lonely husband, the aged parents, brothers and sisters by that grace which is sufficient, and give special care to the dear little babe left to bless a father's life.

T. B. COTTRELL.

GEORGE HUDSON COLLINS was born near Tylertown, Miss., on July 12, 1857, and died in New Orleans, La., at 2:30 p. m., on Oct. 16, 1915. The funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Revs. A. F. Davis, J. B. Quin, C. T. Corkern, and F. L. Applewhite, on Sunday at 3 o'clock, under a large tabernacle, the Methodist Church being too small to accommodate the great crowd assembled. The interment was made in the new cemetery. Brother Collins was married to Miss Alice Eaton on Feb. 7, 1889. A wife, five children, four brothers, one sister, and an aged mother-in-law survive to mourn their loss. He was converted and joined the Methodist Church at the Seashore Camp Ground, at the age of 18. He delighted to speak of and visit that place. He was a true Christian and a loyal Methodist, having served as Sunday School superintendent and teacher for many years, and at the time of his death was president of the board of stewards. The church, the town, the county will miss him greatly. He was a friend to all, especially the poor. It was the writer's privilege to be his pastor for two years. I found in him a friend. I loved him and shall miss him. The sorrowing ones we commend to God, the source of all comfort, and remind them of that family reunion where no parting words are spoken.

T. B. COTTRELL.

Mrs. ALICE R. DORR was born near Hernando, Miss., in 1877. In early childhood her father, Captain Raines, settled near the town, where she grew to womanhood. When about twenty years of age she was married to Mr. Henry Dorr who lived near Sardis, Miss. Three children blessed this union, Russell, Leslie, and Cecil, brave handsome boys who are left to mourn a devout, loving mother's untimely death, which took place at the City Hospital at Memphis, Tenn., on October 4, 1915. Alice, as she was familiarly called, was endowed with lovely traits of mind and heart, being unselfish, generous, and kind. Her gracious spirit was quite impressive even in her last sickness. When her very kind neighbors and friends would visit her, expressing their sympathy, and often bringing some dainty food to tempt her weak and failing appetite, she showed an earnest gratefulness and would sometimes tell them she knew there would be stars in their crown for their great kindness to her, if there was nothing more to their credit. Her devoted husband preceded her to the grave about eight years, and of her father's family only two remained—a brother and a sister—to minister to her through her long, tedious illness, and their devotion and care were unstinted to the end. She professed faith in Christ in childhood, joining the Methodist Church at Hernando. Hers was indeed a beautiful Christian life. She was loved by all who knew her. It is hard to say goodbye, but we sorrow not as those who have no hope.

M.

BRYANT AUBRY REAGAN was born near McComb City, in Pike County, Miss., on March 10, 1896, and died at the place of his birth on Sept. 12, 1915. He was baptized in infancy by the late Rev. W. B. Lewis, for whom he was named. Under the ministry of Rev. W. W. Simmons, he united with the LaBranch Street M. E. Church, South, of McComb City in the year 1906—thus being a member of the church for the past nine years.

Aubry, as he was called, was a quiet, unassuming young man, and had seemingly a bright future before him. He had graduated in the Magnolia High School at the close of the last session. Five months after his graduation, he passed away, forcibly reminding all of us of the words of the motto of his graduating class: "To-night We Launch. Where Will We Anchor?"

How uncertain is life. It is true indeed, that, "In the midst of life we are in death." Those who knew Aubry intimately knew him to be a good boy. He was never known to use any language that could not be used in the most refined company. He was a dutiful son, and a devoted brother, and he will be sadly missed in the home where many of the responsibilities rested upon him. On the afternoon of September 13, we laid his body away in the beautiful City Cemetary at McComb. His pastor,

F. B. ORMOND.

A long and useful life closed, when on Nov. 7, 1915, at her home in Scott County, Miss., Mrs. LIZZIE C. BEEMAN sank into that dreamless sleep to awaken to the beauties of that City whose maker and builder is God. She had been a member of the Methodist Church just 55 years, and had she lived until December 13, would have reached her eightieth birthday. She was a faithful wife and stepmother and the devotion of her children was fully attested through years of widowhood. She was truly practical and cared more for the lowing of herds, and the familiar sounds at evening that made farm life so attractive to her, than for the allurements of the city, to which she reluctantly consented to go with her husband when elected a member of the House of Representatives at our National Capital. She had been growing weaker for a time, and on a lovely Sabbath eve, just as the shades of night gathered, and loved ones surrounded her dying couch, her deathless spirit winged its everlasting flight to mansion above, where no sickness or sorrow can come, where there is "no night," and God's countenance is the light thereof.

I am left alone, and am the only member of a family of seven. Oh, yes, I shall long

"For the touch of a vanished hand
And the sound of a voice that is still."

She was faithful in all the relations of church and private life—always ready to lend a helping hand to those in need of assistance.

Farewell, dear sister! May we meet at the Beautiful Gate, with those who have gone before.

Girls! Try It! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

A MODERN MIRACLE.

Like a tale out of "The Arabian Nights" is the matter-of-fact story which the daily papers told us a few days ago. A human voice was carried in wireless telephonic conversation from Arlington, Virginia, to Paris. A man at the former place spoke in an ordinarily clear tone and another man in the Eiffel Tower at Paris heard distinctly what he said. Furthermore, a third man in a wireless station at Honolulu, in the midst of the Pacific Ocean, who was listening, heard easily all that the Arlington speaker said to the hearer at Paris. As much as we of this time are accustomed to the wonders of modern achievement, this new conquest of distance almost staggers belief. That a man can speak and his voice be heard at points so far removed as Paris and the Sandwich Islands seems incredible. The fact that it is true seems to suggest that at no far distant day, with the improvement of apparatus and the establishment of new stations, a man may speak at Arlington and be heard all over the world without wires to carry his voice. One said when he heard of the Arlington to Paris conversation: "Who now will doubt the possibility of prayer?"

OPTIMISM IN FINLAND.

"In spite of serious difficulties incident to the war we are happy to report revivals and increased membership in many Finnish centers, especially in Helsingfors, Abo, Kuopio and Viborg," writes Rev. J. W. Haggman, superintendent of a large district in the Finland Conference, in a letter just received by the Methodist Episcopal Board of Foreign Missions.

"A young people's convention was held at Bjorneborg in June, to which nearly every Epworth League chapter sent delegates. The abnormal situation has not greatly interrupted our young people's work.

"A new Finnish hymn book, for Sunday school use, is just off the press."

THE GO-TO-CHURCH BAND.

A Methodist minister had organized his children in a Go-to-Church Band at Worcester, Mass., and was looking with favor on this scheme for increasing his morning congregation, when a big snow storm on Saturday night upset all his calculations. It was still snowing at service time on Sunday morning and paths were unbroken. He thought it only right to excuse the enforced absence of the children that morning. But to his surprise they all came, and for the most part brought their parents with them. In fact he had more children to hear him preach that morning than the entire congregation of some of the large churches.

The Go-to-Church Band was established in Central Church, Worcester, five and a half years ago in an endeavor to increase the Sunday morning congregation through recruiting the young people and children. Today something like one-third of the congregation is composed of children.

The idea has spread and become one of the permanent features of the Go-to-Church movement. There are now two hundred and thirty-eight of these children's bands in thirty-three States, with a membership of twenty thousand. Over five thousand of these young folk made a perfect record of church attendance for the four months term ending with May. The leader of the movement is Clinton Alvord, of 7 Summer Street, Worcester, Mass., who will be glad to give pastors or others any possible assistance in establishing the Go-to-Church Band.—New York Advocate.

OPEN DOORS IN AFRICA.

When the first Methodist missionary went to Africa seventy-five years ago it was truly called the Dark Continent. To-day it is known in all its borders and throughout its vast interior. The whole continent is now open to the missionary. Three religions are contending for supremacy. Paganism, with its superstitious darkness, binds nearly one hundred millions. Mohammedanism, strong in missionary zeal and numbering sixty millions, is making a determined effort to conquer Africa for Islam. Christianity must awake if she is to win this great continent for Christ.

Glass of Salts Cleans Kidneys

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

MINISTER TELLS HOW HE WAS RESTORED TO HEALTH.

The splendid restorative powers of Dr. Miles' Nervine were never better demonstrated than by the experience of the Rev. W. J. Houck, of Greencastle, Pa. We will quote from a statement that he made recently:

"Several years ago I experienced some severe nervous shocks, which came at a time when my nervous strength and vitality had been greatly taxed by a severe season of work. My health was affected and I was seriously threatened with nervous prostration. I could not sleep at night and was so nervous that I would start at every little noise. My appetite was poor and it seemed almost impossible for me to gain strength. Through the advice of a friend I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine and Liver Pills. I soon saw that my health was improving. Instead of that tired and wornout feeling which had so oppressed me, I felt strong and cheerful. I could sleep soundly all night and would awake in the morning feeling rested and refreshed. Since that time, whenever I am overworked or feel "rundown" I find a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine is a wonderful help in bracing me up and in giving me renewed strength and health."

Dr. Miles' Nervine will prove equally beneficial to others who are nervous and run-down from overwork or from any other reason, and if it fails to benefit you your money will be cheerfully refunded. It can be purchased at any drug store.

Calomel Seldom Sold Here Now

Nasty drug salivates, makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist—has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney,
Sardis, Miss.

The Shuqualak Sunday school has organized a Cradle Roll, a Teacher-training class, and has promised to organize a Wesley Bible class.

The Shelby Sunday school, under the care of Rev. T. M. Bradley, and his excellent people, is taking the full program of a standard school. This work can be done by a large majority of the schools in the Conference.

The Kosciusko Sunday school is working at the Workers' Council and Teacher-training class. During the past month 100 new scholars have been enrolled and the pastor and superintendent will do their best to have them do more than simply enlist.

Rev. L. A. McKeown, of Byhalia, had 40 people enrolled in his Sunday schools the first of last year. At the close of this year he has 333 enrolled in four schools, with an average attendance of ninety per cent. Back of this fine work was a lot of earnest prayer.

Rev. J. J. Baird, of Brooksville, has done high-class work in his school all the year. The ten points in the standard of efficiency have been well covered and the graded literature is being used to advantage. The best thing about this school is that every teacher wants to do more efficient service.

Brother McElroy and his wife have been doing heroic work on the Mashulaville circuit. Their Sunday schools have made progress; for example, the church has 38 members at Mashulaville, the Sunday school has 61 enrolled; they have five organized classes, and a Teacher-training class. Such work will soon make a strong church out of a few people.

OAK RIDGE, MISS.

Dear Brother Meck: I thought as the year was closing I would give you a summary of our work here for the past two years. I have baptized 86 children and 54 adults, making a total of 140 baptisms. I have received 84 members into the Church on profession of faith and 80 by certificate and otherwise, making a total gain of 164 new members. I have painted two churches and made some repairs on the parsonage. The rolls of the charge have been straightened up and the church property has been placed in a businesslike condition. We have driven over 10,000 miles, have made about 1200 visits, and have preached 219 times. I will report about a 35 per cent increase in our Conference collections this year. So far, only one church has made a final settlement with the pastor and presiding elder. It paid in full. We have had vegetables from our garden every day that we wanted them, have sold $20 worth of them, and have that much canned for next year. We also have a fine turnip patch growing for whoever may come here after Conference. We have had some severe trials and sore temptations; we have made lots of mistakes—some of which have been terrible blunders no doubt—but through it all we have been able to look up and say: "God is good, and his mercy endureth forever." May God bless you and keep you and cause his face to shine upon you continually.—Hugh K. McKee, P. C.

When the Baby is Fretful, out of sorts and restless, you may know the stomach and liver are out of shape and a tonic is needed. Unless the organs are kept healthy you provoke sickness and possible further complications. The best general tonic to tone up the system and keep the stomach and liver in healthy working order is Plantation Chill and Fever Tonic and Liver Invigorator. Especially good for babies and growing children. Tasteless and pleasant. They take it eagerly. For sale everywhere. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.

"ONE AND INSEPARABLE."

It is said that a celebrated artist, desiring to render himself immortal, constructed a wonderful shield, and so worked his name into it that it could not be removed without destroying the shield. Thus is Christ so interwoven into the texture of the Scriptures that nothing can remove him without destroying the Word itself; and so should the lives of Christ's children be so wrought into the work that they do for the Master that the two would become inseparable.—The Presbyterian.

Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

In the Medical Record (New York) of December 18, 1909, Dr. John F. Russell says: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation. * Among inorganic substances lime salts appear to be of special physiological importance. * but if the salts are not in organic combination, it is difficult to suppose that the cells can appropriate them for food."

Years of widespread use confirm our belief that the success of Eckman's Alterative in tuberculosis is due largely to its content of lime, in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily appropriated by the cells.

Doubtless this has had much to do with the results in many cases which appear to have yielded to it. As it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Price $1. and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

THE NEWEST REMEDY FOR BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM AND DROPSY.

Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid troubles bring misery to many. When the kidneys are weak or diseased these natural filters do not cleanse the blood sufficiently, and the poisons are carried to all parts of the body. There follow depression, aches and pains, heaviness, drowsiness, irritability, headaches, chilliness and rheumatism. In some people there are sharp pains in the back and loins, distressing bladder disorders and sometimes obstinate dropsy. The uric acid sometimes forms into gravel or kidney stones. When the uric acid affects the muscles and joints, it causes lumbago, rheumatism, gout or sciatica. Write Dr. Pierce at once, send 10 cents for large trial package, or 50 cents for full treatment of "Anuric" or ask your druggist for it.

During digestion uric acid is absorbed into the system from meat eaten, and even from some vegetables. The poor kidneys get tired and backache begins. This is a good time to take "Anuric," the new discovery of Dr. Pierce for Kidney trouble and Backache. Neglected Kidney trouble is responsible for many deaths, and Insurance Company examining doctors always test the water of an applicant before a policy will be issued. Have you ever set aside a bottle of water for twenty four hours? A heavy sediment or settling sometimes indicates kidney trouble. The true nature and character of diseases, especially those of the kidneys and urinary organs, can often be determined by a careful chemical analysis and microscopical examination—this is done by expert chemists of the Medical Staff of the Invalids' Hotel. If you wish to know your condition send a sample of your water to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and describe your symptoms. It will be examined without any expense to you, and Doctor Pierce or his Staff of Assisting Physicians will inform you truthfully.

TEARING THE GOSPEL TO PIECES.

A native colporter was recently distributing copies of the Gospels among the troops of Italy. He had an experience that strikingly shows the fact that opposition to the truth often turns out to its furtherance. He says: "A soldier whom I knew to be a priest and to whom I had given a Gospel of John, tore it to pieces, scattering the leaves in the air. I protested politely, saying that if it did not please him he should have returned it. I collected the scattered pages from the ground and one by one distributed them to those present, begging that they read them to see if there was anything bad in them. All began to read, some in groups of five or ten (there were 200 soldiers present), and I talked with them. Then a wonderful thing happened. One by one, upon finishing their reading, they came begging me for the whole book that they might continue. The result was that I did not have enough gospels to go round."

ALL-DAY MEETING AT WINIFRED CHURCH.

An all-day missionary meeting was held at Winifred Church, Matherville Circuit, Meridian District, on Oct. 31, 1915. At the appointed hour, the meeting was called to order by our auxiliary president, Mrs. Vickers. A short devotional service was followed by the reading of a leaflet by Miss Foley telling of the rise, progress and status of the Woman's Missionary Society. At once, our district secretary, Mrs. McQueen came forward and in her unique way commented on the foregoing and spoke words of encouragement which won the hearts of her hearers.

At the noon hour, while the older ladies arranged the delicious lunches they had prepared, Mrs. McQueen called the young people together and gave an interesting talk with a view of inciting them to being organized into a Young People's Auxiliary.

After a good dinner and an enjoyable hour with old friends, we again repaired to the church and listened to Mrs. McQueen's "heart to heart" talk to the women—thus endearing herself to us by her sweet sympathy and wise counsel. A fervent prayer by our pastor, and we were dismissed.

Mrs. A. TROTTER.

SOME NOTES FROM THE FIRST VICE PRESIDENT OF MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Since our last letter to you, we attended the Newton District meeting at Union on Sept. 30. Although this district is doing efficient work in its adult organizations, Mrs. Clark is most anxious to have in each church a young people's missionary society, as well as Junior organizations. We trust that some good seed fell on fertile ground. In fact, Newton has since organized a young people's society under the leadership of Mrs. Emery and we feel sure they will be trained in every good work.

On Sept. 29 we went to Heidelberg for an all-day meeting, and there organized a most enthusiastic band of splendid young people, who are even now about their Master's business.

On October 20, the Bolton auxiliary entertained the Jackson District meeting. Mrs. Ewing was called away to the bedside of her sick father, but Mrs. Wood presided most efficiently. We presented the young people's work and left the results with God. We are execting the Jackson District to increase its nuumber of young people's societies by at least six before the year is out.

Laurel held its all-day meeting on Nov. 2. Delegates came from a number of neighboring churches. Again we prescnted the young people's work in the Newton District, and feel that soon Mrs. Clark will be repaid for her work and her prayers. Her slogan is a young people's pennant and a Junior pennant by the side of each adult pennant from her district, when all the pennants are flying at Vicksburg next February.

From the Meridian District we report a new young people's society at Waynesboro, and also one from the Seashore District at Pascagoula, under the leadership of Mrs. W. W. Moore, our Social Service Superintendent.

A number of Epworth Leagues have decided to correlate and send part of their finances through the Woman's Missionary Council. By using "The Era" as well as "The Voice," "Young Christian Worker" and missionary leaflets, they arrange most helpful and inspiring programs. Many are realizing their privilege and are having the young people get up the program in the "Missionary Messenger" for Sunday schools. Can you not help the young people of your church and community to get a better vision of God's plan and the needs of his children? Mrs. H. O. MIDDLETON.

MRS. ESKRIDGE'S PRIZE RECIPES.

The following extract from au account of the Greenville District meeting will be of interest to many and will explain the recipes which follow: "A pleasant opportunity to get acquainted was afforded at the informal reception given by Mrs. Burbridge and her daughters, immediately after the adjournment Wednesday afternoon; and here the 'Institute' work went steadily on, for these questions were propounded by the hostess: 'What is a good recipe for killing a society?' and 'what is a good recipe for rejuvenating a dull and uninteresting one?' The prize for the best answers was awarded to Mrs. B. F. Eskridge, of Shelby, who has lately come back to us from Louisiana, where she served the Baton Rouge District as secretary for a number of years."

To Kill a Society Cake.

1 cup of Tardiness, 2 cups of Indifference, 3 cups of Forgetfulness, 4 cups of Thoughtlessness. Add one teaspoon of Uselessness, and bake in a cold oven.

To Rejuvenate a Dull Society Salad.

1 spoonful Oil of Gladness, 4 spoonfuls Prayer, 4 slices of Cheer, season to taste with Love.

BREVARD INSTITUTE.

Professor Trowbridge writes as follows concerning a revival service which the students at Brevard have enjoyed:

"It started immediately after a chapel talk which Mr. Reece made before the school. I think you know that we always devote the first forty-five minutes of the school day to some form of Bible work. Three days in the week the school is divided into classes, which recite to different teachers. The juniors study foreign missions and the seniors home missions, while the remainder of the school studies other parts of the Bible. On Wednesday some phase of Christian experience is presented in lecture or sermon form, by one of the teachers or by some preacher.

"On this particular morning Mr. Reece spoke unusually well, contrasting the life of a righteous man with that of one living in sin. At the end of his talk he asked for a show of hands from those who desired the prayers of the Christian students and teachers. Five hands went up and arrangements were made for an inquiry service that evening. About twenty-five students and teachers attended that service, and there were seven bright conversions. We held the school together the next morning, and Mr. Reece spoke again. This developed into a regular evangelistic service, and we continued holding services throughout the week. Our pastor came down to help out later in the week, and we had fifteen or twenty conversions and reformations. As the little revival broke out so spontaneously, it has been most wholesome and has given us what seems to be the best start we have ever had in the Christian work of the year. I think no student, whether on the campus or from the town, has failed to be touched; and I think that fully ninety per cent of the school is now professing Christianity."

LETTERS THAT INSPIRE CONFIDENCE.

I wish very much that every reader of the New Orleans Christian Advocate could spend sufficient time in my office to read the thousands of letters which I have received from all parts of the country. I have printed several hundreds of them in a booklet, but I wish you could see the originals, for I would like for you to realize the wonderful results which they report in the relief of dyspepsia, indigestion, persistent headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney, bladder and liver diseases, uric acid poisoning and other conditions due to impure blood.

Before my own health was restored by Shivar Mineral Water and I purchased this Spring, and before I received all of these letters from sufferers, I didn't take very much stock in advertisements like this. I therefore cannot blame you if you doubt, but, my friend, I am absolutely convinced that the Shivar Spring is the greatest restorative mineral spring ever discovered, not excepting the famous Spas of Europe. I have shipped this water to thousands of sufferers in all parts of the U. S. and they almost invariably report either permanent restoration or beneficial results. That is why I make the guarantee offer contained in the following letter. Sign it now and mail it.

Shivar Spring,
Box 17J, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it falls to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

THE QUESTION DIRECT.

Those were direct shots that flew from the bow of Martineau: Where then is our God? You say, He is everywhere; then show me anywhere that you have met Him. You declare Him everlasting; then tell me any moment that He has been with you. You believe Him ready to succor them that are tempted, and to lift those that are bowed down; then in what passionate hour did you subside into His calm grace? in what sorrow lose yourself in His "more exceeding" joy? These are the testing questions by which we may learn whether we, too, have raised our altar to an "unknown God" and pay the worship of the blind; or whether we commune with Him "in whom we live, and move, and have our being."—Central Christian Advocate.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

If Mixed with Sulphur it Darkens so Naturally Nobody can tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Now-a-days, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

MUST GIVE IT TO OTHERS.

A Chinese asked John W. Foster, the statesman, who once represented the United States in China: "What right have you Christians to come over here to China and talk with these people about your religion?" The diplomat replied: "The right to give others something that is too good to keep." If the qualities of our life's foundation are of the best material, we may give, and give, and give them to others, and the more we take from them for others, the stronger our own become. Such is the strange and beautiful paradox of the religion of Jesus Christ.—The Presbyterian.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

The following resolutions were adopted at a meeting of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Tylertown, Miss., on October 25, 1915:

Whereas, we are called on again to face another strange dispensation of Divine Providence, in the removal from our midst of one of our faithful and loyal members, Sister Amanda Alford; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That we feel a deep sadness, sustain a great loss in this vacancy, and miss her cheery presence and sweet influence.

2. That we extend to her devoted and bereaved husband and her beloved family our deepest sympathy, and pray that God's sustaining grace may be given them, and that his special Providence may ever hover over the little one left to a father's care.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Tylertown Times and the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication; that a copy be mailed to her husband, also one to her family, and that they be spread upon the minutes of our Auxiliary.

Mrs. Josie Newsom, Mrs. I. A. Robins, Mrs. T. B. Cottrell, Committee.

IN MEMORIAM.

As God in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst to that home above, one of our beloved members, Mrs. B. B. McCasland; therefore be it Resolved: 1. That we, as members of the Missionary Society of Homer M. E. Church, South, deeply deplore the death of our sister who had been faithful, kind, and true, ever ready to do what she could for the Master's cause.

2. That we as members of the Society bow in humble submission to His will, knowing that He doeth all things well. While we grieve for her, there is comfort in the thought that she is at rest with the Heavenly Father, and that our loss is her eternal gain.

3. That we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy.

"How sweet it will be in that beautiful land,
So free from all sorrow and pain,
With songs on our lips and harps in our hands,
To meet each other again."

Signed: Mrs. A. S. Ford, Mrs. G. B. Hofley, Mrs. W. W. Moreland, Committee.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

One by one we are passing from the scenes of earth to the home of the good.

Whereas our Heavenly Father, who ever doeth all things well, has called to her higher reward, our sister, Elizabeth Mai Frazier,

And whereas she was a useful and appreciated member of our Home and Foreign Misionary Society (now combined) of the M. E. Church, South, of Myrtle, Miss.; therefore be it

Resolved by this body: 1. That we did love and esteem Sister Frazier as one of our number, and that our hearts are saddened by her removal, but that we shall cherish her memory among us as one who held the truest ideals of life and whose deeds were inspiring and beneficial to all whom she came in contact with.

She was earnest, sincere, faithful, and true; loved her Church and lived for the furtherance of its everlasting principles.

We shall miss her Christian presence in our work and midst, but rejoice in the blessing which her life was to us, and expect to meet her in the land of eternal joy.

2. That we express our tenderest sympathy to her surviving husband, her mother, sisters and brother.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the husband, the mother, and one sent to the county papers and the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. E. H. Cunningham, Mrs. D. R. Megginson, Mrs. Irene Collins, Committee.

HOW THE CHURCH GROWS.

Dr. Talcott Williams, director of the School of Journalism at Columbia University, was one of the speakers at the Commencement exercises of Hartford Theological Seminary. His address, which dealt with "The Call and the Man," was in part as follows:

The young graduates here can put aside any question as to whether the clergyman is still wanted. In the 30 years just past, from 1880 to 1910, for all the frequent declarations that the ministry was waning, the number of clergymen has grown faster than the number of lawyers or of physicians. In 1880, the United States census showed 64,698 clergymen. In 1910, there were 132,988, more than double. The other two callings had not grown two-fold, the lawyers rising from 64,137 to 121,149, and physicians from 85,671 to 157,956. The clergy alone had grown faster than the population.

In Germany theological students have fallen off one-half in the past generation. England sees a little change. Here in 33 years they double, 5242, in 1880, and 10,965 in 1913. Medical students grew less than half, 11,920 to 17,287. Law students grew faster, six-fold, but far fewer law students practiced law. More men leave medicine and law than the ministry.

Church membership, from 1890 to 1906, grew from 20,597,954 to 32,943,445, 60 per cent—a gain faster than population. It is 50 years since the Seminary came to Hartford. The population of the country has trebled. The value of church property, estimating from figures gathered by the census in 1906, has grown six-fold; national wealth from four to six-fold. For nearly 60 years, from 1850 to 1906, the church sittings have grown from 61 per cent of the population to 69 per cent. Church sittings are the terminal facilities of Christianity. When any going business increases its patrons faster than population, its invested capital in plant twice as fast as population, and as rapidly as the general growth of wealth, and for two generations, always has a seat ready for every adult, that business is not failing, and social causes and demands guide its growth.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, liver and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhœa, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

REV. J. H. JOLLY APPRECIATED.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Quarterly Conference, Washington (Miss.) Charge:

Whereas it has been our good pleasure to have with us in the capacity of pastor for this Conference year the Rev. J. H. Jolly, and

Whereas it is his intention to retire from the pastorate for the present to seek further educational equipment, which of necessity will end the present relation between him and us as pastor and people; therefore be it

Resolved: 1. That in Brother Jolly we have had a pastor who has been one in every sense, adorning the high office to which the Church has called him and performing its duties conscientiously and faithfully, leaving nothing to be desired and everything to praise.

2. That we thank the Great Head of the Church and his earthly servants for giving us this year of his life, for which we feel that we shall always be stronger and better servants of the King.

3. That we extend to Brother Jolly our thanks for his services, and bid him Godspeed in the great and good future which our Lord doubtless has in store for him.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of this meeting of our Quarterly Conference, that a copy be handed Rev. J. H. Jolly, and that a copy he furnished the Natchez Democrat and the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

OPPORTUNITIES IN BRAZIL.

Nictheroy is the capital of the State of Rio and lies right across the bay from the city of Rio. Thousands of merchants that have their business in the city of Rio live in Nictheroy. Its population is about 50,000. We have had a work going on in this city for over twenty years, but on account of the lack of an adequate building, as well as a man to give his whole time to the task of building up a permanent work, very little has been accomplished. Lately, however, since Dr. Entzminger's return, the work has taken on new life and is developing rapidly into a strong center. The church owns a fairly good lot in the heart of the town, and if they had the means they could put up a building that would help them greatly in the realization of their plans, the conquest of the city for Christ. At the present time they are meeting in an old storehouse transformed into a preaching hall. Though kept neat and clean, the ventilation is very poor, and when crowded, as it usually happens to be, makes it very uncomfortable. I took part in a series of meetings lately, preaching every night to a large crowd.—Missionary Solomon L. Ginsburg, Rio de Janeiro.

Editorial

Gratitude should exhale from the human soul as fragrance does from the flower. All that we have, even being itself, is the gift of the Heavenly Father. Through channels innumerable, his blessings are showered upon us every day.

* * *

It is said that George Whitefield, upon being asked if a certain person was a Christian, answered: "I do not know; I have never seen him at home." It is doubtful if one's true character stands out as clearly anywhere else as it does in the abandon of the family circle, where all masks are usually thrown aside. How do you, dear reader, appear in that sheltered sphere?

* * *

One can no more escape from a violation of the moral law of God than one can from an infraction of a physical law. The only difference is that in the one case the injury done is to the soul, to the spiritual nature of man, while in the other his body, his physical nature, suffers. In the latter case the result is usually more plainly visible, but it is not any more real than in the other. The truth is, the worst evil that can befall any human being is that which inflicts damage upon the deathless spirit that is within him. There is no wreck so awful as an immortal soul with its moral machinery in ruins.

* * *

God's first command to men is not to "GO," but to "COME." It was those who had followed him, whose minds he had enlightened and into hearts he had infused a power that was not of earth, that he sent forth to "preach" the gospel to every creature." To undertake to go forth in Christ's name before one has come to him and had one's own nature strengthened, is to attempt what can only result in failure. The cure for many a well-meaning but barren life is first to find the Lord and receive of him, and then to resume its labors. It was another Wesley who wrought amongst men after his Aldergate-Street experience.

SOME STARTLING FIGURES.

The Christian Guardian (Toronto) says:

"Last year in Michigan, with its population of about 3,000,000, and a church membership of about 1,000,000, including about 500,000 Roman Catholics, there was a total of 25,175 divorce cases pending in the courts, and of these 6637 were granted. There are few who can consider this record without wondering what the end will be. The home is evidently in most serious danger."

These figures are indeed startling and ought to awaken serious reflection. When the home is threatened civilization is menaced, for the home is the foundation of the entire social order. The amazing thing is that with the divorce evil and others of not less magnitude staring us boldly in the face, and perhaps increasing, there should be so many Christian ministers and other leading Church workers content to sing placidly their songs of optimism and pour forth spread-eagle religious platitudes. Nothing could be further from the truth than that Satan is about vanquished and that "all's well with the world." Sin in thousands of forms is raging throughout the earth to-day, and Christianity is being challenged to its very foundations in every part of the field.

What the Church needs is not "soft-livers" who, when they themselves are comfortable, are not concerned for the condition of their fellow-beings, but men and women of Christly hearts, who are ready to toil, to sacrifice, to suffer, and, if need be, to die, to rescue humanity from the clutches of evil, and to set up the kingdom of God on earth. We have in this day entirely too much of what might be termed religious "pacifism." We need to be more aggressively militant in the great spiritual warfare into which our divine Leader has called us.

Society is suffering for the want of true, spiritual Christianity. Nothing else can save it.

HOW PROHIBITION HAS RUINED LAKE CHARLES.

In their frantic attempts to stay the triumphant march of prohibition, one of the stock arguments (though it has long been worn threadbare and ought not to deceive anybody) of the advocates of the saloon is that no "dry" town or city can prosper; that to close up the barrooms is to stop the wheels of progress and usher in a reign of financial depression and hard times. The air is at present full of such lugubrious talk in New Orleans, and, judging from what we have seen in the papers, it seems also to be going on in other sections of the State. The Lake Charles American-Press, in a recent issue, touched upon these vaticinations of the liquorites and punctured this disaster bugaboo which they are so industriously parading in the following pointed and impressive manner:

"Rapides Parish is in the midst of a license and anti-license fight, and from letters reaching the American-Press it appears that Lake Charles is suffering from the misrepresentations of one of the contending factions. Since the saloons were banished from its midst, Lake Charles has grown faster in population, in new homes and business buildings, in savings bank deposits and in building and loan association activity, than ever before in its history. The public welfare has never been so well safeguarded nor public improvements so numerous. Prohibition has 'ruined Lake Charles' by giving it a score of new business blocks and upward of a thousand new residences in the course of seven years, all of which are tenanted. The population of the city has almost doubled. The city has acquired a sewerage system costing $160,000, a new city hall, fire stations and equipment costing $110,000, and innumerable miles of concrete sidewalks, under its devastating hand. The schools have been 'cut to pieces' by the completion of four modern grammar schools at a cost exceeding $150,000, and provision for a high school to cost $125,000; by provision of a full nine months' school term for both white and colored children, and by providing twice as many teachers and education for more than twice as many children as there were seven years ago. In the opinion of most Lake Charles people, they can pay all the new direct taxes out of the indirect tax they formerly paid the saloons, and have a comfortable balance to their credit. To retain saloons for the revenue they pay would be as sensible as to compel every family in Lake Charles to buy an automobile in order to collect a $10 license fee from each owner for the benefit of the city."

IS LEPROSY ABOUT TO BE CONQUERED?

From time immemorial leprosy has been regarded as perhaps the most incurable of all diseases, but the United States Government physicians have been studying this malady in the Philippines for a number of years and they are beginning to cherish the hope that modern science is about to triumph over it. At first experiments were made with the X-ray treatment and the patients grew quickly better and some of them were thought to be cured, but later the disease returned in these cases and the hope that had been indulged was destroyed.

The latest remedy that is being used is chaulmoogra oil, which is said to have "given the most consistent favorable results." Of this treatment, The Outlook, in a recent issue, says: "Chaulmoogra oil has been used with more or less success for many years in various parts of the world, but it was found that the continued use of the oil produced so much nausea that it was impracticable for all but a very few. Experiments were then begun, and it was found that when the oil was mixed in certain proportions with camphor and resorcin it could be given hypodermically without causing nausea. This new treatment was begun in 1911, and has produced more encouraging results than any heretofore reported. For instance, we find in the United States Public Health Reports of September 5, 1913, and January 2, 1914, records of four cures; and in the report of October 16, 1914, is given an account of 12 cases under treatment with the following results:

"Apparent cures, 11.11 per cent; apparent clinical recoveries, 11.14 per cent; showing marked improvement, 33.33 per cent; showing only slight evidence of improvement, 11.11 per cent."

Dr. Victor G. Heiser, who until recently was in the Government service in the Philippines, thus sums up the conclusion warranted by this continued experimentation: "This treatment is apparently passing out of the experimental stage, and it may be stated with reasonable certainty that it arrests the disease regardless of its type or duration in almost every instance, and in many cases has effected permanent cures."

God does not always grant our prayers. He is too merciful for that; but He always answers them—with Himself.—Michael Word.

SUPERANNUATED.

The last word had just been spoken, and the Conference stood adjourned,
And a host of worthy preachers toward their homes their footsteps turned.
Some were young and strong, and anxious to be on the firing line;
Some had won their honors fairly, and were sent to stations fine;
Just a few were disappointed, in that busy, rushing throng;
They were silent, while the others passed with eager haste along.

In the rear with steady measure walked a man with silver hair.
He had been a "faithful servant," faithful both in work and prayer;
But the years that pressed upon him cooled the blood and quenched the fire,
So the district superintendent told him that he must retire;
So he turns without appointment, the first time in forty years;
He had crossed the dreaded dead line, that the aged pastor fears.

No more work for this old soldier; he must tarry with the "stuff,"
While the strong press on to battle—he will find it hard enough.
He would rather die in harness than to thus be put aside,
In the midst of some great conflict, where the battle-tide rolls wide.
In the rear must he his station, never at the battle's brunt,
For the message had been sounded, he's not wanted at the front.

This old warrior built the churches where the people worship now,
And amid privations many kept his consecration vow;
And he sowed the seed of promise in hard fields, with pain and tears,
Where the reapers with rejoicing get the harvest of the years;
But he now is most forgotten, almost lost amid the throng;
No one sings of his achievements, some new hero gets the song.

In the Sunday School Convention he's not asked to speak or pray,
For they need no "worn-out preachers" in convention halls to-day;
When the Epworth League assembles he's not asked his views to state;
He did well in some past era; now, of course, he's out-of-date.
In his Conference he is silent, scarcely ever takes the floor;
For the brethren more progressive say, "We've heard all that before."

We are passing on, my brothers, to the place he holds to-day,
For unless we are translated, we will surely pass that way;
Learn to watch the younger pastors take the places we must yield,
Wait with patience without orders on the Church's battlefield;
Wait till from the opening heavens comes the summons all obey,
And to all the aged servants this will prove a glorious day.

If you have a gray-haired pastor, brother, sitting in your pew,
Treat him kindly, as another may on some day care for you;
Listen to the words of counsel he will gladly oft bestow,
And he'll love you like a brother, and he'll bless you as you go
Out to where the battle rages, where the enemy is strong;
He will cheer you as you battle with the mighty hosts of wrong.

Soon his eye will see the limit of his little earthly day,
Soon the soldier full of honors will go up the shining way;
Then a host will meet this vet'ran, his co-workers in his time,
And a shout will ring through heaven, for the scene will be sublime:
For the "worn-out preacher" reaches all his heart has ever craved—
Home and friends, and joy, and heaven, souls that he on earth had saved.

PALMETTO LETTER.

By Rev. S. A. Steel, D. D.

I was told once of a modern Solomon. Some turkeys had been stolen, and when the owner claimed them, the person in whose yard they were found insisted that the turkeys belonged there. The matter was taken to court. The judge could not decide from the evidence to whom the turkeys belonged. So he proposed that the turkeys should be taken away from the house where they were found, turned loose, and watched when night came on. As the shades of evening fell, they sauntered straight back to their old roost, and the judge wisely decided that the turkeys knew where they belonged, and restored them to their rightful owner. The old saying is true, "Chickens come home to roost."

And there is a lot of profound philosophy in that proverb. It is finding some striking and embarrassing illustrations in the current events of today. At many points England has defended her naval programme by quoting the precedents set by this nation in the war for the Union. And they are undeniable. It is only a case of chickens coming home to roost. Now we have another case in Mr. Dixon's moving picture drama, "The Birth of a Nation." I have just read the scathing censure of the play by the editor of the Epworth Herald. He condemns the exhibition as unjust to the negro and as calculated to stir up race hatred. I am a pretty close reader of a number of Northern journals, and I do not recall a single disapproval of the presentation of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." That play is unjust to the Southern white man and calculated to stir up race hatred; but it is given throughout the North without protest, and while notoriously untrue as a picture of slavery, it is accepted by the youth of the North as history. Now this "Birth of a Nation" is only Mrs. Stowe's chickens come home to roost. And as long as the North teaches history by "Uncle Tom's Cabin," it is sure that history will be taught by "The Birth of a Nation." I simply want even justice. There is not a single reason to object to "The Birth of a Nation" that does not apply with equal force, and even greater, against "Uncle Tom's Cabin." I say even greater reason can be given against showing "Uncle Tom's Cabin" than against "The Birth of a Nation," because "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was a deliberate and successful attempt to stir up sectional hatred to the point of revolution, perpetrated in a time of peace, and against a people who had committed no crime; while "The Birth of a Nation" is a truthful portrayal of the actual horrors of the reconstruction programme of the North. Of course, there are many good-natured people who say that both these blood-curdling plays ought to be relegated to oblivion. That may be true; the fact is, I would be glad to know that the Devil himself had been suppressed. But my point is that as long as the youth of America are taught about slavery by "Uncle Tom's Cabin," they will be taught about reconstruction by "The Birth of a Nation." And if the North is really in earnest about fraternity, and wants to "let the dead past burry its dead," let them put a stop to the libelous story of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Until they do, "The Birth of a Nation" is only a case of chickens coming home to roost. From another angle, it is seen to be only reaping what was sown.

We have just had a two weeks' course of lectures on Applied Psychology and Vital Christianity by Dr. Newton N. Riddell, of Chicago. Though under the auspices of the General Pastors' Association, the lectures were delivered in my church, it being the largest auditorium available. For two weeks we have been listening to profound discussions of the fundamental truths of Christianity by a man who reminds me more of our wonderful Munsey than any other man. Theology, philosophy, science, poetry, the whole thing rolled into one, was handed out to us night after night, and deep as it was, people crowded to hear it. The rational bases of religious belief is a favorite subject with me, and Dr. Riddell laid bare the foundations of evangelical faith, and made the religion of Jesus Christ appear in a new light to many. My, my, suppose one could have heard Munsey one night, and Riddell the next! However high the one might soar, the other would be seen on level wing of fire ascending still higher, and both losing themselves in the infinite. Well, Meek, I haven't lost my liking for that sort of speaking; have you? Yes, sir, I like for an orator to rise and lift me with him; and when thought is embellished with such splendid imagery as characterized much of Dr. Riddell's speech, it is a feast, indeed. We don't hear enough of that sort of oratory now. The ideal of both the pulpit and platform seems to be the style of the shop. Oh, to listen to a skyward flight of Kavanaugh, or be swept far forward by a tidal wave of sacred eloquence like that of Doggett, or Marvin in his prime!

I took a saucer of ice-cream to celebrate the defeat of woman suffrage in New York, etc. Meek, the sisters can carry that thing too far. Mr. Jones came to see Judge Smith, and told him he wanted him to help him get a divorce. The Judge, being an old family friend, was greatly distressed to learn that there was serious trouble in the home. "What is the matter," he asked. "Well, Judge, my wife is a member of the Monday before-breakfast whist club, and the Tuesday after-dinner bridge club, and the Wednesday so and so, and the Thursday and Friday clubs, and I can't stand it." "It looks like you are in hard luck, my friend," was the Judge's kindly reply; "but don't break up your home. Let us see if we can't harmonize matters." "It is no use trying, Judge," was Jones' despairing answer. "I might stand all that but when it comes to putting pink ribbon on my pajamas to fool the baby, its time to quit." I think so, too. After reading the masterly papers that have appeared in The New York Times on various phases of the woman suffrage, when I am asked why I oppose it, I put the whole in a nutshell, and say I oppose woman suffrage because I am opposed to sterilizing the home. The weakness in the pajama joke is that under the influence of feminism there will soon be no baby to fool. The woman who looks after politics will have neither time nor inclination to look after the baby. I am on the side of baby.

I congratulate you, and the Advocate readers more, on your continuance as editor. Give it to us, Meek, hot and free. "Long may you wave and never waver!"

ORGANIZATION AND MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

By Mrs. Vic T. Hoyle, Conference President.

My heart is singing praises to God over the success our Organization and Membership Campaign has already attained in our Conference. The dear women have been so willing to help when told how they could, and our presiding elders have entered so heartily into our plans; while our collections for the first half-year of 1915 have been $1000 over and above the collections for one-half year in 1914. Our annual meeting was held early in the year, and we recommended a concerted action among District Secretaries by way of holding their District Conferences as early as possible. Plans for our campaign were inaugurated about June 1, and embraced the following items:

First: That volunteer women be called for at each District Conference and work assigned to them.

Second: That each presiding elder be requested to appoint Woman's Day in his District, and request his preachers to present our woman's work to their congregations upon that day.

Third: That all-day missionary rallies be held in each district.

After three months I note:

First: That we have secured volunteer women on an average of 20 to each of five districts, while a number have been enlisted in the other three districts. That means that we have over one hundred volunteer women, who are now occupied with organizing societies at the churches nearest to them, or canvassing for new members in societies already organized.

Every week brings to me news of good results from these volunteer workers, and there has been reported on an average of four new societies to six of our districts, while several have been reported from the other two districts. Our First Vice President reports seven new Young People's Societies in the Conference, and the Second Vice President reports nine Junior Divisions. However, we are now in the midst of our work, and full returns will not be obtained till the close of the year.

Second: We note that every presiding elder in our Conference has appointed Woman's Day in his district, and addressed letters to preachers requesting them to present our woman's work at the 11 o'clock service on that day, or invite some one of our representatives to do so. Splendid results are coming to me daily from the observance of this day. One District Secretary writes: "Our pastor preached a splendid sermon on Woman's Day. Only wish every woman in our Church could hear such a one. One woman who had resisted our appeals for six years came to me afterwards and told me she was converted through and through."..... Another one writes: "After the splendid sermon by our pastor on Woman's Day, we organized a Young People's Society in our Church that afternoon, and on the following Monday the attendance and membership at our adult society was doubled."..... I feel that it is the dawn of a new era in the history of our woman's work in the North Mississippi Conference. You know the great majority of our women will not attend our missionary societies, and consequently must be taken unawares. I see great good to result from having our preachers present our work to their congregations at the 11 o'clock service on Sunday and emphasize the obligation that rests upon every woman, young person and child in the Methodist Church to become members of the missionary society.

Third: We note splendid results from an all-day missionary rally held at Amory, in Aberdeen District, on August 6. The main features of the program were praise and testimony services, and reports from volunteer workers. Six new societies were reported, and additional volunteer workers secured, while much enthusiasm and interest prevailed. Dinner was served in the dining-room of the elegant new church in which we met to over 200 guests, while the auditorium of the church was filled for the services. Two new Junior Divisions have been organized as a direct result of this meeting. Plans are being made to hold similar meetings in the other districts of the Conference, and I believe great things will be accomplished through this general rallying of our forces in these all-day meetings.

Fourth: I have inaugurated a "Race Among District Secretaries," and the July and August numbers of our Conference Bulletin were campaign numbers, containing news of the progress of the campaign, as reported to me by the District Secretaries. I have also had this same news published on our page in the New Orleans Christian Advocate, which reaches so many more people than our Conference Bulletin. We have a most excellent corps of District Secretaries, who have entered heart and soul into our campaign, and God is blessing them abundantly. Each week brings to my desk letters filled with reports of their work and praises to God for the presence and power of his Holy Spirit. I have myself assisted in four district conferences, one all-day rally, and presented our work on Woman's Day in one church, while I have plans for organizing at several churches during the fall.

The Mississippi Conference.

By Rev. O. S. Lewis.

Wednesday's Session.

The 102d session of the Mississippi Annual Conference convened in Laurel, Miss., Nov. 24, 1915. This Conference has assembled in more historic places, such as Natchez, Vicksburg, and Columbia, but not in a more thriving and enterprising place. This is the second time Laurel has entertained the Mississippi Conference, but it is a new and different Laurel now as compared with the little town in which the Conference met nine years ago. A complete metamorphosis has taken place, so that the resemblance of the new Laurel to the old is similar to that of the butterfly to its former state. One looks in vain for the public buildings he saw a few years ago, while in their places are new, larger and more modern structures. It awakens amazement to behold such a wonderful and rapid growth.

Laurel is a leader in many enterprises, especially in the lumber industry, there being four large sawmills in the city. While growing in population and making such notable industrial development, the city is not lagging religiously. The Churches are alive, active, and are keeping pace with other things in their progress. Laurel points with pardonable pride to her $60,000 handsome and fully equipped Y. M. C. A. building—the best, by far, in the State.

Under the efficient leadership of its popular and energetic pastor, Rev. J. L. Neill, the First Methodist Church has been in the forefront of progress. This pastor and people, with the help of Brothers Baggett and Fikes, the other two Methodist pastors in the city, left nothing undone in making provision for the entertainment of their guests. All the preaches and delegates were met at the trains by reception committees who quickly arranged for the conveyance of the brethren to the hospitable homes to which they had been assigned.

The unstinted hospitality and gracious courtesies of the good people of Laurel, of all denominations, will linger long as a pleasant memory. May God abundantly bless the homes opened to the preachers with His peace and salvation!

The Conference opened Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, with Bishop Atkins in the chair. This is the first time Bishop Atkins has held this Conference. All the brethren seem greatly pleased with his able and wise administration. He truly magnifies his office, using his position in the Church for the glory of God and the salvation of souls.

After the singing of the first hymn No. 19, the sacramental service was held, being administered by Revs. H. W. Featherstun, G. H. Galloway, W. H. LaPrade, and J. R. Jones. The Bishop then announced hymn 312. After this hymn was sung, the Secretary of the last Conference, Dr. A. F. Watkins, called the roll. For many years the first name called has been that of R. A. Sibley, Sr. He passed to his reward during the year. For the last time in the roll call of an Annual Conference has his honored name been called. One by one the veterans of the cross are gathering to their long home. Three others have passed on to Glory during the year, and all hearts are sad when we reflect that we can no more look on their faces on earth, nor hear them answer to the Conference roll call. Their names are W. C. Black, D. D., J. S. Parker, and G. A. Guice.

A. F. Watkins was unanimously elected Secretary, with G. S. Harmon and J. A. Moore as assistants. J. L. Neill, G. P. McKeown, and J. L. Decell were elected Statistical Secretaries.

Following the organization of the Conference the following ministers and laymen were introduced: Rev. Geo. D. Booth, pastor of the local Presbyterian Church; W. C. Arnold, Secretary of the Laurel Young Men's Christian Association; R. A. Meek, Editor, and C. O. Chalmers, Publisher, of the New Orleans Christian Advocate; J. A. Bowen, Conference Evangelist for the North Alabama Conference; J. B. Randolph, Manager of the Orphans' Home; A. L. Dietrich, Divisional Superintendent for this division of our Sunday school work; Geo. H. Crowell, representing the Southern Assembly at Waynesboro; W. J. Young, professor in the Candler School of Theology; J. S. Frazer, Commissioner for Emory University, and Mr. McNish, of the Methodist Publishing House at Nashville.

R. H. Barr presented the Bishop with a gavel made from a wild plum tree grown on the ground where the third session of the Mississippi Annual Conference was held 100 years ago, at Adams Camp Ground. Bishop Atkins made a very graceful speech of acceptance.

He said, however, he had little use for a gavel in his presiding, as he had had no trouble in securing order from a body of Methodist preachers.

A very interesting and encouraging report of the Seashore Divinity School was read by C. W. Crisler.

Question 22 was called. Bishop Atkins gave some advice to the preachers concerning the manner of making their reports. The presiding elders reported as follows:

Robt. Selby—Brookhaven District.

Between 600 and 800 accessions; 150 adults and 300 infant baptized. Several churches built. One pastor's health failed. Finances better than last year. Sunday schools doing better work.

G. H. Thompson—Hattiesburg District.

Five hundred conversions; 450 received by vows; 150 by certificate; 70 per cent of the Conference collections paid, most of the pastors paid in full; 3 new churches built, some repaired. Sunday schools thriving. Pastors have been faithful.

P. D. Hardin—Jackson District.

Good revivals; 500 received on profession; 900 from all sources. Several new Sunday school organized; 9 charges paid in full—a larger number than last year—10 others made a better showing than last year. Galloway Memorial Church now completed.

J. T. Leggett—Meridian District.

Fairly successful year. Splendid revivals, following well laid plans, 1500 conversions; 900 accessions. Increase in Sunday schools. Finances about the same as last year.

C. F. Emery—Newton District.

Finances ahead of last year. Brethren faithful and did good work. Splendid revivals. Three new churches.

T. W. Adams—Port Gibson District.

Unusually good year spiritually. Net gain of 250 in spite of decrease in population of district; 3 Sunday school institutes held during the year. Finances good—marked advance over recent preceding years.

W. H. Huntley—Seashore District.

Several debts on churches paid; 500 or 600 accessions. Preachers faithful. Collections compare favorably with last year.

The reports of the preachers in the Brookhaven District were gratifying. W. N. Thomas, B. L. Sutherland, C. A. Schultz, and J. H. Moore made their reports and were elected to elder's orders.

Reports of the preachers of the Meridian District were encouraging. W. B. Hogg, pastor of East End, Meridian, stated that his congregation was ready to begin erecting a new church.

The reports of the preachers of the Hattiesburg District showed that good work had been done by these brethren. The hour for adjournment having arrived, announcements were made, the doxology was sung, and the benediction was pronounced.

Wednesday Evening.

The Sunday School Board had charge of the services Wednesday evening and presented one of the best and most inspiring programs ever given on such an occasion. An illuminating and helpful talk on the work of the Sunday school in its various departments was made by Mr. A. L. Dietrich. His address was followed by a masterly address on the Sunday School by Bishop Atkins. He made it clear that no efficient pastor could or would neglect this great field with its wide open doors of opportunity. No douht a larger interest in Sunday school work will be taken by many as a result of this forceful talk.

Mr. Geo. H. Crowell presented some views of Lake Junaluska and the surrounding country, and spoke of the beauties and advantages of the place. A packed house greeted the speakers of the evening and rapt attention was given.

One feature of the evening was the rendition of a beautiful quartet song by four of the young men of Laurel.

The Second Day—Thursday Morning.

The Conference was called to order at 8:45 a. m. Rev. C. F. Emery conducted the devotional exercises, announcing No. 556 as the first hymn. After leading in prayer, he read the 12th Chapter of Romans. Following the singing of No. 334, the Secretary read the minutes of the previous day. After the roll call, Question 22 was resumed. Rev. M. M. Black, reporting from Canton, stated that the parsonage was destroyed by fire during the year. The pastor lost his entire library, while the presiding elder lost his pocket book at the same time. Brother Hardin stated that he had very little in his purse (a superfluous statement for a Methodist preacher to make).

W. B. Waldrop was elected to elder's orders. Dr. A. F. Watkins made his report of the work at Millsaps College, which showed a very gratifying condition at that great institution. He emphasized three great needs—a dormitory, a chair of Bible Instruction, and a gymnasium adequately equipped and in charge of an athletic trainer. Forty children of preachers are in the college. There are only 15 preachers preparing for the ministry at Millsaps. By all means, there should be more in attendance. There is no better training school for entering Conference.

Following Dr. Watkins' report, Bishop Atkins made some timely remarks on the importance of young preachers taking advantage of a college education, saying the time to get them ready to assume responsibilities without College training.

Dr. Crowell, active Vice President of the Southern Assembly, was introduced and spoke of that great undertaking of our Church, setting forth in glowing terms the beauty, advantages and brilliant prospects of the Assembly Grounds at Lake Junaluska. His remarks were endorsed by Bishop Atkins.

The name of R. H. Selby was called and at his own request he was discontinued. C. J. Stapp was also discontinued at his own request, and his credentials were surrendered.

R. Selby, presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, presented the application of T. B. Clifford for the restoration of his credentials, but before action could be taken, the appointed hour having arrived, the Conference adjourned for the Thanksgiving service.

The Thanksgiving sermon was preached by Bishop Atkins, an immense congregation being present to hear him. The text was the 1st and 2d verses of the 32d Chapter of Isaiah. The Bishop took issue with Dr. George Adam Smith, who had interpreted this passage as not being a Messianic prophecy. Bishop Atkins said there was no greater Christologic prophecy in the Old Testament, the text being primarily spoken as a prophecy concerning Jesus Christ. No Jewish kingdom was ever like the one here described. Failure to give Christ the place that belongs to him has caused all the ruin of the world, and is causing the great ruin of to-day.

The Bishop brought a terrific charge against Rationalism as being at the bottom of the great European war, for which there is no justification. He spoke of Rationalism as being the most deadly and irresistible form of infidelity. It has carried on an aggressive propaganda, poisoning the minds of men with its deadly affection. He brought out the distinction between the agnostic and the rationalist—the agnostic being a know-nothing—an atheist turned coward. The rationalist is a courageous and aggressive atheist. Materialism is the first logical offspring of Rationalism. Militarism is the next offspring. Rationalism through materialism calls for a gun. Every secret of God in nature discovered by man is being consecrated to war.

The Bishop said he believed that when Rationalism has reaped the fruit of its own doing God will stop the war. There is a state of diabolism growing out of Rationalism and its fruits, materialism and militarism, that is harrowing.

The Bishop then spoke of the beneficent influence of the reign of Christ when allowed to hold sway in the affairs of men and nations, and pointed out the secondary meaning of the text, that any man can be as "a shadow of a great rock in a weary land" if he is like Christ, and in proportions as he is like Him.

Gratitude was expressed for the greatness of our own nation with its lofty and unselfish ideals, and the fact that we have as our President a man of God, controlled by the spirit of Christ.

From every standpoint the sermon was a great one and stirred us all to higher appreciation of our blessings and opportunities, and to a greater determination to exalt Christ and make Him supreme in all life.

The offering taken upon this occasion was for the Orphans' Home at Jackson.

Thursday Evening.

Thursday evining was given over to the Missionary Anniversary. Dr. W. H. LaPrade presided. "From Greenland's Icy Mountain" was sung by the congregation, after which C. W. Crisler led in prayer. "The Whole Wide World for Jesus" was then sung by a male quartet. Dr. J. M. Sullivan, professor at Millsaps College, read as a Scripture lesson the first chapter of Acts. After the singing of 631, Dr. E. H. Rawlings, General Secretary of the Laymen's Movement, was introduced and made a stirring appeal for China. He said that to make the Church missionary we must train through the Sunday school. He explained the new course of missionary study that is planned to be used in the Sunday school. He stated that the superintendent was the key to the situation in making the Sunday school missionary, while the pastor is the man to turn the key. He closed his great address by an appeal for intercessory prayer, giving graphic illustrations as to its prevailing power.

Third Day—Friday Morning.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. I. W. Cooper, President of Whitworth College. After the singing of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," Dr. Cooper led in prayer and read the fifth chapter of Matthew. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous session. The matter of restoring the credentials of T. B. Clifford was brought up and it was announced that he had withdrawn the application, Bishop Atkins stating that he had given him a certificate signifying that he was a local preacher in our Church, it being the purpose of Brother Clifford to enter the Protestant Episcopal Church and ministry.

Question 22 was resumed and J. W. Chisholm made his report. Brother G. H. Thompson reported the sad news of the death of Rev. H. R. Caldwell the night before at his home in Mount Olive. Later on a motion was made and unanimously adopted that the Secretary be instructed to send a telegram of condolence to Sister H. R. Caldwell. A motion was also made and adopted that a similar telegram be sent to Rev. R. T. Pickett, of the Escatawpa charge, whose home had been bereaved the night before by the death of his two-year-old baby. The brethren deeply sympathize with those who have lost their loved ones, and in whose homes there has been serious sickness during the year.

Bishop Atkins called H. H. Ahrens to the rostrom and referred to the fact that this gifted correspondent of the New Orleans Times-Picayune was a local Methodist preacher, the son of a Methodist preacher, and that for years he had been faithfully and accurately reporting the Conference proceedings, and that he knew Methodist terminology better than any other reporter. He then very feelingly referred to the fact that, although this was the twenty-fifth anniversary of his marriage, he had denied himself the pleasure of celebrating the event in his home, and had stayed at his post of duty. The following resolution was unanimously and heartily adopted by a rising vote:

"Whereas our brother, H. H. Ahrens, a journalist of New Orleans, La., does so accurately and fully report the work of the Mississippi Conference and other Conferences for the New Orleans Times-Picayune, and

"Whereas to-day is the twenty-fifth anniversary of his marriage, and as he has foregone the pleasure of celebrating his silver wedding at home with his good wife in order to remain at his post of duty; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we express our appreciation of Mr. Ahrens and his work; and

"Resolved further, That we most heartily congratulate him and his wife upon this their twenty-fifth marriage anniversary, and do pray the blessings of our Heavenly Father to ever rest upon them and theirs, and that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Conference." Signed by I. W. Cooper, G. P. McKeown, H. B. Watkins, and J. L. Decell.

A resolution presented by the Joint Board of Finance to increase the assessment for Conference Claimants by $1000 was read and adopted.

Question 22 was resumed and the charges in the Newton District reported, the rural charges showing improvement. In the report from Laurel it was shown that Jones County was second in population in the State, and that there were only six Methodist churches in the county outside of Laurel.

Honorable locations were granted A. H. Steele, W. H. Young, and W. G. Roberts. E. H. Cooley was elected to elder's orders.

J. S. Purcell made a fine report for the Montrose School, stating that that institution was getting nearer his ideal of what it should be. He stressed the need of cottages to make room for young preachers who desire to attend the school at a small cost.

W. J. Ferguson was elected to fill a vacancy on the Joint Board of Finance. H. J. Moore was elected to fill a vacancy on the Board of Church Extension.

A communication was read to the Conference from Dr. H. M. Du Bose, the newly-elected Book Editor and a former member of this Conference, expressing regret at not being able to attend the Conference.

Dr. Watkins read the report of the Hospital Commissioners.

J. R. Jolly made a fine report of his work. He will go to the Candler School of Theology the coming year.

On account of illness, Brother T. J. O'Neil was not able to attend the Conference and make his report. Dr. H. W. Featherstun made a fine report for him and the work he is doing as President of Port Gibson Female Institute. The fine religious condition was indeed encouraging.

L. Fayard's report of the Wolf River Mission was intensely interesting. H. W. Van Hook, President, reported a larger attendance at the Seashore Campground School and told of the good work being done. The moral and rellgious condition is good.

Dr. A. F. Watkins arose to a question of privilege and presented Dr. I. W. Cooper, who, in his characteristic, happy way, presented a beautiful silver pitcher to Bishop Atkins in the name of the brethren of the Conference, assuring him that though he had come to this Conference a perfect stranger, he had won the love and high esteem of all. The Bishop responded, saying that while he was thankful for the pitcher, he appreciated more their love. "Blest be the tie that binds" was then sung. Another interesting feature followed this happy one, when Dr. Cooper presented to H. H. Ahrens a silver tea set in the name of the brethren in token of their love for him and in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his marriage. Brother Ahrens was manifestly overcome with emotion as he expressed his great appreciation.

Rev. J. L. Green, Superintendent of the Mississippi Society for Homeless Children, Dr. T. J. Bailey, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and Rev. Fred Ling were introduced to the Conference.

Rev. C. F. Emery made an appeal in behalf of A. H. Steele, who had been located, and was in need. An offering amounting to about $160 was made by the preachers in the old style of bringing it up and laying it on the table.

Following the announcements, the Conference adjourned.

Friday Evening.

The anniversary of the Board of Education was held on Friday night. Hymn 41 was sung and Dr. Cooper led in prayer. An effective solo was sung by S. E. Kirby. After Hymn 712 was sung, W. H. Lewis, President of the Board of Education, made a statement about the work of the Board. Bishop Atkins then introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. J. S. Frazer, who made a masterly address on Christian Education, concluding with an appeal in behalf of Emory University.

Fourth Day—Saturday Morning.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. Geo. H. Crowell, active Vice-President of the Southern Assembly. "Blest Be the Tie that Binds" was sung. The Scripture lesson was the 23d Psalm. "Nearer, My God, to Thee" was then sung. The Secretary read the minutes of the previous session.

Report No. 1 of the Board of Missions was read and adopted. It recommended the appointment of Rev. J. L. Neill to the position of Field Secretary of Missions and Sunday Schools.

Question 1—Who are admitted on trial?—was asked. Clauce P. Jones, son of Rev. J. R. Jones; Carl Jackson, and J. B. Cain were admitted. The first two are from the Meridian District; the last from the Seashore. J. M. Griffing and C. A. Massey were elected to local deacon's orders.

The names of the following superannuated preachers were called, their characters passed, and they were continued in the same relation, reports being heard from those present: Revs. Ira B. Robertson, J. R. Evans, W. W. Simmons, J. W. Brown, J. T. Nicholson, L. J. Jones, W. W. Cammack, H. P. Lewis, Sr., G. W. Hunt, G. R. Ellis, L. Carley, R. Bradley, C. M. Martin, C. T. Noble, J. M. Massey, R. L. Phillips, W. D. Dominick, C. H. Ellis, E. H. Mounger, R. F. Witt.

The names of F. L. Applewhite, O. G. Halliburton and M. L. Burton were referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for the supernumerary relation.

Revs. G. A. Klein, evangelist; W. W. Holmes, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, and F. S. Parker, D.D., general secretary of the Epworth League, were introduced to the Conference.

R. Selby stated that funds were needed to enable a certain young preacher to attend school at Millsaps College. Dr. Cooper took a collection for the purpose. It was suggested by H. B. Watkins that a general fund of not less than $500 be raised to be used for helping several young preachers; $583 was raised. May God speed the day when adequate funds will be available for helping worthy young preachers to secure an education! The Presbyterians and Baptists have done better than we along that line. This fund was placed in the hands of the Board of Education for administration.

The following were called to the chancel rail, addressed by the Bishop, and, after answering the disciplinary questions satisfactorily, by vote of the Conference were admitted into full connection: G. P. Fikes, E. H. Cooley, P. H. Grice, C. H. Strait, W. E. Harrison.

J. S. Duke was re-admitted by a vote of the Conference.

Dr. H. W. Featherstun read the report on Temperance. Pending its adoption, Dr. T. J. Bailey, Superintendent of the Mississippi Anti-Saloon League, addressed the Conference. Bishop Atkins made some telling remarks on the subject. The report was adopted.

C. W. Crisler submitted a resolution to memorialize the next Legislature to take such action as will provide for the submission to the people of Mississippi the question of an amendment of the State Constitution by the elimination of Sections 269 and 270, which provides that all devices of real estate and all gifts of money to churches be declared null and void. The measure passed unanimously. A. F. Watkins, C. W. Crisler, D. W. Hel-delberg, J. R. Jones, and J. H. Howie were appointed as a legislative committee.

Dr. W. G. Henry, the pastor, nominated the newly-completed and commodious Galloway Memorial Church, Jackson, as the place for holding the next session of the Annual Conference. He was ably seconded by W. H. Lewis, pastor of the Capitol Street Church of Jackson. Brother Henry stated that all the wives of preachers were invited to come to Jackson to attend the Conference, there being room for all. Needless to say, the brethren unanimously accepted such a generous invitation, voting heartily to hold the next Conference at Jackson.

The report of the special committee on the Methodist Hospital was read by W. D. Davis. H. M. Ellis, field secretary for the hospital, addressed the Conference pending the adoption of the report, telling of the crowded conditions in other hospitals in Memphis, and of many Methodists being in them. He spoke of the urgent need of additions to our hospital. Bishop Atkins also made an appeal for a loyal support of this great work, calling attention to the great loss to our Church because of its failure to provide hospitals. The report was adopted.

In the report from the Orphans' Home it was noted that there had been no death, nor serious sickness then during the year. With but few exceptions all over ten years of age are members of the Church.

M. L. Burton and S. J. Taylor were elected to succeed themselves on the Board of Directors.

A resolution to set aside one Sunday a month in which to make collections for the Orphans' Home was read and adopted.

Following the announcements, the Conference adjourned to meet in Memorial session Sunday at 3 p.m.

Saturday Evening.

"A shotgun anniversary" was the characterization that some one gave to the services on Saturday evening. Little, big, and many were the shots used. They scattered well, so that nobody failed to be interested in some part of the program. The cause of Church Extension had a claim on the evening, but as Dr. McMurry, the big gun, failed to arrive, and therefore his speech could not come forth, the evening was shared with the cause of the Orphans' Home and that of the Methodist Hospital. W. M. Williams made a good beginning on the cause of Church Extension, and wound up beautifully on the Orphans' Home, a cause still on his heart. He very ably presented his successor in the work, J. B. Randolph, who explained the workings and needs of the Orphans' Home and made an appeal for the hearty co-operation of the brethren. The new manager bids fair to make good.

H. M. Ellis was the last speaker. It was Saturday night, and getting late, but he held the crowd in church, kept them awake and made a favorable impression, which he hopes may be converted into cash that will help to complete a badly needed hospital. Appeals were thus made for the needy churches, needy orphans and the needy sick. May God help the people to respond to these needs!

Sunday Morning.

The Conference Love Feast was held in the First Methodist Church, being conducted by Rev. M. L. Burton. The service was an occasion for spiritual refreshment and enjoyment.

Bishop Atkins preached at the 11 o'clock hour. His Scripture lesson was a part of the 10th chapter of St. Luke, describing the mission of the Seventy. John 7:37 was the text: "If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink." In the introduction, the Bishop called attention (1) to the situation—a feast of the Jews, the last day; (2) the marks of the divinity of our Lord, making a claim that would brand Jesus as the supremo egotist of the ages if he were not the Son of God; (3) the great doctrinal value, setting forth the Arminian doctrine of man's free will; (4) its simplicity.

Setting forth the proposition that thirst is an indication of a primal, constitutional need, and showing how necessary water is to sustain life, the Bishop spoke of the abnormal artificial thirsts that mankind has developed, such as thirst for strong drink; a perverted love of money, a greater evil than drink; fictitious appetite for power or fame. "All artificial thirsts lead inevitably to a false life."

He then spoke of the true thirst—divinely implanted. (1) The thirst for God, which is universal. (2) A thirst for holiness, the greatest of all doctrines. (3) A thirst for fellowship. The sermon was intensely practical, convincing, and powerful in its appeal for more effective service in our ministry.

After the sermon the following were ordained deacons: G. P. Fikes, E. H. Cooley, P. H. Grice, J. M. Griffing, C. A. Massey.

Sunday, 3 p. m.

The memorial service was held at 3 p.m., Sunday, being conducted by the Chairman of the Committee on Memoirs, W. H. Lewis. The choir sang as a voluntary "Crossing the Bar." The hymn, "Come Ye Disconsolate," was sung by the congregation. R. Bradley led in prayer, and the Lewis Brothers Quartette sang "The Rest Beyond." B. F. Jones read the Scripture lesson. In answer to the question, What preachers have died during the year? the Secretary read the names of J. S. Parker, W. C. Black, G. A. Guice, R. A. Sibley, and H. R. Caldwell, a grand company of men.

C. W. Crisler read the memorial of J. S. Parker, which had been prepared by G. H. Thompson. The memoir of W. C. Black, prepared by Dr. H. M. DuBose, was read by T. B. Holloman. W. H. Huntley wrote the memoir of G. A. Guice, which was read by J. R. Jones. W. M. Sullivan prepared and read the memoir of R. A. Sibley. W. M. Williams had not had time to prepare a memoir of H. R. Caldwell, whose death occurred during Conference, but read a short statement concerning him. The complete memoir will be published in the Conference Journal. A number of the brethren paid beautiful tributes to the memory of the departed brethren.

Sunday Evening.

The Sunday evening service reached the high-tide of the Conference. It was good to be there to hear Dr. W. J. Young deliver a powerful message from the text, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him."

Rev. C. F. Emery conducted the devotional exercises. An interesting feature of the service was a beautiful quartette sung by four sisters: Mesdames Leo H. Martin, T. S. McWilliams, and Misses Bessie and Elise Cook—all daughters of the late Dr. I. H. C. Cook of Hattiesburg.

In the outset, Dr. Young said he purposed to take our minds to the sublime heights of Christian experience. He more than realized that purpose. From every viewpoint it was a glorious message, and a fitting climax to the series of messages already heard.

Following the sermon the ordination of elders took place. Bishop Atkins, assisted by some of the elders, ordained the following: B. L. Sutherland, W. N. Thomas, C. A. Schultz, W. B. Waldrop, J. H. Moore.

Monday Morning—Sixth Day.

The preachers and visitors began assembling early at the Conference room. By the time the appointments were read there was hardly standing room.

The Conference opened by singing "Come Thou Fount." W. L. Linfield conducted the devotional exercises, reading part of the 6th chapter of Ephesians. "My Faith Looks up to Thee" was sung. Dr. A. F. Watkins read the minutes of Saturday's session, and G. S. Harmon read the minutes of the memorial service.

R. Selby made an appeal for an early payment of subscriptions to the fund for the education of young preachers. The report of the Washington City Church was read and adopted.

J. L. Neill read the statistical report, which showed a net gain of 1100 members, an increase of money for missions and other benevolences, but a slight decrease in pastors' and presiding elders' salaries.

Prof. G. L. Harrell, of Millsaps College, was re-elected Conference Lay Leader. He read the report on Lay Activities, which showed that only 34 charges in the Conference had adopted the "Every Member Canvass."

M. M. Black read the report of the Board of Missions. $9374.21 was raised for Home and Conference missions, $9471.92 for foreign missions, and $1319.40 was raised for specials, making a total of $20,195.50.

The assessments for missions are as follows:

Home and Conference, $14,800; Foreign Missions, $13,870.

The report of the Woman's Missionary Society was read, showing that $3810.19 had been spent for local work and $7296.70 for connectional work. The report was adopted.

The report of the Board of Education was read by N. B. Harmon. After some amendments were made, it was adopted.

The reports of the following Boards were read and adopted: Church Extension, Sunday Schools, Joint Board of Finance, American Bible Society.

W. M. Sullivan tendered his resignation as Railroad Secretary, owing to many other duties he had to perform. E. L. Alford was elected in Brother Sullivan's place.

The reports of the following committees were read and adopted: Publishing Interests, Sabbath Observance, State of the Church, District Conference Records.

Dr. F. S. Parker set a very happy example by his short speech following the report on Epworth Leagues, which was adopted.

T. B. Cottrell read the Auditor's report.

A resolution of thanks, read by W. J. Ferguson, expressing gratitude to the good people of Laurel for their hospitality, to J. L. Neill for his activity in meeting the needs of the Conference, to the local Churches for appreciated courtesies, to Miss Lillian Barlow, stenographer, for her services, to the editor of the Laurel Leader for the cordial welcome extended the Conference, to the railroads for the usual reduction of rates, and expressing appreciation of the presence and accurate reports of H. H. Ahrens and the press generally, was adopted by a rising vote of the Conference.

The minutes of the morning session were read and approved, and everybody waited for the answer to the last question. Bishop Atkins made appropriate remarks expressing appreciation of the kindness of the brethren and especially commending the work of the cabinet.

At Bishop Atkins' request, Miss Bessie Cook sang beautifully and with feeling the solo, "Saved by Grace," which was enjoyed by all.

The Bishop expressed his appreciation of the song, as well as of Miss Cook's services as choir director and the services of others in the choir. He then read the appointments, the doxology was sung, and the Conference adjourned with the benediction.

Owing to a lack of necessary funds the American Red Cross Society will be compelled to withdraw its forces from Europe, with the exception of the portion of it operating in Belgium and Servia. Hereafter, all contributions to the worthy causes which this organization looks after will be spent in purchasing hospital supplies, which will be forwarded to the belligerent nations.

The American Red Cross Society has been forced to discontinue its activities in Mexico and retire from the field. This step was brought about by General Carranza, who, upon his recognition as President of Mexico by the United States Government, requested that it be done, and gave as his reason the fact that "it was no longer necessary for Mexico to accept charitable relief from the United States." The Red Cross authorities, however, represent the conditions in Mexico as still being very deplorable.

Money to the amount of from $200,000,000 to $400,000,000, the sum usually spent by Americans every year in European travel during the summer months, has been largely kept in the United States this year, and, on account of this, financial conditions ought to be less stringent here, and would be, were it not for the fact that our people are furnishing a large part of the food, money, ammunition, and horses and mules that are necessary to keep the European war going on, and are having to lessen their own supplies to do so.

The following indicates some of the prices that mementoes of President Abraham Lincoln brought when recently put upon the market: A book of examples in arithmetic which had been Abraham Lincoln's when he was about 15 years of age was sold for $240, and another book of his which contained examples worked by him in compound interest sold for $115. Court papers, written and filed by Lincoln, the lawyer, brought from $85 to $110, and a poster announcing a speech by Lincoln in favor of Harrison and Tyler at Alton, Ill., in 1840, sold for $210.

Porcelain heads for dolls have within the past been largely imported to this country from Germany, but the great European war has made commercial intercourse between Germany and the United States well-nigh impossible. The manufacture of porcelain doll heads is an industry which has recently sprung up in Philadelphia. In the time of war home manufactures receive a great impetus, and in this country they need all the encouragement that they can get, so that they will thrive and grow strong and make us independent of all other nations.

It is customary for every able-bodied Hohenzollern (the royal family of Germany) to learn a trade. Emperor William did not learn one because of the fact that his left arm is shorter than his right, but his brother, Prince Henry, learned book-binding, and the present Crown Prince is a turner. Is there any reason why one should look down on the occupations of those who earn a living by the sweat of their brows, when the mothers and fathers of princes have the good sense to see that their sons are taught some one of them? There is in this a moral which the large number of American citizens who let their sons grow up without a trade or profession ought to take to heart and profit by. If princes need to know a trade, why should not the sons of ordinary folk learn one also? If it is not practiced, the discipline that one has to be subject to in order to learn it makes it of great value, as also do the respect for labor and the sympathy for those who toil which are thus developed.

MRS. EMMA KENNON TOWNES.

While the "gates stood ajar" on June 26, 1915, in the holy hush of an early hour, the beautiful spirit of Mrs. Emma Kennon Townes crossed eternity's boundless sea and passed into the "City of Gold." It was not long on that morning until the entire community and country around had heard the sad news of the passing away of the beloved companion of Mr. Jas. A. Townes, who had preceded her into the great beyond a little more than a year. In mutual love and confidence they had walked hand in hand, both striving for the betterment and the comfort of others and the Church they loved, until their names had become as sweet ointment poured forth and are honored by so many hundreds with fond and grateful devotion. The most pleasant memories we have are due to the presence, at some time in our lives, of noble men and women, who have stood side by side in many ways to encourage human kind in the battle of life.

Mrs. Townes was the daughter of Dr. John Kennon, who was one of the leading physicians of this great Delta in his day. She was born on May 28, 1844, and was married to Jas. A. Townes on June 9, 1868.

There is no beauty that is comparable to moral beauty, and nothing so sublime as simple, heroic devotion to God and duty—unselfish lives, sympathetic hearts.

The social interests and activities of this splendid woman, and her unusually bright intellect were of immense service in helping to solve the problems that confronted all in this great new country, which was beginning to open up.

She was at her best in her home as wife and mother. Her childrens' association with her would have impressed you with the fact that, in a way, she was as young as they were. She sat as a queen in their midst, always kind and gentle, and in her suffering for several years before her departure, she was remarkably patient, never burdening any one, and her companion always found it a pleasure to be with her. Her bright, sunshiny disposition, her happy humor, and jovial spirit were an inspiration. While she enjoyed her life here, death had no terrors for her. Life after all is measured by the deeds wrought, and the soul wealth gathered, and the gracious influences sent forth. One of the institutions of the Church closest to her heart was the Orphans' Home. How often she said to her pastor, "Now don't forget the Orphans' Home."

I can not think of this sainted woman as dead—such people do not die; they cannot die, for good is as indestructible as matter.

She has left a heritage to her family richer far than any multi-millionaire. Not a word of eulogy spoken out of crushed hearts was misplaced, nor could the silent testimony of thousands of blooming flowers and fragrant blossoms measure the tides of feeling when this mother and friend slipped away in the early part of that morning and went to heaven.

She leaves to mourn her death four sons, Richard, Kennon, Evans, Lacy, and two daughters, Mrs. W. D. Garner, of Minter City, and Mrs. W. P. Holland, of Clarksdale.

HOW A WICKED KING WAS OUTWITTED.

By Mrs. Livingston Barbour.

Long, long ago there was a certain King John who ruled in England, and he was a bad man, the worst king who ever ruled England, so we are told. He was very selfish. As long as he could have his own way, he did not care an iota what befell his subjects. How many of us are somewhat liko King John, we care so little for others? Self, spelled with a capital, self first, self last, self all the time. Selfishness is truly the little fox which destroys much of the sweetness of life. And to this sin of selfishness King John added that of cruelty. His was a hard, wicked, cruel heart. Still another sin was his, he was wickedly jealous, he was jealous of his very subjects, especially if they were persons of wealth and had well filled purses with which to obtain the good things of life.

Now it happened that there lived in England a very rich old abbot who lived in a large and beautiful house called an abbey. An abbot is a man who is the head of a society of monks, and the abbey is their home. Well, this particular abbot was very rich and was fond of good things to eat. He was also fond of entertaining his friends, and he did so in a very lavish way. And in those days an abbot was a man who could do much as he pleased. But this one could not do as he pleased, because King John said he could not, and kings had to he obeyed in those days. Now it is a little different.

The story is that this rich old abbot sat down to his table every day with a hundred noblemen to share his feast. I am sure any one of us would get tired of so much company. But that was not all. He had fifty brave knights to wait upon him and his guests, and the way they were dressed! Why, we are told they wore velvet suits and gold chains, and I suppose ruffs at their neck and powdered wigs.

How the king stormed around when he heard the story. "Very well," said he, "we'll see this old abbot and have him give an account of himself; we shall learn more about his feasts." You may imagine the king was mad enough, and the abbot was scared almost out of his wits when he found that the cruel King John wanted him.

The abbot lived in Canterbury, and he rode to court wondering all the way why the king wanted him, what had he done to displease his king? A man's head grew upon his shoulders, but he was never sure how long it would stay there if he displeased his king, so people usually tried to please him.

The abbot was soon to hear what was up. "How is this that I hear you are living in such a way as your king does not? You are spending more money than he does. You are having more guests and keeping a much finer house than your king: how dare you? Do you not know this cannot be allowed? Give me an account of yourself."

With what fear and trembling the old abbot must have listened to these words. So he hastened to explain.

"Oh, King, I am only spending money that is my very own, not a shilling but my own money. I pray you think of me no ill. I am but making things pleasant for my friends, and the brave knights who are with me. If I have offended, forgive me."

"Think no ill of you! how can I think no ill of such an abbot? are you not spending my money? All there is in the length and breath of this land belongs to your king. His it is by right. Are you not spending more money, living in finer style, giving grander feasts and entertaining more friends than your king? You have put him to shame. Are you seeking to be the king in my place? almost any one would think so."

Can't you imagine the abbot trembling all over, his knees getting weaker and weaker? He had not meant to offend his king, even an abbot knew better than to do that.

"Oh, I beg of you, do not say that. Indeed, I am innocent of such thought. Believe me."

"Not another word. Your wickedness is all too plain. You shall have just one chance to live. I shall put three questions to you, and unless you can answer each and every one you shall pay the price with your head, and all your riches shall be the king's."

Now the abbot was a wise man, but he did not know that he would be able to answer the three questions which the king might give him. He did not believe he could answer one, so he shook all over. "Of course I shall do my best," he said.

"Tell me how many years I shall live. I must know within one day—this is my first question. Secondly, how soon shall it be my pleasure to ride around the world. And third and last, I command you, tell me what I, thy king, thinks?

Imagine the poor abbot. How could he answer such questions? No one, save God, could know the days and hours of a man's life; what he thought and when such a whimsical king might make up his mind to travel.

"O king! How can I answer such hard questions all of a sudden? Give me, I pray thee, time for thought and study. I would answer thee, but may not I have at least a fortnight to think of the matter? but grant me this boon and I will do my best."

"As thou sayest. A fortnight thou shalt have, and if at the end of two weeks, thou answered me not, in truth then thy head shall be the forfeit, and thy lands and money shall be mine."

It was with a sad and grieved heart the abbot left the presence of the king. He knew where there were many books and many learned men. He would go thither, read the books and imploro these men of book-learning to help him. So with a heavy heart he journeyed to the great English college at Oxford and laid his troubles before the wise teachers, but they shook their heads. They could not answer such questions as these, and it was with drooping spirits that the distracted abbot heard their decision.

He turned his face homeward, sorrowful of heart. He felt that he had but two weeks to live. He must set his house in order and bid his friends and faithful knights farewell. There would be no more feasts with him sitting at the head of the table. All had come to an end.

At last he was almost at the abbey. As he turned into the lane that led to his beautiful home he met one of his shepherds, going about his business. How the sight brought a pang to his heart! He had truly loved his life and all those who had helped to make it. Just now his heart was tender.

The shepherd doffed his cap. "Welcome home, my good master, how fares it with thee? and how does our King John?"

"The news thy abbot brings thee is sad, very sad."

"How so?"

"Come hither and I will tell thee." Whereupon the old abbot laid bare his heart to his faithful servant.

"Cheer up!" said the shepherd. "Out of the mouths of fools and babes may come words of wisdom. A witless man may teach a wise man wit. Trust thy witless shepherd; he will help thee out."

"How? I beg of thee; tell me how this can be done?"

Now, the shepherd was much of the same features as his master, the abbot. "It has been often said we are much alike," he said. "Send me thy outfit, thy horse and thy gowns, and at the end of two weeks I will away to the king. If naught else can be done, then will I die in thy place."

Now life is very dear to each one of us. The abbot loved his life, but he did not feel he would like the man to die in his stead, but there seemed no other way out. So the shepherd made himself ready for his journey. He dressed himself with great care. He put the abbot's robe upon his shoulders and took his staff of gold in his hand; also the abbot's cap covered the shepherd's fair curls. It would have taken a wiser man than King John to have discovered the fraud. And off he started for London, where the king held court. He did not go alone, but had a retinue of servants with him as became an abbot.

When he reached the king's palace, and was ushered into the presence of the king, he conducted himself so well that the king welcomed him graciously.

"Welcome, Sir Abbot. It is well for thee thou hast returned, but unless thou canst answer the three questions which I have given thee, thy head shall be the forfeit."

"O King, I am ready to answer thy questions, ask them as thou wilt."

"Well then, how long shall I live? that is my first question. Come now, thou must tell me to the very day." "Thou shalt live, O king, until the very day thou shalt breathe thy last breath, and not one hour longer. Upon that day thou shalt die." The king was a bit surprised. This man was no mean wit, he thought. "We will let that pass; wit thou hast of a certainty."

"And now, my good sir, when shall thy king ride around the world?"

"First of all, thou must rise with the sun, and thou must make it thy companion. Ride with it until it rises again the next morning. As soon as thou hast this feat performed thou wilt have ridden around the world."

The king laughed loud and long. He was beginning to think this was a very wise and witty old abbot. "'Tis well said. Of a truth thou art wise and witty. We will let this one pass; but now tell me what thy king think."

"That question is easily answered. Thou thinkest that I am the abbot of Canterbury, but I am not. I am only his poor shepherd, come here to beg thy pardon for him and for me," saying which he pulled off the abbot's gown, and took his cap from his head, showing himself as he was, a poor ignorant shepherd.

"Of a truth, thou art wise. Thou hast answered my three questions well. Thou shalt be abbot of Canterbury in thy master's stead."

"That could not be, O king. I am ignorant, as well as poor. I cannot either read or write."

"Well, it is a merry joke thou hast played on thy king, and thou shalt be paid. Take these four pieces of silver. I will give thee four more every year as long as thou shalt live.

"Go home and tell thy abbot, King John hath sent by you a free pardon."

This story shows us how even a man with a hard and cruel heart may have some traces of justice in his make-up, but how much better it is to have a kind heart. New York Weekly Witness.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

MUCH TO BE COMMENDED.

The campaign to organize new auxiliaries and increase the number of members in the old ones that the Woman's Missionary Society has been conducting has been meeting with considerable success. This aggressive extension work is timely, and deserves hearty commendation. The active workers in the various departments of the Church are far too few. The largest results can never be achieved until our people generally are enlisted. One who does not participate in building up the Master's cause is not a good Methodist.

The women of Southern Methodism have wrought nobly in the past and are to-day rendering an immeasurable service to God and humanity. No woman in the Church should fail to have a part in their great achievements. For one to do so is to deny herself an inestimable privilege. The rich spiritual rewards of neither time nor eternity are for idlers.

AN INDEPENDENT BODY.

We print the following for its news value:

"The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America has been incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia. The incorporators have elected the following trustees:

"For three years, Shailer Mathews, Frank Mason North, William I. Haven, John M. Glenn, Howard B. Grose, Alfred R. Kimball, Albert G. Lawson, William H. Roberts, Rivington D. Lord.

"For two years, J. Edgar Leaycraft, Rufus W. Miller, John R. Mott, E. E. Olcott, Alexander Walters, Eugene R. Hendrix, Hubert C. Herring, Gifford Pinchot.

"For one year, Robert E. Speer, Josiah Strong, Charles L. Thompson, Charles S. Macfarland, Henry K. Carroll, Earl Cranston, Wallace Radcliffe, Jay T. Stocking."

For a considerable time we were disposed to regard this organization as one which would exert very little influence upon the religious denominations of the United States, but it appears to be steadily extending its operations in various directions and to be becoming increasingly generous in its advice to the Churches. This perhaps is a natural development and ought to occasion no surprise. But if it is to be a really potent factor in giving shape to the activities of the Protestant religious bodies of the Nation, is it not about time that they were giving some attention to its constitution and government? From the clipping reproduced above, it seems that this Council is a wholly independent and self-perpetuating body, which we consider a very serious objection to it. If this organization desires to have the confidence and to be able to secure the hearty co-operation of the Churches in matters of common interest, it should allow them to name their representatives on it, and thus truly give them a voice in the management of its affairs. Surely, we have had enough bitter experiences with bodies responsible to none but themselves to learn a little wisdom from them.

GENERAL WASHINGTON ON DRINK.

Some weeks ago we called attention in the Advocate to the manner in which the proponents of the liquor traffic in this country, in their efforts to bolster up their hard-pressed cause, were misrepresenting and slandering the Nation's noblest and most illustrious dead. Since that time they have been continuing the same nefarious policy, and have even gone so far as to invoke in their interest the great name of George Washington, seeking to create the impression upon the public mind that he believed in the consumption of alcoholic liquors and would have been wholly averse to any effort to prevent their sale. The extent to which they have thus placed "the Father of his Country," "the first American," in a wrong light, thereby doing him an unpardonable injustice, may be seen from the following extract written by General Washington to a Mr. Thomas Green on March 31, 1789:

"The sure means to avoid this evil is, first, to refrain from drink, which is the source of all evil and the ruin of half the workmen in this country. Were you to look back and had the means, either from recollection or accounts, to ascertain the cost of the liquor you have expended, it would astonish you. In the manner this expense is generally incurred, that is by getting a little now and then, the impropriety of it is not seen, inasmuch as it passed away without much thought. But, viewing it in the aggregate, you will be convinced at once, whether any man who depends upon the labor of his hands, not only for his own support, but that of an increasing family, can afford such a proportion of his wages for that article. But the expense is not the worst consequence that attends it, for it naturally leads a man into the company of those who encourage dissipation and idleness, by which he is led by degrees to the perpetration of acts which may terminate in his ruin. But, supposing this not to happen, a disordered frame and a body debilitated, renders him unfit (even if his mind was disposed to discharge the duties of his station with honor to himself or fidelity to his employer) from the execution of it. An aching head and trembling limbs, which are the inevitable effects of drinking, disincline the hands from work; hence begins sloth and that listlessness which end in idleness, but which are no reasons for withholding that labor, for which money is paid."

This letter may be found in the "Letters and Addresses of George Washington," edited by Jonas Viles, Professor of History in the University of Missouri, and published by the Sun Dial Classics Company of New York in 1909.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Bishop Atkins' Thanksgiving sermon in Laurel on Thursday, Nov. 25, dealt largely with the causes of the present colossal war in Europe. It was a strong and scholarly discussion.

The New Orleans District Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society was held in the Parker Memorial Church Monday and Tuesday of this week. It was an occasion of much interest.

Rev. W. W. Mitchell, of West Point, Miss., has our thanks for some subscriptions recently forwarded to the Advocate. He has had a good year, and will carry a creditable report to Conference.

The Methodist congregations of New Orleans united in a Thanksgiving service at First Church on Thursday, Nov. 25, at 11 o'clock a.m. The sermon, which was an impressive and helpful one, was delivered by Rev. R. H. Harper.

In company with Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Rev. C. M. Morris, the new pastor of Epworth Church, this city, called at the Advocate office last Friday. Brother Morris has already taken up the work of getting acquainted with his people.

In the absence of Dr. W. J. Young, who was at Laurel last week to deliver a series of addresses during the session of the Mississippi Conference, Bishop A. W. Wilson lectured his classes in the Candler School of Theology. Dr. Young's department is that of Missions.

Mrs. Bessie W. Lipscomb, the Home Base Secretary of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was an appreciated visitor in Brookhaven, Miss., last week. An informal reception in her honor was given by the local woman's missionary auxiliary.

Speaking of his new work as Sunday School Field Secretary of the Louisiana Conference, Rev. W. H. Coleman says: "We are going to hold up constantly before all our people this idea—'The Sunday school is in no sense a separate institution, apart from the Church, but is the working Church.'" Good!

At the late session of the Memphis Conference Dr. T. E. Sharp was returned to the First Methodist Church of Memphis, and Rev. T. W. Lewis to St. John's Church, in the same city. Rev. J. A. Patterson, who last year served the Pinson charge, in the Jackson District, was transferred to the North Mississippi Conference.

The transfer of Rev. W. W. Drake from New Orleans to Minden, La., will take from the Crescent City one of its most capable and influential pastors. Brother Drake will be greatly missed in all the Christian activities of this growing metropolis. The people of Minden may count themselves fortunate in having secured his services.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Montpelier (Miss.) charge passed resolutions strongly commending the character and work of Rev. A. A. Martin, the pastor, who, after four years of good service, must now go to another field. It must have been gratifying to Brother Martin to receive such a testimonial of love and appreciation.

In a recent note to the Editor, Rev. H. S. Spraglns, the presiding elder of the Greenville District, stated that he was at home for a day for the first time in quite a while. Our Delta Methodism has never had a more energetic and effective leader than Brother Spragins. He is held in the highest esteem by both the preachers and laity in the great field which he serves.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, the newly-appointed pastor of the Carrollton Avenue Church of this city, was in our office one day last week. He expects to move his family from the Seashore Camp Ground, where they have been sojourning temporarily, to their new home at once. Brother Joyner is popular with the Methodists of New Orleans, who will be much pleased to have him among them again.

A Coldwater (Miss.) dispatch to the Jackson Daily News states that Brother P. T. Callicott has declined to continue longer as superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school there, a position which he has filled with marked efficiency for a quarter of a century. His resignation, as was to be expected, is said to be universally regretted. No choicer layman than Brother Callicott can anywhere be found.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard, the hustling pastor of the Louisiana Avenue Church of this city, though the Louisiana Annual Conference adjourned only a little over a week ago, has already issued a pastoral letter to his people, sounding a bugle call to the work of the new Conference year. Evidently, Brother Gearheard believes that "it is the early bird that gets the worm." And in thus getting busy promptly he is undoubtedly wise.

By request, we print the following notice: "The Calendar Club of the First M. E. Church, South, of New Orleans, 1108 St. Charles Street, will hold their annual bazaar Friday and Saturday, December 3 and 4—on Friday, from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m., and on Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 12 m. They will have for sale a splendid collection of hand-made articles at reasonable prices, and an abundance of Calendar Club candy.

After four years of notably good work as pastor of Epworth Church, this city, Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., has been assigned to Dubach, La., which is said to be an inviting field. Well educated, manly, and consecrated, this gifted young minister gives promise of large usefulness. We wish him much success in his new pastorate, and we trust that he will find time to give the Advocate at least an occasional article. He wields a facile pen.

From the Morgan City (La.) Outlook we take the following: "Rev. C. C. Wier has been returned to Morgan City as pastor of the Methodist Church for another year. His keen human interest in his fellows and his sympathetic intelligence makes him everywhere an object of esteem, and his honesty makes him a factor for good." The Review Bulletin, another local paper, also takes notice of Brother Wier's re-assignment, stating that "it is greatly appreciated."

We request our correspondents and patrons to be patient with us for the next few days, as both the Publisher and Editor will be out of the office. Three Conferences in immediate succession gives us rather more work than we can do with our usual thoroughness and dispatch. A considerable amount of belated matter which did not reach us until Monday, will necessarily be left out of this issue of the Advocate, since we are forced to make up the paper sooner than we ordinarily do.

The Oxford (Miss.) Independent states that our church at that place has had a very prosperous year, and that the return of Rev. E. S. Lewis, the present pastor, is desired by not only the Methodist congregation, hut also by the people of the town generally. This report is in keeping with the record that Brother Lewis has been in the habit of making in all his pastorates. Being the seat of the State University, which this year has more than 600 students, Oxford is one of the most important appointments in the North Mississippi Conference.

Under date of November 25, Rev. W. L. Broome, formerly of North Mississippi but now of the East Oklahoma Conference, writes: "I was elected Secretary of our Conference at its late session at Muscogee, and have heen kept pretty husy ever since its adjournment getting the minutes ready for the press. My appointment was changed from Konawa to Bristow, which is a fine town of hetween 2500 and 3000 inhabitants. I am expecting a good year in my new field."

At the fourth quarterly conference of our church at Brookhaven, Miss., a movement was launched looking to the construction of a new house of worship in that progressive city. The following building committee was appointed: S. E. Moreton, president; C. L. Ripley, vice-president; B. S. Cato, secretary; C. S. Butterfield, treasurer; I. W. Cooper, J. T. Butler, W. D. Davis, G. A. Hoffman, E. B. Guess, Chas. D. Smith, A. B. Furlow, and H. Flowers. The pastor of this enterprising congregation is Rev. J. M. Morse, who has a remarkable record as a church builder.

We take the following from the Midland Methodist of November 17: "Rev. E. A. Tucker, pastor of the Fountain Avenue Church of Paducah, Ky. (Memphis Conference), has been transferred to the St. Louis Conference and stationed at Fredericktown, Mo. His new charge has ahout 500 members and is one of the best towns in Missouri." Brother Tucker was formerly a member of the North Mississippi Conference. He is a brother of Rev. R. A. Tucker, presiding elder of the Holly Springs District, and a son of the late Rev. H. R. Tucker, of precious memory.

We have received from Mr. J. W. Bradford, of Itta Bena, Miss., a statement adopted hy the Board of Stewards of our Church at that place highly commendatory of the work of Rev. B. P. Jaco, presiding elder of the Winona District, who is rounding out his quadrennium. Evidently the brethren of that charge feel that Brother Jaco has wrought well. This paper reached us too late to he set up for this issue of the Advocate, the forms of which are being closed a little earlier than usual, in order that the Publisher and Editor may leave for the seat of the North Mississippi Conference.

Brother C. B. Baker; of Amory, Miss., writes us that on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 25, a splendid reception was given our pastor at that place, Rev. W. M. Young and his family, which was attended hy over 250 persons. A suitable and costly silver waiter was presented them as a testimonial of the high regard in which they are held hy the church and community. On last Sunday evening over 600 persons were present at Brother Young's farewell service. It is universally regretted that the operation of the time limit will necessitate the assignment of this capahle worker to another field.

Mr. L. C. Nugent, a son of the late Colonel W. L. Nugent, and Miss Mary Capers Enochs, the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Enochs, all of Jackson, Miss., were married at the Capitol Street M. E. Church, South, of that city, on the evening of November 24, Rev. W. H. Lewis officiating. The church was beautifully decorated and its seating capacity was taxed to the utmost to accommodate the great throng in attendance. After the ceremony there was a brilliant reception given at the home of the bride. The Advocate extends congratulations and best wishes.

We were pleased to see Major Millsaps, Mississippi Methodism's foremost layman, in attendance upon the session of the Mississippi Conference at Laurel last week. He was looking well and was taking an active part in the deliberations of the Board of Education. Another distinguished layman who was showing a keen interest in the work of that Board was President Joe Cook, of the Mississippi State Normal College at Hattiesburg, who also is one of its members. There is no ahler educator in the Magnolia State than President Cook, who was educated at Vanderhilt University when it was thought to he a Methodist school.

While the Mississippi Conference was in session at Laurel last week the news was received that Rev. H. R. Caldwell had passed away on Thursday, Nov. 25, at his home at Mt. Olive. Brother Caldwell became a member of the Mississippi Conference in 1877, and was one of its honored superannuates. He was highly esteemed for his Christian character and the excellent service which he had rendered in the itinerant ministry. We extend sympathy to the bereaved, and pray that the Heavenly Father may graciously comfort and sustain them. We trust that a suitable memoir of the deceased will be furnished the Advocate at an early date.

The congregation of the Galloway Memorial Church of Jackson, Miss., worshiped in the main auditorium of their new edifice for the first time on Sunday, Nov. 21. This is said to be the finest church in Mississippi, and when it is fully completed in every respect the total cost will not be far from $100,000. It is just across the street from the home of the lamented Bishop Charles B. Galloway, for whom it has most appropriately been named. We congratulate the gifted pastor, Rev. W. G. Henry, and his large flock of some fifteen hundred members upon having brought to completion this splendid enterprise, which means so much to the Methodism of the entire State of Mississippi. Jackson has always been a very strong Methodist center.

While attending the session of the Mississippi Conference at Laurel last week, the Editor was delightfully entertained in the charming home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Patrick. Mrs. Patrick was formerly Miss Bridges, of Starkville, Miss., and was a member of our church at that place when we served it a number of years ago. Mr. Patrick is a prosperous wholesale grocery merchant and a most agreeable gentleman. Nothing that could contribute to our comfort in any way was neglected. It, furthermore, gave us genuine pleasure to meet a number of other Starkville friends while we tarried for a couple of days in Jones County's flourishing capital. We also brought away with us pleasing memories of Master Robert and little Miss Alice Patrick, the two interesting children of our attentive host and hostess.

The following ministers in the North Mississippi Conference have served four years in their present appointments and will be forced hy the operation of the time limit to go to new fields: J. H. Mitchell, P. E. of the Corinth District; R. A. Tucker, P. E. of the Holly Springs District; J. W. Dorman, P. E. of the Sardis District; B. P. Jaco, P. E. of the Winona District; W. M. Young, Amory and Nettleton; A. A. Martin, Montpelier Ct.; J. H. Felts, First Church, Corinth; C. A. Northington, Corinth Ct.; W. T. Bazzel, Iuka Ct.; E. H. Cunningham, Myrtle Ct.; J. A. Goad, New Albany Ct.; J. M. Wyatt, Ackerman Ct.; J. D. Simpson, Pickens Ct.; J. A. Hall, Grenada; T. H. Dorsey, First Church, Water Valley; J. T. Lockhart, Batesville; J. B. Connor, Sardis Ct.; T. E. Gregory, Tyro Ct.; J. W. Raper, Drew Ct.; W. M. Campbell, Minter City; E. B. Sharp, Webb Ct.; O. W. Bradley, Winona; O. L. Savage, Belzoni Ct.; J. D. Boggs, Dumas Ct.

PEACE, BE STILL.

Mrs. L. M. Lipscomb.

When waves of sorrow o'er me roll
And threaten to engulf my soul,
A soft, sweet voice, close hy, I hear,
"It is I, so do not fear."

When clouds are dark and thunders crash,
And billows 'gainst my frail hark dash,
I know they must obey His will,
As He gently whispers, "Peace, he still."

When we are drifting with the tide
And do not in His love ahide,
But while away the golden hours
With sunny skies and blooming flowers,

He sometimes sends these storms of woe,
That we might the swifter go
To that haven of peace and joy,
Which no storm can e'er destroy.

So, troubled soul, why chafe and fret?
Will God his children e'er forget?
Listen, He whispers, "Peace, be still,"
And the angry waves obey His will.

Booneville, Miss.

WILLIAM T. WEBB, a veteran evangelist, Master and Christian of Gloster, Miss., departed this life on October 31, 1915, at the age of 71. He was a native of Georgia, the son of Rev. Samuel E. and Cynthia T. Webb, but at 21 settled in Amite County, Miss., beginning his ministerial career at Liberty. At the outbreak of the Civil War he was ready to enlist, but was disqualified by defective hearing. In 1866 he was happily married to Miss Susan J. Webb of Pontotoc County, Miss. In 1914 he transferred his business and residence from Liberty to Gloster. Age and increasing deafness necessitated his retirement from active life about 1907. He was sorely bereaved by the death of his wife in 1914; and his own summons came after an illness of several weeks at the home of his niece, Mrs. C. E. McLain.

"Uncle Billy" (as he was familiarly called) was converted in early manhood and at once joined the Methodist Church. His piety, like his dispositions, was quiet but was demonstrated in self-denying service. That others might be well cared for, and that the cause of Christ might prosper, he sacrificed delights and lived laborious days. He cherished his Bible and through it received new revelations from God day by day. His last favorite reading was his church papers: the New Orleans Christian Advocate came to his home for some fifty successive years. His fondness for the preached Word was also exceptional: unable for a long period to hear a word of the text, sermon or song, he nevertheless continued to worship with the congregation and thus set a shining example of love and loyalty.

Since the death of his beloved wife, he had looked with unwonted longing toward the heavenly home because he knew she was there awaiting him. There were no children born to this couple, but they had the largest share in the bringing-up and education of several children of their kindred. The lesson of the clean, consecrated life that William T. Webb left will be transmitted to coming generations, and his memory will be precious.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. E. Williams, his pastor, Rev. W. W. Cammack and Rev. G. S. Dobbins.

A NEPHEW.

LEONIDAS DAKIN.

In the summer of 1869 there was a sweeping revival in the little village of Martin, Claiborne County, Miss., as the result of which an unfinished church building was completed, more than a score of persons were converted and added to the Church, and the community was deeply impressed for good. The memory of it constitutes one of the bright spots in the life of the young circuit rider who led the services.

Among those reached by the influences of the meeting was Leonidas Dakin, the village blacksmith, who was happily converted and joined the Church. In the thirty years that followed his conversion his life was almost ideal in its consistency and devotion. It seemed to know no crisis, except that which marked the surrender of his spirit to the service of God, and to have been marked by growth, each day, in grace and in knowledge to the ripening and perfecting of the saint. If there were any lapses into sin, his nearest friends did not perceive them—the path of the righteous man seemed to grow brighter day by day. Modest and unobtrusive, but ardent and constant, his thought, his time, his means, he gave to the Church.

His affection for the young pastor, who had been instrumental in his conversion, was so sincere and abiding as to admit of no explanation other than that it was an expression of his gratitude to him who had led him to his Lord.

His wife and children were converted in the same meeting, and like him became devoted to the cause of Christ. So beautiful in their Christian walk has been this devoted family that when the summons came for him the beloved father might well have said, with humble confidence: "Here am I, Lord, and those whom Thou hast given me."

Leonidas Dakin was the second son of Thomas J. and Martha McVoy Dakin, and was born in Port Gibson, Miss., on June 21, 1841. He died in Meridian, Miss., on August 27, 1915. On January 21, 1874, he was happily married to Miss Bettie C. Dunnegan, who, with their two sons and three daughters, mourns his death. Most of his life was passed in his native county, but for a time he lived in Lorman, and then in Centerville, where his skill and faithfulness as a workman supported his family and his gentleness of spirit and the terror of his piety won the confidence and esteem of all who knew him. His later years were spent in Meridian, where he was honored for his Christian integrity and esteemed for his work's sake.

It was in view of such a death as his that Mr. Wesley said: "Thank God, our people die well."

The writer was assisted by Rev. J. R. Jones in the burial services, and at the grave the local camp of the United Confederate Veterans paid tribute to their departed comrade.

Jackson, Miss. A. F. WATKINS.

IN MEMORY OF MISS NELLIE MEEKINS.

[A loving tribute from one who loved her.]

You have gone away and left us,
Nellie—
Our hearts are lone and sad;
But you are with the Savior, Nellie,
And we know that you are glad.

You went away so quickly—
We knew not what to say;
But the Savior called you, Nellie,
Just at the break of day.

He called you, and you answered,
"I am ready, Lord;"
And He took you, oh! so quickly—
Almost without a word.

You are singing with the angels,
Nellie,
The songs you loved so well;
But our hearts are sad and lonely,
Nellie;
How sad, we never can tell.

We miss your cheerful smile, Nellie,
We miss your words of cheer,
We miss you in the room, Nellie—
We miss everywhere.

We miss you! oh! we miss you.
How much we never can tell;
But the Savior called you, Nellie,
And He doeth all things well.

No more sickness, no more pain—
The painful journey's o'er;
And you are waiting for us, Nellie,
Upon the Golden Shore.

You're watching and you're waiting
For the mother you've loved so well;
But her heart is sad and lonely,
Nellie—
How sad, we never can tell.

Then let us take up the toil and the task;
And for grace and strength to bear it,
The Savior we will ask.
And when the toil, and the work are o'er,
We'll meet you on that Beautiful Shore.

So let us watch, and let us wait
Till Jesus bids us come,
To meet you at the Beautiful Gate,
Of that Eternal Home.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF. HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine right now—this stops falling hair.

This brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp: of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You simply can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

Easily Prepared in a Few Minutes. Cheap but Unequaled

Some people are constantly annoyed from one year's end to the other with a persistent bronchial cough, which is wholly unnecessary. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make you wonder what became of it.

Get 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any druggist, pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end. It also loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflammation in a painful cough with remarkable rapidity. Ordinary coughs are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, winter coughs and bronchial asthma.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup mixture makes a full pint—enough to last a family a long time—at a cost of only 54 cents. Keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant. Easily prepared. Full directions with Pinex.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its ease, certainty and promptness in overcoming bad coughs, chest and throat colds.

Get the genuine. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., 235 Main St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

THANKSGIVING AT THE ORPHANAGE.

There is great rejoicing at the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage! Thanksgiving brought splendid gifts to the 107 homeless children under the care of that institution. FOUR BIG CARLOADS of good things! Staple groceries of all kinds, canned goods, meats, lard, sugar, flour, meal, grits, cereals, potatoes (Irish and sweet), corn, chops, hay, hogs, chickens, clothing, sewing machines, plows, wood, ironing boards—in fact, the list of things of great value to our work here is almost endless. Surely there is rejoicing and unspeakable gratitude for these blessings.

These donations came from Ferriday, Sicily Island, Wisner, Gilbert, Chase, Winnsboro, Charlieville, Mangham, Archibald, Rayville, Oak Ridge, Jones, Bonita, Gallion, Mer Rouge, Collinston, Bastrop, Monroe and West Monroe. One car began at Ferriday and went through to Collinston. When the train reached Winnsboro, another car was taken on with a large amount of packages from that community, and by the time the two cars reached Collinston they were well filled. Another car started at Jones, and ran to Collinston and was filled to the brim by the time it reached Collinston. Then the three cars were brought into Monroe over the Iron Mountain Railway without freight charges. These cars were then transferred to the V., S. & P., and hauled to Ruston without freight charges. Then the time of unloading! Four wagons were used and by hard work finished unloading the three cars Thanksgiving Day, just before another car filled at West Monroe and Monroe came in. Thanksgiving Day was a busy, but happy day at the Orphanage. Many express packages came with good things, and a great dinner was had for the children.

We cannot thank these good donors enough. Our hearts run out in gratitude to all the good people, and we can but pray that God's richest blessings be poured out on them, as they have given of their abundance for the care, comfort, and happiness of the homeless children under our charge.

Gratefully,
ROB'T W. VAUGHAN,
Superintendent.

A CHURCH IN THE HOME.

Rev. F. B. Meyer, who has become such a mighty influence for good in the Old World and the New, serving his day and generation with life and voice and pen, is himself the ripened fruit of the gracious spiritual nurture of a godly home. In a beautiful tribute to that home, Mr. Meyer gives us a glimpse of the conditions under which his early life was being formed for the great career to which God called him.

"It is impossible," says Mr. Meyer, "to be thankful enough to my gentle, lovely mother for the careful drilling in Scripture which was her habit with us all. It was her regular practice to gather us around her each Lord's Day morning for the searching of Bible references and for reading books bearing directly on Scripture. And how can we who shared them ever forget the happy hours each Sunday afternoon when we gathered round the piano and sung hymn after hymn, our childish voices gathering strength as they were led and supported by that noble bass voice of my father, which was like an organ in the richness of its tones? It was not what they said, for they spoke very little directly to us, but what they were, and what they expected us to be, that seemed insensibly to form and mold our characters."—The Evangelical.

MISSIONARY BRIEFS.

Just one hundred years ago the first New Testament in Chinese was issued from a press in Canton. Last year the American Bible Society and the British and Foreign Society circulated in China more than a quarter million copies of the Bible.

A Southern Baptist missionary in Maranhao, Brazil, has just returned from a river trip of seven hundred miles. "There are still fifteen towns on the Amazon," he says, "where we have not preached. But I am sure when the new missionaries come we will see a great harvest."

After two months spent in this country Dr. Samuel Zwemer, the well-known missionary to the Moslems, has returned to his work in Cairo, Egypt. During his stay in the United States he received contributions to the amount of $25,000 for Christian work amoug the Moslems.

Since September 1 the World's Sunday School Association has distributed among soldiers in the European war about 340,000 copies of the New Testament. The Moravians were the first Protestants to declare that the evangelization of the heathen was obligatory upon the Church. Missions have been the life of the Moravian Church and it has saved its life by losing it. It has 47,000 members in its home churches and more in its foreign missions, the communicants being 32,000 and 36,000 respectively, an unparalleled record. It has one American or European missionary to every 87 of its home communicants.

JAPANESE REVIVAL IN LOS ANGELES.

An interesting story comes of a Japanese revival recently held in the city of Los Angeles. Twenty-five years ago a young man of sixteen was driven from his home in an interior town in Northern Japan because he believed in Jesus. Through the kindness of friendly missionaries he went to the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago and fitted himself to be a lay preacher. Returning to his native country full of purpose and hope he tried to present Christ to his parents who had driven him from home. Later he had the joy of seeing his father and mother and two younger brothers accept Christ. As he went about in the towns and villages of Japan, he was often lovingly called the "Moody of Japan."

Recently he came to Los Angeles and held a series of meetings among his countrymen in that city. Fresh from a campaign among the Japanese in Honoluiu, where under his preaching more than 1000 decided to become Christians, he brought his good tidings to the California city with splendid results.

THE CREOLES OF LOUISIANA,

the descendants of the original Spanish and French settlers, prided themselves upon their hair—and rightly they should—for it was they who first knew the secret of beautiful hair, the one great successful remedy for hair diseases and the greatest of all hair foods; La Creole Hair Dressing. The recipe was kept a profound secret by the race until about fifty years ago, but now you can reap the benefits of their early discoveries by using "La Creole" hair dressing, the very best dressing for keeping the hair fluffy, light and beautiful.

This wonderful preparation of the Creole race not only cleanses the scalp from all disease and filth, but also renews the life of the hair; makes it light and fluffy; restores to the hair its natural color and original lustre and supplies the hair with oil, food which it requires. WESLEY AND HIS BIBLE.

I have thought, I am a creature of a day, passing through life as an arrow through the air. I am a spirit come from God, just hovering over the great gulf, till a few moments hence I am no more seen. I drop into an unchangeable eternity. I want to know one thing—the way to heaven, how to land on that happy shore. God himself has condescended to teach the way; for this very end He came from heaven. He hath written it down in a book! Oh, give me that book! At any price, give me that book of God! I have it: here is knowledge enough for me. Let me be a man of one book. Here, then, I am, far from the busy ways of men. I sit down alone; only God is here. In His presence I open, I read this book; for this end—to find the way to heaven.—John Wesley.

JOHN WESLEY, READER AND PUBLISHER.

The Northwestern Christian Advocate says: "John Wesley was one of the most voluminous writers of his day, and wrote upon subjects of interest to the masses. But then, as now, the man of letters who succeeds financially is the exception. Wesley himself seems to have written and published for the pure love of it, and the good his printed message would do. Under date of March 8, 1756, he records in his journal: 'Wednesday and Thursday I settled my temporal business. It is now about eighteen years since I began writing and printing books; how much in that time have I gained by printing? Why, upon summing up my account, I found that upon March 1, 1756 (the day I left London last), I had gained, by printing and preaching together, a debt of 1236 pounds.'"

The Christian Endeavor Society has announced it to be its purpose to establish headquarters in Boston and to have extension secretaries to travel over the country in the interest of various kinds of Christian work. Dr. Ira Landrith, of Nashville, has been named as the first of these secretaries, and will labor in the South for the betterment of the young people of the Negro race.

SUDDEN DEATH

Caused by Disease of the Kidneys.

The close connection which exists between the heart and the kidneys is well known nowadays. As soon as kidneys are diseased, arterial tension is increased and the heart functions are attacked. When the kidneys no longer pour forth waste, uremic poisoning occurs, and the person dies and the cause is often given as heart disease, or disease of brain or lungs. It is a good insurance against such a risk to send 10 cents for a large trial package of "Anuric"—the latest discovery of Dr. Pierce. Also send a sample of your water. This will be examined without charge by expert chemists at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. When you suffer from backache, frequent or scanty urine, rheumatic pains here or there, or that constant tired, worn-out feeling, it's time to write Dr. Pierce, describe your symptoms and get his medical opinion—without charge and absolutely free. This "Anuric" of Dr. Pierce's is 37 times more active than lithia, for it dissolves uric acid in the system, as hot water does sugar.

Simply ask for Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. There can be no imitation. Every package of "Anuric" is sure to be Dr. Pierce's. You will find the signature on the package just as you do on Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the ever-famous friend to ailing women.

Worry, Despondency.

Kidney Disease is suspected by medical men when patients complain of backache or suffer with irregular urination, disturbed, too frequent, scanty or painful passage. The general symptoms are rheumatic pains or neuralgia, headaches, dizzy spells, irritability, despondency, weakness and general misery. Worry is a frequent cause and sometimes a symtom of kidney disease. Thousands have testified to Immediate relief from these symptoms after using Dr. Pierce's Anuric Kidney Tablets.

COAL FIELDS.

There are more than six thousand coal mines in the United States and more than six hundred thousand miners. At Thurber, Tex., a town of seven thousand people we have two workers. During a recent visit the Home Secretary went with the Head Resident of Marston Hall down one hundred and fifty feet into a coal mine. A walk in a tunnel of eight hundred feet gave a new sense of obligation to these men who dig and ship our coal. It was interesting to find a Methodist brother at the end of this tunnel hewing away at coal. Miss Denton's kindergarten for the little Italian and Mexican children of miners is a blessing to the community. It suits the mothers best for the kindergarten to be held in the afternoon, from two to five, while they prepare the dinners for the men. Miss Grace Jackson is winning a place also in the hearts of these foreign people.

McAlester District Coal Fields.

Despite the fact that it poured in torrents when the Secretary visited the coal field work in Oklahoma, she had an opportunity to ride over two of the largest coal mines at Hartshorne. Deaconess Laura Harris is at work making friends, and a sewing school and an English class have been organized. The Missionary Society at Hartshorne, with Mrs. Tuel as president, works with the deaconess as though under appointment. A harvest awaits these pioneers.

FORT WORTH WESLEY HOUSE.

Deaconess Smith says, "The world is my parish;" and if one stands on the front porch, it would seem even, so, for there are five thousand foreign-born people in her community. One block holds cottages of Greeks, another of Italians, another of Roumanians, and then Mexicans. During a recent visit to Texas the Home Secretary spent a day in this settlement and reports a rich field faithfully tilled by the deaconess. The public school teachers in this section co-operate with the Wesley House betterment work. One, Miss Boyd, makes her home at the Wesley House and helps in the English classes. A Sunday school of 150 persons stands as the fruit of this work. Deaconess May Wood, from Pennsylvania, is the kindergartener, and she falls into the work as though born a Southerner.

SAN ANTONIO WESLEY HOUSE.

The San Antonio Wesley House is located in a community of twenty-five thousand Mexicans. One hears only Spanish as she walks for squares. The young Mexican people held a "Jamaica" on the lawn recently which reproduced Mexico so literally that they all felt at home. The municipal band furnished music, and hundreds gathered to enjoy it and purchase goods. The City Board is to have a whirlwind campaign this month (November) to collect funds for a permanent property. Miss Ella Bowden, the Head Resident, has served this Board for four years and is known and loved by the "uptown" folks and the community. Miss Ella Butcher, the new kindergartner, has the inside track to the Mexican heart. She can speak Spanish like a native. She is assisted by a young Mexican girl who is apt and capable.

A GOSPEL SOCIETY IN WONSAN, KOREA.

It will be interesting to note what Miss Cooper writes of the Gospel Society: "We organized this society for the purpose of doing house-to-house visiting and personal work. This has been most successful, and now we have about as many as ten women who do this work voluntarily. On Sunday afternoon we meet for prayer before going out. The new women who have been brought in have been organized into a class and are being taught every Sunday after service. In order to help the women who have not yet learned to read, the women who can read have taken one or two women apiece to teach at any time they can. Before service, and after, on Sunday and Wednesday nights it is good to see the groups: some learning to read, and some who are too old to read are being taught the Lord's Prayer and the Apostles' Creed. In this way the help-one-another spirit is being increased."

DOMESTIC SCIENCE IN KOREA.

Some litle beginning of domestic science is under way in Korea, the demand having come from the Koreans themselves. The railroads are creating a demand for lunches, since people now travel all day. Koreans do not like the Japanese lunches for sale at stations; they cannot carry Korean food, but they find our bread and cake just the thing in such instances. The Koreans are wanting to learn how to make foreign bread, simple tea cakes, biscuits, tea, and coffee. They are already serving them in their homes.

OUR NEW MISSIONARIES IN JAPAN.

Fine reports come from Miss Charlie May Holland and Miss Annette Gist, who reached Japan in September. They have entered the Union Language School at Tokyo, and will be engaged in language study during the year.

OUTGOING MISSIONARIES.

Misses Mary Hood and Mary Tarrant, of Soochow, will return to their work the latter part of January, after a delightful and profitable furlough. Miss Hood is the superintendent of our Nurse-Training School in Soochow, and Miss Tarrant has charge of the Boys' School in connection with Davidson Memorial. They will be accompanied by Miss Leola H. King, who goes as a stenographer and bookkeeper for the work in West Soochow, and Miss Rosa Lowder, who has recently been appointed as a nurse to fill the much-needed place in our Union Hospital work at Songdo, Korea.

CONSECRATION OF MISS ROSA LOWDER.

The Virginia Conference held its annual meeting in Norfolk on October 26-29. At this time Miss Rosa Lowder was consecrated for the work of a foreign missionary by the pastor of the Epworth Church of that city. Miss Lowder is a graduate nurse and was a worker in the Louisville Wesley House for two years. She gave herself to Korea in response to a very special need which was presented to her by Miss Bennett and Miss Head. She is a daughter of one of our superannuated preachers in the North Carolina Conference, and is a young woman especially adapted to the calling which she has chosen. The processional was sung by a number of young women of the Norfolk Young Woman's Missionary Society, and the charge was given by Miss Bennett. The consecration of Miss Lowder was a great source of inspiration to that splendid body of Virginia women. The Norfolk District pledged $1000 for the salary and expenses of this new missionary.

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look Mother! If tongue is coated, cleanse little bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Calomel Makes You Sick, Ugh!

"Dodson's Liver Tone" better than calomel and can not Salivate.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

MINISTERS AND CHURCHES.

There are 186 denominations in the United States.

Fifteen of these have no regular ministry.

Sixty-nine pay no stated salaries.

The average salary of the ministers of all denominations is $663.

There are 49,167 more Protestant churches than the total of ordained ministers.

The average number of members in these churches is 104.

To house 146,000 Protestant ministers, 48,000 parsonages are provided.

While twelve denominations died between 1890 and 1906, thirteen more were born by division, and forty-eight new ones sprang up.

According to Government reports, the increase of students in the United States for a period of forty years (1870-1910) has shown these figures:

Theological students, all denominations, 238 per cent.

Law students, 1053 per cent.

Dental students, 2405 per cent.

The statistics for 1911 record an actual decrease of 178 theological students from the year preceding.—Central Christian Advocate.

THE CHARTERS OF OUR TWO NEW UNIVERSITIES.

In the report of the Educational Commission to the Annual Conferences the following statement concerning the charters of our two universities are made: "In the charter of Emory University it is specifically provided that 'All property, real or personal, that may be purchased or otherwise acquired by said corporation shall be received and held in trust; that it shall be used, kept, maintained, and disposed of for the educational purposes in this charter, set forth, subject to the discipline and usage of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, as from time to time authorized and declared by the General Conference of said Church.' It is further provided that the Board of Trustees may not take action contrary 'to any action that may be taken by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.' Its charter further provides that all its by-laws, rules, and regulations shall be in keeping with the 'laws, rules, resolutions, actions, or regulations now existing or that may hereafter be taken or adopted by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.' In the deed conveying the real estate owned by the university the property is made subject to the discipline and usage of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, as from time to time declared by the General Conference of said church.'

In the deed of gift by which Mr. Asa G. Candler, Sr., conveyed to the University an endowment fund of $1,000,000 the donor incorporated his letter sent to the Educational Commission on July 16, 1914, in which he declared that his gift was to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and this letter has become a part of his deed. In addition to incorporating his letter in his deed, the donor inserted in the deed the following language also: 'It is my intention and desire that should there ever arise any conflict or dispute between the said Emory University and the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the will of the said General Conference with reference to the management and disposition of said fund shall be supreme and shall be observed by the said Emory University.'

These particular statements are made that the Church may be informed of how perfectly this institution has been placed in the ownership and control of the Church. The charter may be amended in minor particulars before its final report to the General Conference, but the provisions by which the institution is given absolutely into the hands of the Church will not be modified in any way to make them less binding or authoritative in this particular. Experience may suggest some minor changes in the charter, and the General Conference itself, if it should judge necessary, may order changes in it; but no modifications will be made in the charter or in the deeds to both the real estate and the endowments by which any question can ever rise concerning the Church's ownership and control of the Institution.

Impressed on the official seal of Emory University are the words, 'Founded by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South,' that the perpetual ownership of the Church may be proclaimed in every diploma and other document issued by the institution.

The Southern Methodist University was established by a Commision of Education appointed by the Annual Conferences of Texas in 1910. Through the action of these Annual Conferences in 1911 its ownership and control by the Church were secured by charter provisions. In its name, as well as in its charter, its Churchly nature is defined. In the eighteenth section of the bill passed by the General Conference by which the Educational Commission was created are these words: 'We express the belief that there should be east of the Mississippi River one such institution and one such institution west of the Mississippi River; and in this connection we express our pleasure at the establishment by the membership of our Church in the State of Texas of the Southern Methodist University, situated and located in the city of Dallas, in said State, and commend such institution to the said Commission for its consideration.' When the General Conference took this action it was informed concerning the charter of the Southern Methodist University. In obeying the instructions of the General Conference concerning the institution the Educational Commission might have left the charter as it was when the General Conference took action upon the subject; for the Commission was authorized to take over any institution of higher education which had been established before that time, 'provided the ownership and control thereof be secured to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, or to some other governing body of the same, in perpetuity.' By its first charter the Southern Methodist University was thus secured to governing bodies of the Church in perpetuity. But in obedience to the suggestion of the General Conference the Institution was taken over by the Commission, and in order to give it a more connectional character it was thought best that its charter should be amended in some particulars. The charter has not yet been brought to its final form, but the Church may be well assured that this institution will be owned and controlled by the Church in perpetuity. In the light of the past experience of the Church, which need not be discussed in detail in this report, the Educational Commission has kept steadily in view and will not lose sight of the absolute ownership and control by the Church of its two universities."

Meat Cause of Kidney Trouble

Take Salts to flush Kidneys if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rhematic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

THE GREAT AND THE TRIVIAL.

A few years ago the leaders of the party offered the late Mayor Gaynor the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York. He had served a year as mayor, and had gained the approval of men of all parties. His popularity was at its height, partly on account of the recent attempt on his life by an insane man. Mayor Gaynor declined the nomination. A friend wrote to him urging him to reconsider, and asking him whether he had not overlooked the possibilities of the situation.

"You are certain to be elected governor by an overwhelming majority," the letter ran. "Then you will be the logical Democratic candidate for President at the next national convention. The Democratic candidate will be the next President of the United States. Do you realize what you are refusing?"

Mayor Gaynor answered his friend: "After a man has gone down into the valley of the shadow as I have and there faced the great realities, all those things seem mighty small!"

In order to see how small most of the things are for which we labor all our lives, it would perhaps be necessary for us too to "go down into the valley of the shadow." Pleasure—money—position—what are these things for which we strain our nerves and sap our strength and soil our souls? They look so big and desirable as we strive to gain them! In reality, they are so insignificant! It would be pleasant to have them all, of course, but no one needs one of them!

Some day we shall look back unconcerned whether we had any of them or not. They are not bad things, but they are such trivial things! And meanwhile the really great things are before us; things the value of which will appear greater and greater to us with the passing of time: Cleanness and Honesty and Unselfishness and GOD.

These are the necessary things in the life of everyone. If we gain them, what we lack does not matter.

For a cap and bells our lives we pay,
Bubbles we buy with a whole soul's tasking:
'Tis heaven alone that is given away,
'Tis only God may be had for the asking.

WHAT GRANDMOTHER USED.

Ninety-four years' use will certainly prove whether or not a remedy is what it is claimed to be. That is the test that Gray's Ointment has stood—successfully. The old folks all found it the most effective cure for sores, cuts, wounds, burns, boils, carbuncles and all eruptions and abrasions of the skin. "Please send me by return mail one box of the old Gray's Ointment," writes N. B. Hoofman, Stewart, Miss. "My father used it in his family 50 years ago, and for the purpose you recommend it there is nothing in the world equal to it." Keep a box in the house. RECKONING WITH RUM.

A thick-set, ugly looking fellow was seated on a hench in the public park, says an exchange, and seemed to he reading some writing on a sheet of paper which he held in his hand. "You seem to be much interested in your writing," I said.

"Yes, I've heen figuring my accounts with old Alcohol to see how we stand."

"And he comes out ahead, I suppose?"

"Every time."

"How did you come to have dealings with him in the first place?"

"That's what I've been writing. You see, he promised to make a man of me, but he made me a beast. Then he said he would hrace me up, but he made me go staggering around and then threw me into the ditch. He said I must drink to he social. Then he made me quarrel with my hest friends and he the laughing stock of my enemies. He gave me a hlack eye and a broken nose. Then I drank for the good of my health. He ruined the little I had, and left me sick as a dog."

"Of course."

"He said he would warm me up, and I was soon nearly frozen to death. He said he would steady my nerves. but instead he gave me delirium tremens. He said he would give me great strength, and he made me helpless."

"To be sure."

"He promised me courage."

"Then what followed?"

"Then he made me a coward, for I beat my sick wife and kicked my little sick child. He said he would brighten my wits, but instead he made me act like a fool and talk like an idiot. He promised to make a gentleman of me, but he made me a tramp."—Methodist Recorder.

A CHINESE FRANCES WILLARD.

Dr. Mary Stone, according to The Continent, has heen elected president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of China, and the world organization of the same society has named her superintendent of its anti-opium department. This talented Christian physician is one of the most remarkable of living women. Her father was an unusually progressive Chinaman who, twenty-five years ago, sent his daughter to America for a medical education. For nineteen years since her graduation and return to her native land she has managed a hospital in the old treaty port city of Kiukiang, on the Yangtse, and has done major surgery there with a steadiness and success that would have reflected credit on a master of the surgical art anywhere in the world. And at no time has her professional enthusiasm obscured her missionary spirit. The name which she uses when in this country—she is visiting here now—is not, of course, her native name—it is just a convenient translation of the words by which her own countrymen know her —"Shi Ma Lei." But The Continent does not state that Dr. Mary Stone is a medical officer of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. She is in charge of the Danforth Memorial Hospital, at Kiukiang, which treated 22,487 patients last year, as against 17,353 the year hefore.

"WE CAN."

It was the year 1190 B.C., more than three thousand years ago. It was the gloomy occasion of the spies' return to the camp of Israel. Ten of the spies who went up to view the land brought back an evil report. They said, "The land through which we have gone to search it is a land that eateth up the inhabitants thereof, and all the people that we saw in it are men of a great stature. And there we saw the giants, the sons of Anak, which come of the giants; and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so we were in their sight. And all the congregation lifted up their voice and cried; and the people wept that night." (Numbers 13.)

But Caleb, the son of Jephunneh, of the royal tribe of Judah, "stilled the people before Moses, and said, 'Let us go up at once and possess it, for we be well able to overcome it.'"

This brave and hopeful message of the heroic Caleb should be helpful to all who are entering upon any great and arduous enterprise, upon a new field, or upon a new period of their work. Such are the good people into whose homes this Advocate goes. Congregations and pastors are entering upon a new Conference year. Before them lies a beautiful land of promise. May they not be terrified by its frowning cities, its men of great stature, and its race of giants! And the bearing of Caleb should be a shining and compelling example to any who are appalled by difficulties, real or imagined, to any who weep, as it were, in their tents, and wail in despair when they should arise and gird themselves.

In this story of the spies' return to the camp of Israel we find character sketches of two widely different classes found in every community. For want of a single word which would describe each correctly a phrase must be employed. They are the men who say, "We can," and the men who say, "We can't."

The ten spies belonged to the latter class. They passed through a goodly land, which they found "flowing with milk and honey." They found it to be well worth the taking, and they cut off a great bunch of grapes at the brook Eshcol and bore it back to the camp to prove their report. But they declared it was impossible to take the land. All the men who dwelt there were men of great stature. It was also inhabited by a race of giants. And they lived in cities surrounded and defended by great and frowning walls. It was an evil report. And there are many men of to-day whose oft-repeated phrase is, "We can't."

Doubtless there were men before the time of the wicked spies who were ready to say of any great enterprise, "It can't be done." And since that time there have been others to say of any worthy undertaking, "You can't do it."

And these men are nearly always in the majority. As the ten spies outnumbered Caleb and Joshua, so the prophets of evil often outnumber the seers of hope. And the men who say, "We can," have to meet and overcome the opposition of the majority as well as the real difficulties confronting them.

According to a former Governor of Louisiana, these two classes of men were found in the earliest age of the world, while men still dressed in the skins of wild beasts and lived in dens and caves of the earth. And one of them grew tired of dressing in skins and declared that he was going to spin and weave a better garment, of texture more soft and beautiful. And another fellow said, "You can't do it." But the purple of kings and the pictured fabrics and tapestries of beauty have long since given the falsehood to that early prophet of failure who tried to discourage the first weaver and who preferred to wrap his mantle of rough skin about him and lie down to idle dreams. And the first weaver, greatly encouraged by his more comfortable and more beautiful garment, said he was tired of living in dark dens and caves of the earth, and he declared he was going to build a house in which to dwell. But the other fellow, nothing changed by his neighbor's success at weaving, shrank deeper into his rough old garment of skin, like a turtle withdrawing into his shell, and he said, "You can't do it." But, convinced at last, he was the first man to come along and ask to spend the night in the optimist's new home. Since then, splendid palaces and stately temples have adorned the cities of men, giving the falsehood to the evil prophecies of that ancient pessimist.

The name of those who say "We can't" is legion, but the indomitable spirit which has sprung eternal in the breasts of those who say "We can" has led the races into lands of promise. Men no longer dress in skins, nor dwell in dens and caves of the earth. "Still stands the forest primeval;" still the eagle, king of birds and child of the sun, builds his nest on the lofty crags; the bespangled tiger yet hunts his prey in the jungles of India; rivers wind on in age-worn channels to the sea; and the planets still circle around the sun as they have done from time immemorial. But man, who has said "I can," has gone on, ever upward, ever achieving, ever bearing on his banner the strange device, "Excelsior!" And he has led the races with him. And, though he be found at last, amid the drifting snows of the highest heights, still grasping "in his hands of ice" a banner with the strange device, "Excelsior!" he opens a passage through mountain fastnesses, to beautiful valleys and sunny plains beyond. The men who say "We can't" are defeated before they strike a blow. They say "We can't do it" before they have tried. It is bad to see men run away before they strike a blow.

Those who say "We can" are not willing to admit the impossibility of a task until they have at least bravely tried, until they have done their best. In the crisis of a battle of the Mexican War the American general asked a commander of cavalry if he could take the Mexican guns. The laconic reply is worthy of note, "I'll try, sir." The guns were taken.

There is an unconquerable spirit which has often snatched victory from defeat and has wrought what other men said could not be done. When a man has such a spirit as that he will either do or die. There is no half way ground for him. He will scale the highest peak of the Alps, or he will be found, cold and dead, near the summit. The man who determines that he will do something in the realm of possibility, no matter how hard it is, has done much toward accomplishing that result. For he has thoroughly committed himself to the task.

The man who says "I can't" will finally suffer from complete palsy of the will. It is an evil disease which cannot be surpassed for misery and for woe. Tragic is paralysis of the body. Sometimes a man, seemingly in perfect health, stricken with paralysis, becomes as impotent as the man, borne of four and let down through the roof into the presence of the Master. But the mind may remain perfectly clear, and the imperial will may chafe against the bonds of bodily impotence. Cerebro-spinal meningitis, as its name indicates, affects the brain and spinal cord, and may sometimes result in some form of paralysis. The palsy of the will results from a kind of cerebro-spinal meningitis of the moral and spiritual nature. It darkens the mind, fills it with gloomy forebodings and hopeless misgivings, and, reaching the spine, it affects his backbone—destroys one's moral courage and brings on paralysis of the moral and spiritual powers. As laborers in the Master's vineyard, let us guard against this insidious disease.

Caleb and Joshua were strong, not only in their imperial wills, but in their faith in God. And the determined consecration of one's powers unto God and daily trust in him for help should make an optimist in the highest and best sense. Above all men, the followers of Christ should be great optimists. They have a great God who has promised that the gates of hell shall not prevail against his Church. And if we are thoroughly committed to his plans, we should not be doubtful of the outcome.

More than three thousand years ago the Israelites halted on the boundary of the land of promise. There is some analogy between them and us to-day. The pastors and congregations in Mississippi and Louisiana stand on the border of a new land—another Conference year. The optimism of Caleb has a message for us. If we, like that mighty warrior of Judah, will consecrate our lives to God's service and look to him for guidance, we might be inspired by the right kind of optimism to enter boldly into a goodly land, which we are well able to overcome.

R. H. H.

Love is but faith in its supreme and perfect form. It is the impassioned expression on the face of faith. There is but one attitude of conformity to the will of God, and that is faith; a faith that, being itself an act of will and obedience, always works outward into love.—P. T. Forsyth.

A PASTORAL ADDRESS BY THE BISHOPS.

Dearly Beloved Preachers and Laymen of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South:

The late semi-annual meeting of the College of Bishops devoted the entire session to considering the spiritual needs of our beloved Church and authorized the preparation of a pastoral address by the Senior Bishop. We were confronted by a startling world-war, with the arrest of civilization and the serious discounting of our Christianity, with all the combatants, save one, professing our own religion. Never in human history have so many been engaged in deadly combat, with the slain in battle actually numbered by millions, to say nothing of other millions of wounded and fever-stricken wasting in hospitals. All the appliances of our civilization are now being employed to take human life, whether on land or sea, or beneath the water, or in the air, not only deadly weapons formed to carry missiles of destruction, but hand-grenades and deadly gases and liquid fire and highly charged wire entanglements are torturing men to death after ruthlessly destroying their finest works of architecture ereeted for plaees of Christian worship. The multiplied billions of war debts promise to arrest our civilization for a eentury, while the bitter hate engendered is making men unmindful of a common humanity. The inevitable effect of certain economic laws involves our own land in the world-wide war and its effeets, although happily our nation may escape its actual atrocities, save so far as innocent travelers become the victims of submarines destroying the carriers of commeree on the high seas. Never were our missionaries more needed to preach the gospel of peace in heathen lands than when the Prince of Peace is so misrepresented by professed Christians engaged in barbaric war on the battlefields of the world, involving all of the five continents in the call to arms.

All this is, however, not a reason for despair but rather a challenge to faith, as a hundred years ago the French Revolution and the Napoleonic wars which laid Europe waste were immediately followed by the founding of the world's greatest missionary and Bible soeieties both in England and America, which for a century have been growing in power and achievements, the mightiest agencies for the conversion of the world. The answer of faith was given in twenty-five years of the greatest equipment for the extension of the kingdom of our Lord following the period of the greatest waste of human life and resources, until now, in human history. The Christian Church eame to itself when Satan seemed most defiant and even triumphant. Our challenge now is to gird ourselves for new and greater efforts as we sow the seeds of the kingdom in the furrows of revolutions. The Son of God is leading a mightier army than all the militant forces of the world. By this sign we conquer, as we give as never before for the spread of our gospel in all the world, and see the heathen nations bending before the God we love.

We are reminded that before our next meeting we are ealled to celebrate the Centennial of the triumphant close of the heroic life of Bishop Francis Asbury, who in 1816 laid down his life at the head of 700 itinerant preachers and 211,000 Methodists, having preached in our land 16,000 sermons, held 224 Conferences and ordained over 4000 preachers. Reared in Staffordshire, England, where Charles Wesley distinguished the houses of Methodists by the marks of mob violence, Asbury gave forty-five years of his life in planting Methodism in Ameriea, its most fruitful field. At a time when British Methodism seemed arrested by controversy, the call to America was sounded out by John Wesley at Brlstol, and two young men volunteered for serviee. After fifty stormy days upon the Atlantic, Asbury gave himself to his new field, never to return. Loyal to the land of his adoption all during the Amerlcan Revolutlon, he was among the first to pledge his prayers to Washington in behalf of the new country to which he had given his life and apostolic labors. It is ours to recall and make even more effective his ministry of a century ago as we address ourselves to the work demanded of Methodism following another crisis in the history of the race.

Bishop Asbury, although founding the first Sunday school in America in 1788, did most of his preaching to adults who had been much neglected. Population was sparse in his day, single commonwealths now numbering as much as the whole population of the country then, and even twice as great in some instances. It required a wide reach of "gospel-ranging," as Whitefield called it, to gather in the 200,000 souls that made our Amerlean census a hundred years ago. Collections for missions were few and feeble and the spirit of connectionalism was weak. Now Methodism in America has 6,000,000 in her Sunday schools alone, from whom come yearly ninety per cent of her ehureh members. In a single branch of the Methodist Church in our land during the last eight years more than 1,400,000 Sunday school scholars have been converted to Christ, and more than $5,000,000 have been contributed by the Sunday schools to missions and other benevolences. In our own Church we now have 1,575,845 Sunday sehool scholars, an lncrease of 95,868 during the last year, but we still lack 457,164 in order that our Sunday school enrollment may equal our enrollment of church members. We urge that diligent effort be made at once to fill this gap, and that despite our growing Church membership (with a net gain last year of 36,132), we may soon be able to report an equal Sunday school enrollment. This will mean the recovery of the thousands of adolescents who no longer attend, but who so greatly need the fostering care of the teacher as well as the pastor, as well as the addition of thousands of all ages who may thus be brought under the gracious influence of the study of the Holy Scriptures, which may make them wise unto salvation. The new definltion of the Sunday school will thus be found in "the whole Chureh studying the Word of God." Then with a passion for souls on the part of pastors and teachers the annual increase of Church members should reaeh not less than 100,000. Less than this we dare not rest satisfied to achieve, and that would be less than a five per cent increase in our membership. Mr. Wesley was right when he sald, "The future of Methodism depends on what we do for our children." The well-being of the child is the measure of the stability of both Church and State as well as of the family.

With the family as the unit of soclety, we feel deeply concerned about family religion as seen in the diminishing number of family altars which pastoral fidellty reveals, and the consequent lessened religious actlvlty of the heads of families and the neglected mld-week services of the Church. The secular paper can not supply the place in the home of the church paper with its bulletins of advance and of vlctory from the front. Our official brethren are poorly equipped who do not take and read our religious papers. Our young need to know what the Church is doing of which they form a part. The fifteen per cent of our membership that are really doing the work of the Church are usually lts reading members, who keep posted about the forward movements of the kingdom. We need to put more of our lntellects lnto the work of the Lord, who bids us love with all the mind as well as all the heart and all the strength. All things are yours if we use them for the extenslon of the kingdom. When al the people have a mind to the work, it is due to the knowledge of the needs of the work and the recognized and accepted call to service. The unlnformed are the uninspired and the unwllling. Our divlne Lord must be Lord of all if he be Lord at all.

Our supreme duty as a Chureh ls to obey the last command of our Lord to give the gospel to every creature. Thls means evangelism both at home and abroad. Nothlng can take the place of the Lord's divinely appointed means for the world's conversion, the gospel that ls the power of God unto salvation. The urgency of this command was never greater than now. All nations are ready to hear the gospel at our mouth and the houses of worship are found too small everywhere to seat the people who are begging to be taught. Have we not come into the kingdom for such a time as this? The claims upon our means and serviee have grown with the terrible war now being waged. We are charged with extending "the kingdom without frontiers." That kingdom is the only permanent kingdom and it is ours to establish it in the earth. This ls the only thing that is worth while and that challenges our constant faith and prayers and work.

Signed on behalf of the College of Bishops,

EUGENE R. HENDRIX, Senior Bishop.

THE CHARACTER OF ST. PAUL.

By Rev. W. S. Harrison.

Here is a man whose character deserves the elosest study. He was one among the few greatest men. Let us note the characteristics which made him such.

1. He was educated. In this he was probably equal to any man of his time. In the use of the Greek language he was to the manner born, and was extensively versed in Grecian literature. This is shown by the facility with which he used the language, and his constant references to Greelan customs and Grecian ideas. All the indieations are that he was trained in the Grecian schools of his native city Tarsus, "no mean city," a Roman colony, whose cosmopolitan citizens spoke Greek, and many of them other tongues; and whose civic life was fully up to the standard of that age.

In that country many languages were used, and most learned men spoke several different tongues. Paul was gifted in this regard. "I thank my God that I speak with tongues more than ye all." Not that he excelled in the jargon which resulted from the rhapsodies of those claiming to speak unknown tongues, by inspiration of the Holy Spirit. This was a gift conferred upon the Apostles, and some others in the early Church; but was manifestly very suseeptible of abuse. The Apostle was trying to restrain an undue tendeney of this kind, and commended his own example of always speaking to people in the language they understood, though he was master of many tongues.

His edueation was eompleted in the school of Gamaliel at Jerusalem. Here he was trained especially in all Jewish learning. The exclusive spirit which prevailed in Jerusalem at this time created an atmosphere about this sehool which was not calculated to liberalize the mind or broaden the intellectual view. The tendency was to foster intolerant egotism. It turned Paul out an exclusive Pharisee of the strietest order. But there was an opposite tendency. This grew out of the wide range of its patronage. The men who came to this school from the Dispersion, that is, from the Jewish centers in every part of the world, came with broader views and more liberal ideas than could be expected of the Jews in and about Jerusalem. Paul profited much by his contact with the outer world. His training evidently places him among those who are entitled to be classed as the university-bred men of that age.

2. He was one of the profouudest thinkers of all time. His mind was lumiuously clear, and his thoughts came forth with the polish and dynamic force whieh stamped them as the products of the finest intellect.

3. He was a man of gigantic faith. His reasoning power and his faith eomplemented eaeh other. The one could not have existed with the same degree of perfection without the other. Correct reasoning, clear thinking, and acute perception, divest faith of every vestige of superstition; while great faith lifts the mind, the thinking faculty, up to the higher altitudes of being. They are like the companion wings of the giant eagle, by which he soars far above the fogs and clouds of earth.

4. He was a man of an earnest nature, and consequently of clear and deep convictions. Such a man must take life seriously. He cannot be as the reed shaken by the wind, or as the weather vane varying with the breeze of every passing fad.

5. His courage and integrity were invincible. Consequently he stood by his convictions even unto death.

6. He was intensely religious; mindful at all times of his personal responsibility to God. For such a man conscience is quick, sensitve, always alert. It is a monitor that must be heeded, a voice that must be heard, a guide with index finger pointing true to duty, as the needle points to the pole.

These qualities made Paul what he was. We naturally think of him in connection with such men as Moses, David, Socrates, Confucius, Bhudda, and Zoroaster; men who have loomed high in shaping the thought of the world. It is most significant and extremely felicitous that such men have appeared at the important junctures of time when they were most needed.

But in anything like equal measure Paul can be compared only to Moses. These two greatest men living fifteen centuries apart are singularly related: the one laboring at the beginning, and the other at the close of Jewish national life; the one receiving the law, the other explaining the gospel; the one predicting the Messiah to come, the other interpreting the life and teaching of the Messiah already come.

These two characters standing at the most important junctures of history in the world's progress of thought and development, reaching the highest altitude of human genius, may be compared to towering piers, tall and comely, standing one at either end of the providential bridge spanning the difficult centuries over which the destinies of the world safely passed to the higher ground of Christian thought.

The great work of Paul was his interpretation of the life and teaching of Jesus. Jesus is the Christ, was the central thought of the gospel which he preached to both Jews and Gentiles. Jesus of Nazareth is the Prophet foretold by Moses, the Messiah sung by David, the Great Sufferer so luminously outlined by Isaiah. Of Him all the prophets were redolent, and all sacrificial worship was adumbrative.

Around this great central truth cluster the important doctrines of sin, the atonement, justification, the spiritual new birth, sanctification, and glorification, as the work of God for men; and repentance, faith, and perseverance in every good work, as the duty of man towards God. Above all looms the great fact of the ever-present God, the Great Invisible, touching every human soul, powerful to save each contrite sinner and to comfort every troubled saint. God, independent of all things, yet immanent in all nature, the archetype and author of all things, showing his handiwork in all created existence; "for the invisible things of him, from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and godhead; so they (all the people of the world) are without excuse." In him all things are contained, "for in him we live and move and have our being."

The marvelous fact that God had, in the man Jesus, now at last appeared in human life, and with human eyes had looked on our woes, with human ears had heard our cries, and with human sympathy had felt our sorrows; and with beneficent goodness and almighty power was ready to pardon our sins and give us a life of purity; putting it to every man either to accept or reject the offered mercy—these are the living thoughts with which Paul stirred the world.

To many of the Jews this gospel was a stumbling block. They would not receive it, and yet it was so consonant with their Scriptures that they could not reasonably deny it. Consequently it blocked their way, and stumbled them into spiritual blindness. To the Greeks who blindly refused to believe, it was a riddle, a mystery; to their unreason it was foolishness. But to those whose minds were open to receive it, both Jews and Greeks, "it was the power of God and the wisdom of God." Power to save from sin, and wisdom to clear the mysteries of providence, making clear both the justice and love of God toward men; thus matching in perfect harmony the loftiest faith and clearest reason.

Thus furnished with a theology which satisfies both faith and reason, Paul encountered the systems of thought prevalent in his age. In the light of his strong conviction and clear reasoning, the ancient systems melted like snow at the coming of spring.

Starkville, Miss.

North Mississippi Conference.

By Rev. J. J. Baird.

First Day—Wednesday, Dec. 1.

The forty-sixth annual session of the North Mississippi Conference, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, met in the progressive town of New Albany, Miss., on Dec. 1, 1915, Bishop James Atkins presiding.

The Conference was called to order at 9 o'clock by Bishop Atkins, and hymn No. 233 was sung, after which the Bishop asked Rev. J. E. Thomas to administer the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, which he did, being assisted by Revs. John Ritchey, J. M. Wyatt, J. W. Price, W. M. Young, and J. A. Randolph.

The roll was called by J. R. Countiss, Secretary of the last Conference, which showed an unusually large number of preachers and laymen present.

J. R. Countiss was elected Secretary, and upon his nomination E. S. Lewis was elected assistant. J. J. Baird and A. T. McIlwain were elected Statistical Secretaries and V. C. Curtis Railroad Secretary.

The hours for meeting and adjournment were fixed—it being decided to meet at 9 a.m. and adjourn at 12 m. The bar of the Conference was fixed so as to include the main auditorium.

The following committees were nominated by the presiding elders and duly confirmed by the Conference: Public Worship, J. H. Mitchell, Chairman; Spiritual Interests, L. P. Wasson, Chairman; Temperance, J. H. Felts, Chairman; District Conference Records, J. R. Bingham, Chairman; Sabbath Observance, A. H. Williams, Chairman; Books and Periodicals, H. G. Henderson, Chairman; Conference Relations, W. C. Galceran, Chairman; Memoirs, J. H. Smith, Chairman.

The following substitutions were made on the Quadrennial Boards: A. W. Langley vice J. E. Gault, on the Board of Missions; J. M. Bradley vice I. D. Borders and J. T. Mathews vice R. P. Dunn, on the Sunday School Board.

Various communications were referred to the several Boards and Committees, and sundry announcements were made with reference to the time and place of meeting of the several Quadrennial Boards.

Bishop Atkins called Question 22, "Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration," and asked the preachers to make their reports brief and to the point. The Bishop stated that this might apply to the presiding elders as well.

J. W. Bell, presiding elder of the Aberdeen District, reported 625 additions, with a net gain of about 400. Several good revivals; finances ahead of last year; built one new church and some church debts paid.

W. W. Woollard reported for the Columbus District a net gain of about 400; Conference collections fifteen per cent in advance of last year; pastors' salaries about as good as last year; Sunday schools and Woman's Missionary Societies all in fine condition.

J. H. Mitchell, of the Corinth District, reported this the best year of the four he had served as presiding elder of the District. Two new churches have been built; several splendid revivals held and the district was stated to be in good shape.

W. S. Shipman reported that the material interests of the Durant District were ahead of last year. Four churches and 2 parsonages have been built; 850 additions to the Church.

The Greenville District was reported by H. S. Spragins as having had a net increase of about 400 in membership; ten charges had paid in full; small deficits in the other of the charges; Sunday school interests in good condition; District had a good year.

R. A. Tucker reported 500 additions in the Holly Springs District; pastors' salaries about as good as last year, with Conference collections considerably in advance of last year; there are more Sunday schools and better schools than last year.

J. W. Dorman, of the Sardis District, reported an increase of 500 in membership, with several good revivals; built one church, and several churches and parsonages repaired.

B. P. Jaco reported that more than $50,000 had been raised for all purposes in the Winona District; the charges had paid all claims in full; one church had been built and some paid on church debts in the district.

A telegram from Bishop R. G. Waterhouse, sending love to the brethren, and asking for an interest in the prayers of the Conference, was received by Bishop Atkins.

Upon motion the Secretary was instructed to send Bishop Waterhouse a telegram conveying to him the love, sympathy, and prayers of the North Mississippi Conference.

The following were introduced to the Conference: Mr. I. E. Campbell and Dr. Wilson, of the Publishing House; Rev. Mr. McHill, of the local Baptist Church, Dr. Crowell, active vice-president of the Southern Assembly at Junaluska, N. C., Dr F. S. Parker, Epworth League Secretary, Rev. J. A. Bowen, of the North Alabama Conference; Rev. R. A. Clark, of the Memphis Conference, and Mr. Chas. O. Chalmers, publisher of the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

The Conference adjourned with the benediction by Rev. G. W. Bachman.

Second Day—Thursday, Dec. 2.

The Conference convened at 9 o'clock, with Bishop Atkins in the chair.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. E. S. Lewis, who announced hymn 317, which was sung by the congregation. The Scripture lesson for the morning was read by Brother Lewis from the 12th chapter of Luke.

The minutes of the previous day's session were read and approved.

The roll of absentees was called, and, on motion, further roll call was dispensed with.

W. N. Dodds, J. M. Carpenter, D. R. Wasson, C. T. Floyd, F. H. McGee, W. W. Bruner, I. F. Holland, and J. H. Brooks, having traveled two years, and also having passed satisfactory examinations on the course of study, were elected deacons.

E. M. Shaw, T. J. Hopper, T. E. Gregory, and W. O. Wagoner were elected elders.

J. J. Smylie, J. T. Murrah, and A. T. Moore were discontinued at their own requests.

Upon motion, the Conference asked the chair to appoint a Committee on Equalization, whose duty it would be to provide for a more equitable distribution of the several assessments levied upon the Conference by the General Boards; and the Chair named W. L. Duren, J. C. Park, T. H. Dorsey, and Dr. W. T. Johnson as members of this Committee.

The name of J. T. Lockhart was referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for the supernumerary relation.

The Conference requested the Secretary to send Mrs. L. C. Short, of Como, Miss., a message of love and sympathy. Mrs. Short has been prominent in the work of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Conference for several years, and all were grieved to know of her ill health.

Chaplain J. A. Randolph, of the United States army, a member of the Conference, spoke a few words of farewell, in which he expressed his love for the North Mississippi Conference and his fondness for the brethren, and asked the prayers of the Conference for himself and his work among the soldier boys.

R. H. Ruff, in the Class of the First Year, was received by transfer from the North Georgia Conference.

Dr. Geo. H. Crowell, of the Southern Assembly at Lake Junaluska, N. C., addressed the Conference in the interest of that enterprise and asked for subscriptions to the stock which they are now placing. A number of the members of the Conference are stockholders.

The following were introduced to the Conference: Rev. Robert Selby, of the Mississippi Conference; Rev. W. Fred Long, General Secretary of the State Sunday School Association; Rev. H. M. Ellis, agent for the Methodist Hospital; Dr. E. H. Rawlings, Educational Secretary of the Board of Missions; Dr. J. S. Frazer, representing Emory University, at Atlanta, and Rev. G. A. Klein, a well-known evangelist, from Nashville, Tenn.

Dr. Bray, Secretary of Education of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church, was introduced to the Conference and spoke in the interest of the educational work of that Church. An appeal was made for aid in this work, which was heartily and liberally responded to.

The hour for adjournment having arrived, the Doxology was sung, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. J. W. Bell.

Third Day—Friday, Dec. 3.

Bishop Atkins called the Conference to order at 9 o'clock, and asked Rev. J. W. Bell to conduct the morning worship. The congregation joined in singing "Blessed Assurance, Jesus is Mine," and after the Scripture lesson from the fifth chapter of Matthew, Brother Bell led the congregation in prayer.

After reading the minutes of the previous day's session, the Bishop called Question 1, "Who are admitted on trial," and the following, having passed satisfactory examinations and having been recommended by the committee on examinations, were admitted on trial: S. J. [illegible], J. C. Lord, C. A. Parks, and C. D. McGehee, [illegible]

Durant District; W. C. Beasley and W. I. White, of the Corinth District; R. G. Moor, of the Holly Springs District; and S. H. Caffer and A. J. Beasley, of the Winona District.

W. B. Alexander, a local preacher in the Winona District, was elected elder.

Rev. Robert Selby, of the Mississippi Conference, addressed the body in the interest of the Seashore Divinity School, urging upon the Conference hearty co-operation in that work.

The report of the Committee on Lay Activities was read and adopted, and the Conference requested the editor of the New Orleans Advocate to give this a place in its pages as early as may be convenient.

The Sunday School Board presented Report No. 1, which was adopted. In this report the work of Rev. R. H. B. Gladney was highly commended, and a request was made for his reappointment.

Report No. 1 of the Board of Education was read by E. S. Lewis, in which plans were proposed for a campaign to raise $50,000 for Grenada College, and the Bishop was requested to appoint Rev. B. P. Jaco as financial commissioner to carry out the plans of the Board.

The name of Eugene Johnson was referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for the superannuate relation.

The following were introduced: Rev. Mr. Wesson, pastor of the Baptist Church in this city; Rev. W. M. McIntosh, of Iuka; Dr. McKenney, of Texas, representing our Washington City Church; Dr. A. F. Watkins, Dr. J. M. Sullivan, and Prof. Harrell, of Millsaps College.

The report of Dr. Watkins, Millsaps' President, was referred to the Board of Education.

The hour for adjournment having arrived, the Doxology was sung, and the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Watkins.

Saturday—Morning Session.

According to previous announcement, the Wisdom Sisters, of Macon, Mo., led the Conference in a prayer and praise service, singing several beautiful songs, to the delight and inspiration of the large audience present to hear them.

Promptly at 9 o'clock Bishop Atkins called the Conference to order for routine business.

The Secretary read the minutes of the previous day's session, which were approved.

Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick, field worker, and A. L. Dietrich, Divisional Secretary, were introduced.

L. W. Cain was located at his own request.

T. J. Durrett and W. A. Clark having died during the year, their names were referred to the Committee on Memoirs.

W. N. Dodds, I. F. Holland, D. R. Wasson, J. H. Brooks, C. T. Floyd, W. W. Bruner, and J. H. McGee, having been for two years in the traveling itinerancy and having passed a satisfactory examination on the Course of Study, were called to the altar, and, having answered satisfactorily the disciplinary questions, were admitted into full connection.

A. S. Raper, J. J. Baird, and G. A. Baker were elected elders.

The name of W. J. Bush was referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for the supernumerary relation.

J. H. Sherard and T. H. Dorsey were elected to succeed themselves as trustees of the Orphans' Home.

At this period, several Boards and Committees submitted their reports, which were adopted after reading.

Rev. J. B. Randolph, Superintendent of the Orphans' Home, and Rev. H. M. Ellis, agent for our Memphis Hospital enterprise, addressed the body with reference to the needs of these great causes.

Question 52 was called—"Where shall the next Conference be held?" Winona was nominated, and Prof. Harrell, of Millsaps College, extended an invitation from Jackson to hold our session in that city at the same time that the Mississippi Conference is to convene. A note of thanks was extended for this very kind invitation, but it was deemed impracticable for several reasons, and the invitation was declined. Winona was then unanimously chosen.

W. H. Mounger presented, in the name of the Conference, a handsome gold fountain pen to P. T. Callicott, who has been for many years the faithful and efficient treasurer of the Joint Board of Finance.

After the announcements for Sunday had been made, and a song by the Wisdom Sisters, the Conference adjourned to meet at 3 o'clock for an afternoon session. The benediction was pronounced by Bishop Atkins.

Afternoon Session.

Following a selection by the Wisdom Sisters and a prayer, the Conference came to order and the minutes of the morning session were read and approved.

Dr. S. D. Long, president of Martha Washington College, was introduced to the Conference.

R. L. Ellis, an elder from the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., was admitted into the Conference as a traveling preacher.

Some time was consumed by the reading of reports of various boards, all of which were adopted without discussion.

W. W. Woollard offered a resolution pertaining to the New Orleans Christian Advocate, in which a plan was proposed for securing at least 3500 new subscribers, 1300 to be secured in the North Mississippi Conference. The resolution was adopted and pastors and presiding elders called upon to lend their aid in this laudable undertaking.

Captain Ratliff, of Jackson, president of the Mississippi Anti-Saloon League, was introduced and spoke along lines of prohibition and temperance.

Dr. H. G. Henderson presented a handsome silk umbrella to J. W. Dorman, who has served his full term of four years as presiding elder of the Sardis District. This gift was by the preachers of the district and was very highly prized by Brother Dorman.

D. M. Gean was discontinued at his own request.

On motion the Conference adjourned to meet in final session Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

(The final installments of Brother Baird's admirable report of the Conference proceedings, for some reason, have not reached us. This number of our paper is already a day late; hence we have concluded to let them await our issue of next week.—Editor of the Advocate).

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By the Editor.

Bishop Atkins appears to be a "corker." The cabinet did not seem to leak.

Not even the charms of Florida could keep Rev. C. P. Moss away from North Mississippi. We are happy to have him come back. There is always room for such as he.

The Publishing House was represented by Mr. I. E. Campbell and Dr. R. P. Wilson. These brethren are favorites with the members of the North Mississippi Conference.

The most honored visitor in New Albany was Rev. D. L. Cogdell. It was he who planted Methodism there. The twig that he nurtured has grown into a lusty tree, rich in its fruitage.

Evangelist G. A. Klein, of Nashville, and W. D. Bass, of Corinth, looked in on the Conference.

We hope that they will help to set it aflame with revival fire during the coming year.

The collections were considerably better than they were last year. Upon an assessment only $400 larger than in 1914, the receipts of the Board of Education were about $1000 more. We suppose that the other boards fared correspondingly well.

Dr. J. W. Boswell was unable to attend the Conference, but sent a brotherly message. Not a few were disappointed in not getting to look into his face and grasp his hand again. The brethren hold him in the highest esteem.

The presentation of a handsome fountain pen to Mr. P. T. Callicott, of Coldwater, who for years has been the efficient treasurer of the Joint Board of Finance, was a fitting testimonial of appreciation of the faithful service which he has rendered. Nowhere can a truer or worthier layman be found.

On Tuesday evening, before the assembling of the Conference on Wednesday, a meeting of the Conference Historical Society was held. The Veterans' Association held its annual meeting on Wednesday at 3 p. m., the sermon of the occasion, which was an informing discourse, being delivered by Rev. G. W. Bachman.

Rev. J. A. Bowen was cordially welcomed by the brethren. He was transferred back to the North Mississippi Conference, where most of his ministerial life has been spent, and was made a Conference evangelist. We scarcely need to say that we are glad to have him back home. His address will he Tupelo, Miss.

We were delighted to see Rev. W. M. McIntosh, of Iuka, again. He preached some sermons that made a profound impression during the Conference session. Brother McIntosh has been doing revival work principally in Oklahoma and Texas during the past year and his labors have been wonderfully blessed. He is a man of unusual spiritual power.

It looked like old times to see Rev. J. M. Bradley moving about the Conference room. After several years spent in Missouri, where he wrought with a marked degree of success, he has come back to his home State and Conference. He does not look a day older than when he left, and we trust that he will hereafter be content to live and die in Mississippi.

Congressman H. D. Stephens, who represents the district in which New Albany is situated, mingled freely with the ministers and lay delegates to the Conference. He is an esteemed Methodist layman himself and is known to feel much interest in the work of his Church. He left on Saturday afternoon for Washington, to be present at the opening of Congress.

Bishop Atkins placed five men in the presiding eldership who were not serving in that capacity last year. They are Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, Rev. J. H. Felts, Rev. T. H. Dorsey, Rev. J. H. Holder, and Rev. W. W. Mitchell. The first three have seen service of this kind before, but the last two are new men in this sphere of work. Taken as a whole, they are a strong body of men and may be expected to give a good account of themselves in leading the hosts of Israel.

Notwithstanding the loss of their large hotel a few days before the Conference met, the people of New Albany entertained all the delegates and visitors in an admirable manner. The crops in the surrounding country were good this year, and the town is prosperous and progressive. It has many beautiful residences, a large number of substantial business houses, and a fine court-house with all the modern appointments. Rev. S. L. Pope made an ideal Conference host. The members of his congregation are devoted to him and were most insistent upon his return.

The Publisher of the Advocate, Brother C. O. Chalmers, and Rev. S. B. Myers were sheltered in the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest M. Owen. Their attentive host and hostess spared no pains in ministering to their comfort, and Brother Chalmers brought away with him recollections of his stay beneath their hospitable roof that will long abide, as also no doubt did Brother Myers. The bright son and daughter of the household, Master Walton and Miss Virginia Owen, about 14 and 12 years of age respectively, contributed not a little toward making the tarrying of its guests a delight.

Quite a number of the veterans of the Conference were in attendance upon its sessions. We noted the presence of Rev. J. D. Newsom of Shuqualak, Rev. C. N. Terry of Memphis, Dr. T. C. Wier of Starkville, Rev. T. Cameron of New Albany, Rev. S. M. Thames of Jackson, Rev. J. W. Anderson of Mt. Pleasant, Tex., and Rev. H. C. Morehead of Sidon. The brethren were glad to see these worthy men who have contributed so largely to the making of North Mississippi Methodism, and those of them who made statements on the floor of the Conference were listened to with rapt attention.

Millsaps College was well represented at the Conference, President Watkins, Dr. J. M. Sullivan, and Prof. G. L. Harrell being present. It is a matter of regret that in the rush of work no one of these brethren was given an opportunity to speak concerning the conditions and needs of the excellent institution with which they are connected, which is the pride of Mississippi Methodism. The failure to have them to do so was, of course, a wholly unintenional oversight. Dr. Watkins' report, which was referred to the Board of Education, showed that Millsaps College has the largest number of students in the college classes in its entire history.

One of the outstanding features of the Conference was the singing of the Wisdom Sisters, of Macon, Missouri. These three young ladies are vocalists of rare power and their rendition of many of the sweet songs of Zion stirred profoundly the overflowing audiences that heard them. Every word could be distinctly understood and the gospel embodied in great hymns flowed forth through their lips in all its appealing power. Rev. L. M. Lipscomb rightly characterized it when in referring publicly to their singing, he said: "That sounds like the singing of the angels." What a tremendous power for good they could be, if instead of spending their strength in operatic airs, our choirs could learn to sing in this manner!

The anniversaries of the various boards were occasions of much interest. That of the Epworth League was held on Wednesday evening, with Dr. F. S. Parker as the speaker, and his message was a most forceful and impressive one. The next was that of the Board of Missions, and Dr. E. H. Rawlings delivered a stirring and captivating address. On Friday night the Board of Education had charge, and after a brief but admirable speech by Dr. McKenney in the interest of the Washington City Representative Church, Dr. J. S. Frazer, Commissioner for Emory University, was introduced and discussed the theme of Christian education in a most illuminating and masterful manner. The Sunday School Anniversary followed on Saturday night, with strong and helpful addresses hy Mr. A. L. Dietrich and Bishop Atkins.

While at the Conference, the Editor was entertained in the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Stephens, who dispensed a gracious hospitality. Our associate guests were Rev. S. A. Brown, Rev. J. E. Cunningham, and Mr. J. D. Barbee. Everything possible was done to make our stay pleasant, and good fellowship abounded in heaped and rounded measure. The only clouds that overcast the sky at any time were those that arose when some joker (not the dignified Editor, of course) made Brother Stephens fear that Brother Pope might be moved, or rolled upon Brother Cunningham's heart anxiety lest some man who could beat him preaching should be made presiding elder of the Winona District. We shall not soon forget our genial host and hostess and their many kindnesses.

One of the most interesting events of the Conference was on Friday morning, when Report No. 1 of the Board of Education was made, and after brief addresses by Rev. J. R. Countiss and Rev. B. P. Jaco and some remarks by Bishop Atkins, a collection of between $18,000 and $20,000 was taken for Grenada College. Brother Countiss' speech in particular was much complimented. The feeling utterance of Rev. E. M. Shaw also stirred the hearts of the brethren and helped to incite them to liberal giving. The North Mississippi Conference is resolved to lift from Grenada College the burden of debt by which it has been so long hindered and to carry it forward to larger things. A special campaign in behalf of this historic institution was launched, under the joint supervision of the Grenada Board of Trustees and the Conference Board of Education, and Rev. B. P. Jaco was named as Commissioner to lead it. His friends believe that he will show himself to be the man of the hour in this important undertaking.

A GREAT DAY AT GEORGETOWN, MISS.

Yesterday was a great day for our Methodism in Georgetown. For a long time we have been troubling over the debt on our Church there. Yesterday we had with us our beloved Conference Evangelist, Rev. Dan Kelly. After preaching one of his very best sermons on the theme, "The Good the Enemy of the Best," he proceeded to do what he could toward raising the debt. We asked for $1800, with the result that the subscriptions amounted to $2035. JAS. V. BENNETT, Pastor.

NOT DISCONTINUED

Dear Dr. Meek: In the report of the Mississippi Conference proceedings in last week's Advocate it was stated that C. J. Stapp was discontinued, and surrendered his credentials. There was never a greater mistake, for Brother Stapp was placed in the superannuate relation, and given an appropriation for 1916. This was due to his health, and it may be well to state that he has been in bad health for several months. He hopes, after a year's rest, to be able to take work again.

Brother Stapp did eighteen months of hard work on the Scotland charge, and he very much regretted the necessity of asking for the superannuate relation, but it was imperative.

You will please make this correction in this week's issue of the Advocate, since the information in the issue of last week does him a great injustice. Yours,

Brookhaven, Miss. ROBT SELBY.

(We regret this error, and are sorry for any injustice done Brother Stapp. We have not time to look up the matter, but we suspect that it was made in the office. We have never had the proceedings of a Conference more satisfactorily reported than was done this time by our esteemed young friend, Rev. O. S. Lewis, of Shubuta, Miss. Editor of Advocate.)

THEN AND NOW.

I followed Christ, but with divided heart,
With one hand only did I grasp the cross;
I served him not with all my powers, but part,
And knew not that my gain was all a loss.

I toiled amid the furrows of the field,
I cast the seed with ever-patient care,
But when the harvest gave a scanty yield
I found, too late, that I had lacked in prayer.

I stood beside the altar day by day
And offered as I thought the sacrifice.
The full, the perfect offering was it? Nay!
It was a blemished gift part of the price.

Self was in all my thoughts, in all my deeds,
And through my life the "I" was written bold;
'Twas not in Christ I trusted, but in creeds,
I grasped the dross, and flung away the gold.

Duty was only duty, harsh and stern,
Though love can bend a cross into a crown,
But ah! love's fires had scarce begun to burn,
My strength soon wasted and my hands hung down.

And so I lived a joyless, shadowed life,
Because I turned from him, my only light;
Instead of victories won, I had the strife—
Life was a dimness, neither day nor night.

But when I turned and gave my all to him,
Counting my weakness only as my own,
There burst upon my soul an angel hymn,
And on my life the radiance of the throne.

The skies were steeped in heaven's eternal dawn,
And in that light the very clouds were gold;
The shadows melted in the rising morn,
Disclosing joys and blessings manifold.

It was no longer duty bade me go
Or here or there to do my Lord's behest,
The fires of love burned with so warm a glow
I found in sorrow, joy; in service, rest.

It was no longer self—the "I," that wrought
The proud weak self was crucified and slain;
Jesus was all in all, and I was naught,
But losing self I found eternal gain.

Now all is peace; for when the tempter tries
To fill my soul with sad, unquiet fears,
My faith looks upward to the watching skies,
The tempter vanishes, for Jesus hears.

Heaven touches earth as onward now I go,
Hastening to reach the city of the blest,
What waits me over there I do not know,
But here, with Jesus, it is joy and rest.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Rev. O. S. Lewis.

The presence of Dr. F. S. Parker among the brethren was greatly appreciated. We feel that he is one of us and all were glad to have him visit our Conference.

The smiling face of Rev. W. W. Holmes was greeted with pleasure by his many friends of this Conference. He is one of "our boys," being a native Mississippian and a graduate of Millsaps College. He is doing a great work as presiding elder of the New Orleans District.

Mr. McKenney, Field Agent for the Washington Representative Church, was present only a short while Saturday afternoon. His short address was well received.

We were glad to note the presence of a number of wives of preachers at Conference. They were Mesdames E. H. Mounger, M. B. Sharbrough, J. G. Galloway, H. P. Lewis, Jr., O. S. Lewis, H. H. Carter, J. M. Corley, C. F. Emery, W. J. Ferguson, W. W. Hopper, A. J. Davis, J. E. J. Ferguson, M. L. Burton, R. A. Sibley, W. B. Hogg, A. A. Sims, W. W. Graves.

Quite a number of the people of Laurel and near-by towns took advantage of the occasion and looked in on the sessions of the Conference. The evening services were largely attended by the visitors.

Laurel was so lavish in her entertainment of preachers that by way of reward she was given the finest Hogg in the Mississippi Conference. The people of First Church, Laurel, are to be congratulated. Congratulations to Brother Hogg are also in order.

Among the laymen present at Conference whose faces are familiar we noted Maj. R. W. Millsaps, John A. McLeod, W. F. S. Tatum, D. W. Heidelberg. T. A. Holloman, W. E. Harris, F. Hopkins, and W. D. Davis.

Brother Walton P. Meador, a former member of this Conference and now a local preacher and Sunday school superintendent at Broad Street, Hattiesburg, with his good wife, was present enjoying fellowship with his many friends.

Brother J. L. Neill will be greatly missed in Laurel, where he has wrought so effectively for two and a half years. No doubt he will succeed in his new sphere of labor.

Dr. W. J. Young's Addresses.

No more enjoyable and inspiring series of addresses were ever delivered before the Mississippi Annual Conference than Dr. W. J. Young's addresses on "Personal Evangelism." The brethren are under lasting obligations to Brother J. L. Neill for securing the services of this gifted and consecrated man of God. His personality, and his powerful messages, delivered so earnestly and with evangelical fervor, will ever abide as the fragrance of precious ointment poured forth. He easily won the love and esteem of all the brethren. Clearness of vision, depth of thought, earnestness of purpose, simplicity and clearness of statement characterized every utterance. He gave the impression of being a man who walks and talks with God, holding a fellowship with Christ that causes a likeness to the blessed Master.

It is a source of pleasure and gratification to know that such a man holds a chair in our new Candler School of Theology, where our young preachers can sit at his feet and learn to be better evangels of the Gospel.

Dr. Young delivered four lectures on "Personal Evangelism," speaking Wednesday afternoon on "The Need of Personal Evangelism" on the part of the Church, preacher, sinner, and the world. On Thursday afternoon he told of the "Equipment for Personal Evangelism," stressing the need of a personal knowledge of Christ, and thus being able to tell out of our own experiences the gracious message of Christ.

Friday afternoon was given over to the Laymen's Movement, Prof. G. L. Harrell, Conference Lay Leader, having charge. Dr. Young was the speaker, his theme, "The Whole Church at It," being in keeping with the hour. Several laymen heard the message. Would that all of our people could have heard it!

His closing theme, given Saturday afternoon, was the "The Church and the Revival." Such a message, together with the preceding ones, is sure to kindle revival fires in nearly every charge in the Conference. Our hearts burned within us as his stirring messages were given us. May God help us to conserve the spirit of the messages, meet the conditions set forth, and thus pave the way for a mighty uplifting and glorious revival in every charge!

TO THE PREACHERS.

As for the last few years, so for the year 1916, I hold myself ready to preach and assist in revival meetings whenever I have the chance to do so. I am willing to respond to the calls to this delightful work that may be made upon me by any of the pastors in Louisiana and Mississippi. God has been with me in all my ministry, and I feel sure that the Holy Spirit will still give success to my efforts to win precious souls for the Master. Try us, brethren. My address is 5655 Hawthorne Avenue, New Orleans, La.

December 6, 1915. JOHN T. SAWYER.

ACTION CONCERNING VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY.

Upon recommendation of its Board of Education, the North Mississippi Conference (one of the eight original patronizing Conferences), in its recent session at New Albany, Miss., adopted, without a dissenting vote, the following resolutions concerning the work of the Educational Commission in disposing of the question of the relation of Vanderbilt University to the Church:

"Resolved, first, That we, the members of the North Mississippi Conference, hereby express our approval of the action of the Educational Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in its session at Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 19 and 20, 1915, in declining to go through the vain formality of executing an instrument to transfer back to the eight original patronizing Conferences claims upon Vanderbilt University which the Supreme Court of Tennessee, the highest judicial tribunal having jurisdiction, and the most eminent counsel had declared to have no basis in law, and which, in consequence, would have operated to convey to them nothing whatever of any value.

"Second—That we accept the action of the Educational Commission in this respect as finally determinative of the relation between Vanderbilt University and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, including this Conference, which relation is one of complete severance and entire independence.

"Third—That, while we accept this adjudication of the matters at issue as a final settlement of the present and future relation of Vanderbilt University to our Church, we desire emphatically to reaffirm our unwavering conviction that the Southern Methodist Church established that institution, fostered it for decades with her patronage and support, and that, though it has been legally wrested from her ownership and control, it is today morally and equitably hers.

"Fourth—That none of the foregoing statements are to be construed as in any sense a waiving of our claims, either legal or moral, upon the funds contributed by Methodist people for the education of Methodist ministers that the Vanderbilt trustees now have in their possession—sacred funds, which obligations to the generous dead and every consideration of honor and justice demand should be turned over to the Church to be applied to the uses for which they were intended."

In China the principles of Democracy are in jeopardy while yet in the formative state. The overthrow of the newly founded republican institutions and the re-establishment of the monarchy with President Yuan Shi Kai as emperor seem inevitable. If Yuan Shi Kai becomes emperor, it now appears probable that the little Manchu emperor, who is living in one of the imperial palaces in Peking, China, will be recognized as a Chinese prince, allowed $1,000,000 a year, and given special privileges, which will, of course, benefit the prominent members of his family and his adherents as well as himself. It is understood that no changes in the Chinese government will take place during the present year.

Did you ever think, in this happy world,
How many things are free;
How many things that are dear and sweet
Are ready for you and me?
They do not charge to wade in the brook,
Or drink from the bubbling spring;
The birds sing songs that are free to all,
And the blossoms their perfume fling.

The warm rains water the garden beds,
And the kindly snow provides
A host of pleasures in winter time,
With snowballs, coasts and rides;
The stars and the moon light up the dark,
And the wayside trees give shade;
Oh, how many gifts are free to us all

JENNY LIND'S BIRD RIVAL.

Jenny Lind had a voice of such wonderful sweetness and purity that the name of the "Swedish Nightingale" was given her. She was also called the "Queen of Song." It is a pretty story that tells how she once met her rival, a bird, and, after being charmed by his song, yielded him first honors.

As she was out riding in the country with some of her friends, a beautiful bird, perched near-by, trilled out such a wonderful series of sweet notes that the great opera singer was astonished. Having the carriage stopped, she herself sang a few strains of her finest music. The beautiful bird arched his neck, listened quietly to the end, and then began to sing again in such a way that Jenny Lind clasped her hands for joy. Then again she sang, using some of her Tyrolese mountain strains. The bird answered back in its wonderful trills, until Jenny herself acknowledged that the pretty bird singer had really out-carolled her.—Our Dumb Animals.

AUNT ISABELLE'S RECIPE.

"O, it's just pouring," said Edith, dismally, "and I wanted to go over to Mary Vinton's house to play!"

"And I can't go out, either," groaned Jack.

There were frowns on both little faces as the children gazed out of the window at the splashing rain-drops.

"But why don't you make it a sunshine day?" asked Aunt Isabelle. "I have a recipe that I've seen tried many times, and I never knew it to fail."

"O, what is it? Please tell us," cried both the children at once.

"The recipe is: One hundred pleasant smiles, one hundred laughs and one hundred remarks to and about some one," replied auntie.

At first the children thought it would be night before all the three hundred could be found, but they started out bravely.

If Jack smiled so pleasantly that the cook smiled right back, that, of course, counted two smiles right away. And the success of the experiment generally made them both laugh, which added two more. How hard they worked to make everybody in the house laugh and smile!

"I've made twenty-five pleasant remarks; auntie kept count," said Jack.

"I've smiled so much I can hardly look sober," said Edith, with another laugh.

And do you know that by dinner-time they were having such a merry time that they thought the rainy day was brighter and jollier than any other kind. The whole house seemed full of sunshine.—Our Little Ones.

THE NEW NEIGHBOR.

Dorothy came into the kitchen where mother was working with such a troubled face that mother stopped in her baking to find out what was the matter.

"I don't like the child that has just moved into the house across the street. She mocks me," sobbed Dorothy.

"Why, Dorothy," said mother, "I haven't seen any little girl over there. What do you mean?"

"Yes, there is!" insisted Dorothy. "When I Saw Helen Smith going by the corner just now, I called 'Hoo-hoo' to her, and that other girl said 'Hoo-hoo,' too. And then when I walked by the house she said just as loud as she could, 'Bad girl, bad girl!'" and Dorothy's tears burst forth afresh.

Mother looked puzzled, for Mrs. Brown, who owned the house, had told her that the new family had no children. Then, all of a sudden, she must have remembered something, for she laughed softly to herself.

"Never mind, Dorothy," she said, "This afternoon we'll go over and call on the new little girl and find out all about it."

Dorothy was comforted and went out on the porch to eat the cooky that mother gave her. She was sitting quietly in the hammock when she heard quite plainly from the house across the street, "Hoo-hoo, bad girl!"

That afternoon Dorothy was dressed in her very best, and, quite unwillingly, started with her mother to make the call. They rang the bell and a pleasant-faced lady came to the door.

"Is this Mrs. Graves?" said mother. "I am Mrs. Howe, your neighbor from across the street; and this is my little daughter, Dorothy, who wants very much to see your little girl."

"My little girl!" exclaimed Mrs. Graves, looking very much surprised. "Why, I haven't any children at all."

"But Dorothy is sure she heard a child calling to her from your house this morning," said Mrs. Howe.

Then Mrs. Graves began to laugh. "Come right in," she said, opening the door into the parlor.

And there, sitting on the perch in a big cage, looking solemnly out of the window, was a red-and-green parrot.

How mother and Dorothy laughed when they saw him, and they laughed again when, tilting his head to one side, he called loudly, "Hoo-hoo, bad girl!"

"I shall teach him to say 'Good girl'" said Dorothy; "that will sound more polite."—The Child's Gem.

TRUSTWORTHY.

"You will be careful of it? There is a check inside," said Robert's mother as she handed to her son the letter she had just sealed.

"I'll take it right to the postoffice and mail it before I do the other errands," the boy responded and went his way.

As the door closed behind him, Aunt Mary, on a visit from a distant State, shook her head dubiously. "I wouldn't trust the best boy living with such a letter as that," she declared grimly.

Mother smiled serenely. "Perhaps you would if you had already trusted him many times and found him trustworthy every single time," she said.

This reply tells the secret of how to win such high praise.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

HELP URGENTLY NEEDED.

By Mrs. Lily Meekins.

As you have probably heard, or read, the Mary Werlein Mission, of New Orleans, was very badly damaged on September 29 when the great hurricane struck New Orleans. The roof was practically torn off and the damage to the inside of the buildings on that day and during the heavy rains of a few days later was frightful. The roof has been fixed and we are protected from further damage by the rains, but owing to a lack of funds the inside work is still almost at a standstill. Some of the rooms are barely habitable and others cannot be used at all, making conditions very crowded and unpleasant, which tends to hamper the work. We have been able to raise enough money to take care of some of the inside work, and if given time we could manage the rest among ourselves, but our membership is composed of poor people, who can not raise any appreciable sums on short notice, and this repair work must be attended to at once.

This appeal has been delayed as we expected to raise enough money to take care of our needs, but find it utterly impossible, and find it necessary to use this means in order to reach our more fortunate brethren and sisters who have not suffered from the storm. We need at least $75 to take care of repairs still absolutely necessary to be made, and could use more to get everything in good shape. What can you do for us, reader? Names and amounts contributed will be printed weekly until the desired amount is secured. All contributions, great or small, will be very much appreciated, and should be forwarded to Mrs. Lily Meekins, Resident Missionary, Mary Werlein Mission, 1026 Tchoupitoulas Street, New Orleans, La. We have already received one contribution with which we head our list:

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

THE HOUSE OF PRAYER.

When Jesus east out those who bought and sold in the temple and overthrew the tables of the money-ehangers, and tbe seats of those who sold doves, he said: "It is written, My house shall be ealled the house of prayer." Jesus quoted from Isaiah. So, in both the Old and New Testaments, it is said that the Church is designed to be a house of prayer.

Surely the aneient temple, of which the Master spoke, was intended, above all else, to be a bouse of prayer and a plaee of worship. At times it was profaned by those wieked and ldolatrous kings of whom it is written, "They did that wbich was evil in the slght of the Lord." For they set up pagan shrines in the courts of the Most High. At times it was pillaged and demolished by fieree old kings from the banks of the Euphrates and in heroism unsurpassed repaired or rebuilt. During the time of the Master the last temple, the great marble sanctuary built by Herod, had beeome to many a house of merebandise. Durin the siege of Jerusalem rival bands of robbers held the temple in turn and again made it a den of thieves. And then, true to the Master's predietions, not one stone of the splendid building was left on another. Titus penetrated to the Holy of Holies, and the sacred pavements resounded to the unhallowed tread of Roman soldiers and ran deep with the blood of its people. At times the temple was not the house of prayer, but it was built to be sueb. So is tbe ehureh to-day a house of prayer, and we should go to ehureh, first of all, to worsbip.

Tbe idea which some have of the ehureh would make it a sehool of instruction, rather tban a temple of worshlp. To many it is chiefly the plaee where men go to hear a sermon. And surely it should ever be sueh a plaee—a plaee where good instruction is given and men are directed in the way of life.

But some, wbo have no other idea of the church, are led to regard tbe cbureh as less than a plaee of divine teaching. It is regarded by them as a place of pleasure and entertainment. Consciously or uneonscionsly, they learn to regard the ehureb as a kind of aestbetie soeiety to minister to the refined and elevated tastes of its members. It ls natural for sueh a mistake to be made. We like to listen to the deseriptions of a word-painter. We prefer to look upon his pictures. We are more pleased with a message which is enriehed by apt illustrations and beautiful imagery. Even the most abstruse logic will not suffer if it can be presented in pleasing language, and surely it ean be presented in language that does no violenee to the "Queen's English." And the whole may be enforced by the grace and eloquence of an orator. We are likewise pleased with exeellent musie and song. But we should not go to eburch primarily to be entertained, primarily to receive.

We sbould go primarily to give—first of all, to worship. For the ehureh to-day is a house of prayer and a plaee of worship.

Tbe splendid temple is forever destroyed, but some of its lessons remain. Titus desecrated the Holy of Holies, but the ehureh to-day eontains a mercy seat. The ehurcb to-day is a temple. For it is the plaee of an altar. Into its saered walls men should go to pray, to give unto the Lord the glory due unto his holy name, and to eonsecrate themselves anew to his service. Into the ehureb of God men must come to-day to engage in the only worship which has ever been aeceptable unto God, wbether in the temple or out of it, before the time of the Master or in this present day, and that is the gift of self, the saerifiee of the heart upon God's holy altar.

If more of our people regarded the ehureh as a house of prayer and a place of worship, there would be fewer to measure the service only by the sermon or the musie; there would be fewer to stay away because they claim the pastor is dull, or the musle is bad, and there would be more to kneel meekly upon their knees instead of sitting upright and looking around over the sanctuary while the pastor voices the only petitions perhaps whieb aseend, and there would be a greater solemnity in the ehureh and a better spirit of reverenee among the people on the Lord's day.

The temple in Jerusalem has passed away; its beautiful but out-worn ritual is no longer ob served, and its multiplied saerifices would be out of plaee among Christians. But the ehureh must ever retain the altar of sacrifice and the merey seat. It is the plaee of a pulpit, but it must also be the place of worship and "a house of prayer for all people."

MRS. M. G. JENKINS DEAD.

Dr. R. H. Wynn, under date of Deeember 4, writes: "I am advised by a letter from Rev. M. G. Jenkins, a superannuated member of the Louisiana Conference, now residing in San Antonio, Texas, that his beloved wife died on Sunday, November 28, and was buried in Mineola, Texas, on the following day."

We regret to chronlcle this sad message, which will toueh with sorrow many hearts in Louisiana. Brother Jenkins may feel assured that he has the sympathy and prayers of his brethren and many friends in this trying hour. We hope that some one in a position to do it will send us in the near future a memoir of the deceased.

His virile and capacious mind is wide-awake to all movements of importanee, whether in the South, the Nation, or across the seas in other lands.

Rev. J. L. Williams, of Leesville, La., writes as follows: "We have gotten into the parsonage here, in which we found everything in good shape. I came down and preached the first Sunday after Conference. We are praying and planning for a good year. We expect to do the proper thing for the Advocate."

After the action of the Memphis Conference refusing to appoint professors to Vanderbilt University, Dr. J. H. Stevenson withdrew from our Church for the purpose of uniting with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He had long been regarded as one of the most unsound instructors in the Vanderbilt Biblieal Department.

Brother J. E. W. Bridges, of Liverpool, La., was in New Orleans this week and looked in on us at the Advocate offiee. He is a steward in our Pine Ridge Church, on the Kentwood charge. He stated that his church, though a rural one, has a live prayer meeting and a Sunday school with an enrollment of about 140 students.

Read Mrs. Lily Meekins' statement concerning the Mary Werlein Mission on page 7. Her appeal ought to bring in at once money enough to meet the crying needs of this important work. There is no missionary in New Orleans who is rendering a nobler service to the Master's cause than Mrs. Meekins. Help her, and do it at once.

From the Bulletin of the First Methodist Church of Baton Rouge, La., we take the following: "Rev. H. W. Bowman, our esteemed presiding elder, preached the first sermon of our new Conferenee year last Sunday. He was heard with pleasure. In the evening, Rev. F. B. Hill, now in charge of our Logansport work, gave an interesting sermon."

Referring to his report of the proceedings of the Mississippi Conference, Rev. O. S. Lewis says: "I forgot to mention that Rev. M. L. Burton is again on the effective list and our pleasure that he is able to take work." That Brother Burton's health has sufficiently improved for this will give gratification to his friends in all parts of Mississippi.

In ordering his paper changed from Haynesville to Boyee, La., Rev. W. W. Perry extends us Christmas greetings, and adds: "I shall endeavor to do as well for the Advocate in this field as I have in others." Thank you, Brother Perry. If all our pastors would do as well for the Conference organ as you do, we would have 10,000 subscribers before next spring.

President Joe Cook, of the Mississippi State Normal College; Mr. A. B. Cook, his son, and Mr. John A. McLeod, a leading banker of Hattiesburg, Miss., and one of the stanch Methodist laymen of the Mississippi Conference, favored our office with a call last Monday. It is needless to say that we greatly enjoyed our brief season of fellowship with these gentlemen.

Rev. N. G. Augustus has been transferred to the Little Rock Conference and stationed at Prescott, Ark. In a personal note to the Editor, Brother Augustus expresses a deep feeling of regret at the thought of "leaving his loved friends." There will be a large vacancy in the North Mississippi Conference with "Nic" away. We heartily commend him to the Methodists in our sister State across the "Big Muddy."

While in Memphis last Sunday it was our privilege to spend a couple of hours with Bishop W. B. Murrah. We never saw him looking better or in finer spirits. He has finished his round of Conferences in a splendid physieal eondition, and is happy in the work of the Church. It was also our pleasnre to exchange greetings with Mrs. Murrah and their son, Mr. W. F. Murrah, who is a promising young lawyer in the Bluff City.

The Central Christian Advocate, Lexington, Ky., says: "In the proeeedings of the Louisiana Conference, which convened at Mansfield, La., we see the final announcement of the transfer of Rev. O. J. Chandler from the Kentucky to the Louisiana Conference. Brother Chandler is now fully identified with that Conferenee and his Kentucky friends will listen with interest to hear of his suecess in the far South."

It was the Editor's pleasure to baptize in Memphis, Tenn., last Sunday afternoon, in the presence of a goodly company of relatives and friends, Robert Wendel Barbee, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Barbee, of that city. The little one, a handsome babe about twelve months old, is a grandson of the late Dr. James D. Barbee, whose name is so widely known in the annals of Southern Methodism. May a gracious Providence watch over him and bring him safely through the years to a noble and useful manhood!

From a letter from Rev. H. W. May, the energetic presiding elder of the Alexandria District, we extract the following: "The outlook is bright. The fact is, the future is always bright to me, because of the presence of Him who 'is not slack concerning his promises.' The preachers have been well received and are all happy. The slogan for the new year is a revival in every charge. With Coleman in the field, we may confidently expect a great forward movement in the Sunday school work."

Dr. J. M. Henry, writing on the 4th inst., says: "Mrs. Lewis, wife of Captain W. A. J. Lewis, died this morning. Captain Lewis and his wife were charter members of the Ruston Church, their names standing at the top of the chronological roll. These two had journeyed together for nearly fifty years and all the time had been faithful to Christ and to the Church. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon." We regret to be informed of the translation of this elect woman, and we deeply sympathize with the bereaved husband. May the Heavenly Father have him in his gracious keeping until he shall overtake his beloved companion in the "city which hath foundations!"

Last week Rev. W. H. Coleman, our new Sunday School Field Secretary in Louisiana, sent us a list of appointments without stating what they were for, and as his accompanying letter bore on the Sunday school work, an error was made and they were printed as Sunday school appointments, when in reality he had made out the first round for Rev. C. D. Atkinson, the new presiding elder of the Shreveport District. We thought that Brother Coleman was adopting a pretty strenuous pace in projecting his Sunday school campaign, but he is so given to breaking records in his work that we supposed that this was only another exhibition of his unflagging zeal and great activity. We regret the mistake.

THE FUNDAMENTAL ERROR OF CALVINISM.

The New Orleans Christian Advocate lately presented the following excerpt from the argument of a Presbyterian minister to establish the doctrine of election:

"Deny 'unconditional election,' and you must deny regeneration. Hold regeneration, and you must hold unconditional election. They stand or fall together. The soul of man as a sinner is spiritually dead. The Lord sends his Spirit to infuse spiritual life into this dead soul and into that one, but leaves others. Why does he do this? The only answer we can give is that he chooses so to do, but that is election. The doctrines of election and regeneration stand or fall together. I say the doctrines. It is very easy to use the words while denying the truths or the doctrines usually expressed by the words. We Presbyterians profess to hold the doctrine of regeneration, and so must hold the doctrine of election also."

The above argument is conclusive if the premise upon which it rests be correct. The entire scheme of Calvinism is logically consistent with its doctrines of depravity. Here is its fundamental error. It assumes that in the fall all spiritual yearnings for that which was lost were extinguished. There resulted not only a sinful state and nature, but the loss of all desire for the better. This is not depravity but utter moral death. Such a being could have no sense of his fallen state, and no desire to reprieve it. To such an one salvation can not be the enabling of the fallen to rise, but a new creation. The Arminian, who opposes this view, generally fails to refute it because he admits the premise upon which it rests. The Arminian admits that man, because he loves sin, can not choose the service of God without an inward impulsion of the Spirit of God enabling him so to do. Now, if the power to will in this matter is not normal and must come from the impulsion of an outward agent, man is helpless and can only await the calling and moving of God's Spirit, and the Calvinist has the advantage of the argument that the effectual calling is of sovereign election.

We shall not admit that a fallen being can not be conscious that he is fallen, or that he can not have a desire to rise. If we turn to specific cases we find that men, enthralled in any form of vice, may sincerely deplore that enthraldom and earnestly desire deliverance from it. We see proof of this everywhere. If the first movement toward God must be from the love of God in the heart or the desire for holiness in itself, then the whole scheme of Calvinism stands invulnerable. But the drunkard desires freedom, not because he loathes the cup. The gambler and the debauchee desire freedom not because they loathe vice, but because they fear its results, and are assured that "the wages of sin is death." No motives of punishment or reward have place in the Calvinistic scheme of virtue. But this is quite apart from all the appeals of the Gospel, and the teaching of the Master. The picture of the prodigal son, whose miseries moved him to repentance, is true to the sinner's experience. "If thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out; it is better for thee to enter into life with one eye than having two eyes to be cast into hell," is the form in which Jesus presents the choice of salvation. A desire "to flee the wrath to come" is the first impulse toward a better life, and this desire is normal and legitimate, and is born of no special operation of grace in the heart, but is a mental attitude arising out of the truths which appeal to the sinner's understanding. "It is better" against all pleadings of appetite, against all pains of self-denial; "it is better," that is clear, and that is enough to know. In its appeal to sinners the Gospel lays stress on the awful nature of sin and its results; and when our preaching weakens at this point the depth and genuineness of repentance weakens. Could one seek God from the first, because of love to God, that fact would nullify the doctrine of depravity and the fall. Salvation is sought as deliverance from death by the mercy of God.

But, granting that one who loves sin may desire to be delivered from it, because of its results, that a sinner may, impelled by this desire, choose the service of God does not yet appear. In spite of desire, the will may be paralyzed by the hopelessness of a situation. In despair the victim yields to death without making effort to escape. The crux of the problem is this: There is such a relation between will and power that if a thing seems impossible, the will can not essay the task. Now, we grant that the sinner can not, in his own strength, serve God. How, then, can he resolve to do it? We answer, he can resolve to do so, and that without any special impulse of grace in the heart. God's promise of grace enables the will to act on the assurance of help at hand, which has not yet been given, and which is available only when faith accepts it. One is helpless to resolve to do a thing impossible to him, until one says, "I will help you." The resolve to do is immediately taken, and the promised deliverance is given. Now, it is God who promises and God who fulfills the promise. So, salvation is of grace, both the promise which enables the will, and the help which answers it. And yet, the action of the will comes in the normal way of its response to the motives which reason presents. In no other way can a decision be reached which psychology can recognize as an act of free will, representing man's personality. Thus "by grace are we saved through faith, and that not of ourselves; it is the gift of God." Thus it is that "God works in us to will and to do of his good pleasure," by his truth and his promise addressed to our reason, enabling us to will, and by his answer to the resolve to serve, giving us the ability so to do.

THE OX KNOWETH HIS OWNER.

A farmer who had recently listened to an exposition the text found in Isaiah, "The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib; but Israel doth not know, My people doth not consider," was giving food to his stock when one of his oxen, evidently grateful for his care, fell to licking his bare arm. Instantly with this simple incident the Holy Spirit flashed conviction on the farmer's mind. Bursting into tears he exclaimed, "It is all true. How wonderful is God's Word! This poor, dumb brute is really more grateful to me than I am to God, and yet I am in debt to Him for everything. What a sinner I am!"—The Lutheran.

Mrs. LOLA McGRAW NETTERVILLE passed suddenly to ber eternal reward on November 25, 1915, at her home, eight miles east of Woodville, Miss. Three years ago she was married to Mr. Bernard Netterville; their married life was short and peaceful. She was a member of the Methodist Church, South, and was loved by all who knew her. The stricken husband and many loved ones are left to deeply mourn their loss, while they bow with Christian fortitude and faith to this decree of the Divine will. She was a noble type of Christian womanhood and met death without a fear. No words of comfort can assuage the grief of the dear ones she bas left behind, but from hearts similarly afflicted we bring our offerings of tenderest sympathy that they may help to strengthen those who sorrow. May Hc who bringeth solace to the hearts of his children graciously abide with the loved ones in this time of grief!

WESSON, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: During my first year here, which was 1901, I baptized 121 infants, which broke Bishop Morrison's record of 93 in one year, which up to that time placed him in advance of any other preacher in Southern Methodism, if not any other preacher of any other Church; but this year I broke my own record by baptizing 142.

I hope I shall be able to secure more subscribers for our Advocate this year, although I talked it from the pulpit, in Church conferences, and privately during the past year.

May God greatly bless you and yours spiritually and temporally! Please to pray daily for mine and me to become much wiser, holier, healthier, and much more useful.—Isaac Lockhart Peebles, P. C.

MISSISSIPPI ANTI-CIGARETTE LEAGUE.

The Anti-Cigarette League of Mississippi has designated the second Sunday in December as Anti-Cigarette Day in the Sunday schools in the State and is sending out letters and literature to Sunday school superintendents to observe the day by spending a few minutes discussing the harmful effects of the cigarette and giving the boys an opportunity to sign the pledge to abstain from this hurtful habit. The League is making an effort to get at least 5000 boys to sign the pledge on this day.

All pastors are earnestly requested to make proper announcement of this from the pulpit.

We ask all of our good citizens to work and pray to save the boys from a habit that is destroying so many useful lives.

The schools will be asked to make an offering to assist in carrying on the work of the League.

Superintendents of Sunday schools who fail to get our letter and literature will please notify me and say how many pledge cards they will require and I will send them at once.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON TEMPERANCE.

(Adopted by the Mississippi Conference in its recent session at Laurel.)

We are glad to be able to report progress, steady, substantial, and rather rapid, in the spread of prohibition. Other States are falling into the ranks of the saloonless commonwealtbs. We have now nineteen. In others where State-wide prohibition does not prevail large areas are dry. In the Nation, altogether, the saloonless area far exceeds the wet. The Federal Government reports a gratifying decrease of revenues from the liquor business. The brewers and distillers have read the handwriting on the wall. The Christian people everywhere are cherishing the hope of a saloonless nation by 1920. Even the warring nations of Europe are falling into line with this growing prohibition sentiment.

We offer the following for your adoption:

Resolved: 1. That we renew our plea to the Federal Congress for a nation-wide prohibition law, enforced by the Fedcral Government, and to this end we urge our Federal senators and representatives to use all the influence they can wield to advance this interest.

2. That we heartily commend the fine work for the cause of prohibition which is being done by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and the Anti-Saloon League, and hereby pledge to these very worthy organizations our heartiest co-operation, and urge our pastors, whenever opportunity offers to open their churches to accredited representatives of these organizations.

3. That we are glad to have with us Rev. T. J. Bailey, D.D., superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Mississippi, and bid him Godspeed in his work, and tender him our hearty co-operation. Signed:

FROM A GREAT AUTHORITY.

Frobel is a great name in educational history. Probably no man ever understood children better than this marvelous teacher, and so what Frobel says about early religion is worth knowing. "Genuine and true, living religion," he wrote, "reliable in danger and struggles, in times of oppression and need, in joy and pleasure, should come to man in his infancy.....Let no man say, 'The children will not understand it,' for thereby he deprives them of their greatest good.....They do understand it, not in and through the mind, but through the heart. Religious spirit, a fervid life in God and with God, in all conditions and circumstances of life and of the human mind, will hardly, in later years, rise to full vigorous life, if it has not grown up with man from his infancy."

The Bible taught these truths centuries ago. They have not changed. The Sunday school rightly emphasizes them in the world of to-day. Every boy and girl needs to know about God, to love him and to pray to him. The earlier the soul turns to Christ, the purer and nobler life will be.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complication.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

Lime and Tuberculosis

Dr. Roberts Bartholow, former professor in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, says in his Materia Medica (1805), on pages 215 and 216: "Clinical experience has shown that it (referring to a calcium salt) posseses the ill-defined property known as alterative, removes certain toxic or morbific materials and secures their secretion by the organs of elimination. • • • The testimony which has lately been published in respect to its curative powers in consumption is certainly very striking."

He does not refer to testimony regarding Eckman's Alterative, since the medical profession never publicly recommends proprietary remedies. However, many cases of consumption seem to have yielded to this remedy.

This success may be due largely to the fact that in Eckman's Alterative a calcium (lime) salt is so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person. It contains neither opiates, narcotics nor habit-forming drugs, so is safe. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, liver and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhœa, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

REPORT ON SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

To the President and Members of the Mississippi Annual Conference.

Dear Brethren: We are very thankful to God for the institution of the holy Sabbath day and for all it means to us. But while we are grateful to God for that blessed Sabbath day, we deplore the fact that there is a tendency to depreciate its sanctity, place and significance, and as a result a large part of our people do not observe the day in either spirit or letter. On the other hand, they prostitute the sanctity of the day by fishing, hunting, playing baseball, autoriding, frequenting cold drink stands, doing ordinary work therein, using Sunday trains when it could be otherwise avoided, especially Sunday excursion trains.

It is a deplorable fact that some of our preachers ride on Sunday trains. They forget the following fact, as well as others:

1. That the Sabbath is a day set apart by God for rest and worship, and that we are commanded by him to "remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

2. That when the Sabbath is used for purposes other than God intended, we destroy the very foundation upon which Christianity is builded and propagated.

3. That the character of citizenship is determined largely by the observance or non-observance of the Sabbath.

4. That we, your Committee, earnestly request that every preacher preach at least once on Sabbath observance during the next Conference year—not only condemning the violation of the laws of God and the State in the desecration of the Sabbath, but on the origin of the Sabbath, its place, sanctity and significance, and urge the people to respect and regard the holy Sabbath as a day instituted by God.

Churches, Consider This.

Unless your new organ is selected with special reference to the way the church is built, it will most likely disappoint you. Hundreds of churches have found this out by costly experience. To solve this difficulty, as well as to save the church money and financial inconvenience, is the purpose of a plan offered by the R. S. Hill Co., 4479 Louisville Ave., Louisville, Ky., manufacturers of high quality reed organs. They make a careful study of your church, and recommend the proper instrument. They ship it for your approval, without a cent's deposit, and allow special terms of payment to suit the church treasury. Their organs are attractively priced, and protected by long-term guarantees. Write them to-day for full details.—Adv.

THE LARGER STRENGTH.

"There never was such a friend as Miss Sadie," Lucy Edwards cried. "I go to her with all my troubles, and she lifts them right off my shoulders."

"If that is the case," Blanche said, "then I hope a time will come when she will not be able to help you."

"Why, what do you mean?" Lucy cried, staring up into the elder girl's face.

"I mean that as long as Miss Sadie can always help you, you will never reach the larger help within yourself," her friend answered. "Not long ago I had a friend on whom I depended entirely. Whenever I was unhappy I flew to her, just as you go to dear Miss Sadie. I was sure she could always help me.

"But one day I found she couldn't. Something bad happened to make me very unhappy, and although she was just as loving and sympathetic as ever, she couldn't lift the burden right off my lazy shoulders.

"There comes a time for all of us when we have to carry our own burdens. But I had not found that out then, and that night I went down into the depths of despair. But all at once, when I felt almost desperate, I seemed to break suddenly through a door into a place of wonderful strength and peace—'the peace of God, which passeth all understanding.'

"If my friend had been able to help me, I should never have found that wonderful Help that was waiting deep within myself.

"I shall always want the love and sympathy of my friends, but I shall never again want anyone to carry my burdens for me. Do you know, I think that that was Christ's meaning when he told the disciples that it was expedient for them that he should leave them. 'For if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you.' They were depending too much upon his physical presence, but when that was taken from them, they found his larger strength abiding within their own hearts, and they at once became changed men."—Youth's Companion.

WATCH YOUR HEART IF YOU WISH HEALTH.

Weak hearts are more common than weak stomachs, lungs, eyes, backs, or kidneys. Every time your heart misses a beat your life is being shortened. Heart disease, taken in its early stages, is quite easy to relieve; but every day that treatment is delayed the relief becomes more difficult.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy taken in conjunction with the Nervine, or alone, has proven very efficient in relieving heart disorders.

The Rev. Geo. W. Kiracofe, of Keller, Va., in this connection stated as follows:

"It has been many years since I was cured of heart trouble by Dr Miles' Heart Remedy and Nervine. I am just as sound as a dollar in that organ to-day. Before I took these remedies my breathing had been short and at times difficult; there were sharp pains about my heart, accompanied by fluttering which would make me feel faint and languid. The least excitement or worry would unnerve me. The trouble grew steadily worse. Doctors' prescriptions did me no good. But since using Dr. Miles' Remedies all symptoms were removed and have never returned since."

If you suspect that you have heart trouble avoid all dangerous delays.

It costs you nothing to try these remedies if you are not benefited. All you have to do is to return the empty bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money.

NOT PLEASANT, BUT OFTEN BEST.

Poverty is uncomfortable, as I can testify; but nine times out of ten the best thing that can happen to a young man is to be tossed overboard, and compelled to sink or swim for himself.—Garfield.

FROM COLUMBIA, MISS.

Dear Mr. Editor: It has been a long time since I have sent a communication to the New Orleans Christian Advocate. I always fear that what I may write might be too "frenchified," but in this instance I am willing to run the risk of being criticised. I heard such a masterly sermon yesterday in our church in Columbia from the heart of Brother G. H. Thompson, the presiding elder of the Hattiesburg District, and in it our brother made such a truthful, striking statement that I feel like giving it the publicity to which it is justly entitled.

His text was Mal. 3:7-12. It was a great sermon, full of good things, and fits exactly the times in which we live.

His striking statement follows:

"I was raised in the neighborhood of Silver Creek, and my early educational advantages were obtained in a log cabin schoolhouse. The first thing the teacher did in those days of long ago was to go on the banks of the creek and cut a 6-foot switch with strong prongs, and he would hang the said rod above the door of the schoolhouse. That was the sign of his authority. On a blackboard on a wall were written the school rules. In those days the old log cabin schoolhouse raised lawyers, doctors, merchants, bankers, and some preachers."

"Now, the 'snookums' of our modern time, according to their visionary parents, must have a striking individuality of their own. So the switch is not seen any more in the schoolhouses. The sign of authority has become a relic of the past, and we are raising blind tigers, boot-leggers, thieves, and liars."

This is only one statement of many made in the great and inspiring discourse delivered by Rev. G. H. Thompson.

In concluding, let me say that as a loyal Methodist I cannot but rejoice at the decision of the Bishop in appointing Brother Sharbrough to the presiding eldership of the Port Gibson District, yet I regret the departure of Brother and Sister Sharbrough. He has been a faithful, sincere pastor and has wrought nobly and fearlessly for the Kingdom of Christ in our midst. A METHODIST.

CONCERNING THE MISSISSIPPI ORPHANAGE.

The following paper was adopted by the Mississippi Conference in its recent session:

Realizing the need of adequate financial support for our Orphanage and the necessity of a systematic plan for contributions to meet the monthly obligations of these institutions,

Resolved, That all our pastors, Sunday school superintendents and members be urged to observe one Sunday in each month for regular contributions to the Methodist Orphanage, and that the same be sent promptly to the District Secretary of the Home in each presiding elder's district, or to Rev. J. B. Randolph, manager, Jackson, Miss.

GODLY PARENTS.

Many of us can remember the beloved face and voice of our mother, as standing at her knee, she taught us the word of God, which has been a lamp to our feet and a light to our path; a stronghold in the time of battle and a shelter in the time of storm. We remember our father, strong, brave, sometimes severe, but just, wise and warmly affectionate, who was experienced in the world and believing and knowing God's word, warned us against error and evil, and gave us the example of a strong, noble manhood. Many times, ever since we have had families of our own, we would have given aught we possessed for one hour with father's judgment and mother's sympathy. It is hard to understand that spirit of our times that forgets the love and power of the old home of other days, and is ready to forsake it for the novelty and the novice, delusive, cold and untried.

Grand old Paul felt the drawing of his fathers when he said: "So worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets." And to Timothy it was tenderly written: "Continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them, and that from a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus." And again: "I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother, Lois, and in thy mother, Eunice, and I am persuaded is in thee also." In contrast with this warm loyalty and appreciation of godly parents, how cold, ignoble, yes even base is some of the modern dishonor that is cast upon noble parentage. How silly and weak is the expression, "present truth," a shibboleth of a weak spasmodic, ephemeral cult, which would ignore the honor to parents. Truth is not simply present; it is past, present and future, and like the God of truth, it is eternal.—The Presbyterian.

INFLUENCE OF A HYMN.

A Christian worker after an ocean voyage told how, one beautiful Sabbath evening on the Oceanic, in midocean, a large group of Welshmen out on the main deck sang the great old church hymns. Many of the twenty-three hundred souls on board crowded about to listen. They sang "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," in Welsh and repeated it in English. Just as they finished the line,

"Safe into the haven guide," the captain on the bridge tapped three bells (half past nine). The watchman on the first lookout repeated the three taps loudly on his larger bell, and then sent out over the decks and out over the waves the cry, thrilling when first heard, "All's well!" Far up in the crow's nest, nearly one hundred feet from the deck, the watchman in the second lookout caught it up and sent it out farther yet into the ocean darkness, "All's well!" One on deck, think of eternal safety, said in a moment, "Wouldn't it be fine if every soul on this great liner could from the heart and for himself echo it yet again, and fling it up to the angels above, 'All's well!'"—The Presbyterian.

"WITH MALICE TOWARD NONE AND CHARITY FOR ALL."

As I reflect upon this sentence I see at once that it introduces me to the "Kingdom of God." Malice toward none and charity for all places love supreme in my heart. It is as broad as the needs of humanity. Was it spoken by a man whom everybody loved and, of course, could love everybody? No! Perhaps fifty men in his audience that moment were waiting the first opportunity to take his life. The malicious bullet was already in the deadly pistol of hate which was to assassinate him. No man was more ridiculed, abused, and hated, not only by his enemies, but by those who should have been his friends, than this great American. You must not wait until everybody loves you before you love everybody. This has been the inspiring sentiment of the largest leadership. Luther and Wesley, following from the Prince of Peace, were inspired by that love for all which recognizes the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God.—Northern Ohio Advocate.

SLAVERY IN ITS WORST FORM.

The saloon business can not exist without slaves. You may smile at that statement, but it is absolutely true. Is not the man who is addicted to the drink habit a slave? There can be no question about it. There are 1,000,000 such slaves in the United States. They are slaves of the saloon. They go out and work a week or a month, draw their pay or join the saloon and hand the saloonkeeper their money for something which ruins their own lives. Is not this slavery? Has there ever been in the history of the world a worse system of slavery? Think of 1,000,000 men enslaved by the liquor habit, carrying their earnings to the saloonkeepers every day in the year. It is quite natural, of course, that the slaveholder should not care to liberate these slaves.—Congressman Hobson.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

WHY A SHIP IS A "SHE."

The word "ship" is masculine in French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese and possesses no sex in Teutonic and Scandinavian. Perhaps it would not be an error to trace the custom of feminizing ships back to the Greeks, who called them by feminine names, probably out of deference to Athene, goddess of the sea. But the English speaking sailor assigns no such reasons. The ship to him is always a lady, even though she be a man-of-war. She possesses a waist, collars, stay, lace, bonnets, ties, ribbons, chains, watches and dozens of other distinctly feminine attributes.—Marine Journal.

UGH! A Dose of Nasty Calomel

It salivates! It makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone to-night and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.—Adv.

HOW TO PRAY.

A man once said to his pastor: "I derive no benefit from prayer." The pastor had heard some of this man's prayers, and had noticed they had centered around self; so he said: "Pray, 'Father, glorify thyself,' and you will soon see some effects from your prayers." The purpose of all true praying should be the glorifying of "our Father which art in heaven."—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

LOVE AND SYMPATHY.

How rapidly nature repairs and beautifies the torn places! The gash left by the uprooted tree is soon covered with green, and moss and vines are quick to make the old stump into a thing of beauty. Humanity might well learn a lesson thereby, to its own great advantage. Sympathy may easily transform the unsightly and give it beauty. If earth's soil responds to the touch of nature in such a way, it is reasonable to suppose that human life would not be less responsive. Hundreds of lives at present harsh and repulsive are within the reach of every one, and they might be wholly changed by a little sympathetic seeding and kindly culture. After all, what more is needed than the persuasion of the kindly human touch? There is no greater work than that which is wrought by love; and there is no one who may not work it if he will.—The Visitor.

ALL-DAY MEETING AT LEARNED, MISS.

As the members of our auxiliary are scattered over so large an area we find it almost impracticable to observe the Week of Prayer, so our able president combined some of the program and had an all-day meeting. Our service opened with a beautiful Scripture reading followed by heartfelt sentence prayers. The leaflet, "Japan, the Key" was read in an impressive manner by Mrs. J. B. Patrick, and those present were made to realize that "as Japan goes, so goes the Orient." Miss Lizzie Puckett gave instructive extracts from the leaflet, "Oriental Churches and Circuits." The children added a pleasing feature to the program. Eula Patrick sang in her sweet, childish voice, "I'll Try," and Alma Lee Blocksom gave quite an entertaining reading, "A Home Mission Song." Mrs. John Collins read a stirring appeal from the Council to missionary societies. After a delightful lunch and social hour, the program was continued with a beautiful duet, "Sometime, Somewhere," by Mesdames Collins and Purvis. Mrs. Bush read a paper on "Japan's Back Door," which, as its name implies, pointed out the dark spots in this beautiful country, which is so much like a fairyland. It made us pause for awhile and then determine to have a part in obliterating these back-door tragedies by sending the glorious Gospel of Christ, which will shed light into the darkest corner and bring joy and gladness to hearts dwarfed by sin and sorrow. The claims of the Lambuth Memorial Bible School were strongly presented. The leaflet, "Friendship In Action," was entertainingly discussed by Mrs. Purvis; after which Mrs. Osborne gave some live missionary experiences. After singing, "Work for the Night Is Coming," this congenial band parted with many pleasant memories of a day spent in spiritual uplift. Mrs. JOHN BUSH,
Publicity Superintendent.

ATTENTION AUXILIARIES!

This is the month for the election of officers. Do not fail to have this election. Make it a subject of earnest prayer, so that only the best and most consecrated women will be selected for office. When you have had your election, be prompt in sending the list of new officers to your district secretary, also to your corresponding secretary. If the old officers are re-elected, send the list anyway. How can the Conference officers know of the change or non-change otherwise? These officers cannot readily communicate with you without this information, so please give the matter your prompt attention.

MRS. HOYLE CONVALESCING.

Several weeks ago we read in another part of the Advocate of the serious illness of Mrs. Vic Thompson Hoyle. At the time she was in Memphis, Tenn., where she underwent an operation. We are glad to be able to state that she is slowly convalescing, having been moved to her home in Tupelo, Miss. Mrs. Hoyle is an indefatigable worker and a woman of rare, sweet qualities. We know there will be rejoicing all over the State over her recovery, and we feel that God has been very good to us in sparing this enthusiastic worker, whose whole ambition seems to be to make His kingdom come in the hearts of men. Her Conference officers request that every auxiliary in the Conference strive all the harder to bring the work to the high standard that Mrs. Hoyle has set for it. It is greatly desired that she be relieved of all worry and anxiety during these days of physical weakness.

HOLDING INSTITUTE.

There were two hundred and two students enrolled at Holding Institute this fall. The new fire escapes are on, and the pavements on the campus not only look fine, but enable the students to cross from building to building without bringing in the loose sand when it is dry or the mud when it rains. Five members of the faculty were old students under Miss Holding's administration, and they do her credit. It would be hard to find a more earnest band of Christian young people than those who compose the faculty this year. There is cause for much rejoicing.

HOW ABOUT YOUR FINANCES?

The year is rapidly drawing to a close, and only a few weeks remain in which to bring our finances up to the mark set for them in the beginning of the year. The reports for the third quarter showed that each one of our three Conferences was behind on its pledge. We surely cannot fail at this point, for the obligation resting upon us is very great indeed. Let us put forth strenuous efforts and bring our pledges right up to the mark. Let us not fall behind in any of our offerings. The needs of the waiting world are greater than ever before.

During the Week of Prayer a brief, concise little leaflet was distributed and its title was "A Little Argument with Myself." Did you read it? Did you let its words burn deep into your heart? Do you remember that the first sentence read like this, "If I refuse to give anything to missions, I practically cast a ballot in favor of the recall of every missionary in both home and foreign fields?" Some of our women have given nothing, not even their time and prayers, and to them we make an appeal for some gift. God has blessed you abundantly this year; will you not make a thank-offering to him?

Perhaps some are giving less than heretofore; that means they favor a reduction in our missionary force. Surely that cannot be the case, when the fields are "white unto the harvest." Then we have those who are giving the same amount and by that act are showing themselves satisfied with the work at its present status, forgetting that our great Commander's orders were "Go." Let us join the fourth class, or those who want to increase their offering, thus showing a deep desire to see the advancement of His kingdom. No sacrifice in order to make this increase is too great, for the greatest sacrifice the world has ever known was made that you might have eternal life. Will you deny that life to others?

YOUR HEART

is closely connected with your nerves, so close in fact that anything which effects your nerves must necessarily effect your heart and vice versa.

If you are troubled with palpitation, dizziness, shortness of breath, swelling of ankles, pain on either side of the chest, or weak and irregular pulse, symtoms of a nervous breakdown, the best way to remedy the trouble is by giving your heart and nerves the proper tonic. Renovine for the heart and nerves is the best tonic for soothing and restoring a shattered nervous system. For sale by all reliable dealers, 50c and $1.00. According to the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate, Bishop F. D. Leete, of Atlanta, Ga., has lately dedicated six town and country churches for white people in the territory under his supervision. Ground has also been broken for the church enterprise in Atlanta, concerning which there has been so much discussion. From this it would seem that the Northern Methodists are still bent on establishing their work as generally as they can among the white population of the South.

Have Dark Hair and Look Young

Nobody can Tell When you Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

RESOLUTIONS OF APPRECIATION.

Resolutions adopted by the officials of the Durant (Miss.) Methodist Church.

Whereas we, the officials of the Durant Methodist Church, have a keen appreciation of the services of Rev. W. S. Shipman and Rev. E. Nash Broyles, and desire to give some expression of our feelings for permanent record; therefore be it

Resolved, That we tender them our sincere thanks for their earnest efforts and effectual services as presiding elder and pastor of the Durant charge;

That it is our belief that Methodism has prospered here under their leadership as it has never done before; that the improvement in the material and spiritual welfare of every department of our Church has been phenomenal; that, in our opinion, the advancement along all lines has been due in a large measure, if not entirely so, to their wise and judicious administration of affairs pertaining to the Master's cause; that their work has been constructive throughout and that time alone can measure the fruits of their labor; that we rejoice with them and with the congregation in the advancement of the Kingdom under their guidance; and that we wish them Godspeed;

That a copy of these resolutions be incorporated in the Minutes of the Quarterly Conference, and a copy forwarded to the editor of the Conference organ with a request for its publication.

F. A. Howell, Secretary.

HAS MANY FRIENDS IN THE NORTH.

While the Southern friends of RENWAR are almost countless, this remarkable remedy for rheumatism has many good friends in the North. Among these is Mr. M. E. Sorge, Milwaukee, Wis., who writes: "I am glad to say that I have used Renwar with the greatest satisfaction and benefit. It has taken all the traces of rheumatism out of my system. To any one suffering with rheumatism I can highly recommend Renwar Rheumatic Salts." If you suffer with rheumatism or constipation, get a 50c bottle of RENWAR of your druggist. Money refunded if it fails to relieve. Prepared and guaranteed by Warner Drug Co., Nashville, Tenn.—Adv.

IS THIS CHARACTERISTIC OF THE AGE?

President Fitch, of Andover, in order to illustrate the lamentable ignorance among many college undergraduates of "that greatest of all books in our English tongue, which records the high-water mark of our spoken language"—the King James version of the Bible—says he once asked a boy in his freshman class at Williams: "Who was Hagar?" and he gently replied, "One of the twelve Apostles."

And—as an example of the language one might expect from an East Side gamin and representing gross illiteracy in an undergraduate—he tells us of a certain student in a leading Eastern university. He was writing home on a Sunday afternoon, and referred to the sermon preached that morning by perhaps the most distinguished public speaker now residing in New York city. The young fellow's appreciation of this really notable man was a master-piece of discriminating insight and felicitous expression. He wrote: "We had a guy down here this morning from New York who preached forty minutes. Gee, but he was rotten!"—Western Christian Advocate.

"THOU ART THE MAN."

Special attention has been given to the story printed below by its incorporation in the editorial columns of some of our papers. It is worthy of such treatment and is here reproduced in the place for which it was marked when it first came from the Mission Board:

Said the colonel of a Central China regiment to a Methodist pastor at Kiukiang:

"I wish you would send me a man who would not only preach Christ to my soldiers, but would also live a Christlike life before them. If you have a suitable man, send him to the camp and I will be responsible for his salary."

The pastor asked for a chance to think it over. After a few days he called at the colonel's headquarters and announced: "I have found the man."

"Who is it?" inquired the colonel.

"Yourself," quietly returned the preacher. "If you are convinced that Christ is no myth, but a living reality, then ask from him strength and grace to witness before your men by word and by deed."

The following Sunday the colonel with a brother officer attended the service at our Central Church.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

FROM SIBLEY TO GLENMORA.

Dear Brother Meek: After three years' work and association with the people of the Sibley charge, we bade them good-by last Tuesday. These were three years of strenuous labor, and at times we were almost ready to despair; but the Lord blessed our labors and we hope that the Kingdom of our Christ was advanced there. We were lovingly remembered in many ways before we left. Mrs. Faulk was very appropriately remembered in the gift of a silver set which came as a present from the Embroidery Club. But the greatest of all, perhaps, was the way they told us good-by. Many of the older people and the Sunday school scolars in mass marched to the train to see us off, and, as they expressed it, came as far as they could with us.

We have been cordially received here, and they have been "pounding" us for the past two days. The ladies have bought a nice set of chairs for the parsonage, and the leading laymen, as well as the ladies, say they are going to build a new parsonage and a new church. We believe that we are going to have a good year.

REPORT OF THE HOSPITAL COMMITTEE.

(Adopted by the Mississippi Conference in its late session at Laurel.)

Dear Brethren: We have heard with interest and appreciation the report of our Hospital Commissioners and the statement of the Field Secretary, Rev. H. M. Ellis.

We regret that the simple plan adopted by the last Conference for raising the necessary funds for opening the Hospital failed for lack of cooperation on the part of pastors and Sunday school superintendents, and that financial conditions prevailing during the year have made it impossible to secure the amount needed. But we note with pleasure that, in spite of adverse conditions, our Field Secretary has raised during the year $15,000 in cash and more than $10,000 in additional subscriptions, and that all obligations have been promptly met and advancement made.

We fear that our people have not yet awakened to the real need for this institution. We therefore call on our pastors and presiding elders, the recognized leaders and teachers of the Church, to faithfully instruct our people and impress upon them the urgency of this need. Hospital service is more in demand to-day than ever before, and this demand is constantly increasing. Other denominations are responding to the movings of the Spirit of Christ and providing such institutions, and it is unfair that we fail to make provision for our own sick and unfortunate, and so force our people on the hospitals of other denominations and crowd them out. And we not only need our Methodist Hospital to minister to the afflicted who must have such service or die, but that we may adequately express and demonstrate the Christ spirit of our own Church, and that our practice may agree with our professions of sympathy. Let our preachers make this clear to our people, without waiting for the visits of the Field Secretary, whose great field renders it impossible for him to reach all.

We offer the following resolutions:

Resolved, That we heartily unite with the other Conferences enlisted in this movement in setting apart and faithfully observing Sunday, January 23, 1915, as HOSPITAL DAY, on which, or as near thereto as possible, all our congregations and Sunday schools shall be solicited and urged to make a worthy offering for this greatly needed institution.

Resolved, That we will in every way possible co-operate with and assist our Field Secretary in his campaigns and visitations of our churches and people during the coming year, and that we will pray for his success in the work and the speedy opening of the Hospital.

We recommend to the Bishop the appointment of H. M. Ellis as Field Secretary of the Methodist Hospital, Memphis, Tenn., for the coming year.

We recommend to the Conference the election of Rev. J. R. Jones, Rev. J. T. Leggett, Mr. L. N. Dantzler, Mr. P. H. Enochs and Mr. W. E. Lampton as Hospital Commissioners for the Mississippi Conference for the ensuing year. Respectfully submitted,

W. H. LEWIS,
W. M. SULLIVAN,
W. D. DAVIS,
Committee.

THEY SALUTE, BUT DO NOT SPEAK.

Voltaire one day lifted his hat to a crucifix as a religious procession passed him on a Paris Street. A friend turned to him in amazement, exclaiming, "What! are you reconciled with God?" With fine irony came the reply, "We salute, but do not speak!" The world of our day is too full of people whose relationship to God is just about that: "We salute, but we do not speak." They accept God and the Church, and are often markedly reverent and philanthropic, but they maintain no personal relationship with the heavenly Father or with His Son Jesus Christ. They salute, but they do not speak.—New York Christian Advocate.

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 62—No. 50. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences Methodist Episcopal Church South Whole No. 3151

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1915. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

Editorial

"I look to Thee in every need,
And never look in vain;
I feel Thy touch Eternal Love,
And all is well again;
The thought of Thee is mightier far
Than pain and sorrow are."

* * *

A contemporary says: "The only way to 'love everybody' is to pick out a few persons near at hand and focus attention upon them." Love may to some extent be susceptible of cultivation, but it is a divine implantation, coming with the new birth and progressing toward perfection as the Holy Spirit is given increasing sway in the domain of the soul.

* * *

Will Jesus save to-day? Why not put him to the test and see? Begin to pray earnestly for some unsaved person about you, and to work tactfully to bring him to the Master. There are many Christians, clerical and lay, to whom the glorious experience of leading a few souls into the kingdom would be worth more than anything else that could be done for them. It would banish doubt and tone up the whole spiritual life.

* * *

What a privilege is prayer! It ushers one into the Christian life, and by it alone can one make progress therein. The richest blessings of God come only in response to it. The Heavenly Father gives to those "who ask." The first step toward efficiency in Christian service is to learn how to pray prevailingly. And this is a thing that every disciple of Jesus must himself find out how to do. It must be an acquirement of each individual soul.

* * *

The important thing is not how the Church appraises a man, but what the Master's estimate of him is. There is enough of the world in the Church to cause it often to look upon the outward appearance, but our Lord ever looks upon the heart. We do not in the least doubt that there will be circuit riders who will outrank bishops in the great day when Jesus comes to reckon with his servants. Then character (true holiness) and fidelity will be given the recognition and rewards that are due them, which means that those possessing them, however obscure and neglected they may have been on earth, will wear the most lustrous crowns in heaven.

OUR COUNTRY CHURCHES.

Is there a rural church problem? In our opinion, there undoubtedly is. For some years the drift of the white population in the South has, as a rule, been away from the rural communities to the towns and cities, where more comforts and convenlences, better schools, and other desirable cultural agencies are within reach. In many instances this has left our congregations in the interior depleted and greatly weakened in every way.

Another factor in the case is that the growth of our town and city churches—often as a direct result of members coming to them from the country—enables them to pay larger salaries to their pastors, and in consequence they insist invariably upon having the services of the better trained and more experienced ministers. The result is that the younger preachers are generally sent to the circuits, where often their stipends are so meager that they cannot procure the books needed for self-improvement, or take advantage of the valuable opportunities offered them through correspondence courses and summer Biblical schools. The large number of congregations that they must serve also makes anything like systematic study very difficult.

That Methodism has declined to an appreciable extent in many of the country communities in the Southern States is too obvious to admit of denial. Churches that were once flourishing and active, are to-day struggling for existence and are exerting nothing like the influence that they did in former years. In consequence, in numerous localities there has been a marked declension both in piety and morals.

How is this wrong trend of things to be corrected? We cannot now undertake anything like a full discussion of this important problem, but we will offer a few reflections concerning it. First, we wish to say that we do not believe that the remedy is to be found in the secularization of the country preacher and the country church. To undertake to make the rural pastor an up-to-date instructor in diversified farming, road building, hygiene, etc.—a sort of jack of all trades—would, in our opinion, have the effect of dividing his energies and of defeating the fulfillment of his high and holy mission. Nothing is so much needed by all our congregations to-day as an effective spiritual ministry to the souls of men. Such a work would be large enough to tax an angel's brain and heart, to say nothing of an ordinary mortal. For this reason, God calls his ministers "apart"—commissions them to this one supreme task. How dare we, then, to presume to mix them up in all kinds of secular affairs? Better far to let them follow the example of Paul in his determination not to know anything among the Corinthians "save Christ and him crucified."

What then can be done to help our weakening rural churches? Let us endeavor to give them a more intensive cultivation—more preaching and more pastoral visitation. And in the turning of our great itinerant wheel, let us see that, occasionally at least, they are served by men of training and experience! An unvarying classification of our preachers into city pastors and country pastors has, as we see it, a bad effect in many ways. A more frequent interchange of preachers serving our different types of churches would, we think, be helpful. Indeed, we are not sure but that it would be a wise thing to adopt the English plan of doing away with stations entirely and having only circuit appointments, doubling up ministers on them where necessary.

Furthermore, we should seek to improve our rural houses of worship. They should be made thoroughly comfortable and provided with all necessary conveniences. Wherever practicable, they should have Sunday school rooms and such other proper appointments as would make them serviceable to the public. We sympathize to a considerable extent with the view that our country churches should be made community centers for high and worthy ends.

And our parsonages in the interior should be made in every respect creditable and attractive, also our preachers on circuits should be better paid, even if we have to carry a very much larger assessment for domestic missions than we now do to make this possible. Methodism is connectional, and we know of no good reason why a preacher in a town, with perhaps a small family, should receive a salary of $2000, while only a few miles away a brother of not less ability on a circuit, with possibly a large family, should have to stint and struggle along on a meager income of $600. Ought not our assessments to be so placed as to make the support of our men more equitable? It has long been our firm conviction that the Church ought not accept the services of any man in the itinerancy for whose necessities she does not make reasonably adequate provision. This is invariably done in the foreign field; why should it not be done in the home land?

In conclusion, we will say that it is to be hoped that our Mission and Church Extension Boards (both the General Boards and those in our Annual Conferences) will give increasing attention to our rural work, with a view to fostering and promoting it. It involves questions that are well worth their careful study. Our country churches have been Methodism's chief source of strength in the past, and if she should lose her hold upon our interior population, it is to be feared that the rapidity of her growth would soon be lessened everywhere. The Church of the masses is the Church that will sway the future.

The editor of a leading American periodical some time ago referred to Christ as the greatest molly-coddle of all time. Nothing could be further from the truth than this statement. Jesus was never known to compromise a principle, or to waver in his open advocacy of the things for which he stood. He was not a reed shaken by the wind, but was as firm as the rock of Gibraltar. Nothing can be found in human literature more scathing than his arraignment of the Scribes, Pharisees, and hypocrites, and he scourged the money changers from the temple. It was because he would surrender nothing in his teachings, because he would not spare the sins and shams and frauds of his day, that he was made to seal his ministry with his precious blood. The sword could not accomplish the great purposes that he had in view—hence he did not appeal to it; but a more inflexible, aggressive, and manly man than he this planet has never known.

A COUNTRY CHURCH.

Clear-eyed and prim, with walls of white
  Among the leaves of birch
That tinged but did not stem the light,
  Nestled the little church.
All summer open to the air
And all that green a-quiver there.

About were tender, dreamy sounds;
  The stamp of horses' feet,
The mumbling bees upon their rounds
  Where clover nodded sweet,
A piping quail—the grain low bent
Showed where her furtive flutterings went.

Next father in the pew's long row
  Came urchins sternly shod;
Next mother—for she planned it so—
  The child who first would nod,
Laying, when sermon-time oppressed,
His poppy cheek upon her breast.

Bare stretched your aisle and long your hour
  To many a childish wight,
Wee churches, yet rich in holy power,
  You blessed as angels might.
Long years have gone—our faith is true;
Long years we've prayed, because of you.

The American country-bred boy is still at the front and making good where there is call for brain and brawn and backbone. In Church and State, counting-house and trade, planning and executing, they want him to take charge and lead the way. He is merchant, banker, constructor, director, engineer, financier, and so on. All this in addition to his being farmer and feeding the nation and helping to feed the world.

Dr. Gunsaulas, of Chicago, makes this statement: "Of the twelve most prominent preachers of this city, every last mother's son of them was raised on the farm; so were all the leading journalists; eighty-six of the one hundred biggest corporation lawyers, and seventy-three of the one hundred most efficient engineers."—The Presbyterian of the South.

HINTS FOR YOUNG MINISTERS.

A minister, after attending a prominent church and hearing a sermon upon a text which he himself had several times preached from, and almost every gospel preacher has expounded—a text containing the very marrow of the gospel, went home refreshed, cheered, glad and grateful. There was not a new idea in the discourse, but it was listened to as closely and with as much interest as though he had known nothing about it. Why? Because it contained the truth of justification by faith—a basic truth upon which his salvation rested—a truth that leads to a blessed experience, and hence, be found in its happy, clear and forcible presentation, heart-comfort and life-cheer. It was set forth with an earnestness and directness that could not but do good.

A pastor of experience said: "That young man's ministry will be a success. Such pure gospel, so faithfully and plainly expounded, will build up believers and save sinners."

Let ministers stand by the truth as it is in Jesus. Let philosophy and metaphysics and aesthetics alone. Deal with souls, bring a Christ of redeeming power to them. Do not be afraid to preach a substitutionary sacrifice—a Jesus upon the cross for sinners.

Especially let young preachers who are tempted to deal in pulpit pyrotechnics and go after the sensational, keep aloug the old track of the Apostles, reformers, and evangelists, in holding up a Christ crucified as the only hope of perishing, guilty men.—Irish Presbyterian.

A SELFISH LEADER.

Kipling tells of a man who, when asked why he invariably followed a well-known leader into the most uncomfortable situations, replied: "All the years I have known So-and-so I've never known him to say whether he was cold or hot, wet or dry, sick or well, but I've never known him to forget a man who was." Indeed, that is the secret of leadership that really leads and lasts.—Baptist Recorder.

THE NEED OF THE HOUR.

Rev. W. W. Pinson, D. D.

If there is one great lesson more than another being taught in this terrible hour it is the lesson of human helplessness. God has called the world to its knees. Those props on which men in their pride and self-sufficiency have leaned have crumbled into dust, and they are stretching lame and empty hands toward God. Atheists have renounced their negations. Formalists have found the great reality. Papists and patriarchs have gone beyond their images and ikons and have let their hearts speak right out. From the trenches, from blood-soaked battle-fields, from lands where the crepe hangs thick and homes offer up their best, the voice of prayer rises. Millions who never really prayed are praying now.

This is the first need. Nothing can supersede it. The Church is called on to learn anew the lesson of prayer. It is the one sure and availing resource left us. This is God's hour. It is the hour of man's bewilderment and humiliation. There is only one hope—only one way out. That is the way of the throne of God. The Church must find it or confess her failure. Men are asking as of old, "Where is thy God?" Unbelief is challenging the omnipotence of God. God alone can answer; he answers through his people's prayers. We must form a channel through which his power can flow.

The call of the Mission Board for a Week of Prayer beginning January 2 and ending January 9, is no idle call. It fits the mood and need of the hour. It is only repeating and making definite as to time the appeal of our Bishops, the call to prayer issued by the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the note that rings out from all the Churches. Our own Churches on which rest such a measureless responsibility; our own land, the last civilized stronghold of peace and human brotherhood; the warriug nations bathed in blood and tears; the heathen lands wondering and bewildered; missionaries who stand where the storm beats hard—all need intercession as they need nothing else. If many feared the prayers of John Knox more than an army, what shall we say of the prayers of a whole people? Two million Methodists, on their knees! Who can measure its meaning? Armies, diplomacy, war loans, dreadnoughts, these all pale into insignificance beside the power of prayer, rightly used.

May we not reasonably call on our people everywhere to give themselves to an entire week of intercession? Let us turn aside for the time from our tiukering with the machinery, and our routine of trivialities and devote one entire week to prayer. Thus let us lay the foundations for the year's work in the power and love and wisdom of God. I cannot help thinking this is the supreme need. All have grown proud of our human achievements and confident in our human capabilities. The Church has lent its ear to the hum of the machines and has caught the spirit of this practical age. But ours is a spiritual and superhuman task, and the most practical—the only practical thing for us—is to seek spiritual and superhuman help.

This is the lesson we have to teach. The world knows the others. What we need to witness to is the supernatural. If we do not deal with that we have no place in the earth. This is the one thing that the world cannot withstand. Shall we fail of our duty, and deny ourselves the joy and honor of pointing a bewildered and hopeless world to the sources of its strength and of mediating to it the power of Christ through our united intercessions?

We have prepared with some care a suggestive program for the use of those who may desire it. This program suggests a topic for each day, with appropriate scriptures, and can be used by any leader with a little thought. We have also prepared some leaflets for distribution. These will be furnished free in such quantities as may be needed.

Let those who read this begin now to pray that a great burden of prayer may be put upon the Church, and that the first week in 1916 may be one of great heart-searching, earnest intercession, and unusual power.

A NOBLE WARFARE.

(In a recent issue of the Memphis Commercial Appeal appeared the following editorial utterance, which we most heartily commend. We like to see a great journal which recognizes its obligation to humanity and which seeks to render a real service to society. The editor of this well known and widely circulated periodical is Mr. C. P. J. Mooney, who as a newspaper man ranks with the best to be found in the Nation. This warfare which he proclaims is a noble one, and we trust that victory will crown the efforts of our distinguished contemporary. As opportunity may permit, we hope to have the Advocate to lend a helping hand in this splendid campaign, which is not intended to destroy life, but to preserve it.)

Eight years ago The Commercial Appeal began a campaign for diversified farming in this territory. We believe the efforts of the paper had a tremendous influence in the changed and changing conditions and in Southern rural life. The movement has received an impetus which will enable it to carry itself hereafter with the earnest and active co-operation of the press and the people.

The Commercial Appeal is now preparing to engage in a campaign that will last ten years.

Do you know that a steady effort for ten years will abolish tuberculosis in this Southern country of ours? Do you know that a steady campaign of ten years throughout the world would abolish tuberculosis from the face of this fair earth? You hear much about the loss of life by war. Do you know that more people die every year from tuberculosis than die from wars during one hundred years? Do you know that more people die in one month from tuberculosis than have been killed and wounded during the entire time of this, the world's greatest war? Do you know that one-eighth of the people of the United States die from tuberculosis? Do you realize that every one of these deaths from tuberculosis could be prevented? Do you know that tuberculosis is the most burdensome disease that afflicts humanity?

Do you know how many people died in Memphis last year from tuberculosis? One-seventh of the deaths in Memphis were from tuberculosis, and yet Memphis is no greater sufferer from tuberculosis than more than half of the cities of the United States.

Last year 390 people died from tuberculosis in the city of Memphis. Of this number probably 50 died who contracted the disease in other places and came here to pass their last months. But this number is conteracted by those who went away from Memphis into other parts of the United States seeking life and there meeting death. Tuberculosis is just as bad in Little Rock, in Nashville, in Chattanooga, in New Orleans, in Birmingham and in Louisville.

Do you know consumption is preventable? Do you know that it is curable if taken hold of in time? Do you also know that consumption can be cured just as easily, if taken in time, in Memphis or in this territory, as anywhere else?

Over a thousand people in Memphis now have tuberculosis. Of this thousand eight hundred will be dead in five years unless we do something. Next year there will be recruits enough added to make the army of consumptives a little larger.

Consumption is one of the diseases that accompany the advancement of civilization. As the difference between extreme wealth and extreme poverty grows larger, consumption flourishes the more. Consumption seizes the very rich and the very poor. The very rich may fight it off. The very poor have little chance. Those who are moderately well to do might beat off consumption, but the alarm is not sounded until they are far on the road.

Consumption flourishes in the ill-ventilated alley home, and it also rejoices when it gains access to the extremely well artificially-heated house.

Before the war negroes did not have consumption. In those days they lived in cabins on the plantations, with few chinks between the logs, and with a big stick chimney that served the purpose of ventilators as well as smoke conveyors. Now the death rate among negroes from consumption is appalling. They huddle up during the winter in places where there is no free air. There was little consumption among the pioneer white men, because the door was left open in order to make the chimney draw. Much of the consumption that is in the country now came out from the city.

Consumption is a communicable disease. It is a germ disease. Multiplication of germs gives it its power. It is not an inherited disease. The frail child of frail parents may be an easier victim, but the seed of consumption is not transmitted from father to child.

We want to abolish consumption in this territory within the next ten years. There will be a big movement all over these United States with the same purpose in view. Are YOU willing to help?

Never mind writing in and saying you are, but get ready to do something when you are called upon. This is a fine fight that we invite you to enter. It is a challenge to your courage and to your industry. It will enable you to bring into play the highest intelligence. It will also give you opportunity to work in a cause where the conservation instead of destruction of human life will be your purpose.

It is just as easy to stamp out consumption as it is to prevent smallpox. It is just as easy to cure consumption, if you start curing early, as it is to stop the ravages of malaria. The fortunate thing is that the remedy is in your hands. The cure does not come from drugs; it comes from right living.

Before the first of the year we hope to outline a plan that will interest you. Be ready to bear a hand in this big campaign.

RETROSPECTIVE.

(Written by Mr. L. P. Brown on the occasion of his 66th birthday, to which the congregation of which he is a member gave fitting recognition.)

Having been reading an old and prized volume in my library which contains conversations between Mr. Wesley and some of his preachers in 1773, and also the Minutes of the Annual Conferences from the first one held in Philadelphia, Penn., May 25, 1774, to the ones in 1813 inclusive, I write with retrospection, and at the same time with some degree of introspection.

To think of one preacher for New York, Thomas Rankin, and one for Philadelphia, George Shadford, and for them to exchange work every four months, the total number of Methodist preachers being only ten, and now to contemplate our great Methodism which almost spans the globe, and which, under its Heaven-given birth and fire baptism, ought long before this day to have brought in evangelization the entire world to the feet of Christ! Contemplations have brought me into a closer range.

November 7, 1869—November 7, 1915.

A profusion of flowers accompanied by a strongly worded note from a large Bible class upon my breakfast table announced my 66th birthday. Similar letters from friends and expressions from loved ones gave increased emphasis. Away from home, a young man, among strangers and new made friends, I gave my heart to God and my hand to a Methodist preacher, and became a member of the Central Methodist Church of Meridian, Mississippi.

A short while after I communed for the first time on my 20th birthday; to-day, 46 years later, at the same altar, upon a birth day, wife and I, with ten children (all present save one, who is Secretary of the Young Woman's Christian Association in Dallas, Texas), a son-in-law, a daughter-in-law, one one grandchild (who is a son of the sainted Wadsworth Lipscomb), upon bended knees, together partook of the emblems of the broken body and shed blood of our Lord. All are members of the church and Sunday school. The average age of ten children when uniting with the Church seven and one-half years. Christians by profession and possession. Each dates conversion from home altar and fireside. Memory gives approximately twenty-one pastors and nineteen presiding elders as having served the church since I came to Meridian. Six of the former and four or five of the latter are now recalled as living. But a single person, with a continuous membership is left in the church, which now numbers about one thousand, and she is found each Sunday in my Bible class. Not a one of the boards of trustees, stewards or class leaders is left.

When first elected as a steward and Sunday school superintendent I declined from a feeling of unworthiness, but later when named by ballot, without nomination, by the entire number of teachers and officers, twenty-three in all, to the pastor for recommendation to the quarterly conference, I accepted the honor. I look over the Sunday school to-day and not a single one of those is left.

More than thirty times I have been elected as a lay delegate to the Mississippi Annual Conference, and five times to the General Conference.

The Minutes show but two preachers on the effective list who were members of the Conference when I was first a delegate.

I was early providentially thrown with Bishops Wightman, Kavanaugh, Paine, Marvin, and Keener.

Under our home roof as guests when a young couple were Bishop McTyeire and others of our own Church, and of the M. E. Church, Bishops Walden, Mallalieu, Ninde, Thirkield, and others. Among the early State. Presidents in the State Sunday school work, I recall the names of the first fourteen. Among that number were General A. P. Stewart, Dr. Harvey F. Johnson, Judge H. L. Jornigan, Captain John T. Buck, Judge S. M. Shelton, Major Paxton, Colonel J. L. Power, and others; and but two J. B. Streater of North Mississippi and myself are living.

In a closer circle was the boyhood S. S. C., or Thesplan Society. A by-law limited the number to twelve or fourteen in all, and from a little picture which hangs upon the wall, I note the faces of but three left: Marcellus Green, Esq., Thomas J. Wharton, Esq., of Jackson, and myself.

If these reflections were further extended, there would come the names of five firms for whom I first clerked (13 partners in all) and about 35 clerks, and all are dead but one.

With these retrospections, there comes introspection.

Gratitude for guidance, extended life, health, and innumerable blessings knows no limit.

Down in the heart's oratory, where He alone can see and hear, is the truest praise, first for an entire family in Christ; then for all else that has followed.

In temptations, testings, and provings, God has proven a good pay master. He is bigger than the devil.

In early manhood there was the forsaking of all known sins and a clear, definite conversion. I was born from above and had peace with God, but there remained the roots in the heart: temper, passion, inward struggling, with all their concomitants, were there.

A few years after my conversion, in the midst of a life of Christian activity, without human help, argument or suggestion, after the heart's longing for practical deliverance, alone in a room at night, with an open Bible and upon knees in prayer, and led by the Spirit, the power of God came, clear, quietly, unmistakably. Not a definite sermon on the subject do I remember to have heard upon the experience or how to obtain it up to that hour.

As I now read in the old volume of the earlier Conferences Bishop Asbury's words over the grave of Bishop Whatcat (1807), and the action of the South Carolina Conference (1805), after the translation of our own first missionary to the Mississippi Conference, Tobias Gibson, in which it was said, among other things, "Tobias Gibson did for many years preach, possess, and practice Christian perfection." Upon the Conference record statements are found as follows.

"Richard Whatcat—converted on September 3, 1758; sanctified on March 28, 1761; began to travel 1769; came to America 1784, elected Superintendent or Bishop in May, 1800, died July 5, 1806."

Back in 1796 the Conference recorded of Benjamin Abbott: "He was owned of God as an instrument of convincing, converting, and sanctifying power to many souls. Perhaps he was one of the greatest men of America, no man's copy, an uncommon zealot for the blessed work of sanctification, and preached it on all occasions and in all congregations, and what was best of all, lived it."

I am sure such testimonies and teachings would have led me out at once after my conversion into the Canaan experience. But in the room that night the Blesser came into my heart to abide.

Mistakes, blunders, temptations and misunderstandings have crowded my pathway, but there has ever been the deep soul rest and perfect peace.

In a business office, at home, upon fast-moving trains, in church, tents and brush arbors, I have seen from pulpit and pew strong Christian men and women, many now living and many looking down from heaven, when we were alone together under the conviction and leading of the Holy Spirit, receive the definite baptism subsequent to their regeneration and witness to the same.

Experience, prayers answered, and communings with some now on earth, and others who have gone over life's river, are too sacred to be revealed, but will be talked over in our Father's home.

Importunity in prayer has been much used, but in the forty-six years of an active life as a Christian layman, I count the inwrought-prayer as incomparable to all else.

In faith and prayer,

Meridian, Miss. L. P. BROWN.

CHRISTIAN SERVICE.

By Robert Edwin Meek.

Man is naturally a selfish creature and is little disposed to do anything from which no material gain is to be derived. Consequently service in the worldly sense has always been determined by the lucrative gains which it may bring to one, rather than by consuming love and an acknowledment of the weighty obligations which one owes to God and to his fellow-men. But service in this sense, or in the sense of one who, being a slave, serves his master because he is forced to, is not the meaning of service as interpreted by Christ. In the Christian sense, service can not mean labor solely for earthly gain or the toil that the unwilling shoulders of the slave are forced to bear up under. Christian service is voluntary, and is given because one loves God and his fellowmen, and feels that nothing that he can do is sufficient to fulfill his obligations toward them.

One of the fundamental teachings of Christianity, or rather one of the qualities of character which the religion of Christ inculcates is unselfishness. Unselfishness and service in the Christian sense are closely allied qualities, in that the presence of the one is always suggestive of the presence of the other, and that the absence of the one is always indicative of the absence of the other. He who is unselfish will feel his responsibilities to God and to his fellow-men and will have a great desire to discharge his obligations to them, and will endeavor to do so to the best of his ability.

He who serves others without the hope of temporal gain is truly unselfish. This does not mean that people can not carry the idea of service into their daily work. On the contrary, they should do this, and will do so, if they are Christians, no matter what their calling is; and for this reason they are masters of the world rather than servants of it.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Sunday—Dec. 5.

While the spiritual side of the Conference had been at high tide throughout the week, it certainly reached the climax on Sunday morning, in the annual Love Feast, which was conducted by Rev. J. A. Bowen, formerly of Birmingham, now one of our Conference evangelists. It was an occasion of rejoicing, and some of the veterans of the Cross received such a full cup that they went up and down the aisles, shouting aloud the praises of God. It was indeed good to be there.

At eleven o'clock Bishop Atkins filled the pulpit, and we believe we use the word "filled" advisedly, using as his text the sixteenth verse of the seventeenth chapter of Acts, and his subject was "The Stirred Spirit in Man." The Bishop portrayed Paul as one who possessed this "stirred spirit," showing what he might have become as a lawyer, a philosopher, a soldier, and emphasizing the point that all who have achieved success in any profession have reached these heights because they had their spirits stirred within them, and nothing short of success would satisfy them.

At the close of the sermon, W. N. Dodds, D. R. Wasson, C. T. Floyd, F. H. McGee, W. W. Bruner, I. F. Hollaud, and J. H. Brooks were ordained deacons.

Sunday—3 p. m.

By appointment of Bishop Atkins, Rev. J. H. Smith presided at the Memorial Service, which was held at the Methodist Church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The song, "Asleep in Jesus," was sung, which was followed by the Scripture lesson from the fourteenth Chapter of John, read by Rev. J. B. Randolph, after which Rev. John Ritchey led in prayer. The chair called Question 21—"What preachers have died during the year?" and the Secretary read the names of W. A. Clark and T. J. Durrett.

The memoir of Brother Clark was read by Rev. J. B. Randolph, and that of Brother Durrett by Rev. J. H. Smith. Loving tributes to these good men who had fallen during the year were paid by a number of the brethren.

Suitable memorials were also read of Mrs. J. M. Huggin, wife of one of the superannuate members of the Conference, who died in Memphis in the early part of the year, and of Dr. J. Y. Murry, of Ripley, for many years one of the prominent laymen of the Conference. Following the song, "I Would Not Live Always," the memorial session adjourned.

Sunday Evening.

The audience on Sunday evening taxed the church to its capacity, as a former beloved pastor, Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, was to preach at this hour. Brother Lipscomb used for his text John 6:68: "Thou hast the words of eternal life," and his many admirers and friends were not disappointed in his masterly effort.

Following the sermon, Bishop Atkins, assisted by several of the elders, ordained as elders the following: E. M. Shaw, T. J. Hopper, T. E. Gregory, W. O. Wagoner, G. A. Baker, A. S. Raper, T. L. Houston, and J. J. Baird.

Monday Morning—6th Day.

According to prior announcement, the Conference convened at 8 o'clock, Bishop Atkins presiding.

The Bishop asked Rev. R. H. B. Gladney to lead the morning worship. Hymn, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," was sung. A Scripture lesson from the 7th chapter of John was read, and Brother Gladney led in earnest prayer to God for his blessings upon the work of the Conference, and that he would guide us in the year's work now upon us.

Minutes of the two sessions of Saturday and of the memorial session Sunday afternoon were read and approved.

J. H. Felts offered resolutions of thanks to the people of New Albany for their unbounded hospitality, to Brother Pope and his co-workers for their untiring efforts in behalf of the Conference, to the Bishop for the painstaking care and patience manifest during the sessions of the Conference, to the Secretaries, railroads, newspapers; in fact, to all who had contributed to make this one of the best Conferences in all the history of this honorable body.

The report of the Statistical Secretaries, in answer to Questions 23 to 50, showed a very gratifying increase in all departments of our Church. We had a net gain of some two thousand in membership, and an increase of four thousand in the Sunday school enrollment, as well as a substantial gain over last year in financial matters.

Rev. R. A. Tucker, retiring presiding elder of the Holly Springs District, was called to the chancel by J. R. Countiss, who, in the name of the preachers of that district presented to Brother Tucker a handsome fountain pen.

Bishop Atkins took occasion to remark that the giving of fountain pens was all right; but that some of the brethren ought to be presented with typewriters.

J. H. Mitchell asked for the location of T. G. Adair, which was granted.

Bishop Atkins called a brief session of the cabinet in the pastor's study, and asked W. L. Duren to preside.

Reports from committees on the Spiritual State of the Church and on Conference Relations were submitted and adopted.

The chair having been resumed by the Bishop, he was requested to appoint a committee of three to arrange for the prayer observance of Asbury Day, and the following were named on this committee: H. G. Henderson, J. R. Countiss, and W. L. Duren.

There being no further business, the Bishop spoke a few words of thanks and appreciation for all the courtesies shown him and expressed his regret at not being able to give every man the appointment that possibly he would desire. He then asked and answered Question 53—"Where are the Preachers Stationed this Year?"

INSTITUTES AT SOUTHERN METHODIST UNIVERSITY.

It is the purpose of the Theological Faculty and those in authority at Southern Methodist University to prepare the ministerial students for efficient pastorates. Consequently much emphasis will be placed on the mission of the Church, its responsibilities and its opportunities. This does not mean that the standard of scholarship will be lowered in any way; in fact, no degree is given in the Theological Department except to men who hold the A. B. degree, or have done its equivalent in work. But there are so many problems confronting the pastor of a church and so many opportunities before him for service, that the relationship of himself to this life must be given primary consideration. We feel that our seminary would not be rendering to the Church the service it ought to give unless we send out men better equipped to perform its work and with a greater and deeper enthusiasm for it than they have had before. We are anxious for our men to go out with a passion for humanity and the building up of the Kingdom of Christ.

Since we are determined to place the emphasis upon a more efficient service to Christ and the Church, we have welcomed the opportunity to hold in the first term of our seminary a Sunday School Institute and a Missionary Institute. On Saturday, November 20, Rev. Emmett Hightower, who had just held a most successful Institute at Oak Lawn Church (Dallas) and who is the Southwestern representative on our General Sunday School Board, assigned Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick and Mrs. Hamill to the faculty of our seminary for a series of addresses. Miss Kilpatrick and Mrs. Hamill spoke to the men of the Theological Department on Saturady morning, all classes for those hours being dismissed. On Sunday at the eleven o'clock hour Mrs. Hamill spoke to the whole student body resident on the campus. These addresses were full of inspiration and gave to our students a wider vision of the Sunday school work and an even deeper interest in it.

On Monday, November 28, Dr. E. H. Rawlings, Dr. John M. Moore, and Brother J. A. G. Shipley (of Shanghai), spoke to the students of the Theological Department. Dr. Rawlings was in charge of the Institute of the day, and he and Brother Shipley spoke again at the evening session. It was Monday, the regular holiday of the school; several of our men were attending their Conference sessions, yet there was a good attendance at both sessions of the Institute. Every address was an inspiration and the men present seemed to echo the determination of the faculty to send forth from S. M. U. men with missionary zeal. At present there is no professorship of Missions in the Theological faculty, but, until there is such a professorship, there will be mission study classes, and, through Dr. Rawlings and his department, every effort will be made to keep our men vitally in touch with the missionary opportunities and responsibilities of our Church.

With our unprecedented attendance at Southern Methodist University for the first year, great is our task and great our responsibility. With the co-operation and support of our ministers and churches, we are in the position to render a truly great service to humanity, the Church and the cause of Christ.

A LETTER FROM OUR AFRICAN MISSION.

(This communication was written to relatives at Lake Charles, La., by Mr. J. A. Stockwell, formerly of that place, who is now one of our missionaries to Africa.)

Wembo Niama, Sept. 25, 1915.

Dear Home Folks: I believe that I usually begin my letters with something about the mail man, either coming with the mail, or without any, as the case may be, that being about the most exciting event in our calendar, and I am glad to be able to say that this time he did not fail us, as he frequently does, but brought quite a good supply, but—the latest papers that I can find have the news of Secretary Bryan having resigned and are a little pessimistic as to the outcome of the controversy with Germany. I hope that when we hear again it will not be to the effect that the United States has been torpedoed and sunk.

I was requested in one of the last letters received to be a little more specific in my description of the native foods. I thought that I had pretty nearly exhausted that subject, but will try again and see if I can arrange a menu for you.

I suppose that it is necessary to state that very little that is digestible is allowed to escape by the African native. Corn, millet, rice, peanuts, plantains, cassava and sweet potatoes form the main part of their diet. Whenever they have it they use a great deal of palm oil, which is merely poured over the cooked (or rather half-cooked) meal, and to this may occasionally be added (usually pretty well along toward decomposition) fish, antelope or other game as well as chicken and eggs. But what seems to take the place of the watermelon (which will not grow here) in the native's affection is insects, such as caterpillars, crickets, grasshoppers, a kind of flying ant and even common, though very large, grubworms. The ants I believe are the favorite, and they catch a great many of them. They only come out in the morning, and then only occasionally; they fly for a short time, but by 9 a. m. they have all lost their wings, and as soon as they begin to crawl other kinds of ants attack them, and by noon there is not a one to be found. So, you see, it is not the people alone who are cannibals.

Another article that I have not included, because I have never had the pleasure (?) of witnessing a feast of it, is human flesh. When we first came they all denied its practice even during recent years, and I am not yet sure as to whether it is the fashion to entertain a guest with it, but one day in talking with our head carpenter, who is not a Batetela, I asked him in case a person was walking alone in the woods (of course, laying the scene a long ways back from the main path, and away from Wembo Niama), and if two or three from another village should find him, what would be the result, and he said that the lone man would be in danger of being eaten. Afterward I asked one of our houseboys the same thing, getting the same answer. They are so secretive about everything connected with their customs that there could have been cannibal feasts in Wembo Niama since our arrival without our knowing anything about it. But in justice to them as well as the State officers, I must say that I do not think there have been—at least not that near-by.

Perhaps customs such as this explains why this part of Africa is so thinly populated. I should judge that there are not more than one-fiftieth the people that the land would support, even without the intensive cultivation of civilized countries.

I have heard many times of a village that used to be right where our houses now stand, but for a long time could not get at the reason why the people moved away, but a short time ago I was told that Ngongo (a bad chief, whom, I believe I wrote you the State officers had executed some years ago) had raided it and they were all killed—and that the rest died of sleeping sickness. (I am still able to hear my alarm clock in the morning, though!)

Ngongo was the one from whom Wembo Niama got his instructions in the way to be a good chief.

I took the trouble one day to show Wembo Niama how fast and hard Bishop Lambuth's big automatic rifle would shoot. I am not in the least afraid of him, you understand; but am just naturally proud of the rifle. He seemed to be much impressed.

I am getting quite a reputation as a photographer, and several of the natives have asked me to take their pictures, offering me as much as two eggs for my trouble. One of them even wanted me to show him how to make pictures. I guess that he was planning to go into the business and get all the eggs he wanted.

I wish that you could see our carpenters at work. One of their favorite positions when one of them is sawing a board is to put it on the workbench, stand on it and hold it with his toes, while he saws. If there is a hard way to do a thing, I will put a native African up against any one I ever saw to find it. As ever,

The Supreme Court of West Virginia recently decided in favor of the constitutionality of the law which prohibits liquor advertising in the State through circular letters and order blanks by dealers outside of the State.

There are 410,000 Jews in the British Empire. About 200,000 of these are subjects of alien nations and the English Government can not call upon them for military service. Nearly 18,000 of the remaining number are in the British army.

The military authorities of Berlin have fixed the price of butter at 70 cents per pound. Let us hope that American dealers will not seek to follow the example set by the Germans, who have more provocation for doing so than they have.

One of the battalions being formed in Canada for the British army will be composed exclusively of enlisted citizens of the United States and will be known as the "American Legion." There are some 4000 citizens of this country enlisted in Canadian regiments, but the Ninety-seventh will be the only one that is exclusively composed of them.

The year 1915 has seen the exportation of American automobiles to eighty foreign countries. Without doubt, the United States has a great future as a manufacturing nation. She has the resources behind her which will enable her to lead the world in industrial pursuits, if she will continue to interest herself in them as she appears to be doing at the present time.

The United States has received orders for nearly 200,000,000 pounds of copper—one-fifth of the country's annual output. The metal sells for 20 cents a pound now and the deal to be made with Germany will involve a sum of about $40,000,000. We wonder what the English navy will be doing, while this copper is being transported to Germany.

Theater-going is prevalent among all classes in Germany, though doubtless it is not being indulged in as much now as in normal times. Speaking of this, a writer says: "The German takes his theater, as he does his life, seriously. To cough during a performance attracts attention; a sneeze almost amounts to a misdemeanor." We think that it would be better if the German took the revelations made by God to men in the Bible a little more seriously and regarded unsound Biblical teaching as reprehensible.

France and her colonial possessions have not produced enough sugar to supply that country's needs, and as a result between 300,000 and 325,000 tons will have to be imported. Cuba and the United States have already supplied a large portion of the amount needed and further purchases from them will be made. The price of sugar and the quantities of it to be consumed in France will be determined by the French Government. The war seems to be producing temporary socialism, in that the warring nations are beginning to realize that as a means of expediency the interest of the individual must be sacrificed to that of the community.

Bibles are being sold this year by American dealers for the first time in British, French, Russian, South African, and Australian markets. The normal output of Bibles in the United States has been increased by 50 per cent. A million and a half copies have been sold by one of the largest Bible houses within a year's time. Nine hundred and eighty different styles are being published at present. They will be sold at from 20 cents to $50 a copy; so it seems that every person in the country, be he rich or poor, can be supplied in the form that suits his taste with this most interesting and varied collection of writings in existence, and in the reading of which there is great profit.

TO YOUTH.

O ye who have no aim in sight,
Who have no goal for which to fight;
O ye whose lives are lax and vain,
Who live but for the moment's gain;
And ye whose paths are vague and dim,
Get ye a God and worship Him.

Walk not the frivoling ways of mirth
That bind you to the sordid earth;
But in thy strength, the strength of youth,
Choose for thy God the God of truth.
Thy soul may mount on wings of fire
And to celestial heights aspire.

A DISCUSSION.

We sat round the fire one winter night,
My dear little boys and I,
And we talked of men that were wise and good,
And of things that were great and high.

Thomas looked up from his history book,
And slowly and thoughtfully,
"I wonder, since ever the world began,
What's the greatest invention," quoth he.

Then rose such a chatter, a cry and a clatter,
You'd think they were monkeys, not boys;
For this one was squeaking, and that one was shrieking;
The room seemed to shake with their noise.

Jimmy said, "Gunpowder!" Teddy said, "Squirts!"
"Candy!" cried Billy Bolee.
"Printing!" said John, as he lovingly glanced
At the book, where it lay on his knee.

"Trousers!" said Timothy, just out of kilts.
"Root beer!" cried fat little Joe.
"Fireworks!" "Steam engines!" "Telegraph!"
"Skates!"
"Children! Ma said they were; so!"

Then up spoke Tim Tiny, who sat in my lap,
As he raised from my shoulder his head.
"I t'ink"—and he rubbed both the sleepy blue eyes—
"Ze greatest invention is—bed!"

A USEFUL SPICE-TREE.

By Anna E. Jacohs.

"The very first one I ever made!" exclaimed Marian as she rolled out the upper crust for an apple pie.

"Is everything in to make it taste nice?" said Cousin Laura.

"I think so."

"Any nutmeg?"

"O my, no! Where is it?" Soon she was grating carefully on the top of the pie a fine dusting of it, which would add much to the flavor of the apples.

"In it goes, and you must look at it once in a while when it is baking," warned Cousin Laura.

"What a funny, hard shell the nutmeg has," said Marian, "all covered with fine veins! Who would suspect, to look at it, that it would be so spicy and nice when rubbed on a grater?"

"Yes; and you know that when it is freshly picked it is in a case of soft, red veins, through which the seed peeps. These veins become at first yellowish brown and then dry and brittle; then it is called mace. The nut inside of the mace is hard and thin, and inside of that is the nutmeg, which you have just been sprinkling on the apple pie."

"Why, isn't that queer? I didn't know it was made like that. And when is the nutmeg ready to gather, Cousin Laura?"

"I think I smell something burning!" she cried in answer.

"O, my pie!" And Marian tore open the oven-door. "It's only some of the juice running out: that doesn't matter. But what a fright you gave me!"

"You must never forget anything when you are cooking," reproved her cousin. "But as I was going to say, the nutmegs are ripe at all seasons of the year, and yet they are gathered in July, November and March. The natives of the tropical climates where the nutmeg trees grow gather them on a spear which is attached to a long stick. Then the mace is immediately taken off with a knife and sprinkled with salt to keep it. The nutmeg within is dried over a fire until the nut rattles in its shell. This takes nearly eight weeks, when, of course, the shell breaks easily, and then they have the nutmeg as we see it."

"How I wish I could see them grow, Cousin Laura! Have you ever seen them?"

"Yes, I picked a few of them from the lower branches of a tree one warm morning in Puerto Rico and brought them home. The red mace was upon them when I picked them; but in three days it turned brown and dropped off, so that I could not show the pretty red veining to my friends at home. The leaves of the nutmeg tree are spicy, and the white flowers very much like the lily-of-the-valley when in blossom."

"Why, I had quite forgotten my apple pie again!" said Marian, quite vexed with herself, as she flew to the oven-door. "But it's just exactly done; and when I eat it I shall think of the little nutmegs 'way down there in the tropics just to help to flavor the pies that I am going to make."

"SOUNDED SO PRETTY."

Some years ago a Nottinghamshire clergyman, in baptizing a baby, paused in the midst of the service to inquire the name of the infant, to which the mother, with a profound courtesy, replied:

"Shady, sir, if you please."

"Shady?" replied the minister. "Then it's a boy, and you mean Shadrach, eh?"

"No, please your reverence, it's a girl."

"And pray," asked the pastor, "how happened you to call the child by such a strange name?"

"Why, sir," responded the woman, "if you must know, our name is Bower, and my husband said as how he should like her to be called Shady, because Shady Bower sounds so pretty!"—Youth's Companion.

FOLLOWING "DAD."

The superintendent of a large Sabbath school in an Eastern city discovered that quite a bright boy of about seventeen years had dropped out of school and had not been in attendance for several Sabbaths. The superintendent made a note of the fact with the intention of calling on the boy, but the next Sabbath the boy appeared in his class. At the close of the school, the superintendent went up to him, took him by the hand, and said:

"Well, Charles, I am glad to see you back in the class. Some one told me that you were not coming any more."

"I said I wasn't, but dad joined the men's class a couple of Sabbaths ago and says he is coming right along, so I am sort of following dad by coming back myself. I've come back to stay—at least as long as dad stays."

Nothing would have a better influence on the boys of a community than a class composed wholly of fathers. We hear of mothers' classes, and now and then one hears of fathers' classes of this kind. In one school three brothers between the ages of fifteen and nineteen years, became members of the Sabbath school after their father had united with a class of men. The average young fellow is apt to "follow dad," and it is up to the father to walk as he should if the boy is to follow in his footsteps.—Adult Bible School Monthly.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE PROBLEM.

By Laura F. Minor-Montgomery.

The felling of the beautiful trees for Christmas seems to me almost sacrilege. I cannot think it is either wise or right to teach children or anyone else destructiveness. For some years my home was in a little village where holly trees grew rather abundantly in the surrounding country. Very fine ones were cut for Sunday school Christmas trees; then, after the festivities were over, were thrown away. If they had been taken up and set out, instead of being ruthlessly cut down, the little place that in that climate was bare in winter would have been so pretty with their green leaves. The lovely red berries would have made a glowing mass of beauty, rivaling in charm the lily of which the Savior said, "Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these."

I think that where it is possible every family in which there are children should have a Christmas tree of its own, of any variety preferred. The camellia japonica would make a handsome one, besides yielding exquisite blossoms during the winter. Trees could be used for some years before becoming too large to handle in this way. If the trees for public places, including schools, are too cumbersome, a number of smaller ones could be used instead, and the pretty green, I am quite sure, would be very attractive.

I wish that when the decorations are torn down after the holidays that the holly berries could be planted. They might yield hundreds of young trees to come on later to dazzle the eye and be a delight to those possessing the gift of which Macaulay speaks when the lady with the laurel leaves" sang.

A QUIET HEROINE.

The use of poison gas bombs as weapons in the European war has developed a new form of deadly disease known as gas gangrene, which is almost, if not entirely, certain to be fatal. As soon as this new malady was discovered it was placed under careful observation by Dr. Kenneth Taylor, an American surgeon who is serving in the American Hospital at Neuilly, France. Dr Taylor succeeded in finding the bacillus of this disease and set to work to discover a serum with which to combat it. He made a series of seemingly successful experiments on animals, but had not progressed to the point of trying the serum on human beings. At this juncture a brave nurse, Miss Mary Davies, daughter of a British Governor-General of an Indian province, quietly secured a room near the hospital, inoculated herself with the deadly gas gangrene bacillus, and sent word to Dr. Taylor to come at once and see if the serum would cure her. By the time the doctor arrived at her bedside the disease had begun to develop. He immediately tried the serum and found that it checked the gangrene and saved the patient's life. Miss Davies by her brave devotion made possible proof that at least in a favorable case the Taylor serum is effective. She may not receive a cross in token of her heroism, but she is as deserving of one as is any man who distinguishes himself on the field of battle. She had seen two hundred horrible deaths from gas gangrene and was willing to risk her own life if thereby she might help find a way to save other men from such a fate.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

NEW PASTORAL RELATIONS.

Our three patronizing Annual Conferences have now been held, and scores of charges have been given new pastors, who will soon be taking up the work in their new fields. In some instances, it may be that the preacher assigned is not the one who would have been chosen if the people had been allowed to select their spiritual leader; and if the pastors had been permitted to pick their charges, in not a few cases they probably would have preferred to go elsewhere. But such is not Methodism's manner of distributing her laborers throughout the territory to be supplied. Under her polity, both the preachers and people, in the interest of general efficiency, have surrendered the right of choice in this important matter. True, some of the stronger charges are given to trying to violate this compact, as are also a few ministers who are specially concerned about being comfortably situated, and occasionally a Bishop is weak enough to let them have their way; but the great body of our membership and the vast majority of our preachers are yet loyal to this time-honored Methodist plan, which underlies and makes possible our wonderful itinerant system.

From this fact that our preachers do not choose their charges, and that our charges do not select their pastors, certain results of importance logically follow. One is that no pastor has a right to find fault with the people if his appointment is not what he expected; the responsibility for his assignment rests elsewhere. Hence, he is never justifiable in exhibiting an ugly spirit toward the flock that he has been commissioned to shepherd. Such action on the part of any Methodist minister is highly reprehensible. Even if he thinks he has been wronged, those who are entirely innocent should not be made to suffer because of his feeling of resentment.

This feature of our polity should also impose a restraining influence in this respect upon our congregations. Because the pastors sent may not be to their liking, they are not warranted to the least extent in neglecting them, or in other ways making it unpleasant for them. Even if there were just occasion for complaint and a manifestation of indignation, which there rarely is, these men and their families who have had nothing to do with the miscarriage of other plans, and who do not come of their own accord, are not the ones upon whom to visit it. To punish them for what others have done is wrong and wicked.

The sensible thing for our preachers and people to do in cases of disappointment, as well as all others, is to accept the new pastoral relation established by the authorities of the Church and to make the best of it. If it is a misfit, it does not necessarily have to continue longer than a year, and no serious injury, either to the man or to the work, is likely to result in that period of time. Besides what are adjudged to be mistakes, in the outset, often prove otherwise when tested out. No man or church is infallible in judgment as to what is needed or wise. God's providence yet operates among his people on earth, and the making of appointments at an Annual Conference has not yet passed beyond its range.

It is to be hoped that our people in all the charges will heartily welcome their new pastors and their families and endeavor to make things pleasant for them. There is no time when kindly words and sympathetic attention are more appreciated. See that they are made comfortable in their new homes. And, after the expense of moving, a preacher is usually scarce of money; so why not arrange to have him handed some quarterage in advance? And be good-mannered enough not to be continually telling him how his predecessor did things and how you regretted to give him up. Despite their high and holy calling, ministers are human beings, with many of the weaknesses of other men.

Much depends upon the manner in which the outgoing and incoming pastors treat each other. Their characters are largely in each other's keeping. An unkind or injudicious word spoken by either may inflict an injury that can never be repaired. Both should be discreet and actuated by a spirit of brotherly love. Let the outgoing minister go without delay, and when he has gone, let him let his former charge completely alone. And let the incoming brother leave the work that he has left entirely behind; it is a great mistake for him to ding-dong its excellencies in the ears of his new parishioners. If he does, they are apt soon to wish that he was back where he came from.

There are few, if any, times or places where a pastor and flock, though they may not greatly admire each other, cannot conserve the interests of the Church and accomplish something for the Master, if they will bear and forbear with what they do not like and work together in a spirit of Christian co-operation.

WHERE THE EMPHASIS BELONGS.

All spiritual victories must be won by faith; therefore, if one's belief in Christ and in the Gospel is weakened, one's efficiency must be correspondingly lessened. Most of all, the Christian worker needs a confident and abiding trust in the risen Lord as a present savior, ready to fulfill every promise contained in the Bible when the conditions are met. Without this fundamental thing, no other gifts and attainments can qualify him for that noblest of earthly tasks, the enthroning of God consciously in human hearts and lives.

One of the most menacing tendencies of our time is that to count learning, though it may be streaked with refined skepticism, as the chief requisite for effective ministerial service. Of course, an educated man who is truly spiritual is apt to accomplish more than one who is uneducated; but as between a scholarly minister without an experimental daily knowledge of Christ, and one lacking in scholarship who has such a knowledge, the latter is incomparably to be preferred. We are right in seeking to equip our preachers more fully for their important and difficult work, but let us see that the chief emphasis continues to be placed where it rightly belongs, namely, upon the spiritual fitness of the men who are to fill our pulpits. This was where our Lord placed it, as also did the Christlike and clear-seeing founder of Methodism.

THE TRANSFER POWER.

The transfer power vested in our episcopacy has long been one of the most disturbing features of our polity. We think that this power is needed, for it is often desirable, for various reasons, to carry men from one Annual Conference to another. All other Churches can go anywhere they please to secure ministers, and if each of our Conferences were shut up to itself in this respect, the situation in our Church would be anomalous and the work no doubt would be frequently handicapped. But while this is true, the transfer power needs to be exercised judiciously. For a Bishop to bring men into a Conference without any consultation at all with its presiding elders is undeniably within the limits of his episcopal prerogatives, but it can scarcely be said to be a wise and discreet thing to do. And certainly it is not a courteous course of procedure.

YET GREAT PREACHERS AMONG THEM.

Not every Methodist Bishop is a great preacher—some of them are not masters of pulpit eloquence; but that the power to preach in a manner to stir and thrill hearts of men yet abides in our episcopacy is evidenced by the published comments upon the discourses of Bishops Candler and Kilgo at the recent sessions of the Virginia and South Georgia Conferences. Of the former's Sunday morning message, Rev. W. W. Royall, writing in the Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate, says: "That Sunday morning sermon was one to think of and talk of for a decade. The address at the Educational Rally was worthy of the best traditions of our episcopacy, and would have been a marked one upon any platform in the English-speaking world."

To Bishop Kilgo's Conference sermon, the Wesleyan Christian Advocate refers as follows: "Bishop Kilgo preached on the Sonship of Jesus Christ, based on the Fatherhood of God. He had great sweeps of thought in parts of his discourse, while in others there were passages of deep and moving pathos and practical applications of spiritual truths. The religious impressions of the sermon were direct and unusually effective, as was demonstrated by repeated shouts in different portions of the audience."

Having heard both of these distinguished ministers a number of times, what is here said about their pulpit work is no surprise to us. In fact, if the way were open for us to do so, we would be willing to journey almost any distance at any time to sit under the ministry of either of them. To have the soul lifted to the heights to which they carry it and fed upon the rich spiritual food that they dispense is to receive inspiration and strength that do not soon pass away. Would that we had more such preaching!

THE MISSISSIPPI OLD MEN'S HOME.

We are in receipt of a letter from Mr. W. G. Francis, Field Secretary for the Old Men's Home at Jackson, Miss., which in part reads as follows: "Please urge the Sunday schools of all denominations to send in their donations to the Old Men's Home before the month of December has passed. They have been requested to make at least one contribution during the year, and the time in which they may do this for 1915 is very short. It is certainly to be hoped that they will not neglect the opportunity to help this worthy institution, which so greatly needs assistance. Our plan is to construct a building with 100 rooms on an 80-acre farm, at a cost of $50,000. The enterprise is interdenominational—the same as the Old Ladies' Home in Jackson. Let all remittances be made to Rev. W. G. Francis, 327 President Street, Jackson, Miss."

We know but little of this projected institution, but the men connected with its management and those who seem to be lending their influence to it are among the leading citizens of Mississippi. Certainly, its avowed object is highly praiseworthy, and we trust that success will crown the efforts of those who have the movement in charge.

THEIR SERVICE APPRECIATED.

We desire to acknowledge our great indebtedness to Rev. R. H. Harper, of New Orleans; Rev. O. S. Lewis, of Shubuta, Miss., and Rev. J. J. Baird, of Brooksville, Miss., for the service rendered the Advocate in reporting the proceedings of the Louisiana and two Mississippi Annual Conferences. The work was well done, and we highly appreciate the kindness of these young brethren in being willing to tax themselves with such labors at a time when a minister usually likes to be free to enjoy the many good things going on.

Since the war conditions made it necessary, the Advocate force has been reduced to a minimum, which makes it practically impossible for the Publisher and Editor both to be away from the office for any considerable length of time. For this reason, the Editor did not get to see as much of the recent Conferences as he should like to have done. We felt a deep interest in their work, however, and we rejoice in the many indications that Methodism is still virile and aggressive in Louisiana and Mississippi.

A DEFINITION OF CULTURE.

"Culture is a slow process," writes Ida M. Tarbell in the Woman's Home Companion. "It comes from long and close contacts. It is the fruit of reflection, of travail of soul and of mind. Grappling with something until the very essence of it has been extracted is a first step. Thus the taste of essences is learned, and once learned, lesser distillations do not satisfy. Then follows a growinging power to discriminate, to distinguish nice values, to judge of quality, to answer to beauty, to feel the need, that what you have—though it may be little—may still be the real thing. This is culture. It is not baggage, like diplomas and degrees—it is not things seen and heard, miles traveled or books read. These are the materials for culture; they contribute to it only when they are absorbed by the mind, and as really lost in it as water and lime, phosphates and ammonia must be lost in the soil if they are to enrich it and enable it to increase its yield."

This is an admirable definition of true culture, which no amount of affectation or pretense can counterfeit. The "Anglo-Saxon U" in one's speech is no indication of it, though it is the usual badge of the pedant—the sign hung out by small men who fain would have the world regard them as scholars. Men who possess the solid substance of scholarship do not need to resort to any such artifices. The really great men that we have known paraded no such peculiarity of pronunciation. Genuine culture, like true religion, does not seek to attract attention to itself—it never poses. On the contrary, it is content to let its light shine naturally, whether it is observed or not.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Whitworth and Grenada Colleges are preparing to make application for admission into the Class B list of colleges.

The two Conferences in North Carolina had during the past year a gain in membership of over 10,000 members.

A successful revival meeting has recently been conducted at Bude, Miss., by Evangelist Dan E. Kelly. The singing was led by Rev. S. E. Kirby.

The address of Mr. A. L. Dietrich, Sunday School Field Secretary of the Gulf Division of the M. E. Church, South, is 1414 23d Avenue, Meridian, Miss.

Dr. Theo. Copeland has been returned to Central Church, Hot Springs, Ark., for another year. He is having his usual success in that important pastorate.

Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick was one of the speakers at the Sunday School Anniversary of the North Texas Conference, held during its recent session at Bonham.

Rev. A. I. Townsley, of Crowley, La., says: "We have been given a most cordial welcome here. Rev. C. D. Atkinson, our predecessor, left things in fine shape for us."

Rev. J. R. Roy, of Gilbert, La., says: "We have been kindly received here for the second year. We are moving toward the completion of a beautiful little church at Wisner, La."

Why not start the new Conference year with a stirring revival? The Master can save souls and quicken the Church spiritually in the winter, as well as in the spring or summer.

The Methodist Sunday school at Crowley will have a "White, or Giving Christmas." As usual, the offering for the Ruston Orphanage will be rice, and the needy of the town of Crowley will also be remembered.

Dr. J. M. Henry, who has been unable to fill his pulpit since Conference, is convalescent. His pulpit during his illness was ably filled by Rev. R. W. Vaughan and the presiding elder, Rev. Briscoe Carter.

Rev. H. N. Harrison is comfortably domiciled in the parsonage at his new charge, Rayville. After completing a most successful quadrennium at Lafayette, he has been given a most cordial reception at Rayville.

The people at West Point, Miss., are stated to be much pleased with the new pastor assigned to them, Rev. L. P. Wasson. It is safe to predict that their pleasure will increase the more they know of him.

Rev. J. B. Cain has begun his work at Washington, Miss., and thinks that the outlook is encouraging. We have received an interesting communication from Brother Cain, which will be published next week.

Under date of December 15, Rev. John L. Williams, of Leesville, La., writes as follows: "Last Sunday was a good day here. Nine persons were received into the Church. The work starts with faith and optimism."

Mr. Edward M. Owen, a cloth merchant of Manchester, England, who died recently, bequeathed $750,000 to the Salvation Army. That remarkable organization, by the splendid service which it is rendering needy humanity, seems to be steadily growing in public favor.

Rev. J. H. Bell, who is now one of the Conference evangelists of the North Mississippi Conference, will make his home at Columbus, Miss., where he may be reached by correspondence. He is said to have unusual gifts as a revivalist. Let the brethren see that he is kept busy.

Rev. Briscoe Carter, presiding elder of Ruston District, preached for Rev. K. W. Dodson, at Lake Charles on Sunday, December 5. Brother Carter is supervising the printing of the new "report blanks" to be used in the presiding elders' quarterly reports to Bishop James Atkins.

Mrs. S. S. Harris, field worker for the Woman's Missionary Council of our Church recently spent a week at Crowley, La., the guest of Mrs. A. P. Holt. While in Crowley Mrs. Harris delivered helpful messages on missions to the Woman's Auxiliary and before the entire congregation.

Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, Chairman of the Faculty of the Theological School of the Southern Methodist University, states that "everything is going on well at that institution." An article from Dr. Holt's pen bearing on the work of the department with which he is connected appears in this issue of the Advocate.

Rev. T. W. Adams writes: "I opened up at Court Street Church, Hattiesburg, last Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. The congregation was good, as was also the singing. The ex-presiding elder had two live presiding elders as hearers at the evening service. By the grace of God, we hope to have a good year."

Rev. John F. Wynn of Crowley, an honored superannuate of the Louisiana Conference, will celebrate his 53d wedding anniversary on December 25. Brother Wynn has been a member of the Louisiana Conference for 59 years. He is still very active, and assists his pastor in pastoral visiting and in other church work.

From a letter from Dr. R. C. Elmore, of Durant, Miss., bearing date of the 11th inst., we extract the following: "Brother Shipman left here yesterday for Itta Bena; Brother Broyles will leave to-day for Macon, and Brother T. M. Bradley will reach Durant next Tuesday. Rev. Jesse Lockhart is here and will preach for us to-morrow."

Rev. Robt. Selby, presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, attended the late session of the North Mississippi Conference. He appeared before the Board of Education in the interest of educational work common to the two Mississippi Conferences, and also made some public remarks to the Conference concerning the Seashore Divinity School.

A Conference on Evangelism for the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will be held in Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 28-30. Among those on the program we note the names of Rev. W. B. Taylor, Nashville; Rev. J. W. Moore, Chattanooga; Dr. W. J. Young, Atlanta; Dr. E. G. B. Mann, Lexington, Ky.; Rev. W. M. McIntosh, Iuka, Miss., and Rev. J. A. Bowen, Tupelo, Miss. On the whole, the bill of fare is an inviting one.

Rev. A. I. Townesley, of Crowley, La., writes us as follows: "Please state that I have on hand copies of the ritual for the installation of Church officers, which I prepared about a year ago. These may be had by writing me at 25 cents per dozen, or 75 cents per hundred. They are in great demand." The ritual referred to by Brother Townsley is far and away the best that we have seen for the purpose for which it is designed.

Rev. A. H. Parker, of Coushatta, La., under date of Dec. 13, writes: "Mrs. R. Edgerton, one of our members here at Coushatta, and one of our best workers, died very suddenly yesterday in the city of Shreveport. Her remains were brought to Coushatta to-day on the morning train, and funeral services will be held at the family residence to-morrow morning." We regret to learn of this sad occurrence, and we extend sympathy to the bereaved.

Rev. George H. Thompson, after having served for four years as pastor of the Court Street Church of Hattiesburg, Miss., is now entering upon his fourth year as presiding elder of the Hattiesburg District. At the completion of his present quadrennium he will have been a citizen of that progressive city for eight years. A dispatch to The Times Picayune claims that this record for length of continuous residence at one place by a Methodist minister in the active service is unparalleled in Mississippi.

Through the courtesy of Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, pastor of the Houma Mission, we have on our table a pastoral letter which he has issued to his flock, and a card and folder that he has arranged to circulate among the people with a view to interesting and enlisting them in the work of the Church. Literature so well gotten up and methods so carefully planned ought certainly to yield gracious results. Obviously, Brother Breithaupt is a wide-awake and energetic shepherd. May the Master crown his efforts in his great field with a large measure of success.

We clip the following from The Lincoln County Times (Brookhaven, Miss.) of December 9: "Rev. T. W. Adams occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Church Sunday, Dec. 5, and gave a forceful discourse on the subject of self-examination. Mr. and Mrs. Adams will not move to their new appointment, Hattiesburg, Court Street, until after Christmas. Mrs. Toler and her little son, Ardry, will accompany them and live with them. Mrs. Toler will be of inestimable value to her father in his church work, but will be greatly missed in the church, Sunday school, and Epworth League here."

From the Leland (Miss.) Enterprise of December 11, we clip the following: "The Leland Methodist Church has made very substantial growth during the pastorate of Rev. L. W. Cain, and as a result of the increase in membership, at its request, the Conference has given it the full time of a pastor. The people of Leland should rejoice with them in their success." The Enterprise also states that Brother Cain, who located at the recent session of the North Mississippi Conference, will continue to reside in Leland, and that he will devote himself to evangelistic work, to which he is well adapted.

A GOOD LESSON FROM ENGLAND.

When Lord Reading, the Lord Chief Justice of England, told the New York Bar Association that in Great Britain judges "strive to administer law in the full understanding that it is really secondary to justice," he very graciously but none the less pointedly instructed and admonished his hosts. What he meant was that British courts, having disentangled themselves from technicalities, now seek the merits of cases, and that they reach results not wholly through citations of precedent by counsel, but by perception of truth and justice which are everywhere applicable and must always be the real spirit of the living law.

There are States in the American Union in which this praiseworthy judicial habit has prevailed to some extent, but in most of them the courts have made gods of precedent and practice and a fetish of technicalities. Except where constitutional limitations are plainly imperative, there can be no excuse in the mere traditions of the bench for the frequent refusals of courts on technical grounds to recognize right, or for their inability to grasp the fact that in law as in everything else stagnation means decline and death.

Most of the criticism of American courts has been due to their failure to get to the substance of things. Many of them have barricaded themselves behind precedent and procedure long outgrown; many others encourage delay and promote renewed litigation on unsubstantial grounds, and many others in high places, reversing judgments on strained reasonings, seem to have forgotten that a court of justice is intended to do justice, no matter what the pleas of counsel may be.

While legislative action is needed to correct some of these abuses, the power rests with the bench and bar to do away with the most glaring of them.—New York World.

Mrs. ELIZABETH HUGGIN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Griffith, was born in Bolivar County, Miss., on the first day of September, 1861. She was converted during a revival conducted by the Rev. Mr. Murray and Rev. R. M. Standifer, some time in the summer of 1880, and at the same time was received into the Church. On the first day of February, 1881, she was married to the Rev. J. M. Huggin, who was then in his third year as an itinerant preacher.

From that time she shared the toils and cares of her husband in the several charges to which he was assigned until December, 1910, when he was superannuated. Some time afterward they moved to Memphis, Tenn., where, on the 23d day of July, 1915, she died.

On the 20th day of that month, she met with an accident: in falling, one of her shoulders was somewhat bruised; but the physician, who attended her did not think the wound was dangerous, though it was quite severe. Apparently she was doing well, but on the morning of the 23d, about 7:30 o'clock, she called to one of her daughters to come to her bedside quickly, as she felt that she was about to faint. These were the last words spoken by her, and a few moments after she quietly and peacefully passed away.

That she had many friends, was evidenced by the number of persons who attended the funeral services. That they loved her, was testified to by the many and beautiful floral offerings that were placed by loving hands upon her grave.

The sorrowing husband and twelve surviving children are left to mourn her departure, but they sorrow not as those without hope—for they realize that "in the sweet by and by" they will meet again, and "meet no more to sever."

In sympathy and love, we commend them to the loving, tender and merciful care of God, whom she loved and served. C. N. T.

Mrs. LIZZIE FARMER, wife of Rev. D. C. Farmer, a local elder in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, bade farewell to all of earth's cares, disappointments, labors, sorrows, woes and sufferings on Oct. 29, 1915. Through the goodness of God, she had reached three-score years and ten, and by reason of strength had gone into the fourth year towards four-score years. Subsequent to an operation that she underwent, her health became materially impaired, and therefore, ever and anon, her sufferings were very great. Prior to that time she had grown quite fleshy, but before her departure she had become very much emaciated. She proved herself to be of unusual stamina by the prolongation of her days against the ravages of her disease. Each physician and friend who witnessed her condition prophesied a short period more for her earthly stay, only to be reminded of the shortage of his judgment of her case. But at last she had to yield and allow the separation of her soul and her body. Conscious of her unfitness for life's duties, and also of her drainage on her feeble husband's strength and her increasing dependence on others, she longed to leave and be with her Lord: and so her earthly career closed suddenly. Her absence makes life very lonely for her surviving husband, to whom she was a suitable companion in the varied relations of life. May God verify to him his promise—"I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee." (Heb. 13:5.) His home at this writing is with his son-in-law, Brother Armstrong, of Oakdale, Miss. Not having any data, the writer could not write as he desires.

ISAAC L. PEEBLES.

COLLINS, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are so glad to get into a parsonage and have a home all to ourselves that I must write you and the Advocate a note. I got my appointment to Collins on Monday, went to Jackson on Tuesday, packed up my "stuff," loaded it on the car, and had it in Collins by Friday. I occupied the parsonage Saturday, preached at a union service at the Presbyterian Church Sunday at 11 a. m., and at our church at 7 p. m., Brother Allen, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, and his congregation and the Baptist congregation worshiping with us. All gave us a hearty welcome. We have a nice, roomy parsonage, with everything convenient. These people all seem to be glad to have us here and it is just the work I needed. I can be at home every night. This is our first experience at keeping house without any children with us. This is quite a change—from two hundred children for so long, down to none. We are enjoying the rest and the work. We have a fine people. The prospect for a good year's work is very encouraging. We thank God for his goodness and reconsecrate ourselves anew to his service.—W. M. Williams, P. C.

ANSWERED PRAYERS.

He asked for strength that he might achieve: he was made weak that he might obey.

He asked for all things that he might enjoy life: he was given life that he might enjoy all things.

He asked for riches that he might be happy: he was given poverty, that he might be wise.

He asked for power that he might have the praise of men: he was given weakness that he might feel the need of God.

He has received nothing that he asked for, but all that he hoped for. His prayers were answered.—Presbyterian of the South.

THE BEAUTY OF WORK,

The beauty of work depends upon the way we meet it—whether we arm ourselves each morning to attack it as an enemy that must be vanquished before night comes, or whether we open our eyes with the sunrise to welcome it as an approaching friend who will keep us delightful company all day, and who will make us feel at evening that the day was well worth its fatigues.—Lucy Larcom.

OUR DEEPER NEED.

There is still room for the plea that we get back to fundamentals in our religious enterprises. Representatives of various reform movements constantly seek the privilege of our pulpits and the financial appeal always seems to be the climax. Our missionaries make a hasty tour of the churches and the main interest seems to be the raising of funds. We appreciate the need of funds for the doing of the Lord's work. But we would like to see some great campaign with the single object of getting Christians to pray for the evangelization of the world. We would like to see large gatherings of people roused by stirring addresses in the interests of recruits for the ministry and the missionary cause. Such appeals made to parents to offer their children and to young people to offer themselves would result, we believe, in such a wave of spiritual quickening that the money would inevitably follow. A church with people whose hearts God has touched will not fail in providing means for the spiritual conquest of the world.—Christian Intelligencer.

EXPERIENCE OF G. A. PERKINS AS A BIBLE MISSIONARY.

(We are indebted to Rev. J. J. Morgan, of Dallas, Texas, Southwestern Agency Secretary of the American Bible Society, for this interesting article.—Ed. Ad.)

I have been with the American Bible Society for two years and eight months. God has permitted me to distribute 9202 Bibles, 15,674 Testaments, 19,935 Gospels; total 44,811 volumes in twenty-five languages in six different States. I have traveled 9600 miles and found over 1000 families without a Bible and supplied them.

I have worked when the thermometer stood at 110 in the shade; also when it was ten below zero.

I have been invited into some of the best homes. I have had the door shut in my face.

I have sold Bibles and given Bibles away. I have had them stolen from me.

I have sold Bibles in the best residence districts in our cities. I have sold them in the slums.

I have met, talked and prayed with noted lady missionaries to Japan, China, India, and Korea. I have met, talked and prayed with poor, fallen women in the slums.

I have been invited to banquets and have sat at the table with men whom the leading clergy of this country and England count it an honor to be with. I have eaten with the poor down-and-out tramp at a free lunch counter.

I have sold Bibles in fine churches. I have sold them in the brothel. I have been praised. I have been cursed.

I have had small amounts of money given to me. I have been robbed.

I have sold the Word of God upon viaducts. I have sold the Word down in a cave one-half mile under the ground.

I have been dined. I have fed many a hungry wanderer that was down and out.

I have spoken to men in State prisons. I have spoken to them in city jails.

I have given men gospels that have led to their conversion. A few men have torn them up before my eyes.

I have seen many people accept Christ in meetings where there were fifteen thousand people. I have seen them accept Christ at small gatherings on the streets, and at small missions.

I have been with some of the greatest evangelists in the country. I have been with the lowly colored preacher in the slums.

God has blessed me. The devil has tempted me.

I have slept upon downy feather beds in fine homes. I have slept upon the counter-shelf in empty storerooms with my Bibles and upon cots in tents. I have ridden in Pullman cars. I have walked until my feet were very sore.

I have been made welcome and sold many Bibles in saloons. In one I was told to get out.

I have written letters when I was feeling quite humorous. I have written letters and sealed them with tears.

I have been at banquets given in first class hotels, and Y. M. C. A. buildings. I was at one banquet given by three tramps in the woods near a mudhole; frogs and crawfish boiled in a tin can was the menu.

I have been upon the Black Hills in South Dakota. I have been in the swamps of Louisiana.

I have had men to ask God's blessings upon me. I have had them to raise their arm to strike me.

In costly churches I have seen the choir come out dressed in robes and turn their eyes toward heaven and sing "Rescue the Perishing." In the poor districts I have heard poor mothers sing, "We'll Work 'Till Jesus comes."

I have lectured in some of our largest churches. I have talked upon the streets.

"In gorgeous churches for Christ I've sought,
And prayed that He might appear;
But from a still small voice caught,
He is not here, not here.
Dismayed I left; but passing on,
A hungry waif I fed,
And lo! a vision like the dawn,
And 'Here am I,' Christ said."

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

DANGER FROM LITTLE WOUNDS.

A little cut or wound that looks trivial frequently develops into a serious and possibly fatal case of blood poisoning. Don't take any risk. Apply a little Gray's Ointment—it speedily heals the wound and leaves you safe and sound. Gray's Ointment is the time-tested cure for sores, boils, carbuncles, cuts, bruises, burns, and all skin abrasions and eruptions. It was discovered in 1820—for nearly a century an indispensable household remedy the country over. Keep a box in the house. It heals the little troubles and prevents the big ones. Only 25c a box—at druggists—and it will save you many an ache and possibly a life. Get a free sample by writing W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Three magazines are published on the Pacific coast which have for their object the propagation of the Buddhist religion. There are sixty-two Buddhist temples in the United States for the Chinese and thirteen for the Japanese.

REV. A. B. MOWERS ADVOCATES NERVE REMEDY.

Nervous indigestion is one of the commonest of the many forms of nervous trouble. It is very hard to treat usually, but those who have used Dr. Miles' Nervine all report that it was not long before their trouble vanish, entirely.

Every ailment must have a cause and the cause is what should be removed. When the cause lies in the nervous system Dr. Miles' Nervine cannot be too strongly advocated. It is backed by thirty years of successful use.

The Rev. A. B. Mowers, of York, Pa., is an ardent advocate of this remedy since it completely relieved him. He made the following statement for publication:

"Nearly 10 years ago I was troubled with nervous indigestion in its worst form. I had sick headaches nearly every day with a dizzy, dull feeling. I was extremely nervous, confused and suffered much with constipation. I was informed of Dr. Miles' Nervine and Liver Pills and determined to give them a trial. I used them as directed and received much relief. I continued the Nervine until I had used several bottles. I now enjoy good health, relish my meals and can eat any kind of food without fear. I take pleasure in recommending Dr. Miles' Remedies to the public."

Dr. Miles' Nervine or Liver Pills can be purchased at any drug store and the purchase price will be cheerfully refunded by the druggist if after using the remedies you are not satisfied with the results obtained.

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the Thing that Caused It and the Cough will Stop Itself

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a bad cough don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the throat nerves. Treat the cause—heal the inflamed membranes. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you a full pint of the most pleasant and effective cough remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 54 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

It heals the inflamed membranes so gently and promptly that you wonder how it does it. Also loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., 235 Main St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Purely Vegetable—Not Narcotic

Has been used for over seventy years by millions of mothers for their children while teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is highly successful in relieving infantile diarrhoea. Be sure to ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" and take no other. Twenty-five cents.

WHERE PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT.

"I want to say that the reports that prohibition in West Virginia is a failure are false," says Judge McWhorter, of Buckhannon, W. Va. "It has greatly diminished crime; it has curtalled pauperism; it has stimulated legitimate business; it has reduced criminal costs; it has minimized the need of police forces in our cities; it has vastly increased the sobriety of our people; it has practically elimlnated drunkenness except along the State border; it has changed the patrons of saloons to patrons of groceries."

Lime Against Tuberculosis

In the May 25, 1912, issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association appeared this statement concerning calcium (lime) medication in the treatment of tuberculosis:

"Under the systematic, continued and persistent regime of calcium assimilation, Van Tietson has seen a number of his patients improve. The sputum clears up of tubercle bacilli, which finally disappear, and the patients are discharged with healed pulmonary tuberculosis."

Ethical journals seldom speak so positively about a remedial agent, yet this testimony coincides with that from many consumptives who have secured like results through the use of Eckman's Alterative.

Since calcium is a constituent of this remedy, its healing power may be due to the way this element is so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Eckman's Alterative contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so it is safe to try. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

THE SCARRITT BIBLE AND TRAINING SCHOOL.

The announcement recently made through the Associated Press regarding the loss of the endowment fund of the Scarritt Bible and Training School has called forth expressions of hearty sympathy from friends throughout the whole Church. The Executive Committee of the Woman's Missionary Council feels that to these friends and the Church at large is due a brief statement regarding the matter.

The endowment fund, amounting to $146,384.20, has become involved because of the unfortunate speculations of the Treasurer of the Board of Managers in Kansas City. At the request of other creditors, the Court appointed a receiver for the Investment Company, of which he was head. The Training School has retained one of the best law firms in the city to look after its interests. The definite loss will not be known until the careful investigation of the assets and liabilities which has been begun shall have been completed. Every effort will be made to recover the fund and to safeguard the interests of the school. The school plant is not involved in the loss. A maintenance fund to sustain the school for the remainder of the scholastic year is being raised by the Board of Managers.

A FINAL APPEAL FROM THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE PRESIDENT

My Dear Sisters: The year is passing rapidly and we will soon celebrate the advent into the world of our blessed Savior. Can we not celebrate this season by making an offering on our Conference Pledge?

We are far short of reaching the $5000 pledged to the Council, and as your Conference President, I would "hang my head in shame," not only before the Council, but before our Father, to send a half-paid pledge from the Mississippi Conference. This is my last appeal to you this year, and I make it with all the love and tenderness of an anxious heart. Will not each auxiliary make a desperate effort to pay its pledge and make a Christmas offering also as a token of their love to God and humanity?

Sincerely,
Mrs. R. E. JOHNSON.
Gulfport, Miss.

We are sure that our women are going to meet their obligations. The pledge must be paid in full or the work somewhere will be retarded. It has been a hard and strenuous year for many of our members, but surely we can, like Pollyanna, find much for which to be thankful, and the more we count our blessings the deeper will be our gratitude to an all-wise Father. Springs of love and praise should well up in our hearts and plead for an outlet that will show the depth and intensity of their source.

If we give only the tenth of our income, we are, after all, not really giving anything—only paying what we owe. Above the tenth is the love offering, and at this beautiful season, when all hearts are full of tenderness and love for others, let us make such a gift as will cause even the angels in heaven to sing songs of joy and gladness. Not becaus of the largeness of the gift, but because the women have caught the right spirit. Let us make the effort, and the blessing will be so great that our lives will scarcely be able to contain it.

Let each woman in our Conference enter into a covenant with her Father that she will make an offering that will in a small way show her love for him, and let this offering be taken up the Sunday after Christmas. Do not confine it to the auxiliary members alone, but let every woman in the Church have the privilege of giving. Let the Mississippi women show by their love offerings that their hearts are on fire with zeal and love for the Master's work.

SOME RESULTS OF OUR CAMPAIGN.

Five hundred and forty-six auxiliaries have been organized, and 12,355 new members gained since the campaign began.

The women of North Georgia had a whirlwind campaign during the first week in November. During the last week in October the Central Committee opened headquarters in Atlanta in a vacant store building, which they made very beautiful with attractive furniture and growing plants. Posters and charts and a full line of missionary literature were displayed in the windows. Representatives of the Missionary Society were on duty there from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Each District Secretary was chairman of a campaign committee in her own district, and each society was organized into teams and squads during the week beginning on Nov. 1. Every Methodist home in the Conference was visited by the teams securing new members, and every church that has no organization was visited by squads seeking to organize a Woman's Missionary Society. The plan was entered into with the greatest enthusiasm and interest throughout the entire Conference, and the women worked with zeal. By the second day of the campaign 28 new auxiliaries and 1031 new members were reported.

From the East Oklahoma Conference comes stirring reports. One district has taken over the support of a Bible woman. In another district a wealthy Indian woman pledged to give one year's training for a volunteer in Scarritt. Two young ladies and a Mrs. Gill, of Hugo, want to enter our Training School to fit themselves for work in the homeland as well as in fields abroad.

A Mr. and Mrs. Garrett, of Pryor, have taken over the education of a young girl to go as a missionary when ready. Their own daughter wanted to go, but is physically unable, and this young girl will go as her substitute.

North Mississippi Conference reports ten new auxiliaries from one district. Is it any wonder they feel that they are "wonderfully blessed?"

Sunday School

ALEXANDRIA DISTRICT SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

Not having seen any Sunday school notes from this district for some time and having partially covered the parish during the anti-saloon campaign, I find numerous improvements taking place in our work.

Mr. J. L. Pitts, of First Church, Alexandria, is doing splendid work with a Young Men's Baraca Class, which is somewhat a new feature in that Sunday school. Last evening, December 3, his class invited me to attend a banquet given to the Young Ladies' Philathea Class of the same church, and there must have been between 60 and 100 persons present. Taking it as a whole, this was about the best meeting of the kind I have ever attended here. Mr. Pitts surprised us all as a toastmaster with his dry wit and humor, making the affair utterly informal and calling on the very ones who would be least supposed to take part. However, young ladies and all called on responded. Mr. Pitts is a young man of broad business responsibilities, and is termed by many "a man who has succeeded by doing right." He seems to be a born teacher. Mr. R. O. Coorpender, president of the class, is doing splendid work. Miss Montez Henning and others responded very fittingly for the young ladies' class.

The Lecompte Sunday school has also made great strides since I attended it a year or more ago. The building has been remodeled at the suggestion of Brother Neill. Back of the pulpit, rooms have been added for the Primary Department and are splendidly arranged, while in the rear of the church the floor has been elevated, and nice chairs with large arm rests for the Junior Department to do their handwork, and roller partitions have been put in. I understand that a young man of the school gave $500 for this feature alone. In bad weather, when the attendance is small at the preaching services, the partitions are pulled down, thus making the building more easy to heat, and the seating capacity more in keeping with the size of the audience. This school has also produced a State worker for the interdenominational work in the person of Miss Marguerite Cox.

On last Sunday I visited Stone's Camp and found that Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gillis, formerly of this place, are doing a splendid work near there. A year or so ago they organized a Methodist Sunday school nearly four miles from the railroad. They go in their car, carrying a folding organ and books with them. There must have been about forty or more present, and all seemed to be in dead earnest and anxious to get the most from the lessons. At the request of the State Epworth League officers, I assisted the young people there in organizing a League chapter.

I learn from Brother B. F. Day, of Tioga, that the school there is gradually increasing in size and taking on new life since he recently took charge as superintendent. He is a superintendent who has had considerable experience, having served other Sunday schools in that capacity. This place has again been placed on the Pineville Circuit, and Rev. H. B. Vanderberg, our new pastor, has arrived and everything looks auspicious for greatly improving the Sunday school work within the bounds of his circuit.

W. W. WILLIAMS.

Strong and Prairie Circuit (North Mississippi Conference).

Dear Dr. Meek: The pastor who is assigned to "Strong and Prairie" should count himself greatly honored. These towns are located on the I. C. and M. & O. railroads, in the "Garden of Eden" section of the Aberdeen District, and within the borders of the great corn region of North Mississippi, known as "Egypt." And no finer people, it is said, may be found in the big Mississippi comonwealth than many who compose the membership of these churches and the residents of this territory. A long line of worthy ministers have wrought here, and the Rev. R. G. Porter, prominent in his Conference and known extensively in Methodist circles, entered heaven while pastor of these favored congregations. The transition from conditions so congenial was to a noble personage who dwelt habitually upon the border lands of the heavenly city. Rev. J. W. Bell is presiding elder again of this prominent and well developed district. Great events and something in epics have occurred among these many important pastoral charges during the many decades of their interesting history. Bishop Atkins, our latest Conference President, has grown perceptibly within the two last years and since his visit to Tupelo. Always, he has been prominent for success, but is now coming fully into the realm where have been found the real Bishops of American Methodism. The North Mississippi Conference pastors and the lay delegation were in eminently good condition at the New Albany Conference. So also appeared the connectional and general visitors. Great things were spoken of the New Albany entertainment and of the pastor and his co-workers, and all the celebrations and public services were up to the best high water mark for distinguished Conference conventions.

Woman's Crowning Glory

Is Beautiful Hair—coveted by all, but possessed by few. If you have allowed your hair to become coarse, stiff, streaked with gray or void of its original lustre, the trouble lies in the absence of the natural hair oil. There can be no life without food, so unless the hair is well fed with proper oil it cannot be expected to retain its lustre and beauty.

La Creole Hair Color Restorer, when applied to the scalp, will restore those ugly, grizzly hairs to their natural color and at the same time leave the hair light and fluffy.

The tremendous success of La Creole Hair Dressing has encouraged a large number of imitations. The merit of this preparation has been proven through fifty years continuous use; and just as counterfeit money never reaches the same high plane of value as the genuine, so none of the imitations of "La Creole" Hair Dressing ever attain the peculiar value of the original. Ask for "La Creole" Hair Dressing and refuse to accept any substitute. For sale by all dealers. Price $1.00. Manufactured by Van-Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE ORPHANAGE.

We are sure our many friends wish to help us make Christmas a happy occasion for the 107 children in our Orphanage. They look forward to this time of joy with the same anxious hearts that the children in our good Christian homes do, and the only way that their longings can be gratified is by our own good people taking the place that real parents always take toward their own children. These orphaned ones have none other to look too. You, the Methodists of this State, are their "Santa Claus." We trust that we shall not be disappointed. We have never been disappointed. Toys, dolls, goodies, anything that will make the heart of a child happy on this occasion, will be acceptable. If you wish us to select the presents you wish to give, send money and state that it is for the Christmas fund.

Wishing all our good friends a most happy, joyful Christmas, I am faithfully,

ROBT. W. VAUGHAN.

A press dispatch states that the German Emperor recently attended a service in the ancient German church at Vilna, while visiting the eastern front, and that the field chaplain who preached discoursed upon the theme, "Blessed are They Who Do Not Lose Confidence." In view of the situation which the Kaiser is now facing, the chaplain's subject could scarcely have been more appropriate.

* * *

A writer thus describes the condition of the Established Church of England when the Wesleyan movement began: "Its theology was 'cold and colorless,' its clergy for the most part * * * unspiritual, preaching not good news, but good advice." Is not this a pretty good description of some of the theology and preaching of our own time?

* * *

What has become of the prayer meeting? We have lately attended two Annual Conferences, and we scarcely heard it mentioned in the reports of the pastors. This we feel sure was merely accidental; yet we regretted the omission. The intercessory function of the Church needs to be emphasized. There can be no true spiritual prosperity or achievement without prayer. The wise pastor will make much of the mid-week prayer service.

THE NAME ABOVE EVERY NAME.

In his noble Epistle to the Philippians, written probably during his first imprisonment at Rome, St. Paul makes concerning Christ the following wonderful declaration: "Who, existing in the form of God, counted not the being on an equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied himself, taking the form of a servant, being made in the likeness of men; and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, becoming obedient even unto death, yea, the death of the cross. Wherefore also God highly exalted him, and gave unto him the name which is above every name: that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven and things on earth, and things under the earth, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." (American R. V.).

The sweep of the eternities is in this majestic utterance, and the full significance of it is beyond the compass of the uninspired human mind in this present sphere of existence; but much of the truth that it embodies is such that we can lay hold upon it. It is not our purpose, however, at this time to attempt to discuss this entire passage, but rather to comment briefly upon the result of our Lord's self-sacrifice and unparalleled humiliation and death as it relates to his own place in the vast universe. Is it true that his incarnation and earthly ministry and atonement, and what was thereby accomplished, have resulted in giving him "a name which is above every name?"

Certainly, so far as the earth is concerned, this cannot be denied. In all that is worthy pertaining to human affairs the position of Jesus is one of unrivaled pre-eminence. In the field of literature he is far and away the most outstanding figure. Incomparably more books have been written concerning him than any other character known to human history. The Bible, which from beginning to end has to do with his coming and mission, is circulated and read as is no other volume in existence. The demands for all of the "best sellers" issued by the printing presses of the nations fade into insignificance when compared with the unceasing calls for this marvelous work, which has been translated into practically all the languages of mankind. And Christ has colored the thinking and influenced the writings of the foremost men of the race as no other person has ever done. Modern philosophy bears his ineffaceable impress, and he has been the inspiration of the world's best poetry, loftiest oratory, and choicest fiction. If the publications that reflect his thought and spirit were taken from our libraries, they would be despoiled of their richest treasures and their shelves would be oppressively empty.

In the realms of painting, sculpture, and music vastly the largest place also belongs to the great Galilean. He has literally taken possession of human chronology, and in the domain of architecture his primacy is overwhelmingly apparent. The principles that he taught underlie the mightiest governments on the planet, and in proportion as they measure up to them do they prosper. The noblest streams of philanthropy that are flowing to-day are the outgushings of the love that he has awakened in human hearts. The religion that he established is the most virile, aggressive, and widely extended of any on the globe. Other faiths are giving way before its triumphant advance and its universal supremacy is foreshadowed now as never before. In fact, the character and teachings and achievements of Christ amongst men are such as to justify fully the memorable words concerning him ascribed to the great Napoleon, perhaps the most masterful purely human personality of all time:

"Everything in him astonishes me. His spirit overawes me and his will confounds me. Between him and any other man that ever lived, there is no possible term of comparison. He is truly a being by himself. His ideas and sentiments, his manner of convincing, are not explained either by human organization or the nature of things. The nearer I approach, the more carefully I examine, everything is above me; everything remains grand, with a grandeur which overpowers. His religion is from an intelligence which certainly is not that of man. * * * Alexander, Caesar, Charlemagne, and myself founded great empires, but upon force. Jesus Christ alone founded his empire upon love—pure, unselfish love toward the lost; and to-day millions would die for him. None else is like him."

But the supremacy of Christ is not restricted to this mundane sphere; it extends also (or will extend) throughout the whole universe, including the heavenly world. Paul tells us that amid all created beings and things he is to have "pre-eminence." Such is the will of the Father concerning him. The great Apostle declares that he has "gone into heaven, and is on the right of God, angels and authorities and powers being made subject unto him." The Seer of Patmos, in his enrapturing visions of eternity, always speaks of him as ineffably glorious in his person and as reigning jointly with the Father amid the most dazzling splendors. He is described as occupying a throne, with many crowns upon his head, and with an innumerable company of angels and redeemed spirits thronging about him, singing: "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory, and blessing."

Such is the Being whose birth into our world Christendom is now celebrating. The scheme of the incarnation did not begin on earth; it began in the sky. But when the Babe of Bethlehem came it first touched our planet, and has been lifting it heavenward ever since. Jesus holds the first place in human thought, affairs, and affections, because, of all the beings who have lived and wrought amongst men, he has rendered humanity the largest service. The most we know about God and ourselves, he taught us. The meaning of life, the ideals which should govern it, and its obligations and possibilities took on new meaning in the light of his utterances and example. He set to work in human hearts a regenerating power which counts for vastly more than any other force within the reach of man—a power that cleanses the heart, frees it from the dominion of sin, and fills it with peace and love, thus transforming the sinner into a saint and opening the way for the reign of righteousness on earth. He robbed death of its terror, the grave of its gloom, lifted the dark curtain that veils the future, and pointed out to the race a shining pathway to the "city which hath foundations" and into which no evil thing cometh. The truth is, no tongue can tell, no human mind can conceive, of the reach and significance of the mighty work of the incarnated Son of God and the corresponding indebtedness of mankind to him.

"Askest thou in exultation
What the Cross of Christ has done?
Ask the splendors of creation
If they feel the noonday sun.
Ask reviving vegetation,
Rushing forth on joyous wing,
If it feels the inspiration
Of the breath-enchanting spring.

SOMETHING ALL MAY GIVE.

"What can I give Him,
Poor as I am?"
If I were a shepherd,
I would bring a lamb;
If I were a wise man,
I would do my part;
Yet what can I give Him?
Give Him my heart."

—Rossetti.

WHAT DOES THE BIRTH OF CHRIST SIGNIFY TO YOU?

Curious, is it not—but it is the little things of life that interest us most. We get more pleasure out of small happenings and trifling amusements than we do out of happenings or occupations that are of far greater importance to us. And so is it with little annoyances and little worries; they take more of the joy out of life than much more serious losses or sufferings.

And as to our conversation, what are the things that we talk about most? Not the great advance that the nations of the world are making, one after another, in the direction of self-government; not the progress of the gospel in heathen lands or in our own land, or the necessity for greater effort in spreading it; not the glorious consummation of God's purposes with regard to man which he is bringing about; not even—except during an election—the important political events that are transpiring in our own country. What do we talk about? Why, the weather, neighborhood gossip, our pains and annoyances, or our amusements—the fleeting things of the moment.

A great scientific discovery, which is destined to make great changes in the conditions of life, may or may not call out a passing remark, but a baseball championship excites enthusiastic interest.

Why is this? Why do the little things, the passing things, absorb our attention to the almost complete exclusion of the really important things of life? Why? Ask yourself.

Whatever explanation we may give of it, this habit of mind is one of the chief hindrances in the way of our spiritual development, because it unfits us for getting a really intelligent grasp of the sublime facts and sublime truths which are the only food that will nourish our spiritual life.

Why were Abraham, and Moses, and David, and Isaiah, and Jeremiah, and Ezekiel such giants spiritually, as compared with us? Because they thought a great deal about God. They did not know much about him, but they tried hard to understand him and to please him, and by such trying they learned to trust him and to love him enthusiastically.

"God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have eternal life." Have you ever really tried to grasp the full meaning of that tremendous statement? The Son of God, who is himself God, who himself created and upholds the world (see Heb. 1. 1-3), became a baby, grew to be a man, lived a life of poverty, and submitted to insult and persecution and death, that we might be delivered from bondage to sin, and also from the penalty due to us for sin. Has that fact become to you like a piece of last year's news, or is it always more or less before your mind as the fact of supreme importance to you at all times? There is only one way of learning to love Christ, and that is, by thinking a great deal about him and trying to please him.—Sabbath Reading.

"PEACE ON EARTH."

By R. B. Eleazer.

The tragedy of the European war becomes doubly tragic as the Christmas season approaches—the season when, as some one has said, "all the world unites in a conspiracy of love." Our hearts are sick when we remember that, in this good year of our Lord 1915, the angels' song of peace and good-will is still but the whisper of a dream, its echo heard but faintly amid the roar of cannon and the groans of millions who lie wounded and dying at the hands of their fellows. "Here is a great world conflict that contravenes completely the spirit and teachings of Christ and of Christianity.

What is the meaning of it all? Has Christianity failed? Has it indeed "broken down," as some have been quick to claim?

Christianity Untried in International Affairs.

No; Christianity has not failed. It holds sway to-day over more hearts than ever before in the world's history. The battlefields of Europe are vocal with the prayers of millions of earnest Christians, and the glazing eyes of myriads of the dying are turned toward the Cross. Indeed, we are told that the war itself has brought about a distinct and widespread revival movement, beginning at the battle front and extending throughout the countries at war. Christianity is more potent to-day than ever before in the regeneration of individuals and of social conditions; and if it were given a chance, it would be no less effective in transforming the larger life of nations. The trouble is that as a factor in international affairs Christianity has never been consistently tried. Men have never thought of it as setting up standards of national conduct and international relationships just as truly as it sets up personal standards.

Patriotism Versus Altruism.

For a long time we thought of Christianity only as a matter of personal salvation. We are beginning now to see its broader social significance as it applies to the relations of man to man, of the individual to society, and of society to the individual. But up to this time our conception of its social applications has been limited by national boundary lines. As between nation and nation, it has not been Christianity which has shaped our relations, but patriotism; which, being interpreted, means love of myself and my own suspicion or jealousy or hatred of all others. Nationalism so far has been the boundary of our expanding vision. We have yet to rise to the Christian conception of world brotherhood which will make all nations but units of one great family and unite them in the bonds of mutual love and helpfulness.

No; Christianity has not failed. It is we who have failed to appreciate and apply it to the larger relations of life. It is we who, in our relations with our brothers of other names and nations, have limited and discounted and denied it.

This is the explanation of the paradox of a war of demoniac destructiveness, waged by men who worship the same God and bear upon their hearts the name of the Prince of Peace. God hasten the day when we as nations shall learn the Spirit of Christ, by whom were made all races of men and in whom all may be united in a common brotherhood! Then, but not sooner, shall the angels' prophetic song become a glad reality and the light of heaven that shone upon Judea's hills shall shed its radiance upon every land and tongue.

Examples of Christian Diplomacy.

So much for the principle; but how shall it be applied? How, for example, shall it affect our own international relations in these crucial times? It is a matter of gratification that for a number of years our country has been making progress in this direction, notably in our recent peace treaties and in our relations with Mexico and with the belligerent nations of Europe. The President's patience and forbearance with unhappy Mexico; his distinterested friendship, that could not be shaken by rebuff and insult; his determination that the rights and integrity of Mexico must be preserved, though favorable opportunity was not wanting for intervention and possibly conquest; the calm and conciliatory attitude that has marked our dealings with England and Germany in connection with flagrant infringement of American rights; the fixed determination that, whatever happened, we would refuse to act hastily or in passion; and, in pacticular, our steadfast assumption that the offending nations had no unfriendly purpose toward us and would gladly make amends if shown their fault—these are splendid examples of Christian diplomacy of which we may well be proud. And in every case so far results have justified the policy.

Shall it be Christ or Mars?

But what shall we say of the program of preparedness that is now being proposed, the building of a navy that will rival the greatest on the globe, and the creation of a standing army of a million fighting men? Do we honor our faith or discredit it by assuming that the gospel of peace is powerless to prevent war, that war is inevitable, and that therefore we must get ready for it? Are we applying Christian principles when we take for granted that our neighbor nations—Christians truly as we are—are jealous of us, anxious for an opportunity to trample upon our rights, snatch our territory, and rob us of our liberty? Shall we not cultivate suspicion, then fear, and thereby inevitably hate, by looking upon them as enemies ready to pounce upon us on the slightest provocation? Shall we encourage friendly relations with our neighbors by putting them on notice that we have no faith in their fairness or friendship and by making ready for war upon them? If we look upon them with suspicion, why should they not look so upon us? If we regard their preparedness as a menace to us, why should they not regard ours as a menace to them? Thus will suspicion engender suspicion, fear create fear, and mutual hate grow up as a natural result. Shall I make a man my friend by preparing to fight him? Shall we cement international friendship by building dreadnaughts and raising standing armies for the destruction of our friends? Shall we prove or discredit our desire for leadership in world peace by launching into a program of militarism at a time when the whole world is seeing as never before the folly and crime of war?

"Choose Ye This Day."

The best that can be claimed for such a policy is not that it is Christian, but that it is a matter of expediency alone. But that which is un-Christian is unwise also, else is our faith vain and our preaching a mockery. If as a nation we are unwilling to trust our safety to a Christian program of real peace, fair dealing, and good-will, but must rely rather on battleships and forts and armies, then let us cease to call ourselves a Christian nation and confess at once that, though individually we may be Christians, collectively we are still barbarians.

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 13, 1915.

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

By W. P. Andrews.

"Farewell P. P. I. E." These were the words written upon the sky in letters of fire by the daring young aviator, Art Smith, as he soared above the Exposition grounds at 12 o'clock, midnight, Saturday, December 4. This act signaled the closing of the gates of the world's greatest exposition. This came at the close of a day full of interest to the great multitudes (the admissions for the day were 416,164) who availed themselves of this last opportunity to view the wonderful works of man and God enclosed within these beautiful grounds, and to participate in, or be entertained by, the varied and interesting program of the day.

By this time (Monday, December 6) the work of preparing the exhibits for removal has begun. Ere long they will all have been taken away, and then the wreckers will be given charge, and in a brief time the beautiful buildings and wonderful statuary that have been the admiration and source of inspiration of the multiplied thousands who have visited this "Jewel City" during the past ten months, will have been leveled to the ground and removed, save, perhaps, the Fine Arts' Palace and one or two others that special efforts are being made to preserve.

It seems a pity. Millions of dollars were spent in their erection, which required many months of painstaking labor, and to be permitted to stand and be of service for so short a period would seem to be regrettable. Yet they were not built in vain. Often it is not the shorter lived man who lives to the least purpose. So with these buildings, so with works of art. They contributed to the enlargement of the minds who conceived them, multitudes were fed and clothed from the remuneration received by the workmen, and images were made in the minds of men, women and children, not a few, that will abide with them to their lasting benefit. This of the grounds and buildings. The exhibits have served as a medium for the interchange of ideas, such as could not have otherwise been provided. Manufactures of every kind, and education in all its branches have received a fresh impetus. The bringing together of so many representatives of the peoples of the earth has contributed, and will continue to contribute, to the recognition of the doctrine of the common brotherhood of man, and if the end of the present great war shall not be hastened, the prevention of future wars may result.

In no sense was the Panama-Pacific Exposition a failure. The attendance would no doubt have been much greater if Europe had kept the peace, but as it was the total attendance was 18,829,963. Instead of several millions dollars of indebtedness remaining, as with previous expositions, after allowing for all possible expenses for clearing the grounds, etc., there will be more than a million dollars in the treasury.

Perhaps never before have the comfort and safety of strangers been so carefully looked after. The Strangers' Aid Society, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., and the Churches vied with one another in this good work. We feel that our own Church Exposition Headquarters have not been maintained in vain. Many have been the expressions of gratitude received from visitors. Besides contributing to their protection, comfort and pleasure, they came to know more of our work in the West, while we were much benefited by contact with our people from the Southland.

UTTERANCE OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE CONCERNING PROHIBITION.

(The following report of the Committee on Temperance was adopted by the Louisiana Conference in its recent session at Mansfield, and is published by special order of that body.)

Since we last met as a Conference gigantic strides have been made toward the ultimate suppression of the manufacture, importation, and sale of intoxicating liquors. The wave of protest against this monster evil is becoming nation-wide. The conscience of the American people is awaking, and indeed the whole world is becoming more pronounced in favor of prohibition. We who have been giving time and strength and prayer toward this reform have reason to render thanksgiving to God for the progress which has been made. State after State in this Union has declared for prohibition. Of the 48 States of the Union, 19 have declared for prohibition; 9 are nearly prohibition States, with more than 50 per cent of the population under prohibition; 13 are partially for prohibition, with more than 25 per cent under prohibitory law; only 9 States have less than 25 per cent of their population under prohibition.

No one can contemplate these figures without being thoroughly convinced that prohibition will soon prevail. Not only are the friends of prohibition assured of final victory, but the saloonists and manufacturers of strong drink see their approaching doom. The handwriting is on the wall. The time is coming soon when every State must confront the question: Shall the saloon or prohibition prevail? That hour has reached the State of Louisiana. We are now in the throes of this great crisis. For the first time in the history of Louisiana the people have been called to answer this question. It has entered into politics and has become a vital issue involving a great moral principle.

One year ago it would have been impossible for the advocates of prohibition to express their convictions at the ballot box. Their votes would have been unconnted. On January 25, 1916, every ballot for prohibition will be registered. The people of Louisiana will decide whether the saloon shall be king or whether righteousness shall prevail. They will determine whether that menace to the peace, happiness and prosperity of the people shall be allowed to continue its work of ruin, or whether it shall be utterly overturned and destroyed. They will decide whether the young men and young women of the State are of sufficient value to be protected from the infernal influences of these murder mills, of the cabaret and brothel; or whether they shall be exposed to the salacious temptations of the wineroom and be offered up as victims to satiate the maw of this rapacious Moloch. They will be called upon to decide whether blood money derived from licensing the saloon is of greater value than sobriety, industry, prosperity, righteousness and protection to life and health. All reforms in democracy are to be affected by the ballot. Civic responsibility is a sacred trust. We as preachers are not only in duty bound to exemplify the Christian life, but to impress on others their duty as citizens. A man is responsible to God for the way he votes. His ballot has upon it either the favor or disfavor of God. He either honors or dishonors the God whose servant he is. The Apostle said: "Whether therefore ye eat or drink or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

When a great moral principle is involved the Christian citizen has no other choice than to stand for that principle. It is not a matter of the individual; it is the Kingdom of God which has the paramount claim. We desire to place ourselves on record as being opposed to the election of any candidate who, in order to secure the support of the saloon, will not co-operate in the enactment of laws suppressing the liquor nuisance, and pledge himself to the enforcement of laws which are already in existence.

The Gay-Shattuck law and the Sunday law prohibiting, on the one hand, the sale of liquor to minors and its sale to whites and blacks at the same bar, and, on the other, the opening of the saloon on Sunday, are wantonly and defiantly violated, and many officials whose sworn duty it is to enforce these laws are remiss in the performance of their duty, and for reasons known to themselves wink at these open violations of law.

The time has come when Christian voters should show their strength at the polls and make an emphatic protest against official malfeasance. If Christian people remain inactive at such a time as this, there will be no relief from the oppression and destructive dominance of the saloon. Shall the saloon rule the people of our State, or shall the people rise up in their manhood and abolish the saloon? This is the question which confronts Louisiana to-day.

We pledge ourselves to co-operate with the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League in their efforts to achieve the demolition of the liquor traffic.

We respectfully request the appointment of Rev. A. W. Turner as Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League in the State of Louisiana.

Signed: S. H. WERLEIN, Chairman.

EARLY PORTRAITS OF JESUS.

The author of these lines once held in his hand the most precious thing it was ever his privilege to touch. It was a gold coin seventeen hundred years old. On one side, beaten in this small coin, which was about the size of a dime, was the figure of a man with a mitre in one hand and a cross in the other. This shows that the coin was not civil but ecclesiastical. On the other side there were beaten in the coin the dim outlines of a face. It was easy to identify it, with the letters on the other side, as the face of Jesus Christ.

There is a tradition that Saint Luke was an artist, and that he once painted a portrait of Jesus in colors, which was afterward presented to the King of Odessa, as there is a tradition that on the napkin which covered the face of Jesus in the tomb of Joseph of Arimathaea there were found stamped the outlines of the sacred face. But there is nothing of evidential value to vouch for such traditions.

"The authentic portrait of Christ in Trinity Church, Liban, Russia, a fac simile of which hangs in the Methodist Mission at Petrograd, is of great antiquity. The picture is said to have been originally copied from an image carved by order of Caesar Tiberias, and taken from the treasure-room at Constantinople by the Sultan of Turkey and presented to Pope Innocent VIII as a ransom for his brother held captive at that time by the Christians.

The oldest portraiture of Jesus in literature is the famous description of Publius Lentulus, governor of Judaea, in a letter to the Roman Senate. Although its authenticity is questioned, it will always retain a place in the memorabilia of Jesus. The description follows:

"There has appeared in these days a very virtuous man, named Jesus Christ, who is even now living among us and whom the heathen consider a prophet of truth and who is called 'Son of God' by his own disciples. He raises the dead and heals all manner of diseases. A medium-sized man of stately figure and very venerable appearance, so that those who behold him must love him as well as fear him. His hair has the color of a thoroughly ripe hazel nut. Down to his ears it is almost smooth and from there downward somewhat curly, falling wavily over his shoulders, and of Oriental manner, according to the custom of the Nazarenes, parted in the middle. His brow is full and smooth. His face without blemish and wrinkles, of a beautiful, ruddy complexion. The nose and mouth are beautifully formed. The beard is sparing, the color being in harmony with the hair, which is not of great length. His eyes are dark blue, clear and vivacious. His body is well proportioned. In rebuking he is terrible; in exhorting he is friendly and winning; in speech he is moderate, wise and modest, and yet dignified. No one remembers ever having seen him laugh, but many have seen him weep."

The most beautiful portrait of Jesus was never held in the hand, hung on a wall, or read in a book, but worn in the heart of a faithful disciple. This is the authentic portrait of Paul, "Christ within you, the hope of glory," and this is the portrait that all may have for the asking. Without it the richest Christmas would be poor, indeed; in fact it would not be a Christmas at all, only a shallow imitation, robbed of its beauty, blessedness, and eternity.—New York Christian Advocate.

CORNERSTONE AMONG THE RUINS.

By Bert H. Harper.

Among the ruins left by war
Where once an empire's might,
There was a preacher brought a prayer
And laid a cornerstone.

Of a temple not with marble white
Or granite towering near—
Of a land beyond the battle lines of time,
And born and fashioned there

Where were the poisoning mists are lashed
And ramp the fog and steam at night—
And many a Mother let will make of clay
Her all warm and bright—

Of flames that burn the Furnace full
Many and many a million fire.
Where we will other children played in the Morning Breaker's golden glow.

And down beside the blue-eyed holly berries red,
With faith the same.
And hope alive, but where he ever
Soon each one name a blessed Name.

Then though the quaking blackened earth recorded
To the feet of a million foes.
And warring with and enemy fierce
Upon in ravage carnage meet.

And though the cry of other wrongs
In weary hearing wounded hear.
The wrought pray the Prince of Peace,
And live in the hope of his mission here.

For twenty and seven centuries gone,
the prophets sang the reign of right,
In the coming of One, whose latest star will rise o'er eastern hills tonight.

THE GIFT OF A LIFE.

Paine College and Southern Methodism have suffered a distinct loss in the death of Rev. W. L. C. Wailes.

Professor Wailes, the son of Dr. E. W. Wailes and Mrs. Addie Gorton Wailes, was born in Waterproof, La., on March 22, 1880, and died in Augusta, Ga., on November 14, 1915. He is survived by his mother, his wife, Mrs. Maud Henry Wailes of Birmingham, Ala., whom he married in 1907; two sons, Henry and Gorton, and a brother, Mr. E. L. Wailes of Birmingham.

Having secured his secondary education in the public schools of his native town, he entered Centenary College, from which he graduated with the A.B. degree in 1899. After graduation he taught for three years in the public schools of Louisiana, and in 1903 entered the Theological Department of Vanderbilt University. In 1906 he received the B.D. degree and was awarded the Founder's Medal—the highest departmental honor offered by the University.

During this period of teaching in Louisiana and study in Tennessee he referred often in letters to his mother to the need of the negro. He saw them as those without a shepherd; he saw them as a race impotent from birth, lying at the beautiful gate of the Temple of Civilization, waiting for some followers of the Christ to extend, not silver and gold, but the hand of confidence and help; he saw them with the open Bible in their hands, but with none to instruct. He heard the command of the Master, "And in Samaria." In 1906 he volunteered for service in the Theological Department of Paine College, the school founded and supported jointly by our own Church and its child, the Colored Methodist Church.

At Paine, Professor Wailes labored faithfully and well. His unusual intellect, working in perfect accord with the spirit of the Christ—"a mind and soul according well"—gave to his labors rich results. Two years ago he took charge of the Department of Physical Science. No period of his school life showed greater fortitude or devotion than these last two years. With body racked by pain he daily met his classes. During the past summer he was confined to his bed, suffering intensely. It was my privilege to be much associated with him during these trying months. As daily we saw the body grow weaker under the ravages of pain and fever, the hope, the assurance will his penetrate the triumphant hope is impressible.

Not only was Mr. Wailes a Professor in Paine College but immediately in coming to Augusta he became active in the Central life of the city. Under the Woodmen Circle he organized a Men's Bible Class with six members. At his death the class membership was above 100.

The home-going of this man, our co-laborer and friend, leaves a vacant chair in our faculty that is difficult to fill. The need is urgent, it is immediate. The call is to a young man trained in one of our own A-grade colleges who is able to teach the Physical Sciences, or can work anywhere in the Department of Ministerial Training—one who not only believes in the universality of religion and of opportunity, but who is eager to carry this message of the abundant life to our brother in black.

The pathway here will not always be along pleasant places. The awful need, the boundless opportunity, the lethargy and indifference of the Church will oftimes wring the soul, but where the way is darkest the fellowship of the Christ is most real. The task is hard, but it is glorious; the work difficult, but sane and in accord with one's sense of justice.

Is there one to whom this opportunity appeals—one who will take up the work laid down by Professor Wailes?

Augusta, Ga. D. H. ATKINS, President.

THE WORK IN THE GREENVILLE DISTRICT.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am enclosing you my first round of appointments for the Greenville District. We enter upon the new year hopefully. I think all the preachers of this district will be in their places by the coming Sabbath. As a general thing our preachers lose no time in getting on the ground and taking up the work. This is as it should be.

This year we shall miss from the ranks of the Greenville District some men who have labored long and well within its borders. Brother J. J. Brooks, after some twenty-four or twenty-five years of continuous service in this district, has been assigned to a charge in another part of the Conference. No man is more widely known or better loved in this country than Brother Brooks. Happily, he is not far away from us, and we shall still count him as one of our men, and depend on him for counsel and help. And Brother Lagrone, too, has moved just across the border. The church at Drew may count itself happy in having this man of God for its pastor. Brave, true soul that he is, he wrought well for God and the Church while with us, and he will make himself felt for righteousness in his new field. And then there are L. W. Cain, who has joined the local ranks, and H. M. Young, L. P. Wasson, T. M. Bradley, and T. J. Halfacre, who have gone from us to other parts of the Conference. The records will show how faithfully these men have stood at their posts and wrought for the Kingdom. That each one of them will succeed in his new charge, I sincerely believe. There is not one of them that we do not carry in our hearts. Blessings on all of them and blessings on their families!

To the new men who have been assigned charges in the Greenville District, we extend the most cordial welcome. There is not one of them that we take on any sort of probation. They have already been "tried out" and found worthy. What a great time we shall have, together with the faithful men who remain in this district, in planning and carrying forward the work of the Kingdom!

One of our preachers, who has seen a good deal of service in this section of the country, as well as in other parts of our Conference, said to me not long ago: "There is no district in the Conference where the preachers stand closer together and do better 'team work' than in the Greenville District. I am quite sure that you, who spent four years of active service on this District, and did so much to foster such a spirit, will agree that such is true. May the 'team spirit' ever abide with us! It is essential to our best efforts. H. S. SPRAGINS.

TO METHODIST PASTORS IN MISSISSIPPI.

Dear Brethren: The September collection was unanimously accepted by the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences at their recent sessions, and I am earnestly request you to arrange to the attention of each Sunday school and church in your charge.

Realizing the need of adequate financial support for our Orphanage and the necessity of a systematic plan for contributions to meet the monthly obligations of the institution.

Resolved, That all our Pastors, Sunday school superintendents and members be urged to observe the Sunday in each month for regular contributions to the Methodist Orphanage, and that the same be sent promptly to the District Secretary of the Home in each presiding elder's district, or to Rev. J. B. Randolph, Supt., Jackson, Miss.

Let all friends of the orphans remember those at the Methodist Orphanage in a substantial way at the Christmas season.

Your friend and brother,

THE HOLMES STORE
OF NEW ORLEANS
is one of America's truly great department stores.

It has perfected a buying organization that reaches into every producing market of the world, maintaining offices in Berlin, London, Paris and Florence, as well as New York.

It never presents any merchandise that is not of good quality and equitably priced.

Its very efficient service to patrons in the city is supplemented by the largest and best-equipped mail order department of any store in the South. Ninety-eight per cent of all orders received are filled on date of receipt.

The aim of the store is to merit fully the confidence that has been manifested by the public during its seventy-two years of merchandising history.

The Wesleyan Christian Advocate, in referring to the action of the two Arkansas Conferences, an account of which we are publishing on another page, says: "What will the brethren in Arkansas do? Will they go to Vanderbilt?" We rather suspect that there are some gentlemen over that way who would like to lead them in that direction.

During the year $5351 was collected on $16,000 worth of notes given in the $100,000 campaign.

My, my, what would happen if our young preachers would be as diligent to read, study, and inwardly digest good books as this venerable man beyond eighty!"

The Allies have bought so much condensed milk from New York City that the supply there is very low. The shortage is estimated at about 40,000 gross daily. During the year 1915 sixteen persons were killed in football games, which is an increase of one over the number of deaths caused by it in the year 1911. We believe that intercollegiate games are largely responsible for the fatalities shown and that if these were prohibited, football might prove beneficial to those who are physically fit for participating in such violent exercise.

Though the Chinese possess many unsanitary customs, a simple system of hygiene has been practiced by them for centuries. The result is that many diseases frequently occurring in Europe and America are distinctly uncommon in China."

In Poland geese are extensively raised and the greatest market for them is in the city of Warsaw. Speaking of the manner in which the Polish farmer gets his flock of birds to the city, a writer says: "The Polish farmer does not send his birds to market in coops and by train. That would be a considerable expense. He drives them on the highway, the flock often numbering several hundred. That they may walk to Warsaw without getting sore feet, he shoes them. They are first made to walk over a patch of road covered with warm tar and then over another patch covered with sand. In this way the feet get a coat of tar and sand, and they make the journey without becoming footsore. They are able to travel over the hard roads at the rate of a mile an hour, or about ten miles a day."

Judge Ben B. Linsey, of the Juvenile Court of Denver, Col., was recently fined $500 and costs for contempt of court because he would not abuse the confidence that had been placed in him by a small boy. The mother of the child was being tried for the murder of her husband and the court sought to obtain evidence against her by having the Judge tell what the child had told him. The Judge is to be commended for taking punishment himself, rather than betray the trust which the simple, unsuspecting lad had placed in him. We can conceive of no honorable person securing the confidence of any person and then abusing it. Judge Linsey is constantly showing his love for and knowledge of children in his work as the judge of a juvenile court in a large city, but nothing that he has done is worthy of greater praise than the incident related above. Kindness to children is a Christian virtue and ought to be cultivated more extensively. To abuse the confidence of a child is more reprehensible than to abuse that of a grown person, because the trust that a child places in one is apt to be implicit, owing to a lack of worldly knowledge on his part, while the adult is, on account of his knowledge of the world, not likely to trust even his best friend too far. Boys whom the Judge has befriended have begun a campaign for the purpose of raising from the children of Denver the money, penny by penny, that the payment of the fine will require. No one need wonder at this—children never forget a kindness.

PRECIOUS GIFTS.

A pastor in Alabama sends me one dollar from a good woman in his charge whose heart is deeply interested in the success of Emory University. He writes that she said, "I would give it if I had to wash for it."

Her case is an example showing how many thousands of poor, pious people feel about this enterprise of our Church.

Another instance: A few days ago, as I was entering the Wesley Memorial Building I was met by a good man whom I had never seen. He said, "I read an article some time ago by Dr. S. A. Steel proposing that every member of our Church give a dollar to the University. I am a poor man, and have no property, but I wish to have a part in this great work, and I have been hunting you to give you my dollar."

It is encouraging to know that God's poor saints are interested in the University. Their gifts are precious, and their prayers are effectual for the blessing of the institution.

If our people of means would give in proportion to their possessions as these poor saints have given out of their poverty, what a large sum would be secured speedily for the University! Many will do so, if their pastors will bring the matter to their attention.

W. A. CANDLER.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4, 1915.

THE PATRONIZING CONFERENCES AND VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY.

All of the former patronizing Annual Conferences of Vanderbilt University have now been held, and have had an opportunity to speak concerning the work of the general Educational Commission in dealing with the so-called rights of the Church in that institution. Everywhere, even including the Tennessee and Memphis Conferences, the action of the Commission in declaring that there were no rights left to transfer to the said Conferences (which was in effect a recognition of the complete severance of all relations between Vanderbilt University and the Church), was endorsed and acquiesced in, except by the two Conferences (formerly three) in Arkansas.

The action of the North Arkansas Conference (which includes the formerly existing White River Conference) was described as follows by Dr. Ivey in a recent issue of the Nashville Christian Advocate:

"Rev. J. K. Farris, who represented the White River Conference, submitted his report on Saturday morning of the Conference session. This report recommended the acceptance by the Conference of the action of the Educational Commission as the final settlement of the Vanderbilt University matter. Resolutions were offered which carried a declaration of such acceptance, expressed the conviction of the Conference that Vanderbilt University was still in equity the property of the Church, and pledged the support of the Conference to our new universities at Atlanta and Dallas. The report and resolutions offered by Brother Farris were adopted, with only one dissenting vote, after a motion to refer both papers to the Board of Education was lost by a close vote. On Monday this action was reconsidered in order that the report of Dr. James A. Anderson, the other commissioner, might be submitted at the same time. I was not present to hear the discussion of the question Monday morning and am not informed as to what was the substance of Dr. Anderson's report. The Conference, however, settled the matter by adopting a motion to receive and file both reports without formal action on either paper. It was decided not to elect a trustee for Southern Methodist University, Dallas."

The following statement, embodied in the report of its Board of Education, which was adopted without debate, sets forth the action of the Little Rock Conference:

"We have examined the report of the Educational Commission referred to us, and the Conference has heard with pleasure an account of the work of the Commission during the past year, as presented by Dr. A. J. Lamar, a member of the Commission. We recommend the adoption of the following:

"First, that we desire to express our appreciation of the work of the Ecclesiastical Commission, as made known to us in the report of the Commission sent us by the chairman, Bishop W. A. Candler. We share in the feeling of responsibility voiced in that report, which results from the great world situation as it affects the educational work of the colleges and universities of Europe and America, and would pledge ourselves and our people to the loyal effort to discharge the obligations which are imposed upon us, and shall be increasingly ours in the coming years.

"Second, that we rejoice in the great success of the Commission as made known to us by Dr. A. J. Lamar, in securing funds with which to launch our two great educational enterprises at Dallas and at Atlanta.

"Third, that we note with satisfaction and approval the information conveyed to us in the report of the Commission, namely, that the charter of Emory University is such that that institution has been placed perfectly in the ownership and control of the Church, and that while the charter of Southern Methodist University has not been brought to its final form, the Church may be well assured that this institution will be owned and controlled by the Church in perpetuity.

"Fourth, that with respect to the recommendation to consider the adoption of the preamble and resolution of a paper presented to the Conference by representatives of the Commission, and to elect a trustee, we find ourselves confronted by certain difficulties, as follows:

"First, the adoption of the resolution referred to involves the adoption of a charter.

"Second, we are informed that the charter is in process of making. Its ultimate form may be quite different from that presented to us.

"Third, while no copy of the proposed charter was left with the Conference nor with the Board of Education, upon the examination of an unofficial copy, certain important questions were raised as to the relations which would be established between this Conference and Southern Methodist University by adopting the charter and electing a trustee.

"Fourth, we sought to secure the services of both Dr. C. S. Wright, vice president of the university, and of Dr. A. J. Lamar, to make clear to us the meaning of certain provisions of the charter, but were not able to do so.

"Fifth, we were informed that it is not within the power of this Conference to either hinder or further the work of the Commission in making the university connectional and placing the ownership and control of it in the General Conference; that the Commission and the participating Conferences are clothed with all authority to accomplish these results.

"Sixth—Confronted by the situation herein mentioned, we deem it unadvisable, at this time, to take any action which might be construed as establishing a definite Conference relationship between this Conference and Southern Methodist University."

From the foregoing it will be seen, that what the Arkansas Conferences did was to sidestep the issue, presented, presumably, so far as the leaders are concerned at least, with a view to leaving the question where it may be re-opened in the future. This is to be regretted, as we see it, not because there is any doubt as to what the Church will finally do concerning its relation to Vanderbilt University, but because it may tend to prolong the controversy concerning the matter, of which there has been "a plenty and to spare." This outcome in Arkansas is said to be largely due to the influence of Dr. Stonewall Anderson, Secretary of our General Board of Education, who has not been in accord with our Educational Commission in the work of establishing our new universities, and whose interference with its plans has, in our opinion, been wholly without justification.

MRS. SUSAN E. JENKINS.

Mrs. Susan E. Jenkins, daughter of [illegible] and Susan Monroe, was born in Thomaston, Upson county, Ga., on March [illegible], and became the [illegible] bride and devoted wife of the Rev. [illegible] Jenkins, at the home of her father, on July [illegible]. She was an unassuming but devoted and [illegible] Christian from early childhood. Brother Jenkins, her husband, has been an itinerant preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, about fifty years, filling charges in North and South Georgia, Louisiana, Texas, Northwest Texas, then again in the Louisiana Conference, where he now holds his membership.

Through all the vicissitudes of this long, eventful ministerial life, Sister Jenkins proved a helpmeet indeed, blessing the life and labors of her husband with the sweet aroma of her lovable Christian comfort and help. Perhaps her husband only knew her real worth, but all who lives she touched give witness to her excellent character. She was truly the salt of the earth and the light of the world everywhere she moved. Her bright, cheerful disposition cheered many with new hope and fresh courage. Her last years were spent in feeble health and her suffering was great as she came towards the end of life's journey, but with a beautiful, quiet patience she endured unto the end. She suffered with Him and now shares His glory. Her life here from beginning to end was one long ministry of love, and now she has gone to that clime where real beauty can't fade, nor sorrow dim the eye, where true love shall not droop nor be dismayed, and hope shall ever die. She leaves, besides her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Harris, who lives at Minden, Texas.

She died, we say, November 2[illegible], 1915, yet:

"There is no death! The stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore;
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forevermore.

There is no death! An angel form
Walks o'er the earth with silent tread;
He bears our best loved ones away,
And then we call them dead."

"He leaves our hearts all desolate;
He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers;
Transplanted into bliss, they now
Adorn immortal bowers."

CHEERING NEWS.

At the late session of the North Texas Conference, Dr. S. H. C. Burgin, of Trinity Church, Dallas, reported 362 accessions to the Church, 127 of them on profession of faith; Rev. P. R. Knickerboker, of Wapples Memorial Church, Denison, 271, of which 173 were on profession of faith; Rev. S. A. Barnes, of Ervay Street, Dallas, 148 additions by profession of faith, and a total of 283. The greatest record of all, however, in the way of an ingathering was made by Rev. A. L. Andrews, of Wichita Falls, who received more than 500 members. Such reports as these certainly do not indicate that the Holy Spirit has ceased to work through our ministers.

A LITTLE CHRISTMAS SECRET.

Christmas is a time of secrets,
So I'll whisper one to you;
Grandpa says that all who try it
Find that every word is true.
"Would you have a happy day?
Give some happiness away."
Grandpa says this little secret
Should be carried through the year;
And if all would try to heed it,
Earth would soon be full of cheer,
"Would you have a happy day?
Give some happiness away."

HOW THE CHIMES RANG.

An old legend says that there was in a city in Germany an old church in whose belfry were the most beautiful chimes in the world. No man or woman living had ever heard them ring, but each one had heard his father or grandfather tell of their wonderful beauty. There was a belief among the people that the chimes would ring on Christmas Day if they brought their most precious gifts and laid them on the altar of the church. The king appointed the next Christmas for every man, woman and child in the city to bring his gift.

First came the king and laid his crown upon the altar. The people gazed in wonder and sat waiting expectantly; for surely no gift could be more precious than the king's crown. But the chimes did not ring. Then a soldier came and laid his sword on the altar, but the chimes did not ring. A woman brought a beautiful dress, all of her own weaving, and laid it by the soldier's sword, but there was no sound from the old belfry.

Now there was in a distant part of the city a little boy named Peter, who for weeks had been saving a few small coins for his gift. It had been very hard to save them. But at last he was on his way with these, his most precious gift, to lay on the altar. He had nearly reached the steps of the church when a whine made him look down on the sidewalk. There in a doorway crouched a little dog with a broken leg. What should Peter do? It was getting late. If he waited to take the dog home and bind up his leg, the church would be closed and he would lose his little chance to make the beautiful chimes ring. But another whine came from the dog. Peter took his hand from the pocket where the hard-earned money lay, picked up the dog in his arms and ran home as swiftly as he could. As he came to the door he called to his brother Hans. "Hans, quickly, take the money and run back to the church. Quickly, Hans! it may be closed and the chimes have not been rung."

Then he set to work binding up the dog's leg. His little brother ran to the church. The western sunlight was throwing long shadows down the aisles as the people sat waiting, discouraged, hoping against hope as one gift after another was laid upon the altar and still the chimes were silent. Just as a few left their places to pass out, giving up hope, a tiny boy came panting, breathless, up the steps, down the long aisle, straight to the altar, where he laid a few small coins.

Suddenly from out the long silent belfry broke the most wonderful music—filling the church, the air, the city with glorious harmony. People fell upon their knees in joy and thankfulness. Men who had not prayed in years praised God, mothers held their little children more closely to their hearts. The whole city seemed caught up in heavenly melody and held close to the heart of God.

And from a window in a distant part of the city little Peter's face looked out, its great longing changed into great peace. His own small gift, representing the savings of weeks of self-sacrifice, had made the chimes ring out at last.—New York Christian Advocate.

MISTRESS SANTA CLAUS.

By Mrs. Myrtle Hill Williamson.

"There!" exclaimed Hilda, surveying with pride the dainty handkerchief and pretty pincusion which she had just made; "I have finished the last of my Christmas gifts. I am sorry, too, because I like to work on them."

"Your pincushion is very pretty," answered her mother. "Who told you how to make it?"

"Our teacher, Miss Brown, showed us how to cut round pieces of cardboard the size of a teacup. We cut out two pieces and covered one side of each piece with yellow silk, joining them with the smallest stitches which we could make. A ribbon is fastened on the sides to hang it up.

"We drew the sun's face with pen and ink on one side and stuck in the pins around the edge to represent his rays."

Mamma nodded approval and laughed as she looked at the sun's merry face. "He will cause a smile as well as furnish pins, and who could do better than that?"

"If I were rich, can you guess what I would do?" asked Hilda, as she folded the handkerchief.

"Buy a new set of furs, perhaps," mamma answered. "I heard you say that you wanted them."

"Indeed I would, if I had money left after I had done something else. Do you remember those poor, ragged children we saw crowded around the window filled with beautiful dolls?

"They were pointing out to one another the ones which they would like to have. I wanted to go in and buy them, but—it's dreadful not to have any more money than you need."

"That is certainly a beautiful wish, my dear," said mamma slowly, looking as though she had a very pleasant thought. "You must remember, however, that it does not always take a valuable present to make people happy. A very small gift would please those poor children, who have so little. What would you think if I should tell you that many children hardly know what it means to sit down and eat at a table?"

"Then we would seem very rich to them, wouldn't we, mamma?" asked Hilda.

"Yes, indeed. Perhaps, if you wish, you can make dolls for a few children, even if they are not so beautiful as the French ones in the window."

"Do you think so, mamma?" exclaimed Hilda, jumping up so quickly that the little scissors danced up and down on the bright red ribbon tied to her belt.

Together they hunted up some fashion books and cut out the prettiest ladies and children which they could find. These were pasted on light-weight cardboard and again cut out.

Hilda brought out her box of tissue paper, while her mother supplied a bottle of paste. The little girl went to work and dressed the dolls in lovely dresses all ruffled and frilled.

Some ladies even carried tiny shopping bags with a wee handkerchief within. Others had bead bracelets and a necklace. One lovely girl had a real boa made out of a fluffy white feather and tied with baby ribbon.

Dolls going to parties wore lovely tissue crepe capes made beautiful by putting on small dots of paste and sprinkling them with diamond dust before they dried.

Hilda worked the two weeks before Christmas, and still she could not make all the different kinds of dresses that she kept thinking of.

The day before the good Saint was to come, Hilda carefully packed the dolls in a box and carried them with her when she went down town with her mother to see the thousands of moving toys in the basement of one of the big stores.

She wanted to distribute her gifts before going into the basement. The window was crowded as usual with children. There happened to be more boys than girls, so Hilda stepped inside the door and waited awhile. Before long the boys moved on, leaving the girls behind.

Hilda stepped out of her hiding place and timidly offered one doll and then another. They were eagerly seized by dirty little hands. Fortunately there were enough to go around.

A few thanked her, some did not but Hilda did not care. She knew by their faces that she had made them happy.

She did long to give more to the children but she had to be content with doing what she could, which was so much better than not trying at all.—Presbyterian of the South.

GOD'S CARE OF CHILDREN.

"Do you suppose," said Johnny, as his little cousin laid away her largest, rosiest apple for a sick girl, "that God cares about such little things as we do? He is too busy taking care of the big folks to notice us much." Winnie shook her head and pointed to mamma, who had just lifted the baby from the crib. "Do you think," said Winnie, "that mamma is so busy with the big folks that she forgets the baby?" She thinks of the baby first, 'cause he's the littlest. Surely, God knows how to love us well as mother."—Epworth Herald.

Bishop David H. Moore, one of the retired chief pastors of the Methodist Episcopal Church, passed to his eternal reward in Cincinnati, Ohio, on Nov. 23, aged 77. He had won distinction as a pastor, educator, and editor. Many beautiful tributes have been paid to his character and work in the Northern Methodist press.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

GREETING.

Mabel J. Bourquin.

To all our loved ones on this side the dawn
A "blessed Christmas" send we, tenderly:
And to those other dear ones loved and gone,
Who once our holly-bordered pathway trod,
A promise of the Christmas yet to be.
With them about us, at the feet of God.

Judge Parker, of the Civil District Court of New Orleans, has declared in a judicial opinion that "a tornado is an act of God." Evidently the Judge is not a good MODERN theologian.

* * *

With most people success covers a multitude of sins. The man who is charged with all kinds of corruption when he is running for office is usually proclaimed to be quite a different person as soon as he gets in. Such is the fickleness and undependableness of the populace. As a matter of fact, bad men seldom reform when the winds are blowing their way. The school of adversity is far more prolific of true reformations.

* * *

The Christmas season is again at hand, and its coming should fill our hearts anew with gratitude and joy: gratitude to God for the great "unspeakable gift" of his only begotten Son, and joy because of what his advent meant to humanity both in time and in eternity. All that we need we have in him, and when he shall have finished his work, earth will be a paradise and the redeemed of the race will have attained to glories of which the most majestic human mind cannot now conceive. So, let us scatter abroad good cheer and hope in his precious name, not only as commemorative of the day when he came as the Babe of Bethlehem, but as prophetic of that yet grander time when "in trailing clouds of glory" he shall come again to bestow the richer blessings of his fully established kingdom.

A NOBLE LOUISIANIAN.

Elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate we are carrying a brief tribute to Rev. W. L. C. Wailes, a professor in Paine College, at Augusta, Ga., who died on November 14, from the pen of Mr. D. E. Atkins, the President of that worthy institution. Prof. Wailes was a native of Louisiana, a graduate of Centenary College; and a cousin of Dr. R. H. Wynn and Rev. W. W. Drake, of the Louisiana Conference. As will be seen by reading the appreciation of Mr. Atkins, he was well equipped for the work of life and would doubtless have had a highly creditable career of the usual kind in the Christian ministry; but moved by the deep convictions that fastened upon his soul, he determined to devote his talents and energies to the task of trying to help the needy Negro race in the South. This was certainly a noble mission, and to it he gave himself with unremitting fidelity to the end. Such a service is worthy of all praise, and Louisiana may well feel proud that she has given such a son to Methodism and the South. And there should be inspiration in his example. We are not beginning to do our duty to the millions of our colored population that are about our very doors. It is high time that we were catching a vision of our weighty obligations to this large and helpless portion of our citizenship, and were seeking in some proper measure to discharge them. How can we meet our Lord in the judgment if we fail to do so?

A HEARTENING TRUTH.

The beautiful poem entitled "Corner-Stone Amid the Ruins," by our gifted young friend, Rev. R. H. Harper, of New Orleans, which appears on another page of this issue of the Advocate, suggests an important and heartening truth, namely, that underneath the war-imperiled civilization of Europe the solid foundations of Christianity are still unshattered. We firmly believe that this view is correct. We do not at all doubt that there are many as good Christians in the several European armies as can be found anywhere on earth. Thousands of men are fighting because their countries are at war and they feel that patriotism and loyalty demand it—not because they love strife and bloodshed. They had nothing to do with bringing on this terrible conflict.

And even in bosoms that are rife with the passions and prejudices that the clash of armies has engendered, conscience and religious susceptibilities yet exist. The words of the eloquent British Wesleyan preacher, Dr. W. L. Watkinson, concerning the skeptic apply with equal force to the soldiers in the trenches: "Men cannot all at once get rid of their religious nature. Our system makers find it difficult to get God out of philosophy: when they think they have expelled him by one door, he comes in again at another: and certainly they cannot keep him out of their own personal thought and experience. We think of a skeptic as something inhuman, but it is not so. His skepticism is not his deepest self. .....Infidelity is on the surface—our religion is deep down; our infidelity is in our opinions—our religion is in our instincts, our appetites, our aspirations, our deepest nature, in the very roots of our being."

Christianity is not going to be destroyed in England, or France, or Germany, or Austria, or Russia, or anywhere else that it has existed. On the contrary, we predict that when the cannons shall have ceased to roar, amid the desolation and ruin that will surround them, those nations more than ever will feel the need of God and will stretch aloft to him imploring hands. And we doubt not that in the course of time, upon the indestructible foundations that remain there will be reared a more splendid Christian civilization than any the Old World has ever known. Satan may have his brief periods of success, but Christ will show himself to be the final victor.

TRYING TO CREATE A FALSE IMPRESSION.

Some of the secular papers have been stating that the Louisiana Conference and the State Baptist Convention in their recent sessions did not endorse the candidacy of Mr. Barret for Governor in a manner apparently to create the impression that those bodies did not do what was expected of them. It is not the custom of such gatherings to endorse any candidate for public office; we do not know of a single instance in which it was ever done. But both of these assemblies did strongly endorse the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League and the causes of prohibition and law enforcement. We suggest if the journals referred to desire to know where the Methodist and Baptist Churches stand in the pending contest that they take a poll of the clergymen and most active laymen of those denominations. We are printing the utterance of the Louisiana Conference concerning temperance and other kindred matters in this issue of the Advocate, and we respectfully commend it to these brethren of the secular press as well worth a careful reading. There is no copyright on it, and if they wish to publish it they have full permission to do so.

In this connection, we will say that we have noticed in some quarters a disposition to try to sneer at and disparage Rev. A. W. Turner, the superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League. There is no more worthy Christian minister in the State than Mr. Turner, who enjoys the full confidence of the Christian people of the commonwealth, and such tactics should react upon the cause championed by those who indulge in them, as doubtless they will.

WEAKNESS NOT NECESSARY TO PEACE.

We are carrying on another page an article from the pen of Mr. R. B. Eleazer, editor of The Missionary Voice, entitled "Peace on Earth." With much of what he says we are in hearty accord, but we are not disposed to take a stand with him against the issue in American politics which is termed "preparedness." To be sure, we do not want war, and we recognize the danger of militarism and competing armaments among the nations, and we trust that the day will come when by international agreement the armies and navies of the various governments can be scaled down to the lowest plane consistent with what may be required to maintain peace and good order and the public safety.

But when it is remembered that no such condition of things yet exists and that the United States is a great world power with far-removed possessions, it is not, in our opinion, an unwise policy to make provision for a considerable increase in the number of our warships and soldiers. We do not think that it is necessary for a nation to be weak to such an extent that situations might arise at any time with which it would not be ready to cope, in order to be peaceable. As we see it, the Christian powers ought to be in a position to exercise an influence in behalf of justice and right, and against lawlessness, oppression and cruelty all around the world. We wish that at this moment they could demand a cessation of the slaughter of the helpless Armenians.

We doubt if any other one agency has contributed as much toward the maintenance of peace and the repression of wrong among the various peoples of the globe as has the British Navy. The United States has her part to play in the affairs of the world, and she should equip herself to do it worthily. A nation has no more right to live to itself than an individual. If England and France had been without armaments in the present world crisis, it is frightful to think of what might have happened.

When the other leading nations will agree to do likewise, we shall be willing to see our country reduce its land and naval forces to the minimum strength that she can get along with and rightly fulfill her mission, but not until then. The millennium is coming, but it will not do to proceed in national and international affairs as if it had already arrived. We should deal with things as they are—not as we would have them to be.

A SUGGESTION.

In our opinion, every minister ought to take and read at least one high-class weekly secular journal. We have sometimes been asked to state what paper of the kind we think is to be most preferred. We answer unhesitatingly that our preference is The Outlook. Mechanically, it is unsurpassed by any publication in the country, and none carries a more comprehensive and informing table of contents from week to week. And we know of no Northern periodical which is generally more just to the South. It is issued at 381 Fourth Avenue, New York City, and the price is $3 per annum.

A GREAT ADDRESS ON A GREAT SUBJECT.

We have in hand "The Gospel of Church Extension," an address delivered by Dr. W. F. McMurry, at the Methodist Temple, in Louisville, Ky., on Nov. 8, 1914, by special request of the Epworth League, and taken down by a stenographer. It forms a handsome booklet of 36 pages, and contains pictures of the Methodist Temple and Dr. McMurry. It is an unusually able utterance, comprehensive, informing, and convincing. So impressive a setting forth of the great work that has been done by our Church Extension Board we have nowhere seen. It ought to be read by every pastor and intelligent lay Methodist in our Connection. The address may be had, free of cost, upon request. Write Dr. McMurry, 1025 Brook Street, Louisville, Ky., for a copy.

A DEFINITION OF CULTURE.

"Our work starts off well in our new charge, the Waynesboro (Miss.) Circuit. So writes the stirring pastor, Rev. A. J. Davis.

It is to be hoped that our Orphanages at Ruston and Jackson will be remembered by many of our people during the Christmas season.

Rev. W. M. Sullivan reports that the work has opened well at Yazoo City, Miss. He has already begun to forward subscriptions to the Advocate.

Let's make the year now beginning the best that Louisiana and Mississippi Methodism has ever had. What say you? We can do this, if we will.

A note from Rev. J. O. Ware informs us that he has reached Fayette, Miss., his new home, and has been delightfully received. He is pleased with the prospect.

A census of the Methodists of Monroe, La., was taken a few days since. This is said to be the first step toward some aggressive work by Pastor Morris and his flock in that progressive city.

Rev. M. F. Adams is in place at Flora, Miss., his new charge, and he has called for a list of the subscribers to the Advocate. This is a good way to begin the labors of the new Conference year.

In the article of Mr. L. P. Brown, of Meridian, Miss., entitled "Retrospective," which appeared in last week's Advocate, the name of Bishop Whatcoat was wrongly printed. We regret this error.

Rev. W. W. Woollard is preparing the forms that will be used by the presiding elders of the North Mississippi Conference in making quarterly reports to Bishop Atkins. He is doing this, of course, at the Bishop's request.

Rev. W. T. Woodward is much pleased with his new parish, the Oak Grove (La.) Circuit. The people have given him a generous reception, and the work has started off well. There have been four additions to the Church already.

Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., has arrived at Dubach, La., and has begun to lay his plans for the new year, which include as large a circulation of the Advocate as is possible. There is no choicer young minister in Louisiana than Brother Doss.

Rev. J. W. Ramsey, of Heidelberg, Miss., writes: "I have been returned to this charge for another year. This work paid the pastor's and presiding elder's salaries in full last year for the first time in its history. The present outlook is quite hopeful."

Rev. A. J. Gearheard, pastor of the Louisiana Avenue Methodist Church of this city, has begun the work of the new year with characteristic energy. This congregation built a parsonage and added more than 50 persons to its membership roll last year.

Rev. J. B. King writes as follows: "We are in our new home at Bay Springs, Miss., having been appointed to serve the Bay Springs and Montrose charge. Everything is starting off encouragingly. The people are kind and thoughtful. We are expecting a great year."

Rev. W. L. Graves reports that he has been given a royal welcome at Montpelier, Miss., and that his family, who resided in Florida last year, will soon be with him there. We are glad to see Brother Graves back in Mississippi, with the pastoral harness again on.

We regret to be informed that Rev. W. J. Wood, pastor of the Winona (Miss.) Circuit, has been ill for some days, and that there has been other sickness in his family. He has, however, moved to Winona and expects to take up the work in his new charge at an early date.

The Ladies' Aid Society of First Church, Baton Rouge, recently served a banquet to the Board of Stewards of that prosperous congregation, 22 of the stewards and 5 visiting brethren being present. An organization for the year was effected. Mr. W. S. Holmes being chosen Chairman; Mr. E. F. Fleming, Jr., Treasurer, and Mr. A. T. McGuire, Secretary.

Why not put the Advocate into the Methodist homes of your community, and let it re-enforce you in your work, brother pastor? It is our purpose to try to make it strike for the cause of Christ and Methodism with a still more steady and vigorous stroke during the year 1916.

Rev. J. C. Ellis, of Florence, Miss., states that he reached his field of work on December 8, and that he was given a hearty welcome. He wants to know who the readers of the Advocate are in his charge, and sends us his best wishes for the paper during the coming year. Thank you, Brother Ellis.

Rev. Robert Randle, of Harrisonburg, La., has our thanks for a club of six subscriptions from his charge, seasoned with good wishes. He is one of the worthy veterans of the Louisiana Conference, whom to know is to love and honor. May the blessings of the Heavenly Father continue to rest upon his labors!

Rev. L. P. Watson, of West Point, Miss., under date of December 7, wrote us that Rev. W. W. Mitchell, the presiding elder of the Durant District, was sick in bed with la grippe, his removal to his new home on that account being delayed. We trust that Brother Mitchell's illness will be of brief duration.

Rev. C. M. Morris, the new pastor of Epworth Church, New Orleans, was early on the field and has not waited to begin an active campaign in the interest of the work committed to his hands. Already he has received 11 new members, and there has been a noticeable increase in the attendance upon public worship.

The New Orleans Methodist Preachers' Association elected the following officers for the ensuing Conference year: Rev. W. W. Holmes, President; Rev. R. M. Brown Vice President; Rev. A. J. Gearheard, Secretary and Treasurer. Miss Kate Ingram was made Visiting Methodist Missionary to the Charity Hospital.

Dr. O. E. Goddard, pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, of Galveston, Texas, sends us a copy of the Bulletin issued by his congregation for Sunday, December 12. His pulpit was filled that evening by Bishop W. P. Thirkield, of New Orleans, whose coming was announced in the Bulletin, a most complimentary reference being made to him and his work.

We received a few days since a wedding invitation which reads as follows: "Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Lawson request your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Miss Robbie Dell Lawson, to Mr. George L. Smith, on Wednesday evening, Dec. 15, 1915, at 5:30 o'clock. At home, Arkabutla, Miss." We extend congratulations, and wish the bride and groom much happiness.

The Centennial of the Third Session of the Mississippi Conference, which was held at Adams Church in the year 1815, was scheduled to be celebrated on Sunday, December 12. The speakers announced for the occasion were Dr. I. W. Cooper and Dr. A. F. Watkins. We trust that some one who was present will give us some account of the day and its exercises. This was an event of more than ordinary interest.

Rev. W. J. Ferguson, of Mount Olive, Miss., writes: "We have a most delightful charge. Our people are among the best. They have received us for our second year with open arms. We miss dear Father Caldwell but we know where to find him." We are grateful to Brother Ferguson for an invitation to visit him and go hunting, and we sincerely wish that the way were open for us to accept it. But, alas! such pleasures are not for the editors of Conference organs.

The coming of Rev. J. A. Alford to the pastorate of the Second Methodist Church of this city, from local reports, presages prosperity for that congregation. Brother Alford is a young man of fine appearance and promising gifts, and his people have been much impressed with his modesty and consecration. With so worthy a flock and so energetic and faithful a leader working in unison, the interests of Methodism will doubtless be taken good care of in that portion of the Crescent City.

Rev. A. H. Parker, our new pastor at Coushatta, La., has made an excellent impression. The Coushatta Citizen of last week says: "Rev. A. H. Parker preached his first sermon at this place on last Sunday morning. All present were highly pleased, and went away predicting success for the Methodist Church here during the year 1916." Reference is also made by The Citizen to a fine Sunday school rally at Coushatta, which is said to have reflected much credit upon the workers who had it in charge.

We take the following from last week's issue of The Leland (Miss.) Enterprise: "Rev. E. H. Cunninghant and family arrived in Leland on Wednesday afternoon. They were met at the train by a committee who escorted them to the parsonage, where everything had been placed in readiness for them. A couple of welcome addresses were made, and they were shown all possible kindness." Leland has been made a station appointment, and will be given the whole of Brother Cunningham's time.

Rev. George Fox has entered hopefully upon his work at Waterproof, La., for the third year, and the people have not been slow to express their gratification that he has been returned to them. Referring to his parishioners, Brother Fox modestly says: "They possess two of the characteristics of the elect of God—kindness and long-suffering." His letter brought us an order for the Advocate to be sent to a certain home as a Christmas present. The wonder is that more such gifts are not made at this happy season.

Read the appealing statement of the Board of Missions on Page 16. It deals with a matter of vast importance. Every congregation in Southern Methodism should observe the Week of Prayer, as is suggested.

Dr. A. F. Watkins, President of Millsaps College, writes: "Our work in the College is progressing favorably, though a good many of the students have been sick with la grippe. We are just about to close up the work before the Christmas holidays and we expect to dismiss our students on December 22."

Rev. W. H. Saunders says that he is pleased to continue at Fernwood, Miss., for another year. This is not surprising, for his membership embraces some of the most excellent people in Mississippi. Since the Annual Conference at Laurel, Brother Saunders has been visited by Rev. J. L. Neill and Dr. I. W. Cooper. He predicts that Brother Neill will show himself to be the right man in the right place in the Sunday school work, and he reports that Dr. Cooper gave the Fernwood congregation a delightful sermon on a recent Sabbath evening.

Rev. J. F. Dring, of Ringgold, La., writes: "We reached our appointment on Dec. 2, and found everything in good shape. We have a nice, comfortable home. I have six appointments, and up to the present (Dec. 14) I have been to four of them. I found a good church, well kept, at every place. The spiritual conditions of the congregations seemed to be somewhat above the average. I have also been gratified to find Sunday schools at five of my appointments. I am trusting God for a great year in the field that he has given me. Pray for me."

Bishop J. C. Hartzell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has been spending some days in New Orleans as the guest of Bishop Thirkield. Last Sunday morning, he preached to a large audience in the St. Charles Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, which he served as pastor from 1870 to 1873. There was an affecting incident after the service was concluded, when Miss Myrtle Moppert, of New Orleans, informed Bishop Hartzell that for several years, during his stay in Africa as a missionary, she had carried flowers regularly to the graves of his two children who sleep in Lafayette Cemetery, this city.

From a letter from Dr. F. S. Parker, of Nashville, Tenn., we take the following: "I enjoy the Advocate greatly and I trust that the resolutions of the Conferences may materialize in the form of a good increase of circulation. Whatever may be the ultimate form of Church journalism, at present the weekly Conference organ is practically the only thing we have as an educator and bringer of conviction to our people. I wish that the preachers could see this accordingly." We appreciate these words from our gifted Epworth League Secretary. In this connection, we will state that Dr. Parker has decided to give his entire time to the League work, retiring from his professorship at Southern Methodist University. Happily, there seems to be an increasing interest in the Epworth League throughout the Connection.

A STRONG UTTERANCE FROM A HIGH SOURCE.

The Commoner, William J. Bryan's paper, comes regularly to our table and we read it with much interest. The following impressive utterance, which we take pleasure in reproducing, appeared in the November issue:

"The Measure of Duty.

"To Students:

"The student should ever keep in mind the Bible measure of duty—much is required of those to whom much is given. The purpose of a college course is to enlarge one's capacity for labor, and when that purpose is accomplished and the graduate goes forth, equipped for large tasks, he can offer no excuse if he fails to come up to the requirements of his generation. Just now the civic demands upon a man are greater than ever before, and the college-bred man, instead of attempting to ride upon the backs of others, should, out of gratitude for what he has received, take his place in the ranks and, inspired by a sense of kinship with the masses, put his broader shoulders under heavier loads. By giving largely he will acquire the right to enjoy largely and learn that happiness, like greatness, is measured by service.

"W. J. BRYAN."

AMANDA COKER, the wife of H. M. Atwood, was born at Quitman, Clark County, Miss., on Sept. 4, 1858. She was the third child of G. W. and Rhoda Coker. When but a girl of 15, Sister Atwood was brightly converted at old Holland Camp Ground, in Jasper County, near Rose Hill, Miss. Immediately after her conversion she united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and remained within its pales until her beautiful life was transferred to the Church Triumphant. At Pachuta, Miss., on Wednesday night, Aug. 11, 1915, death came. Her "going" was unexpected, but her life was such that she was ready to meet her Savior at any time. Her life was a living ministry. No hour was too late nor any circumstances too difficult for her to make all "arrangements" for the comfortable entertainment of the preacher, whether he was pastor or some other ambassador of Christ.

She was blessed with three children: Donie, Catherine, and De Witt Talmage, who, with their father, yet remain to mourn their loss. Little Nolan Harmon preceded her to the heavenly home. It may be truly said of her:

"'Home, home!' she cried exulting;
'Death is a glorious birth!'
Then gently slipped her shackles,
And fled away from earth.

The angels caught her softly,
And bore her up the steep;
The golden gates closed behind her,
And we remain to weep."

The writer assisted her pastor, Brother A. B. Barry, in conducting her funeral, after which, in the presence of her sorrowing loved ones and bereaved friends, we laid her body to rest in the cemetery at Pachuta, Miss. A loving companion, a fond mother, and a Christian friend awaits us in "the Father's house." May we meet her there!

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

It is with a sense of deep sorrow that the Woman's Missionary Society of Capitol Street Methodist Church, Jackson, Miss., to-day brings this tribute to the memory of one of its most faithful members, Mrs. D. W. Reed, whose death on the morning of November 5, 1915, brought sadness to the hearts of a host of friends, who feel in her going away a personal bereavement.

She was a woman of the loveliest and most gracious personality. Her standards were high, her purposes were pure, and her whole life manifested the beauty and strength of a noble Christian womanhood. The influence of such a life can not end, but lives on forever.

"Servant of God, well done;
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy."

The loss of this true friend to the Missionary Society, which she loved and served so faithfully, is inexpressible, and is a providence peculiarly sad; therefore be it

Resolved, 1. That we extend our deepest sympathy to the sorrowing family, praying always that the Holy Comforter may continually abide with them and sustain them.

2. That these resolutions be placed on the records of our Society, that a copy be sent the bereaved family, and that a copy be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. A. Allen, Mrs. V. C. Lofiin, Mrs. J. C. Wilkerson, Committee.

A NOTE OF THANKS.

I have wanted ere this to thank, through your paper, each and every member of the Louisiana Annual Conference who so kindly sent the much-needed help to baby and me. We have both been really ill, and oh! so lonely and heart-sick since dear Bertie was called home.

I ask for prayers for health and strength to bear our great loss—to be able to raise little Carroll Lee to be what his dear father wished him to be.

His last words to the little fellow were: "Daddie wants you to be the best man that ever lived."

Again thanking the kind friends who have helped us, I am,

Your sister in Christ,
(Mrs.) A. W. HOFFPAUIR.

A LETTER FROM COLUMBIA.

Dear Mr. Editor: Our new pastor, Dr. W. H. Huntley, arrived in Columbia one day last week, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Warren, and his son, Gordon. Brother Huntley preached for us yesterday for the first time as a pastor, and both of his sermons were edifying, purely Scriptural, and convincing. He made a good impression that will last. Our Baptist brethren, led by their pastor, Rev. Zeno Wall, worshiped with us at the night service, and so did our Presbyterian friends.

By the way, Mr. Editor, it was our pleasure last week to have in our church three Sunday school big guns: Rev. Fred Lore, State Secretary, Rev. J. L. Neill, Field Secretary of the Mississippi Conference, and Rev. Wm. A. Brown, Missionary Superintendent of the Sunday Schools for North America.

It was a treat, indeed, to listen to Brother Brown. He is at home on the platform and knows how to carry his arguments to the hearts of his hearers. Speaking of the biggest business in the world, he remarked that it was "the making of a generation of folks." It was a pity that his audience was not as large as it could have been. Sunday school teachers and workers certainly missed a good opportunity of learning about the biggest business in the world.

This reminds me of a conversation I heard a few months ago on the streets of our town between two little girls. One of them said to the other: "My Sunday school teacher has always some pretty stories to tell us on Sunday, but she never mentions anything about dancing."

"Of course not," replied the other girl. "Some day she may be compelled to ask for a John's head."

Since that time I have found out that these two girls were members of different Sunday schools.

It is a great mistake to think for a moment that children are not watching their elders. They do it not only on Sunday, but daily.

About watching, I think Columbia is fortunate in having two ministerial live wires: Rev. Zeno Wall, pastor of the Baptist Church, and Rev. R. A. Bolling, pastor of the Presbyterian Church. What these two brethren of the ministry don't see about the unrighteousness of our citizenship is not worth mentioning—and neither one wears eye-glasses.

A METHODIST.
Columbia, Miss., Dec. 13, 1915.

There is but one path back to God when one has done wrong—that of penitence. For the sinner who will not repent there is no hope.

It is a remarkable fact that, despite the European war, the issues of the American and Foreign Bible Society have increased both in the United States and in foreign lands; and there are many evidences of the quickened desire for the Bible throughout the world.

YOU WILL WRITE A LETTER LIKE THIS.

I wish that I knew which one of the thousands of letters I receive would have the most weight with you, my friend. I can't quote any of them here, but I am going to ask you to read these carefully and then give me a chance to renew your health and make you write me one very much like them.

[illegible] Burnett Street,
Savannah, Ga., [illegible], 1910.

Mr. N. F. Shivar Spring, S. C.

Dear Sir: As I am awaiting [illegible], 1909 I was suffering with [illegible] stomach and liver disorders and all the train of horrifying [illegible] for [illegible] months. I had lived on milk [illegible] eggs, shredded wheat, a very [illegible] diet for an active working man, [illegible] course, from disease and starvation. I was in a very low state of [illegible] vitality and general debility. I started ten gallons of your Mineral Water, which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in [illegible] months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use it's water in as large quantities as possible, for its [illegible] are so happily blended [illegible] that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

A. [illegible] AVANT, M.D.

Leola, S. C., March 2, 1911.

I have tested your Shivar Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic and gastric, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has a [illegible] in each case, and I believe [illegible] continuously for a reasonable time will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in their work of [illegible] noxious matter.

C. A. CROSBY, M.D.

These are not selected cases, nor are the results unusual. I receive thousands like them from physicians, ministers, lawyers, merchants, farmers, manufacturers, and every conceivable profession. I want the satisfaction of receiving such a letter from you. No matter what your complaint may be, dyspepsia, indigestion, nervous headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, or any chronic ailment that has not responded to drugs, I invite you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocketbook. If the water fails to benefit you simply say so, return the empty demijohns and I will promptly and willingly refund your money—every cent. Sign below:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17B, Shelton, S. C.

DR. HENDERSON APPRECIATED.

Dr. H. G. Henderson returned the first of the week from the meeting of the Annual Conference, but, much to the regret of his many friends here, he has come back only to "move on." At the final meeting of the Board of Stewards of the church he had served as pastor for the past year, a resolution was unanimously passed requesting the presiding Bishop at New Albany to return him to the Sardis pastorate. Dr. Henderson has been faithful in the performance of his duties, looking well after the interests of all lines of Church work, and the church has done well under his ministry. It was therefore a surprise to the congregation that he was not re-assigned to Sardis, but was placed in another town—Holly Springs. * * * Dr. and Mrs. Henderson will carry with them to their new home the prayers and best wishes of their Sardis friends, all of whom will remember them most kindly and always be glad to welcome them back. Dr. Henderson says that his successor, Rev. J. C. Park, recently of Tupelo, is a fine man and also a fine preacher, and he will receive a cordial welcome to our town.—South Reporter (Sardis, Miss.).

MISSIONARY BRIEFS.

A missionary in the Philippines reports the cure of twenty-three lepers. He says that for two years these lepers have been free from any signs of the return of the disease.

More than 30,000,000 immigrants have come to the United States since the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Every time the clock marks one minute two immigrants enter the United States, all the year round.

It is claimed that one Chinese out of every twenty-five in California is a Protestant.

Illiteracy among the Japanese immigrants is only 22 per cent.

Mission work in America is carried on in thirty-one different tongues.

A medical missionary in China says: "In this territory there live approximately 1,000,000 people, 500,000 of whom, on account of location, must depend on me for medical aid. There is no other doctor within reach of them."

An old Chinese woman was asked how many there were in her family. "Before I became a Christian," she replied, "there was only one. Now there are two—Christ and I."

CHILLS

and fever, though not immediately dangerous, are extremely unpleasant and if neglected may prove fatal. If you are troubled with dumb or shaking chills and fever, malaria, liver trouble or jaundice why not safeguard yourself against such discomforts and avoid a possible fatality? Use only that which has been tried and proclaimed efficient by others. Plantation Chill & Fever Tonic and Liver Regulator is a well known reliable remedy, harmless but effective. Contains no calomel, arsenic or other dangerous drugs. For sale by best dealers everywhere, price 50c. Manufactured by The Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

A WORD FROM BROTHER NEILL.

Dear Brother Meek: Jackson will be my headquarters for the year, and I would be glad if you would, in some way, call attention to the fact that that city will be my permanent address.

Since Conference I have visited Columbia, Fernwood, Union, Newton, and Brookhaven. To-night I meet with the Workers' Council at Capitol Street Church, Jackson, and in the morning I will leave for the Seashore District Stewards' meeting at Gulfport. Everywhere I have received a hearty welcome, and the prospect looks bright for quite an increase in missionary interest in our Sunday schools.

The immensity and importance of this work grows on me all of the time, and though I was very much opposed to giving up the pastorate, I trust that I may do something that will really count for the Kingdom in this field.

Sincerely yours,
J. L. NEILL.

There are said to be 1782 Chinese in the city of Chicago.

AN INTERESTING OCCASION.

Dear Mr. Editor: I had the pleasure of attending the golden wedding of Brother N. W. Gatlin and wife who reside at Johnston Station, Miss. There was one thing connected with the occasion that was romantic: three or four who were present yesterday, Dec. 14, attended their wedding fifty years ago. They had a sumptuous dinner, which was enjoyed by all. They talked of the long ago, in a happy mood. It is rare that such an occasion comes to a man and wife in this life. Brother Gatlin spoke in a pathetic tone of the long path over which they had trodden side by side in sunshine, then under the clouds and through the valleys of deepest sorrow. He stated that they had had their seasons of joy and sadness, but amid it all they could say with that man of God, Samuel, who led his army on to ultimate victory, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." That they be permitted to see many more wedding anniversaries is the earnest wish of their many friends.

Letters From Our Friends.

We like to publish letters from our friends because they invariably open the avenue to relief to those suffering from rheumatism and constipation. Mr. W. R. Mosby, Nashville, Tenn., is very enthusiastic over the merits of RENWAR. He writes: "I take great pleasure in endorsing your Renwar for constipation. Have found it very beneficial to me and wish to say that it is all that you claim for it. It is the only remedy I have found that will cure constipation." If you suffer with rheumatism or constipation get a 50c bottle of RENWAR of your druggist. Money refunded if it fails to relieve. Prepared and guaranteed by Warner Drug Co., Nashville, Tenn.—Adv.

God would no more disappoint faith than he would deny himself.—McIntosh.

The leader of the temperance reform movement in Japan was converted in a mission in California.

"Never accept failure as a final result," was a favorite saying of the Duke of Wellington.

EXPERIENCE IS THE BEST TEACHER OF ALL.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating." One is far more apt to believe a man who tells what he has done, than a man who tells what he could do. So it is with medicine. The real proof of the merits of Dr. Miles' Restorative Remedies lies in the fact that they have been used beneficially for over a quarter of a century and thousands have actually testified to benefits they have received.

We know that Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve all aches and pains because thousands have found this to be proven by actual experience.

The Rev. W. D. Barger, of Hagerstown, Md., has stated.

"Voluntarily and unsolicited I wish to bear witness to the high character of Dr. Miles' Restorative Remedies. To me personally they have been a great blessing, especially the Nervine, the Anti-Pain Pills and the Liver Pills. In case of headache or pain of any kind they act like a charm. I have given many of them to the suffering and the results have always proven gratifying."

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have no unpleasant after-effect. They are not constipating. They do not contain any of the dangerous habit forming drugs. We do not claim that they remove the cause of the pain, but we do claim that they bring quick relief in a harmless manner.

They are sold by all druggists at 25c a box, containing 25 doses. If not satisfactory your money will be cheerfully refunded.

Cured His RUPTURE.

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. The New Way I found and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There is no pain, no lost time. I have nothing to sell, but will send full information about how you may heal yourself quickly and without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. Greenwood, La.

After having wrought at Zwolle for four years, I am now at Greenwood. I had a great time at Zwolle and hope also to have a great time here. The people received us heartily. We are comfortably situated, and have had a fine "pounding" already. This kind of "knocking" is always acceptable. Among the good things we received, there were about 12 or 15 jars of preserved fruit, unusually good to the taste. I have not yet been the rounds, but so far the outlook is fine.

Our new presiding elder, Rev. C. D. Atkinson, was here last Sunday and Monday (Dec. 12 and 13), and made a fine impression. He stated that Greenwood made a fine impression upon him also. At the quarterly meeting an investigating committee of eight was appointed to ascertain facts as to the cost, plans, and location for a new church building. Our present quarters are crowded and the new building is universally conceded to be a necessity; and as soon as the financial depression is relieved it will be a certainty.

I will also work for the Advocate, and hope to send in a list of subscriptions soon.—J. C. Rousseaux.

Zwolle, La.

Dear Dr. Meek: We reached our new appointment Saturday, after the adjournment of our Annual Conference and received a royal welcome at the hands of a most excellent people. Groceries were sent in for us and some useful articles were placed in the parsonage for our comfort, and we are well situated. Brother Rousseaux had provided a supply of wood and did a brother's part in other ways also. He wrought well in this field. On the fourth and first Sundays good congregations greeted us, but on Friday I stuck a nail in my right foot and have not been able to walk since, so I could not go to church yesterday. The congregation was holding a service, but just in the midst of it a fire alarm was given; so the congregation left at once and were soon at the scene of the fire, which had consumed the home (and entire contents) of two of the members of our Church. We have a splendid Sunday schol and an excellent Woman's Missionary Society. The stewards are making an "every-member canvass." All indications point toward a good year. We are planning, working, and praying for a most successful year, and we believe we are going to have it. We wish you and the others of the Advocate force a merry Christmas. May our God bless you in all things!—T. D. Lipscomb, P. C.

Washington, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am comfortably settled in the historic village of Washington, having arrived here on Tuesday, Nov. 30, just twenty-four hours after Bishop Atkins had assigned me to this post of duty. Since starting to Conference I had traveled approximately 275 miles. During the past week I have read "Methodism in Mississippi" by Rev. J. G. Jones and find this a small journey when compared with the journeys of our early pioneers, as, for instance, Bishop Roberts' trip from Western Pennsylvania to South Mississippi, or Rev. Tobias Gibson's solitary voyage down the Cumberland, Ohio, and Mississippi Rivers. Incidentally, let me say that the first church organized in Mississippi was not far from where the church in Washington now stands. Truly this is historic ground!

I preached twice last Sunday to attentive congregations, here and at Crowfield. The people have been uniformly kind and considerate of my welfare. I am trying to get acquainted with my people before the arrival of the holidays, in order to begin active, effective work the first of the coming year. The work here is in splendid shape as a result of the faithful efforts of its former pastor, Rev. J. H. Jolly, now a student in the Candler School of Theology. He is a deservedly popular young man. Although this is my first year in the Conference on trial, during the latter part of the past year, I served the Oak Street Church, Biloxi. This is a pleasant, as well as a needy field, and one of great possibilities. The success of our work there is due almost wholly to the Wesley House, in connection with which our church work is carried on. I doubt whether there is any institution in the State doing greater good than it is. The membership of the Church is only 61, but the enrollment of the Sunday school is about three times that many. The prayer-meetings on Tuesday nights, in point of attendance and interest, will compare favorably with those in many of our larger churches. The chapel is packed on Sunday nights with people eager to hear the preaching of the gospel. It was indeed a privilege to labor there.—J. Buford Cain.

Ida, La.

Dear Advocate: We arrived at Ida on Nov. 3. Brother T. J. Means met us at the train, took us in charge, and conducted us to his home, where we spent the night very pleasantly with him and his splendid family. The next morning we went to the parsonage and found it newly painted, heated, and lighted by gas, and furnished almost entirely anew. About three o'clock that afternoon the good ladies began coming in and continued until sixteen were present. They brought everything good to eat that could be thought of—fresh pork and potatoes, meal and flour, sugar and coffee, rice, and all kinds of fruits, and other things that space will not allow to be mentioned. I have been busy with the work of getting acquainted with the people. I had a very profitable service out at old Munerylon's Chapel, where I had the pleasure of preaching to some of Bishop Hoss' kinfolks. On Thursday last I went to Houston, and hurriedly met as many of the people as I could that day. I was very cordially received by them. The next morning I went to Gilliam. Brother R. T. Douglas was the first man I met. He was busy having the church repainted. I took dinner with him and in the afternoon I hurriedly visited nearly everybody there. I then caught an automobile and ran into Belcher about sundown. I found they had been looking for me there for several hours. I met there three sons of Methodist preachers; so you know I felt at home. My entertainment had been provided for by Brother J. M. Brown, Jr.; so I was soon in the hands of Prof. H. W. White, a son of Rev. H. O. White (deceased), a distinguished member of the Louisiana Conference. There we talked over everything hurriedly from the gubernatorial campaign to the setting up of a high school and the building of a church. I met many splendid men, one of whom I must not fail to mention, Dr. J. E. Henderson, a son of the late Rev. W. F. Henderson, who showed me many kindnesses. I also met the Rev. Mr. Taylor, the esteemed pastor of the Presbyterian Church, who so kindly permits us to hold services in his church, as we have no church building at Belcher. Nor have we any at Hosston. At Hosston, the Baptists generously allow us to use their church for our services. I am optimistic as to the outlook for a good year on this circuit. I hope to build two churches. I find the people anxious for the work of building to start. I love to work, and have found plenty to do.—J. C. Price.

A WEEK

The first of the 52, should be spent in undergirding the whole year. Eight days is not too much to spend in adjusting lives and Churches and policies to the hour, the world, the Kingdom and to God. Can ye not watch with him one little week?

OF PRAYER

BY the whole Church, from sea to sea.
WITH every pastor leading every congregation in intercession.
FOR the nation, the Church, the fields, the missionaries, the revival, the laymen, the young people, and always for peace.

AND SELF-DENIAL

Without which prayer is fruitless.
That the prayers already answered may be turned into thanksgiving.
That obedience may prove our sincerity.
That the cause we pray for may be furthered.
That we may have fellowship with Him who, though He was rich, yet for our sakes became poor.

The Call of the Hour--

the most cruel and tragic hour of history. "Interest in prayer is world wide. It is manifest in battle trenches: in awakened nations: in full cathedrals and churches in European countries: in repeated calls and appeals by Churches and leaders throughout the world. Never has there been such a widespread need of superhuman help: such challenges to Christians to undertake deeds requiring divine co-operation: such a manifest desire to discover the secret of God's power."

Voiced by the Board of Missions

Facing the superhuman task of the Church and the tragic needs of the world, the Board of Missions asks for a week of intercession, January 2-9, 1916. The work of the Board cannot be done by human power. "Ask of me." "pray ye the Lord of the harvest," "tarry ye at Jerusalem till ye be endued with power" are the freshest and latest voices of experience at home, abroad, everywhere. "An alarming weakness among Christians is that we are producing Christian activities faster than we are producing Christian experience and Christian faith: that the discipline of our souls and the deepening of our acquaintance with God are not proving sufficiently thorough to enable us to meet the opportunity and responsibility of our generation." (Mott.)

Emergency Offering

The free-will offering of self-denial is to be given to swell the Emergency Fund. This fund was ordered by the Board in view of the unusual emergency the war brought on. We have already had nearly five hundred gifts to this fund, varying from $1 to $2,000 each. Many of these represent real self-denial. They are still coming. THE OFFERINGS OF THE WEEK WILL GO TO SWELL THIS FUND.

One Unanimous, Church-wide, Self-Denial Offering Will Lift Us Over the Bar.

Three Ways To Do It

1. Give One Day. Consecrate the labor and income of one day to this cause. Let those not regularly employed find some task for one day and earn their offering. Thus each will pray not only with the lips and heart, but with the hands also.
2. Envelopes may be circulated and every one allowed to deposit the results of self-denial during the week and hand in the envelopes at the close.
3. A free-will offering may be taken at one or more services where the other methods are not used, or in connection with them.

PURPOSE

1. To meet immediate needs that have had to wait. To fill up the gaps made by the war decrease last year in both the Home and Foreign Departments.
2. To maintain the work and prevent hurtful retrenchment when there are such unprecedented calls for advance.
3. To prevent delay in the work and to save interest by the furnishing of cash in the beginning of the year.
4. To clear the decks, remove the limitations on income, and make ready for the big advance just ahead of us. We were compelled to cut appropriations fifty thousand dollars. There it must remain until we increase the income and clear the way.

At all events the people should be given an opportunity to contribute a free-will offering

If the warring nations can discard luxuries and practice gladly the most rigid economies, even to the saving of the crusts, for the love of the flag, what should we not do for the love of Christ?

Would it require serious self-denial for 2,000,000 Methodists to give $50,000 as a Victory Fund?

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1915. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher

THE NEW YEAR COMES.

Margaret Scott Hall.

We watch the old year go. Untouched by sin
The New Year comes. The bells chime long and loud,
The whistles blow; cheers from the waiting crowd
Ring on the midnight air to swell the din.

Rejoicing for the New Year to begin;
And slow, with burden of men's failures bowed,
The old year yields its place. As monarch proud
We welcome now the happy New Year in.

Let us resolve to make a better start.
The bright New Year, unsullied, clean and pure
Will serve us well if we but do our part
Toward God and man and faithfully endure;
Working for right—though oft we strive in vain,
Let us resolve—God helping—to attain.

—Western Christian Advocate.

THE OLD YEAR AND THE NEW.

The poets have always, from the very beginning of human language, personified the old year and the new, bidding the one farewell and greeting the other with the tokens of a joyful welcome. The whole world has finally adopted the habits of thought and speech taught by the poets, and everybody has an apostrophe for the Old Year, saying good-by to it at the midnight hour, as if it were really a human being with supernatural qualities; and everybody has an apostrophe for the New Year, hailing it with all the tokens of welcome with which a household greets the newborn child. And this humanizing of the years as they come and go is associated with the deepest facts of life. It is not sentiment alone. It belongs alike to the preacher and the poet; and the world's thought and speech have grown out of the vineyards of moral character, and not alone from the gardens of song. The years are personified by their contact with humanity. Time is so closely allied with the deeds of men, whether good or evil, that the years themselves come to possess, to the consciences as well as to the imagination, a genuine personal character. The Old Year, to every human being, becomes a counterpart of himself, being wrinkled and worn into old age by the weight of his own sorrows and burdens, and bowed down with remorse by the weight of his own unworthiness. The Old Year is diseased by the contagion of human guilt, and is passing away to judgment with all the years that are gone; the New Year is at the door clad in all the innocence of childhood, typical of unwritten pages in the book of life, typical of the untrodden paths of the future, wherein each human being may walk as he will; by the grace of God walking uprightly, and with all good-will toward men; or, by the wiles of the devil, floundering in the mudpaths of sin and shame.

Yes, the years are indeed, by contact with humanity, creatures of character, reflecting the deeds of the human family, and becoming at last veritable beings to the world's conscience; the Old Year a composite nature, embodying the sum of all the lives that have been lived through their twelve months of mingled joy and sorrow, of good and evil; the New Year a composite nature, embodying all the hopes of the children of men, with all their good resolutions for the future. And so the years, as they come and go, seem to speak to the world, in response to the farewells and the greetings. With Helen Hunt Jackson, we can hear the Old Year proclaiming his promise to mankind, through the ministry of the New Year:

"The Old Year's heart, its hopes laid down
As in a grave, but trusting, said:
'The blossoms of the New Year's crown
Bloom from the ashes of the dead!'
The Old Year's heart was full of greed,
With selfishness it longed and ached,
And cried: 'I have not half I need.
My thirst is bitter and unslaked.'
But to the New Year's generous hand
All gifts in plenty shall return;
True-loving, it shall understand;
By all my failures it shall learn.
I have been reckless; it shall be
Quiet and calm and pure of life.
I was a slave; it shall go free,
And find sweet peace, where I leave strife!'"

The Old Year, now passing away, has been indeed an eventful one, and if time grows old by the measure of its burdens, this dying year should wear on its brow the frosts of a thousand winters. If the year borrows personality from the human beings that live within its borders, and if it therefore borrows responsibility from the associated deeds of men, then the Old Year now about to die has upon its heart, as received at the hands of whatsoever people or governors, the guilt of the greatest war of all the ages! God forgive the dying Old Year, and every human soul that has reddened the garments of time with the blood of the nations! Hundreds of thousands have died on the battlefield, and hundreds of thousands more have died of battle wounds or of disease in myriads of hospitals; and, saddest of all, women and children, the innocent victims of a war they could not prevent and which, with all their patriotic fervor, they can not comprehend, have died of sorrow or of hunger, calling upon God for the return of peace, and for the calm and holy fellowship of home!

But the Old Year is too sad to look upon, when his war-face is turned toward us! The Old Year has also his countenance of peace and love. God crowneth all the years with his goodness; and every child of the Heavenly Father can recall a thousand tokens of divine grace. The fields have brought forth abundantly, and the orchards and vineyards of the world have smiled plenty upon the nations. Joy is still joy, however wide the empire of pain and sorrow; and joy has the promise of final victory, with the assurance that sorrow and sadness shall flee away! Even as the sun forever shines above the angry storm-cloud; even as the stars forever smile through the darkest night, so God forever reigns above the passing years! And all things work together for good! The greater the war, the longer and the deeper, let us believe, shall be the sweet river of peace, soon to flow athwart every battlefield, refreshing all the waste places of the earth and healing all the wounds of envy and confusion.

Let us therefore turn to the New Year with all the buoyancy of Christian hope. Welcome, thou new-born child of eternity! Bring to us in thy fingers the olive branch of peace! Smite upon the wrath of kings and rulers! Let music be the herald of thine advent; the gentle, pastoral music of the field and the garden, the lofty anthems of the sanctuary. Come into the world, O bright New Year, as the messenger of the Prince of Peace, re-echoing throughout the earth the Bethlehem song of the angels; and attune even the brazen pipes of war into the old prophetic melody: "Glory to God in the highest; and on earth peace!"—Methodist Recorder.

A DAY OF OPPORTUNITY.

The New Year suggests the possibility of a new beginning, and therein lies its great usefulness. It is true that a man may begin to do better on the first day of July quite as well as on the first day of January, but the latter date is more likely to suggest an opportunity, and it comes to most men with a special invitation and call to better things. A way upward may be found anywhere along life's road, but perhaps it can be found just a little easier to-day than on most other days of the year. It would be too bad to miss it, would it not? There are a number of things in our lives that ought to be better than they are. And there will never come a better day for beginning the improvement than to-day. Perhaps what is needed most in our life is not so much an improvement as it is a right-about-face movement. And if that is the case then there will never come a much better day for making that than to-day. Surely this is a great day of opportunity.—Christian Guardian.

KNOWING JESUS.

"Hast thou known me, Philip?" John 14:9.

In all ages God has been unrecognized. He made man partly animal and partly spirit, a wedlock of two natures; and the mortal veils the physical sight, so that it can not see God. The Spirit can apprehend God the Father of the Spirit; and when the spirit of man is set free, unveiled, in death, it will see God face to face.

Before the coming of Christ, God revealed himself in various ways to a chosen few. The word of the Lord came to Abraham in a vision, and to others in the same way. Again God revealed himself to Abraham when he made with him the blood covenant, as a "burning lamp," a "flaming torch." To Moses he came in the "burning bush;" and to the children of Israel in the wilderness journeys he was represented by the pillar of cloud and of fire, also by the Shekinah. He appeared to Abraham, to Gideon, and others as "the angel of Jehovah." All these ways of manifestation were insufficient. In the fullness of time he came as a real man, incarnate, in Jesus of Nazareth. "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father" (John 14:9).

Jesus never tried to deceive the people. He never claimed to be any one else; and he carried his credentials. At the annunciation, the birth, his true parentage was attested by Almighty God.

Jesus continually claimed to be the Son of God, equal with the Father, except for the limitations of his humanity. For this claim he was put to death. If he were not God, then he died justly according to the law of his own people. At twelve, in the temple, he said, "Wist ye not I must be about my Father's business?" He accepted the statement of John the Baptist that he was "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

Peter the Great of Russia for nine months labored among the sailors and shipbuilders incognito. If they had known his identity, they would have favored him. So Jesus lived; and now we know that he lived as a man, not of the favored classes. So he set an example of loving service and patient endurance. "The Son of man came, not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many."

Jesus was treated as a man; and when some found out that he was more than man, they wished they had done differently. Jesus taught that we ought to treat all Christians as we would treat Christ. So, living incognito, he taught the human race an object-lesson. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Jesus taught that the kingdom of God is like treasure hidden in a field. God has filled nature with hidden treasures material and truths spiritual. Man's immortal nature is hidden in man's physical being, in his animal mortality. We ought to search for life's hidden values. We should dig up our talents and use them, unwrap our pounds and invest them. If we thus live for the unrecognized Christ in his kingdom on earth, we shall receive a hundredfold in this life and in the world to come life everlasting.—Methodist Recorder.

WISDOM FOR THE NEW MINISTER.

If there is a time when a minister is likely to make a mistake, it is when he is entering upon a new field with full enthusiasm, vigor and good intentions, to do a good work. This is especially true of the young man who has been long enough in the ministry to lose timidity, and not long enough to have large experience. Sometimes mistakes here cause sorrow to him and to the people, and as far as possible it would be well to avoid them. The following from the Brethren Evangelist is good:

"The new pastor ought to realize that he is new. The new pastor ought not to announce a lot of things he is going to do until he is quite certain that he will do them. The new pastor ought to get acquainted with his new work before he undertakes to change things. The new pastor will lose nothing by a hearty appreciation of his predecessor's work. The new pastor ought not to report to his credit the increase in attendance and gifts over the poor showing made while the church was without a pastor. The new pastor ought to take the membership into his confidence and consult them with a willingness, if need be, to make haste slowly. The new pastor ought to make up his mind that he is going to see the best in those with whom he is going to labor. The new pastor ought to know that he is going to be a leader and not a boss. The new pastor ought to feel that what he is counts for more than what he says, and a thousand times more than what he pretends to be."—The Presbyterian (Philadelphia).

THAT CALLING LIST.

We know of a prominent pastor of a city Church who, in anticipation of a change of pastorate, has prepared, in accordance with the instruction of the Discipline, a carefully typewritten list of his membership, arranged by streets and numbers. In addition, he has given the name and address of every member who is absent from the city temporarily, or who has moved. He has also prepared four typewritten lists of the membership, arranged alphabetically and with addresses—one list for the pastor, another for the Sunday school, another for the pastor's aid society, and another for the Epworth League. The man who follows this thoughtful pastor will be put in immediate touch with every member and can with intelligence proceed with his pastoral duties and daily visitation. We call attention to this faithful act on the part of this one pastor because of the beginning of the new Conference year, when hundreds of pastors are launching out into wholly new communities to begin the laborious task of acquainting themselves with their constituency. The Discipline is quite clear in its instructon to pastors in the matter of leaving carefully and accurately prepared lists for their successors, but from personal experience we know it is not always observed. Too often does a pastor leave behind him an incomplete list so mutilated by annotations that the document bears more signs of a puzzle than anght else. Already many of our pastors have tried to follow incomplete and inaccurate guidance with distracting results. Now is the time to begin to build a list that will serve every possible need in the year to come, whether the new pastor be the old or not.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

THE FALSIFICATION OF THE NEWS.

A few Sundays ago a great mass meeting was held in this city to protest against the most terrible crime of the century—the murder of the Armenian race. The theater was filled with many of New York's most influential citizens. On the platform sat distinguished representatives of the Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish religions. Probably never before in New York at a public meeting were more piteous and soul-stirriug things revealed. After the addresses, just as the resolutions were being put, a man in the audience rose and attempted to make a speech. A slight commotion followed and, although the chairman called upon the ushers to desist, he was not heard, and the offending member was put out. It was such an occurrence as might have taken place at any meeting and was of no conceivable importance to anybody but the man removed.

Not so, however, in the opinion of the journalists present to report the meeting. The next morning The World, The Sun, The Herald, and The American featured the commotion and the necessity of putting out one man, and devoted only a fraction of their valuable space to the true report of the meeting and the massacre it was called to consider.

Not many days ago a couple came to one of New York's best-known clergymen to be married. When he found out that both had been divorced, one of them twice before, he refused to perform the ceremony. The New York Sun the next morning conspicuously reported the event, stating that the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, whereas it was actually performed by a justice of the peace. No answer was vouchsafed to Dr. Jefferson's subsequent letter of protest to The Sun.

Two weeks ago a great financier of this city delivered an address on the Peace movement that for eloquence and philosophical insight has not been surpassed during the war, in the opinion of many of those who heard it. It was given over a column and a half of space the next morning in The Times, and, although only eight lines of the speech were devoted to a mere statement that the speaker believed in adequate national defense, The Times announced "Kingsley Urges the United States to Arm Now" as the headline on the first column of its front page.

On Thanksgiving Day the twelve hundred clergymen of Greater New York preached sermons. The Times published the next morning nearly two columns of extracts from them. "Throughout the sermons," said The Times, "there was an almost universal note in favor of military preparedness. The exception was at Broadway Tabernacle, where spiritual and moral preparedness was favored." This last sentence is a mistake. Preparedness of any kind was not mentioned at the Broadway Tabernacle. The sermon was entirely on gratitude. But let that pass. Eleven sermons were quoted in The Times report. Of these eleven, three seemed to urge some sort of military preparedness for the United States. The others opposed preparedness or had nothing to say on the subject. The headline artist of The Times, however, thus summarized the sermons:

Preparedness From Many Pulpits.
Thanksgiving Sermons Justify War for Defense of American Liberty and Ideals.

And this is the way that the foremost papers of America dish up the news to us day after day! —The Independent.

WEEK OF PRAYER AND SELF-DENIAL.

For the third time our General Board of Missions is asking that we observe a week of prayer and self-denial. The time set apart for this Christian exercise is January 2-9, 1916.

The purpose toward which the money thus obtained is to be applied is to meet the emergency that has arisen because of the great European war. This most disastrous war of all history not only has curtailed the income of the Board, but it has also added to the expense of the Board. It is suggested that each person either make a contribution each day, according to the self-denial practiced, or else that the proceeds of one day's labor be given for this emergency fund.

The end toward which prayer is asked is sixfold: 1. Prayer for the home Church. 2. Prayer for the work being done in the mission fields. 3. Prayer for a revival. 4. Prayer for the missionaries. 5. Prayer for the Leagues and the Sunday schools. 6. Prayer for the laymen.

It is much easier for us to practice self-denial than for us to pray. To give expression to a well-worded and comprehensive prayer is an easy thing for some to perform, but to really pray is an exercise of soul that burns up the vital energies of life more than does any other activity of life. This call to prayer is not for the purpose of getting more petitions presented before the Father, in well ordered form, but it is to call the Church to the exercise of that attribute of soul by which intercessory prayer is uttered in tones that are not only heard by the Father, but are of that nature that they are the Spirit's utterances.

Let us of the North Mississippi Conference get into harmony with the spirit of this "Week of Prayer and Self-Denial" and thus reap the benefits that must come from such exercise. Write to Dr. Pinson for programs, leaflets and envelopes.

Fraternally,
J. TILLERY LEWIS,
Conference Missionary Secretary.

WHAT THE MONTHS BRING.

Helen M. Richardson.

January decks the trees
In gems that sparkle bright,
And when the north wind loudly blows
They are a pleasing sight.

In February if the sun
Warms up the willow tree,
Just putting on her furs of gray,
Miss Pussy you may see.

March blusters in a noisy way
To rouse the sleeping flowers;
Then April smiles to coax them forth
And waters them with showers.

In May upon grass carpets green
They dance the livelong day;
In June upon each wayside bush
Bright roses proudly sway.

July's the month when we depart
To mountain and seashore.
August is hot and we are glad
To stay till it is o'er.

September brings us back to school
With faces plump and brown.
October decks the trees in red,
And shakes the ripe nuts down.

When gray November comes we know
Thanksgiving's almost here.
We welcome it although its winds
Are bleak and cold and drear.

And then our Christmas month's the one
We always will remember,
The month of ice and frost and snow—
Our dearly loved December.

REV. HIRAM RICHARDSON CALDWELL.

Hiram Richardson Caldwell was born in Ballard County, Kentucky, on June 22, 1831. (The writer has very limited data of Brother Caldwell's early life.) When a young man he married Miss Susan Ward of Kentucky; from this union there were three children. His wife died about 1870. He was married to Mrs. Mary Robertson of Holly Springs, Miss., on March 31, 1872, with whom he lived happily until his death, which occurred at Mount Olive, Miss., on Nov. 25, 1915. Brother Caldwell joined the Kentucky Conference while a young man. He transferred from the Memphis Conference to the Mississippi Conference (now North Mississippi Conference) in 1871. He transferred to the Mississippi Conference in 1877. Brother Caldwell served the following works in the Mississippi Conferences: Clarksdale, three years; Fasonia, two years; Rolling Fork, two years; Ashland, three years; Holly Springs circuit, two years; Benton circuit, two years; Caseyville, three years; Sharon, three years; Tryus, two years; Gallman, one year; Fannin, three years. At his own request, he was given a superannuate relation in 1896. He then moved to Gallman, Miss., where he remained until 1908, when he removed to Mount Olive, Miss., where he lived until his death.

He leaves a devoted wife (who has toiled with him in the Master's vineyard for nearly 40 years), one son, one step-son and several grandchildren to mourn their loss. He was buried at Mount Olive, Miss., on Nov. 26, 1915. The funeral service was conducted by the writer, assisted by his pastor, Rev. W. J. Ferguson.

Brother Caldwell was a good, forceful preacher. He was a fine pastor, whom the people and all the children loved. He was bright and companionable in disposition; had a high sense of honor and of financial obligations. He would not continue on the effective list when he was not able to do effective work. He paid all his bills promptly and died owing no man anything but love. He had very little patience with those who would not pay their debts. He was systematic and painstaking in his work. There was no compromise in his preaching or pretense in his work. His work was so well done that it abides and bears fruit. He was very helpful to the young preacher, always encouraging, supporting him and giving him that fatherly advice so often needed, yet submitting to the leadership of his pastor and loyal to him at all times. It was under his ministry that this writer was licensed to preach and admitted into the Conference. He has been like a father to me up to the time of his death. He had a bright smile for every one. He was especially thoughtful and attentive to his wife, always giving expression to his affection and appreciation. I visited him much during his last illness. He talked much of dying, but always with anticipation of joy. He said he was ready and sometimes impatient to go. Some mornings, when I would walk into his room, he would say, "Billy, I am getting anxious to go home and be at rest." He died in great peace. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." W. M. WILLIAMS.

VALUE OF THE PRAYER-MEETING.

"I find, ordinarily, the most faithful, consecrated members in the prayer-meeting," says Dr. B. E. Dawson. "They may be few in number and yet have a successful prayer-meeting. Paul and Silas held a prayer-meting in the dungeon at mid-night that was very successful. So, to-day our little prayer-meetings frequently open doors of opportunity to do good, and loose the shackles of sin and sorrow. Every minister should love the prayer-meeting for the help and strength he receives therefrom. When Peter was in prison, the brethren and sisters assembled were praying for him, and before they adjourned Peter was released. The good angel led him out back to light and liberty. The faithful few praying for their pastor are very strengthening and helpful. He may be in the dark dungeon of doubt, discouragement, or despair, but their prayers will surely send the good angel to lead him into the light. He may have dangerous places to pass, in the way of church troubles, financial embarrassments, but the angel will put the guard to sleep and the gates will open at his approach. Every pastor needs these prayers to lift him upwards and urge him forward."—The Presbyterian.

"BILLY" SUNDAY AND HIS HYMNS.

By W. C. Poole.

Whatever criticism may be made of Mr. Sunday's use of slang by orthodox grammarians, his favorite hymns cannot fail to please the most critical. A study of the three hundred and forty hymns in the book used in his campaigns will show a larger per cent of old-fashioned orthodox prayer-meeting hymns than perhaps any other song book recently issued. Of course, it contains a sufficient number of entirely new songs, but the large number of three hundred and forty hymns in one book gives an opportunity to place an extra large number of the old standard hymns in the collection, Great Revival Hymns No. 2.

"At the Cross," "Glorious Fountain," "Happy Day," "Come, Ye Sinners," "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone?" and all of their kindred are there. In addition to these hymns, which are always reliable, the meetings are reviving many of the favorites used by our fathers a generation ago. Among them are:

"There is a spot to me more dear
Than native vale or mountain;
A spot for which affection's tear
Springs grateful from its fountain.
'Tis not where kindred spirits meet,
Tho' that were almost Heaven,
But where I first my Savior found
And felt my sins forgiven," and a score or more of others. "Beulah Land" is there, as is "The Home of the Soul" and similar favorites. "The Church in the Wildwood" as sung by the chorus of 1800 men in the Philadelphia meetings has never been sung by so many and with such power before. When the entire crowd joined the men's choir in singing and made twenty thousand voices in song, the effect was magical.

In the meetings, Mr. Rodeheaver, whom everyone now calls "Rodey," generally starts them off with whatever may be called for. Usually this is some simple set of words with a general meaning not so sacred as to prevent anyone from singing it because of religious scruples.

In the Philadelphia meetings, the first general favorite seemed to be "Brighten the corner where you are." No one tries to say that either the words or music of this hymn is great, but everyone calls for it and sings it and whistles it. It is a study in psychology to watch the way some people want some hymns. I found myself joining in with the crowd. Perhaps its light, airy, cheerful tune and words made us like it, and whatever we like is explanation enough. It could be sung by all people of all faiths—Catholics, Baptists, infidels—and yet it has a valuable moral wrapped up in its three little verses. The next general favorite was "If your heart keeps right."

As the meetings warm up, some of the old standards are sung. Then the choir does some of the finest Gospel singing ever done in the Christian era. Its rendering of "Sail On" lingers with the hearer for many a day. Then it proceeds to prepare the audience for the sermon with such hymns as "Just Outside the Door," "Only Way of Salvation," "My Guiding Star," "The Wayside Cross," "The Church in the Wildwood," and others. Of course only one or two of these are sung on any one night.

By this time Mr. Sunday has arrived and the battle for souls begins. The playing for positions on the battle line and the light skirmishing is over and the life and death struggle is on. The decks are cleared for action and the announcements are made. He usually selects or suggests to "Rodey" the hymns to be sung before preaching. It may be "Rock of Ages," "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone," "Just Outside the Door," or any one of a dozen old-time favorites around which men have rallied for decades. I think that he also has very much his own selections for invitation hymns. After attending sixteen meetings, I found I had formed the habit of looking for invitation hymns to be sung in the following order: "Just As I Am," "Why Not Now?" "I Am Coming Home," "Glorious Fountain," "Softly and Tenderly Jesus Is Calling," and "Yield Not to Temptation;" after which there might be sung "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder," "At the Cross," and others.

Mr. Sunday is as orthodox in theology of the hymns he prefers as he is in the sermons he preaches. No man has ever questioned his orthodoxy in either. He emphasizes it himself so far as his preaching is concerned, but says little or nothing about the hymns to the audience. One who watches the selections made can draw his own conclusions.

Prof. Charles H. Gabriel, the music editor of the Sunday Song Book, might be offered by some as the reason for the religious type of hymns preferred. He is so well known as the writer of "The Glory Song," "Higher Ground," and other hymns sung by millions, that the selections made might be attributed to him. However, it was Prof. Gabriel himself who called my attention to the kind of hymns used in the Sunday campaigns. This was done a year or more ago when sending new hymns to Prof. Gabriel. During the Philadelphia campaign I made a special study of the hymns used, and their effect.

It is hard to determine just yet what will be the final influence on sacred song by the Sunday campaigns. His martial, militant preaching and spirit cannot fail to awaken some of the old-time martial hymns, like "Am I a Soldier of the Cross." Already they use "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and "Stand Up For Jesus" far more than is used in the average revival campaign.—Central Christian Advocate.

GRENADA COLLEGE SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN

THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND GRENADA COLLEGE.

For thirty and two years the North Mississippi Conference has owned Grenada College without at any time attempting to furnish it with adequate funds either for buildings or equipment. Part of this time the school was leased to the presidents, and large funds are not commonly placed at the disposal of tenants. At other times the interest of the Conference has been absorbed in meeting the standing offer of the generous founder of Millsaps College, who has duplicated every dollar paid to that worthy school, this interest being quickened by the fact that young preachers were being trained in Millsaps College. Again, there has been a lingering relic of that age-old sentiment that the education of women is of little moment at best. Thus the school has struggled on for a generation, facing each day a larger opportunity and a more imperative need.

The Larger Opportunity

is found in the widening sphere of usefulness for the educated woman. When the school was founded, there was probably not a woman in the State gainfully employed except in the schoolroom, and scarcely half the teachers were women. To-day, nine-tenths of the teachers are women, and they have entered every profession and occupation. Only the ministry and ballot box remain closed to them. Where there was economic need for one educated woman thirty years ago, there is now a more pressing need for ten. Education is no longer a cultural luxury, but an economic necessity. Even the old-fashioned functions of motherhood and housekeeping are now known to require a large measure of scientific knowledge and skill if our homes are to approach our ideals and our children are to escape the dangers of artificial modes of living. The woman who would make her home her world must be familiar with the lore of the ages and acquainted with the results of the scholarship of the day. Most fathers are merely paternal progenitors who rise up to go to the office and come home to retire, leaving the mothers all responsibility for the care and discipline of the children. The hand that rocks the cradle molds eternity. Shall that hand be untrained and the brain that guides it left to grope in illiteracy? For the conservation of ideals and spiritual values, it were better to leave off the education of men than to neglect that of women. The State or Church that fails of its opportunity here may as well label its wares, pack them off to museums, and prepare to take its place among things that were. May Methodists and Mississippians do their duty in this great cause.

The Increasing Need

arises from the growing number of high school gradnates ready for college. Where there was ONE a generation ago, there are now easily TEN, yet Mississippi has scarcely doubled her dormitory space in colleges in this time. If there was need for Grenada when it was founded, there is now a tenfold need. There is no institution for women within approximately one hundred miles of Grenada which confers degrees. It has, then, a territory swept by a radius of one hundred miles and embracing a clientele of 60,000 Methodists. These people are too religious to wish their daughters trained as pagans; they are too cultured not to wish them trained at all; they are too rich to wish them trained as paupers at the expense of endowments made by generous souls in other States for the benefit of their own children. For every girl in Mississippi to-day attending a college, there are five who should be matriculated. There is imperative need that the Methodists do their part in this great work.

The College a Benefactor.

Whether known as Grenada District High School, Grenada Collegiate Institute, or Grenada College, the institution has ever done a work well worthy of its name, making many its debtors. Like other home institutions, it has given free literary tuition to daughters of ministers. It has aided scores of orphan girls to self-support and independence, doing much of this work when there was no Home to lend them shelter. Its loan funds have helped other scores of poor girls to a culture they could not otherwise have attained. It has done its part in bringing college life and atmosphere to the knowledge of our girls, giving them that vision and inspiration without which the graces of culture seem distant, dim and difficult. Best of all, it is not only among us, it is OURS. From furnace room to attic, every brick of it belongs to the Methodists of North Mississippi. If its educational standards or moral ideals prove faulty, it is open to our inspection and subject to our authority. A dollar or two will put any patron within its walls, while a post-card will bring its president across our thresholds for Conference and counsel—a very different thing from bringing an oily-tongued agent from an institution distant in location and questionable in atmosphere. If it is not what it should be, we can change it to conform to our ideals and have it prepare OUR daughters for OUR manner of living, educating them TO us, instead of FROM us.

Meeting a Situation.

For the day when proper consideration and support would be given to Grenada College, there be those who have waited with more than the anxiety of "those that watch for the morning." The golden, glorious hour struck at the recent session of the Conference in New Albany, when 250 representatives of 60,000 Methodists, without a dissenting voice, authorized the employment of a Commissioner to raise $50,000 for the College and then pledged more than $20,000 of it on the Conference floor. This was more than three times the largest offering ever made in the history of the Conference, and it shows that our people are determined to do the right thing by our girls and do it in the right way. Rev. B. P. Jaco, Commissioner for Grenada College, is already in the field with his usual zeal, plus an enthusiasm born of his faith in the biggest movement ever inaugurated by the North Mississippi Conference. He will succeed if 60,000 Methodists do not fail, and they will not! They will observe Grenada College Day on Jan. 9, 1916, advertise what the College is, and is doing, and do something for it by making an offering to finance the campaign for the $50,000 needed NOW for buildings and equipment. It will be a disappointment to me if they do not endow it in their determination to have the BEST FOR OUR GIRLS.

J. R. COUNTISS.

BY THEIR FRUITS.

The judgment pronounced on men and institutions must vary with the standards of measurement. According to any proper standard, much that passes for success would be reckoned utter failure. In the end, all must be known "by their fruits." The glory of Grenada College is not in great size nor costly equipment. Limited in size, hampered for lack of funds and equipment, she nevertheless has cause to rejoice in the devotion and loyalty of her teachers, the earnestness and ambition of her students, and especially in the culture and usefulness of her alumnae.

Under the present administration, there have been graduated from the literary department twenty-nine young women. Six of these were successful teachers up to the time of their marriage and are now devoted wives and mothers, faithfully doing their part in the building of that finest fabric of our civilization—the Christian home. Nineteen others are to-day efficient teachers in the public schools of the State in such towns as Oxford, Holly Springs, Vaiden, New Albany, Charleston, Nettleton, Pontotoc, Houston, Eupora, Noxapater, and Columbus. Two others would be teaching but for home ties that prevent their doing so. Two have not expressed a desire to leave the parental roof for employment. This shows that twenty-five of the twenty-nine have been self-supporting and useful citizens of the commonwealth. Butterflies do not thus labor. A sham education will not stand the test of such activities.

Moreover, when they left college, only one was not a Christian. The other twenty-eight would lead a prayer-meeting, conduct a missionary meeting, or do any other Christian work. For character and thoroughness, none excel them; "by their fruits," none equal them. The College which trained them asks at the hands of the Methodists of North Mississippi the means and equipment to do larger things. Shall it ask in vain?

J. R. COUNTISS.

GRENADA COLLEGE COMMISSIONER.

Every appointment that I have had in my Conference has been an inspiration to me. Each has called out all that was in me. With me have gone a sense of joy in service and large responsibility for the great interests committed to my care. I enter this new work with the fullest joy. My heart is full of joy as I contemplate the great good to be accomplished. The feeling of responsibility is very keen, causing deep humility and utter dependence on God and my brethren who have put the matter into my care. My good brethren, you have undertaken a really great work, and I rejoice in your high purpose. I shall help you with all my powers to achieve a worthy success. Assurance is abundant that the Holy Spirit is in the movement. Possibly we never saw in our Conference such an abounding grace of liberality as was made manifest in the great collection of $20,000. Before this day "some doubted," but now all say it is the work of the Lord. We must follow His leadership, not lacking in courage, nor courting destruction by false testimony as to our resources, as did Ananias and his wife. The need for this movement is generally acknowledged to be very great, and not one of the sixty thousand Methodists of our Conference can look God in the face and say we are not able to raise twice $50,000. But this money will be given readily, and that is only part of our expected achievement. This campaign consummated means much greater things in Christian education and a broader horizon for Christian liberality in this part of our State. Our really great achievement will give us a sense of our own ability and a new conscience on broader policies and more far-reaching ambitious for the kingdom of God. When we have seen the completion of this blessing we shall be constrained to say with Paul, "thanks be unto God for the unspeakable gift." Your commissioner here and now records in advance his thanks to every Methodist in North Mississippi for sympathy, counsel, co-operation, and prayers. The brave man meets his obligations while the coward runs away making excuses.

WE NEED WOMEN.

By Mrs. John Newton Strain.

We need women, gracious, queenly,
Who will trust and live serenely;
Cherishing a spotless name
As above all earthly fame.

Strong in thought and brave in action,
Loving peace, dispelling faction;
Women sweet and glad and gay,
Who will brighten all our way.

Who, in self-forgetful living,
Sweetness to their homes are giving.
Women tender, true and pure,
Who from sin's dark paths can lure.

We need women, need them sadly,
Who will work, in His name, gladly;
Women noble, loyal, brave,
Quick to think and strong to save.

Women who will serve for others,
Who will make wise, loving mothers;
Ever patient, gentle, kind,
Sowing right thoughts in the mind.

'Tis for such our nation's praying,
Ever to hear daughters saying:
"Hasten, maiden, while 'tis day,
Hear the great call and obey."

—The Herald and Presbyter.

AN ENGLISH BAND STIRRED PATRIOTISM IN AMERICANS.

It was mid-afternoon ere the battleship left Hampton Roads upon the quarter and sank her ram into the heave of the open sea. The day was perfect—blue water, blue sky—even the shore-line dissolving into a blue haze.

Looking aloft one saw the delicate tracery of the trellis masts swinging in gentle arcs across the fleecy clouds. High upon the foremast the lookout stood, a speck of white against the blue. He raised his arm to shield his eyes. Then thin but clear came his hail: "Sail ho-o-o!"

The officer of the deck on the conning bridge below looked aloft. "Where away?" he sang out.

"About two points on the starboard bow, sir."

"Can you make her out?"

"Looks like a man-o'-war, sir." And the lookout resumed his watch.

Long, gray and somber the stranger lay in the water with no apparent motion. Businesslike fighting tops occupied its masts. Aside from a few officers on the bridge the crew were concealed. There was a complete lack of small gear about the decks. It was cleared for action. As the ships of war drew nigh a stray bit of breeze caught the flag of the stranger and straightened it out for inspection. It was white with a red cross in the upper inner corner, the union jack—the naval ensign of Great Britain.

"A British scout cruiser!" The word was swiftly passed. There is something fascinating about the fighting ship of a nation at war.

In the radio room of the American the operator was already busy calling the other. First he introduced his ship. "U. S. S. Kearsarge, Captain Christie, for New York. We are manned by New York State and Massachusetts naval reserves."

The announcement crackled away into the blue. There was no answer for a moment. Then the European began sending furiously so that he would be unable to hear the Kearsarge. It was plain that its commander wished the identity of his vessel to remain hidden.

On the American, general quarters had been sounded. Every man was in his appointed place. Those who could not see it marked a sudden activity on board their grim neighbor. A number of khaki-clad men assembled on its quarter deck. The things they carried glittered in the afternoon sun.

Slowly now with engines stopped, the American glided by. From across the water, gently at first, then swelling to deep and thrilling volume, came the music of a marine band:

Oh, say, does that star spangled banner still wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

The seamen on the Kearsarge stiffened a bit more. Chins went up. Pulses beat fast, hearts were strangely exultant, eyes gleamed with a new light. Mightily the song rolled on, tempered a bit by the strip of water between, but the sweeter for it. Unconsciously the men took up the words to the beat of the music. Hark! Had it ceased? No, just softened down a trifle to give due emphasis to those last few glorious bars:

'Tis the star spangled banner! Oh, long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

It was not a time for cheering. Something deeper, beyond the power of words to express, filled the hearts of every man. All had heard and sung the patriotic lines several times before, but it was left for a foreign man-o'war and a courteous friend to teach them the full significance of it—to swell their hearts with that sublimest of all emotions, love of their native land.

Captain Christie sent the thanks of his ship in the following radiogram: "We of the Kearsarge are deeply appreciative of your courtesy, and regret that we do not carry a band with which to reciprocate.—Christie, U. S. N."

That was all. The British vessel was soon hidden behind the curtain of miles, but the lesson that it taught was a lasting one.—Norman R. Baine in the Buffalo Express.

GREETINGS TO THE NEW YEAR.

By Clare Agnes Carriere.

Again the New Year is blooming anew,
And I have much to thank Thee for, O God!
That I may view again the marvelous,
And gather the harvest abundantly.
I thank Thee for all I see, all I hear:
For the beauty of Thy earthly flowers,
The warbling of the birds, the hum of bees,
The fluttering flash of the butterflies,
For the return of the glod-winged swallows,
For the sweet cooing of the loving doves,
For the ever-rolling of the blue sea,
For the murmuring flow of the river—
For all this earthly beauty, I humbly
Thank Thee, Lord. For the birth of this New Year, Glory to Thee—Good-will and peace to men.

A BACKWARD GLANCE.

By Rev. J. M. Buckley, D. D.

When Colonel Ingersoll was in the midst of his glory—or "vainglory—in depreciating the Bible, I was approached in Boston by a committee whose spokesman asked, if satisfactory arrangements could be made, I would publicly discuss the Bible with Colonel Ingersoll.

The following compact plan was laid before me: One of the largest halls in Boston would be taken for two evenings. The subject was to be, "Whether the Bible contains special divine revelations of a personal God and immortality, or is it merely the work of superstitious, deceiving men?" Two well-known citizens were to be secured to preside, one a Christian and the other a "Free Thinker."

The committee assured me that the public mind was in such a frame that Christians, anti-Christians and agnostics would support such a debate. The price for admission would be fifty cents for each evening. The hall would accommodate 3000, and the expenses of advertising, other incidentals and the rent of the hall were estimated at $1000. One-third of what was left of the amount raised from the entrance fees (after payment of expenses) would be paid to Colonel Ingersoll, another third to me and the rest to the committee, and what was left over from the thousand dollars set apart for expenses would be divided into three parts as before. The committee assured me that we would net at least a thousand dollars apiece.

For one impregnable reason I flatly refused to meet Colonel Ingersoll in public debate on subjects concerning religion: He seemed to have two natures. When one was in the ascendant he could be as tender of the feelings of others as a loving mother with her child, but when the other nature was uppermost he was as coarse, profane and relentless as a sane human being could be.

There have been infidels, atheists and agnostics who, like Robert Owen and his son, in debate respected the feelings of their opponents, unless they used poisoned weapons. If they had no reverance for supposed supernatural existences, or the Bible, or the influence of the churches, they would not intentionally wound the sensibilities of a conscientious religionist.

But it was not so with Colonel Ingersoll. Though as a reasoner he did not rank in the highest class, he did so as an orator. In his speeches against the Bible he would "swing a crowd" by the utterance of irreverences that no true Christian representative would touch. Colonel Ingersoll had an almost insane hatred for the Bible and could set a promiscuous audience in a roar of laughter by his grotesque references to parts of the New Testament which are dearest to the Christian, whether Protestant or Roman Catholic.

Christ, in the Sermon on the Mount, taught his disciples what to do in such a case. "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you."

But for that spirit in him I would willingly have debated with Colonel Ingersoll on Christianity in print or in public speech.

This also is one of the debates "which were never debated."

Poor Robert Ingersoll! What good he might have done! With superior talents shown in his profession and his politics, he was a co-worker with some of those who doubt the existence of a personal God, blaspheme the Bible, and support various hurtful associations.

His eulogy of whiskey was sent with some whiskey to one of his friends; it shows his wonderful mastery of the English language.

Ingersoll's Eulogy of Whisky.

"I send you some of the most wonderful whisky that ever drove the skeleton from the feast or painted landscapes in the brain of man. It is the mingled souls of wheat and corn. In it you will find the sunshine and shadow that chased each other over the billowy fields, the breath of June, the carol of the lark, the dew of night, the wealth of summer and autumn's rich content, all golden with imprisoned light. Drink it, and you will hear the voice of men and maidens singing the 'Harvest Home,' mingled with the laughter of children. Drink it, and you will feel within your blood the star-led dawns, the dreamy, tawny dusks of perfect days. For forty years this liquid joy has been within staves of oak, longing to touch the lips of man.

Having seen the baleful results of whisky in the inmates of almshouses, insane asylums, hospitals and prisons, and in the tragic deaths and the more tragic lives of some of my boyhood and manhood acquaintances, and in the utter degradation and disintegration of families once wealthy and respected, I wrote and published the following, which, if less rhetorical than the eulogy, has the merit of truth:

The Direful Work of Whisky.

"I send you some of the most wonderful whisky that ever brought a skeleton into the closet or painted scenes of lust and bloodshed in the brain of man. It is the ghosts of wheat and corn crazed by the loss of their natural bodies. In it you will find a transient sunshine chased by a shadow as cold as an arctic midnight in which the breath of June grows icy, and the carol of the lark gives place to the foreboding cry of the raven.

"Drink it, and you shall have 'woe,' 'sorrow,' 'babbling,' and 'wounds without cause;' 'your eyes shall behold strange women,' and 'your heart shall utter perverse things.' Drink it deep, and you shall hear the voices of demons shrieking, women wailing, and worse than orphaned children mourning the loss of a father who yet lives. Drink it deep and long, and serpents will hiss in your ears, coil themselves about your neck, and seize you with their fangs; for 'at the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder.' For forty years this liquid death has been within staves of oak, harmless there as purest water. I send it to you that you may 'put an enemy in your mouth to steal away your brains.' And yet I call myself your friend."—New York Christian Advocate.

A NEW YEAR'S CAROL.

Ah, dearest Jesus, holy child,
Make thee a bed, soft, undefiled,
Within my heart, that it may be
A quiet chamber, kept for thee!
My heart for very joy doth leap,
My lips no more can silence keep;
I too must sing with joyful tongue
That sweetest, ancient cradle song:
"Glory to God in highest heaven,
Who unto man his Son hath given!"
While angels sing, with pious mirth,
A glad New Year to all the earth!

—Martin Luther.

THE FAWN'S NEW YEAR.

It was early New Year's Day, and Foreman John Beston stood in the doorway of the Lumber Company's store looking out at the snowy forest scene, when there came into sight the shawl-covered figure of a girl who was plodding along the wood-road and dragging a sled.

"Well, Kate, what are you after this morning?" he asked as she came nearer, crunching over the hard, frosty snow in front of the steps.

"Five pounds of brown sugar," she answered, promptly. She was a short, sturdy girl, perhaps fourteen years old. The face which showed through the tightly drawn folds of her shawl was serious with the seriousness of a child that has many cares to think about.

It took the foreman some time to tie up the sugar with his big, clumsy fingers. The two young men who usually acted as clerks were having a holiday. "How are you all at home?" he asked. "I hear your father's leg is doin' nicely."

"It's slow healing. But outside of that we're doing well enough. We had plenty of garden stuff planted. We had a nice flock of turkeys, too, but in the fall the foxes got after them and took the whole flock."

"Pshaw, that was too bad! An' I know you'd meant to keep one of 'em for dinner to-day."

"Well, it doesn't matter much. I know a way of fixing potatoes and turnips and beans in a kind of pie so that it's almost as good as turkey. The children won't care, if they have lots of sugar. It'll be fun for them, pretending the turnips are white meat and the beans dark meat; only there won't be any wishbone."

"I call that pretty mean kind of fun—for New Year's fun," commented the foreman. He thought of the mighty dinner around which he and his family would soon gather. "See here, Kate, I killed more turkeys than they'll cook to-day, an' you must take one of 'em home as a present to the children. If your turnip pie is so good you can't eat the turkey—why, just bring it back."

When Kate started home, the little sled held several bundles besides the sugar and the turkey. There were a quart of cranberries and some dried apples—all gifts from the foreman.

After going a short distance on the road, she turned into the woods and followed a path to North Inlet, a stream on the shore of which stood her father's cabin. Most of the snow had blown off the ice that covered the sluggish stream, leaving a clear path for a skater. She put on a pair of skates she had brought with her, and soon was gliding down the frozen inlet toward the lake.

She gave little heed to the beauty of the forest, where all was white and green, save when some wild creature flashed its bit of color into the scene. Her thoughts were given more to her small brothers and sisters and to the turkey she was carrying home to them. The prospect of a New Year's dinner that was purely vegetarian had been very depressing, even to the practical mind of one who had resolved to look upon it as merely "fun."

She had not skated far when her ears caught a faint sound that came from far back among the wooded hills surrounding the lake. "It's some hounds running a fox, or perhaps after a deer," she thought, and skated on down the inlet. The baying of the dogs sounded nearer and nearer.

She stopped for a moment, and bent down to tighten a skate-strap. When she raised her eyes, she noticed a movement in the underbrush, and then a small deer pushed its way through the bushes and trotted out on the ice. Seeing her, it was startled, and tried to jump back, but only lost its footing and fell sprawling. It seemed utterly exhausted, and lay there quietly, save that it bleated several times, and it was panting as if it had run a long and hard race. It looked at Kate appealingly, with large, gentle, terror-stricken eyes.

"It's too bad to frighten you so, and you're only a summer's fawn, too!" She came quite near, but did not dare to touch it, lest it should struggle to escape.

There sounded a louder burst of baying from the hounds. The fawn shivered and gave a piteous bleat, that was like the cry of a frightened child. Kate remembered how once, when a large dog had come into the cabin, her little sister had cried out and come running to her for protection.

She caught the deer around the shoulders and dragged it over the glare ice to the snow near the bank. "I can never keep them from killing you if they find you here!" she cried. "You're rested now, and you must go on."

It got upon its feet and trotted on into the woods, but slowly, as if still weak from its long run.

The baying of the hounds sounded louder and louder. In some way she must prevent their following the fawn! She ran to the bank where it had come upon the ice, and trod the snow into its tracks, trying to destroy the scent. But as she worked she felt that it was useless. There was no hope of baffling the keen noses of the dogs for more than a moment. They would be sure to find the trail that led into the woods across the inlet.

Now a hoarse howl, followed by the whimper of a hound that knows he is close to the game, warned her that the dogs were near at hand. In a moment they came into sight, their faces made savage by the fierce joy of the hunt.

As Kate stamped the snow into the tracks, she had thought of a way of saving the fawn, and now when she saw the dogs in all their savage eagerness, she acted at once. Seizing the turkey that was on her sled, she tore off the cloth wrapped around it and threw it upon the ice just as the hounds reached the bank.

Their breakfast had been a light one, and this was a tempting meal, yet they might not have abandoned the trail if it had led on with undiminished scent. But, thanks to Kate's efforts, it did not, and they stopped, puzzled; then, seeing the turkey lying on the ice, they fell upon it without further delay.

Kate stepped back a little from the fierce-looking creatures and stood watching them. The turkey was a big one, but it did not take the hungry dogs long to tear it to pieces and swallow most of it. Some of the larger bones were too much for even their jaws, and they lay down on the ice and gnawed and licked them. Their feast made the dogs good-natured and lazy; the hunt and the game they were tracing seemed quite forgotten. At length, when Kate thought best to move on again down the inlet, they followed after, wagging their tails in most friendly fashion. When the inlet's mouth was reached, they separated from her and trotted off along the lake shore to their home at some hunter's shanty. Their tails were still wagging with the memory of their New Year's feast.

Kate left the ice and plodded along a road through the woods to her home. Here, when her story was told, the children were at first inclined to scold at the loss of their turkey, and had to be appeased by promises of a double quantity of brown sugar. When dinner time came her skill had worked such a change in the potatoes and turnips and beans that they all declared that they could hardly tell them from turkey, especially when eaten with a great deal of cranberry sauce.

While Kate's New Year's dinner was cooking, a foot-weary fawn that had slowly made its way back among the hills reached a sheltered ravine where a herd of deer were lying among themselves. Several that lay close together were like the newcomer, young deer only six or seven months old. The weary fawn lay down by the little group, and they made a welcoming stir, and licked it with their soft tongues, for they had feared never to see it again. The fawn that had escaped lay quietly in the sun, looking as if it felt very grateful that its New Year had not been brought to a close by the fierce deerhounds.—Frances Sterne Palmer in Western Recorder.

BOY SCOUTS CHANGE THEIR AIM.

It is claimed by Ernest Thompson Seton, the famous naturalist and author, who recently resigned his position as chief scout of the Boy Scouts in the United States, that the Boy Scout organization has changed its aims, in that now members of it are devoting themselves to the study of war drills instead of wood craft. It is very probable that there is some truth in the charge made by Mr Seton. There is no objection, however to boys devoting their spare time to war drills, but this statement of the ex-scout goes to prove what we have always believed about this movement, that is, that it would produce mannish, rather than manly, boys.

ENLARGE YOUR DAY

Thousands of people have already learned how to enlarge their days; how to increase the time they can devote to profitable recreation and pleasure without sacrificing work that must be done.

They first discovered that the quickest and most satisfactory way to go "down town" was by the telephone.

Next they applied the same principle to their "out of town" business and social trips, and found it was even more satisfactory and proportionately much cheaper.

NEW YEAR.

It is said that King George once, in all earnestness, asked a cook how she managed to get the blackbirds, or whatever the pie contained, inside the pastry. While such a mystery puzzled a king, breaking the crust has never puzzled a hungry man. Neither do some have much difficulty in breaking promises, which are proverbially like pie crusts—easily broken. And the recurrence of New Year will doubtless bring forth the usual jokes about broken resolutions.

Notwithstanding, the thoughtful man will seriously look backward and forward, like the double-faced god of myth, after whom January is named. To one a birthday may be a time of thinking on the rapidly passing years. Another may regard the day on which he led a blushing bride to the altar as the reckoning point among the years—as the time when memories bless him, and the sweet presence of a "love that lives beyond the years" gives him hope for the future. To all, the New Year brings a reckoning point among the days and forces upon the attention the onward sweep of time. Then the thoughtful man will think on his ways and earnestly resolve, by the help of God and the grace of Christ, to avoid the errors and flee the sins of the past.

At this time reference may be made to the Parable of the Barren Fig Tree, because of the seasonal appropriateness of the vineyard dresser's plea—"Lord, let it alone this year also." Many times in the past the opportunities have been prolonged and the day of probation has been lengthened. And if he has neglected some of these opportunities, and repents of barren days, the thoughtful man will thank God that, through His mercy, there yet is time.

There are some with whom the warnings of experience, like the good counsel of the aged, and the words of the gospel, will fall by the wayside, upon stony ground, and among the thorns. They will lightly make some New Year resolutions, and soon as lightly break them. And it is well for them to remember that the years are swiftly ushering them into the great unknown, where the opportunities will be withdrawn, and the voice of the loving Intercessor will no longer be heard. It is unwise to presume upon the mercy of Christ year after year. For those who do, the final teaching of the parable may one day be applied, "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

New Year should impress upon us the terrible onward sweep of time. Days are only artificial divisions of a vast closed circle, only artificial divisions marked by the hands of a clock. There is no break between the old year and the new. A half-moment before midnight the pendulum, in its ceaseless oscillations, will swing from the old year into the new, but no man will be able to say at what exact point in its arc it will reach an imaginary line, neither in the old nor the new. And the stroke of the clock in the tower will not cease the monotone of twelve until the midnight is past. There is no break in time; it is absolutely one.

Therefore, while it is well to profit by the failures of the past, and while it is well to look forward with good resolutions to the future, the New Year, with its solemn thoughts of the passing of time, should impress upon us the need of acting now. This present moment is the only moment of which we can be immediately conscious, through all the ages of eternity. You say you are surely conscious of the past. But you are only conscious of memories of the past; the past itself has forever fled away. You say you think of the future. But you are only conscious of an imagination of the future. The future is yet to come. You speak of the morrow, but the morrow never dawns. It is only a fiction of the imagination. In a few fleeting hours, to-morrow will be to-day, and to-day will be yesterday, with its many thousand years. NOW is TIME, and NOW is ETERNITY. In view of this, let us act NOW nobly, that all the days and all the years may bring us to the heavenly beauty of eternal day.

"Time, like an ever-rolling stream,
Bears all its sons away:
They fly, forgotten as a dream
Dies at the opening day.

"O God, our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come:
Be thou our guide while life shall last,
And our eternal home!"

WEEK OF PRAYER AND SELF-DENIAL.

The General Board of Missions asks that all our churches observe a week of prayer and self-denial, January 2-9, 1916. This is the plan by which the Board expects to raise a sum sufficient to cover the losses resulting from the unsettled conditions caused by the war in Europe. That great conflict is heavily taxing the resources of the nations involved, and is crippling business everywhere, except the business of making munitions of war. Naturally the Church has suffered financial losses, and our missionary work has been greatly hindered.

This is a matter which should cause grave concern among all our people, and pastors and leaders should respond to this urgent call of the Board. If we may draw any lesson from war which will be of value to us it is this—men on the tented field obey the orders of their general. 'Theirs not to reason why; theirs but to do and die." Many of our people should stop reasoning why, should stop framing excuses, and should implicitly obey what the great Duke of Wellington called the "marching orders" of Christians, the last command of an ascending Lord.

Let all our churches in Mississippi and Louisiana arrange to observe the Week of Prayer and Self-Denial. The need is imperative, the call is urgent! All information, literature, and envelopes for the offering may be had from Dr. W. W. Pinson, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

"THINGS THAT DO NOT CHANGE."

As our readers know, we have scant patience with the talk about a new religion, or new and more correct interpretations of the Gospel. All such claims are based upon superficial thinking and a misconception of the nature of the Divine Revelation. God's written Word is not so mysterious as to its fundamental teachings as to be discoverable only to men of great learning, or full of cryptograms relating to things of importance that only later generations may unravel. The essential truths of Christianity are plainly disclosed in the Bible, and have been known to the disciples of Jesus from the beginning. The plan of salvation set forth by the first followers of Christ has never changed from that day to this; nothing is known about it now that was not known then. The marvelous triumphs of Christianity have not been made by the proclamation of error, as must have been the case if the contentions of some of the modernists are correct. It is doubtful if any heresy in the entire history of the Church has been as prolific a source of evil as the notion that, because the Divine Revelation was gradual in its unfolding, it is susceptible only of a progressive and variable interpretation. Being not a discovery of man, but a direct disclosure from God, the Christian religion, especially in its fundamental particulars, is not at all in the same category with the ever-shifting, ever-expanding fields of knowledge and inquiry that have been opened up by the inductive reason of the finite mind.

One of the clearest statements of this great truth that we have seen anywhere appeared as an editorial utterance in a recent issue of The Sunday School Times, which is one of the soundest and most helpful religious publications in the United States. It was as follows:

"God is no better in the twentieth Christian century than he was in the first. And sin to-day is just as fatal as it was then. The Good News of God's cure for sin, Jesus Christ the Savior, is unchanged. It cannot be improved upon, for it was perfect and sufficient at the beginning. So we face the fact, strangely difficult for some men to see, that the twentieth century cannot make any possible improvement upon the true religion of the first century; for the Gospel was a perfect Gospel then; and if God himself cannot improve upon it, much less can men.

"As Dr. F. W. Farr has said: 'The Great Commission does not bid us adapt the gospel to every century, but preach the gospel to every creature. The gospel of the first century is the dynamic of God unto salvation in the twentieth century.' The air that men breathed in the first century was doubtless the same kind of air that we are breathing to-day. Men's life depended upon their breathing it then, and so it does to-day. We do not pride ourselves upon having a better kind of air to-day, or better methods of drawing that air into our lungs. Those who pride themselves upon having a more modern, advanced, better religion than their grandfathers had, or than any earlier century could have, are sadly, foolishly trying to improve upon God's best. For God does some things in an absolute, final, perfected way; and his Gospel offer is one of these. Let us praise him that we never need seek for anything better than the perfect access to him which we have through Christ—and which all men have always had since Jesus said, 'It is finished.'"

NOT COMPELLED TO MAKE THEM.

Some of our Church papers have been discussing the question as to whether, if an Annual Conference requests it, a Bishop is compelled to appoint a preacher to an institution of learning other than our own. We do not think that there is any reason for difference of opinion on this question. The somewhat ambiguous clause which has occasioned the comment that has been made has been in the Book of Discipline for decades; so the following statement contained in the Manual of the Discipline, edited and brought down to 1910 by Bishop Candler, and approved by the College of Bishops, seems to us to settle the matter conclusively:

Paragraph 23, on Page 26: "The request of a Conference that a preacher be appointed to a seminary of learning or other work to which the Discipline permits the appointment of an itinerant preacher, does not put that appointment on a different ground from other appointments, and therefore does not render a compliance with the request obligatory upon the Bishop."

We infer from the footnote appended to this Paragraph that the General Conference also has expressed itself to this effect.

But while we think that the law of the Church concerning the question raised is entirely clear, we think it would be well to rewrite the awkward clause bearing on the subject which appears in the Discipline. We hate ambiguities anywhere.

THE CAT LET OUT OF THE BAG.

A running debate was going on concerning the question of revenue in the United States Senate a few days ago. Mr. Penrose, of Pennsylvania, claimed that the European war had helped things in the United States and had averted the financial crisis that would have followed the enactment of a tariff bill by the Democrats that was not calculated to yield sufficient revenue for the needs of the Government. Thereupon the Hon. Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, who had led in framing the tariff bill referred to, demanded to know if the Republicans held the Democrats responsible for the $25,000,000 shrinkage in the revenue receipts from liquor caused by the spread of prohibition.

This indubitably shows how prohibition is getting in its work. And let us hope that this shrinkage will continue. Any kind of taxation to get revenue is better than getting it by the manufacture and sale of intoxicants, which tend to debauch and destroy the citizenship of the Nation.

In the face of this conclusive demonstration, what becomes of the oft-heard claim of the whiskey men that prohibition increases the consumption of liquors?

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev C. E. Fike, the popular pastor of our church at Rayne, La., spent Christmas with relatives in Nashville.

On Dec. 26, Rev. R. H. Wynn, D.D., President of Centenary College, preached the Christmas sermon in the Crowley Methodist Church.

The Rev. N. E. Joyner, pastor of Carrollton Avenue Church, this city, is in Nashville, Tenn., attending a meeting of the Secretaries of the Boards of Missions.

Rev. P. A. Sowell, an honored superannuate member of the Tennessee Conference, who has recently served as a supply in the Louisiana Conference, is spending the winter in New Orleans.

Santa Claus especially remembered Rev. C. M. Morris during the Christmas holidays, and next Yule-tide he will have to add to his pack enough to fill the small stocking of William Luther, born Dec. 26.

Mrs. John Hasling, nee Miss Mabel Fuller, was buried Monday in McDonoghville by Rev. T. V. Peters, assisted by Rev. A. J. Gearheard. Before her marriage she was engaged in city mission work in New Orleans.

Rev. H. B. Carre, D.D., of Vanderbilt University, who is this week visiting relatives in New Orleans, preached last Sunday morning in First Church, New Orleans. This is Dr. Carre's home church. He was heard by a large congregation.

The Epworth League of Crowley will hold an old-time watch-night service on New Year's Eve. Old hymns will be sung, and testimonies will be given. The young people's societies of the Baptists, Presbyterians, Disciples, and Episcopalians have been invited to participate.

We note with pleasure the great work of Rev. J. G. Snelling and his people at Homer, La., as shown in a recent clipping from the Times-Picayune, as follows: "During the past few weeks the Methodist congregation here has subscribed $3000 toward the church debt, which leaves the new church now free of incumbrance. Rev. J. G. Snelling, the pastor, has been untiring in his efforts to raise the necessary amount. Bishop Atkins will dedicate the building at an early date, and later plans will be perfected for its enlargement."

The Holly Springs Reporter, speaking of the new presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Felts, says: "Mr. Felts preached two able sermons at the Methodist Church on Sunday, the 12th, morning and evening, and his sermons have been highly complimented by all who heard him." The same issue has this to say of Dr. H. G. Henderson: "His sermons showed him to be a consecrated and educated man as well as a student. The membership and the people generally are highly elated with the new pastor, and are looking forward to a most pleasant and profitable year in their church work."

REV. J. W. POSTON PASSES AWAY.

Dear Brother Meek: At an early hour Sunday morning, Dec. 26, Rev. J. W. Poston, an honored member of the North Mississippi Conference, passed quietly, but triumphantly, to his heavenly reward. The funeral services were held in the church at Holly Springs, where Brother Poston had lived since he superannuated, a good many years ago. The writer conducted the services, assisted by Dr. H. G. Henderson, and the Rev. Mr. Horton of the Baptist Church. A more extended notice will appear later. Respectfully,

E. S. LEWIS.

MRS. B. P. FULLILOVE DEAD.

The following dispatch was sent to the Memphis Commercial Appeal from Rienzi, Miss., on Dec. 23:

"Mrs. B. P. Fullilove, wife of Rev. B. P. Fullilove, pastor of the Methodist Church of this place, died here after a week's illness. Funeral services were held at the Methodist Church, conducted by Rev. T. H. Dorsey, presiding elder of the Corinth District, assisted by Rev. J. E. Cunningham of Corinth and Rev. J. M. Wyatt of Booneville. Mrs. Fullilove is survived by her husband and four daughters, Mrs. Alma Richardson of Ripley, Miss.; Mrs. Lily Jamieson of New Albany, Miss.; Mrs. Beatrice Roebke and Mrs. Katie May Hudson of this place. The interment was made in the Rienzi Cemetery."

It grieves us to reproduce this sad message, and we extend our deepest sympathy to Brother Fullilove and all others touched by this great sorrow. May the Heavenly Father comfort and sustain them! We trust that some one will furnish the Advocate a fitting memoir of the deceased at an early date.

FROM BROTHER FULLILOVE.

Rienzi, Miss., Dec. 25, 1915.

Dear Brethren: I haven't words sufficient to express our appreciation of the many kind and sweet letters of love and sympathy we have received (or may receive) from our dear brethren and friends in our great loss and sorrow. A loving companion and devoted mother has gone from us to await the resurrection morn. God bless you all, is our prayer. Pray for us in this, our great time of need.

Yours in the Lord,

B. P. FULLILOVE AND CHILDREN.

NO RECORD OF PATRIOTIC SERVICE.

By "Bob" Burdette.

My dear boy, men have fought, bled, and died, but not for beer.

Arnold Winkelried did not throw himself upon the Austrian spears because he was ordered to close his saloon at nine o'clock.

William Tell did not hide his arrow under his vest to kill the tyrant because the edict had gone forth that the free-born Switzer should not drink a keg of beer every Sunday.

Freedom did not shriek as Kosciusko fell over a whiskey barrel.

Warren did not die that beer might flow as the brooks murmur seven days a week.

Even the battle of Brandywine was not fought that whiskey might be free.

No clause in the Declaration of Independence declares that a Sunday concert garden, with five brass horns and one hundred kegs of beer, is the inalienable right of a free people and the cornerstone of good government.

Tea—mild, harmless, innocent tea, the much-sneered at temperance beverage, the feeble drink of effeminate men and good old women—tea holds a higher place, it fills a brighter, more glorious page, and is a greater figure in the history of these United States than beer.

Men liked tea, my boy, but they hurled it into the sea in the name of liberty, and they died rather than drink it until they made it free. It seems to be worth fighting for, and the best men in the world fought for it.

The history of the United States is incomplete with tea left out. As well might the historian omit Faneuil Hall and Bunker Hill as tea. But there is no story of heroism or patriotism with rum for its hero.

The battles of this world, my son, have been fought for grander things than free whiskey. The heroes who fall in the struggle for rum fall shot in the neck, and their martyrdom is clouded by the haunting phantoms of the jimjams.

Whiskey makes men fight, it is true, but they usually fight other drunken men. The champion of beer does not stand in the temple of fame; he stands in the police court. Honor never has the delirium tremens. Glory does not wear a red nose, and fame blows a horn, but never takes one.

I do not know one good thing about a saloon. It is an evil thing that has not one redeeming thing in all its history to commend it to good men. It breaks the laws of God and man; it desecrates the Sabbath; it profanes the name of religion; it defies public order; it tramples under foot the tenderest feelings of humanity; it is a moral pestilence that blights the very atmosphere of town and country; it is a stain upon honesty; a blur upon purity; a clog upon progress; a check upon the nobler impulses; it is an incentive to falsehood, deceit, and crime.

Search through the history of this hateful thing, and find one page over which some mother can bow her grateful head and thank God for all the saloon did for her boy. There is no such record. All its history is written in tears and blood, with smears of shame and stains of crime and dark blots of disgrace.

Next year the savings bank in America will celebrate its one hundredth anniversary. This is an institution which has done more than anything else in the past to help our people cultivate the virtue of thrift, and that it will continue to be useful to them and their descendants in the future is not to be questioned. Without the practice of economy on the part of the masses of its people no government can stand or nation flourish, no matter how great it may appear to be.

On the morning of December 16 the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Quellion, of South Baton Rouge, La., and took their darling baby, ETHEL, away to the bright realms above. Ethel is smiling with Uncle Dave in that City of Gold. Little Ethel came to bless the home of her fond parents on a bright June morning. She was only six months and fifteen days old when death overtook her, after everything possible had been done by loving and skillful hands to stay its approach; but God loved Ethel so that he claimed her for his own. Weep not, dear parents, sisters, brothers, aunts, uncles, and grandparents, for Jesus said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not; for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." The body was laid to rest on Dec. 17 in the beautiful Magnolia Cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. W. Cudd. Sleep on, little one; we will meet you some day.

AUNT LOU.

EMILY T. JONES, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Jones, was born on August 15, 1891, and died on October 23, 1915. Her death was not a surprise, though we were not prepared for it, and it was a great shock. She was never strong physically, but in character she was as firm as a rock. Her faith in the Christian religion was childlike. She loved the Sunday school, the Church, and her pastor. In the home, the fact that she was constantly under the care of her loved ones bound her close to them, and now that she is gone they miss her more than they would otherwise. Weep not for her, for we know that she is at rest where there is no sickness, pain, sorrow, or death. We could not wish her back, but we can and will live in the hope of a happy reunion.

Could we but lift aside the veil and see
The saints above, how great their glories be.

How fitting it was that during the Sunday school hour at the church where she loved to be her funeral service was held. We miss her, but thing of her as belonging to the same church, part of which is still on earth and part above.

Her pastor, R. T. PICKETT.

RESOLUTIONS OF SYMPATHY.

Whereas, since God in his all-wise providence has seen fit to remove from Topisaw Church one of its most useful, faithful and kind-hearted officials in the person of Brother John C. Huffman, be it resolved:

1. That it is one of the most distinct and irreparable losses that has ever come to the Topisaw Official Board.
2. That we as a body extend to the bereaved family our sincere sympathy and prayers in this their sad hour, and
3. That a copy of these resolutions be given to the family and a copy be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed by: J. A. Wells, M. G. Felder, S. N. Lewis.

CHURCH NEWS ITEMS.

But for losses in Mexico, we would report for 1915 one of the largest membership gains in the foreign mission fields in the history of our Church. For the missions in China, Korea, Brazil, and Cuba, the total gain in number of Church members for the year is nearly 2400, or an increase of more than ten per cent.

Dr. John R. Stewart, Secretary of the Superannuate Endowment Fund, says: "The collections from the Conferences for the Superannuate Endowment Fund for this year, according to present indications, a number of Conferences not having been heard from, will show an increase of something like $12,000 over last year."

The Dallas (Tex.) District reports 2506 members received during the year just closed, as compared with 1859 additions during 1914. The Sunday school enrollment increased from 6801 to 8559. Church property in the district is valued at $795,457, an increase of $222,471 over last year's figures, and contributions for all purposes totaled $147,845, as compared with $129,775 for 1914. Dr. O. F. Sensabaugh is the presiding elder.

Bishop E. E. Hoss and his son, Mr. E. E. Hoss, Jr., sailed from Kobe, Japan, early in this month and within a short time will likely reach San Francisco. Bishop Hoss was able to fill all of his engagements in Australia and in the Far East—in fact, he undertook a great deal more work than was expected of him when he left home. From all reports, he has been in vigorous health and returns renewed in strength. For this the entire Church will rejoice.

In the Birmingham (Ala.) District, Dr. L. C. Branscomb, presiding elder, there were 2397 additions to the Church during the past Conference year, and the gain in membership was 554. The total number of Church members in this district is 12,396, and the twenty-five churches are all within the corporate limits of the city of Birmingham, with several churches in the city limits that are in the Bessemer District. The total membership of our Church in the city of Birmingham is approximately 15,000.

Among the notable gifts reported in the interest of Christian education is the superb gift made to Greensboro (N. C.) College for Women by the late Mrs. Mary T. Hudson of her excellent farm in Mecklenburg County, N. C., valued at $12,500. This is the largest single gift ever made to this college by any woman. Mrs. Hudson was a devoted alumna of the Institution, having been educated at the old Greensboro (N. C.) Female College and having taught in the institution during the early administration of President T. M. Jones. Mrs. Hudson had previously given to her Alma Mater $1000 for a scholarship in memory of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David M. Lee.

In his report of the fall meeting of the College of Bishops the Secretary, Bishop Collins Denny, says of the new Course of Study for Preachers:

"Perhaps the most important matter that came before us was the Course of Study. A year ago a committee of three Bishops was appointed to make a careful study of this whole question. This committee was instructed first to prepare courses of study without reference to any special textbooks and then to suggest the preparation or adoption of such books as would meet our need. At the meeting of the College held last May in Nashville, Tenn., this committee submitted a carefully prepared and elaborate report on the first point mentioned above. A copy of this report was furnished to each Bishop for examination and study, and further consideration was deferred till the fall meeting. In addition, as was mentioned in the publication of last May, Bishop Hoss was requested to prepare a history of our Church; Bishop Lamhuth, a history of our missions; Dr. Frank Seay, an outline study of the Old Testament; and Dr. Andrew Sledd, an outline of the New Testament. The discussion of the report was again confined to courses of study apart from textbooks, and the selection of textbooks was deferred till next May. Bishops Candler and Mouzon were appointed to report on courses of study for our Spanish and Portuguese preachers. The new courses of study are to go into effect at the close of the round of Conferences held in 1916-17."

TETTERINE WHEN OTHERS FAIL

That's the great thing about Tetterine skin remedy. It does insist upon relieving the severest cases of Tetter, Ringworm, Eczema, Itch, Acne, Pimples, etc., when others fall down. Mrs. S. E. Hart, Cross Trails, Ala., says. "I used Tetterine for tetter which has been running for 5 years. Nothing gave relief until I used your remedy and one box made a final cure." 50c at druggist's or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

DON'T RISK YOUR LIFE.

Don't let a wound or bruise or sore go neglected. A neglected skin wound often leads to blood poisoning, a disease hard to cure and sometimes fatal. Treat the afflicted spot with Gray's Ointment; it quickly allays the pain, heals the wound, and frees you from all danger of troublesome after-effects. For nearly a century Gray's Ointment has been an indispensable remedy for all abrasions or eruptions of the skin, boils, ulcers, sores, burns, cuts, bruises, etc. "I have used it in my family for more than fifteen years and have not found any ointment equal to it," writes Mrs. E. E. Coleman, Mt. Jackson, Va. Only 25c a box, at druggists. For free sample, write W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Building, Nashville, Tenn.

MINISTER TELLS HOW HE WAS RESTORED TO HEALTH.

The splendid restorative powers of Dr. Miles' Nervine were never better demonstrated than by the experience of the Rev. W. J. Houck, of Greencastle, Pa. We will quote from a statement that he made recently:

"Several years ago I experienced some severe nervous shocks, which came at a time when my nervous strength and vitality had been greatly taxed by a severe season of work. My health was affected and I was seriously threatened with nervous prostration. I could not sleep at night and was so nervous that I would start at every little noise. My appetite was poor and it seemed almost impossible for me to gain strength. Through the advice of a friend I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine and Liver Pills. I soon saw that my health was improving. Instead of that tired and wornout feeling which had so oppressed me, I felt strong and cheerful. I could sleep soundly all night and would awake in the morning feeling rested and refreshed. Since that time, whenever I am overworked or feel "rundown" I find a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine is a wonderful help in bracing me up and in giving me renewed strength and health."

Dr. Miles' Nervine will prove equally beneficial to others who are nervous and run-down from overwork or from any other reason, and if it fails to benefit you your money will be cheerfully refunded. It can be purchased at any drug store.

DISTRICT STEWARDS' MEETING.

The Hattiesburg District Stewards met at Main Street Church, Hattiesburg, at 2 p.m., December 21. The meeting was well attended. Several of the pastors of the district were present.

By the unanimous vote of the Board, the pastors were requested to share in all the work of the occasion. The meeting was delightfully harmonious and spiritual. Every interest of the Church was earnestly and intelligently considered, and some very practical plans were adopted, looking to advancement.

The presiding elder's salary was fixed at $2400, an advance of $300 over that of last year. An increase of $360 on the Conference claims was distributed among the several pastoral charges without a protest or dissent from any quarter. Good! Every man, lay and clerical, showed an honest purpose to deal fairly in the whole matter. There was not shown any disposition to wrangle or shirk. The Holy Spirit manifestly guided in the meeting.

A meeting of the pastors was held in connection with the meeting of the Board. The Advocate was given very careful consideration. Strong appeals were made in its behalf. T. W. Adams was chosen as the District Editor of the Advocate, and J. L. Greenway as its Circulation Agent. It was agreed that all notes of interesting happenings should be sent to T. W. Adams, and that he should compile them for the Advocate. Let everybody take notice and govern himself accordingly. Address him at Hattiesburg, 700 Elizabeth Avenue. Brother Greenway will try to line up all the pastors in the interest of a wider circulation of our Conference organ. Brethren, we should wake up on this matter. The New Orleans Advocate should be put in every Methodist home in our district. Let us all help Brother Greenway.

The Hattiesburg District sends, through its Editor, happy New Year greetings to the Editor and Publisher. May the Lord prosper their work in 1916.

T. W. ADAMS.

CONFERENCE ON EVANGELISM.

A Conference on Evangelism being held (December 28-30) in Nashville promises to be a great meeting. The conference was to be opened the morning of December 28 with an address by Bishop J. H. McCoy on "The Evangelistic Passion." Bishop James Atkins was to speak the evening of the first day on "The Outstanding Features of Great Revivals" and Dr. George R. Stuart on "The Revival We Need." Some of the other speakers and their subjects are: Dr. H. C. Morrison, "Mobilizing the Forces for a Great Revival;" Dr. W. J. Young, "What a Revival of Religion Is;" Dr. E. G. B. Mann, "How to Measure the Work of a Revival;" Dr. O. E. Goddard, "The Evangelistic Message;" Dr. John M. Moore, "What Other Churches Are Doing in Evangelism;" Rev. J. C. Rawlings, "Personal Evangelism and Its Possibilities;" Dr. C. W. Tadlock, "Vital Points in 'One-to-Win-One' Campaign." Rev. Robert Echols, of the North Alabama Conference, and Rev. G. M. Eakes, of the North Georgia Conference, will discuss "The Relation of Conference Committee on Evangelism to Evangelists and to Conference Revival Work." Some of our evangelists who will address the Conference are: Revs. Walt Holcomb, D. L. Coale, H. W. Bromley, W. C. Swope, Raymond Browning, W. M. McIntosh, G. A. Klein, J. B. Andrews, Burke Culpepper, Thurston B. Price, L. B. Bridgers, and Bob Jones.

All preachers and laymen interested in the Church's great work of evangelism were invited to attend the Nashville Conference. The good influence of this meeting should be felt throughout our Methodism.

FORTUNATE FOR THE SOUTH.

Skin diseases seem most prevalent in the warmer climates, which makes it fortunate for the South that it has such an exceptionally fine remedy in Tetterine for Eczema, Tetter, Itch, Acne, Salt Rheum, etc. Every skin trouble from a simple chafe or insect bite to the worst case of Tetter is quickly relieved by Tetterine. Applied externally, harmless and fragrant. 50c at druggist's or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

"BILLY" SUNDAY SCORES LOW PAY FOR PASTORS.

It is ridiculous that prize fighters may earn in fifteen minutes as much money as country preachers are paid for fifteen years' service, and it is the basest ingratitude that either preachers or school teachers should want when they become old, writes "Billy" Sunday, the baseball evangelist, now conducting a meeting at Syracuse, N. Y.

The letter was received to-day by the Rev. John T. Brabner Smith of the Board of Conference Claimants of the Methodist Episcopal Church, 820 Garland Building, in response to one informing him that the Methodist Church, which started out to obtain $5,000,000 for its aged preachers, their widows and orphans, had that sum already in the treasury, or pledged, and that now $10,000,000 more is sought.

"The penurious salaries which this country doles out to its ministers and to its school teachers constitute a disgrace, in my mind," Sunday writes, "and a blot upon its escutcheon. Nothing is more vital to the moral welfare of the nation than these two professions. Almost invariably their ranks are the strongest, the most self-sacrificing, the truest citizenship of any community. How long could any section of the country continue as a desirable place in which to live were it not for the churches and the schools?

"The man who wears himself out, day by day, in service for others should not be compelled to worry about how he will meet the needs of the body in old age. If a minister has worn himself out for the Church it is the basest ingratitude for the Church not to care for him in his declining years.

"The school teacher who has given the best years of his life for the sake of the coming generation should not be allowed to go hungry and poorly clothed when the years of his usefulness have ended. Elders and deacons and church officials who earn at decent salaries paid to ministers of the gospel never are heard to question the amount of money a lawyer or a doctor or any other professional man may receive for his services.

"It is radically wrong when a prize fighter in fifteen minutes can earn more than a country parson does in fifteen years. A penny expended for the support of aged ministers and teachers is a penny expressing a nation's gratitude to the most faithful of its servants and the truest of its citizens."—Chicago Post.

WILSON INDORSES PENSION PLAN FOR AGED PREACHERS.

Leader of Movement to Raise $10,000,000 Endowment Gets Letter from President.

President Wilson has indicated his interest in the effort now being made by all religious denominations to raise endowment funds for the pensioning of retired preachers. The following letter was received by the Rev. John T. B. Smith of the Board of Conference Claimants of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Chicago, editor of The Veteran Preacher, whose campaign to raise $10,000,000 in American Methodism is meeting with great success:

"My Dear Sir: Allow me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of November 15. I take pleasure in expressing my very deep interest in the effort which you represent to obtain an endowment which will supply the means of pensioning aged preachers. This is a matter in which I have long had a great interest, for I have seen so many cases which demonstrated the necessity of sueh action.

"Cordially and sincerely yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

The Discipline provides that certain committees shall be elected by the Church Conference, and the conferences should be held the first month of the Conference year. Please let this be done. The pastors will then be ready to answer such questions as provided for in the first round of conferences.

Bretbren, please do not overlook anything that needs your attention. We need to begin right.

I shall expect each of us to do his full duty. Let us do this much one quarter.

AT THE PORTAL.

Standing at the portal
Of the opening year,
Words of comfort meet us,
Hushing every fear;
Spoken through the silence
By our Father's voice,
Tender, strong, and faithful,
Making us rejoice.

For the year before us,
O what rich supplies!
For the poor and needy
Living streams shall rise;
For the sad and sinful
Shall his grace abound;
For the faint and feeble
Perfect strength be found.

"I, the Lord, am with thee;
Be thou not afraid,
I will help and strengthen;
Be thou not dismayed.
Yea, I will uphold thee
With my own right hand;
Thou art called and chosen
In my sight to stand."

He will never fail us;
He will not forsake.
His eternal covenant
He will never break.
Resting on his promises,
What have we to fear?
God is all-sufficient
For the coming year.

WEEK OF PRAYER AND SELF-DENIAL, JAN. 2-9, 1916.

The reasons for a Week of Prayer in which the whole Church is called on to participate are abundant and unquestionable:

1. The need of spiritual quickening and saving power at home, the horror and cruelty of war in Europe, the crushing responsibility of American Christianity, and the overwhelming call of mission lands, should bring us to our knees. Our only hope is in Him who answers prayer.

2. The entire Christian world has long joined in the use of the first week in each year as a world's Week of Prayer. The Evangelical Alliance has issued a call and a program for 1916. We unite with our sister denominations in the general observance, only giving specific direction to our own denominational intercessions and offerings.

3. It brings home to us our own insufficiency, short-comings and failures, and turns our eyes to the hills whence cometh our help. It kindles the flagging hope of the Church and sends it to the task of the year strong and courageous.

4. It fuses into one the purposes of the Church and sets the chords of brotherhood athrill, and even exclaims: "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!"

5. A Church on its knees is a sign of its renunciation of dependence on material things and a witness to its faith in the powers of the unseen world. Intercession is the antithesis of materialism and the emphatic affirmation of the power and love and wisdom of Christ.

6. Our conscious need, the repeated calls and commands of God, and the pleading of a torn and smitten world, combine to unite us in confession and intercession.

7. The Board of Missions, with its eye on the task of evangelization at home and abroad, knowing that only a praying and self-denying people can command power adequate to the task, has set apart this week for praying and giving for this great cause.

8. We are asked to pray for a revival, for enlarged vision and quickened sense of responsibility, for the missionaries, for leaders in the Church, and for men and money to meet the needs of the hour. The Board believes that the first and most important requisite is a praying Church.

9. That we may be "of one mind and of one accord," a program of subjects and facts will be furnished on application to the Board, together with leaflets and other helps for the congregations. Let no church in one great connection fail to observe the Week of Prayer.—The Missionary Voice.

HOW TO USE THE PLEDGE CARDS AT THE JANUARY MEETING.

The December Voice contains a pertinent article on the use of the pledge card at the January meeting. First, it suggests the use of a poster in the form of a large pledge card. The poster to be a fac-simile of the cards sent out from headquarters to be used upon this occasion.

These cards should be in the hands of the Corresponding Secretary at time of meeting. Leaflets have been prepared setting forth the work in a concise form, and after this matter has been thoroughly presented, the Corresponding Secretary makes it more emphatic and tries to drive home the truths already listened to, by giving a plain, practical talk upon our obligations. Her plea must ever be for larger gifts for

"However poor thou art,
Thou hast some wealth
To keep or give away.
Thou canst at least
Some good or joy impart
And cheer thy fellow-pilgrims
On their way."

Stress the payment of pledges weekly, monthly or quarterly. When the pledge cards have been given to every member let earnest prayer be made that each one will be guided by the Father in making her offering, and may its largeness be a measure of her love for the cause for which she is laboring and praying. If some do not wish to turn in their cards at this meeting, let them retain same until next meeting.

When the cards have been collected, sing softly, "Something for Thee." This service conducted in this manner will surely be productive of greater results than heretofore.

After the meeting is adjourned, let the Corresponding Secretary and the Treasurer make a record of the pledges for future use.

Getting Back to Normal.

The war in Europe literally disrupted the American stock markets for a time, but now conditions have gotten back to normal. Rheumatism has practically the same effect on people—some days it is very painful, while at other times it is hardly felt. But if rheumatism is allowed to go unchecked, it is liable to prove disastrous. RENWAR is the one known remedy that will positively relieve rheumatism and bring the system back to normal. It is sold under an absolute guarantee of relief or money back. Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist to-day. If he does not have it, accept no substitute but send to us. Sent prepaid on receipt of price. Prepared and guaranteed by Warner Drug Co., Nashville, Tenn.

KOREANS IMPROVE ON ACQUAINTANCE.

Rev. R. O. Reiner, who has served as a missionary of the Presbyterian Board at Tagu, Korea, says that about ten years ago he taught in a Hawaiian mission school. He met there Japanese, Chinese and Koreans. He says that as a rule he found the Koreans unappreciative and selfish, but later, when he was sent to Korea by the Presbyterian Board, he witnessed a great change of feeling and sentiment. He now appreciates the enthusiasm of the Koreans in their splendid struggle to overcome racial deficiencies and attain to the standards of civilization which are American and Christian.

TRY THIS FOR YOUR HEALTH.

For diseases which do not readily yield to drug treatment, such as chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism, Bright's disease, gall stones, uric acid poisoning, and diseases of the kidney and liver, the best physicians send their Wealthy patients to the famous mineral springs. Some even spent months at the Spas of Europe and were almost invariably cured or greatly benefited.

I believe that the Shivar Spring is the greatest mineral spring ever discovered and I believe it so firmly that I offer to send you enough water for a three weeks' treatment (two five-gallon demijohns) on my guarantee that if it fails to benefit your case I will refund the price. You would hardly believe me if I told you that only about two out of a hundred, on the average, say that they have received no benefit. The water is restoring thousands. It restored my health when my friends and physicians thought my case was incurable, and I am willing and anxious for you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocketbook. If I win you become a life-friend of the Spring. If I lose I will be sorry for you, but I will appreciate your courtesy in giving the water a trial and will gladly refund your money on request. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17-C, Shelton, S. C.

The latest official statement concerning the schools of our Church shows that we have invested in grounds, buildings, and equipment $13,500,125 and in endowments $6,447,-178, a total of practically $20,000,000. This total has been increased by more than $2,000,000, since these figures included only the schools in operation last year. The number of students enrolled during 1914-1915 was 20,380. Reports from the larger number of schools for the present session indicate that the total enrollment will show an increase of ten to fifteen per cent over last year.

Millions of mothers have carried their children through the critical teething period by using nothing but Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. Lime Combats Tuberculosis

"It is difficult to escape the conviction that lime starvation and lime assimilation are the real issues behind the masks of vulnerability and resistance in tuberculosis," wrote the late Ira Van Geison, M. D., in the N. Y., Medical Record, May 11, 1912.

Ordinarily, lime is not easily assimilated, but Eckman's Alterative contains it in such form and combination as to insure assimilation by the average person. This explains its success in many cases of tuberculosis which apparently have yielded to it.

Containing no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. It is safe to try. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

An Old, Family Cough Remedy, Home-Made

Easily Prepared—Costs Very Little, but is Prompt, Sure and Effective

By making this pint of old-time cough syrup at home you not only save about $2, as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a much more prompt and positive remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly—and is excellent, too, for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and spasmodic croup.

Get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. It quickly loosens the dry, hoarse or painful cough and heals the inflamed membranes. It also has a remarkable effect in overcoming the persistent loose cough by stopping the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes.

The effect of Pine on the membranes is known by almost every one. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract combined with guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements.

There are many worthless imitations of this famous mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., 235 Main St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

From the Field

Moorhead, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We had with us last Sunday at Moorhead Rev. J. B. Randolph, Manager of the Orphanage at Jackson, who came at the invitation of the pastor. This was his first trip to a particular charge to present the claims of the Orphanage and it was a pleasure to have him with us. He preached for us at the morning hour, after which he outlined his new work. His sermon was well received, and he made a clear, forceful presentation of the work which the Church has placed in his hands. The welfare of the parentless children has a large hold upon his heart and he succeeded in making many new friends for them. No special collection was taken, but we have pledged a monthly offering to the work. May every congregation in the State do likewise and thus help to bear its share of the support of this most worthy enterprise. We believe that he is the right man in the right place, and we predict continued success for the Home.—Robt. H. Ruff.

Ansted, West Virginia.

Dear Brother Meek: I will drop you a few lines, as I am a former North Mississippi Conference boy. Some of your many readers may be glad to know where I am working and my address. I have been a reader and subscriber to the New Orleans Christian Advocate ever since I was licensed to preach at Brooksville, Miss., on May 5, 1909. I came to Ansted on the second day of last September. Ansted Circuit is located on the C. & O. Railroad, in Fayette County. Ansted has a population of 2000 people and is located 1350 feet above the level of the sea. We have a splendid people to serve. We have held three revivals since Conference, which resulted in 66 conversions and 32 additions to the Church. We have done some church repairing. The Ladies' Parsonage Repairing and Furnishing Society has spent $52 on the parsonage. The parsonage has been pounded a number of times. The good sisters of Victor Church sent us 80 quarts of fine fruit. We have raised all the back collections at one church, and are laying our plans to report our claims in full at Charleston, West Virginia, next September. The stewards met in November and set the pastor's salary at $850; but since that time we closed one of the best revivals at Glen Ferris, W. Va., that I have ever seen, and, as an additional assessment was taken up, the pastor's salary was brought up to $1075. We will begin our meeting in Ansted on Jan. 10, 1915. Evangelist E. C. Lee, of Brooksville, Miss., will assist me.—C. T. Barton.

EMORY AND HENRY'S CALL.

To the Old Students and Friends of the College:

The Creed Fulton Memorial Building was completed and opened to students of Physics last February. It cannot be used for an observatory, however, until the telescope and other instruments (transit, chronograph, Riefler clock, sextant) are secured. These instruments are now all ready for shipment, but the College has not the money to receive them. They cost $1000, to be paid in four annual installments of $1000 each. Our only hope of raising the $1000 for the first payment is through an appeal to our friends.

We are, therefore, making a call for one thousand givers of at least ONE DOLLAR EACH. Larger gifts will be gratefully received but we feel that every one can certainly give a dollar. No college can thrive without the loyal support of its old students. Will you not remember Emory and Henry at this season with a small gift? Your dollar will count for many years to come. Without these instruments the building will fail of its purpose, whereas with them we will have the best college observatory in the entire South.

It takes only 999 besides YOU to make the thousand Christmas givers and to enable us to order our instruments at once. Very truly yours,

FRED ALLISON.

P. S.—You perhaps know of our large enrollment this year of over 230 students (the largest since the Civil War), our recent material equipment in modern buildings, heating and lighting plant, all of which predict a great future for the College.

DON'T USE SOAP

on your hair. It is too strongly alkaline and will do a great deal of damage. The hair should be of a soft and silken texture. Each individual hair is of delicate construction and requires scientific, careful treatment. If your hair is harsh, dry, coarse and scanty then you are not giving it proper treatment. The hair needs food just as the rest of your body and in order to keep your scalp nourished and your hair plentiful and beautiful, you should supply it with the proper food and treatment. The Creoles of Louisiana possessed a formula for keeping the hair beautiful and for many years kept the secret to themselves, but now you may enjoy their discovery by using "La Creole" Hair Color Restorer, the same recipe which the Creoles used. It darkens hair in the natural way and keeps the scalp in healthy condition. For sale by all reliable dealers. Price $1.00. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.

SALARIES OF PREACHERS.

The average salary paid ministers in the United States is $578. The average salary of street sweepers is $642. The Episcopal Church, one of the strongest and wealthiest, pays its clergymen an average salary of $700 a year. The last General Assembly of the Northern Presbyterian Church reported that there are two thousand churches in this country "pastorless and shepherdless" because of the poor salaries paid to ministers. At the same meeting there was a decrease of about twenty per cent in the number of young men recommended for the ministry. The cities are yearly sending fewer young men into the ministry. Colleges once depended upon to help furnish the supply can no longer find the material.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

THE STORY OF LAURENCE COSTER.

Fred Myron Colby.

Some five hundred years ago there was living in the old Dutch town of Haarlem a man by the name of Laurence Joanssen. He was of excellent repute, honest, and wealthy, and much looked up to by all his neighbors. He was the sacristan of the Church of St. Bavon, and for that reason he was called Laurence Coster, which means Laurence the Sacristan.

Laurence was a quiet, learned, and meditative man, and as he grew old and gray he became a great lover of nature. There was nothing he liked so well as to wander out in the country, breathe the fresh air and the sunlight, listen to the songs of the birds, and meditate among the trees and the flowers. He enjoyed all of these things as much as a child.

It was his custom every afternoon to go out for a walk with his broad-brimmed hat on his head, a short, black coat over his shoulders, and a staff in his hand. Sometimes he strolled along the banks of the broad and sluggish river, at other times he rambled through the fields and returned home by the great road which led around to the other side of the city. Best of all, however, he loved to frequent the old forest which lay beyond the meadow lands, a mile farther away.

It was a grand old forest, where the trees grew large and tall, and Laurence Coster was fond of wandering round among their mazy recesses and the quiet woodland paths and think of the time when he was younger and used to carve upon the trees the name of a young maiden whom he knew. When he was tired of walking he would sit under the shade of some of the huge beeches and from the bark carve the letters of the alphabet. This was an old habit of his to pass away the time, and he made it a matter of utility by carrying home the pretty bark letters for his grandchildren to play with.

One day something happened. He chanced to wrap the letters in a piece of parchment that he had in his pocket, and when he arrived home he was surprised to see the imprint of several of the letters very clear and distinct upon the parchment. The sap exuding from the green bark had acted as ink on the face of the letters. The accident set Laurence Coster to thinking.

He carved a set of letters with more care than he had the others, and dipping one side of them in ink he pressed them on a sheet of parchment. The idea was an inspiration, the result was a print quite as good as the block pictures and block books which were sold in the shops and were the only examples of printing known. By an accident Laurence Coster had discovered the modern art of printing by movable types.

"With enough of these letters I believe I could print a book," thought Laurence Coster, "for I could arrange and re-arrange the letters in any order that I wished."

As long ago as the days of the Romans, people had found out how to impress letters on wax, and later a monkish copyist had learned how to carve a picture of a whole page of writing and stamp it on a piece of vellum. These they called block pictures and block books. But no one had ever thought of movable types till Laurence Coster grasped the idea from his bark letters of the alphabet.

Coster now set earnestly to work to improve his invention. He made a kind of ink that was thicker and more gluey than common ink, and not so likely to spread and leave an ugly blot. He also carved a great many letters of various sizes, and found that with his improved ink he could make clear, distinct impressions, and could print entire pages, with cuts and diagrams and fancy headings.

After a time Coster devised the idea of making the letters of lead instead of wood; and finally he discovered that a mixture of lead and tin was better than pure lead, because it was harder and more durable. And so year after year Laurence Coster kept on, working at the making of type and the printing of books.

But only a few people knew what he was doing; after awhile, however, it began to leak out. It was a strange age. People were very superstitious, and if there was anything they did not understand they attributed it to the devil. And as there was more or less mystery about Laurence Coster and his printed books, they began to tell around how he was in league with the evil one.

Laurence Coster's invention did not cost him his life, but it probably shortened his days. He was an old man when he first discovered the principle of movable types, and he worked so hard and led such a confined life that he died in a few years. Before he passed away, however, a young man named Gutenberg came to Haarlem and learned something of Coster's invention. Gutenberg was a shrewd, cunning man, and capable too, and he so improved the art of printing that some people attribute the invention of printing to him. But John Gutenberg only improved what Laurence Coster had begun, and no one can rob the latter of the glory that was his. When we consider what printing has done for the civilization of the world we must regard Laurence Coster as one of the greatest benefactors of the human race.—Western Christian Advocate.

TELL THE TRUTH ABOUT THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Hon. J. Frank Hanly.

Let us go this road though we go aknee,
Let us lift our hands and loose our tongues and tell the truth about it, aye, tell the truth!
Tell it:
Until its wickedness shall be laid bare;
Until the poverty it creates shall cease to be;
Until the pauperism it produces shall disappear;
Until its wrongs to womanhood and its injustice to childhood shall be exposed;
Until almshouses and hospitals shall be no longer needed to house the defectives it creates;
Until jails and prisons shall be emptied of its victims;
Until the insanity it begets shall cloud the intellects of men no more;
Until the crime it impels shall no longer be laid upon the souls of men;
Until murder shall stop its riot and arson its carnival;
Until men shall see it with the blood upon its naked, knotted hands;
Until fathers shall cease to neglect their offspring;
Until mothers need fear no more for the children they bear;
Until childhood robbed no longer of its birthright, shall receive a fair chance and a square deal from every man and woman [illegible]
